SENATE PLANS FOR ELECTION ARE COMPLETE

Senators and "W" Men Will Supervise All
Voting

4,500 BALLOTS PRINTED

Arrangements for the annual spring elections which will be held next Friday, April 28, have been completed by the student senate elections committee.

The commerce students will vote in Sterling hall this year, while the remainder of the L. and S. students will vote in the Biology building and Bascom hall. Those students whose names begin with A to L will vote in the Biology building, and those names from M to Z, 101 Bascom hall.

Only one person can vote at a time this year. Students will be checked in as they enter the polling places, and checked out again as they leave. No ballots will be accepted unless handed to the ballot clerk, and voters cannot place their ballots in the boxes themselves.

Prevent Stuffing

Members of the Student Senate will be excused from classes, and will be present all day at assigned booths to supervise the voting. The senators will be assisted by "W" men, and in this way it is hoped that no attempts to "stuff" the boxes will even be attempted.

Maynard Brown '23, chairman of the elections committee, and his assistants have distributed the election booklets, a copy of which it is urged should be obtained by every student, so that he may vote intelligently.

Because a heavy vote is expected this year, 4,500 ballots are being printed, and much new election equipment has been obtained, and will be installed soon.

DISCUSS VITAL COLLEGE TOPICS AT CONVOCATION

Goodnight, Sellery, and Stewart Return From Lexington

The advisability of house rules for men's houses, attempts to control social and moral life, and Theta Nu Epsilon and its relation to the university and the effect on student morale, were the significant topics discussed at the fourth annual conference of deans and advisors of men of mid-western institutions at Lexington, Kentucky, from which Dean Scott H. Goodnight and Dean George Clark Sellery have just returned.

A convention of student government associations consisting of 35 students from 28 institutions, 20 deans of men from 20 institutions, and a group of deans of Extension Divisions formed three conference bodies at the University of Kentucky from April 19 to 23. Robert Stewart '23, president of the student senate represented Wisconsin, and Dean Goodnight and Sellery, took part in the convention of the deans.

"These meetings fill us all with great inspiration," said Dean Goodnight, "and therein lies their greatest value. I was very pleased to see the fine attitude showed by the student government representatives in regard to T. N. E. and problems of morality."

At a joint meeting of students and deans the subject of co-operation between student and faculty was discussed. It was generally agreed that neither student control alone nor faculty control alone made for successful administration, but that co-operation is essential.

New Contributors Add Clever Satire To May Number Of Lit

By MORRIS ROBERTS

The April Lit returns to the apparently inexhaustible subject of the "flapper" and her ways, this time by means of a mock-heroic poem, "The Siliad," profusely and somewhat recklessly embellished with Latin mottoes, mythological love, invocations to the Muses, and a moral (The poet calls it a "lament"). The poem tells of the metamorphosis of a simple country maiden into a wily and heartless co-ed, who jilts the hapless hero—politely.

"His pin came back; and then a note polite
Said, 'Villain, keep forever from my sight.'"

With this our co-ed is launched upon her destructive career.

"The vamp sails vamping on her gilded way,
And breaks three hearts and pocket books a day."

And now see what she was before she came to college.

"Her cheeks flushed by the first
Rose bloom of dawn,
Eyes big and melting like a startled fawn;

Two dew-drops shining bits of summer sky,
After milking three cows each morning:

"On sturdy oat-meal gruel she broke her fast,
And washed the dishes when the meal was past."

"Sunt lacrymae rerum." The Siliad is pretty fun.

"Morals for Higher Mammals" is the excellent of a satirical essay in which the writer argues that we should abolish all standards of conduct, thus abolishing immorality, which consists of the violations of standards. Having no standards to violate, we shall cease to be immoral. The idea might be made a vehicle for specific and well-directed satire, but in this case the satire is neither specific nor well-directed. The whole thing is blurred and confused, and about all that emerges is the absurdity of the underlying idea. Frank D. Crane's "Horrible Dictu" is a painful relevant against the "Lit's" abuse of foreign languages. (I note, by the way, "reductio ad absurdum" for "reductio ad absurdum" in the present issue—a printer's error, perhaps.) Mr. Crane marshals abundant evidence with lively and telling effect. His unsparing irony and his earnestness in the cause of literary dignity are very refreshing.

"Imitations of the Immortals" by Swift consists of three parodies, one each on Henry James, Dr. Frank Crane, and James Branch Cabell. All are well done, the one on James, in particular, being a neat little bit of literary criticism.

Besides "The Siliad," there is a narrative poem by Stanley Weinbaum, "A Tale of the Desert," which is pretty and fluent; and several lyrics, of which the best are Gwendolynne Jones' "White Hyacinths" and Lloyd George's "Interlude." Two character sketches, "The Professor" by Gaston d'Arlequin, and "Six Days Shalt Thou Labor," by Margaret Emmerling, should be mentioned.

Real Indian Dress Is Used In 'Red Bird'

Bears' teeth, panthers' claws, and a wampum necklace are a part of the regalia of Red Bird, Winnebago Indian chief, played by Ralph Scheinflug '23 in Professor William Ellery Leonard's drama to be presented by the Curtain club Thursday afternoon and evening, April 27, at the Parkway Theater.

"We wanted to use some of the things in the Historical Museum," said Mrs. E. G. Taylor of costumes, "but when we looked at them, especially the old blue coat for the Major, we found they were too frail."

Notes by Professor Leonard on the margin of the transcript, descriptions found in the Historical library, and two paintings in the capitol buildings were followed in choosing the costumes for the different characters, each of whom is a historic personage.

BADGERS SLUG OUT 9 TO 1 WIN OVER PURPLE

Notre Dame is Powerless
Before Offensive Onslaught

PLAY CHICAGO TODAY

(Special to Daily Cardinal.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Six two-base hits and a flock of singles made up an afternoon's work for the Wisconsin wrecking crew which drove one Notre Dame pitcher to cover and badly mauled another, defeating the Hoosier baseball team 9 to 1, here yesterday.

While Coach Lowman's aggregation of swatsmiths was walloping the ball to all corners of the lot, Phil Hoffman went the entire nine rounds on the mound for Wisconsin and held the Notre Dame team to a pair of lone hits. Hoffman was in prime condition for the battle, and the Catholic squad, which just returned from a southern training trip, was unable to solve his delivery. Although the Badger hurler set only three men down on strikeouts, he was unhittable in the pinches. Notre Dame scored in the first inning, but was unable to do anything thereafter.

Jack Williams Stars

"Jack" Williams, with two doubles, led the procession of sluggers. Barry, Ruediger, Elliott, and Dugan got the other two-ply wallops. Barry accounted for three hits while Elliott, J. Williams, and "Rudy" added to the slaughter with two apiece.

In his first game of the season, Third Baseman Ruediger had a good day both at bat and in the field. In addition to his brace of safe drives, he fielded three chances. One error was chalked up against him. The little third sacker passed a condition exam on Saturday afternoon.

Chicago Poet to Give Recital of Poems on May 2

Theta Sigma Phi Will Bring Carl Sandberg For Lecture

Theta Sigma Phi, women's honorary journalistic sorority, is to bring Carl Sandberg, popular Chicago poet to Madison, May 2, for a lecture recital at Music hall.

Mr. Sandberg will read from his works, "Chicago Poems," "Corn Huskers," and "Smoke and Steel," and will accompany some of these with the banjo. His programs, which he takes time for in addition to his work as moving picture critic on the Chicago Daily News, are greeted enthusiastically by all audiences wherever he goes. In speaking of them, Mr. Sandberg calls them "three-ring lectures."

Professor W. E. Leonard, of the English department, calls the poet a "live wire who has his eyes open on the world of today." He says, "There is creative vitality in his work, and vigor in his style."

Tickets may be had for 50 cents from Mildred Gerlach, '22, and other members of Theta Sigma Phi beginning Wednesday.

Mr. Sandberg in 1913 was associate editor of the System magazine, and was later Stockholm correspondent of the Newspaper Enterprise association. He was awarded Levinson's prize in the Poetry magazine, in 1914, and in 1919 he shared half of the prize award of the Poetry Society of America. Mr. Sandberg is now a member of the editorial board of the National Labor Defense Council and is an editorial writer on the Chicago Daily News.

THE COMMTRCE Magazine is off again, but this time we fooled them. We got hold of the questionnaire for men only which is to be a comeback to the present collection of foolish questions that's filling the waste-basketss in all the sorority houses.

QUESTIONNAIRE FOR MEN

Directions

DON'T answer ANY questions. Get some help in necessary, but DON'T answer any questions. We are using only a few million answers, so be sure not to make yours complete.

1. Would you rather go to dances with girls than with men? If so why? Give no less than seven reasons.

2. Out of 20 men, how many do you think would marry on a bet? Because they are homesick? Because they are drunk? Why not?

3. Must the woman you marry be able to read or write? Answer yes or no?

4. Do you think that student morals have been affected by brogues, knickers, striped ties? In answering, give the occupation of your father.

5. Picture your ideal girl in a bathing suit. (Just picture!)

6. Would you marry a girl who chews tobacco? Why not, you dumbell. It's cheaper than keeping her in cigarettes.

Commerce Students and Engineers as well as Aps keep out. You can't possibly appreciate this. It's,

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Managing Editor of The Daily Cardinal:
Dear Sir:

I wish to thank the Cardinal for the very excellent report of my convocation address. This is not the first occasion when I have been about a professor of Latin, suffering under the Connecticut name of Moses Stephen Slaughter. Well, go on with the story—

PADD0 Bloodgood (It must be to give him all that weight) was talking about a tea at Moses Slaughter's house. Half an hour later, when he'd finished the first sentence, Betty Wadmond sings out, "Where's Moses' Slaughterhouse?"

Miss Wadmond is receiving at the infirmary this week.

NOW that Hank Ringgold's left town and there is no demand for Christmas trees, we wonder what the Phi Delt's are doing with their spare time.

Canoe Enthusiasts Usher In Spring Of 1922

Fifteen canoes were kept busy all day Sunday and part of the time on Saturday when warm weather brought out crowds of canoe enthusiasts, according to Emil M. Niebuhr, boatman at the university pier.

The Cardinal, Cap. Tom Isabel's life saving boat, is back in service after its spring repair and life guards are ready for business. Cap. Isabel says that he is "all set and ready for the careless ones who think they know all about canoes."

"I've got a shipment of 18 new canoes coming in," said Emil yesterday. "We are going to have a bunch of new ones this year. By the end of the season I am going to have 30 of them and they will all be new so I will be prepared for all the rushes. Some of the new canoes have come in already, and I am selling off the old ones right along."

This will be the eighteenth year that Emil has conducted a boat livery at the university pier. He was the first man to rent canoes on Mendota. There were but three canoes on the lake sixteen years ago, according to Niebuhr, one of which he bought from a student and started his business. The next year he purchased seven, and the livery has grown every year since that time. A total of 30 canoes will break the record.

"We don't have very many people come down here who don't know anything about canoes. Most of them come down with an experienced friend if they have handled one before," said Niebuhr. "But if they haven't been in one at all and want to learn, I will be glad to jump in with them and run around a bit to show them how."

White, retiring president, urged the members of the society to give Mr. Rubel their heartiest support in the work of the society next year and to make even greater efforts in the canvass of Episcopal students at registration.

WANTED: 3,500 VOTES

FRIDAY a much needed amendment to the constitution of the Daily Cardinal is to be submitted to the student body for ratification. For the outcome to be valid one-half of the students must vote, a proportion greater than has ever voted before at one time.

At present the Daily Cardinal is tied hand and foot, as far as rational expansion or change is concerned, by an obsolete article in the constitution. This article makes amendments to the constitution impossible without the votes of one-half of the students. Obviously such a provision, or rather, obstacle, makes changes impossible, when as a rule more than half of the students never vote. Changes are needed, because the university has grown tremendously since the origin of the constitution, and this growth demands flexibility in the Cardinal, a flexibility that is now lacking.

The proposed remedy is to amend this unsuitable article so that in the future amending changes may be made by a smaller, and hence more feasible, percentage of the student body.

To accomplish this, thirty-five hundred votes must be cast Friday.

The Daily Cardinal is perhaps the most representative activity on the campus in that it serves directly nearly all of the members of the university. However, omitting the fact that since the Cardinal is a purely all-student institution, and as such demands the active interest of the students, there is a second important consideration.

It is a business proposition, an interprise dependent upon the natural laws of commercial existence. In other words, it has to keep going on a merit basis, and when the attainment of that merit is handicapped by ancient and unwieldy constitutional mazes open to indefinite and vague interpretations, it is the duty, not merely the privilege or right, but the plain duty of every student to help remove that handicap.

It will take thirty-five hundred votes to put the constitution on a working basis commensurate with the place of the Cardinal in the university. Therefore, vote Friday, even if it means the setting of a precedent. It is your Cardinal; give it a little more support and help free it from the trammels of a vague and almost unworkable constitution.

THE FOOLISH FEW

WITH the coming of spring and canoeing comes the usual advice and warning to canoeists. The majority treat the advice as coming from those who know, and sensibly act accordingly. But there is always a minority who pay no attention to it. They either look on advice as meant for mere beginners, while they consider themselves experts, or they think that it is the product of old fogyism. In either case these "know it all's" take chances, and every year something happens.

This advice is not given for the sake of giving advice. It is the result of years of experience with Lake Mendota and careless students. And the student who laughs at it has always this to remember, perhaps some day the joke will be on him, and the chances are that it will not be so very funny. If these advice-proof students were the only ones concerned, accidents would be tragic enough, but in a large number of cases some one else pays for the fool-hardiness.

The man who takes a girl out canoeing and then ignores rules and precautions is a cad, or at least a fool. He is responsible for his companion, and if he jeopardizes her life through negligence or criminal carelessness he deserves nothing but the severest condemnation. He may think it smart to stay out after the whistle blows, or he may believe he is winning glory by cutting close to Picnic Point on a rough day, but the truth is, that such action is high school stuff and has no place among men and women who are supposed to have a more or less mature judgment.

Captain Isabel will have his hands full watching after the careful canoeists without having to protect the lives of those superior beings who consider themselves above rules and regulations, who usually end up with a good ducking if not a serious accident. It is also worth remembering that an accomplished canoeist takes no unnecessary chances, especially when he is responsible for the safety of another.

Expertness means, to a great extent, a knowledge of a canoe's limitations, and not how often can change seats or paddle an over-loaded canoe in rough weather.

ARE THEY ADVANCED

Once upon a time, so the story goes, there was a young man with ultra-modern ideas who married a young woman with equally advanced methods of accepting life.

They both scorned the conventional life and modeled their own existence together in the hope of carrying out the spirit of their principles. They avoided all the commonplaces of married life, refusing to live in the unimaginative confines of a flat, and instead took residence in a studio. Each was to carry on his work, unhampered by marital relations. Finding that they could not do this in the same studio, the young man rented a workroom for himself.

And so they lived for two years, fighting off the bonds that they fear might entangle them. The break came, and they separated. These two people, however, had a sincere affection for each other, so they talked it over.

To the college student there should come a deeper appreciation of his parents, and a realization as to the merits of their accepting life in the whole.—Ohio State Lantern.

Griffith Has Made Another Film Masterpiece

By P. H. J.

With little space allowed for the review tonight, it will be quite impossible properly to review the "Orphans of the Storm" the Griffith picture showing at the Orpheum for the entire week.

Again the director-genius has produced a picture unusual. This is impressed upon you time and again, and as the story is unfolded, your admiration increases.

The "Orphans of the Storm" starts out immediately. No film footage is wasted in detailed explanation of what the French revolution was, all credit lines concerning ward-robe mistresses and carpenters have been omitted, and Griffith's name appears but once. The latter omission is probably due to the fact that it is entirely unnecessary to make such a notation—Griffith's hand shows up in every scene.

All of the players are well cast, with the Gish girls fulfilling all expectations. Joseph Schildkraut, the European favorite, is excellent as the Chevalier, and doesn't depend entirely upon his attractiveness to get him by.

To give credit to all who deserve it would swell this to several columns. The picture doesn't tire you although it requires an entire evening for a showing. This is more than can be said of other "feature" productions.

The orchestra which accompanies the "Orphans" offers a well-worked out program, and the effect which the combination of music and picture affords is satisfying and unusually effective.

NEWS OF CONFERENCE SPORTS

MICHIGAN NINE LOOMS UP AS BIG TEN CHAMP

Decisive Defeat of Illinois Shows Decided Strength

The manner in which Michigan trimmed the Illinois ball team last Saturday afternoon indicates that Coach Lowman's Badgers will have to be going at full speed this coming week-end if hopes of remaining in the perfect percentage column are being entertained. The final count at Ann Arbor stood 3 to 1 in favor of the Wolverines.

Dixon, Michigan hurler, set the Illini down with a total of only five hits, and Captain McCurdy's home run in the initial inning was the only time that last year's champs seriously threatened to score. Michigan came back in her half of the first and brought the count up to 2 and 1. Although the game was won, the Wolverines earned another run in the eighth.

Michigan is Strong

According to newspaper reports, the Michigan nine appears to be a dangerous contender for the Big Ten conference title this season. The players possess an untiring fighting spirit and they all know how to handle themselves at bat.

Fischer's team is led by Ernie Vick, who made such a brilliant football record last fall. He handles the job in big league fashion and is a hitter of no mean ability.

Uteritz, Wimbles, Knode, and Pappe complete the infield lineup, and they are all real baseball players. Shackelford, Kipe, and Klein play the outer gardens in an efficient manner, and all except the latter are hard hitters.

Success Depends on Weather

It may seem that Lowman's proteges will have to play a classy brand of ball in order to beat the aggregation which triumphed over Illinois last week. There is little question but that the Badgers compare favorably with the Wolverines in most departments of the game. Fischer's outfit may have the edge in hitting, but Captain Paddock is backed by a crew of hurlers who appear to be capable of offering something which will baffle the invaders.

A great deal of the success which will attend the Badgers this coming Saturday is dependent upon the weather during the next few days. Lowman's men have hardly had a chance to get limbered up since returning from the south, as the rain and cold have prevented the coach from giving the men anything more than hitting practice.

Museum Displays Art and Design Work of Students

Samples of batique work, tie-dye, and textile goods made by students in classes of art and design in the University Home Economics department are being shown this week in the State Historical museum.

A large variety of dresses, made by students in freshman and advanced courses, are worked with the batique design. Different colors have been combined in a harmonious and pleasing manner. Scarfs, blouses and wraps of batique are also shown.

Table runners, rugs, pillow tops and bags are products of the fifteen looms used in the textile course.

Wax is used, in the process of making a batique design, to retain a certain tint while the rest of the cloth is dipped in color. The wax holds the desired color of the design at each succeeding dip, and in this way it is possible to have many color schemes.

In the tie and dye method of coloring, knots are tied in the materi-

Letters and Science Will Meet Commerce Men Next Thursday

Baseball teams representing the colleges of Engineering and Agriculture will meet in the first game of the intercollegiate ball tourney at 4:30 today on the lower campus.

Games are carded for Thursday and Friday afternoons, also, according to the schedule issued yesterday by Manager "Eddie" Borgelt.

Letters and Science tossers will stack up against the Commerce nine at 4:30 on Thursday, and the Law outfit is slated to engage the Medics at the same hour on Friday. All games will be played on the lower campus diamond.

Points won in the intercollegiate tournament will count towards the Nelson trophy, awarded annually to the college with the largest number of markers at the end of the interannual athletic year.

MERRICK TO PENN.

Capt. Knollin has been entered in the hurdles at the Drake meet and at the Penn relays which are held on the same days this year (May 6 and 7), but Coach Jones has not yet decided where Knollin will journey. The Badger captain has an excellent record in the steiks and would have fine chances to place in either meet.

Merrick, Wisconsin's premier pole vaulter will travel to the Penn meet to clash again with his old rival, Landowski of Michigan. The two have met twice and tied for first honors both times with record jumps.

Moses' Condition is Said to Be Improved

A very slight improvement in the condition of Clifford Moses, federal board student at the University of Wisconsin, was reported last night from the infirmary where he was taken Sunday morning after fainting at his rooming house, 415 North Murray street.

Moses came home at 9 o'clock Sunday night and entered the bath room a half hour later. At 12:30 another roomer found Moses in the bath tub unconscious. He was revived by the University Clinic pulmotor and was taken to the infirmary. He is still in a precarious condition.

Moses served in the war with the Rainbow division. He was wounded and gassed. He came to the University at the beginning of the second semester this year and is taking work in the Commerce Course.

Bishop to Address Library School Meet

The Library school, city library building, North Carroll street will hold their 15th annual May day celebration April 29, 10 a. m.

William Warner Bishop, librarian of the University of Michigan will be the principle speaker. His subject will be "Fashions in Books." Mr. Bishop is a graduate of the University of Michigan, having received a Fellowship at Rome in the American School of Classical studies. He was president of the American Library association for a time, chief of reading room in the Library of Congress and head of the catalogue department at Princeton. Mr. Bishop last spoke here in 1911.

After the lecture there will be an informal reception with refreshments and exhibits.

al which keep the original color of the first dip. Table covers, scarfs and wraps are the examples of this process.

"This exhibit represents the work done in the Home Economics department, and is a fine example of art produced entirely by students," said Mrs. C. D. Chapman, president of the Art association.

Inter-Class Men To Swim Today

Four events in the annual inter-class swimming meet will be held in the gymnasium tank at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The remaining four events will be run off at the same time tomorrow afternoon.

Captains of the squads who will lead their teams into action are: Lamboley, seniors; Ewald, juniors; Czeurwosky, sophomores; Hipke, freshmen.

Coach Joseph C. Steinauser will hold a series of events next week to decide the individual swimming championship of the university. Each man will engaged in five events. Ellicott, Elder and "Johnny" Bennett, swimming captain, will be strong contenders for the title.

Citizens' Training Camp Established At Battle Creek

Affords Opportunity For Men Who Are Not in R. O. T. C.

The War Department will hold a citizens' camp throughout August at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Michigan for young men from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. The four weeks training will be given in one of the most delightful spots of the United States, where there are ample facilities for boating, swimming and all forms of out-door sports.

The daily schedule calls for military drill in the morning, physical exercise and games in the afternoon and a variety of recreational opportunity in the evening. The camp is of special interest to college freshmen and sophomores, who have no opportunity for summer training in the R. O. T. C. All expenses, including transportation, subsistence, quarters, uniforms and equipment are paid by the Government.

There will be room at Camp Custer for 3,000 young men from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin; similar camps are available in the other Corp Areas of the United States. Application blanks may be obtained by applying to the Commanding General, Sixth Corps Area, 1819 W. Pershing Road, Chicago, or if there are not residents of these three states by applying to the Commanding General of the Corps in which their homes are located.

BADGERS SLUG OUT 9 TO 1 WIN OVER PURPLE

Notre Dame Powerless Before Offensive Onslaught

enabling him to accompany the team on its three-day trip.

Notre Dame got a running start in the first session and counted its only tally. Wisconsin went scoreless for three innings, but the fourth saw Farley pounded for five runs. From then on until the eighth, the Badgers were tamed. In that session, they eased three more across the rubber and the last marker came in the ninth. Coach Knute Rockne's Hoosiers were going down before Hoffman's deceptive pitching.

Chances for a victory over Chicago have increased greatly since the Lowman nine trounced Notre Dame. Pickford will probably go into the box today. Captain Forrest Paddock will save his arm for the Michigan game at Madison next Saturday, April 29.

The Badgers play Chicago at Staff field this afternoon.

Senior Class Meeting Postponed to May 3

Due to the fact that Mr. Israel Schrimski, president of the Alumni Association, will not be able to be in Madison this week, the meeting of the senior class which was scheduled for Wednesday, April 26, in Music hall, has been postponed to Wednesday, May 3, at 12:30, according to Guy Sundt '22, president of the class.

Mr. Schrimski will speak on the importance of every senior joining the Alumni Association. It is hoped that the class of 1922 will have a one hundred per cent membership in the association and, by such action, will set a precedent for following classes.

At this meeting the question providing for the use of the reserve money in the class treasury either for a loan fund or for an addition to the fund money already subscribed by former graduating classes will be discussed.

Schoultz to Study "Y" Work Abroad

Worth E. Schoultz '23, president of the university Y. M. C. A. for next year, will spend next summer in Europe studying Y. M. C. A. work there and in England.

In England Schoultz will be put in touch with the leaders of the association work there. Since the Y. M. C. A. work originated in England, a great many interesting phases of the work can be studied there.

While the Y. M. C. A. has representatives in practically all of the countries in Europe, the work is being put largely in the hands of native workers. The government of Greece has given 300 acres of land along the seashore for a Y. M. C. A. boy's camp. In Poland the work has been employed extensively in the coal miners.

In addition to studying all these different phases of "Y" work in Europe and England, Schoultz will study the economic conditions in Europe under the direction of Prof. J. R. Commers of the economic department. Schoultz will write his thesis next year along these lines.

Applications for "Y" Rooms Open May 1

Men who wish to live in the "Y" dormitory next year should make application now.

Rooms will be rented to the men beginning May 1.

Forty rooms will be saved for Freshmen and the rest will be available to all men now attending the university, with the exception of graduate students.
