I, a wandering student, seeking knowledge, came knocking at the gates of the great University of Wisconsin, and it took me in, filled me with inspiration, and when I left its doors the kindly people of the state stretched out welcoming hands and gave me a man's work to do.—An Alumnus.

THE CALUMET CEREMONY

C. E. BROWN

Wisconsin Historical Society

ONE of the most interesting and picturesque features of this year's Commencement program was the calumet or "pipe of peace" ceremony produced by members of the graduating class. This ceremony, which revives a very old custom of the Wisconsin Indian tribes, may be said to consist of two principal parts, the presentation of the calumet, or great pipe, and the calumet dance and singing of the calumet song or chant. Among some western Indian tribes the ceremony is still performed; among Wisconsin Indians it has disappeared.

In the early days of Wisconsin history no greater honor could be conferred upon a stranger than to have the calumet sung (presented) to him. Nicholas Perret, the brave and resourceful commandant of the French in the West, and other men of prominence during the French regime, were thus honored by Wisconsin tribes. He upon whom this mark of distinction was conferred was thereafter honored as a member of the tribe. Its members were pledged to render obedience to him in council and on the warpath. He became thereby a custodian of the tribal honor and its sacred traditions.

Recognizing the "pipe of peace" function as given by previous graduating classes to have been a more or less colorless and uninteresting affair, the officers of the class of 1913 made a special effort by properly staging, costuming and adding many new features to the ceremony to invest it with real dignity and historical interest. That the result of their efforts was very greatly appreciated by the several thousand alumni and friends who witnessed the ceremony, is now well known.

The ceremony took place on Tuesday, June 17, at 11 P. M., directly following the Alumni Banquet in the Armory. For its presentation a large Indian council circle, eighty feet in diameter, outlined with pine boughs, had been prepared in the center of the Lower Campus. At the entrance to this enclosure stood an Indian feather flag and at the opposite side of the circle a huge bonfire had been erected. This served to illuminate the scene. On a blanket in the center of the circle lay a bark tray containing an offering of tobacco, and in its rear, resting on in the customary Indian manner with bits of fur, the plumage of birds, and other objects of a symbolical character.

ALONG UNIVERSITY DRIVE

two forked sticks, their bowls on the ground, were two large calumets.

One, the university pipe, was ornamented with the ribbon trophies of past graduating classes, and the other, the tribal pipe, was bedecked

The ceremony began with the entrance into the circle of the shaman (medicine man) and six attendant tribesmen (guardians of the pipe). Holding aloft the sacred calumet the shaman offered it in dignified salute in turn to each of the four quarters, and then to the earth and heavens. This silent gesturing was followed by a characteristic Indian dance given in honor of the pipe by the pipe guardians. At its close there marched into the circle the tribe of 1913, led by its chief, Class President John K. Livingston. After these were seated, George B. Hill, representing the old men (alumni), briefly explained the historical significance of the calumet ceremony, upon the invitation of the chief of the tribe of 1913, conveyed in these words:

The tribe of 1914 return to us this belt of wampum, as a sign that they approach as friends. With what ceremonies shall we receive them? There is by our council fire tonight an elder chieftain of a tribe of our blood-brethren who ruled in this place before us? What is the word of the elder chieftain?

Mr. Hill as elder counsellor replied:

This is my counsel: that you receive the stranger tribe with the highest honor—that you receive them with the ceremony of the calumet.

You, who from a summer to a summer have been supreme in this place, are about to pass on into wider hunting grounds, to join in your turn the elder tribes which have ruled here aforetime. The stranger tribe, whose chief men now approach, will take authority here in your stead. It is well that you receive them not only as friends but as blood-brothers. Let them be charged with the safe-keeping of the traditions and the perpetuations of the triumphs of your tribe and of the tribes that have gone before you.

It is my counsel that, by the presentation of the calumet, you extend the hand of fellowship and brotherhood to the strangers, and initiate them as your successors and as the custodians of your history and tradition. For such is the significance of the ceremony of the calumet.

Following this address a messenger from the tribe of 1914 brought to the chief a large wampum belt, which he accepted in the name of his tribe, and whose symbols he interpreted as signifying a desire on the part of that tribe to be received as brothers into the tribal council circle. Embroidered in purple in the center of this belt were three diamond-shaped figures connected with each other by a line, these signifying the union in sacred brotherhood of the alumni and the two classes. At either extremity were figures of a man and woman, these representing co-education, co-interest, etc. Admittance being granted them there now entered the council circle with their chiefs, the tribe of 1914.

These having seated themselves, John P. Davies, the orator of the tribe of 1913, delivered the tribal address, saying:

Brothers of the tribe of 1914:

By the token of the broad white wampum belt which you have this night exchanged with our tribe, the war hatchet has been forever buried between our tribe and your own. Peace between our tribesmen has been declared and the roads between us are open. This night have we drawn you to our council fire, to listen to the words of wisdom which fall from the lips of our war chief and of the old men of our nation. This night will our young women, the fairest in the lodges of Tay-cho-pe-ra (Indian name for the region of the four Madison lakes) sing in your honor as our successors the song of Calumet and dance to your glory as warriors the Calumet dance.

In token of the covenant of everlasting friendship and brotherhood which our tribes, in the presence of the old men (the alumni), have entered into, this night we offer to you to smoke that most sacred gift of the Manitou to the Red Man, the great-plumed Calumet. Placed in our keeping by the Old Men, our ancestors on this soil, we in turn pass it on to you, asking that you pledge yourselves to uphold its honor ever as our tribe has done. We ask that you in your turn teach its symbolism and sing its praises, and pass it on to those legions of tribesmen who shall follow in your trail as you do in that which we have blazed for you.

By the gift of the Calumet and by the sacred ceremonies attending its presentation we nominate you to be guardians of our camp and council fires; of our cornfields and hunting grounds; of the graves of our Fathers; of our Shrines; of our quarries of flint and copper; and of the sacred red pipe-stone; and of our far-reaching trails by prairie, forest and lake. With it we place in your hands for safe-keeping the sacred Traditions, the Trophies, and Records of the triumphs of our nation. These trophies, we have taken in many a hard-won battle, these traditions every Wisconsin tribesman should hold dear. With it we bequeath to you the War Song of Our Tribe.

By this Calumet we bind your young men to obey their chiefs and to give ear to the counsel of the old men of our nation. They must become skilled in the use of their weapons, in the construction of the canoe, and in the chase of the buffalo, bear and deer. Your young women must be diligent in their duties,—in the preparation of the lodge, of clothing and food, and in the care of the young, for upon this close cooperation of all of your warriors and maidens is founded the greatness and glory of our Wisconsin nation.

May the Mighty Manitou be your guide in your councils, in your wigwams, and on the warpath. May the trails to knowledge and national progress and prosperity be kept open by you as they have by the tribe of 1913.

Brothers, I have spoken for my tribe.

The response for the tribe of 1914 was delivered by John J. Jirgal, the tribal orator:

Brothers of the tribe of 1913, and old men of our Wisconsin nation: We have listened with pleasure and profit to the words of wisdom which have flown from the mouth of the orator of your tribe.

For our war chiefs, councillors and tribesmen, I, the chosen orator of the tribe of 1914, accept as a sacred trust this great Calumet, and the fulfillment of the pledges which its presentation imposes upon my people. We promise to preserve to those who shall succeed us the sacred traditions and trophies which you have placed in our keeping. We pledge ourselves to keep brightly burning the sacred fire of knowledge in the great medicine lodge on the Hill. We pledge ourselves to keep alive the memories of your glorious deeds and to add to the trophies which you have won in your conflicts with the Minnesota, the Illini, the Chicagou, the Dakota, Iowa, Ohio and Missouri. Their scalp-locks shall ornament the fronts of our tipis even as they have your own. Their villages, cornfields and hunting grounds will we sweep with the fire of our conquests.

Happy are we to have as our forerunners on this soil, your tribe and the fathers of our nation now gathered about this council fire. As the young eagle learns from its parent the use of its wings and talons, as the fawn learns the use of its hoofs and horns, and the cub the purpose of its teeth and claws, so we have learned many things from you, our brothers.

We have spread our blankets about your council fire. We have brought to you the hearts of our young men and maidens. The message of the Calumet is one that fills our hearts with gladness. In proof of our undying affection and the ties of eternal brotherhood, we are now prepared to smoke it with your tribe.

The great calumet was then taken from its resting place and passed by the shaman to the members of both tribes. During its smoking thirty maidens of the class of 1913, bearing ing green twigs, entertained the members of the newly initiated tribe by the performance of the several figures of the very impressive calumet dance, and the singing to the old tune of the calumet song, to which appropriate English words had been fitted.

CALUMET CHANT (1913).

See now the sacred bowl, our Calumet,
Passing to all,
Hear now this our pledge of kinship,
Honor and loyalty.

I.

This circle's charm shall draw us close,
Though space and time be great—
And all be linked for aye,
With friendship's ties, strong, true and firm.

II.

Bright as this fire forever shall burn
Clear our honor true,
In all our words, and deeds and lives,
Kindling new flames.

III.

Strongest of all shall loyalty
Grow in our hearts, our love
For Alma Mater dear, our college home,
Shall never die.
We have spoken this our pledge.

The ceremony closed with a general tribal dance in which the members of both tribes and representatives of the alumni participated.

The costumes worn by the men consisted of tufts of, or single feathers, silver or other metal ornaments, blankets and moccasins, and of the women of head-beads or hair rolls, buckskin waists and skirts, girdles, and strings of beads and bells. All were typical of those formerly worn by the forest tribes of Wisconsin. These costumes did much to add to the attractiveness of the several features of the ceremony.

In properly revising and staging this time-honored Commencement ceremony the class of 1913 has set a mark of progress for future university classes. Among other suggestions which have been offered for its celebration during 1915 are the participation therein of a much larger number of the men and women of both classes, and of a greater number of the alumni, the printing of programs, the providing of seats for spectators, opening and closing music by a band or orchestra, the providing of dressing tents, and the use of a calcium light during the ceremony. The great interest and enthusiasm awakened this year would appear to justify some of these additions. The calumet ceremony now bids fair to become one of the most interesting of the graduation festivities of the university.

THE QUINQUENNIAL REUNIONS

THE REUNION OF '83

THE class of '83 had its special reunion festivities on Wednesday of Commencement Week, though most of the members had arrived by Monday and were very much in evidence at the Alumni Dinner on Tuesday. Again and again at the Dinner this lusty yell from 24 throats of '83 delighted the younger classes:

"Who are we, who are we?"

We're the class of '83,

We're just as young as we used to be."

The class met at a luncheon at the University Club, Wednesday, June 18, and re-elected its officers, viz.:

Mrs. Geo. I. Brown, president, and A. C. Umbreit, secretary. Beginning at 5:15 P. M., the class spent a pleasant hour and a half in a launch ride on Lake Mendota.

The following members took part in the reunion: R. B. Steele, Nashville, Tenn.; C. O. Marsh, Antigo; Lillie J. Beecroft, Geo. C. Comstock, Madison; N. P. Stoddart, Lincoln, Neb.; Florian Cajori, Colorado Springs, Colo.; E. G. McGilton, Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. Emma W. Robinson, A. C. Umbreit, M. A. Hoyt, Milwaukee; Mrs. Geo. I. Brown, Freeport, Ill.; M. J. Wallrich, Shawano.

THE SILVER JUBILEE OF '88

S. M. B., '88

"THE surviving members of the class of '88" (to quote from a newspaper account) gathered from near and from somewhat far, during Commencement Week, to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its graduation. The celebration was all that could reasonably have been desired, for so august an occasion. The class was a small one, even for the days of small classes. In view of that fact, we felt that in assembling 29 of our members for the reunion, we had accomplished no slight achievement. Our memorial to the university took the form of a cast bronze tablet, embedded in a boulder, to mark the trail which Black Hawk followed in his retreat. The legend reads as follows:

BLACK HAWK, SAUK CHIEF, RETREATED THROUGH THESE GROUNDS JULY 21, 1832, PURSUED BY MILITIA AND
U. S. REGULARS.
PLACED BY
THE CLASS OF 1888, U. W.
JUNE 17, 1913.

This memorial was given at the suggestion of Mr. C. E. Brown, secretary of the State Archeological Society. It is the desire of the Archeological Society to have these markers placed at intervals along the trail which was followed by Black Hawk and his little band of warriors, from Illinois across the State of Wisconsin to the Mississippi River. This by reason of the fact that the Black Hawk War, though of slight importance as an historic event, was of great significance in the development of Wisconsin. It was reported in the eastern newspapers, and awakened considerable interest in this part of the country, which at that time was under the government of Michigan. The marker was placed on the edge of the woods just back of Main Hall on the site of the former gymnasium, of memories hal- lowed and otherwise.

On Tuesday afternoon we stole away from the revels and had our picture taken, grouped around the marker. The affecting result of this action may be purchased from the Photoart Company for the modest price of 50c. per copy. We were in the panorama also, but more or less mixed up with certain other celebrities, including Messrs. Pease and Lochner, and either Ben or Henry Parkinson. We gathered for the Alumni Dinner, thirty-two strong, including wives and daughters. This statement is made for the benefit of those who were unable to be with us on this hilarious occasion. For all who attended it is quite unnecessary, as we feel sure that the fact of our presence in their midst was made clearly evident. Our especial stunt was aboriginal in character.

One of the near poets of the class had prepared some alleged verses portraying our efforts to impress upon posterity the relative renown of '88 and old Chief Black Hawk. These verses were read by Frank Doty in the stentorian tones which the character of the festivities necessitated, and we then arose in our might and emitted the following:

"Ugh! Ugh! Eighty-eight!
Black Hawk, Heap talk
He much hate!
Sends his 'How' by Eighty-eight!"

Later on "Pete" Clark and Brose Winegar were given their W's, and were cheered on their way to the stage by the following:

" '88! '88!
These are Our Boys!
Aren't they great?"

We also competed with the lusty youngsters of the twentieth century for honors in howling ability with yells of which these are samples:

"You're too late!
You're too late!
The world was made in '88!"

"Let them eat as have not ate,
We don't need to. We're 8-8!"

With Gene Brossard's able and whole-voiced assistance we felt that we had more than held our own.

The following members of the class, and relatives, attended the Alumni Dinner: Messrs. and Mesdames D. S. Clark, A. B. Winegar, W. A. Rogers, F. E. Doty, A. H. Reid, H. L. Russell, Edw. Kremers, C. C. Coe, T. A. Polleys; Mesdames Howard Greene, H. E. Briggs; Misses Jessie M. Cole, Kathleen Carey, Margaret Rogers, Gertrude Russell, Jeanette Reid; Messrs. E. E. Brossard, P. H. McGovern, K. L. Cowdery, J. A. James, Carl Beebe, J. R. Wise, W. F. Jones, J. L. Carey.

On Wednesday morning we lent dignity to the Commencement program by our assembled, but somewhat diminished, presence in the procession and on the stage. At the conclusion of the exercises we gathered all our forces at the university boat landing and set sail for the Golf Club. We greeted with pleasure several members of the class who were not able to be with us on Tuesday, and found with regret that Dr. McGovern and Dr. Beebe had been obliged to return to their professional duties.

The luncheon was served in the admirable style for which the Golf Club is noted. Covers were laid for 45. We were glad to have with us the following additional classmates who could not be with us on Tuesday:

Hon. Fred Beglinger, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Black, Dr. Joseph C. Bloodgood, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jamieson, Mrs. Andrew Kentzler (Emma Purdy), John L. Millard, Israel Shrimski, Mrs. W. W. McCullough, Mrs. Hughes, Elizabeth Carey, Elsa Kremers, Eugene Brossard, Jr., and Junius Jamieson.

We missed the Colignons, and avenged ourselves for their non-appearance by reading the prophecy they wrote for our class day. This prophecy was supposed to portray the members of the class and their doings in 1913. The reading of it, with Kirke Cowdery's interpolations, caused much merriment. And then the very interesting letters which had been sent us by some of our far away classmates were read by Dr. Russell and were thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated,—from Mrs. F. J. Colignon, Green Bay, Wis.; Mrs. L. B. Murphy; Louis Blatz, La Mirada, Cal.; Joseph Rice, North Yakima, Wash.; E. D. Swinburne, New York; F. W. Gage, Pittsburgh, Pa.; W. W. Cutler, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Vincent Quagliata (Alice Holt), Chicago; J. S. Roesler, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; Geo. H. McCloud, Ashland, Wis.; and Frank R. Farr, Eau Claire, Wis.

Afterwards we sang and disported ourselves in the usual manner of middle aged folks renewing their youth and old acquaintance. A detailed account of our reunion and all that it meant to us, individually and as a class, would be beyond the powers of the present incompetent scribe,—and everybody else has wisely left town, and thereby escaped the clutches of the alumni editor. Suffice it to say that we had a thoroughly good time, and before the final goodbyes had been exchanged had resolved ourselves into a mutual admiration society. Here's hoping that we may have many happy returns. The habit of coming back is well worth cultivating.

"IN A ROUND OF MERRIMENT AND REUNION "

TWENTIETH COMMENCEMENT OF '93

THOSE who attended the 1913 Commencement will long remember the distinctive regalia of '93—every member clad in the academic robe and the mortar board with white tassel. This garb was worn in commemoration of the fact that the class of '93 was the first Wisconsin class to appear in cap and gown.

The class met for its twentieth reunion early Tuesday morning, Alumni Day, and proceeded at once to the class stone, where brief memorial exercises were held in honor of members who have departed during the years since graduation. John F. Doherty spoke for the "hill" members and W. W. Gilman for the "laws."

During the business meeting of the general Association at 10:30 the class was much in evidence with its characteristic yells.

At noon the members proceeded, sixty strong, to the Golf Club to engage in a round of merriment and reunion. A number of original stunts lent special color to the occasion. First, President E. Ray Stevens had the honor to present the following telegram from the retiring president of Phi Beta Kappa:

My Dear Sir:

As retiring president of the Wisconsin Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, permit me to inform you of the action taken by that chapter. An examination of the standings of the class of '93 disclosed the fact that every member of that class is eligible to Phi Beta Kappa. For obvious reasons, which I need not discuss, it was impossible to admit the entire class. We therefore chose by lot ten members of the class who were admitted to membership. But as this arbitrary method of selection seemed somewhat unfair, the chapter voted to make each member of the class of '93 a member of Phi Beta Kappa. The chapter further delegated to you as president of the class of '93 the authority to initiate members into this ancient, honorable and exclusive society of learning.

Respectfully yours,

ISAAC KILLUM.

Whereupon the judge with much solemnity discharged the duty of initiating his classmates into the fraternity, using these words:

Pursuant to the power conferred by the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa it is my pleasure to admit you one and all to membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

The symbol of Phi Beta Kappa is a key, which you are supposed to wear at all times as a mark of distinction or badge that shall distinguish you from all that are not of the elect. The Greek words, of which Phi Beta Kappa are the initial letters, mean, when literally translated: The substance of things looked for; the evidence of things unseen.

Unfortunately the funds in our treasury did not permit us to procure this mystic key for each member of the class. If our funds had been stronger the list would have been longer. Any who desire keys may procure them of Wm. Schmidt, tinsmith, 1402 University Avenue, City, for fifty cents each.

As the secretary calls your name you will come forward and receive the sacred key from the secretary.

The lucky ones were Hubert E. Page, Harriet Richardson Hotton, Ella Davis Goodyear, Geo. Kroncke, Daisy Chadwick Bolender, Joseph E. Messerschmidt, George Edwin Morton, George H. Katz, Mary Smith Swenson, and Wilbur F. Stiles.

Next a cablegram from one George in London attracted attention. It was couched in these words:

Stevens, '93, Madison, Wis., U. S. A.:

For signal service in the cause that is nearest and dearest to my heart—that of suffrage and equal rights to women—I have knighted and conferred the Order of the Garter upon Benjamin Thomas, George E. Williams, Charles Elmer Allen, Nathan Glicksman and Henry Cummings. Let knight-hood be conferred upon them. Let them be invested with the insignia of the Order of the Garter.

GEORGE.

Whereupon the president of the class duly knighted aforesaid members of the class.

The next order of business was the conferring of "W's" upon a number of distinguished athletes of the class. These words were spoken by the president in explanation:

During this last year at the university the Athletic Department has formed a society of the "W" whose purpose is to present "W's to all the old graduates whose record in the university would warrant such an honor. The local committee of the class of '93 felt that it could best judge of the qualifications of its own members. Many of you in the years that have passed have worked off athletic conditions. All with families of two or more children have more than met the requirements for cross country runs and dual meets. Intercollegiate contests are nothing in comparison with neighborhood contests.

High jumps, broad jumps and pole vaulting pale into insignificance when compared with the jumping necessary to hold a job. A dash of a few hundred yards looks tame to the man of forty who has been pursuing elusive opulence for two decades.

Those most eminently fitted to join this society and become its honored members by reason of their college records and their subsequent records will please come forward as their names are called by the secretary and receive as a special mark of honor and esteem, a "W" made on the model of the new dye recognized by the athletic council.

William L. Erbach was presented with his "W" because of the record made in sending in the first contribution to the class treasurer for the reunion; J. C. Thompson, for his record in jumping out of the class shell and thereby permitting the class crew to win the race; Genevieve H. Aylward, for putting the club; Catherine Brown Norton, for cutting a dash; Charles C. Parlin, for his long distance run from the Atlantic coast; Clarke M. Rosecrantz, for his military prowess; William W. Wolfe, for his Democratic dash for office; Frank Katzenstein, for his financial strength tests; John H. Griffith, for argumentative fencing; Kate Sabin Stevens, for her strength displayed in doing the president's part in putting this reunion across; and Harry B. Boardman, for his standing broad grin.

The unmarried members of the class were then rewarded by loving cups for the skill with which they have paddled their own canoes. These included Nissen P. Stenjem, Harry Smith, Mary Oakley, and Julia Ellen Murphy.

It appears that the class is made up of a number of "Rubes." At any rate, the history of the eventful '93 class day records the fact that "Certificates of Recognition in Agriculture" were awarded to Margretta Lewis Davis, Henry H. Morgan, Herbert S. Siggelko, Winfield W. Gilman, and E. Ray Stevens. The reasons for lavishing this distinction have not been published.

The afternoon closed with the conferring of the highest degree within the gift of the class—that of Doctor of various shades and grades. The recipients of the degrees and the reasons for being thus honored follow:

Charles Britton Rogers. Pupil of Henry

George, pioneer single taxpayer in Wisconsin, distinguished among men as one who never lacked words to conceal a dearth of thought, able and impartial administrator of justice, you hold a unique place among jurists in that you have voluntarily relinquished a seat on the bench with its munificent salary, in order that you may retire to private life while yet in the sunny side of sixty. In recognition of the honors you have brought to the class it confers upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.

James Francis Doherty. Your voice has been heard in tones equally deep and resonant whether raised in defense of the poor and oppressed, or in glorification of triumphant Democracy. Among all of Wisconsin's followers of President Wilson, your name stands almost alone in not having been mentioned as a candidate for "Collector of Internal Revenue for the Western District of Wisconsin." Renowned orator, popular lecturer, able lawyer, good citizen, faithful public official, steadfast Democrat, because you combine qualities rarely found in man, the class confers upon you the degree, L. L. D.—Long Lived Democrat.

Lillian Belle Heald Kahlenberg. Author of Queen Hester, Herman and Eilhart, militant suffragette, most active and astute unregistered lobbyist in Wisconsin, efficient club woman, active worker for social and moral betterment, the class confers upon you the degree, D. D. S.—Doctor of Domestic Science.

Jessie Griffith Katz. Fellow in German, you left a brilliant career as teacher to keep alive in America the old fashioned domestic virtues, to become the companion and daily inspiration of George the Great and Only. In you we recognize an exponent of the simple life. To you we shall turn when suffragettes cease from troubling, and reformers are at rest. For this great service to mankind the class confers upon you the degree, L. L. D.—Doctor of Loveliest Ladies.

Spencer D. Beebe. Your musical voice and gentle presence ever charm your patients while you remove their pains, and their purses. Your investigations of the inner parallelogram of the diaphragmatic thorax, and of the subintroduced membranous hemorrhage in the outer cuticle of the bilo-contramaturigist have brought you deserved recognition. Disciple of Roosevelt, angel of comfort and mercy, able physician, skilled surgeon, sweet singer of '93, I confer upon you the degree, D. D.—Dandy Doctor.

J. Glen Wray. You are about to have conferred on you a degree which seems beyond the reach of others. This signal honor is bestowed on you because after diligent investigation the president and faculty of this great and glorious institution—the class of '93—have found that to the best of their belief and knowledge you have the greatest number of direct descendants of any member of our institution. We confer on you the degree of Liberorum Multorum Pater, which being liberally translated means, Father of Many Children. In token of this degree you are now to be invested with the raiment indicative of the exalted position you have reached. Take it and wear it with the distinct understanding that you are to present distinct proof of your worthiness at the meeting of 1893 in June 1918.

Before proceeding to the Alumni Dinner in the Gymnasium, the quinquennial election of officers took place, with the following result: President, Charles B. Rogers, Fort Atkinson; secretary, Mary Smith Swenson, Madison.

What happened at the Dinner, and how '93 conspicuously figured in the "stunts" that were put on, is recorded elsewhere in this issue, and needs no repetition.

'93 LAW ALUMNI REUNION

MEMBERS of the law class of '93 met at the Bismarek on Monday evening of Commencement Week, June 16, for a banquet and talk-fest. H. B. Morgan had charge of the arrangements. The following alumni were present: W. W. Gilman, N. P. Stenjem, H. H. Morgan, all of Madison; Nathan Glicksman, George E. Morton, Casimir Gonski, all of Milwaukee; C. R. Blumenfeld, Max Blumenfeld, of Watertown; John C. Thompson, Oshkosh; R. Cross, Chicago; George B. Ingersoll, E. Mitchell, Portage; John V. Norman, Beloit; Charles H. Phillips, Milwaukee; G. H. Daubner, Waukesha; James T. Hogan, Leadville, Colo.; Nicholas Thauer, Watertown; E. C. Fiedler, Mineral Point; Geo. H. Metcalfe, Platteville; Charles S. Miller, Necedah; Samuel Williams, Pewaukee; Henry Cummings, Milwaukee; H. J. Rooney, Plymouth; C. T. Bundy, Eau Claire; W. F. Wolfe, La Crosse; L. C. Wheeler, Milwaukee; Charles H. Gaffney, Neenah; J. P. Conway, Lansing, Iowa.

TENTH REUNION OF '03

BABY LECLAIR, OUR MASCOT

Dear Bill:

Well, Bill, here I am writing you about the big reunion as promised. Without intending to hurt your feelings let me say that if you ever missed a good time in your life, you did this time. 1903 IS alive and DID come back. Still, we missed you, Bill, and it would have been all the grander had you come. Listen to what happened and then close your eyes and imagine the dandy time we had.

On Sunday morning I started out for church like a good fellow, but can you blame me for forgetting church when I ran into a bunch of the boys on the University Club porch, where they were busily making last arrangements for the big things to come? Wouldn't it have made your big old heart beat a little faster to see "Dick" Hollen, "Irv" Seaman, "Steve" McMahon, "Billy" Huels, Harry Johnson, W. O. Hotchkiss and others all together, the same old boys?

But the real fun didn't start until Monday. All the arrangements had been made and things moved like clockwork. On arriving at headquarters at Mahoney's on Lake street just off State, I found the whole porch filled with the boys and girls of 1903 all decked out in white duck suits and wearing big yellow chrysanthemums and swinging canes tied with a yellow bow. Even their duck hats had yellow bands and on their breasts were yellow badges bearing the class numerals. The headquarters were just as lively inside as out. Just imagine our fun trying to find suits for a little fellow like me and a big man like Hammersley! It wasn't so bad to find a coat that I could wear but poor Hammersley had to go without duck trousers, for there were none to fit. If you had not seen Cadby, who was in charge inside, in the last ten years you would not have failed to know him by his smile and his happy disposition, but you surely would have noted his gray hair.

What is the first thing you do when you meet an old friend, Bill? You give him a cordial greeting and do it with all the fullness of your heart, don't you? Well, that is what we at once proceeded to do. We were back to old Wisconsin and to greet her we went. The big band which came along at this time led the procession and played the music that stirs the nobler feelings to life. Up Langdon street we went and then to the Alumni Headquarters in old Library Hall. But if our band and our attractive uniforms called forth applause from the onlookers, there was one of our number who did so especially, and this was little Baby LeClaire, who was soon called our Mascot. Dressed just like the rest in white duck and wearing the big chrysanthemum and bedecked in yellow ribbons, she trotted along bravely while the crowds applauded with glee. At the foot of the campus opposite the entrance to old Library Hall a group of old graduates seated on the grass saw our mascot and it surely must have made her mother (May Humphrey LeClair) proud of her little tot as they cheered and clapped their hands.

On and up the hill we moved with enthusiasm rising at every step until, when near the top, Tore Teigen and Arthur Johnson couldn't help dancing jigs. But a moment later as we filed into old Main Hall and formed

Well—that is how we felt. If you had stood as we did under the dome and seen three or four of our classmates who had arrived in town just a little too late to get in the line of march suddenly appear in the doorway and rush into our midst with eager and glowing faces, you, too, would have felt as we did, that 1903 is made up of loyal sons and daughters.

On our way down from the Hill we stopped a moment at the crown of the campus, where a record was taken to freshen the memory in later a circle under the dome a change came over us. The jigging ceased and with uncovered heads and voices softened a bit we toasted "Varsity" and cheered for old Wisconsin. The yells and songs were as of yore but touched with something more than enthusiasm. The love for old Wisconsin has increased in these years just passed since we left her. Can you imagine, Bill, meeting an old friend you hadn't seen for ten years? Can you feel that Something rising in your breast which words fail to express as you see again things dear to the heart?

years. The band then led us back to old Library Hall, where we again toasted and cheered and recalled how each Friday at convocation we hurled our defiance at 1902 across the hall from balcony to balcony. There were other reunion classes in the hall and they treated us to their yells as we left to go to the new library and pay our respects. After making the long corridors echo with our noisy yells we fittingly greeted our president and Dean Birge. Unfortunately they were both away at the time, but nevertheless we know they would have been glad to see us.

At two o'clock that afternoon with greatly increased numbers and with Baby LeClair along to bring us good luck, the next stunt in order on the program began—the great picnic. There being no car in sight as we reached State Street we could not stand and wait with so much pent-up enthusiasm on hand, so we marched along up to Chadbourne Hall until a car did come. Taking possession at once we rolled merrily on our way to the park. As we climbed the heights west of Camp Randall and no sooner had we seated ourselves on the benches under the shade of a big oak to rest than the ball teams were being chosen. When that was completed we had our picture taken. The ball teams were so anxious to get to playing that we had to chain some of them to the benches before we could get the picture. I don't remember how the game came out as to score, but it was so close that I have even forgotten who won. Geerlings and Arthur Johnson as opposing pitchers and big Hammers-viewed the scene of many great games and contests of our day, we recalled more things to memory. We were bound for Vilas Park, a place few of us even knew existed. When we left the car and marched the short way to the park, "Dick" Hollen and Harry Johnson carried our mascot, who found it hard to keep up with us in our irrepressible hurry to get there and start the games. The sun was blazing hot and the bubbling fountains soon had the appearance of a refreshment stand at a church fair.

Now things began to move, for ley, who made two base hits and got to first, were stars, to say nothing about the other glorious performers who made history so fast that no one could keep track.

In order to vary the fun and to give the battlers a much needed rest from the hot sun, Tore Teigen started a new stunt. All the fellows were called up in turn for inspection before the crowd. With an appropriate introduction each witness was put through a series of baffling, embarrassing and other questions until he ran away. But some wise and useful information was given for those of us who had not yet found life partners. Somehow, the undercurrent of all things this afternoon turned toward us poor unfortunates.

After the boys had been put through their inspection the girls came in for their turn. Instead of taking them in one-by-one, they picked out the bachelor girls only. And now, by a sort of spontaneous agreement, started by the married girls, partners were quickly selected from the bachelor boys and as each in a circle playing their inspiring strains. Someone got there ahead of the procession and instructed the musicians to play the wedding march. So, when the marchers were nearby the solemn strains of the Lohengrin Wedding March arose and the crowd closed in on the procession as they forgot refreshments and marched round and round the band with a little flower girl preceding who carried a big posy of yellow chrysanthemums. If there couple was matched they were told to trot off and amuse each other. The girls and boys at once got into the spirit of the occasion and off they went in a procession, arm in arm.

Isn't it funny how young couples seek the nearest place of refreshment when starting out for a pleasure trip? Well, there is a stand where good things are sold in the park and they were soon headed in that direction. On the way there they had to pass the band which was seated ever was an original stunt gotten up on the spur of the moment, surely this was. It was indeed funny.

The great class of 1903 having reduced its proportion of single to married members, we proceeded to celebrate the event by having a grand march in which all took part. When we tired of this the Virginia Reel finished the program. In the north about this time heavy black clouds were fast approaching, which anyone could interpret without a weather man's map to mean rain.

"THE VIRGINIA REEL FURNISHED THE PROGRAM"

The committee in charge of the lunch soon had the caterers busy and we forgot all about dancing and games at the help-yourself-lunch. There were a number of other events scheduled but the cautious members warned of rain and surely our mascot was a good luck baby, for we barely reached the car in time to escape the heavy rain that followed and overflowed roads and sidewalks. However, if the most of us did not get caught, some of us did and had the fun of playing Chinese laundry with the electric irons in our rooms in order that we should not miss the fun on the morrow.

When we marched on Monday, we heard on every side, "What class is that?" It meant, of course, that we needed a banner or flag. So, on Tuesday morning we were ready to show who we were with a big banner. This being Alumni Day, each class marched to Headquarters in a body. Our band was engaged for this day and we had to go without. But as we marched over to State Street we met 1908 coming down with a big band. Unfortunately for them, their band was separated from the class by a large gap and acting on the sudden impulse we suddenly swept in and filled the gap with plenty of excitement. But 1908 is a class of fine fellows and took it in good part. We had some fun later on at the banquet just the same, for they groaned for us in fine style and we could not return on account of our guilt.

But the best part of the fun for the day was to come. The committees had it all arranged and all we had to do was to jump aboard the big launch and enjoy the ride around Lake Mendota. Our start at eleven-thirty gave us a fine chance to lunch on shore near Black Hawk Cave. We had sandwiches, olives and grape juice. You see, Bill, we are quite in style. It did not take

It was about two-thirty when we reached the landing, and as the games on the Hill were on most of us moved in this direction to watch and take part. After the baseball game between the alumni girls and the senior girls in which some excellent playing was done, 1903 took part in the pole climb and checker game. Of the former there need not much be said save that if you want to know how to bark your shins and squeeze a few ribs out of joint for the glory of your class, try climbing much urging to get aboard again. With perfect weather and with 1903 aboard who can ask, "Did you have a good time?" During the remainder of the trip we mixed and exchanged reminiscences. You would have enjoyed hearing some of the wonderful stories that were told. We also practiced some of Stuart Washburn's songs written for the occasion, but did not have a good opportunity at the banquet in the evening to give them owing to the length of our table. It was fun, though, to try them out with "Benny" Lyons leading.

a varnished telegraph pole. It is great—for the crowd. 1903 won the climb and even 1908 with its lively bunch did not accept our challenge. (I don't blame them, though.) The checker game was a novelty. Two old grads played a game while 1908 and 1903 fellows acted on a large "board" on the lawn the various plays, leaping over each other in double and triple plays. We won through the superior playing of our champion and so we take off our hats to him. 1908 showed the right spirit during the game and yelled with us in fine sport.

And now, Bill, there is not much more to say. 1903 is a pretty busy bunch and they could not all stay over the next day for the ball. But those of us who did had the usual good time tripping over the big Gym floor to the excellent music provided.

1903 surely is alive and surely did come back. It is not possible for one of our number to tell all about the good time, nor is it possible to give in words the tender feelings we all experienced for old times and old 'varsity. Each of us carried home something dear to the heart of a college graduate and surely there is not one of us who did come back who has not made up his mind to come again. 1903 is going to stay alive and will come back again and again to enjoy the spirit of Wisconsin and to vow a deeper devotion to his Alma Mater. Be sure to take down your five-year calendar, Bill, and mark it down in big cardinal letters—"I am a live one and I'm going to be back in 1918."

Yours in the spirit of 1903,

"Zimmie."

"GOOD BYE, 1903"

"A LARGE SIGN TOLD ALL WHO READ THAT '08 WAS ON THE JOB"

THE WOODEN ANNIVERSARY OF '08

F. H. ELWELL, '08

THE greatest reunion of all the "threes and eights" was that held by 1908. Seventy-five of the livelier ones of that famous class were on hand for every number of the program, and many an alumnus of Wisconsin was heard to remark that he wished the spirit and enthusiasm of '08 could penetrate through all the classes. To say, therefore, that the first reunion of 1908 was a success is putting it so mildly that even '03 (who doffed their hats in honor as '08 passed by) admits it.

But those alumni of '08 who were unable to attend want to know of the doings which caused '88, '93, '98 and '03 to say, "Wait until 1918, and we will get you!"

The Milwaukee and Chicago alumni, traveling in their own car de luxe, were met at the depot at 10 o'clock on Tuesday morning by all the '08ers in Madison. As the train pulled in, the Alumni Band struck up "On Wisconsin" and many a man was filled with that indescribable enthusiasm which characterizes all the loyal sons of old Wisconsin. Led by the band, the class paraded down to Music Hall. Two large signs told all who read that '08 was on the job. The members registered at Music Hall, paid their dues (again the class received a silent vote of thanks; this time from the General Alumni Secretary), and at 12 o'clock met at the University Club for luncheon. The class picture was taken in front of the club house.

Those attending the luncheon were: Ruby Hildebrand Byron, Martha Wertz Scheuring, Ethel Churchill Watson, Lottie Churchill Benkert, Ethel Caine Van Hagen, Harriet Hutson Crocker, Zora Fairchild Elwell, Frances Fawcett, Susan Armstrong, Anne Martin, Anna Stevens, Leslie Spence, Ruth Allen, "Jo" Allen, Laura Stark, Caroline Rietelstorf, and Messrs. Leiserson, Conlan, Dohmen, Benton, Hannan, Krauthoefer, Brabant, Blatz, Bollenbeck, Felix Rice, Blankenagel, Jerard, Lindemann, Hill, Ernest Rice, Elwell, McMahon, Hopkins, Sexton, Reinhard, Gruenewald, Buetow, Wallber, and Karrow.

After the luncheon expressions of regret at not being able to attend the 1908 reunion were read from men prominent in the political life of both the state and nation, as well as from absent class members who have earned their spurs along industrial and professional lines. Adjournment was then taken to the upper campus, where the general alumni stunts were the attraction.

But say, '08, could you have attended the Alumni Banquet your heart would have swelled with pride. You remember that each reunion class was to be given five minutes between courses to put on a stunt. Well, ours came between the meat and the salad courses. At this time some of the men adjourned to the "dressing rooms" (Doc Elsom's office). Soon the strains of "On Wisconsin" floated over that vast assemblage! Led by the inimitable Pinkey Karrow, with Pete Murphy as standard bearer, the 1908 BAND was on the floor, marching to the platform. Attired in classy fashion, they delighted the audience with such masterpieces as "Hot Time," "Down by the Old Mill Stream" and others. The music took the house by storm and "1908 is certainly a live one" was the verdict rendered. Modesty forbids saying that the other reunion classes almost decided to abandon their stunts, but finally they were persuaded to put them on.

An enjoyable time was had at the smoker, held after the banquet. After the Pipe of Peace ceremony, the group disbanded. Many remained in Madison Wednesday and attended the Alumni Ball in the evening.

Besides the names already given, the following members of 1908 were registered: Anna Ruth, Mabel Gilkey, Grace Bewick, Emily Bresee Zapata, Anna G. Saby, Edith Swenson, Catherine Hayes, Iola Withey, Adeline Messerschmidt, Daisy Milward, and Mary F. Longfield, and Messrs. George Mathews, Oeland, Hickcox, Bishop, Davison, Fawcett, Foley, Diemer, Kifer, Theige, Zobel, Sheets, Gesell, Halbert and Grere.

At the class meeting the following officers were elected to serve between the years 1913 and 1918: President, Ed. McMahon, Detroit, Mich.; first vice-president, Wm. Bollenbeck, Milwaukee; second vice-president, Susan Armstrong, Milwaukee; secretary, F. H. Elwell, Madison; assistant secretary, Edith Swenson, Madison.

Will there be anything doing in 1918? Well, if a five-year-old could scare up the stunts that 1908 did, just give the "child" another five years and she will beat anything ever produced—no use denying it.

Watch us in 1918!

ALUMNI RECEPTION AND BALL

THE annual Alumni Reception and Ball was held at the Armory on the evening of June 18, with Professor Julius E. Olson, '84, in general charge of the arrangements. In the receiving line were President Van Hise, President and Mrs. G. A. Buckstaff of the Alumni Association, President and Mrs. J. A. Trotman and Miss Elizabeth Waters of the Board of Regents, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Meyer, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Tenney and Louis P. Lochner of the Alumni Executive Committee.

Bach's Milwaukee Orchestra rendered a musical program during the reception, and at 10 o'clock played the strains of the grand march. John S. Main, chairman of the floor committee, with his assistants, Spencer Beebe, Vroman Mason, W. O. Hotchkiss, Walter H. Sheldon, Fayette H. Elwell, Rubert Hughes, and Marshall George, with their ladies, led the grand march, followed by the reception committee and the other participants in the evening's entertainment. Dancing followed the grand march.

THE U. W. AT RACINE

A NEW site has been chosen for the University of Wisconsin by the editor of the Baltimore American, as appears from the following editorial which appeared at the time of the expedition of the Philadelphia City Club:

"A delegation appointed by and headed by Mayor Blankenburg, of Philadelphia, is to journey this week to Racine, Wisconsin, or, to speak with more exactness, to the University of Wisconsin, which is located at Racine."

Upon learning of the editorial, the Alumni Headquarters immediately bombarded the editor of the American with sufficient literature to enlighten twenty generations of Baltimore pen pushers concerning the present location of the "Queen of all the West."

THE ALUMNI DINNER

ELIABETH F. CORBETT, '10

THE Alumni Dinner of June 17th set a new standard for affairs of the sort: it was not merely successful, it was enjoyable. It was a cheerful, chummy, neighborly party; and more than one "alum" who went out of a feeling that it was the proper thing to go, remained because he was having such a good time that the location of the exits made no difference to him.

Almost seven hundred alums sat down to dinner; and between courses all of the almost seven hundred lifted their voices in song. Perhaps not more than seven of them would have borne listening to if they had sung solo; but as a chorus rendering "Michael Roy" and "Seeing Nellie Home" they sang enjoyably and upliftingly. And to show how much they enjoyed it they encored themselves, and sang some some. Prof. Olson led the singing, of course; it would be a sad day for alums if they came back to Commencement and missed his efficient and zestful management.

When the whole audience wasn't singing, reuniting classes pulled off a few "stunts." Wisconsin is a very stunty place these days; and the worst of it is, we like it. The more stunts the better, especially when they're as good as '08's German band. '08 lived up to its reputation for originality—and for noise—in its stunts; and if its collective presence on the platform emphasized rather horribly how waistlines can increase and hair depart in only five years, the excellent rooting of '83 showed that enthusiasm for Wisconsin needn't wane even when one has been out of college not a collegiate but an actual generation.

'93 gave a burlesque Commencement; '03 had an illustrated stereopticon lecture, with hits at some of its prominent graduates. '88 was there, not only with its hair in a braid, but with Indian feathers stuck into the braid. Prof. Parkinson, '60, was the oldest alumnus present.

The dinner was followed by the usual program of speeches; but there were two unusual features. The first was that there were only three speeches; the second that Retiring President George A. Buckstaff, '86, ran through them in exactly the opposite order to that in which they appeared on the printed program. Instead of working from Irish eloquence up to Dutch, we had the Dutch first, and then the Irish. President Van Hise was followed by Emmett Donnelly, '10, who blushed with youthful shyness when he found himself on the platform, and acquitted himself with characteristic ease and distinction when he once began to talk. Edwin H. Cassels, '95, closed the program with a speech in which he declared that the University of Wisconsin had done its duty in the past, that its work entitled it to be called the university of today, and that it will also be the university of the future.

President Van Hise's address touched on weighty questions of university policy and alumni duty. He called attention to the fact that a constitutional amendment for the initiative and the referendum will be submitted to the people of the state next autumn, and will without doubt be adopted. This will make possible a popular vote on university appropriations; and unless the people of the state are sufficiently informed as to the needs and benefits of the university, may handicap it tremendously.

"The referendum when applied to state universities in this country will be the final test as to whether or not a democracy can support educational institutions on the highest plane," said President Van Hise. "The application of the referendum in Oregon has embarrassed the university of that state. Doubtless when the referendum is applied, higher education in some other states will be halted, if actual retrogression does not take place.

"Thus far, the leadership of Wisconsin among state universities has generally been recognized. It is therefore especially incumbent upon us to see that the installation of new instruments of government does not result in staying our progress, and in this manner prove that a democracy may sustain as high grade a university as a monarchy.

"This presents the great opportunity, the special duty of the alumni. They should assume the responsibility of keeping the people of the state informed regarding the work of the university, its purposes, the services which it has performed, so that when the time comes, if it does come, that the question of further advance is submitted to the people they will support higher education."

ADDITIONAL ELECTIONS TO PHI BETA KAPPA

THE following recently elected alumni have qualified for membership in Phi Beta Kappa since the publication of the list in the June Magazine:

Bright, Alfred Harris, B.A. '74, LL.B. '76. 1004 Mt. Curve Ave., Minneapolis, Minn. Attorney.

Brown, Webster E., Ph.B. '74, Rhinelander, Wis.

Brown, Mrs. Webster E. (Meyer, Juliet D.), B.S. '75. Rhinelander, Wis.

Bunting, Miss Alice I., B.A. '95. 1139 State Street, La Crosse, Wis. Christian Science Practitioner.

Cairns, William B., B.A. '90, Ph.D. '97. Asst. Prof. American Literat-ture, U. of W., Madison, Wis.

Corson, William A., B.S. '78. 2116 Emmet Street, Omaha, Neb. Attorney.

Fisher, Mrs. J. J. (Clark, Elizabeth S.), B.S. '76. 1109 Ingraham Street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Mayhew, Lester C., B.S. '92. 378 Royal Pl., Milwaukee. Manufacturer.

Townley, Sidney D., B.S. '90, M.S. '92. Astronomer. Assoc. Prof. Applied Math., Leland Stanford, Jr. Univ., Palo Alto, Cal.

Wilson, George Smith, B.L. '94. 7001 Georgia Ave., Washington, D. C. Sec'y, Board of Charities, Dist. of Columbia.

THE ALL-ALUMNI FROLIC

ALBERT O. BARTON, '96

NOT having any particular features for Tuesday afternoon, the committee decided to leave it to the ingenuity of George B. Hill, '08, to arrange some special "stunts" for the entertainment of the alumni. Mr. Hill, as usual, rose to the occasion successfully. Decidedly the feature of his program was a coed baseball game between the team of the senior class and an alumni nine. Besides furnishing an exciting game, this feature served to shatter a hoary superstition,—that woman because of her more abbreviated clavicle (alias collarbone) can never learn to throw straight. Not only did the members "deliver" the sphere with speed and precision at critical times, but they demonstrated that woman may be equally dangerous, and a rival of man, with the billet as well as the ballot. The senior team came to the game flushed with the championship of all the coed teams of the season, but the alumni also had a "great" team, including a number of athletic girls of more than local immortality, and these were the favorites in the genteel wagering of the sidelines, which comprised sundry thousands of spectators. The girls were dressed in duck suits, not particularly built for speed (and these suffered grievously in the stealing of bases on the green and slipperly slope of the upper campus where the game was played), but this handicap did not detract materially from the skill of the players. Two-baggers, three-baggers, and even home runs, with punts or long drives afield, which showed equally good stick work, were features of a game that at times roused the spectators to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Lynn S. Pease, '86, who had a daughter in the senior team, rooted lustily through a megaphone, voicing such improvised yells as, "Keep your eye; keep your eye; on the baseball, A-lum-ni!" The alumni had for their battery Miss Edna Howard, '12, an athletic Denver girl, as pitcher, and Miss Althea Brown, ex-'08, of Madison, famed for athletic accomplishments, as catcher. Their work was, perhaps, slightly better than that of the members of the senior battery, which included Miss Olene Lapham as pitcher and Miss Lila Croll as catcher, but the general excellence of the senior team made it the stronger. The alumni came first to bat and Miss Brown promptly knocked out a three-bagger and soon was home. Miss Lapham, the senior pitcher, saw this would not do, and accordingly fanned out her rival in the box, Miss Howard. In the second inning Miss Lapham also showed her skill with the bat by knocking out a three-bagger, while Miss Croll, the senior catcher, went clear around the diamond with a well administered drive.

"IT WAS SOME BALL GAME"

When the second inning ended with a score of 10 to 7 in favor of the seniors a proposition to cease the game was then made. "Let them

THE ALL-ALUMNI FROLIC

Special credit is due Dr. H. C. Bumpus, Business Manager of the University, for having suggested this beautiful grove between South Hall and the Law Building have another inning," said the confident Miss Croll. The third inning, and the game, ended 11 to 10 in favor of the seniors. The lineups of the teams were:

Alumni—Pitcher, Edna Howard; catcher, Althea Brown; first base, Sarah Longfield; second, Mabel Gratz; third, Irene Patten; fielders, May Mielenz, Flora Buss.

Seniors—Pitcher, Olene Lapham; catcher, Lila Croll; first base, Margaret Rowland; second, Mary Pease; third, Carinne Miller; fielders, Lydia Loos, Gertrude Clayton, Helen Pfu-derer.

Miss Edna Cantwell and Miss Fritzie Boss acted as umpires.

A living game of checkers followed. A great checkerboard was laid out on the grass with "humans" taking the place of the checkers. Benedict Goldenberger, '77, representing the alumni, and Albert N. Briggs, law '97, representing the seniors, then sat down to a real game of checkers and as the game progressed the humans went out one by one with the checkers they represented, it being necessary to occasionally do the leap-frog act as some "jump" was made. After about 15 minutes of play Briggs had but one man left to three for Goldenberger, who was then awarded the game for the seniors, and was decorated with a huge yellow bouquet in recognition of his prowess.

Climbing the greased pole was to have been the next contest, but J. G. Zimmerman, '04, promptly went to the top at the first trial and pulled down the persimmon, so no one else was given opportunity to prove his simian attainments.

A TOAST

W. B. D., '08

Alma Mater, again we come to thee,
Though records few we bring, and few may claim,
Yet, still we would thy loyal children be,
And in proud toast again would praise thy name.

Ah, most unworthy son indeed is he
Who in thy halls his earlier years would spend,
And then forget the debt he owes to thee,
Or thankless fail in praise his voice to lend.

New homes, new forms and faces have we found,
We may in other climes our work pursue,
But fast within our memories still are bound
The lessons dear which have been taught by you.

So, mother ours, our friend, our guide in one,
With heart-accented thoughts we bring to thee
This meagre record of the things we've done,
These little proofs of lasting loyalty.

SIXTIETH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT

TOTAL of 1,184 degrees, certificates and diplomas were granted on June 19 at the university. Of this number 822 were regular degrees or diplomas while the rest included 192 certificates granted to Short Course and Dairy School students in the College of Agriculture, and 170 teachers' certificates given to students who had completed the Course for the Training of Teachers.

Of the 822 regular degrees granted, 534 went to men and 288 to women. Six hundred and seventy-four first degrees and 148 higher degrees were presented. Of the higher degrees 113 were earned by men and 35 by women. Seventeen men and two women were awarded the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

One young woman, Miss Mina Augusta Willis of Rewey, Wis., was graduated from the agricultural course, and Miss Stella Linita Sinclair, of Dundee, Ill., became a graduate in pharmacy.

The College of Letters and Science granted 393 degrees, the largest number of any college in the university. Of these, 201 were awarded to men and 192 to women. One hundred and nine young men were graduated from the College of Engineering; 108 from the College of Agriculture, besides the Short Course and Dairy School students; and 33 were graduated from the Law School.

The highest honor within the power of the university to bestow was awarded to Dr. Eugen Kühnemann, Dr. Florian Cajori, Dr. Rupert Blue and John Alvord, who were given honorary degrees. Dr. Kühnemann, professor in the University of Breslau, Germany, was the first Carl Schurz Memorial Professor at the University of Wisconsin, and was awarded the degree of Doctor of Letters, in absentia. Florian Cajori, who was graduated from Wisconsin thirty years ago and is now a professor in Colorado College, is well known for his studies and writings on the history of exact sciences. He, together with Dr. Blue, the man who a few years ago had charge of the sanitary and preventive work which prevented the spread of the bubonic plague throughout the country from the western coast where it had gained a foothold, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Science. Dr. Blue is now surgeon general of the United States. John W. Alvord, well known hydraulic engineer, was awarded the honorary degree of Civil Engineer.

The invocation at the Commencement exercises in the Gymnasium was pronounced by Rev. E. G. Updike, pastor of the First Congregational church of Madison. Senior orations were given by:

John E. Manegold, Milwaukee, college of engineering, "The Scientist and the Engineer."

Harold M. Wilkie, Fond du Lac, law school, "Judicial Precedents."

Belle Fligelman, Helena, Mont., college of letters and science, "The Successful Education." (Miss Fligelman is the first woman in ten years designated by the Wisconsin faculty to deliver a commencement oration.)

George S. Wehrwein, Manitowoc, college of agriculture, "The Message of Denmark."

Alvin C. Reis, Evansville, Ind., "The Toll of Industry. (This oration won the Northern Oratorical League contest at Oberlin, Ohio, on May 2, and was repeated on Commencement Day upon the request of the department of public speaking.)

President Van Hise, in his annual address to the graduating class, urged service to society, rather than achievement of worldly success, upon the graduates as the most commendable use which the graduate can make of knowledge.

"He who has as his exclusive purpose the gaining of knowledge in order that he may advance himself and those associated with him, is not likely to lead the intellectual life; he is not likely to serve mankind," he said.

"But he whose primary purpose is humanitarian, whose most ardent desire is to assist those about him, he who so lives that when the end comes he is able to think the world is somewhat better, to hope that in no respect is it worse because he has lived, must also follow the intellectual life, and may have personal success. The increased strength that one has because of a trained intellect and power of appreciation, the increased influence that he has because he has been materially successful, the better enable him to accomplish the higher purpose—that of so living as to benefit his fellows."

The Science Club Medal for the best thesis in science was awarded Frank W. Lorig, Milwaukee, graduate in mechanical engineering.

General college honors were awarded to Charles W. Tomlinson in geology and astronomy.

Fifteen students in the college of letters and science and four in the college of law were awarded honors for excellent theses: Letters and science, Adolph R. Braun, Milwaukee, in German; Alfred J. Buscheck, Manitowoc, in political science; Henry L. Chesick, South Milwaukee, in political economy; Lydia I. Dallwig, Milwaukee, in German; Margaret O. Eberle, Watertown, in history; Harriette H. Fish, Milwaukee, in political economy; George W. Hinman, Jr, Winnetka, Ill., in history; Chas. L. Jamison, Madison, in commerce; Clara D. Lebeis, Chippewa Falls, in education; George W. Murphy, Oconto, in education; Burton W. Olin, Racine, in political economy; Nellie Ada Pence, Madison, in Latin; Carl Schauerman, Milwaukee, in German; Leila H. Seward, Madison, in English; Frances E. Withington, Baraboo, in English. College of law: Arthur B. Doe, Milwaukee; Howard T. Foulkes, Milwaukee; William H. Spohn, Janesville, and Harold McL. Wilkie, Fond du Lac.

THE MEMORIAL OF THE CLASS OF 1913

ANTON EDWARD ONSRUD, '13

FOR more than forty years every class upon graduation has presented the university with memorials of different degrees of aesthetic and utility values. The class of 1913 will leave a memorial the ideal of which is utility on a large scale. The plan has been to create an accumulating fund. Each member of the class has been asked to take out a twenty-payment life insurance policy for one hundred dollars in the insurance department of the State of Wisconsin. At the end of twenty years the reserves of these policies will be transferred to the university and will be used as a loan fund for needy students.

The Class of 1913 Loan Fund as a memorial has three distinct advantages.

In the first place, it will meet one of the largest needs of the university. In our complex industrial civilization, the rigid walls of capital separates countless capable men and women from their highest attainments. This is more true in the field of higher education than in any other phase of life. The loan fund committee of the faculty has stated that the demand for loans at Wisconsin is far in excess of the supply; and that Wisconsin loses many of its best students every year because this demand cannot be met. The memorial of the class of 1913, through its large loan fund, will at least partially destroy this rigid wall between ability and success. Our general fund at the end of twenty years will approach ten thousand dollars. If succeeding classes adopt our plan a permanent and sufficient loan fund can be established reaching into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In the second place, the Class of 1913 Loan Fund is a big memorial. Some say it is too big an undertaking; but it is not. The memorial is in complete harmony with the spirit of doing big things which is so prevalent in our country today. Our nation is making the waters of the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean touch through a seemingly impenetrable barrier. Our state has established a national reputation through its efficient administrative commissions. The university through its Extension Division has succeeded so well in its purpose to reach the people of all the state that more than one hundred leaders among men came one thousand miles to study its methods.

In the third place, the Loan Fund will maintain a spirit of cooperation and mutual interest within the class. Our grandmothers made rag carpets from woof of their own rag bags, but they needed the warp from the store with which to weave the woof into a carpet. Now, the woof of each human being's life is supplied by that which is individual to him but the warp that binds the separate beings into a unit is supplied from without. Our investment will constitute a warp in our lives which will unite us in an unceasing loyalty toward the University of Wisconsin, even though we be scattered to the most distant corners of the earth.

Our small contributions are put to a noble use when applied to purposes such as those the Class of 1913 Loan Fund is designed to serve. Every contribution designed to serve the educational uplifting of our people represents just so much gain for American citizenship, just so much credit for us collectively as a nation.

We have nothing to give now. We can only give our word, our promise. We pledge a loyalty toward Wisconsin which is not to die when we depart from her, which is not to die when life's battles press hard upon us, but which is to live and grow everlastingly.

1821 in 1910-11,
1467 in 1909-10.

The net increase is nearly 10%, or 182 additional members. In the course of the year 355 new members were enrolled, while 173 were lost by death, disappearance, expulsion, or resignation.

While in 1911-12 the Magazine was confronted with the problem of paying off a deficit of $500, incurred in previous years, the publication this year not only paid for itself, but contributed a total of $1,833.31 toward the expenses of the Association. If the Association could but enlist 700 additional members during the coming school year, the Magazine could practically pay all the expenses of the Association, with the exception of those few incidentals that could be met from the interest on trust funds.

LOUIS P. LOCHNER, '09,
General Secretary.

ANNUAL BUSINESS MEETING

ANNUAL meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of Wisconsin, held at Music Hall, City of Madison, June 17, 1913.

Meeting called to order at 10:15 o'clock by President Buckstaff.

Minutes of the last annual meeting read and approved.

The necessary number were present to conduct the meeting.

Secretary Lochner made his report as general secretary.

The president then appointed S. W. Gilman to audit the treasurer's books.

C. N. Brown made his report as treasurer of the Association and it was placed on file.

The president announced the appointment of C. L. Jones, C. E. Allen and Anna Birge tellers.

The amendment to the constitution offered, providing as to who should become members of the Association, was taken up and discussed by Professor Comstock and Mr. Pease. The motion was made and seconded that the entire matter be laid on the table. The motion was then offered to refer the matter to a committee consisting of one alumnus from each graduating class and that committee to report back at the next annual meeting of the Association, which motion was amended to make the committee composed of members of the reunion classes for 1914. At this point Mr. Umbreit moved to second the original motion to lay on the table. The previous question was then called for and upon sufficient showing the question to refer the matter to the reunion classes was lost and the question to lay on the table was carried.

Mr. Meyer offered a resolution that a committee of five be appointed to investigate the relationship existing between the local alumni associations to the general Alumni Association and to prepare and plan an organization which should establish a close relationship between the two organizations, which committee should report to the Executive Committee and the Executive Committee to report at the next annual meeting of the Association. Mr. Von Briesen moved to amend the motion and refer the entire matter to the Executive Committee, which motion as amended prevailed.

At this point the class of 1903
asked to be excused.

There being no further business before the general meeting, on motion the same adjourned.

C. H. TENNEY.

IVY ODE, CLASS OF 1913

AGNES DICKERSON, '13

Four years our lives have made a part of thee,
O Wisconsin; thy spirit free,
Untrammelled, burning high with life and youth,
Knowledge of things done and power to do,
Of boundless opportunity, of a past
Undimmed by failure; of a future
Radiant in promise, glorious in its call
For men of strength and wit, and hearts that dare,
Has entered into us, has made us strong
With thy strength, mighty with thy might
To bring unto the world thy word of hope,
Of dauntless faith and courage unafraid.

Today we plant the Ivy, ancient sign
Of lasting union and of life
Weak in itself, but gathering strength
From that whereon it grows through ages long
Until, when time has blasted the supporting wall
Lo! the ivy climbing holds the crumbling stones,
Decayed though they are, and keeps intact the fortress wall.

So may our lives with thine be intertwined,
Wisconsin—long have we leaned upon thee,
Long may we yet lean, and draw from thee
Power and courage, nobleness and life;
Yet in thy hour of need, if such shall come,
Call; thy children will answer thee!

FROM THE CAMPUS

Nelson S. Trottman, a junior in the University of Wisconsin, will be awarded a prize of $200 by the state Perry centennial committee for the best essay in a recent contest in which students of colleges, normal schools and academies competed. His subject was "Settlement and Forts Along the Great Lakes at the Outbreak of the War of 1812." Mr. Trottman is a son of President of the Board of Regents and Mrs. James F. Trottman of Milwaukee. The judges were Dr. C. H. Van Tyne of the University of Michigan, Prof. F. M. Anderson of the University of Minnesota and Dr. B. F. Shambaugh of the University of Iowa.

During ten days of the summer school, from July 8 to 18, special instruction will be given in ice cream making by the dairy department as a part of the summer dairy course. This will afford ice cream makers and other dairy students a chance to study up-to-date methods in connection with the rapidly growing ice cream industry. The ice cream department of the dairy division is equipped with the most modern machinery and utensils, including a continuous freezer of fifty gallons capacity per hour. The making of all kinds of ice cream and ices will be demonstrated, together with the mixing of formulas, freezing, hardening, packing and storing ice cream. The course will include an inspection trip to nearby cities to study big ice cream plants.

Mrs. C. R. Vandervort, formerly of Fond du Lac and Columbus, for two years at Leland Stanford university, was appointed by the regents mistress of Barnard Hall, new woman's dormitory. Miss Martha B. Edwards was appointed head of the Barnard Hall for the summer session.

Miss Winifred Robinson, Vassar college, was appointed dean of women for the summer session.

Miss Alice Lindsey Webb, formerly of Milwaukee, editor of the Press Bulletin, Oregon Agricultural College, formerly assistant editor of the University of Wisconsin Press Bulletin, was appointed editor and proof-reader in the university extension division.

Charles W. Holman of Farm and Ranch, Dallas, Texas, was appointed to take charge of the University Press Bulletin. He succeeds Prof. W. G. Bleyer, editor of the bulletin for nine years, who is to devote his entire time to the course in journalism.

The regents have established a traveling fellowship, $800, in accordance with the bequest of Mrs. Caroline S. Markham. Prof. Markham founded Markham's academy in Milwaukee. Albert William Aron, Ph.D. '13, was appointed to the fellowship.

Miss Vera S. Kayser, Madison, was awarded the Christian R. Stein undergraduate scholarship; Felicitas A. Saleski, Meridan, Conn., received the Mortar Board scholarship; Hazel R. TeSelle, Sheboygan Falls, the Gamma Phi Beta scholarship; Mathilda Bybuth, Eau Claire, and Maud Neprud, La Crosse, the Amelia E. H. Doyon scholarships; Bertha M. Hamilton, Baraboo, and George W. Miner, Clinton, received the Fannie T. Lewis scholarships.

Prof. Eldon R. James has resigned to accept the professorship of law at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. H. E. Dearholt is to continue in charge of the health bureau, university extension division.

Hugo Kuechenmeister was appointed instructor in business administration of the university extension division for the Milwaukee district.

A. W. Hoefflin was made instructor in manual arts in the Oshkosh district of the extension division to teach in the public schools of Berlin and Ripon. Miss Lola Schmide was made instructor in domestic science and James P. Kent instructor in manual arts in the extension division, both to teach in the public schools of New Holstein and Kiel.

ALUMNI NEWS

The success of this personal news department is dependent upon the interest every alumnus takes in his Magazine. News items should come direct from graduates if this department is to be valuable and reliable. Contributors to these columns will greatly aid the editor if they designate the class and college of the subject of their sketch in the news items.

Following is the list of class secretaries who have been requested to send in news of their respective classes: 1884, Milton Orelup Nelson; 1886, Mrs. Emma Nunns Pease; 1887, Mrs. Ida E. Johnson Fisk; 1888, Florence Porter Robinson; 1889, Byron Delos Shear; 1890, Willard Nathan Parker; 1892, Mrs. Linnie M. THE CLASSES

Mrs. Clara Bewick Colby, corresponding secretary of the Federal Woman's Equality Association, was Oregon's special representative at the meeting of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance which was held at Budapest, Hungary, June 15 to 20.

1871.

The Baptist Review contains an article concerning Volney Underhill, L.S. '71, and Law '75, who for more than thirty-five years has been principal of the Carpenter School in Chicago. The writer pays many tributes to the work of Mr. Underhill, whose great success in managing his 2,000 or more pupils, most of whom are of foreign parentage, is due to his gentle and kind manner and his firm and scholarly bearing. Thanks to the untiring zeal of Mr. Underhill, many of the graduates of the Carpenter School are now filling responsible positions in life. It is such work as Mr. Underhill is doing that is needed to Americanize and educate our foreign population.

1873.

Frank H. Merrill, Law, is the proprietor of a walnut ranch near Los Angeles. His address is R. F. D. Box 93, Los Angeles, Cal.

1876.

David E. McKercher is engaged in farming at Manley, Iowa.—Mrs. C. N. Brown (Nellie M. Williams), Madison, and her son, Irving H., '11, have left for a two months' trip abroad.

1880.

Horace Stevens Mervin, Law, lives at Fox Lake, Wis.—Magnus Swenson sailed from New York on June 24 for Christiania, Norway, where he is to attend the first annual meeting of the board of directors of the Norwegian-American Steamship Company, a new organization engaged in transatlantic traffic. Mr. Swenson took passage on the Christiania Fjord, the first ship launched by the company.

1882.

Charles W. Rose, who is engaged in gardening at Mukwonago, Wis., has been made secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Prospect, Guthrie and Big Bend Telephone Co., whose general offices are at Big Bend, Wis. Mr. Rose's address, however, will remain Mukwonago.

1883.

Orrin Blakely Moon is the owner and business manager of The Record, a semi-weekly paper published at St. Maries, Idaho.

1885.

Albert H. Long, L.S. and Law '89, has been appointed postmaster of Prairie du Chien, Wis. Mr. Long is one of the leading Progressive Democrats of his state and his appointment is a recognition by President Wilson of the effective work he rendered in the national campaign last year.

1886.

William H. Hallam, L.S. and Law '88, formerly of Minneapolis, has moved to Portland, Ore., where he has established a law office in the Yeon Building.

1888.

William Foulkes Jones is pastor of the Presbyterian church at Kewanee, Ill.—Dean H. L. Russell of the College of Agriculture lectured on agricultural education before the Civic Club of Delavan on May 27. Two days later he spoke on advanced agriculture before the Sixth Group of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association in session at Grand Rapids.

1890.

William B. Cairns, assistant professor of American literature in the university, and his family have returned from abroad, where the professor has been studying in the University of Munich.—Olaf Martin Skinveik, Law, is practicing his profession at International Falls, Minn.

1891.

Guy P. Cobb is practicing law at Ardmore, Okla.

1894.

Jesse E. Sarles, who for the past five years has held the pastorate of the Antigo Congregational Church, has accepted a call from the First Congregational Church at White-water and will take up his duties on September 1. Mr. Sarles took his academic degree at the university in 1894 and continued his studies at Yale, from which institution he received the degree of bachelor of divinity in 1898. Under the leadership of Mr. Sarles the church and parsonage at Antigo have been remodeled and the membership increased by over one hundred. He has taken an active part in local affairs and thanks to his efforts much has been done to improve civic conditions at Antigo.

1895.

Philip A. Bertrand is the general manager of the Grays Harbor Railway and Light Co., of Aberdeen, Wash.

1898.

Frances G. Perkins of Fond du Lac has been appointed editor of the Alphi Phi, a quarterly periodical with a circulation of 1,800 published in the interests of the Alpha Phi sorority.

J. P. McLean, ex-'99, is president of the Excelsior Brick Co. of Menomonie, Wis., one of the largest brick manufacturing concerns in the state.—Henry C. Rehm, pastor of the First Congregational Church at Washburn, has resigned to take up the practice of law.—Frank J. Laube is a member of the lower house of the Washington legislature.—Charles M. Baxter of Seattle was the candidate for prosecuting attorney of King county, Wash., on the progressive ticket last November, but was defeated by his Republican opponent. Mr. Baxter, however, is to be complimented upon the persistence and energy with which he pursued his campaign and the earnestness he displayed in his fight against the vice element of Seattle. According to Mr. Baxter, for several years the office of the prosecuting attorney has been a constant drain upon the taxpayers of the county, inasmuch as most of the money appropriated for its maintenance was used for political purposes. In addition to this, the ordinary citizen was unable to secure any attention from the prosecuting attorney, who has full authority to pass on the facts of a case and to authorize the issuance of a complaint against an offender, without the illegal use of political influence. It was to correct such abuses as these that Mr. Baxter decided to run for the office; and as the time limit for registering as a candidate on both of the regular tickets had expired he was forced to run as a progressive. He easily defeated his two opponents in the primary and received the indorsement of the County Central Committee. But with three candidates in the field the Republican machine was able to muster enough votes to win. In spite of many obstacles, however, not the least of which was the attitude of an unfriendly judge who forced him to try an important case just before election, Mr. Baxter cut down the Republican majority to 4,000. Among the many reform policies which Mr. Baxter advocated were the liberation of the office of the prosecuting attorney from all political influence and the enforced employment of men imprisoned for non-support and the turning over of their wages to those dependent upon them for daily support.

Charles McCarthy, Ph.D. '01, head of the Wisconsin Legislative Reference Library, was honored by Brown University with the degree of Doctor of Laws at the annual commencement of that institution.

1902.

Mrs. W. H. Lough (Elizabeth Shepard) sailed from New York on May 25 to spend the summer in Europe.—Susan Swarthout, secretary of the Neshonac Light and Power Co., of La Crosse, Wis., will teach at Medford, Wis., this coming school year.

1903.

Shannon has been made principal of the high school at Ashland, Wis.—Mrs. Edgar M. Flint, who was Susanne Quale of Madison, and her husband have left England for India, where Mr. Flint is to take charge of the science department in the American College at Madura. For the past six months they have been at Oxford, where Mr. Quale has been doing graduate work in the university. On their way to Oxford they stopped off at Chester, one of England's oldest and most historic towns. The older part of the town, Mrs. Quale writes, is surrounded by a stone wall which dates back as far as 60 A. D., but which was rebuilt in the fourteenth century. In the northeast part of the wall is Phoenix Tower, from which Charles I witnessed the defeat of his army by the Puritan forces under Cromwell. Every native of Chester, from the old men to the street urchins, is familiar with the history of their city and Mrs. Flint writes that one is never troubled for lack of information. During the Easter vacation at Oxford Mr. and Mrs. Flint spent two weeks in Norway visiting with Mrs. Flint's uncle at Vossenwaugen. Here Mrs. Flint had the pleasure of seeing the homes of several of her ancestors. At Westby Mr. Flint spoke a few words in English to one of the public school classes. Mrs. Flint was much impressed with the politeness of the children. It is the custom for the girls to curtsy and the boys to raise their hats whenever they pass a teacher of either sex.

BOOK REVIEWS

Zone Policeman 88, by Harry A. Francke, author of "A Vagabond Journey Around the World." The Century Co., Union Square, New York. Price $3.50, carriage 23 cents. Royal 8vo., 502 pages, 100 illustrations.

At a time when a number of Wisconsin engineering graduates are rendering signal service in helping dig Uncle Sam's big ditch, this fascinating volume is especially pleasing. Mr. Francke is a born sociologist, with a keen sense of the picturesque and the unusual. He delights in portraying the national characteristics of different races, and in showing how Uncle Sam is welding the heterogeneous mass of foreigners into a component whole. It makes one wish to see the Canal before it is finished—so vivid is the author's description of the numerous activities now going on in the Canal Zone.

The World Peace Foundation of Boston has just published in pamphlet form a paper by Louis P. Lochner, '09, entitled "Internationalism Among Universities."

The July number of International Conciliation (New York) is devoted to a paper by Professor Paul S. Reinsch, '92, entitled, "American Love of Peace and European Skepticism."

"The Wisconsin Idea" is explained by President Charles R. Van Hise, '79, in a special article in the Philadelphia Public Ledger of recent date. The Wisconsin idea, President Van Hise says, is a purpose, not a definite achievement or series of achievements.

An interesting article on "Superior's Civic Social Center Work," from the pen of Carl Beck, ex-'12, appears in The Municipality for April. Mr. Beck, it will be remembered, is director of the social center work at Superior. The article is richly illustrated with pictures of social center meetings, and with charts of Mr. Beck's own design.

The Man Who One Day a Year would go Eelin', and Some Other Little College Things—Monthly Athletic. By Charles Halsted Mapes. Illustrated. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York. 87 pp.

This little collection of stories, articles, sketches, and speeches should prove interesting to college men generally, though the themes are all eastern, and preponderantly Columbia. Mr. Mapes is well versed in all sports, and his descriptions of historic football games, regattas, and racing events are those of an expert. To the Wisconsin graduate perhaps the most interesting chapter is that entitled, "The Greatest Sporting Event in the World." It is a thrilling description of the Poughkeepsie Regatta.

TO THE PUBLIC:

The Report of the President of the Board of Trustees and other Policyholders of the Northwestern shows important details of the above indicated transactions. The steady and healthy growth of this Company, characteristic of the previous years of its history, has been continued with the addition during 1912 of an increasingly large volume of new insurance applied for, thus indicating the very favorable opinion which the public has formed of the service rendered by the Northwestern to its policyholders.

GEO. C. MARKHAM, President.

From report of Examining Committee of Policyholders:

"The Committee has been deeply impressed with the conservative and up-to-date business methods employed in all departments." E. D. Adler, Milwaukee; I. R. Fetty, Kansas City; J. I. Cooper, Redwood Falls, Minn.

No More Darns To Hurt Your Feet!

Holeproof Stockings and Sox
End the Mend

You walk always in comfort with Holeproof Hose, for you don't need to wear them darned. When a pair needs it inside of six months, send it back and get a new pair free.

We guarantee six pairs to wear six months, and give you a guarantee ticket that says so. The six coupons attached are to send with worn pairs.

A million people are buying Holeproof because they don't need to return many pairs. In 13 years 95 per cent of our output outlasted the guarantee. So this guarantee and this wear are actual facts, not merely advertising claims.

Get six pairs of Holeproof and try them out. See what it means to wear stockings and sox that never need bunchy, hurtful darning.

Holeproof Hosiery
FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN

We are paying an average of 74c a pound for the yarn in Holeproof. Common yarn costs but 32c. But these hose must not only last, but must be comfortable. They must be soft and stylish. So many people wouldn't wear hose that were less good than Holeproof. So we use the finest yarn that's sold. We pay the top market price for yarn.

Our new Mercerized Holeproof, the 25c grade, sold six pairs in a box for $1.50, are silky and soft, yet the Mercerizing, our own process, adds 22 per cent to the strength. Thus they last even better than ever before and still have better style.

Don't wear common hose when you can get these—or the better grades of Holeproof. See what they are, and try them.
