The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

"The student . . . tends to keep up on the new, the curious, and the esoteric at the expense of the fundamental and the historical. In current medical writing what is referred to as the 'older literature' often turns out to be that of the previous decade. . . . In brief, there is a real danger that we shall become completely cut off from our medical past and relapse into a sort of modern Dark Age."

To obviate this very real danger, Dr. Bloomfield has compiled a definitive and exhaustive bibliography of communicable diseases from about 1800 to the present. A critical and annotated bibliography, it is for reading as well as reference, for the medical student and general practitioner as well as the specialist.

Arthur L. Bloomfield is now professor emeritus at the Stanford University School of Medicine. 560 pages $10.00
