Sept 27th 1923

Dear Pete:

Your kind invitation to a hunting trip at Rush Lake is hereby accepted. Will be at Mayville the Sunday before the 15th if nothing serious interferes such as breaking a leg or dropping dead.

Will now that this is settled will consider the request of our relatives abroad as Julia would say.

I will candidly advise Agnes to either ignore the letter entirely or to decline as best she can.

I have a request from the same source for funds to enable a half brother of Erich's to come over.

Furthermore this same half brother of Erich's has written to him for the passage money. Then an unknown cousin introduced him self to Erich with a somewhat similar request. A friend of Erich's is surely coming as soon as he gets money enough to get to New York, etc.

They all belong to the Grimme tribe

Erich is a plenty more of his kind would be too much. He got to feeling rather sprunky the other day, thought he was working too cheap & wanted some other kind of work and threatened to quit & leave the shop flat on its back but I see he is still working. Frances writes from Detroit that she has not yet captured a job but has several positions in view of which she hopes to accept one soon.

Marie is feeling #1 and I am keeping up remarkably well thanks to Dr. K's #1 and #2. With love to all

P.S. Will I need to bring any decoys. Have a bunch of blue bill decoys but they don't amount to much. Carl
