REPORT OF THE SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNIVERSITY'S SYSTEM OF STUDENT COUNSEL AND DISCIPLINE

Bd
June 20/31

Exh. 1

Your committee recommends the revision of existing disciplinary and counseling arrangements at the University of Wisconsin. It does not present a scheme to absolve the University from disciplinary obligations or to rid the campus of disciplinary agencies. We believe that parents and students have a right to expect a reasonably controlled environment no less conducive to growth of character than to growth of knowledge and intellectual power.

The recommendations offered represent a shift in emphasis. In dealing with cases of misconduct and in supervising student activities we believe that there should be wider opportunity for counsel and for contact with stimulating leadership. In large part such counsel and leadership will always operate, as in the past, informally through unofficial conference between the interested student and the interested instructor. Yet the committee is of the opinion that the University can and should supply additional and essential leadership through especially gifted men and women in officially designated positions.

In the reorganization of the agencies dealing with student affairs there are decisions, both of theory and practice, which must be left to administrative officers, since only they have the necessary background of experience and since they must carry out the plans and bear the responsibilities. The scope of our recommendations has, however, been subject to a further and a drastic limitation. The committee's hands are tied by complications involving personnel. In the present complex situation it is, as a practical matter, impossible to separate personnel from certain questions of policy and organization.

RECOMMENDATIONS

(I) The Committee recommends that the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women have no connection with the punitive aspects of discipline cases. Initial complaints shall continue to be received by the Deans, and they shall decide whether the case should be passed on to the Committee on Student Conduct, or whether the problem can be more constructively dealt with by informal treatment not involving punitive discipline. Once a case has been turned over to the Committee on Student Conduct, the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women shall, as a matter of normal procedure, have no further connection with the case. The Deans may, however, appear before the Committee when requested by the students involved; and the Committee may, in special cases when it seems advisable, call the Deans into consultation.

(II) The Committee recommends that the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women continue to act as chairman and vice-chairman, respectively, of the Committee on Student Life and Interests.

(III) The Committee recommends that the Administration (including the Deans) review all activities* of a "social traffic" nature now being administered by the Deans of Men and Women, with a view of relieving these officers of certain routine duties which require much of their time, which are often a source of friction, and which in our judgment now prevent them from utilizing to the best advantage their opportunities for leadership and counsel. Some of these duties seem to us to be unworthy of the Deans' attention, and others to be detrimental to their more important functions. There is an obvious advantage in the "social traffic" activities of the Deans in that these activities afford opportunities for contacts with students. It is our opinion, however, that such advantage may be outweighed by the disadvantages just mentioned.

* * * * *

*In this category we would include: inspection, supervision, and listing of available lodgings; planning and recording of calendar of activities; statistical information of scholarship averages of groupings of students; supervision of student elections; eligibility certification for student activities; regulation and registration of social functions; ruling on individual exceptions to non-academic regulation and other activities.

These three recommendations are based upon our belief that the Deans' opportunity for service to the normal and wholesome aspects of student life will be enhanced by a lessening of their active connection with formal discipline cases and with routine social traffic control. Such activities by their very nature deflect public attention from the constructive phases of their work.

The committee is not under the impression that it has found a final solution for the problem, but believes that the procedure recommended, which is not without precedent elsewhere, is worth trial as an adjustment to changing conditions of student life.
