The Wisconsin ALUMNUS

An Investment in Peace and Security

By A. W. PETERSON
Director of Business and Finance

AS THIS is written, representatives of the United Nations are assembled in San Francisco for the purpose of developing methods by which the world can maintain a permanent peace. World War II has been the most devastating war the world has experienced. Human life and property have been wantonly destroyed. It is inconceivable that civilization could survive the holocaust which World War III would be if ruthless nations are permitted once more to expand their destructive powers in the same degree that some of them did in the last quarter of a century. The peoples of the world must learn to live in peace and in security or all will live as beasts of the jungles in mortal fear of annihilation by the enemy which will be everywhere.

Education carries a heavy responsibility in developing the character of nations. The wrong kind of education can and does make nations hostile and violent. Witness the fanatical devotion to war and cruelty inflicted by the Nazi and Japanese systems of education on the people of Germany and Japan. It poisoned their minds and heaped destruction on the world. We are paying a very high price in overcoming the effects of the "black-out" on democratic educational opportunities that has prevailed in the fascist countries. Let us now be doubly careful that we do not unconsciously or otherwise put any obstacles in the way of promoting the development of educational opportunities that can do so much to insure unbroken peace and security in the future. We must not permit even a "brown-out" of any part of the American educational system.

Education is largely a process of personal service which requires the labor of persons skilled in the art of discovering and disseminating knowledge. The university is an integral part of the educational system in Wisconsin, and its usefulness is extended not only to the students who receive instruction on the campus in Madison and by correspondence study and extension classes throughout the state, but to all of Wisconsin. Agriculture, labor, industry, the home, and all life in the state are served by the researches and studies of university faculty members who are continuously expanding and developing the fields of useful knowledge. The University of Wisconsin is distinguished throughout the world for its contributions to the welfare of mankind. Credit for having reached and for having maintained a high place in the educational world is properly given to the array of scholars that over the years has constituted an eminent Wisconsin faculty.

If Wisconsin is to exert its full influence in support of all that is good and wholesome in the American way of life and in the maintenance of world peace, it cannot afford to lag behind in providing the tools needed by the university faculty to do the required job. Those tools consist of equipment and buildings, and it is no secret that much of the physical plant of the University of Wisconsin is in shameful condition. We have a distinguished and talented faculty. They have done well with the facilities at hand, but we cannot expect them to do the impossible. The University of Wisconsin will degenerate, and men and women of prominence will refuse to join or remain on our faculty if present plant conditions are not rectified.

The Regents have repeatedly requested funds for new construction and after further careful study voted last October to request an appropriation of $12,704,000 from the 1945 Legislature for new construction and permanent improvements. All of this and more is urgently needed to provide the working tools that must be made available if the University of Wisconsin is to continue to serve the State and nation to the full extent of the capabilities of its faculty.

OTHER states in the midwest have taken the lead in recognizing the necessity of providing adequate implements with which the personal service that is education may be supplied. The accompanying map shows the book value (generally the cost) of buildings used for educational purposes at neighboring state universities. These figures exclude the cost of dormitories, hospitals, student unions, and stadia. They represent, therefore, the investment in plant for teaching, research, and general educational purposes. Wisconsin alumni will scarcely be proud to find that in terms of value of educational plant we hold last place among the seven states in this area. The book value of the educational plant at the University of Wisconsin is less than half that of either Illinois, Michigan or Minnesota. While Wisconsin has added very little to its teaching and laboratory facilities in the last twenty years, many of our neighboring universities have been provided with new and modern structures. Furthermore, all of them are planning still more additions to their educational plants.

I do not mean to suggest that this should be a race to "keep up with the Joneses." That would be absurd. The point, however, is that if we recognize the need for unlimited educational opportunity as one of the essential means of insuring peace and security, we must recognize also, as others have, that those who labor to provide the safeguards to civilization must be given the necessary tools with which to work.

WE ARE spending billions of dollars to break the yoke of oppression fostered by the spurious attempts of the Nazis and the Japanese war lords to enslave the world in ignorance. Let us not hesitate to invest a few millions in the implements of peace and security. Legislation adopted at the United Nations conference in San Francisco will not by itself insure a lasting peace. Only a people who are educated to live peaceably can guarantee security from war and destruction.

Alumni of the University of Wisconsin everywhere will want to make sure that their alma mater does not fail to do its part in producing a citizenry educated in the art of peaceful living. "Forward" is the motto of our state;—may it also be the maxim of our educational program to insure peace and security. We have a long way to go;—let us not tarry.

War Plant Foremen Study Here

By DEAN FAY ELWELL

AN EXCELLENT illustration of the University's service to Wisconsin industry is found in the Industrial Supervision Institute, an intensive course lasting one week for foremen in manufacturing establishments.

Every week since the middle of last November an average of 18 foremen has begun training on Monday noon and continued through to Saturday noon. The course is under the Engineering Science Management War Training program, and is therefore available only to foremen in war industry plants. Professor H. E. Pulver is the Coordinator of these courses on the Madison campus.

It has been my privilege and pleasure to issue certificates on many Saturday mornings to those foremen who have completed the week's work satisfactorily. What an inspiration it is to realize that this course has made it possible for many men from all over Wisconsin to attend classes on the Madison campus! Most of them never had the opportunity of attending the university, and thus their dreams have been realized. These foremen now have a first hand picture of the university; many have told me they are not only going to try and have their own children attend but will advise their associates to do likewise.

The proof of the practical value of the Institute is that many manufacturers are sending two or three or more of their foremen (as many as can be spared) to the class each week. Some official in top management usually calls the foremen in after their return and discusses the week's work with them. The President of one company reports these foremen are most loyal alumni, even though they have been on the campus but a week. Another officer told me that when he asked his foremen at a Monday morning review if they wanted to return for an advanced course on company time and expense, the foremen replied that they would be very happy to come back on their own time and expense.

All the credit for the success of these foremen's Institutes should go to Dr. R. L. Moberly and to his instructional staff who provide such an interesting week's work. Dr. Moberly organizes each week's course and obtains a staff of lecturers to assist him in the instructional work. Many of the leading personnel directors and industrial relations counsellors in Wisconsin have lectured and led discussions, and they too are enthusiastic about this Institute.

There are many new Secretaries of Chambers of Commerce in Wisconsin who are unacquainted with the services which the University can render to business and industry of the state. On May 2 a conference will be held in the Memorial Union under the co-sponsorship of Professor Frank Holt, the Director of Public Service, Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce, and the Wisconsin Association of Commerce Organization Secretaries. This conference will provide an opportunity for these key organization officials to learn how to make more effective use of the University's facilities.

Another illustration of the way in which the new School of Commerce expects to serve Wisconsin business is seen in the Wisconsin Food Industry Conference held in Milwaukee on January 31 and February 1. Outstanding speakers from all over the United States made this Conference a great success. One tangible result is that a class of 69 retail food dealers are now attending a six weeks' course in Retail Food Store Operation at the Milwaukee Extension Center. A sectional food conference for the food dealers of the Madison Area will be held at the Memorial Union in Madison on May 22. We have a fine program arranged for our grocer and meat dealer friends.

SPACE will permit the mentioning of but one other new development under the sponsorship of the School of Commerce. In cooperation with the Wisconsin Bankers' Association a two weeks' summer school for bankers will be held in Madison beginning August 20. A three year program of studies has been organized by Herbert V. Prochnow, Assistant Vice President of the First National Bank of Chicago, who will act as Director of the School. Delta Hall (the former Delta Tau Delta house) has been secured for the session. Approximately 40-45 bank officers and employees will enroll for the first year's work. An exceptionally strong faculty has been secured to lecture and lead the discussions and seminars, including Dr. John Langum, Vice President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, Dr. Arthur Uppgren, Vice President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, Professor Lawrence Lunden of the University of Minnesota, and Professor Marvin Peterson of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

As has been so often stated during the past few years, the School of Commerce is anxious to serve Wisconsin business, particularly small business, as the College of Agriculture helps the farming industry, and to that end we are planning more and more ways of rendering such service. We welcome suggestions as to how we may serve your industry, trade association, or community.

Food "Short Course"

A one day "short course" in the problems confronting food dealers will be held for Madison food dealers on May 22 in the Memorial Union, under the sponsorship of the Commerce School and the Manufacturers' Representatives association.

This food conference is patterned after the one held very successfully in Milwaukee in January.

Designed to help food dealers prepare for post-war problems, to operate their businesses more efficiently, and to guide veterans interested in establishing food businesses of their own, the course will be built around a full program conducted by representatives of food retail and wholesale groups and the university.

UW's Services

Deans of several university departments and colleges described the teaching, research and extension work of their departments at an all-day meeting of the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Organization Secretaries held May 2 in the Memorial Union. The meeting was held under the joint sponsorship of the Commerce School and the department of public service.

About 50 persons, most of whom represented local chambers of commerce, learned more about the services of the university through various speeches and panel discussions at the meeting.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

92nd Commencement Becomes a Local Affair

The 92nd annual commencement of the University of Wisconsin and the fourth commencement since Pearl Harbor almost became a war casualty. In fact, the reunion program was hit hard (see col. 2). Just a month before the end of the speeded-up semester, the university received a request from the Office of Defense Transportation that the commencement be held on a purely local basis in order to reduce travel.

After a special meeting of the Board of Regents, Pres. Fred announced that the university would cooperate fully with the request to reduce travel, by holding their commencement for local people only. Out of town guests and speakers for the affair will be limited to less than 50 persons.

For the first time in many years special invitations and reserved tickets for out-of-towners will not be sent out. But the ceremonies will be open to the public as usual, and it is expected that hundreds of Madisonians will attend.

Only about 630 students will get degrees, approximately 450 of them going to seniors. The class of 1945 will be almost exactly the same size as that of 1944, both of which are only half the size of previous classes.

Four state men have been chosen to receive honorary degrees. They are Dr. C. A. Harper, Madison, for 39 years secretary and executive officer of the state board of health; Edward J. Dempsey, Oshkosh attorney and president of the board of regents of Wisconsin teachers' colleges since 1924; Herbert E. Bolton, professor of history at the University of California, and William E. Wickenden, president of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

Prof. Bolton will receive the degree of doctor of literature, and the other three will receive the degree of doctor of laws. All four of the men are former University of Wisconsin students. Dr. Harper was with the class of 1889, Mr. Dempsey was on the campus from 1904-06, Prof. Bolton graduated in 1895, and Pres. Wickenden took graduate work on the campus in 1906-07, while he taught electrical engineering.

Because the Medical School and the School of Engineering each operate on a different yearly schedule, graduates in medicine and engineering will not participate in commencement.

This year it is estimated that about 120 higher degrees will be given. The University of Wisconsin has granted the second highest number of doctor's degrees of any university in the mid-west during the past 92 years. Over 3,300 Ph. D., M. D., and S. J. D. degrees have been granted since the university was founded.

Post-War USAFI

According to most recent war department plans, the Armed Forces Institute (USAFI) will continue to be part of Madison after the war, functioning for an anticipated, enlarged peace time army and navy.

A high percentage of the courses taught by correspondence through USAFI are taught by faculty members from the University of Wisconsin.

War Affects Reunion Plans

Reunions and alumni affairs which are held concurrently with spring commencement will be necessarily greatly curtailed, due to wartime restrictions placed by the Office of Defense Transportation.

In full cooperation with the ODT's "No travel" request, reunions in 1945 will be limited to local alumni. The only classes which will be holding special events are those of 1885, 1890, and 1895. The classes of 1935 and 1940 will hold a reunion-by-mail in the form of a class news letter.

The week-end program for May 25 and 26, includes, nevertheless, the usual alumni activities for local people.

Instead of the regular Half Century Club luncheon, the three oldest classes, '85, '90, and '95, will meet with the officers of the Half Century Club for lunch at 12:30 Friday noon. Local alumni who are members of Half Century Club may also attend this Friday luncheon.

That afternoon at 4 p.m. the regular student honors convocation will be held in the Union theater.

The regular senior reception will be held at 8 p. m. Friday night at the home of Pres. and Mrs. E. B. Fred, 10 Babcock Drive.

The 92nd annual Commencement exercises will be held Saturday morning, May 26, in the Field House.

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Alumni Association will be held in the Union Theater at 11 a. m. Saturday, directly after commencement. And the annual Alumni dinner will be held on the Union Terrace Saturday evening at 6:30.

The Alumni Day program to be held in the Union Theater Saturday night at 8 will honor Pres. and Mrs. Fred and also the 11 faculty members who will retire at the end of the current semester. These 11 are Dr. Joseph Spragg Evans, professor of medicine; Dr. C. H. Bunting, professor of pathology; Dean Scott H. Goodnight, dean of men; Curtis Merriman, registrar; Charles K. Leith, professor of geology; E. B. Hart, professor of biochemistry and chairman of the Research Committee; M. F. Guyer, professor of zoology; W. H. Twenhofel, professor of geology; Harriette G. Holt, assistant professor of mathematics, extension division; Mrs. Dorothy Reed Mendenhall, lecturer in home economics; and E. B. Gordon, professor of music.

Members of the class of 1895 will be inducted into membership in the Half Century club at the Friday luncheon. Their activities will be managed by Edwin H. Cassels, Chicago, acting president, and Mrs. Emil J. Frautschi, Madison, reunion chairman.

The 1935 reunion letter is being prepared by Louise Langemo Treleven, (Mrs. Harry A.) who is serving as reunion chairman because Lt. Frank Klode, the regular class president, is on sea duty with the Atlantic Fleet.

Supervising publication of the 1940 class letter will be Betty March Lange (Mrs. Charles H.) who will substitute for Capt. George S. Robbins, the class president, while he is on military duty at Patterson Field, Ohio.

By next fall there will be no sailors studying radio at Wisconsin.

Regents Actions

Matters which came up for discussion and decision at the last meeting of the Board of Regents are these:

Course for Bankers. An advanced study course for Wisconsin bankers under the direction of the School of Commerce received regents' approval. This course, as outlined in tentative form, would last three years, with a two-weeks summer session each year, starting this year on August 20, and enlarged by study assignments between the annual two-week summer sessions. A certificate would be awarded on completion.

Instruction along these lines was requested by the Wisconsin Bankers' association which represents 550 banks in the state. The only other American banking school is at Rutgers university in New Jersey. The intention is that this UW course would make Wisconsin the midwest center for banking instruction. The course will not conflict with correspondence and study classes of the American Institute of Bankers, since these courses are elementary and the Wis. school will give advanced work.

Because of space limitations the course would start with 40 students this year and increase to 100 next year. A $95 fee will make the course self-sustaining when 100 students are enrolled, and the Wisconsin Bankers' association agreed to make up any deficit this year, according to Dean Fay Elwell of the Commerce School.

ROTC. The Regents received a request from Gen. George C. Marshall requesting the university to re-establish ROTC training on the campus when the war is over, and expressing the belief that up to 500 reservists might be taking ROTC training at the university by July 1.

Theta Chi. The Regents referred the report of a special faculty appeals committee on Theta Chi fraternity to the committee on welfare and student life. The fraternity had been ruled off the campus because of alleged infractions of no hazing rules. The faculty committee to which Theta Chi members had appealed did not sustain the order revoking the fraternity charter which had been given by Dean Scott H. Goodnight last fall.

Racine. Plans to remodel buildings in Racine for use as an extension center have been delayed until September, due to a previous lease. It is expected that classes will begin in Racine at the start of the second semester next year.

Student Housing. Because there are now about 300 World War II veterans on the campus, 18 per cent of whom are married, the problem of housing married students and their families has come up before uni-

Gifts and Grants

Gifts and grants totalling $46,460, including $10,000 from radio commentator H. V. Kaltenborn and $6,000 from South American business firms, were accepted by the Board of Regents for the month of April.

Kaltenborn's grant will be used to establish a radio scholarship trust fund for needy students whose academic standing is high and who show a "special aptitude and interest in some phase of radio broadcasting."

Kaltenborn was the recipient of an honorary degree here in 1939, and he offered his gift "in appreciation of the excellent work which has been done by station WHA in advancing and developing radio broadcasting."

The scholarships from this fund will be given to deserving junior and senior students. The radio training Kaltenborn specified should emphasize news presentation and analysis where possible.

Other funds accepted by the regents are the following:

$6,000 from Johnson and Johnson, Argentina, and Johnson and Johnson, Brazil, for biochemistry and pharmacology research on digitalis. The work will be carried on by Dr. Harold C. Bradley and Dr. Edgar J. Witzemann of the department of physiological chemistry.

$2,000 from the E. I. DuPont DeNemours and Co., Wilmington, Del., for a fellowship in chemistry and chemical engineering.

$3,850 from the National Cheese Institute, Inc., for a study of the methods of sampling and analyzing cheese.

$6,200 from the National Dairy Council for two research programs; one a study of the influence of dietary fat on the growth of rats; the other involving the biochemistry of milk.

$9,750 from the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, for two research programs; one involving research in immuno-genetics; the other involving research in vitamins.

$1,000 from the Wisconsin Alumni Club of Milwaukee, for loans to students from Milwaukee and adjoining counties who are partially or entirely self-supporting.

$2,500 from the Schlitz Foundation, Milwaukee, for scholarships for teachers who will be members of the "Curriculum Workshop" during the 1945 summer session.

$10 from Lieut. James A. Sipple, on duty in the Pacific, to be added to the University building and construction fund.

versity authorities. The regents authorized setting up a central housing committee to arrange dwelling places for these students.

Women's Sports. The regents granted authority to the women's department of physical education to conduct a four-week sports session from May 28 to June 23, right after the close of the school year.

Navy Radio Schools Close

Just three years ago the campus was becoming acquainted with the bluejacket radiomen who were to become an important part of the university. Today the campus is preparing to say good-bye to these sailors who have been attached to the Naval Training Schools in radio.

The schools started cutting down after the last class arrived on April 30. Orders from Washington received by Capt. Leslie K. Pollard, commanding officer of the NTS at Wisconsin, explained the order closing the schools here as "a result of the change in service requirements for radio men."

The schools have an enrollment of 1,600 sailors, including about 100 members of the ship's company or permanent party, plus 23 officers. The weekly Monday morning graduations will reduce the enrollment successively and the last class of 80 radiomen is expected to graduate September 17, after completing the last 20 week radio course at this university. Their graduation will mark the end of the navy's program of training radiomen which began in April 1942.

Capt. Pollard explained that the Wisconsin school is the last large school maintained under contract with non-navy institutions, and will be the last one to be closed. The navy has established its own radio school in the south, and this school will furnish most of its requirements.

Since the naval school began, more than 15,000 sailors and WAVES were given training here, more than 9,000 of them trained in radio.

This change in the program will have various affects throughout student activities. By next fall rooms will be again available in the men's dormitories for civilian students. The sailors' departure may have a slight affect on the football team for next fall, for last year a number of radiomen were on the regular squad.

However, the V-12 trainees in medicine and engineering will still be an important part of the campus population. They will continue to occupy the Kronshage units of the dorms, and they will still participate in fall football activities. The V-12 courses are expected to continue until Nov. 1, and it is said that the requirements will be stepped up so that only outstanding students will be able to continue on the campus.

Also a new contingent of 17-year-old army reservists have arrived on the campus to spend three months studying under the Army Specialized Training Reserve Program. Their program consists of college-level courses in physics, chemistry, mathematics, geography, English, and allied subjects. These soldiers are called to active duty after they reach their 18th birthday.

Establish Naval ROTC

The University of Wisconsin was designated one of the 25 colleges and universities at which naval reserve officer training will be established, it was announced recently by Secretary of the Navy, James Forrestal.

The naval ROTC was requested by university officials after the regents had approved the idea and after the state legislature had indicated their approval.

It is expected that the courses will begin around Nov. 1. They will be operated in a manner similar to the army's ROTC program on the campus.

Occupational Therapy Now in School of Education

With the demand for trained occupational therapists expected to increase a hundred-fold in the post-war era, the university has unified its still new four-year occupational therapy course by placing it under the School of Education. Formerly it had been both under the Schools of Medicine and Education.

Under the direction of Dr. Elizabeth Grimm, '31, professor of physical medicine, the course offers upon completion, a Bachelor of Science degree.

Established in the fall of 1943 at the direction of the Wisconsin Rehabilitation board and the federal government, the course includes regular college work with the occupational therapy equivalent to a major. The work on the hill is followed by hospital ward training, very similar to the work of an intern.

"Several thousand occupational therapists are needed today," said Dr. W. J. Meek, acting dean of the School of Medicine. "Although it seems monopolized by women at present," he continued, "there is room for quite a number of men. We would be eager to have them enroll in this work." There are nearly 100 girls currently enrolled.

Students learn a number of arts and crafts suited to rehabilitate damaged limbs. Among these are weaving, carpentry, printing, leather work, metal work, and a number of other manual arts.

Many alumni who now hold degrees in other fields would find it possible to finish the occupational therapy course in a year or more by taking only those courses which would fill in the major in occupational therapy. Among the subjects required before the professional courses can be started are physics, zoology, and kinesiology.

War Prisoners Study

English-speaking Germans and Italians who have been taken prisoner by American forces and then held in prison camps in the United States are privileged to pass their time studying correspondence courses from our Wisconsin extension division.

More than 100 such prisoners have already begun UW courses. The commanding officer or educational officer from the prison camp handles all arrangements with the university. Each course costs the student the full out-of-state tuition rate, and that amount together with books and needed equipment, costs an estimated average of $30 per course.

The university opened this service at the request of the army. It is a reciprocity measure in accord with the permission by the German government given to American prisoners interned in Germany to take correspondence courses through the Swiss Red Cross. A number of American POWs overseas are also taking courses from our extension division.

Union Building Heads

George I. Haight, '99, Chicago, and Dr. H. C. Bradley of the faculty have been elected chairman and vice-chairman respectively of the Memorial Union Building Committee, fund raising group for the university's war memorial.

They succeed the late Fred H. Clausen of Horicon, former president of the regents, and the late Walter Kohler of Kohler, former governor.

Dr. W. J. Meek
Acting Med. School Dean

Haight, one of Wisconsin's best known alumni, is a former president of the Alumni association, recipient of an honorary degree in 1928, and a member of the Memorial Union Committee since its inception.

Dr. Bradley has been a member of the committee since 1925 and was chairman of the general campus committees which planned both the original Union and the theater wing. He is also a faculty representative on the Union Council, governing board of the building.

The memorial committee of representative alumni and faculty which elected Haight and Bradley has collected more than $1,050,000 to build the Union. The committee represents the 20,000 subscribers to the fund.

Fund raising for permanent improvements in the Union is still progressing at the rate of $200 to $1,000 per month. Porter Butts, '24, is secretary and campaign director of the committee.

Leaves UW $75,000

The late Joseph Forbrich, Chicago pharmacist, bequeathed the bulk of his $75,000 estate to the university to help medical scientists fight cancer, it was disclosed recently.

Born in Austria 80 years ago, Forbrich came to Chicago in 1880 and became prominent in the world of pharmacy there. He is regarded as a self-made man in Chicago where he was a successful pharmacist for over 50 years.

Forbrich's will makes several bequests and then provides that the bulk of the estate be held in trust with its income going to four brothers and a sister. At the death of each, the university will receive the income and at the death of the last survivor, the university will receive the entire estate in trust.

Forbrich specified that the money be used under the direction of the Board of Regents, to further the work now being carried on in the McArdle Memorial Laboratory for research and study of the causes and treatment of cancer.

FACULTY BOOKSHELF

PROBLEMS OF THE POSTWAR WORLD, edited by Thomas C. T. McCormick, chairman of the department of Sociology and Anthropology. New York. McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc. 1945.

This symposium consists of a collection of twenty papers, each written by a specialist in his particular field and all except two of them UW faculty members. Wisconsin men contributing are Walter A. Morton, Selig Perlman, Elizabeth Brandeis, Asher Hobson, Harold M. Groves, Paul T. Ellsworth, John M. Gaus, David Fellman, Lorentz Adolfsen, Matthew H. Willing, Howard Becker, Hans H. Gerth, Frederic A. Ogg, and H. Gordon Skilling.

Practically all the controversial subjects on economic policy, government and society, and international relations are covered in these essays and are analyzed with a view toward contributing to their solution. As Prof. McCormick hoped when he first thought of compiling such a book, this collection has enabled many faculty members who are not in the armed forces to contribute materially to the ultimate peace that is the aim and goal of our present war.

TUSEN NORSKE SKIP. By Lise Lindbaek, lecturer in Scandinavian. The Norwegian Shipping and Trade Mission, New York, 1943.

This book, written in Norwegian, contains a collection of selections from the great saga of Norwegian seamen in World War II. After the fall of Norway to the German Wehrmacht in 1940, the Norwegian merchant marine carried on the struggle against Nazism more actively than ever. Mrs. Lindbaek has chosen stories of these heroic sailors who aided the Allied cause by shipping food and equipment to Britain, who transported men and supplies to Malta and Egypt, who convoyed over the path to Murmansk, who assisted in American landings in Africa, the Mediterranean, France, and the South Pacific. The tales range from those dealing with the dangers of the sea which are told by the survivors themselves, to discussions of the role of the merchant marine in the economic life of Norway which are given by Mrs. Lindbaek herself.

Prof. Paul Knaplund said, "Mrs. Lindbaek presents her material skillfully in simple, straightforward Norwegian which can be understood even by readers with a limited command of that language."

GERMANY: A WINTER'S TALE. By Heinrich Heine, translated by Herman Salinger, faculty member on leave. L. B. Fischer Publishing Corp., New York, 1944.

The original of this tale by the great German poet Heinrich Heine appeared just a century ago. Since the Nazis came to power it was banned and burned. Consequently its reappearance in America, ably translated into clear English, is a matter of timely interest.

Heine's tale is a witty travel epic, a satire on the Germany of 1844, a country not unlike the Germany of 1944. It strikes out against the national, Prussian, tyrannical "eternal" Germany by means of mockery, jeering, and condemnation, and aims toward a new and better Germany of tomorrow.

The translator, Herman Salinger, is on military leave from the German department and is now a first lieutenant in the air corps. August Derleth, in review, states, "That Lt. Salinger could prepare the entire English version of this appropriate and timely poem while on military service is a tribute to more than ordinary patience and endurance quite over and above the manifest skill of the translator."

Prof. Glenn Trewartha

JAPAN: A Physical, Cultural, and Regional Geography. By Glenn Trewartha, '21, Ph.D. '24, Professor of Geography. University of Wisconsin Press. Madison, 1945.

This timely book by a recognized authority on the geography of the Far East is both comprehensive and well-organized.

Margedant Peters writes in the Chicago Sun: "This is a book which can certainly be recommended as a basic text for all who will have anything to do with military government in the Pacific, as well as for their armchair critics."

Charles C. Colby, in the Chicago Tribune writes, "Trewartha's book has high value for anyone interested in Japan, and who isn't in these days of our rapidly developing attack on Nippon? His presentation is gratifyingly satisfactory. His detailed treatment of the regional divisions of the archipelago is a masterpiece in kind. Masterly also are his numerous maps and other illustrations. All in all, Trewartha's book has given us the right kind of book at the right time."

Prof. Trewartha's first book of Japan was published in 1930 and was widely used by the armed services at that time. This new volume is adapted to military use, and it brings the subject up-to-date.

California Dean

Prof. John D. Hicks, former chairman of the history department, has been named dean of the Graduate School of the University of California at Berkeley.

Prof. Hicks was at Wisconsin from 1932 until he accepted a post in the University of California history department in 1942.

Historian

Dr. Merrill M. Jensen, associate professor of American history, has been awarded a Guggenheim Memorial fellowship in order to prepare a history of the United States during the Confederation period, 1781-1789.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FACULTY, STAFF, RESEARCH

Two Day Medical Meet Honors Dr. Bunting and Dr. Evans

Dr. Charles H. Bunting, professor of pathology, and Dr. Joseph S. Evans, professor of medicine, will be honored at a two day program in Madison on May 15 and 16. Both of these men have been prominent members of the faculty of the Medical School since its organization.

Both reach the retirement age on Sept. 23, 1945.

The first day's program will feature a lecture by Dr. Eugene L. Opie, Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. He will speak on "Production of Tumors, with Special Reference to Hepatic Tumors Produced by Feeding Azo-Compounds," at a meeting Tuesday night, May 15 in the Service Memorial Institute.

The second day's program will feature another lecture by Dr. Opie and a formal testimonial dinner.

Dr. Opie, emeritus professor of pathology of Cornell's Medical College, and former dean of Washington University Medical School, will lecture on "Significant Questions Concerning Transmission and Epidemiology of Tuberculosis" at 4:30 p. m. May 16.

The testimonial dinner will be held at the Madison club. The dinner attendance is by invitation only, but the lectures are open to medical students and members of the profession all over the state.

Dr. Bunting came to the university in 1908 and organized the department of pathology. He was the first professor of this department and still serves as its chairman.

Dr. Evans has been a member of the faculty since 1910. He has been professor of medicine and chairman of the department of medicine since the Medical School was founded. He came here as the university's first clinician and organized the clinical facilities and student health department at the university.

Faculty Overseas

Faculty members continue to make urgent trips overseas in a variety of duties.

Dr. Elmer Sevringhaus, professor of medicine, has arrived safely in Rome where he will serve as co-head of a nutritional unit of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Other Wisconsin people in his unit include Dr. Emma D. Kyhos, physician, Dorothy Hadehorn, medical technologist, and Ruth M. Flumerfelt, dietician. The unit will work on problems of diet, aiming at establishing practical standards for all large-scale feeding programs by UNRRA in newly liberated and destitute areas.

Dr. Alfred Galpin, instructor in French and Italian who is now serving with the Office of War Information, may also be in Rome by now. He will be information specialist to aid in the program of American-Italian cultural relations.

Prof. F. V. Buralow of the College of Agriculture, is headquartered in Rome. His job is to study the agricultural needs of the Italian people so that their country may become at least partially self-sustaining. He takes trips through rural areas where he makes surveys of the apparent needs.

Dr. Hans M. F. Reese, professor of neuropsychiatry, will return to Germany on his second trip to the European battle zones. He will serve in the capacity of technical advisor with the U. S. medical corps, in the enemy territory which has been occupied by American forces. He went over for his first war trip last July.

George W. Hill, rural sociologist now on leave from the university, has been engaged by the Venezuelan government to assist in its postwar immigration and colonization program. His job will be to determine, with the help of technicians, the areas in Venezuela that should be developed for agriculture, to proceed with such development, and to select people for settlement in such areas. Hill has resigned his position with the War Food Administration in order to accept this Venezuelan post.

Prof. Howard L. Becker, also of the department of sociology, is now in England where he has been serving for several months as a civilian aide to the U. S. Army.

Serving Government

Wisconsin faculty members in political science and law continue to contribute to government service.

Prof. L. E. Pfankuchen, acting chairman of the political science department, is now serving as a member of the U. S. State department delegation at the international peace conference in San Francisco.

Requested by the state department, Pfankuchen will be a member of the International Secretariat which will handle the technical details of the conference. He has been granted a leave of absence from the university until the conference is over. Prof. Pfankuchen worked with the state department in Washington for 13 months beginning in June, 1942, in the division of political studies engaged in post-war planning.

Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, on leave from the Law School, was appointed vice-president of the War Labor Board late in March by Pres. Roosevelt. He succeeds George W. Taylor who was recently moved up to the position of chairman of the board. Garrison has served with the War Labor board in various capacities since 1942.

Prof. John T. Salter, also of the political science department, has been granted a leave of absence from the university in order to accept an assignment on a history project for the war department in Washington. The project will be of a biographical nature.

Prof. John M. Gaus, who has been on a research assignment, will return to the teaching staff to take over Pfankuchen's and Salter's classes.

Prof. Walker

John Charles Walker, professor of plant pathology, has been elected to the National Academy of Sciences, Pres. Fred announced recently.

Prof. Walker is one of the world's leading authorities on the diseases of vegetables, particularly truck gardening crops, and is best known for his work in developing disease resistant cabbages. A graduate of the university's College of Agriculture in 1914, Prof. Walker has been on the faculty ever since.

Veterans' Ball

The Veteran's Club did themselves proud. Some time ago they planted signs all over the campus area,—simple signs which merely read "S.S.S." A few weeks later they painted Kiekhofers' wall and announced to the world that the "S.S.S." initials stood for the "Sad Sack Shuffle", a Veterans' Ball which they were about to sponsor.

Shortly thereafter they started peppering the papers with publicity, and on a Thursday morning they even staged a skit on the upper campus to advertise their dance the next night.

The 300 couples who turned out for the party found the Great Hall of the Union decorated like a South Sea paradise. Original "Sad Sack" drawings were given to the club by their creator for use at the party. And, for a floor show, a dozen husky ex-Fighters, the "Sad Sacquettes", did a Haresfoot-style chorus routine.

Veterans-club president Lee Alfgrén agreed with the other dance-planning vets that their party was a big success and that the "Veterans' Ball" tradition got off to a fine start.

Union Referendum

Two proposed amendments to the constitution of the Wisconsin Memorial Union were defeated in student elections last month when they failed to gain the  $\frac{2}{3}$  vote necessary for constitutional changes. The amendments were submitted to a referendum, and all students and Madison members of the Union voted.

One of the proposed amendments reduced Student Board membership on the Union council from four to one student and representatives of the Union directorate from four to three students. These four posts then were to be filled by members elected at large by the student body.

The second amendment proposed placed a limitation of "not more than two successive terms of two years each" on the faculty and alumni members appointed to the Council.

As Council membership includes nine students, the proposed change suggested affected the method of choosing council members rather than the number of students on the body.

Octy Stages Comeback

The once famed Wisconsin humor magazine, Octopus, has been a war casualty for three years, and students on the hill this semester have been missing it. So, plans are under way to bring the Octy back to the newsstands as soon as possible, the tentative date of publication being September.

The new publication will be supported by advertising and subscriptions, and in order that some funds are available for their initial endeavor, staff members are enthusiastically selling subscriptions already.

Several staff meetings have been held and positions on the magazine are now being filled.

Rathskeller Men's Night?

When women were first admitted to the Rathskeller in 1942 there was much discussion about the move. At first only summer session women were allowed to "invade" the men's sanctuary. Later economic reasons forced the Rathskeller to admit women at any time.

Now the men on the campus feel that perhaps their move was an unwise one, even though it appeared absolutely necessary at the time. The Union Directorate has just sent a recommendation to the Union Council asking that the Rathskeller be reserved for men on Monday nights.

The reason? "The men need a place to go to drink beer, have bull sessions, sing, and generally bring back the 'old Wisconsin spirit'."

Music Festival

The university's May Music Festival was a highly successful campus activity this year. Beginning with a Sunday concert by the University Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Prof. Richard C. Church, the festival featured a concert each day of the following week.

Performers included members of the university A Capella choir, the Pro Arte Quartet and the university concert band as well as individuals including Gunnar Johansen, Ennio Bolognini, and Harry Partch.

SPORTS

Baseball

Coach Art "Dynamite" Mansfield's University of Wisconsin baseball team scored three victories in its first four Western conference games, and had a four and none record in non-league frays.

After beating a Milwaukee road team, 16-1, in an exhibition, the Badgers went to Iowa City on April 6-7 to open their Big Nine season. Behind the steady hurling of Gene Jaroch and Wally Pearson, veteran righthanders, Wisconsin came out with two 4-3 victories, similar because the Hawks scored two runs in the ninth inning of each game.

Their next game was against Truax field, April 17, and navy radio students Lloyd Auman and Jack Robinson combined to hurl the Badgers to a 10-4 victory.

The following week Wisconsin split a doubleheader with Ohio State at Columbus on April 21. Jaroch took the first contest, 6-3, but the aroused Buckeyes combed Auman, Robinson, and Pearson for a 10-5 triumph.

Camp McCoy was scheduled to play Wisconsin on April 28, and Truax on April 27, but both games were cancelled at the request of McCoy. So the Badgers and Truax played those two dates and on April 29, a day scheduled for the second Badger-Raider game.

Jaroch tossed a six-hit, 2-0 shutout the first game, and Auman received a little more batting support in pitching a 5-0 victory, also a six-hitter.

Pre-War Rathskeller

Truax scored a run in the first inning of the third game, but the Badgers assumed command in the fourth and, behind Robinson, coasted to a 15-1 victory.

Track

Wisconsin's outdoor track season opened against Marquette, April 21, and the Hill-toppers again eked out a slim margin of victory, 67½-63½.

Badger coach Tom Jones was named the referee of the Drake relays, held at Des Moines April 28. With him went his 34th entry into the classic, and the four-mile team of Warren DeVoe, Bill Lawson, Bob Johann, and A. J. Frederick, placed second. The two-mile relay, composed of Johann, DeVoe, Ken Chandler, and Ray Zobel, finished fourth.

While Chandler was at Des Moines, Athletic Director Harry Stuhldreher announced that the V-12 navy trainee had won the highest award given to a senior athlete—the Western conference medal.

Tennis

Wisconsin's netmen, under the direction of Prof. Harold Taylor of the philosophy department, won their first match, against Northwestern, on April 28. The score was 8-1, and the Badgers won all the singles matches and two of the three doubles matches.

Conquerors of their Wildcat opponents were Bill Rogers, John Jensen, Fred Dowling, Earl Verkins, Frank Heckrodt, and Jerry Hammond.

Golf

Coach Joe Steinhauer's Badger golfers swamped Lawrence, 14-4, on April 21. With three veterans—Rex Capwell, Dick Sorgel, and Bob Siegel—back, the Badgers won handily. Tom Conway, the new fourth man, chipped in with a single victory, and then teamed with Siegel to take one of the double matches.

In triangular at Northwestern on April 28, the Wisconsin squad was second to Northwestern, but ahead of Indiana. The final score was Northwestern 19, Wisconsin 9½, and Indiana 5½.

Capwell, with a 78-77-155 topped the Wisconsin scorers.

Milwaukee Banquet

Some 300 alumni and state assemblyman guests from the Milwaukee area attended a banquet last month which was sponsored by the Milwaukee Alumni Club for the purpose of promoting the building program for the university.

Speakers at the meeting were Pres. E. B. Fred, making his first appearance in Milwaukee since being chosen university president, and Walter Hodgkins, president of the board of regents. Both asked for help in carrying out the plans to make the university of greater service to the state.

"In planning for the future," declared Pres. Fred, "we assume that the people of Wisconsin want the university to maintain its position of leadership among the universities of the land. Will you, as alumni and citizens, think of us in the university as co-workers in the great task of planning Wisconsin's future?"

Hodgkins pointed out physical inadequacies of the university plant, and explained, "What the university accomplishes in the education of our young, in research for the benefit of mankind, to benefit the people of our state, farmer, laborer, industrialist—in the final analysis will be determined by what funds the state legislature is willing to make available for these purposes."

Milwaukee club committee members who handled arrangements for the banquet include Herbert J. Schwahn, chairman; Ray H. Myers, toastmaster; Col. C. J. Otjen, invitations; Harold A. Peterson, finances; Helen A. Polcyn, reservations; and Mrs. Willard Hupert, ushers and decorations.

Representatives of the Chicago Alumni Club and the Racine Alumni Club, as well as a large delegation from Madison, also attended the banquet.

Club Officers

Cleveland

The directors of the Cleveland Alumni club met recently and elected Waldemar Naujoks, '26, their new president.

Kenosha

After several successful organizational meetings, the newly formed Wis. Alumni Club of Kenosha has elected the following officers: David L. Phillips, '33, president; James Steinmetz, '38, vice-president; John Strom, '30, secretary; and Mary Hinner, '41, treasurer.

The personal contact committee which has been working on a membership drive consists of the officers and also Walter Turner, Jean Grindrod, Raymond C. Casey, Celia M. Safranski, Leo J. Jeselun, Mrs. Frank J. Disbrow, Jr., Lloyd D. Newberry, William Haikowicz, and Mary Lou Parker.

Southern California Alumni

New officers of this organization are as follows: Edward Schildhauer, '97, president; Raymond J. Stipek, '35, vice-president; Mrs. Mark F. Jones, '11, secretary; and Arthur Chase, '21, treasurer.

Plans are being made for the establishment of this club for both alumni and alumnae. An organizations committee is at work, and its membership consists of the officers and W. K. Murphy, Sam C. Wright, Louis Brittingham, John C. Carey, Mark F. Jones, and Mrs. David F. Simpson.

California Alumnae

Three speakers at the March meeting of the Wisconsin Alumnae Association of Southern California were Vera Joan Nelson, '41, S. Roxey McKay, '06, and Carolyn Gallagher, '08.

Miss Nelson spoke on the proposed institute for all the arts which will be located in Milwaukee. Miss Nelson is president of the new Art Institute League which is sponsoring this art center, and she wrote her master's thesis on the subject.

Miss McKay reported on "What the University of Wisconsin is Doing For the War."

Miss Gallagher spoke on "Ireland and her People."

Guests from the university included Mrs. C. B. Brown, Frances B. Richards, and Mrs. Janette Sannes, '02.

Foreign Badgers Safe

With the reopening of mail service to countries which were formerly occupied, news has come to us of a number of Wisconsin graduates and former students.

From the Philippines we learn of Filipino Brig. Gen. Manuel ROXAS, '16, who was recently released from the Japanese when the Americans took Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines. Louis Scott MARSH, '29, with his wife and two children, was released from Santo Tomas in Manila. The Marshes have returned to the U. S. and at present are in a New York hospital.

Carlos Felix QUIRINO, '31, who lived in the heart of Manila and though never interned, spent some days moving from house to house to avoid capture and to escape the fires of the city, is now living in the garage behind their house, which burned to the ground. His mother is all right and is with him.

We also understand that Mrs. Mariano Mercado, formerly Margaret DAWSON, '31, is all right and living in Manila. She is the mother of a baby born several months ago.

From France the news has reached us that Mrs. Henri de la Chassaigne, formerly Delia LINWELL, '15, has moved back to Paris after having gone to southern France when the Germans occupied Paris. She has been spending her time writing for the New York Times under the by-line of Delia Linwell.

Other French alumni who are reported to be all right are Mrs. Maurice Weiler, formerly Marie-Louise BOISSOT, '26, Mrs. Harold Burgess, formerly Marguerite PONS, '23, and Miss Fernande HELIE, '21.

The WISCONSIN ALUMNUS is published monthly, October through July, by the Wisconsin Alumni association and is entered as second class matter at the post office at Madison, Wis., under the act of March 3, 1879. Subscription to the ALUMNUS (included in the membership dues of the Wisconsin Alumni association) is $2. a year; subscription to non-members is $4. per year.

Fighting Badgers of the Month: The Hansen Sisters

While statesmen back home argue about drafting women, and recruiting programs the country over demand more nurses, the three Hansen sisters go about their routine duties in posts overseas, in Italy and Marianas, and in the states, back in Iowa.

In 1942 and the years just before and after, the Hansen girls lived in Chadbourne Hall. Helen, '42, and Ann, '43, studied nursing while Ruth, '43, majored in dietetics. Three years later, each of the girls was in the service of her country.

Ann was the first to get the urge to join up. Right after graduating in June 1943 she entered service. Two months later she left the country for North Africa, and Christmas of that year found her hard at work as charge nurse of a neuro-psychiatric ward of a hospital in Italy. She writes about the experience there saying, "Most of us became literally 'Angels in long underwear'!" Ann is still in Italy, at a hospital in Naples.

The following spring her younger sister, Ruth, completed her internship in dietetics at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore and immediately enlisted as an army dietician. After taking an army course at Camp Carson, Colo., Ruth has been continuing her hospital work at Schick General in Iowa.

Helen, the oldest of the girls, spent two years doing general and special duty nursing after she was graduated, and then joined the Army Nurse Corps. She was sent to Camp McCoy, Wis., to Vaughn General hospital, Hines, Ill. and six months after enlisting was shipped out. Helen is now serving with a station hospital in the Mariana Islands.

Their father is William C. Hansen, '15.

Wisconsin's University at the Crossroads

Within the next few weeks, Wisconsin's 1945 legislature is going to make a decision of tremendous importance to the people of the state of Wisconsin.

The legislature is going to determine whether the people of Wisconsin are going to continue to have a great state university or whether they are going to have a second-rate university.

For many years, Wisconsin has had one of the great universities in the world. It has been possible for the sons and daughters of farmers, factory workers, business and professional men in every part of the state to secure one of the best educations in the nation within the confines of their own state. Every city, village, town, and rural area in the state has sent young people to the university who have returned to enrich life in their home communities as leading farmers, business men, doctors, lawyers, teachers, editors, public officials, engineers, and artists.

The research carried on by the university has been of untold value to the state. Contributions of the university in the production of hybrid corn and Vicland oats alone have been conservatively estimated as having been worth forty-five million dollars to the state of Wisconsin in the year 1944. The contribution of the university to the dairy industry over many years is recognized without question.

When we consider the hundreds of such services and research projects that have been carried on by the university and their results in human happiness and welfare as well as in financial remuneration to the state, it is perfectly obvious that a great university should be regarded as a necessary sound investment for an enlightened commonwealth and not as an expense.

Building Holiday?

Wisconsin has gone through a 15-year building holiday. Obviously, this condition cannot persist without seriously affecting the quality of the university as we know it, especially since the existing plant was constructed to house only about one-half the pre-war enrolment.

Consequently, a long-overdue minimum building program has been submitted to the 1945 legislature. Gov. Goodland, who has for many years been regarded as an honest, thoughtful, careful student of Wisconsin government interested in sound economy, has gone all-out for this program. No man is more aware of the needs of all departments of the state and of its financial condition. He reached his decision on the university building program without pressure or ax grinding. His sole objective was the welfare of the people of the state of Wisconsin.

If now, at the height of wartime prosperity, we are unable to secure commitment from this legislature for an adequate and sound building program, there is not much hope to expect such a commitment in the immediate post-war years. This means that the 15-year building holiday may extend to 20, 30, or 40 years. Ultimately, the breaking point will be reached. Adjustment must be made to the building situation as it is, not as it ought to be. Then research and teaching at the university will be dictated to a large extent by inadequate and obsolete buildings and facilities rather than be determined by the needs of the people of the state.

True, faculty is more important than buildings. But scholars are interested in the results of their work whether they be in research or in teaching.

A good scientist isn't going to work for long with only a "microscope, a piece of string, and a jack knife" if there is opportunity to work in a well-equipped laboratory where his output may be increased manyfold. A Mark Hopkins isn't going to sit for long on an end of a log and teach if there are opportunities to teach in well-constructed classrooms with access to well-stocked libraries.

True, faculty is more important than buildings. But when the point is reached where obsolete and inadequate buildings become factors in the retention and acquisition of faculty for whom there is keen competition, the situation becomes critical.

All Depends on Legislature

Wisconsin is not yet ready to go into retirement and to live in and off the harvests of the past. America's and Wisconsin's golden age still lies ahead. We still have sowing to do and greater harvests to reap.

The fate of the people's University of Wisconsin for the next generation is in the hands of the 1945 legislature. The decision is one that calls for high statesmanship; the decision involves the question of placing first things first. The question is one of deciding the kind of opportunity the young people of the state shall have at the university during the next generation and determining what kind of research service the people of Wisconsin may expect from their university.

We trust that not only the citizens of Wisconsin in 1945, but the returned veterans in 1950 and their children in 1970 will have just cause to honor the 1945 legislature for its action relative to the university building program in the critical period of its long history.—

From ODs to Civvies to Pinks

When JOHN T. ATWOOD, '22, left the Miami Army Air Field one afternoon not long ago, he had no regrets. He had served as a sergeant in the army and had done a good job, but the army had asked him to leave. His work had been highly satisfactory, but they had "fired" him for just that reason.

You see, Atwood had been accepted as a candidate for a direct army commission, and the only way he could take this commission was to be mustered out of the army and be given the commission while a civilian. So, Atwood was "let go" in order that he could be promoted.

The first enlisted man at the ATC's Miami field to be given a direct commission, Lt. Atwood left there shortly after becoming an officer in order to enter a training school as an army clinical psychologist.

Atwood studied psychology at Wisconsin, came back for graduate work, and took still more graduate work at Columbia university. He had served as psychologist at the classification clinic of the Attica Prison in New York before being called into service.

pointed senior member of Naval Courts and Boards for the South Pacific Area and Force, a job which takes him all over and involves litigation on some mighty interesting matters.

Falk Performs Emergency Operation in a Hurricane

"The wind was rising, a smart breeze whipped the tent flaps, whistled through the palm fronds. The doctor, Navy Lt. Comdr. Victor S. FALK, '36, was anxious. There was reason for anxiety. The base was in the path of a hurricane, and an officer who had been flown here from Guam required an emergency operation for appendicitis."

A delayed dispatch from a Marine correspondent recently disclosed the latest episode in the career of "Vic" Falk, navy flight surgeon, onetime BMOC and Badger editor.

Falk went ahead with the operation and managed to finish just as the hurricane struck. As soon as he finished he went about his duties taking care of other men, ward patients who also demanded his care before the storm hit the other side of the island.

Comdr. Falk was awarded the Silver Star 2½ years ago for aiding wounded marines on Guadalcanal while they were under fire and for helping evacuate them on a disabled plane the next day.

His wife, the former Marjorie SHEARER, '43, is living in Edgerton with their month-old son. His father, Dr. Victor S. Falk, Sr., '11, also received his M.D. from Wisconsin.

Obedient O'Connor

The first wave of paratroopers had just jumped over Normandy. S/Sgt. John J. O'CONNOR, '32, serving with the Troop Carrier Command, was in the astradome, checking the flight of the load that had just leaped. Suddenly the "abandon ship" signal came on. Obedient O'Connor hastily jumped.

"I jumped at between 700 and 800 feet altitude," related O'Connor to Stars and Stripes reporters, "and landed among a bunch of cows in a pasture."

His regular white crew member's parachute was a much more visible target than the camouflaged 'chutes of the paratroopers, but luck was with O'Connor and he didn't get hit.

He fought his way out of Normandy and returned to an Allied unit, eventually rejoining his own crew.

"Why in the world did you jump?" his pilot asked.

And for the first time O'Connor was informed that the jump was unnecessary; the "abandon ship" signal had been flipped on wholly by accident.

Fighting Badgers are in all branches of the service. At one time the WASPs were the most "exclusive" of our Badgers.

Today, however, the distinction of most exclusive or unique or what-have-you, goes to those loyal nephews of Uncle Sam's who wear the uniform of one service and do the work of another.

Take, for example, 1st Lt. Roger WURTZ, '41, of the Air Corps. He is based on an aircraft repair ship. As he writes us, "I live on a ship, I am in the Army, we repair aircraft parts . . . I am in the Army's Navy."

Or, we can turn to Lieut. Ben GOLDFIEN MATHON, '40, who belongs to the navy but goes ashore with the invasion forces to let the navy know if its gunfire is aimed in the right direction. He claims to be in the "Navy's Army".

We're still looking for a Fighting Badger who is in the WAC's WAVES, or vice versa.

Remagen Rescue

Doughboys were crossing the Ludendorff bridge and stomping victoriously on the German soil across the Rhine. One Badger, Pvt. Richard MYREN, '47, was among the MPs who directed the traffic. This job seemed dull and devoid of thrill compared with the jobs of those infantrymen who would soon be occupying German homeland.

But suddenly the great bridge at Remagen started to sway, and before Myren had time to think it had silently collapsed. He saw a Yank half pinned beneath the beams, pushed toward the swift-flowing Rhine which would carry him to death if he were left there.

With coolness and deftness, Myren and a fellow MP climbed down the still-vibrating wreckage, extricated the soldier, who was by now unconscious, and carried him to safety.

Myren had helped save a life.

Radio Careerist

Alice Keith, '16, head of the National Academy of Broadcasting in Washington, D. C. has recently been awarded the Theta Sigma Phi headliner award for 1944, thereby adding another honor to the collection she has attained during her career in radio.

A student of music originally though an English major at Wisconsin, Miss Keith became interested in radio work when she was supervisor of music appreciation in Cleveland and inaugurated two series of broadcasts to supplement her teaching.

RCA learned of her work and asked her to help Walter Damrosch with his educational concerts. Soon Miss Keith was educational director for all of RCA.

Her next educational position was that of director of the American School of the Air, part of the Columbia Broadcasting System. After a short stay there, Miss Keith left to be director of the National Academy of Broadcasting.

In this capacity, Miss Keith combines her interest in radio with her interest in teaching, and students learn through practice how to master all the techniques of broadcasting.

Miss Keith's four radio text-books include How to Speak and Write for Radio and Listening in on the Masters.

Flying Press Box

Directly beneath him the battle of Okinawa was going on. In front of him was a typewriter. At one side of him sat a censor, at the other side a radio operator.

Bob Doyle, '38, correspondent for the entire American press, was doing his work from a great Superfort which had turned into a flying press box.

Doyle looked below to see what was happening when the marines invaded Okinawa. He typed up his story, handed it to the censor who checked it and then passed it on to a radio operator. The radioman transmitted it short wave to San Francisco, 8,500 miles away. A few hours later, Doyle's account was being read in newspapers all over the country.

Doyle is the regular correspondent for the Milwaukee Journal, but it was his luck to be chosen story-teller when lots were drawn among many journalists.

Bronze head from Nigeria
Discovered by William Bascom, '33

Africa For Bascom

Africa has held far more in store for William R. BASCOM, '33 than for most anthropologists. At one time a research worker among the negroes of Ife, Nigeria, Bascom now finds that his work with the Foreign Economic Administration has taken him right back to that dark continent.

The son of Mrs. Litta Bascom, a university librarian, "Bill" Bascom took his B. A. in physics in 1933 and his M. A. in anthropology in 1936. Desirous of a doctorate in anthropology, he went to Northwestern, passed his prelims, and was awarded a fellowship to complete his research project by studying Nigerian natives.

One day when he was busy at ethnological research, he happened to strike a hard object buried several feet underground. That object turned out to be one of several bronze beads, supposedly made in an era B. C. Until he discovered them, only two previous examples of this unknown negro art had been found.

The fine art and the bronze technique used in the beads were a thing that had passed with the age that produced them. The head pictured is that of a woman wearing a diadem which bears traces of red and black paint. Some of the men's heads had holes in the faces on the cheeks, head and lips, leading Bascom and his fellow scholar to believe that hair might have been inserted in them originally.

Bascom brought these beads back to the States with him in 1938, and two of them are now in the Milwaukee Public Museum for the duration of the war.

Now he serves "in the most economical office abroad in the FEA, with only three men to cover close to 2 million square miles of 6 countries." His work deals with shipping and flying to America war materials.
