State "Career" Plan for U. W. Students Starts

Students Get Chance for Training in "Career" Jobs in State Service

The plan to select outstanding senior students at the University of Wisconsin and give them an opportunity to train themselves for "career" jobs in the state public service by lending them funds to complete their school work was inaugurated this week with the selection of the first three students to be trained under the plan. Other outstanding students are to be chosen from time to time.

The plan was presented to the legislature last winter by Gov. Philip La Follette. The salaries paid to the "career apprentices" are to come from funds of the state departments in which the work is done, and will be the usual starting civil service salaries.

Senior students so far selected for the career jobs are: Merrill V. Gregory, commerce student from Colfax, apprenticed as an income tax accountant to the state tax commission; Arthur C. Larson, school of education student from Racine, apprenticed to the adult education division of the department of vocational education; and Hallie Lou Whitefield, political science major from Madison, apprenticed to the bureau of personnel.

These three students will receive immediately loans not to exceed $400, for the year, which will be repaid to the state in small installments after graduation next June when they take their state jobs. In accepting the loans, the students agree to work at their state jobs for a period not to exceed two years, although any student's contract may be terminated at any time upon payment in full of the loan and interest.

If the student desires to remain in the public service after serving his apprenticeship, he must take the usual state civil service examination.

U. W. Men Speak on Agriculture At Four State Farm Weeks

The latest ideas in successful farming practices are being carried to four other states this winter by members of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture in connection with the Farm and Home Week programs at other universities.

H. L. Ahlgren of the agronomy department appeared on the Farm and Home Week program at Urbana at the University of Illinois on January 13. He told about the latest pasture improvement methods, including ideas gleaned in a recent survey of European pastures.

George M. Briggs will carry the latest ideas on soybean improvement to Rutgers University on January 27. He will be a guest of the university there at New Brunswick, New Jersey, during the Farm and Home Week.

A. H. Wright, co-worker of Ahlgren and Briggs, will discuss "Problems of Certification" in regard to hybrid corn at the University of Minnesota at St. Paul on January 20. On February 8 at Iowa State College at Ames, Iowa, he will discuss the problems of "Handling Seed Corn," particularly in connection with drying it after harvest, at one Farm and Home week meeting. A second topic, which he will discuss there is the "Wisconsin Plan of Certifying Seed Corn."

Wisconsin farmers, who attend Farm and Home Week at the State University's college of agriculture at Madison, January 31 through February 4, will also have the opportunity of conferring on Wisconsin farm problems with these and other speakers.

Teacher Needs, Goals Guide State High School English Radio Study

A state-wide radio experiment in high school English, in which "script-writing" and "production men" will be guided by teacher needs and objectives, was announced today by directors of the research project in school broadcasting at the University of Wisconsin.

This cooperative effort will result in a new radio series for high schools—"English As You Like It." The series goes on the air at the beginning of the new semester, February 3, and will be heard over station WHA at the State University every Thursday for 17 weeks at 2 p. m.

"English As You Like It" is offered to upper high school classes by the research project in school broadcasting, with the cooperation of station WHA and the Wisconsin Education Association committee on school broadcasting. Its purpose is to find the place of radio in the English course of study.

General objectives and plans for the series were formulated by a group of English teachers and education specialists, including:

Dr. Robert C. Pooley, of the University department of English; Miss Almere Scott, University Extension division; Lowell Kindisch, Pres., English section, WEA; F. V. Powell, state supervisor of high schools; Miss Marjorie Hoard, Wisconsin high school, Madison; Miss Mary Grace Powers,

U. Library School Serves State; 40 Students Aid 33 Libraries

The Library school of the University of Wisconsin has announced its period of field practice for February and March, when 40 students will work in 33 libraries of the state. The academic schedule of the school is suspended during these months and the students assigned to libraries where they do actual library work of all kinds, under the supervision of the local librarians in cooperation with the faculty of the school.

Such experience enables students to test the theories discussed in the classroom, and is considered one of the most valuable elements of their training, since it emphasizes the practical side of the work, a feature of all Wisconsin education. Following are the appointments:

Begin Excavation Work for Union Addition at U. W.

To Be Most Complete Student Center in World When Finished in 1939

Excavation work has started for the new theater and arts addition to the Memorial Union Building on the University of Wisconsin campus, assuring early completion of the final wing of the three unit university community center launched as a memorial project in 1919.

The old Union at the corner of Langdon and Park streets, once the University presidential residence for Presidents Chamberlain, Adams, Van Hise, and Birge, is being removed and digging of the foundations will be finished by April 1. Under the schedule of construction fixed by the Public Works Administration, which has allotted $236,000 to the project, general construction will start on April 1 and be completed by June, 1939.

Financed by gifts of alumni and friends of the State University, operating income, and the PWA grant, Wisconsin's Union will be the most complete university cultural and social center in the world when it is finished in 1939.

The unit under construction will give the 11,000 students at the University of Wisconsin the opportunity to supplement their classroom instruction by hearing outstanding music, drama, and lectures brought to the campus and to receive training, through modern and adequate facilities, in producing their own plays, radio drama, and musical performances.

The building is conceived as an all-purpose recreation center with facilities for conventions, forums, pageants, motion pictures, radio broadcasts, dance recitals, games, and outing club headquarters as well as music and drama.

Scholarship Fund In Honor of Mrs. Kroncke Established At U. W.

In memory of the late Harriett Sauthoff Kroncke, Madison, who died in August, 1936, a scholarship fund amounting to $3,000 was recently presented to the University of Wisconsin and accepted by the State University's board of regents.

The fund is to be used by the University to establish "The Harriet Sauthoff Kroncke Scholarship." Income from this scholarship fund will be used to assist worthy University of Wisconsin students who are interested in the advanced study of German.

Students are to be nominated for the award each semester by the University Committee on Loans and Undergraduate Scholarships, in cooperation with the Committee of the German department. In approving the fund, the regents also granted authority to accept additional contributions to the fund as they may be presented in the future.

Mrs. Kroncke was the wife of Judge George Kroncke of Madison, and the sister of Congressman Harry Sauthoff, also of Madison. In a letter offering the scholarship to the State University, Grant C. Haas, Madison, chairman of the Harriet Sauthoff Kroncke Scholarship Fund committee, wrote that Mrs. Kroncke was born in Madison of German lineage, and that "she typified an exceptional degree an interweaving of American and German cultures."

She was grateful and proud that her familiarity with two cultures equipped her with an understanding, a sympathy, a wisdom, which are rarely possible among those who know but one," Mr. Haas explained. "Her gratitude found expression in the oft

U. W. Graduate Serves On Iowa College Staff

Robert Halpin, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, class of 1937, is now serving on the staff of the Iowa State College of agriculture at Ames. He is teaching and carrying on graduate research work in poultry genetics under E. W. Lindstrom, former Badger and a member of the genetics staff at the University of Wisconsin from 1919 to 1922.

Halpin, whose undergraduate thesis was on bumblefoot of chickens, majored in agricultural bacteriology at the University of Wisconsin. He is the son of J. G. Halpin, who has helped shape the destinies of Wisconsin's poultry industry through his work at the State University during the past 29 years.

Four Badgers Top Ton Marks in 4-H Pig Litter Project

Four Top 2,000-Pound Mark in Pork Production in 1937 4-H Project

Four of the 17 Wisconsin boys and girls, completing records in the 1937 4-H Club Ribbon Pig Litter project, topped the 2,000-pound mark in pork production, according to an announcement by J. J. Lacey of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, in charge of the project. All grew from 11 to 14 pigs per litter.

In spite of the fact that feed was expensive and hard to get during 1937, the 17 litters entered were brought to an average weight of 1710 pounds with approximately 9.4 pigs per litter in 180 days. Entries were limited to 4-H club members between 10 and 20 years of age. The weights and litters were certified by the local county agent, agricultural instructor, or 4-H club leader. All contestants were required to keep record books and feed costs.

Winners in the contest will receive prizes provided through the State University college of agriculture animal husbandry department and the 4-H club department.

Boys and girls who took part in the second annual pork production contest include: Adrian Schoenfeld, Beaver Dam, with a 14-pig litter weighing 3,122 pounds at 180 days; Wilfred Huenink, Cedar Grove, with 11 weighing 2,530 pounds; Dennis Schussman, Malone, with 10 weighing 1,900 pounds; Lucille Hahn, Brodhead, with 9 weighing 1,890 pounds; Matt Britten, Marshfield (Marathon county) with 11 weighing 1,794 pounds; Harland Riegel, Marshfield, with 9 weighing 1,605 pounds; Royal Krus, Monticello, with 9 weighing 1,529 pounds; Duane Beach, Monroe, with 8 weighing 1,528 pounds; Harold Kautzer, Marshfield, with 9 weighing 1,471.5 pounds; Alvin Elmer, Brooklyn (Green county), with 7 averaging 1,439 pounds; Alvin Kunder, Monroe, with 8 averaging 1,428 pounds; Ben Krus, Monticello, with 9 weighing 1,387 pounds; Howard Kuse of the Richfield 4-H club, Wood county, with 7 weighing 1,176 pounds; and Robert Weinfurter, Marshfield (Marathon county), with 8 weighing 1,169 pounds.

In compliance with her wish, and out of honor to and affection for Mrs. Kroncke, her relatives and friends have contributed to this scholarship fund, to be known as the Harriet Sauthoff Kroncke Scholarship.

The fund is to be used by the University to establish "The Harriet Sauthoff Kroncke Scholarship." Income from this scholarship fund will be used to assist worthy University of Wisconsin students who are interested in the advanced study of German.

Groups to Give Views At U. W. Farm-Home Week Jan. 31-Feb. 4

"Will restricted production promote national prosperity," a question which strikes deep into the social adjustment problems today, will be considered by Wisconsin farmers and home-makers on the opening program of the 1938 state Farm and Home Week at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture, Monday, January 31.

The consideration of this question will be dealt with in a panel discussion in which the viewpoints of various groups concerned will be presented by representatives of these groups, according to Warren W. Clark, associate director of agricultural extension in charge of program arrangements.

Presenting the viewpoint of industry will be F. H. Clausen, Horicon, vice president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, while J. F. Friedrick, Milwaukee, a member of the general executive board of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, will present the viewpoint of labor.

Other viewpoints to be presented in the panel discussion will be those of agriculture by W. W. Clark, associate director of agricultural extension; of the consumer by May Cowles of the department of home economics, Madison; of the farmer, by Adolph Brundt, Chippewa Falls; and of the home-maker by Mrs. Oscar Conrad, Route 4, West Allis.

Discuss Farm Problems

Paving the way for this discussion will be an address on "The Farmer's Part in National Prosperity," by E. G. Nourse, Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C.; Lucille Reynolds, Farm Administration, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Raymond Sayre, state chairman of farm women of Iowa, Ackworth, Iowa; Karl B.
