AMERICAN LIBERTY .. HAMPTON L. CARSON

NATHANIEL K. FAIRBANK .. A LAKE SHORE
RESIDENT OF '70's.

A FORWARD STEP IN CONSERVATION

At the meeting of the Men's Community Club last Tuesday evening held at Hotel Normandie Coffee Shop, Vice-president R.E. Burton appointed Alfred A. Pederson, F. Arthur Anderson and Mike Ambrose as a committee to investigate the necessary steps for the establishing of a Fish Hatchery at the Bay for the propagating of Bass.

Mr. Frank Schwinn of Congress Club has been interested in the project for some time and it is his offer to help in financing the project that has finally brought about a determined effort to carry on.

While on the subject of fish, please note in the article about Mr. N.K. Fairbank, how some of the early summer residents helped in making Lake Geneva the fishing grounds that it now is.

His son, Kellogg, thinks the Atlantic Salmon placed in the lake by his father did not survive, but recent discoveries of many of the Salmon and the discovery of their breeding in the marshes at Fontana and in the smaller streams have convinced the State Conservation Department that we, today, are enjoying the benefits of those early days when Mr. Fairbank and others placed them in the lake.

Let's not stop at bass, let's work with the Conservation and Game department in stocking the lake with Salmon and Trout and preserving them for future generations.

We have something here worth crowing about, let's work as well as crow.

SAFE AND SANE HALLOWEEN

We wish to congratulate the boys and girls in Williams Bay and surrounding communities on the way they observed Halloween. They are finding out that there can be a lot of fun without damaging property. The elders who helped them have a good time also come in for our commendation.

A WORD OF PRAISE FOR THIS PAPER

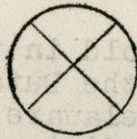

Mr. William Nelson Pelouze writes "I enjoy reading the Lake Geneva Observer and believe it has a field to cover that will help it grow in popularity."

Mr. Geo. P. Hambrecht, Director, Wisconsin State Board of Vocational and Adult Education writes "A week ago Sunday (Oct. 16) I spent the day at Lake Geneva and while there I picked up a copy of your "Lake Geneva Observer" at the restaurant where we took lunch. I find it extremely interesting and would like to be put on your mailing list. I would like to get any back numbers that you may have on file. I will gladly remit the subscription price of this publication."

Mr. C. E. Gaul, Royal Metal Manufacturing Co., Chicago, "Now, want you to know that we appreciate and are very much interested in the Lake Geneva Observer and want to be sure to receive it continuously".

ELECTION TUESDAY, Nov. 8th

An editorial in a neighboring paper stated that 4 out of 10 will neglect to vote at the election. Only 3 out of 10 on an average helped to choose the candidates that we are voting for.

Yet that large group of citizens will be so shocked if unfit candidates get elected and shout the loudest.

Williams Bay has possible over 400 voters. That many should be at the polls next Tuesday.

Sick persons should let the clerk know by Saturday so a Doctor's certificate can be secured and arrangements made for getting their ballots. Those away or going away so they cannot be at the polls can vote by mail or at the Clerk's home, 44 Elm St.

You have heard the candidates or read about them, make your own choice according to your understanding of their qualifications and principles that they stand for. BE SURE AND VOTE.

AMERICAN LIBERTY *

Hampton L. Carson

(This gem of oratory and literature is taken from the Oration delivered by Professor Carson at the World's Fair, Chicago, July 14, 1893, on the Liberty Bell.)

The institutions established by our fathers we hold in trust for all mankind. It was the Pilgrim of Massachusetts, the Dutchman of New York, the Quaker of Pennsylvania, the Swede of Delaware, the Catholic of Maryland, the Cavalier of Virginia, and the Edict-of Nantes man of South Carolina, who untied in building up the interests and in contributing to the greatness and the unexampled progress of this magnificent country. The blood of England, of Holland and of France, wrung drop by drop by the agony of three frightful persecutions, was mingled by the hands of Providence in the alembic of America, to be distilled by the fierce fires of the Revolution into the most precious elixir of the ages. It is the glory of this era that we can stand here today and exclaim that we are not men of Massachusetts, nor men of Pennsylvania, nor men of Illinois, but we are Americans in the broadest, the truest, and the best sense of that word; that we recognize no throne, no union of Church and State, no domination of class or creed.

American Liberty is composite in its character and rich in its material. Its sources, like the fountains of our Father of Waters, among the hills, are to be sought among the everlasting truths of mankind. All ages and all countries have contributed to the result. The American Revolution forms but a single chapter in the volume of human fate. From the pure foundations of Greece, before choked with dead leaves from the fallen tree of civilization; from the rude strength poured by barbaric transfusion into the veins of dying Rome; from the Institutes of Gaius and the Pandects of Justinian; from the laws of Alfred and the Magna Charta of King John; from the daring prowess of the Noremen and the sons of Rollo the Rover; from the precepts of Holy Writ and the teaching of Him who was nailed on the cross on Calvary: from the courage of a Genoese and the liberality and religious fervor of a Spanish Queen; from the enterprise of Portugal and the devoted labors of the French Jesuits; from the scaffolds of Russell and Sidney, and of Egmont and Horn; from the blood of martyrs and the visions of prophets; from the unexampled struggle of eighty years of the Netherlands for liberty, as well as from the revolution which dethroned a James; from the tongue of Henry, the pen of Jefferson, the sword of Washington, and the sagacity of Franklin; from the discipline of Stueben, the death of Pulaski and De Kalb, and the generous alliance of the French; from the Constitution of the United States; from the bloody sweat of France and the struggles of Germany, Poland, and Italy for constitutional monarchy; from the arguments of Webster and the judgments of Marshall; from the throes of Civil War and the failure of secession; from the Emancipation Proclamation and the enfranchisement of a dusky race; from the lips of the living in all lands and in all forms of speech; from the bright examples and deathless memories of the dead - from all these, as from ten thousand living streams, the lordly current upon which floats our Ship of State, so richly freighted with the rights of men, broadens as it flows through the centuries, past tombs of kings, and graves of priests, and mounds of buried shackles, and the charred heaps of human auction blocks, and the gray stones of perished institutions, out into the boundless ocean of the Future. that illimitable sea stands the Temple of Eternal Truth; not buried in the earth, made hollow by sepulchres of her witnesses, but rising in the majesty of primeval granite, the dome supported by majestic pillars embedded in the graves of martyrs.

And thou, great bell! cast from the chains of liberators and the copper pennies of the children of our public schools, from sacred relics contributed by pious and patriotic hands, baptized by copious libations poured out upon the altar of a common country by grateful hearts, and consecrated by the prayer of the American people, take up the note of prophecy and of jubilee rung out by our older sister in 1776, and in your journey round the globe proclaim from the mountain-top and valley, across winding river and expansive sea, those tones which shall make the thrones topple and despots tremble in their sleep, until all peoples and all nationalities, from turbaned Turks and Slavic peasants to distant islanders and the children of the Sun, shall join in the swelling chorus, and the darkest regions of the earth shall be illumed by the heaven-born light of Civil and Religious Liberty !

* There have been many changes in the governments of the world since the above address was made. Many of the countries mentioned have passed into the hands of dictators, men with more power than even the worst despots could boast. The World War in which millions of our young men were drafted for service in what was believed to be a war to end war, a war to save democracy, has made possible the destruction of many democracies.

We still have America, these United States of America. Our war is not from without but from within. Not satisfied with the domination of their own peoples some of the nations are insidiously trying to undermine our form of government, instil class hatred, teach their doctrines and stir up disloyalty among our citizens.

It is well that we remind ourselves of the heritage we have and the liberty which has been entrusted to us.

If you have run across in your reading any articles or pages from books which will help to make us more keen in our fight on these "ism" please send them for publication. Editor.

NATHANIEL K. FAIRBANK

(This is the fifth of a series of articles telling of the first families of the Lake Geneva Summer Colony. The editor asked Mr. Kellogg Fairbank, son of Nathaniel K. Fairbank, to write a sketch about his father and he very graciously submitted the following which we print in full).

Mr. N.K. Fairbank came to Lake Geneva in 1873. He lived in a house in the village on Main Street between Dr. Reynolds and Tim Smith for a year before he bought and moved into his own house in 1874. The property was an oat field, the only trees on it a small grove of butternuts, for which the place was named. He was one of the pioneers of the summer colony. Julian Rumsey, George Sturges, Buckingham Sturges, George Dunlap and one or two others preceded him. His boat the "Cisco" was one of the first steam yachts on the lake.

He was an enthusiastic fisherman, and for some years he stocked the lake with bass. He also, on the advice of experts, built a fish hatchery and put several million lake trout and white fish into the lake. The experiment was a failure, and none of the fish ever matured. He also hatched and put into the lake a few hundred thousand Atlantic Salmon. These prospered and after a few years Mr. L. Z. Leiter caught one weighing six pounds, and a boy at the head of the lake landed one weighing ten pounds - a magnificent fish - but unfortunately the screens at the outlet of the lake were not maintained and if there were other salmon in the lake they ran down stream and disappeared.

Mr. Fairbank came from Sodus, New York, a small village on Lake Ontario in the State of New York, and was familiar with life in a small town. There were many New York families among the early settlers on Lake Geneva, and he found the people of the town most congenial. He had a wide acquaintance in the village, and took part in affairs there. He was active in organizing a Lake Geneva Band and in keeping it going.

He took a great interest in his place and had for many years a superintendent, Mr. W. H. Lawrence, who had learned his trade in England. The planting and maintaining of trees of all sorts was a matter which always attracted him. Starting with a few cows, his interest in dairying grew, and he gradually built up what was probably the first Guernsey herd in this part of the country. He was also active in influencing the spread of this breed among the farmers of the region. He took the greatest satisfaction in winning, with "Materna", a cow which he bred, the competition for Guernsey cows at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. This same cow was one of the leading competitors in the ninety day butter test at the Fair. Mr. Fairbank was a friend of Governor Hoard, and after consulting with him, he built the first silo in Wisconsin.

He was a keen sportsman and in the early days he used to find good shooting of prairie chicken, partridge and snipe in this neighborhood. He took the greatest interest in sailing races over a period of nearly thirty years, although he himself was not a skilful sailor. The first game of golf at Lake Geneva was played on the Fairbank side hill pasture, and later Mr. Fairbank was one of the organizers of the Lake Geneva Country Club.

In Chicago he was interested in many things besides business. He had a great love for music and was an intimate friend of the late Theodore Thomas. He was one of the pioneers in organizing orchestral music, choral societies and opera in Chicago. He was very active in developing St. Luke's Hospital, and for several years was President of the Board of Trustees of the old University of Chicago, in an effort to rescue it from financial morass into which it was sinking. Conditions were such that this proved impossible to do. In the time of the Chicago fire he was one of a committee of five appointed by the mayor to handle the relief funds coming into the city. He was largely instrumental in having this fund turned over to the Chicago Relief and Aid Society and as a member of this society he took an active part in carrying out the work of relief.

Lake Geneva was to him a source of never ending satisfaction. To sit on his porch and watch his trees mature, to inspect his herd, to look over his crops, to see his family growing up around him, and to maintain friendly social contact with his neighbors, many of whom he had induced to come to Lake Geneva, were things of which he never tired.

MORE ABOUT N.K. FAIRBANK GLEANED FROM OTHER SOURCES.

In a large volume telling of some of business and professional men who worked hard for the success of the Columbian Exposition, we found a sketch of Mr. Fairbank.

He was prepared for college when only fifteen and on account of his age could not enter, so was apprenticed to a bricklayer and completed his apprenticeship at Rochester, N.Y. He however did not follow up the trade and accepted a position as a bookkeeper and at the end of six months became a partner.

Attracted by the stories of opportunity in the West he came to Chicago in 1855 and established himself in the grain commission business as the Western agent of David Dows & Co. of New York and remained as such for ten years.

During the time he had become financially interested in the land and oil refinery of Smedley, Peck & Co. A loss by fire entailed a temporary check and in 1870 the firm built the large refinery at 18th St., and Blackwell St. and by the withdrawal of the Smedley & Peck interests and addition of Messrs. W.H. Burnet and Joseph Sears the firm changed the name to N.K. Fairbank & Co., a name known the world over.

In religious faith, a Presbyterian and a member of the South Presbyterian Church of which Professor Swing was pastor, Mr. Fairbank became interested with Dr. Swing in organizing the Central Church in the old Central Music Hall and was one of 50 persons who pledged to make good any deficit for a period of three years.

In 1866 he married Helen L. Graham of New York. They had four sons and three daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank live in the lake shore home and now the Kellogg Fairbank, Juniors and their daughter bring the fourth generation to the "Butternut".

James Simmonds in "Annals of Lake Geneva" writes in July, 1895, "The sudden death of Mrs. N.K. Fairbank, one of our summer residents, which occurred at Chicago, was a shock to our people, many of whom knew how to appreciate her friendship".

Mr. Fairbank passed on in 1903 after a rich life in many senses. He was a fine example of a self-made man who loved life and tried to make it a better world in which to enjoy it. Editor.

KEEP WARM THIS WINTER FOR LESS MONEY

You do it by keeping most of the cold outside.
You can do that in three ways.

- Insulate your attic
- Weather strip your doors and windows or
- Put storm sash and storm doors on all outside openings.

Unless you do those things you will use a lot more coal than is necessary and you may not keep as warm than as you should for the fuel used.

Let us give you an estimate on the cost of equipping your home against Old Man Winter.

The insulation alone will soon pay for its cost in fuel saved.

W.H. EMERY DIES IN EAST WHILE ON PLEASURE TRIP

The death of Mr. Emery came at the Syracuse Memorial hospital where he had been taken when stricken with Encephalitis or sleeping sickness while on his way home from New England, last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Emery was with him on the trip. They had been through the hurricane which struck New England last Month, being near New London, Conn. when it struck. They visited friends in Boston before starting the return trip.

Word of Mr. Emery's passing brought sorrow to a wide circle of friends and relatives in Elmhurst where the family home is located, in the business and social world of Chicago, and up here at Lake Geneva where the lake shore home is located at the East limits of Williams Bay, the home purchased in 1931 from the Alford Estate, originally known as the John M. Smyth home.

Mr. Emery was born February 4, 1876 in Oak Park. His father, W.H. Emery, Sr. built the home at 284 South Kenilworth ave. in 1889. Upon the death of the senior Emery in 1903 his son succeeded him as head of the Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Co.

In 1902 Mr. Emery was married to Marjorie Wilder, and his widow now survives him as does a daughter, Mrs. Anna Emery Hanson of Milwaukee and a son, Edward Wilder Emery of Elmhurst. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Ida Emery Ullmann of Elmhurst and Mrs. Grace Emery Brandt of Ojai, Calif. and two grandchildren, Marjorie and Mary Hanson.

The funeral service were held Monday afternoon at the late home at 1:30 and at Graceland cemetery at 3:30, with Dr. Frederick F. Shannon, pastor of the Central church of Chicago officiating, assisted by the Rev. Fred Harrison, pastor of the First Congregational church, Elmhurst.

Travel was one of Mr. Emery's hobbies, having been twice around the world. There were not many places in America where he had not been.

During the summer months he loved Lake Geneva and spent as much time as business duties allowed at the Summer home.

He was a member of the Lake Geneva Country Club, University Club of Chicago, was active in Chicago Y.M.C.A. and in many commercial organizations.

Mr. Emery's sister Mrs. Ida Emery Ullmann, in a letter states, "My father became interested in Lake Geneva in the 70's. In the early 80's he bought a half interest in the three public boats then on the lake, 'The Lucius Newberry', named after its captain, 'Lady of the Lake' and the 'Commodore'. The boats were large double deck side wheelers, except the latter, which was smaller.

In those days the Northwestern line ended at Lake Geneva. Steam boats were the only means of transportation to the upper end of the lake, where there were two or three hotels, Kayes Park, the largest and most popular. About twice a week during the Summer the railroad ran excursions from Chicago to Lake Geneva and around the lake by boat as they do now. These excursions were well patronized, carrying from 4 to 5 hundred people at a time. There was a line of smaller boats as competitors which made it more interesting, with "Barkers" all along the route from the station to the dock. The old Whiting House stood where the Geneva Hotel is located.

In the latter 80's he sold the boats and as part payment took 21 acres of South shore property (now Lake Geneva Beach) where my family spent their summers for thirty-five years. My father died at this home in 1903 with a heart attack.

BJORGE'S HOME
DECORATING WILLIAMS BAY

The Firemen responded to an alarm of fire on Tuesday afternoon and extinguished a grass fire at the Boy Scout Cabin on the Geneva Road. It is believed some passing motorist tossed a lighted cigarette in the grass.

Mrs. Blake Burton and Mrs. Selden Spencer were hostesses to the Congregational Ladies Aid Society this afternoon, at Mrs. Burton's home in Oakwood Estates. Mrs. Robert Cook, chairman of the Missionary Committee, was in charge of the program.

We used to be reminded of the famous poem, "The Death of The Flowers" at this time of the year-

"The melancholy days are come, the saddest of the year,
Of wailing winds, and naked woods,
and meadows brown and sear.

* * * * *

Where are the flowers, the fair young flowers, that lately sprang and stood

In brighter light and softer air,
a beauteous sisterhood?

The rain is falling where they lie,
but the cold November rain
Calls not, from out the gloomy earth, the lovely ones again."

This is the 2nd of November, and all fall residents have been enjoying the beauty of the flowers still blooming in their yard. There has been no frost as yet enough to kill the blooms. The temperature today is 72 degrees, warm and sunny, and Mrs. J.S. Hotton, Parkhurst Place, reports that she has been picking each day, all fall, a cup full of ripe red raspberries from bushes in her yard. Caryl Ripley, Supt. of Water Works, told us today that he has been picking ripe tomatoes from his vines every day, and an especially large one today (Nov. 2). Mrs. A.P. Lovejoy, Lake Shore, is enjoying beautiful large roses growing in her yard. Many residents still are enjoying their dahlias. The color in the woods around us is a picture no artist can paint.

HOW THE LEAVES COME DOWN

"I'll tell you how the leaves come down;
 The great tree to his children said,
 "You're getting sleepy, Yellow, Brown,
 Yes, very sleepy, little Red,
 It is quite time you went to bed."
 "Ah," begged each silly, pouting leaf,
 "Let us a little longer stay.
 Dear Father Tree, behold our grief,
 'Tis such a pleasant day.
 We do not want to go away."

So just for one more merry day
 To the great tree the leaflets clung,
 Frolicked and danced and had their way,

Upon the autumn breezes swung,
 Whispered all their sports among.

"Perhaps the great tree will forget,
 And let us stay until the spring,
 If we all beg, and coax and fret."
 But the great tree did no such thing;
 He smiled to hear their whispering.

"Come, children, all to bed! he cried;
 And, ere the leaves could purge their prayer,

"He shook his head, and far and wide,
 Fluttering and rustling everywhere,
 Down sped the leaflets thru the air.

I saw them. On the ground they lay,
 Golden and red, a huddled swarm,
 Waiting till one from far away
 With bedclothes heaped upon her arm,
 Should come to wrap them safe and warm.

The great bare tree looked down,
 and smiled;

"Good-night, dear little leaves,
 "he said;"

And from below each sleepy child
 "Replied, "Good-night," and murmured,
 "It is so nice to go to bed."

INDIAN SUMMER

From Encyclopaedia- "In North America a period of mild, balmy weather, usually occurring in November-characterized by a clear sky and a hazy or smoky atmosphere, especially near the horizon. The name is said to be derived from the custom among the Indians of using this delightful time of the year to harvest their corn; according to their tradition-"They always had a second summer of nine days just before the winter set in."

About twenty or twenty-five years ago, two authorities- the then head of the Meteorological department of the University of Chicago and the then Chief of the United States hydrographic office in Washington agreed upon the point that true Indian summer never occurred on or before November 5 or 6, following an early frost and some cold weather, there would come a succession of warm delightful days, full of autumn mists and rich wood coloring, all the more welcome because of the inclemency which had preceded it. Then also there might be the last Indian flurry of the year; because other writers maintain that this is the time of the year that the early settlers did not like as the Indians often came sneaking by the light of the moon, through the flaming woods and the colored brush in surprise attacks upon outlying habitations or scattered settlements and to rob them of their crops and cattle. So the beauty of the period had its dangers. Woodsmen had to be alert and the settlers might have to run for cover. That's one reason why the finest time of the year was known as Indian Summer. There are many legends, however, and probably all of them are sufficiently good. The weather at this time is best fitted for the esthetic enjoyment of mankind. Not all portions of the country can have it, and few other lands enjoy this gift. Indian Summer is something that only America displays.
