Fighting Badgers and Co-eds Flock to Wisconsin's "Hill"

By J. KENNETH LITTLE
Registrar and Acting Dean of Men

"RECONVERSION" is the theme of the academic year 1945-46. As suddenly as the war's end, the University is shifting gears to welcome a swelling flood of students returning from the Atlantic and the Pacific and most points in between.

Within the month between V-J day and the opening of the fall semester, the ratio of "permits to register" changed from 3 to 1 in favor of the girls to almost 1.25 to 1 in favor of the boys. Veterans who had been trickling back during the previous year were streaming back this fall. Before the opening of the second semester the stream may become a flood.

Hurried estimates of the student population in 1946-47 indicate that the University may expect 14,000 men and women to clamor for entrance. Eight thousand of these would be men. Six thousand would be women. The problem of "reconverting" the University to accommodate this avalanche is staggering.

The providing of physical accommodations—comfortable, wholesome, living quarters, and adequate classroom, library, and laboratory facilities—will be an overwhelming task. The arranging of adequate teaching and counselling services will tax educational imagination and resourcefulness. This is bound to be a happy, but a hurried and hectic year on the University campus.

As we open the school year this fall we find 8,254 students on the campus. 5,324 of these are girls and about 2,930 are boys. Veterans of World War II number about 800, with hundreds more seeking entrance at an early date. This enrolment represents a 37% increase over the fall semester of 1945—and the increase has brought its problems to University authorities.

Housing Shortage

First of all, the University is experiencing a serious shortage in housing facilities for its students despite an enrolment of only two-thirds of its pre-war peak of 11,400. Several factors have contributed to this anomalous situation.

One of these factors is an extraordinary increase in the number of girls who are being educated by the University. Before the war, the largest number of girls on the campus during any one semester was slightly under 4,000. This year there are 5,324 girls enrolled. It is reasonable to guess that there would have been close to 6,000 girls at the University if they could have found suitable living accommodations.

The University attempted to meet the unprecedented demand for admission by assigning Tripp and Adams dormitories to occupancy by 500 girls. This was not sufficient, however, and the Regents of the University found it necessary to limit the enrolment of out-of-state girls in order to insure that Wisconsin girls might be educated at their own state university. The method of limitation was to require that out-of-state freshman girls be in the upper 30 per cent of their high school graduating classes in order to qualify for enrolment. Out-of-state girls transferring from other schools were required to qualify by presenting a grade-point average of 1.4 over all work carried at the school from which they were coming. Over four hundred girls who otherwise would have been students at the University this fall failed to qualify because of these restrictions. Despite these restrictions there are more girls than ever on the campus, and, as usual, they come from all parts of the country. It is probably safe to say that from the standpoint of scholastic ability, they are the University's banner harvest of women students.

Freshman orientation this fall revealed what appeared to be the usual co-ed groups strolling about the campus, but those bystanders who were acquainted with the women's housing situation realized that the freshman women who really came to the university were those in-state girls who registered early and those out-of-state girls who stood in the top 30 per cent of their high school class.

A second factor contributing to the housing shortage is the fact that a larger than usual proportion of our students, particularly the returning veterans, are married. Approximately 40 per cent of the veterans are married when, or soon after, they arrive to resume their education. This fact has created a demand for small apartments or living units for couples and families. The University has not in the past provided living accommodations of this type.

A third factor is that the city of Madison has experienced a sizeable war-time growth which has absorbed rooms and living units formerly used by students. Aggravating this situation is the fact that students are returning more rapidly than these housing accommodations are being released by war workers and armed service personnel stationed at nearby Truax Field. In fact, Madison has been listed as one of the cities counted by the Federal Bureau of Census as most likely to retain its war-time growth. It is doubtful, therefore, that complete relief from the housing shortage for University students can be expected by the return of the country to peace-time pursuits.

The University authorities, acting under this emergency situation, took an unusual yet practical step to meet the needs of the married veteran in establishing the city of 90 trailers now known as Camp Randall for the exclusive use of married veterans. Fully 90% of the trailers were rented at the opening of the fall term, and it is expected that all will be used. The trailers were leased to the University by the federal government. The University is renting them to the veterans at a rental which covers only the cost of installing and maintaining them. Heat, light, laundry, shower, and toilet facilities are furnished.

This arrangement is frankly a stop-gap. It is meant to be temporary until better accommodations can be found. The veteran may move to better quarters after giving the University housing bureau only a week's notice. When all veterans have found more satisfactory accommodations, the whole trailer city will be cleared.

This is the only instance in which there has been a definite segregation of veterans in the University's arrangements for caring for the education problems of the returning serviceman. It is the University's hope to absorb the veteran into the student body as rapidly as possible, and without labels, fanfare, or excessive demonstration. The University recognizes that the educational plans and ambitions of mature, widely experienced, and battle-tested men are bound to be different from the problems of the relatively inexperienced high school graduate. It is adjusting its services and educational offerings to accommodate this difference.

To assist the veteran in his educational planning and to provide an informational center upon veterans' problems, an Office of Veterans' Affairs has been established. This office has the job of interpreting the University to the veteran and of interpreting the veteran to the University. With the aid of testing and counselling service, and by referring him to special faculty advisers and officials, this office helps the veteran to determine his educational and vocational objectives. He is also advised about his educational benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights, and upon all other matters which are special to veterans. This office is now handled by Assistant Professor E. E. Milligan. He will be joined shortly by Lieutenant Theodore W. Zillman, who has served the University in the Military Science department. As the demands upon this office require, new counsellors will be added to this staff.

The various schools and colleges of the University are making every effort to accommodate the educational needs of a student body which will in the near future be decidedly diverse in background and experience. The University effort emphasizes two major concerns.

The first is to meet the special needs of veterans as a group in a way that is consistent with their best educational interests. It is attempting to provide short courses, certificate courses, and other educational programs which will meet the needs of those who are anxious to secure university training sufficient to meet a specific but limited occupational objective. These students would not continue for university degrees. It is expected that the overwhelming proportion of returning students will be students who will want to complete degrees. Nevertheless, the other types of opportunity are being made available in the School of Commerce, the College of Engineering, and the College of Agriculture. Refresher and review courses are being offered in the Law and Medical Schools.

The second concern is that the veteran shall receive able counsel and careful attention to his problems as an individual. Special faculty advisers to veterans have been selected to assist the Office of Veterans Affairs and the Deans of the Colleges in accomplishing this objective. The University Student Personnel Service Center is prepared to help the individual who needs help in regaining lost reading skills or study habits.

While the University is welcoming back thousands of former students, it is also greeting former faculty members who have been away on military assignments. The return of faculty members has not equalled the pace of the returning students. Staffing the large freshman and sophomore classes with qualified instructors is vexing department heads throughout the University. The fact that for four years graduate schools have not been producing the usual quota of persons who qualify for instructional positions threatens to produce a serious shortage in the instructional staff.

The University authorities will soon be considering the ways and means to provide the classroom, library, and teaching facilities which will be needed. The state legislature has provided a sum of $8,000,000 to be used for the construction of new buildings. A University planning commission is hard at work determining the needs and priority lists for buildings. The commission is also considering the feasibility of erecting small apartment-type dormitories to be used by married students and staff members in the ranks of assistants and instructors. Such a development would be financed upon a self-amortizing scheme. None of the legislative appropriations for buildings would be used for this purpose.

The University has been steadily increasing the number and types of educational programs which serve the people of the state. During the summer just closed, over three thousand adults from all walks of life attended seventeen special institutes and conferences held upon the campus. These institutes included a Writer's Institute, an FM Radio Institute, a Linguistic Institute, a Child Development Institute, a School for Bankers, and many other conferences of special groups. These conferences brought prominent national leaders and specialists as speakers. There has been a hearty appreciation of the University's efforts in this direction.

The School of Commerce is developing special conferences and institutes for many different business groups. The University Extension Division is carrying the freshman program of the University to nine widely separated centers of the state. Station WHA, in cooperation with the State Radio Council, is beginning the development of a system of FM radio stations which are eventually to blanket the state.

These are but indications of the fact that the University is sensitive to its obligations to all of the people whom its facilities may serve. It expects to continue to serve its students and the citizens of the state in increasingly effective ways.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

NTS (RADIO) LEAVES CAMPUS; NROTC ARRIVES NOVEMBER 1

"Radio Madison", as the Naval Training Schools (Radio) are popularly called, is now a thing of the past. The last class of radiomen "lashed up", sent out their seabags and gear, and moved on in mid-September, just before the usual fall influx and just in time to make more rooms available to desperate roomless students.

At the last graduation of radiomen the 10,000th diploma was handed out, and Capt. L. K. Pollard, commandant of the schools, congratulated the sailor receiving it by praising him jovially and adding, "You have risen to this high honor through circumstances almost entirely beyond your control."

But more than 10,000 have been taught radio on the campus. A total of 15,000 students studied the course, 1200 of these being women—WAVES, SPARS, or Women Marines. An additional 1000 navy men and women studied in other courses under the Wisconsin NTS.

Madisonians who hated to say goodbye to Capt. Pollard were pleased with his intentions. After being released from the Navy, as he expects to be shortly, he will remain in Madison with the Ray-O-Vac co.

V-12s. Closing of the NTS left only V-12s on the campus in navy blues. Those students of engineering physics and medicine who are undergraduates have been instructed that they will be transferred to Naval ROTC here. Seniors will remain V-12s until they graduate. The medical students are expected to continue their studies under navy supervision until Feb. 9, when they go on inactive duty. A complement of 115 men in V-5, aviation cadets will be sent here Nov. first at the same time when the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps begins at Wisconsin.

Officer Training. This Naval ROTC program is designed to prepare men for careers in the United States Naval Reserve and to supply new candidates for commissions in the long-range program for replacements among navy officers.

The program, Pres. Fred believes, will tend to improve the academic standing of the university by adding to its variety of educational opportunities. In addition, he said, Wisconsin boys who might be interested in the navy as a career will have a chance to obtain a foundation in naval training.

The course in naval science will be a regular four year one combining 36 credits for NROTC courses with academic work. It will be comparable to the Army ROTC course at the university. In addition, however, the new program provides for offering a navy course, "Foundations of National Power" which will be open as an elective to civilian students as well as the regular ROTC students. It will be taught by civilian members of the faculty and will provide a broad understanding of the currents of life and thought in the world at large.

Capt. L. K. Pollard, trainee, and 10,000th diploma

Sailors First. First ROTC students will come directly from the Navy, but as demobilization depletes the ranks, the course will be open to civilian students who might use it as one way of fulfilling the freshman and sophomore requirements for military training. The first class will consist of 565 sailors, who will live in those Kronshage units which are still being held by the navy.

Construction of a naval science armory has been voted by the regents and it is hoped that such a building might be completed by the summer of 1946. Until such a building is constructed, classes will be held in the Mechanical Engineering building and other buildings nearby.

New C. O. Capt. J. E. Hurff will be commandant of the school and will be on the faculty as professor of naval science and tactics. A regular navy man, Capt. Hurff just returned from 35 months sea duty, during which he commanded a transport in the Sicilian campaign, a destroyer flotilla in the Solomons during the Bougainville campaign, and the heavy cruiser New Orleans during the battle of Saipan in the Marianas and through its last battle, that for Okinawa.

Navy authorities have assured the university that they will make the transition from the present V-12 engineering calendar which begins in November, to the regular university calendar, as soon as such a move is possible.

Shafer Scholarship

Robert V. Engle, Kenosha, one of the candidates for the quarterback position on the football team, is the first recipient of an Allen Shafer, Jr., scholarship, it was announced by Frank O. Holt, chairman of the faculty committee in charge of the award.

This first award, amounting to $100, comes from the "Living Memorial" scholarship fund established last December to honor the late Allen Shafer, Jr. who died as a result of a football injury last November.

The fund has now reached a total of more than $5,600 and contributions are still being received by the Wisconsin Alumni Association.

Engle was a teammate of Shafer's on the 1944 Wisconsin squad. He is majoring in applied art and is editor of the 1946 Badger.

New State Laws

When the 1945 legislature adjourned, two bills concerning the university which had been passed and were left to be signed by the governor received his veto. These bills came up before the legislature again this fall, and both of Gov. Goodland's vetoes were overridden.

The first bill is 109-A, which authorizes the board of normal school regents to prescribe a four-year college course at normal schools and to grant university degrees to graduates. This bill has now become law.

The second bill is 148-A, relating to the rate of tuition at extension centers of the university so that tuition will be no higher at extension centers than at Madison for any given course. This bill is also law.

This equalization of fees for all students in both extension and resident programs has been carried out and is in effect with the start of the fall semester. The auditing fee of $2.50 per credit is abolished.

New Courses Offered

In accord with changing needs, university curriculums have been altered, and this fall several new courses are being offered for the first time.

A special graduate course is being offered in social work, a certificate course is being offered in physiotherapy, and a new major in real estate is being set up (see col. 2).

Social Work

Enlargement of the social work program includes a new course for graduate students leading to a masters' degree, and the reorganization includes a new junior professional curriculum for undergraduate students.

This course in social work will be under the supervision of Prof. Arthur P. Miles. Other members of the staff will be Prof. Helen J. Clarke, and two newcomers, Prof. Ruth Gaunt and Prof. Bernice Orchard. Miss Gaunt has been with the state department of public welfare and Miss Orchard with the Indiana department of public welfare.

This full time staff will be supplemented by faculty members in related subjects and by part-time persons in the field of public welfare work. Supervised field work will be provided in public and private case work and group work agencies, both in urban and rural areas.

A committee of 13 men and women throughout the state are acting in an advisory capacity during the establishment of this new course.

A physiotherapy course ending with a certificate as a physiotherapist is now being offered to twenty-one students this fall. Although this course does not lead to a bachelor's degree, it is planned that eventually the course will be incorporated into the regular letters and science curriculum. The course as set up now takes nine months.

Extension

Freshmen in nine different cities in the state can complete their first year of college work in their home towns. Extension centers where the full credit program is available to high school graduates are located at Madison, Racine, Kenosha, Sheboygan, Manitowoc, Green Bay, Wausau, Ladysmith, and Spooner.

University of Wisconsin extension courses will also be available to all men and women in veterans hospitals under the terms of a contract recently made between the U. S. Veterans administration in Washington and the university. Wisconsin will be the only university providing this hospital extension service to veterans. The course will be without credit and will be paid for by the government.

Vitamin D Patent

The famous patent on the Steenbock process of enriching foods with Vitamin D, which has been held by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, expired on August 13.

The Steenbock patent is but one of 25 patents held by the Foundation. Although with the expiration of this patent a large amount of revenue which the foundation has received during these past 17 years will now be cut off, yet it will not interrupt the research program of the foundation. They have aimed at sufficient diversity so that the permanence of their research program would not be jeopardized by the loss of any one patent.

Real Estate Major Offered by Commerce School

In line with a Wisconsin tradition begun in the early twenties by the late great professor of economics, Richard T. Ely, the University of Wisconsin again leads the universities of the nation through the inauguration of a major in the field of real estate.

The curriculum in real estate, a regular major course in the School of Commerce, is now available to commerce students, and juniors taking the requirements this year may be able to finish the first Wisconsin course in real estate in June 1947.

Taught by Prof. Richard U. Ratcliff, '27, this curriculum is the first university real estate program in the nation to have the full backing of real estate men through the National Association of Real Estate Boards. One of several schools in the nation to offer work in real estate, the University of Wisconsin has been singled out as the one school which the NAREB will encourage and aid.

The movement toward real estate instruction at the university dates back to 1922 when a conference was held here under the promotion of Dr. Ely and Paul E. Stark, '07. Realtors from all over the country met here for a Conference on Real Estate Education. At that time it was felt that the field was open for development, and among other activities, the group laid out a program of book writing resulting in a series edited by Dr. Ely which was published by the MacMillan Co.

Ever since this time the NAREB has been eager to encourage the establishment of schools in real estate. Last year the association again appointed an education committee, asked the committee to investigate the possibilities, and had it study the courses in existence.

After a year of investigation, the education committee chose the University of Wisconsin as the one school which it recommended for expansion and development.

The Badger course will have the encouragement of organized realtors all over the country.

As Ratcliff explains his curriculum at present, the student must cover courses in urban land economics, real estate finance, property management, real estate appraisal, real estate law, and architecture and construction. This last course is not yet available.

Work in the field will not be limited to teaching alone, but eventually will include research and special institutes and forums for businessmen.

The new major will be closely integrated with related programs which are developing in various divisions of the University dealing with housing, city planning, and related subjects.

Dr. Ely is known as the father of land economics, a tradition since carried on at Wisconsin by the late well-known Prof. George Wehrwein.

Oldest Alumnus 97

Born the year of the founding of the University of Wisconsin, Mrs. Joanna C. Kelly, '69, is the oldest living alumnus of the university.

Mrs. Kelly, the former Joanna Hammond, just reached 97. She resides with her daughter, Mrs. W. G. Kirchoffer, '16, in Madison. She is the widow of George M. Kelly.

Gifts and Grants

Funds totaling more than $76,000 have been or are being made available to the university for purposes of research and scholarships.

Fellowships and grants of $46,300 have been given to the university by the following sources for the following purposes:

For research in chemistry, $3,000 from Eli Lilly and co.; for study of the nutritional value of meats, $4,700 from the National Live Stock and Meat board, Chicago; for work in the chemistry and chemical engineering of wax, $4,500 from S. C. Johnson and Son, Racine;

For work in biochemistry and agricultural bacteriology, $4,400 from E. R. Squibb and Sons; for the study of hemp, $500 from the Ludlow Manufacturing and Sales co.; for the study of soybeans, $1,400 from the A. E. Stanley Manufacturing co.; for a three year study in microbiology and anti-biotics, $10,800 from Abbott Laboratories; to study effects of various types of butter packaging, $5,000 from the Paraffined Carton Research council;

To study the influence of commercial fertilizers on canning corn and peas, $6,000 from the International Minerals and Chemicals corp.; to study stability of riboflavin, thiamine and niacin of eggs, $6,000 from the Poultry and Egg National Board.

$28,937 has been given the university for scholarship funds. Grants are as follows:

$20,437 from the estate of the late Prof. Benjamin Warner Snow to be used in a revolving loan fund known as the Agnes Butler Snow fund, in memory of Prof. Snow's wife; $2,500 from Edna C. Higbee to establish a loan fund for senior law students; $2,000 from the John Morse Memorial Foundation for scholarships in engineering; $1,250 from the Sears Roebuck Agricultural Foundation for eight agricultural scholarships;

$750 from the Watamull Foundation for a scholarship in chemical engineering; $500 from A. J. Crawford of the Dutch Maid Ice Cream co. for five $100 scholarships for undergraduate men; $1000 from Mrs. H. C. Berkowitz for the establishment of annual Berkowitz scholarships; $400 for scholarships in agriculture from the Riteway Products co.; and $100 from the University of Wisconsin Alumnae club of Minneapolis for the Henrietta Wood Kessenich scholarship fund.

A portrait of Pres. Bascom and a collection of his writings were given to the university by Mrs. Charles J. Bullock. The portrait of Bascom now hangs in the president's office. The books dealt with philosophy, theology, psychology, and the early history of the University of Wisconsin.

The university was also given a collection of about 100 books and filed pamphlets, the library of Dr. F. B. Hadley, for permanent use by the department of veterinary science.

New and Acting Deans

Considerable revision in the roster of University deans has taken place during the summer months, affecting the College of Agriculture, the Law School, the Graduate School and the entire population of university men.

Agriculture. Ira L. Baldwin, former dean of the Graduate school and nationally known agricultural bacteriologist, has been made dean of the College of Agriculture. This post was left vacant when Dr. Fred was moved from that post to the university presidency.

Dean Baldwin has been assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, and has been on the faculty since 1927. Recipient of a Wisconsin doctor's degree in 1926, Baldwin was graduated from Purdue and had taught there before coming to Madison.

In the position of dean, Baldwin will also be director of agricultural extension and the agricultural experiment station.

Baldwin's special field is that of general, agricultural and industrial microbacteriology, and research projects which he has either directed or participated in dealt with developing bacterial inoculants for legumes, the study of yeasts, the study of crown gall in trees, and the study of oxidation-reduction.

Graduate School. With Dean Baldwin transferred, the position of dean of the Graduate School now remains open. This spring Prof. J. Homer Herriott of the Spanish department was named assistant dean of the Graduate School, and he is expected to fill the position of acting dean until Pres. Fred appoints a successor to Baldwin.

Law School. Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the Law School since 1932, who has been

Dean Ira L. Baldwin

J. Kenneth Little

on leave from that position since 1942, submitted his resignation from the faculty to Pres. Fred early in September.

He has been a member of the War Labor Board in Washington, having been appointed vice-chairman of the board last March. He did not list any specific plans which he holds for the future, but stated that he intends to remain in the east.

Until a successor to Garrison is chosen, Prof. Oliver S. Rundell will be acting dean. Rundell has served in that capacity before, having been acting dean from 1929 until Garrison came here in 1932.

Prof. Rundell is a Wisconsin Law school graduate of 1910 and has been on the faculty here since 1914. He is author of the law book, "Cases and Materials on Rights of Land."

Pres. Fred has asked the State Bar association to name a committee of its members to confer with him regarding the appointment of a new dean, and this committee has already had several conferences with Fred and Rundell.

Dean of Men. J. Kenneth Little, coordinator of student affairs and registrar of the University of Wisconsin, is now serving as acting dean of men. Since the retirement of Dean Scott H. Goodnight on July 1 the post has been handled temporarily by Prof. Robert L. Reynolds.

Faculty Members in War Service Return

Each fall there is necessarily a large turn-over among faculty members, with some new appearing, and some taking leaves. This fall a number of regular faculty members who have been on leave during the war can now return.

Faculty members returning to the campus this fall after leaves of absence are the following:

Gregory Breit, professor of physics, who has been on leave for nearly five years doing work first with the Naval Ordnance Laboratory, then the National Bureau of Standards, the Metallurgical Laboratory at the University of Chicago, and then Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Md.

William Gorham Rice, professor of law, who has been on leave in order to serve as a member of the War Labor Board in Washington;

Lewis W. Busse, associate professor of pharmacy, who has been on leave to serve with the War Production Board;

Myles Dillon, professor of comparative philology and Irish literature, who has been serving with the Office of War Information in the European Theater and aiding in the establishment of the GI colleges throughout Europe;

S. M. Riegel, assistant professor of German, who has been in Germany doing civilian work for the War department;

J. D. Workman, assistant professor of German, who has also been in Germany doing civilian work for the War department;

Richard Hartshorne, professor of geography, who has served as chief of the geography division of the Office of Strategic Services since Sept. 1941, providing a large share of the maps for the entire European campaign from the N. African invasion to V-E Day;

Dr. Elmer L. Sevringhaus, professor of medicine, who has been in Italy studying the nutritional conditions of the country for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration;

Howard Becker, professor of sociology, who has been in Europe with the Office of Strategic Services;

John T. Curtis, associate professor of botany who has been in Haiti managing a plantation in connection with the synthetic rubber program;

Joseph O. Hirschfelder, assistant professor of chemistry, who has been doing naval research since 1942;

Lloyd M. Parks, associate professor of pharmacy, who has been a lieutenant in the navy, leaving here in 1941;

Jacob H. Beuscher, associate professor of law, who has been a lieutenant in the navy, leaving here in 1942, returning for the second semester;

William Mortenson, associate professor of agricultural economics, who has been with the federal government since April 1942;

W. Bayard Taylor, professor of finance, who has been serving with the Office of Price Administration in Chicago;

James S. Earley, associate professor of economics, who has been serving with the OPA and since spring has been with the State Department in Washington, now serving in an advisory capacity in financial negotiations with Great Britain;

Gilbert H. Doane, director of university libraries, who has been a captain in the army;

Mary C. Devereaux, assistant professor of library science, who has been working for the War department writing a history of the Army Air Forces;

Prof. W. Bayard Taylor returns

Churchill Eisenhart, assistant professor of political science, who has been teaching at Columbia university;

H. G. Skilling, assistant professor of political science, who has been with the Canadian Broadcasting corporation;

Others returning are Herman W. March, professor of mathematics; Walter H. Jaeschke, assistant professor of clinical pathology; Paula M. Kittel, assistant professor of German; John W. M. Rothney, assistant professor of education; Henry S. Sterling, assistant professor of geography; and Stanley A. Tyler, associate professor of geology.

Two recently retired faculty members are going to be back in active service again. Edwin B. Hart, professor of biochemistry, will be on the faculty first semester in order to permit a continuation of his study of the nutritional value of fats.

Dr. Joseph S. Evans, professor of medicine, was named to assist in the preparation of the history of the Medical School for the University's Centennial.

Faculty Notes

Norman A. Cameron, chairman of the psychology department, was elected divisional representative of the American Psychological Association's division of abnormal psychology and psychotherapy recently.

John M. Gaus, professor of political science, was elected a director of the American Society of Planning Officials recently. He is also a member of the Wisconsin State Planning board.

Lewis H. Kessler, associate professor of civil engineering, has been appointed to the post of expert consultant to the office of the chief engineer of the war department. He will remain on the campus but will be subject to call by the army. The appointment, made by the secretary of war, will take effect next year. He will serve as consultant on the construction of water and sewage facilities for army posts within the United States.

Dr. Charles H. Bunting, emeritus professor of pathology, has moved to Ham-

New Faculty Members

With an expanded enrollment, a like expansion of faculty was found essential, and the following new faculty members are beginning active teaching on the campus this fall, or else will be starting here soon:

Col. D. Murray Angevine, U. S. Army pathologist in the European Theater, will be professor of pathology. A graduate of Yale, Col. Angevine was assistant professor of pathology at Cornell for a time and before entering the army was with the Alfred du Pont Institute.

Louis B. Slichter will become professor of geophysics at the start of second semester. He has been teaching at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is an internationally known authority in electromagnetic theory and seismology. Son of Dr. Charles S. Slichter, dean emeritus, he received three degrees from Wisconsin in 1917, 1920, and 1922.

Col. Willis S. Matthews, United States Army, will serve as professor of military science and commandant of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. A West Point graduate in 1927, Col. Matthews has been serving on Gen. MacArthur's Staff as an assistant in the planning division of the Southwest Pacific Army headquarters.

Carl E. Johnson, former deputy warden of Waupun State Prison, will be professor of sociology, teaching courses in parole and probation, and prison administration. A graduate of Lawrence college, Johnson took graduate work at Wisconsin in 1932.

Bjornar W. Bergethon, of the music department of the University of New Hampshire since 1939, will succeed Prof. E. B. Gordon as professor of music and educational methods. Bergethon holds degrees from the Busch conservatory, Chicago; Indiana university, and the teachers' college of Columbia university.

Robert E. Gard, member of the speech department of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Can., will be assistant professor of speech and a member of the extension and rural sociology staffs. His work will be in the field of play-writing, local history, and folk-lore, with the purpose in mind of developing the cultural resources of Wisconsin people through drama and the related arts. He will be available for aid in writing and presenting plays and pageants during the State and University centennial in 1948-49.

den, Conn. with his wife and intends to make his home there. Dr. Bunting retired from active teaching on September 1.

Prof. Einar Haugen, head of the department of Scandinavian, has left for Norway where he will represent the Office of War Information as cultural relations officer in a staff that has already been set up there. He will aid in the reestablishment of cultural relations between Norway and America, setting up exchange scholarships and professorships and encouraging an interest in American life and letters among Norwegian scholars. Miss Aasta Stene, of the University of Oslo, will be lecturer in Scandinavian during Haugen's absence, freeing him of his duties as department head.

Col. William F. Dalton, former commandant of the ROTC, was released from a Japanese prison camp near Mukden, Manchuria last month and returned to the states after being imprisoned for almost 3½ years. He is now at Walter Reed hospital in Washington, D. C.

Jeeps, Journalists and Jolts

One might conclude that Wisconsin war correspondents are allergic to jeeps. It all began back in March 1943. Ivan "Cy" Peterman, '22, was covering the Tunisian campaign for the Philadelphia Inquirer. A German plane tried to strafe his jeep as he drove just east of El Guetar, so Peterman dove for a ditch. He landed to find his wrist broken and his head cut and bruised.

Two and a half years later in July 1945, APs Louis Lochner, '09, was riding in his jeep through the streets of Russian-occupied Berlin, when a huge Russian truck ran smack into his tiny vehicle. Lochner ended up in a Berlin hospital where he was given surgical care for various and sundry gashes, a lacerated eye-lid, and a brain concussion.

Peterman was in the States this summer and was sent back to the European Theater around September 1, probably to cover the trials of German war criminals. Lochner is still in Berlin sending home occupation stories and hoping to be sent home himself.

Other newcomers to the faculty roster are: Howard J. McMurray, former congressman who will be a lecturer in political science for the coming year; Volmer H. Sorensen who will take a new university position, that of civil service counsel and personnel counselor for business and industry;

Bernice E. Orchard of the Indiana Department of public welfare, who will become an assistant professor of sociology; Russell T. Gregg, recently released from the navy, who will become associate professor of education;

Kenneth J. Arnold, of Columbia university, who will become assistant professor of mathematics; Edward Krug, of Montana State university, who will be an associate professor of education;

H. J. Messen of the University of Minnesota, who will be an assistant professor of German; Norbert Fuerst of Stanford university, who will have a research position as an assistant professor of German;

Esmond E. Snell, of the University of Texas, who will be an associate professor of biochemistry; Gregory G. LaGrone who will be associate professor of Spanish;

Douglas C. Marshall, who will be assistant professor of rural sociology; Douglas F. Parry, who will be assistant professor of education; Helen M. Petroskey, who will be assistant professor of physical education;

Parker D. Trask, who will become professor of geology; H. A. Lardy, who will be assistant professor of biochemistry; Fred A. Clarenbusch, who will be assistant professor of political science and agricultural economics;

Lewis M. Cline, who will be associate professor of geology; Fred N. Jones, who will be assistant professor of psychology; John D. Ferry, who will be assistant professor of chemistry;

Arthur H. Robinson, who will be assistant professor of geography; and Rachel L. Schenk, who will be assistant professor of library science.

Trailer Village at Camp Randall Solves One Phase of the Housing Shortage

Prosaic civilians sat back during "the war years" and with due awe and respect listened to their native tongue become one lingo of scuttlebut, all filled with strange words and expressions, with GI snafus and with four-stripers ComAirPacs.

But when the war ended and the boys came back, the civilians promptly installed a trailer camp for married veterans to live in, labeling said housing unit, "Glville" or "Vetsburg", in what they considered good servicemen's slang.

Last month the inhabitants of this 78-family village turned the tables, however, and in christening their new home thumbed the pages of history and stuck with the Civil War trainees who had once lived in barracks on the same site. The veterans' village is once more officially "Camp Randall", wartime idioms to the contrary.

Right: Mr. and Mrs. James Inderberg have just finished a bite of lunch and are now unpacking their clothing in one wing of their "de luxe" unit. Inderberg was a staff sergeant in the 32nd Division.

Wis. State Journal Photo

In the 90 trailers brought to the university for the use of married veterans attending school under the GI Bill, now live 78 families, some with one child, some with two, and some without any.

They are guinea pigs in one of the most unique experiments ever conducted at Wisconsin, an experiment in housing by trailer.

Not alone in its shortage of student rooms, the University of Wisconsin took up what appeared to be a likely proposal and brought to the campus a solution to one phase of their housing problems which, though obviously an emergency measure, might soon be the solution used by other universities and colleges throughout the country.

Although at first many townspeople and veterans alike looked upon life in these trailers as a rugged one to offer and be offered after honorable war service, nevertheless before the first week was over most vets agreed with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Timian, who had this reaction, "We're a little crowded in our unit, and lack plumbing facilities, but on the other hand look at the advantages we receive in compensation. Take the service we get, for example. Where on earth could we get the immediate and expert service in an apartment that we get here? There is no trouble with the landlord and no complaints from the neighbors. The rent is moderate and the whole atmosphere is one of neighborliness. But above all, the greatest attraction we hold for our home is that fact that each unit gives one the feeling that one is living in a small cottage. What more could we ask for?" Families with children, however, were somewhat less exuberant.

Trailers are of two types, the single units which rent for $25 and the expandible or "wing-type" units which rent for $32.50. Each provides sleeping for four, two burner electric plates and ovens, ice boxes, folding chairs, and fuel oil heaters. Four units centrally located house water taps, lavatories and laundries for occupants.

Running in a semi-circle through the archway entrance to Camp Randall from Randall avenue and back to that avenue at the north end of the camp is the village's main street, a newly completed gravel road. Connecting each of the trailers and the central buildings are wooden walks.

The University realizes that it would be unfair to tie these veteran's families down to a semester contract, so they are permitting residents to move on a week's notice. In fact, the university is hoping that sooner or later better housing facilities will open up to the veterans and is doing all in its power to find such facilities for them.

Polls Prescribe

Apparently the campus as a whole agrees with George Gallup in feeling that if you want to know what the people think about a certain subject, just conduct a poll on it. During the last several weeks polls have flourished.

Faculty. To enable the faculty to "see themselves as the students see them," the student board's academic relations committee has developed a questionnaire covering a wide range of subjects, many of them dealing with student impressions of faculty members, reactions to specific courses they have taken, and suggestions concerning improved techniques of college teaching.

Other questions in the survey show the general impact of university life upon the attitudes of the student body. The results of this poll will be turned over to university administrators in order that they may benefit by the answers received from students.

While the chairman of this committee, Paul Kaesberg, West Bend, feels that in conducting such a poll the university is "pioneering", one state weekly retorted in its editorial columns, that if this poll were taken seriously it would be a simple case of putting the cart before the horse; "those who were sent to the university to be directed would be reversing roles and doing the directing." At least we can be sure that the poll's results will make interesting reading.

Coeds. But in the lighter vein is the poll also conducted by the student board on the subject, "Should girls be allowed to become cheerleaders?" The Cardinal has come out in favor of co-eds, and already two girls have applied for positions on the cheer-leading squad.

Almost 8,000

Student enrollment is definitely on the increase, and this fall the total number of students on the campus equals about 7,850. The highest enrollment there has ever been at Wisconsin was 11,400.

Freshmen this year totalled 2,124, with coeds leading in numbers almost three to one. A "normal" freshman class would number about 2,500, and the wartime low among freshmen brought only 1,700 beginners to Wisconsin. This year there were 350 more freshmen than last.

Increases have also been noted in transfer students, graduate students, and returnees. A total of 861 students who had attended school at Wisconsin in previous years came back this fall. There were 190 more transfer students this year than last and 265 more graduate students. About 700 veterans are on the campus.

Hoskins Now Coaches

After a three year military career which included an eight month stay in a German prison camp, Mark Hoskins, '42, sensational right half-back of the famed '42 football team, is back on the campus.

Hoskins has enrolled in Law school and while here will work with Coach Frank Jordan in rounding out the Badger reserve squad this fall. He was discharged from the Army Air Forces recently after serving with the 12th Air Force in Italy until the unsuccessful mission over Nazi territory put him in the prison camp.

World Wide Wisconsin Clubs Attract Foreign and Fighting Badgers

Wherever Badgers go, University of Wisconsin spirit goes, and as Fighting Badgers traveled halfway around the world, so also broadened the realm of the Wisconsin Club and the Wisconsin Alumni Club.

Before the war came, there were active alumni clubs in Honolulu and in Manila, but when the war interfered with the normal routine, these clubs modified their activities and new lively servicemen's clubs sprang up.

Now the scope of organized Wisconsin clubs covers the Hawaiian Islands, Saipan, and the CBI in the Pacific area, and London in the opposite direction. For a short time there was even a UW alumni club in Foggia, Italy.

Honolulu

Although as yet the Manila club has not been able to become organized, the Honolulu Club continues to meet "on call". In August when Mrs. Minetta A. Hastings, '22, was in Honolulu in her position as president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, a meeting was called. Mrs. Hastings reported a very active group, comprised of not only civilian members, but also many servicemen stationed in Hawaii.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. C. H. Brown, '32, and '34, respectively; Ruth Kentzler, '17; Lieut. G. D. Logan, '36; Lieut. L. G. Trowbridge, '31; Lieut. R. C. Neumann, '42; Dr. Homer Benson, '33;

Lt. Comdr. R. L. Pope, '36; Lt. C. H. Jorgenson, '35; Lt. G. Chester, '43; Frank I. Ambler, '16; Dr. Harry Clements, '24; Mrs. Harry Clements, '26; Mrs. Etta Radke Washburn, '16; Lt. F. Rubini, '35; Prof. Louis A. Henke, '12; Mrs. Joseph E. Farrington, '18; Dr. Ernestine K. Hamre, '29; William P. Hodgkins, '35; K. T. Ho, '12; Joseph H. Kunesh, '14; Walter "Mickey" McGuire, '33; Paul P. Sanders, '22; Alice Sanders, '21; Sgt. Ralph D. Becker, '35;

Allen S. Austin, '21; Lt. R. J. Francis, '36; and Comdr. Albert Pfeiffer, '23.

Saipan

Newest of the Wisconsin Clubs is the Saipan Club which was organized in August by Sgt. Lyman Noordhoff, '41, and Cpl. Keith Jacobs, '42.

This club grew from a group of only 27 at the first meeting to a total of over 200 Badgers after the third get-together.

Wisconsin alumni and former students who signed the Saipan Club's guest book included Ens. Morris M. Anderle, '46, Cpl. Frank Wing, '44, Pfc. Gordon E. Munson, '44, 1st Lt. Frank Beck, '42, Sgt. Franklin Moore, '42, Lt. Norman Theiler, '44, Lt. John J. Mayer, '42, and Capt. Hugh Moore, '38.

To publicize the meetings Sgt. Noordhoff arranged for notices of it to go out over WXL D, the GI station covering Saipan and Tinian, and he put up posters announcing the meeting on all B-29 outfits' bulletin boards. The meeting was a beach party with swimming, volleyball, baseball, refreshments, and prizes.

Badgers get together at the Wisconsin Club of London which meets in the Mostyn Red Cross Club there. At this meeting guests of honor Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, honorary degree recipients in '41 visit with other Wisconsin residents. Sitting just left of Lunt, smiling is Lt. Col. John E. Blackstone, '31. Standing center with pipe is S/Sgt. Gunther Heller, '41.

London

Meetings of Badgers in London are held regularly in the Mostyn Red Cross club there, attendance being for any Wisconsin resident. A number of Fighting Badgers have written that they have attended one or more meetings.

In April, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, recipients of honorary degrees in 1941, were guests of honor at a meeting. They had been in London playing in "Love In Idleness", the show which will have its American opening as "O Mistress Mine" at the Wisconsin Union Theater on New Years Eve. Among Badgers attending this meeting were Lt. Col. John Blackstone, '31, and S/Sgt. Gunther Heller, '40, pictured above with the Lunts, and Pfc. Warren Wutke, '45.

CBI

The Wisconsin Club of the China-Burma-India theater was organized in February 1944 and meets regularly in Calcutta. Enlisted men are regular members, and officers are honorary members.

Meetings are held in a Red Cross recreation center every two weeks, with a party planned for about once a month and a special affair every two or three months. Registers of Badgers attending the meetings often enable friends and neighbors to locate each other. Maj. Ernest Engelbert, '39, and Lt. Richard Usher, '41, are among the UW alumni who have attended these meetings.

Chicago Officers

Newly elected officers of the University of Wisconsin Club of Chicago are as follows: Arthur J. O'Hara, president; Carl F. Hayden, vice president; L. Frederic Hoebel, secretary; and James R. Ritchay, treasurer.

Other members of the board of directors in addition to the officers listed above are: William E. Lusby, George L. Struck, Lynn H. Tracy, Frank H. Cenfield, and Chris C. Zillman, Jr.

As president, O'Hara represents the club on the board of directors of the Wisconsin Alumni Association.

Kenosha Banquet

One of the newest alumni clubs in the state, the Kenosha club, opened its year's activity with an inaugural banquet held on Tuesday, Oct. 9, at the Moose Club. Prof. Robert L. Reynolds came from the university to be the guest speaker and John Berge, executive secretary of the Alumni Association also came from Madison for the banquet.

Waukegan

The Lake County, Ill. Alumni Club held a Paul Bunyan pancake breakfast on August 26 at Petrifying Springs, near Kenosha.

New president of the club is Kenneth Metzler who succeeds Douglas V. Frost. Membership in this club is open to all residents of the Waukegan area.

SIX-POINT PROGRAM FOR 1945-'46

Your Association's program of activities for the current fiscal year covers a wide variety of projects. No matter what your alumni interests may be, you should find in this program some activity that appeals to you, some project that offers you an opportunity to express your loyalty to the University of Wisconsin. Your active cooperation in carrying out this six-point program will make the Wisconsin Alumni Association increasingly effective as the strong right arm of the University.

1. Continue sending Association publications, free, to Wisconsin alumni in the armed forces until all are returned to civilian life.

Thousands of Fighting Badgers are still in the armed forces—and will be for months to come. Mail is still just as important to them as it was before the shooting ended. It's our job to supply this mail until all of them are home again—for keeps. Let's finish our job as effectively as these Fighting Badgers completed theirs.

2. Cooperate with the Board of Regents in legislative efforts to secure adequate financial support for the University.

Definite progress in finding the answer to the University's building problem was made during the 1945 session of the Legislature. This Legislature recognized the University's need for new buildings by appropriating $8,000,000 for new construction. This appropriation will go a long way in replacing some of the obsolete structures now on the campus. It is not enough, however, to do the job needed on our campus. Clearly, therefore, it's up to us to cooperate actively with the Board of Regents in securing the financial appropriations needed to complete the building program mapped out by the Board of Regents. This work must be done if Wisconsin is to maintain its leadership among American universities.

3. Increase our membership so that the Association may become increasingly effective as the strong right arm of the University.

Association membership has trebled in the last nine years. This increase has made it possible for the Association to function with increasing effectiveness as the strong right arm of the University. This increase must be continued in the post-war years so that our Association can be more and more helpful to the University as it meets and solves its reconversion problems. Faculty and regents are working together to handle these problems and need the strong right arm of our Association in this undertaking.

4. Strengthen and expand the Association's public relations activities which promote the welfare of the University of Wisconsin.

After eighty-four years of service to the University of Wisconsin, this is still the Association's primary objective. Way back in 1861 the founders of the Wisconsin Alumni Association expressed its first objective in these words: "to promote, by organized effort, the best interests of the University of Wisconsin." Organized effort is best affected through membership in the Association. Your influence is then combined with that of thousands of fellow alumni—all interested in maintaining Wisconsin's leadership among American universities. Scattered alumni working alone can do but little; thousands working together can do much for our Alma Mater.

5. Cooperate with the University administration in planning and developing the University's Centennial program of activities.

The University of Wisconsin will be one hundred years old on February 5, 1949. Centennial activities, however, will start in the fall of 1948 and reach their climax with the 1949 commencement. Badgers everywhere will want to share in this red-letter event. Let's do our full share to celebrate this Centennial.

6. Expand Association services so that these services will be increasingly helpful to our members and Association membership will become more and more valuable.

Many new Association services have been developed during the last decade. Ten years ago Association members received only one publication—The Wisconsin Alumnus. Now they receive four publications: the Wisconsin Alumnus, the Badger Quarterly, Stuhldreher's Football Letters and the Cardinal Communique. This last publication is limited to Fighting Badgers serving overseas. These four publications give Badgers a very complete coverage of campus news. They keep Wisconsin alumni abreast of University developments and bridge the gap between the University and its former students. Other new services also have been developed to make Association membership increasingly valuable to you and your fellow members and this expansion program will be continued during the current year. The rate of this expansion, of course, depends on the number of new members we get in 1945-46. In other words, you can make your membership more valuable to you by persuading some of your fellow Badgers to become Association members.—JOHN BERGE.

From WHA to JOAK

Radio Tokyo, onetime source of propaganda programs aimed at American servicemen in the Pacific, is undergoing a complete renovation, and the renovator is a Fighting Badger.

Capt. Mel BARTELL, '38, university WHA favorite, is now in charge of Tokyo's 10,000 watt station, JOAK. Attached to Gen. MacArthur's headquarters and in charge of the armed forces radio service unit there, Bartell, his staff, and about 20 enlisted men will still aim JOAK's programs at American ears, but their policy will be a new one.

Programs will be sent out 18 hours a day. They will include American network shows re-broadcast, shows by and about occupation forces, and, guess what—music from the large record collection used by Tokyo Rose!

service in Italy, Lt. Cyril PEARIS is stationed at Great Bend, Kansas. Sp (T) 2/c Melvin J. RAU, stationed at Richmond, Va. Pvt. Murray SILVERMAN is editor in chief of the 422nd Infantry Regiment newspaper, "Smash and Drive," a weekly publication overseas. Lt. Gibson C. SMITH is stationed at Carlisle, Pa. for several months. Wainwright Rescuer

When four men dropped into the prisoner of war camp near Mukden, Manchuria to release Lieut. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, one more Fighting Badger did something he could write home about.

T/Sgt. Edward A. STARZ, '46, was one of the four on this famous rescue team.

Ever since Starz went overseas 18 months previously, he had been unable to write details of his duties. His letters merely echoed and echoed the refrain that he was busy and in the jungles.

News releases about this daring rescue revealed that Starz was a member of the Kachin Rangers, the group of soldiers, sailors, marines, and native Burmese scouts which served as eyes and ears for the Yanks from deep in the heavy Burmese jungles.

Pacific. Capt. James L. KLEIN was piloting one of the B-29s recently attacked by anti-aircraft fire as they were flying purely photographic missions over Japan. The address of Lt. George B. Manila Guerrilla

The request for a copy of the '35 Badger was not unusual for our office, but when Mariano Ramiro, '35, told us how he lost his, we pricked up our ears.

A resident of Manila, Ramiro had sweated out the Jap occupation of his hometown by keeping his eyes and ears open for the sake of the intelligence forces of the guerrillas. Officially "helping" the Japs through the work they insisted he do at the Bureau of Science, Ramiro caused many of their projects to backfire, and reported many munitions details to the Yanks.

But when the Yanks came back Ramiro had to leave all his possessions behind him in order to cross the river to U. S. held territory. Consequently, he'd be very happy if someone would sell him a 1935 Badger.

Cancer Research

Dr. F. E. Mobs, '32, whose work in the chemo-surgical removal of cancer of the skin is now world-renowned, is shown here at work in his laboratory at the McArdle Memorial Laboratory. Dr. Mobs is studying the effect of anti-bacterial agents on skin disorders.

Dr. Harold P. Rusch, director of research at the laboratory, explains, "We don't have a cancer cure, nor do we have one just around the corner—much as we desire it. Nevertheless, excellent progress has been made. Various agents have been discovered with which cancer can be produced in the laboratory at will, and much has been learned about the bio-chemical changes that differentiate cancer from normal tissues."

AIRCRAFT ENGINEERS

After the war, the Beech Aircraft Corporation will keep the same reputation for designing and building outstanding airplanes as it has had before and during the war. In accomplishing this, we offer the opportunity for permanent positions in an expanding organization to men with experience and above average ability in drafting, minor and major layout work, and stress analysis. In applying send complete information on education and experience to the Engineering Department, Beech Aircraft Corporation, Wichita, Kansas.

POSTWAR OPPORTUNITIES for Engineers and Technical Men

This advertisement is addressed primarily to men in the military services who are doing some personal postwar planning.

Our postwar plans contemplate an expansion of facilities and products. We need 25 to 30 men technically trained in radio, radar and electronics for product, process and sales engineering.

The opportunities in engineering are in the grades of: section engineers; senior and junior design or process engineers, both electrical and mechanical; laboratory technicians; draftsmen, senior and junior layout men and detailers; specification engineers; production supervisors, salesmen of the engineering type; field service technicians.

Salaries are in accordance with the compensation standards of the General Motors Corporation. These standards include every element of personal security and stability that a modern industrial organization can include to attract and keep the kind of people it needs—the kind of people it now has.

Prewar we were one of the three largest producers of automobile radio receivers. The decision to expand our operations in the electronic and radio field is a significant one, we believe. It offers a vast field of opportunity for ambitious young men with the requisite background of education and early experience—limited only by the capabilities of the individual.

We are located in a good, typical American home town—a happy combination of small-town friendships and big-town conveniences. A communication will have the earnest and confidential consideration of our executives. Director of Personnel, Delco Radio Division, General Motors Corporation, Kokomo, Indiana.
