The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

She Saw a Ghost

One time when we lived in Green Bay Margaret was watching the house by herself. As morning was coming she woke up and noticed something hard lying next to her. She was unable to yell out because she was so scared and she wanted to get up but she was surprised that someone caught by the arm. A bit more and she was able to get up. When she went to the doorway, she grabbed it with all her might and pulled it slowly far enough to get free. Finally she just held on by her hand. Still she wasn't able to see what it was that was holding her. She just got so far. She opened the door to the outside and got loose. Then she wanted to check it out but she was surprised that no one was anywhere around.
