MARQUETTE UNIVERSITY'S AROUND THE CAMPUS IN 1930

Marquette of present and past harmonizes in the Anthem as the Varsity Band swings into an "M" on the gridiron and plays the tunes of Alma Mater, led by the inimitable drum major, Joe Washa.

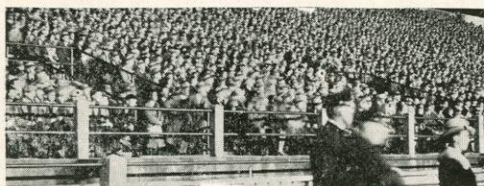

A tradition uppermost in the collegiate atmosphere about the Hilltop is the huge Homecoming bonfire, held annually following the parade. Thousands gather about the blaze, singing and cheering, and linger far on into the night.

Surging around every gate at the Hilltop stadium, Marquette's many grid followers are on hand for every Golden Avalanche exhibition. The crowds swelled in particular this season as the Murray team romped away undefeated.

Both sides of the stadium rock with cheers every time the cheerleaders raise their arms. The team on the field is spurred on to victory by the outward display of enthusiasm evidenced in cheers. To the right is a view of the west stand of the stadium in all its white solemnity. In this mammoth arena the Blue and Gold athletes give battle to the enemy.

Along the sidelines and immediately below the thousands in the stands are prominent Milwaukeeans watching Marquette games from special boxes. The introduction of night football finds Milwaukee's elite forsaking the opera for the gridiron.

Every minute of every hour of the day students pass this intersection going to and from classes. Campus walks are yet a dream to Marquettians, but they seem to enjoy the convivial group on the Avenue. This is but one of the scenes around the Marquette buildings, where students gather.

Like eleven great steam rollers, the Marquette Golden Avalanche has side-stepped everything offered by foes this season, much in the manner you see this individual cog sneaking around left end. Allowing two victories from last season, the Avalanche has ten victories and a scoreless tie on record in succession. For the third time in Coach Frank Murray's nine-year regime on the Hilltop, the Avalanche has gone through undefeated seasons.
