CLUB MEMBERS TO HAVE HOUSE

International Group to Live
Together in Own Home
Next Semester

The acquisition of a club house for the International club marks a distinct advance in the progress of that organization in the opinion of Agustin Rodolfo, grad, a member of the board of directors of the club, who have completed negotiations for the lease of a house at 631 West Johnson street. The house will be occupied by the club next semester.

At present ten members of the club have arranged to live in the new club house. Rodolfo states that the house will accommodate approximately 20 men.

"Our organization is an old one, dating back to 1903. It was the first of its kind in America. Due to the war the club received a setback but we are hoping that the crisis is passed and that the road to recovery is relatively safe," Rodolfo explained.

The real significant object of the club, according to members, is to wipe out the differences which race, rank, caste, and creed tend to create. The divergent viewpoints of so many students who come from all parts of the world afford an opportunity to work out a real problem in ideals and good will.

Hot Prom Band

Saxophone Sextet, String
Instrument Combination, Singers and Dancers Included in Orchestra

Six orchestras in one! Such is Fiorito-Russo's 15-piece Oriole Terrace band of the Edgewater Beach hotel, Chicago, which, along with George Osborn's Nicolet hotel orchestra of Minneapolis, will furnish the music at Prom.

This aggregation boasts of a saxophone sextet which bids fair to outrival the Six Brown brothers, a stringed instrument combination, consisting of two guitars, two mandolins and a mandola, and a marimba band. To these may be added the Oriole Terrace concert orchestra which renders concert numbers that have the qualities of a symphony band. As entertainers, they sing and dance.

Dan Russo and Ted Fiorito, who are the conductors, play the violin and piano respectively. Fiorito has composed such songs as "Just Like a Rainbow," "When Lights Are Low," "No, No, Nora," "Charley, My Boy" and "Dreamer of Dreams." Russo is the author of "Toot, Toot, Tootsie," "My Dream Moon," "Back in Hackensack," and others.

Sparks of Nearby Chimney Fire Roof of Rooming House

When sparks from a neighboring chimney ignited the roof of 711 Langdon street, women's rooming house operated by Mrs. C. B. Alexander and owned by the university, a damage amounting to $5,000 was caused. The fire started at 11:45 o'clock yesterday noon.

The fire was fought for an hour by the firemen from Central, No. 2 and No. 4 stations. More than 200 students watched the fire while it was in progress.

The seven women roomers who lived at the house are now homeless, due to the fact that fire and water have made the building unfit for habitation. Considerable damage was caused to clothing owned by the students. One Prom gown is said to have been ruined by fire and water.

HAROLD OLSON, OHIO COACH, VISITS MADISON

Harold G. Olson, former Wisconsin basketball star and present mentor at Ohio State university, was in Madison Wednesday, and his visit occasioned much rumor among sport fans. Members of the university athletic council declared his presence in the city had no athletic significance and said he had not been discussed as a possibility for a position here.

DEAN STATES NO-CUT RULE NOT IN EFFECT

Contrary to a rumor which has pervaded the campus during the past week, the no-cut rule will not be in effect for the last class meeting before the examination period, the secretary to Dean George C. Sellery said yesterday.

Kronshage and Callahan Will Confer With President- Elect on Position

Theodore Kronshage, president of the board of regents, and John Callahan, secretary of the committee of five chosen to seek a successor to President Birge, are leaving today for Cambridge, Mass., to notify formally Dr. Roscoe Pound, dean of the Harvard Law school, of his election as president of the university. They intend to go into details with Dean Pound concerning the character and scope of the position for which he has been named, and hope to return with a favorable reply, Mr. Callahan said last night.

Dean Pound was notified by wire Wednesday of his selection which was pronounced by the Board of Regents late this afternoon following a half-hour secret session. Directly after the announcement of George Little as athletic director of the university came the regents' unanimous decision to name Dean Pound to succeed President Birge. It was hoped that the choice might be kept secret until a formal reply should be received from Dean Pound but the action of the regents became known in the legislature yesterday morning.

Word is not expected from the newly elected president until after his interview with Mr. Kronshage and Mr. Callahan when the final decision will be made. There is no question in the minds of the regents but that he will accept the position. Dean Pound was selected from a list of forty or more potential candidates from all sections of the country. The number was finally reduced to a group consisting of Dean Pound, O. W. Caldwell, head of the research department of Columbia Teachers' college, Robert M. Lovett of the University of Chicago, William A. Neilson, president of Smith college, and Frank P. Graves, Albany, N. Y., state commissioner of education. Last March the Board of Regents appointed a committee of five to canvass the country for possible appointees.

Birge Serves Here Fifty Years. President Birge will finish up the present academic year, which will mark a completion of 50 years of service to the university. It is the intention of the Board of Regents, according to Mr. Callahan, to make him president emeritus. Should he be named to that position

Progress of Prom Plans Discussed By Committeemen

More than 100 Prom workers crowded into 212 Bascom hall last night to hear Chairman Cliff Huff and various committee chairmen tell of the progress of plans thus far for the "Prom to Remember."

The fact that there will be two orchestras, something that no preceding Prom has had, that there will be dancing only in the rotunda where everyone can hear the music, and that the decorations in the form of a sunken garden will be a sight worth seeing, account for the great demand for tickets and boxes during the past week, according to John Cavanaugh '26, chairman of tickets.

Cavanaugh warned groups who are planning to attend Prom but who have not notified him of their intention that they will have to send in their reservations immediately in order to get accommodations.

Margaret Ashton '26, supper chairman, explained the special menus which the Capitol cafe, Park hotel and Cameo room will prepare for the Prom supper.

THIRD PHI KAPPA PHI TALK GIVEN BY PROF. GUYER

"Recent Advances in Zoology" is Subject of Lecture By Department Head

"If I were asked the outstanding development of zoology in the past quarter century, I would say that it was the change from a science of descriptive and comparative anatomy to an experimental science," was the opening remark of Prof. M. F. Guyer, of the zoology department, who gave an illustrated lecture last night in Bascom hall on "Recent Advances in Zoology." It was the third of a series arranged for by the Wisconsin chapter of Phi Kappa Phi.

According to Professor Guyer, the patient botanical collector, who is the butt of so many jokes has done important things for the advancement and happiness of nations, making possible such advances as the Panama canal.

Few people realize the seriousness of the problem presented to us by the procreancy of the lower types of humans, and that the higher types of man are not holding their own in the race. The fact was illustrated by figures gathered by the army during the war showing that close to 50 per cent of those examined had the mentality of a 13-year-old child," Mr. Guyer said.

At the present rate of immigration the United States will have a population of over 300 millions within 100 years, whereas only 157 millions can be supported," Professor Guyer pointed out. "Population is outstripping the food supply throughout the world. It is futile to talk about doing away with war until some steps are taken toward regulating population for it is inherent in man to fight for what he needs for his existence."

THREE STUDENTS ARE PENALIZED

Three, Five, and Six Extra Credits Given to Dishonest Students

Five cases were brought to the attention of the university disciplinary committee at its weekly meeting last evening at South hall. Penalties were given in three cases, while in one case the student had left school, and in the other case the student was dismissed with a reprimand.

A freshman in the pre-medical course had used a part of the book "Perfect Behaviour" for his English theme "The Etiquette of Courtship." He was penalized three credits and was put on probation because of plagiarizing.

Another case of plagiarism was that of a woman who is a junior in the College of Letters and Science. She had copied some material for a theme for English 30. She was given five extra credits and will be on probation until the end of the year.

A penalty of six extra credits and probation until the end of the year was the punishment given to a junior in the pre-medical course for having a friend rewrite his theme after he had first copied the material from a book. The friend would have been given a like penalty if he were known.

The case of a girl who has already left school because of illness came before the committee. She must appear before the committee before she can register again at the university. She made false attendance entries at the Camp Randall field house.

Because of insufficient evidence in the case of a man who was taking chemistry and who wrote several experiments in the laboratory without first performing them, the committee dismissed him with a reprimand.

Grapplers Toil In Gym Loft Far From Plaudits Of World

Under Hitchcock's Coaching
Wrestling Develops Very Rapidly Here

By CLARENCE SCHLAVER
Lithe bodies on white canvas
mats—quick moves—slow, strenuous, dogged perseverance against an opponent who has the advantage of a superior hold—that is wrestling as practiced daily in the wrestling loft of the gymnasium; a sport that has risen in popularity every year since its advent at Wisconsin.

No cheering thousands applaud the men, no mass meetings are held in their behalf, but still they are content to spend hours of training, merely for the love of the sport. They say there is a thrill in anticipating the quick feint and grapple of an opponent and of testing strength against strength.

Rapid Development

Bag-punching, tumbling, rolling on the neck, standing on toes, and other exercises are all a part of the wrestler's training in order that he may be fit. Coach Hitchcock says, "Speed, science, and condition count," and with this idea in mind the men work not alone for individual victory but for team victory. The team element is less tangible than is the case with a football or basketball team, but is present, nevertheless.

This sport of the mat has developed rapidly in the last few years at Wisconsin. It received a good start towards a still-looked-for recognition as a major sport in 1921 when Coach George D. Hitchcock came to coach the team and instruct in the engineering shop classes. His enthusiasm is contagious and he instills that spirit into the squad. "George" has not forgotten his own amateur wrestling during the days when he won the light-heavyweight championship of the third naval district and he may be seen on the mat with "his boys," as he calls them, nearly every afternoon after shop classes are dismissed.

Sixteen Men in 1922

During the 1921-22 season only 16 men reported for wrestling and 27 the next, but in 1923-24 the wrestling sport took a big leap after the athletic council had recognized the work of the men the preceding year and had installed six mats in the new wrestling room.

This season 110 students have selected wrestling as a sport and thus the number has increased from 16 to 110 in four years. During the four years several outstanding men on the Cardinal squads have won the majority of their matches, including "Cy"

JONES REAPPOINTED TO RULES COMMITTEE

Coach T. E. Jones received a letter yesterday from Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner, notifying him of the fact that he had been reappointed to membership on the National Collegiate Track and Field Rules committee. For the past six years Coach Jones has been a member of the committee.

In the past this committee has been of great service to colleges and universities in interpreting track rules, authenticating track records, and otherwise raising track to a high level of sportsmanship.

Besides the honor that comes to Coach Jones personally with this appointment there is a great honor bestowed on the university. Coach Jones is one of six men to be chosen from universities throughout the country and is the only member to be selected from the middle west.

BOXING CLASSES ORGANIZE IN FEB.

Inter-Class and All-University Championship Tournaments Are Scheduled

The manly art of self defense will be one of the chief attractions to be offered to students in the way of either compulsory or voluntary gymnastic work.

Personal instruction by Coach Ray Moore will be offered to all those enrolled in boxing classes or working for the all-university boxing tournament.

Just as soon as the classes get organized after the second semester an interclass boxing tournament will be staged to determine the relative battling ability of the four classes. For the first time in the history of the sport both numerals and sweaters will be awarded the winners.

Following this tournament an all-university championship bout will be run off the weekend of the State High School basketball tournament. The winners in each weight in this tournament will receive gold medals.

Last year the tournament was a big success and attracted the interest of the student body. This year, according to Coach Moore, boxing will be put on an even larger scale than ever.

BADGER BASKETEERS OUT FOR REVENGE IN RETURN GOPHER TILT

Meanwell Hopes to Break Losing Streak; New Lineup
May Appear

After three conference defeats the Wisconsin cage team has started a hard week of practice to put them in form to defeat the strong Minnesota quintet. Although the Gophers were able to nose out a two point victory over the Badgers in the first contest between the two teams the Meanwell men have bright hopes of handing a defeat to the Minnesota five.

The loss of the Northmen to the Northwestern cage team proved that the Minnesota five are not infallible. Most of the work on the Gopher machine was done by Rasey, forward, but the tight guarding of the Meanwell men will keep him from getting many tries at the basket. Mason, guard, is one of the weak cogs in the Gopher quintet and the swift offense of the Badgers is likely to sweep around him.

One thing is certain and that is that the Cardinal men will make a greater percentage of their shots than in the last game against Minnesota, for they will have the advantage of playing and shooting on their own floor. The shooting of the Badgers is being steadily drilled on in the daily practices and the Wisconsin five will have a better eye for the basket in the game on Saturday.

A new lineup may appear as the whistle opens the game on Saturday. A shifting in the forward line is one of the changes that may appear. Merkel is working hard at that position and may replace Varnay in part of the coming game. Brooks seems certain of being in the starting lineup as well as Wackman, Barwig and Diebold. With this team the Cardinal men ought to be on the leading end of the final score of Saturday's game.

Little Plans to Attend Meet of Athletic Council

George Little, newly appointed athletic director, plans to be in Madison early next week to discuss the athletic situation with authorities at the university. The Athletic Council meets next Tuesday evening and if it is at all possible Little will try to be here for that meeting. Professor Pyre, chairman of the committee, will announce Little's official acceptance as soon as he receives word from the Michigan mentor.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A trip to Los Angeles by way of Seattle has been offered as a prize to the student at the University of Minnesota who sells the greatest number of Gophers, the Minnesota year book.

SOPPENFIELD CHOSEN FROSH TRACK LEADER

Scott Sappenfield '28 was elected captain of the freshman track team at a meeting of all the frosh tracksters last night. Sappenfield specializes in the broad jump and is one of the best freshmen in this event that has been in the university for a number of years. Also, if the occasion should arise, he can make a creditable showing in the high jump or hurdles.

In a statement after the election the new captain expressed the wish that anyone having any suggestions for the welfare of the team should express themselves as he wants the team of the class of 1928 to be a winning aggregation.

Sappenfield formerly performed on the high school track team at Tulsa, Oklahoma. He is the second frosh track captain in two years to come from the south as Charles McGinnis, last year's yearling leader, hailed from Kansas City.

FRIENDLY RIVALRY MAKES TRACKMEN

Coach Jones Primes Cinder Path Men For Quadrangular Meet Feb. 14

Group action, not individual action, is what makes a track team. So said Coach Jones to his men in a meeting of the varsity track squad this week.

So often the men will come out for track and take their workouts alone and call it a day. This will not make a track man any stronger. It is the competition that one gets from working out with fellow contestants for a place on the team that brings out the best efforts of which a man is capable. It is the friendly spirit of rivalry that drives a man on to outdo his rival that develops track material. Such sentiments as these were the basis of Coach Jones's advice to his charges.

Another subject that Coach Jones stressed was the matter of eligibility and the coming examinations. Many a track man would rather run two or three hard races than go through a week of exams, however, a man is of no value to the team or to Wisconsin if he is not up in his studies.

Today and tomorrow will be the last hard days of workout before exams. Tomorrow afternoon the men will face the frosh tracksters in a dual meet that will take the form of a last time trial before the Quadrangular meet February 14.

The importance of the coming

Quadrangular meet cannot be over emphasized. It is Wisconsin's first Big Ten competition of the present track season and a victory there will help the morale of the team the remainder of the season. First impressions are lasting.

DAD CARDINAL'S LETTERS

TO KEN BUTLER

Dear Ken: You've monopolized this page too long, you old rogue. You've sewed too many seams. Out of a list of one I have been unanimously selected to ascend the throne. I may be a little old and infirm, but what you need on your sport pages is a little old blood. I've got qualifications in letter writing; I took Gardner's course; I've written a love letter or two in my day. Every morning 3,000 cups of coffee will quiver as your readers turn to my column to see if, by any chance, my type writer has taken up arms in their behalf. Three thousand mouths may curse me, but then.....

Yours t. f.
DAD CARDINAL

TO ROUNDY

Dear Joseph: What! Not satisfied yet? Gosh darn it, I know you know Meanwell would have made a wonderful director, but Meanwell has shown himself to be a good sport by pledging his loyalty to Director Little; aren't you as big a sport? What say we hang up the "push" sign now?

On Wisconsinally yours,
DAD CARDINAL

TO GEORGE LITTLE

Dear Jawge: Hands across the lake here, and congratulations, until we see each other at closer range. I know Wisconsin is going to like you and be back of you and help you build up Wisconsin athletics so that the Badgers will be feared in every sport. You've sailed under Ohio's Scarlet and Gray, under Michigan's Maize and Blue, and now it's Wisconsin's Cardinal and White.

I'm not as prolific as I used to be due to these cold winds shooting from off the lake between the gymnasium and the Y. M. C. A., but here's five points I hope you'll look up for me:

1. For gosh sake help build us a football team that'll make Yost wish he had you back.

2. Keep an eagle eye on this intramural department of ours; give 'em a little spending money now and then and let every alma mater's man of 'em get into something athletic.

3. Get us a real athletic press bureau. You know how Pack at Michigan does it.....Get someone who'll give out a lot of good news, someone whom the press boys will like and will work with, someone who'll see they all have a seat in the "heated" press box with gobs of copy paper and gobs of real welcome.

4. Some day when you and Tom Jones get around to the fourth or fifth cigar in one of those long t.... you're going to have, ask him about

Quadrangular meet cannot be over emphasized. It is Wisconsin's first Big Ten competition of the present track season and a victory there will help the morale of the team the remainder of the season. First impressions are lasting.

INTRAMURAL CROSS COUNTRY HIKES FOR SKIERS TOMORROW

University ski runners will engage in the first intramural cross country competition of the year when they race over a two mile course on Lake Mendota tomorrow afternoon. The starter's gun will set the men off at 2:30 o'clock at the foot of Park street. Awards will go to the men taking the first three places.

"We want every man, graduate or undergraduate, who has ever had on a pair of skis to enter this race," said Winter Sports Director George Martin yesterday. "For those men who do not feel they will be able to place the race will afford good practice in cross country skiing."

The usual course for the race is over the campus hills, but because of the lack of snow the match will be held entirely over flat ground. One need not be an expert, therefore, to win a place among the first three.

Spectators are invited to attend the competition as the race is sure to be an interesting one. The runners will be in full view at all times.

THE NEW DIRECTOR

After months of speculation and expectancy concerning the new athletic director to be chosen by the athletic council, an uncertainty was put to rest yesterday and general satisfaction was evidenced over the appointment of George Little, field coach and assistant athletic director at Michigan. The selection of a new director was no easy task, for many important considerations entered in, and there was a great deal of pressure from outside, alumni, newspapers, and supposedly disinterested people, favoring different candidates. In view of the manifold problems which confronted the council, the final choice made by the board of regents is particularly satisfying, as it seems to have the approval of nearly everyone, and even those favoring other candidates do not seem to be disappointed. Members of the athletic department also seem to be well pleased, and there is every reason to entertain high hopes that there will be cooperation and unity throughout the department.

In making the selection of a new director, the first step was to list the qualifications desired in the new man, and then to find someone who could most nearly come up to that pattern. Many students have made known their private ideas concerning what the new director should be. Frequent opinions have been that he should be able to fit well into the Wisconsin order of doing things, should become one of the university family, and as such should be a good mixer, well acquainted on the campus, and should be popular both as a director and as a man. The record of Coach Little at Michigan, and the glowing reports of his reputation which have very frequently been circulated, indicate that he will in every way meet these requirements.

It is well to remember, however, that when he first comes here he will be a stranger, and that it will be the university's duty to see that he is quickly made to feel at home. Whether or not he will be responsive to student requests and opinions will be partly determined by the reception accorded him when he comes. If you want a man to be your friend, you must go out and make him your friend. That is to say, the university cannot expect Director Little to become a real Wisconsin man until the university itself initiates him into its circle.

TAKING EXAMS SANELY

Methods of increasing efficiency will always be more or less of an individual matter, as everyone is constituted differently from his neighbor, and what might prove effective for one would be nothing but a detriment for the other. Thus it would be foolish for anyone to try to lay down rules for the entire university, such as regular study hours each day, or whether studying be done alone or in company. For some students do their best work in the evening; many find the afternoon a better time; and each has pet schemes of his own, largely acquired by habit, for doing his work in the best manner and in the shortest time.

It would be equally foolish to lay down rules supposed to cover the behavior of all students during the examination period, but there are certain suggestions quite generally applicable, which are not outside the bounds of reason for all. In the first place, efficient studying is not done in one single sitting for several hours immediately previous to the examination. Whether it be the cramming of an entire course, or the reviewing of work conscientiously done, a far more effective method of study is to do it in installments, over a period of several days. Psychologists also say that it is far better to go over work twice or oftener rather quickly, with an interval between each repetition, than to cover the same material once, taking the same aggregate amount of time. Thus much better results would come from two hours studying each day next week for an examination on Saturday than from ten solid hours Friday night.

Obviously, notes that a student has taken himself will aid him far more than those borrowed from a class-mate. However, it is often a good plan for two students to study together, exchanging ideas and information, as long as one of them isn't doing the lion's share of the work. Organization of material is one of the best means for studying thoroughly, and the process of making a careful outline of a course will impress the facts upon the mind of the student as no hit-or-miss method of studying can.

Of major importance, perhaps, is physical condition. When the body is sick the mind does not function, and there is no better way to prepare for an examination than to build up perfect health. Plenty of sleep, even more than usual, and good food at regular periods, are desirable. Physical exercise and recreation are imperative. At least one hour should be spent each day in skating or some other form of sport, and the more completely that studying is forgotten during that time the more valuable it will be. Mental forms of recreation are also important, and if there is time to leave off studying for a while, a good book, music, or a movie is often refreshing.

But whether these suggestions are followed or not, everyone will find it helpful to make certain definite rules to govern his own disposal of time; and then if these rules are religiously followed, there will be no cause to worry about the outcome of the examinations.

THE ICE CARNIVAL

Why more interest is not shown in the ice carnival is a mystery to many, especially when it is remembered that Madison is surrounded by lakes and that there is usually plenty of opportunity for winter sports. This is really not surprising, however, when one realizes that this year, up to date, the lower campus has been the only place where the students might skate.

As we have already recognized the possibilities of iceboating and tobogganing and skiing, the ice carnival will tend to attract attention to the art of skating, which has few devotees here, considering the size of the university. Although examinations are staring us in the face, there is still time to get out that old pair of skates and do a little practicing before Saturday. Seeing that the rink at Camp Randall is now completed and is lighted at night, there will be more room to practice. Any event which helps to interest students in outdoor sports deserves support.

When a congressman at Washington wants a reference book from the Congressional library, all he does is to telephone to the library and four minutes later the desired volume is delivered at his desk. A little underground electric railroad is used in carrying the books. In view of the over-crowded condition of our own library, what a splendid plan this would be if introduced here!

The man who was vaccinated for smallpox and then came down with a severe cold certainly has cause to curse the fates. It is well to remember, however, that it is during warm spells, such as that which has prevailed during the past week, and not during cold snaps, that one must be careful.

All posters for the pre-prom play poster contest are due by 3:30 o'clock today in 453 Bascom hall, according to Geraldine Stentz '26, chairman of the poster committee.

Posters are to show some aspect of the pre-prom play, "The Rescuing Angel," which will be given on Thursday, February 5, at the Parkway theater, Miss Stentz said.

Awards will be first prize, $7; second, $4; third, $2; fourth and fifth, $1 each; and sixth prize, two tickets to the pre-prom play.

"Color and simplicity are two requisites for the posters. Line effects rather than elaboration is the aim that should be expressed," said Miss Stentz.

Frosh Commission Makes Plans For Helping New Men

Plans for helping the new students entering the university at the beginning of the second semester were discussed at the meeting of the freshman commission held in the cabinet room of the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The freshman commission was organized at the beginning of the year with Truman Marsh '28, president, by men who had been interested in Hi-Y groups in high school.

According to C. V. Hibbard, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., the commission was formed with the idea of promoting class morale and rendering service in class activities in general. Discussion groups and social affairs are being planned for the benefit of all men of the class of '28.

WORLD of SOCIETY

Dates Tonight; and Few Days of Exams; Then Badger Prom

Tonight and tomorrow night are the last opportunities for the Joe Campuses to fuss for this semester. The deans decreed that all dances and social engagements should cease two weeks before examinations to allow time for study. But the decree does not cover dates for movies, or the skating rink, the only stipulation being that she must be in by 11 o'clock.

Movie managers have been kind to those who date on social functions, and every theater in the city is featuring a good show for tonight and tomorrow.

Then come final exams. To some a time of horror, to others they are not such a bad time, but bad enough.

But exams are short and must soon come to an end. Then Prom, the "Prom to Remember." With the Oriole and Nicolet hotel orchestras. The sunken gardens, lights, beautifully gowned women and groomed men. That's Wisconsin Prom, the best in the west and one of the outstanding social functions of the collegiate world.

And all this only ten days away.

President Birge expects to spend his remaining years in the writing of books and in the study of zoology, which has been his particular field of work. Upon his retirement in June, the President will move into his new home on University heights which he recently purchased of J. R. Low.

Dean Pound is expected to take up his duties as president of the university the latter part of June. He may come to Madison before that time, should he accept the post.

Statewide Approval of Pound
"Dr. Pound is regarded as one of the keenest minds in the university circles of America," declared Mr. Callahan last night, commenting on the regents' choice. "Nowhere could we have made a more popular selection."

There seemed to be considerable doubt in the minds of many people in the state as to whether he would accept the presidency. Mr. Callahan intimated. "Well and good, IF you

Dean Pound has visited Wisconsin on several occasions, his last appearance in the state being at a lecture before the State Bar association. He is an intimate friend of Louis D. Brandeis of the United States supreme court, through whose influence he was called to fill his present position at Harvard university.

Leader of Progressive Thought

Nebraska is Dean Pound's home state and there he received his early schooling and training in the state university. He is nationally recognized as a leader of progressive thought, an able speaker, and a man of winning yet dynamic personality. He is the recipient of honorary degrees from the universities of Michigan, Missouri, Chicago, Brown, and Harvard. Since 1916 he has been dean of the Harvard Law school and has attracted wide attention through his lectures on legal subjects.

Dean Pound is 54 years old and is married. His sister, Louise Pound, is professor at the University of Nebraska and a writer and educator of repute. Dr. Pound is well known by several members of the faculty who have expressed high approval of the regents' choice. Among these are Dean H. S. Richards of the Law school, who has known the president-elect for 25 years, and Prof. E. A. Ross of the sociology department, who was associated with him at the University of Nebraska until he came to Wisconsin 18 years ago.

Orpheum is So So
This Half; 2 Acts
Show Some Merit
BY S TU

There is reasonably good entertainment at the Orph for the rest of the week, though nothing to write home about. A great disparity appears between the merits of the acts, two of which are big-time stuff. The rest are unfortunately below the standard set by the bills which appeared before Christmas. Somehow we missed an orchestra, as the program was not at all musical.

THATCHER DEVEREAUX AND ADAMS present a dancing set, and the dancing doesn't get by very well.

CRONIN AND HART have the best act on the bill, a collection of humorous songs that are new, or nearly so, here. There is a good deal of snap, the lady is pleasant to look at, and the voices are good.

JENNINGS AND MACK offer Negro monologs and dancing. One of the songs was well received. Not unusual.

FRANK BURT AND MYRTLE ROSEDALE give us another revue, with several girls, a blonde, and some good costumes. Also a Yiddish comedian.

TEX MACLEOD has a Will Rogers act that pleases, due to a combination of skill with a rope and a quizzical outlook on life. Tex got the laughs, and seemed to en-the Goofy Age. Agnes Ayres and Tom O'Malley get married—secretly—and keep the secret for five or ten minutes, too—in fact until the groom registers as "Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanley—and wife." That breaks the news. An old, old lady love of Bob's turns up first in the hotel lobby, and later at an opportune moment that develops into divorce proceedings.

Men are babies—the bigger they are, the bigger babies they are. Women must be "yes-dears"—that all-agreeing, incessantly sympathetic type in order to hold the hubby's love. We wanted to differ with the playwright—but he presented too strong a case.

Perhaps it struck us in the right mood—perhaps we liked the comedy behind the tragic situation of a one year tentative divorce—that accidentally did not hold good! Whatever the reason—why, we liked "Tomorrow's Love"—liked it lots!

Next semester is going to start something new in this column. Yes sir, we are going to make a New Year's resolution. For next semester, in a way, starts a new year. We hope you'll like it; we know we will.

Sorry you haven't dropped in to see us, Hank. Since you're leaving school this semester, there won't be many more days for you to make that promised call. However, if you shouldn't pay us that visit, write us something from wherever you are going and give us any dirt you may have on the actresses you run into,—or will they be actors?

Now that Russ Weenie is out of the infirmary the Pre-Prom play is going along well again. Ahem! If you'll give us as much as Russ did for that, we'll give you something along the same order.

There have certainly been varied reports on the clavilux. So few have been enthusiastic. Most of the members of the audience either said that "it was interesting" or that "it was a bit tiresome."

Yes, Bill Tannowitz is making up for lost time and the play is rounding into shape rapidly. The same criticism that was true of last year's play, though, is true of this one—that it is so funny that the members of the cast even have trouble getting through the serious business of rehearsing.

Anyway, it is easy to see that the clavilux has a great future. Personally we think—although comparisons may be odious—that we would rather have "Wilfred" illustrate our fairy books—yes, we still read them—than Maxfield Parish himself.

The seat sale is going pretty fast, Ken Gardner told us the other day, and those Prom-goers who want to take in the play—and what Prom-goers won't want to—had better order their seats pretty soon if they haven't done it yet.
