MEAD MAKES LAST APPEAL TO STUDENTS

Assistant Chairman of Friendship Fund Tells of Conditions in European Countries

A last, widespread appeal to Wisconsin students to contribute to the Student Friendship fund has been made by "Dick" Mead '22, assistant chairman of the drive. In his appeal, Mead mentioned some of the conditions under which European students are struggling for an education.

"The students of all the universities in the country have felt the increase in prices of books, clothing, and food which have advanced probably 100 per cent above pre-war prices and have necessitated many students leaving school," he said. "It is only in the light of these facts that one can appreciate the precarious situation among students of central Europe where prices have not increased 100 or 200 per cent but 2,000 and 3,000 per cent.

Dollar Equals Two Cents

"Could we imagine a similar situation at Wisconsin—the purchasing value of our dollar equivalent to two cents? If we could we would then, and only then, fully realize the conditions over there.

"Thousands are living on one meal a day. Hopelessness and despair prevail. Living quarters are without light or heat, dilapidated and crowded, conducive to disease which is widespread.

"Since 1914, 30,000 physicians, or one-third of Russia's medical personnel, have died as a result of war and pestilence.

Gifts Will Help

"What will this Christmas gift do for those students? The contributions from students of 26 fund will help to alleviate the distress and privation which now exists among the war stricken countries. There are 11 such countries receiving this aid. Almost 70,000 are being helped regularly, and 200,000 additional are directly influenced.

"One dollar keeps a student in school practically two weeks. Winter is already upon them; money is needed at once. All arrangements are completed for reaching great numbers of these students, if you will only give the word."

Goodnight Receives Letter

In a personal letter received by Dean S. H. Goodnight from a professor at the University of Leipzig, the following statement of prices is quoted:

VODVIL ACTS ARE ON BENEFIT BILL

Three of the Union Vodvil acts will be given at the Christmas benefit show, to be presented at the Orpheum theater on Tuesday afternoon by the Empty Stocking club.

"Heinz" Rubel and "Les" Gage will give their "Toll of the Desert" act. The other two acts are the Butts Brothers and "Dot" Cremer and the Alpha Gamma Rho "Medicine Show."

"Railroad Jack" will be on hand to answer questions, and Madison young people have a few folk dances prepared for the benefit. The regular Orpheum show will not be cut by the supplementing of these acts. Al Thompson's orchestra has offered to furnish music.

ADVERTISERS IN BADGER WILL BE GIVEN POSTERS

Staff Works For Co-operation Between Students and Merchants

All local merchants who contract for advertising in the 1923 Badger will be furnished with an attractive three-color poster which may be displayed in order to indicate to students just what stores are backing the year book, according to Loran Clark, general advertising manager.

"Greater co-operation between students and Madison business houses is the goal toward which the 1923 Badger advertising staff is working," said Clark.

In order to assist students in determining just who these public-spirited merchants are, the Badger staff is giving its advertisers widespread publicity through several different channels. In addition to the poster system for merchants, each fraternity, sorority, and dormitory will be provided with a compact, classified list of advertisers that may be posted on their bulletin boards. From time to time this list will be revised and will appear in The Daily Cardinal.

ASK CITY DADS TO 1923 PROM

Brader Invites Mayor and City Council to Attend Function

Mayor I. Milo Kittleson and the City council have been invited to attend the 1923 Junion Prom, in a special box. The invitation was extended to the mayor by James L. Brader, Prom chairman, in behalf of the university.

"I believe that a large number of the aldermen will be glad to accept the invitation," replied Mayor Kittleson, "and as for myself, I accept right now."

Chairman Brader will appear before the City council in person next Friday night, in order that each alderman may feel that the invitation is meant for him personally.

Prom, this year, will be also extended to include many town organizations. Already the Rotary club has signed up for a box, the Madison club has accepted the invitation, and other Madison groups will be invited.

Mayor Kittleson is much pleased with this move on the part of the 1923 Prom committee. "Your idea to make the Prom not only a university affair but a Madison Prom as well, is a splendid idea, and will do as much as anything I can think of to bring closer together the university and the city, as it should be," he declared in his letter to Brader.

Hold Tryouts For Agric Plays Monday

Tryouts for the evening of plays that will be presented during farmer's week, January 28 to February 4, will be held in the Home Economics building from 3:30 until 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The plays that will be used for the tryouts are "The Dear Departed" and "Neighbors." Miss Margaret McCarthy will have charge of the tryouts.

Bazaar Makes Fairlyland Of Lathrop Hall

Lathrop hall transformed into fairy land by the Y. W. C. A. bazaar offered many possibilities for the pleasure seeker. The Queen of Hearts was there with her tarts, Jack Horner with his Christmas Pie, the Sugar Plum Tree, and Mistress Mary Quite Contrary with her Flower Garden.

Then there was a pretty tea room decorated with nursery silhouettes, and several booths offering pretty things for sale. The swimming pool, transformed into an Italian sunken garden, offered all of the thrills of a summer night with its soft lights, music and a gondola floating about.

A miniature merry-go-round attraction proved the most popular in the gymnasium, which had all the aspects of a carnival, such as fortune telling booths, a shooting gallery, and some freaks. And when the youthful pleasure seeker tired of all these amusements, he could dance in the parlors.

Approximately $500 had been taken in up to 8 o'clock last night.

PROFESSOR MEAD WILL SPEAK AT A. A. E. MEETING

Address to Deal With Nature and Importance of Great Waterway

Prof. D. W. Mead, of the College of Engineering, nationally known as a leader in engineering thought and practice, will address a meeting of the American Association of Engineers, in the Engineering auditorium on Tuesday, Dec. 20, on the nature and the industrial importance of the Great Lakes to St. Lawrence tidewater. The meeting will be open to the public.

"There is no doubt but that the completion of a deep waterway from the sea to the Great Lakes will prove to be an industrial asset of great importance to the northwest, and since the prosperity of a part is prosperity for the whole, the project affects the welfare of every state in the union, and a large part of Canada," said Professor Mead.

Fourteen states are now associated for the purpose of promoting this, the greatest of modern projects. Four of them, including Wisconsin, have, by legislative action, appropriated funds to aid in presenting the matter to the public, and to co-ordinate the efforts of the many industrial leaders who desire to see this great dream fulfilled.

"The Panama canal is a great national asset, said Professor Mead, "but the Great Lakes to St. Lawrence Deep waterway will be of more value, commercially and nationally, than the Panama canal is or ever will be."

It is conceded by everyone that the Panama canal is a profitable investment as a national asset, but commercially it barely pays for the cost of operation. In contrast with this, it has been estimated, that the income from a power plant installation near the point where the international boundary line leaves the St. Lawrence, would not only pay for the operation of the entire canal, but would also retire the investment of $252,000,000 in a period of 50 years, leaving the revenue from the operation of the canal itself untouched.

"This estimate of the engineers is given further support by the fact that promoters have offered to construct the waterway in return for the right to operate this power plant," said Professor Mead.

PHILO SOCIETY WINS ANNUAL JOINT DEBATE

Decision is 3 to 2 at Yearly

Clash Between Lits; Gov.

Blaine Acts as Chairman

Philomathia Literary society won the fifty-first annual joint debate at Music hall last night by a decision of 3 to 2, from Athenae Literary society. The question debated was, "Resolved, that a system of compulsory unemployment insurance, applicable to at least a majority of industrial workers, be adopted by Wisconsin."

The winning Philomathian team was composed of Francis Lamb '23, Dean P. Kimball '22, and Phillip G. Deicher '23. Athenae's affirmative debaters were Abraham Kaufman '22, Samuel Sygman '22, and Melbourne Bergerman '22.

Blaine Presides

In presenting the speakers, Gov. John J. Blaine, who presided as chairman, stated that the question of unemployment insurance which the teams were debating was a live one and of great importance at the present time. He complimented the teams for having chosen such a vital subject.

The chief argument which was presented by the winning team was that a system of compulsory insurance would not relieve the admitted evil of unemployment but would, in fact, aggravate the conditions.

The Negative's Argument

They contended that under such a system as proposed, the industries of Wisconsin, which are already leaving the state because of the burden of state taxation, would be forced to leave in even greater numbers, because of the added weight of an additional $85 per man that employers would have to assume as expense.

In summing up the negative's argument, Deicher, Philomathia's closer, stated, "We feel as does the affirmative, that unemployment is a serious problem. However, we maintain that due to unavoidable causes, such as war, crop failure, and business depression there always will be this problem no matter what the system."

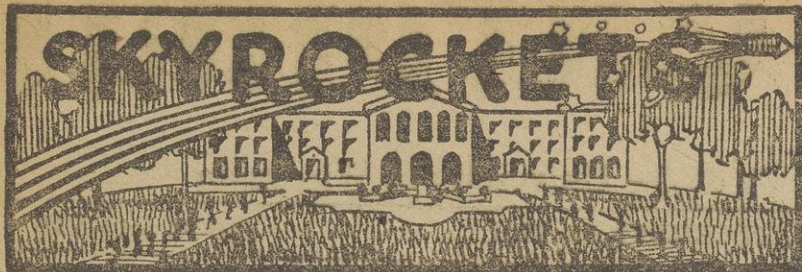

"We also maintain that the affirmative's plan of compulsory insurance would aggravate conditions rather than remedy them. The employer would not be able to gather any excess profits during prosperous times in order to tide him over the period of depression which is a national and uncontrollable." (Continued on Page 11)

HEAVY CHRISTMAS MAIL IS EXPECTED

Owing to the fact that a considerable proportion of students must send their Christmas mail from Madison, the Madison post-office expects the Christmas mail rush to be materially increased this year in the university section.

Postmaster W. A. Devine urges students to send their mail from the stations, in the university section, to relieve the central post office.

"Packages should contain the complete names and addresses of the senders or they will not be dispatched," said Postmaster Devine. "Put a card with name and address of sender and addresses on inside of every package so that proper disposition may be made in case the address on the parcel is obliterated."

The following slip of paper, which was picked up yesterday on the floor of the Union building, is ample proof that we are not lacking in the matter of traditions: [No. 416 A. Published November 26, 1921.]

Chapter 564, Traditions of 1921.

AN ACT to amend the first paragraph of section 3575, subsections 4 and 5 of sections 3327 and 3352 of the traditions relating to undergraduates of the University of Wisconsin.

The Sophomore Traditions Commission, represented in assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The first paragraph of section 3375, subsections 4 and 5 of sections 3327 and 3352 of the traditions relating to undergraduates of the University of Wisconsin are amended to read: (Section 3375) (First paragraph) Every freshman, first year man or yearling matriculated in the University of Wisconsin, shall, whenever he may enter the University pharmacy, provide malted milks for any or all sophomores there assembled, excepting such sophomores who are affiliated with Sigma Chi fraternity, in which case the ruling under paragraph (a) of the subsection (11) of section 20.31 of chapter 98, traditions of 1920, shall apply.

THE only thing that we can make out from the above is that every fifth letter beginning with the last six, when arranged in order, spell out "aufwedersehn como la va juujitsa there is no death."

FAMOUS LAST LINES

"This is the bunk," said the student as he threw down this sheet and turned in for the night.

Wisconsin, including the weekly transmission of Edison phonograph concerts at the Lhevinne concert.

The recent increase in wireless sending power, it is expected, will help greatly in strengthening the position of prominence which the university is assuming in the wireless field.

AT THE PARKWAY

The big pageant scene in "The Son of Wallingford," as showing at the Parkway theater now, was exceptionally difficult to make. About 8,000 persons were used, and it was necessary to organize them in a military formation, with captains, lieutenants, sergeants, and corporals.

Over ten miles of bunting were used to decorate band stands, floats, and buildings of Whittier, Cal. The whole town was turned over to Vitagraph for a week.

The film was made under the direction of Lillian and George Randolph Chester, who wrote the story, and who have endeavored to secure for the cast players whose physical make-up resembles the characters described by them.

Radio Station Tries To Reach England

The sending power of the university's wireless telephone and telegraph apparatus has been greatly increased during the past week by the installation of four new vacuum tubes. Telephone communications with Billings, Mont., and Denver, Colo., were recently very distinctly heard. Three attempts to reach England were made on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, but due to unfavorable conditions, both here and in England, the exact success of the tests will not be known for several days.

The tests, which are part of a national campaign, are being conducted by the Physics department under the direction of Prof. H. L. Terry and Chief Operator Malcolm P. Hanson. Communication with Catalina island, Cal., is being planned. More than 100 radio stations in the east have reported, during the past month, the receipt of telephonic messages sent out from

Badgers Trounce Crimson Team, 27 - 17

CAGERS SHOW FORM REVERSE TO BEAT RIPON

Victory Gives Wisconsin Two Wins and One Defeat

In a partial recovery from its recent early season slump, Wisconsin stepped out and walloped Coach "Ole" Olson's Ripon college quintet by a 27 to 17 score last night. The game was furiously fought and in the last half took on the appearance of a gridiron battle. The win registered by Coach "Doc" Meanwells men gives them an even break in the week-end series and a record of two victories to one defeat.

From the start, the Badgers showed a reversal of the form displayed in the Butler college game on Friday. Only seven fouls were committed as against 18 in that game, and an improvement in basket-shooting was noticeable.

Capt. Ceaser Leads Attack
Wisconsin counted 10 ringers to 6 for their lighter opponents. Led by Capt. "Duke" Ceaser, the offense worked in regular Meanwell fashion and the Cardinal five had no trouble in passing the ball down to within easy striking distance of the Riponites' net. The defense held Ripon near the center of the court and only infrequently did the little Crimson squad sift through the guards for a short try at the basket.

Olson's knowledge of the Wisconsin style of play was of little advantage to his team. His men were unable to put the sphere behind Tebell and Williams. Capt. Gustin, highly-touted Ripon forward, failed to connect for any points during the contest.

Wisconsin Takes Early Lead
Ripon scored first when "Gus" Tebell committed a technical foul. Taylor dropped in another free throw to even up the count, and the Badgers led, 4 to 3, at the end of the first five minutes of play. Four baskets in succession by Gibson, Taylor, and Williams sent the Meanwell men into a safe lead and they were never headed. Schneider counted two baskets for his team and the half ended when Taylor dropped in his fourth ringer. Wisconsin was on the long end of a 14 to 7 at the end of the period.

Furious playing marked the beginning of the second half. Irish went in for Tebell at guard. Ceaser broke into the scoring column with his first successful shot and from then on it was all Wisconsin. Johnson dropped in a pretty shot which was immediately followed by two Ripon scores, but the Badgers quickly recovered and held their opponents while Wisconsin dropped in enough free throws to cinch the victory.

Taylor Weak in Team Play
Although "Cop" Taylor's 13 points made him individual high scorer of the game, his work in team play was ragged and below the standard of the other Badger tossers. The left forward was guilty of poor passing and the many long shots attempted by him were directly contrary to Meanwell's style of play. On the defense, he played the man instead of the ball, seriously hampering the defensive game of the Wisconsin five.

Capt. Ceaser got in some nice work. He was in every offensive play and was the mainstay of the Badger defense. His work was easily up to Big Ten Conference standard, and if the Badger leader maintains his steady improvement in form, he will be one of the best forwards in the Middle West.

Centers Show Improvement
Johnson and Gibson were stronger at center than in the Butler

KALLEY IS HIGH MAN IN FRAT BOWLING LEAGUE

Phi Sigs and Tekes Lead Respective Divisions in Tourney

With the bowling season in full swing, the Tekes and Phi Sigs are still leading in their respective divisions of the inter-fraternity league. Sigma Phi Epsilon holds the record high team score of 937. Combacker, of the D. U.'s holds the record high individual score. His mark for the season averages 244 pins.

The individual averages over 165 follow:

First Division
Kalley, Phi Sig	178
Knutson, Phi Sig	174

game. Gibson, especially, fitted in well with the dense in addition to scoring a basket. Johnson had difficulty in handling the ball. Several muffs by the lanky "Cy" muddled up Wisconsin's marches down the court.

"Gus" Tebell was in A1 form. The two Ripon forwards were unable to net only one basket, that of Ringdahl's in the second half.

Herbst, center, and Schneider, guard, were the heavy scorers for Coach Olson's team. Each marked up two baskets, while Schneider added four free throws to bring his scoring record up to nine.

Schneider's work under his own basket, however, prevented him from watching Meanwell's forwards and enabled the Wisconsin men to ring up 10 successful tosses.

GYM SQUAD WINS FIRST DUAL MEET OVER MILWAUKEE

Victory Augurs Successful Season For Badger Tumblers

(Special to Daily Cardinal)
MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 17—In the first dual meet of the season, the Wisconsin gymnastic squad defeated the Milwaukee C. M. C. A. 252 points to 192, here today.

By defeating the "R" outfit, the Badgers duplicated their victory over the same team at Madison last year.

Kasper was the individual star for Milwaukee.

Coach Fred C. Schlatter's men showed winning ability in every event, and if the squad bears out early season predictions it will be a strong contender for the Western Western conference championship.

Jones Disapproves Of Michigan Policy Of Forced Sports

4,200 Are Now Enrolled in Elective Athletics at Wisconsin

That compulsory athletics are likely to prove detrimental was the opinion expressed by Coach Thomas E. Jones yesterday when asked what he thought of the compulsory athletic system which has recently been adopted at the University of Michigan.

"About 60 per cent of the benefit to be derived from athletics rests on the attitude of the individual and anything that would make the work distasteful ought not to be encouraged," was the stand taken by Mr. Jones.

"You can lead a horse to water, but it does not follow that he will drink. In the same way, it is possible to force the men into athletics, but if they do not enjoy the work, they will lose more than they gain. Our policy has been to give as large a choice in athletics as the facilities will permit, for the men benefit most if they are satisfied.

"At present we have more than 4,200 men taking an active part in sports, which means that only a few hundred would be affected should we adopt a similar compulsory system. Besides, these men are taking work that appeals to them, instead of having something pushed upon them. Nearly four hundred men are playing basketball, and only space keeps more from participating. About 500 more are in track. We offer inter-fraternity, inter-college, inter-regimental, and inter-class competition in all sports, and these also take care of hundreds of men," Coach Jones went on to say.

"Although we have two years of compulsory physical training here at Wisconsin, we permit the men to choose their activity from the very start, and thus take the work in the right frame of mind, which undoubtedly is the biggest factor in athletics. Therefore, although it would appear that we possibly leave too much to the individual desires of the men, the results obtained justify the continuance of Wisconsin's system."

Haas and Levis formed the forward combination which led Wisconsin to basketball championship under Dr. Meanwell and his famous style of play.

Clarence McIntosh, freshman basketball coach, was a Varsity basketball player last year.

Harris, freshman basketball star, was one of Racine's best men in high school tournaments held at Madison the last two years.

BADGERS MEET KNOX COLLEGE NEXT TUESDAY

Varsity Clashes With Five Coached by Sam Barry

Wisconsin will play its third basketball game within a week when Sam Barry and his Knox college team invade the university gymnasium on Tuesday night.

Barry is a former Madison high school man, and is probably the most famous ever turned out from that institution. Since he finished his high school career, he has been coaching successfully in various schools. For the past few years he has been in charge of the game at the Galesburg college.

Knox Plays Snappy Ball

Last year Knox played a preliminary game here, and, while defeated, put up one of the cleanest and scrappiest fights ever made on the local floor. It continued to play good ball all last season, and at the end of the year placed first in the Illinois conference.

The Knox team is composed of several veterans and some valuable new material. Mark Kessenick, a former Madison high school athlete and member of the freshman football squad a year ago, is out for the team, and it is probable that he will be found playing a guard position. Because of his presence, the game will have a dual interest for many university and Madison fans.

Will Be Last Home Prelim

This will be the last of the home preliminary games, and will be the final chance to see the Badgers in action before the opening of the conference season. On Wednesday, they leave for two games at Milwaukee and one at La Crosse, after which they will disband until the early part of January, when Nebraska comes here for a game. On January 2, Meanwell will take his team to Iowa City, where it opens the conference season against the Hawkeyes.

Rockne Will Stay With Notre Dame

NEW YORK—Knut Rockne, for the last three years coach of the Notre Dame university football team will continue in that capacity. This announcement was made here last night at a dinner given by the Notre Dame club to the Rev. James Burns, president of the university.

Rosenthal of West May Be Gopher Coach

BERKELEY, Cal.—Dr. Boles Rosenthal, assistant football coach at the University of California, has confirmed reports that he is being considered for the post of head coach at the University of Minnesota. Dr. Rosenthal, who handled the line on the 1920 and 1921 champion California teams, formerly played center for Minnesota and was a member of an all-western team.

Where had the old training table for athletes gone to? No successful football team went without one in the olden days.

"Vic" Hemming is a Badger basketball man who will be remembered for years.

If Walter Eckersall picked All-Conference teams like he used to play football, there would be fewer kicks registered.

AN OPEN SENATE

A MOVEMENT within the Senate has started an agitation for open meetings of that body.

The Student Senate meetings have for the most part been open, but the students have not generally been aware of that fact. When President Birge's office is used for the meetings only a few onlookers can be accommodated, as the room is small for the purpose.

In order that more can be admitted to the meetings, it has been suggested that the Law Building be used for future Senate meetings.

It would be useless to move the Senate to the Law building, however, unless there is evidence that enough students are really interested to the point of attending. It is difficult to gauge the extent of this interest. It is mainly a matter of conjecture as to the number of students who would avail themselves of the opportunity.

Undoubtedly the only successful way to gauge the number of students interested in open meetings is to conduct the meetings in the Law building, and if sufficient number come out, then have all future meetings held there. The Senate, we take it, is willing to try the experiment. Perhaps there would be many students really interested in self-government—interested to the extent of sitting in on all important meetings.

There is one objection, however, to such open meetings. The sessions may be unduly prolonged by interruption from onlookers. It should be made clear to all that during meetings there could be no recognition by the chairman of the Senate of any student unless he be a regularly elected senator. Objections on any matter or support on any measure coming from any student should be taken up with the Senate at some other than meeting time.

With this clearly understood, it may be that open Senate meetings would be wholly desirable. Surely they would be democratic

A WOMAN'S EDITORIAL

"I wouldn't marry a university woman. She knows too much."

"She has equal rights now, let her stand."

"A college ruins a girl."

As startling as these statements may seem, they have all been made by men on the hill. This is the attitude a great many men take toward modern woman, especially those women they do not know personally. The modern woman is possessed of equal rights of suffrage, so the critics say, she is fast taking positions in the business world formerly given only to men, and she is fast proving quite as efficient as her predecessor, therefore why should we show her courtesy formerly shown to women of culture?

Yes, the man of today has forgotten a great many of the little courteous acts which his grandfather and his father were most proficient in, those kind, courteous little things that cost so little and meant so much both to the given and to the recipient.

Is it due to the fact that the modern woman has come to rely so much on her own capabilities that she does not demand enough of the opposite sex, or is it due to her pride that she merely ignores the fact that she is not receiving all the little courtesies that her mother received, and that she herself would be proud to receive?

It seems that the man of today does not admire or want the woman with brains and intellect. He wants the woman of the period of the early novel or the Sweet Alice Ben Bolt type who keeps a continual stream of tears flowing.

Men should admire modern woman for being capable enough to take her place in the world as a part of production as well as consumption. Her capabilities should call forth more admiration, resulting in more courtesy and graciousness, rather than the contempt or indifference with which she is now treated.—Daily Kansan.

ARE YOU FROM MISSOURI?

Do you take things on faith or do you have to be shown?

There are two kinds of people today, the believer or "truster" and the skeptic or the "gotta show me."

You meet both types everywhere, on the campus, down town, at social gatherings, even in church. You are one or the other yourself.

The believer is one who takes many things on faith. He is self-confident yet not too much so, pleasant in disposition because of his faith in people, intelligent because he has taken over the beliefs of others.

The skeptic must have visible and tangible proof of everything, he takes nothing but the simplest things for granted.

The believer is necessarily looking for the good things in life. The skeptic is waiting for the crash so he can say, "I told you so."—Minnesota Daily.

VASSAR UNIQUE IN OFFERING JOURNALISM

Vassar is one of the first of the women's colleges to offer a course in Journalism as one of its regular electives counting toward the degree. As a prerequisite, six elective hours of writing courses are necessary and the student must gain the consent of the instructor before electing it.

MICHIGAN TO MAKE MOVIE

The Michigan Daily recently signed a contract with an Eastern and Mid-western motion picture producing company for the production of a University of Michigan motion picture. The picture is to be Michigan in its entirety, it is to be written and acted by students and filmed on the university campus.

Faculty Collects Historical Work of Ralph Yewdale

Late Professor Also Writer of Plays and Student of Literature

The work of collecting the manuscripts and works of the late Ralph B. Yewdale, assistant professor of history of the university, who accidentally killed himself with a revolver on November 26 in Milwaukee, has been begun by members of the university faculty, and will be edited, in all probability, by Prof. A. B. Munroe, of Princeton University, under whom Yewdale took most of his graduate work in 1915.

The most important work is his doctor's thesis on Bohemond, a prince of the Crusaders. This work was under revision by Yewdale at the time of his death, and the preparation for its publication will be continued by members of the university faculty and by Professor Munroe. The work is one of interest to historians, and is accounted by all authorities as a great piece of work.

Talleyrand Discovery

In addition to this volume, there are several papers written by Yewdale, which may be edited and published in the historical journals of this country of Europe. The most interesting paper was one Yewdale had just finished, which dealt with the life of Talleyrand, the great French diplomatist of Revolutionary days. Yewdale spent much of his time last summer in Philadelphia, the American home of Talleyrand, and in Washington and New York, gathering material for his work. He had planned a trip to London and France for next summer, where he would gain other bits of information, which would complete his work.

One paper on Talleyrand, which is now in the hands of a publisher, dealt with an unsigned newspaper article which was published in Philadelphia during the Revolution. By a clear method of analysis, Yewdale proved this article to have been written by Talleyrand. This discovery has added much interest to Talleyrand's work in America, and is an important bit of testimony in dealing with Talleyrand's diplomacy.

Dramatist of Ability

In addition to his historical studies, Yewdale had a wide interest in literary work, and was the author

Bryne Goes to Italy for Study, to Paris for Play

I had heard that one of our history professors was going to Europe next summer to take some pictures of some musty old manuscripts in a dingy palace in Genoa, Italy. "Just the sort of thing," I thought, a dingy cell only to bring back some more reasons for lecturing, and perhaps an excuse for a book."

And one day I met Prof. Eugene H. Byrne on the street, and asked him about it. His face lighted in a minute, and when I told him my suspicions, he burst out laughing. "You see I'm the one that's going to take the photographs," he explained. It was a body blow, but I stuck with until he told me all about it.

We walked through the rain to his home in Lakelawn place, and when he had seated me before a grate fire, with a cigarette in my hand, he went into details, speaking in an animated tone, and explaining things with enthusiasm.

Found Papers Years Ago

"I found these manuscripts some time ago, but I've never had a chance to make my survey of them complete. You see, the last time I went across to Italy the war—that a history professor would do—bury himself for six months in caught me; and the first time,—well, I was on my honeymoon. So, until now I've had no opportunity to really finish the work on the papers. They're really very interesting, dealing with the commerce of the Mediterranean during the Middle Ages.

"The palace,—despite its name,—isn't a very comfortable place to work in; a cobbler and his family occupy the corridor, and the rest of the rooms are occupied, too, but with—well, little things like mosquitos shouldn't bother an earnest scholar."

To Walk to Paris

I asked him if he intended to put in all his time in Genoa. "No, indeed," he answered. "I will land there directly from New York after I sail in the middle of January. In June I hope to meet Samuel Rogers, who taught French here last year, and we will take a walking trip through Spain, I believe, and spend about a month in Paris."

Paris fitted him better than Genoa, I thought, with its art, its music, and its literature. I knew his interests in all these subjects and his eager conversation on any of them convinced me that he would indeed be happy in France. I suggested that to him but he shook his head and said that he couldn't play very long; the work had to be done. "But when I do play I'll play hard."

I think I know why he's sometimes called "Gene."

IT COMES ONLY ONCE A YEAR BUT IT GETS YOU LIKE THIS

Swirls of snow stung faces peering over the edge of swathing fur collars. The white blizzard made it hard to see whether the angry gray green waves of the lake were quieting into unbroken rigidity. A slight little girl with vivid cheeks pranced her way down the street against the storm. She stuck her hand out and waved at a tall youth strolling down the other side, his head half buried in his sheepskin.

"Merry Christmas" she called at him. He stopped, startled at the half familiar phrase, and crossed the street.

"My heavens, it is most that, isn't it. For heaven's sake come with me while I buy a present for my sister."

So she did, and after they had finished they wandered around the shop of lovely things and, with eyes demurely downcast, she tentatively picked up beautiful objects, holding them with delicate fingers and murmuring half shyly:

"I like that."

It was about a week before Christmas and the gang at the house was just coming home from 11 o'clocks and making a rush for the littered mail table.

"How many invites did you pull?" queried the black-haired boy with ostentatious nonchalance and a twinkle in his heavily lashed brown eyes.

A sophisticated youth with a southern drawl started enumerating a fistful of little white envelopes.

"Well, here's a dance of the Brown sisters, flat tires, but wonderful house for a dance. Then here is old Jim throwin' a party on the twenty-eighth. Reckon his sister made him. She's a dainty little fairy, but how she can go. This the Thompsons, and here are the Roberts with a big spread."

The brown eyed boy broke in on the soliloquy.

"Don't brag. A girl's changing the date of her debut so I can get there."

A boy on the outside of the crowd, (he was usually there from choice; it gave one so much perspective, but today he was there from necessity, and maybe that's why his perspective was lacking), as he moved away from the racket, grumbled to himself.

"Gee, I wish somebody would ask me to a party," and then turning with a whimsical smile to a cheerful youth, he asked, "What does it feel like to be popular, and does Sari Field really teach you to dance?"

The stern-lipped woman was talking to the fresh-faced little girl, who was waiting in the drug store for the car. They had both been buying Christmas cards, the girl selecting those in most execrable taste, and the woman sticking to the severe, plain "Season's Greeting" variety.

"No," remarked the woman decidedly. "We never give presents at our house. It's much more satisfactory and a great saving in time and money."

The girl didn't ask for what she was saving it.

"There is a student who lives at my house who is almost a nervous wreck. And no wonder, she has let

Series of Books on Government Edited by Ogg

Wisconsin Men Represented in Century Political Science
Series

One of the most important tasks ever undertaken by a member of the University of Wisconsin faculty is now under way, with Prof. Frederic Austin Ogg, of the political science department acting as editor of a series of authoritative books on American and international political science. The series will number, probably, about 15 or 16 volumes, and will be written by professors in Chicago, Yale, California, and other American universities.

The series is the first of its kind in the field, and will doubtless be recognized as the authoritative reference for all political science work in the future. One volume of the series, which is to be published by the Century Co., New York city, is ready for appearance, and is titled "The Conduct of American Foreign Relations," written by Prof. John M. Mathews, of the University of Illinois.

Wisconsin Men Represented

Wisconsin men, in addition to Professor Ogg as editor, will be well represented in the series by Prof. Pitman B. Potter, whose manuscript on "The Introduction to the Study of International Government" is now ready, and by Prof. Graham H. Stuart, who is preparing a volume on "Latin America and the United States."

Professor Ogg, with Prof. P. Orman Ray, of Northwestern University, is writing a volume on "Introduction to American Government."

"I feel that this series is appearing at a most opportune time," said Professor Ogg yesterday. "The world is in the midst of a change, and political science is receiving an unusual amount of attention from all sources. In addition, there is absolutely no series now available which covers the ground as thoroughly as this series seems to portend. Political science has been often written of, but at no time has such a definite attempt been made to combine any series of books in his manner on the subject."

Not Text Books

Some of the volumes will be quite definitely intended as texts, while others will have a more varied appeal. "The Constitutional History of the United States," by Prof. Andrew C. McLaughlin, of the University of Chicago, is pointed to by Professor Ogg as a book that will stand out as one of the best books on the subject, and will certainly have a wider field than mere text book work.

"It is extremely interesting," said Professor Ogg, "to work with such men as McLaughlin and Seymour, of Yale, in the preparation of this series. The authors have been given the widest possible range of material and methods of handling, but there are certain points on which there must be an agreement. The meetings of these men with the editor in order to corrolate and relate the different parts of the series is extremely interesting and worth-while."

Professor Ogg will attempt to arrange for another Wisconsin man to write upon Japanese and American diplomacy, and will make final arrangements in the east during the Christmas holidays.

The publication of the volumes will follow one another as fast as they are made ready by the authors, said Professor Ogg, and will be issued as separate volumes in the series.

Band Presents Opening Concert Today; Kreisler Leads in Ballot

Results of Referendum Taken at Mozart Club Concert Are Announced Today; Heifetz is Popular

The University First Regimental band offers a variety program at its first recital tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock in the University gymnasium. The three big numbers include: "Overture to the Opera, 'Rienzi,'" by Wagner, Prologue from the Opera, "Pagliacci," by Leon Cavallo, and Selection from the Opera, "Faust," by Gounod. The Gounod opera "Faust" is the most popular of Gounod's operas, and this composition has proved a matinee favorite among musicians. "The Polish Dance, Opus 3, No. 1" by Scharwenka; and the Massenet numbers, are the lighter works to be given. As is customary, the band will play America marches for encores.

A special musical program will be given by the choir Sunday morning at 10:45 at the Christ Presbyterian church. The cantata "Bethlehem," will be the important number of the program.

Another series of tryouts for string players who wish to play in the University orchestra will be held directly after the Christmas holidays. Appointments may be made at any time with E. W. Morphy, University band director, in Room 3, Music hall.

Madison music lovers evidently prefer instrumental over vocal music.

A tabulation of the referendum taken at the Morini concert by the Mozart club Thursday evening was announced today. The referendum in the audience was taken by the club as a guide for the selection of the artist for next year's recital. Cards were passed out in the audience and those present indicated their choice.

Out of 1013 votes, 547 voted for instrumental music and 322 for vocal.

The referendum revealed the following desires for next year's concert:

Violin, 132; harp, 98; cello, 73; tenor, 67; contralto, 61; soprano, 50; piano, 44.

The favored artists follow: Kreisler, 44; Heifetz, 41; Galli Curci, 41; McCormack, 27; Morini, 18; Alma Gluck, 16; Salvi, 16; Rachmaninoff, 13; Schumann-Heink, 9; Reginald Werrenrath, 9; Mischa Elman, 3; Bruno Steindl, 2; Harrold, 1; Scotti, 1; Anna Case, 1; Vescey, 4; Muratore, 2; Bauer, 4; Mabel Garrison, 1; May Peterson, 3; Ysaye, 1; Frieda Hempel, 3; Farrar, 1; Riccardo Martin, 1.

There were many other scattering votes. One voted for Babe Ruth and another voted for Jack Dempsey.

Christmas carolling in Madison will be carried on to a greater extent this year than in preceding years. Christmas carols have been sent to various organizations to help foster the right kind of spirit. University students in the community music class at the university are making arrangements to start community carolling when they return to their home towns during the vacation. They include: Fay Atherton '23, Ariel Bassett '24, Helen Dickinson '22, Lucy Griem, Lula Kilpatrick '22, Vesta Stockdale, Jennie O'Neill '25, Agnes Pelzer, Marie Peterson '23, Helen Roberts '23.

Passing into the middle of the season the Chicago Opero company offers unusual opportunities for holiday visitors in Chicago, and for students returning home for Christmas. Galli-Curci, the famed coloratura soprano, return to Chicago for appearances in "Traviata" and "Lucia," while the famous cast of Garden, Muratore, and Baklanoff, will play together several times, in "Carmen," in "Mousses," and other operas.

On Thursday night, when most of the Wisconsin people are in Chicago, "Manon" will be sung, with Edith Mason, soprano, and Muratore, tenor, while Galli-Curci sings "Lucia" on Saturday afternoon.

The First Methodist church will hold a special Christmas choral service Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The program will consist of the simple Christmas carols. The organ prelude, "Noel Ecossais," an ancient Christmas carol, will be one of the important musical selections. A large chorus will take part in the program.

DECK THE HALL.

Deck the halls with boughs of holly,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
'Tis the season to be jolly,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Don we now our gay apparel,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Troll the ancient Yuletide carol,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

2.
See the blazing Yule before us,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Strike the harp and join the chorus,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Follow me in merry measure,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
While I tell of Yuletide treasure,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

3.
Fast away the old year passes,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Hail the new, ye lads and lasses,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Sing we joyous all together,
Fa la la la la la la la la.
Heedless of the wind and weather,
Fa la la la la la la la la.

Many nations have Christmas songs, but the gay carol is found principally in the British Isles. Before these people were Christianized they had a mid-winter festival called Yule which was a season of merry-making. Songs were used which not only called forth lusty rollicking singing but also stimulated dancing and frolicking. When Christianity was established in England, the missionaries instead of attempting to suppress the carols, which were the popular music of the day, encouraged their use with the new religious interpretation of Christmas. Frequently the texts were slightly changed, or even entirely rewritten in order to present the Christian idea, but occasionally, on the theory that "a principal point of charity, it is to be merry", the old pagan songs were preserved in their original forms.

Deck the Hall is one of this type. It comes from Wales, that land of hearty singing. It vividly pictures the household preparation for the joyful feast. The famous Christmas puddings mingle their odors with those of the fresh evergreens of holly and mistletoe which hang in garlands to 'deck the hall'. The kitchen and hall ring with the sound of happy voices. At mid-night of Christmas Eve the Yule log, decorated with all kinds of devices and garnished with evergreens is brought in with a procession of lights, banners, and songs and placed in the middle of the room. Each one present was expected to sit on it and sing a Yule song. Certainly one that they trolled lustily was this carol beloved of old and young.

3,906 More Babies Born In State in 1920 Than in 1919

Wisconsin in 1920 reported to the census bureau 58,697 births, an increase of 3,906 over 1919, the year's total representing a birth rate of 22.2 per thousand population, as compared with a rate of 20.9 for 1919 and 23.5 for 1918, according to the state board of health.

The 1920 birth rate for the registration area, which comprises 23 states, was 23.7 which was higher than the rate of 22.3 for the previous year. The highest birth rate, 31.7 for the white population was found in North Carolina, and the lowest, 18.3, in California.

Of Wisconsin's 58,697 births last year, 58,315 were white and 382 were colored. The latter included 87 negro, 288 Indian, 5 Chinese, 1 Japanese, and 1 other colored.

In the birth rate registration area the 1,968 births of Indians exceeded the number of Indians by 90, indicating that the Indian population did not decrease in the area last year.

Weather Man Refuses to Predict White Xmas

All efforts to induce the weather man to predict a "white" Christmas one of the regular, old-fashioned variety, proved futile today, in spite of the moderate snowfall which continued all afternoon.

At the local weather bureau it was said this afternoon that the snow would probably cease some time today and be followed by a sharp but brief cold wave, which would force the thermometer down to 10 above by tomorrow morning.

A warm wave should allow this, bringing the same kind of weather we have had the past three weeks, the bureau's charts show.

College Big Man Gone Wrong In Stephen Vincent Benet's Book

"The Beginning of Wisdom" Ends Dismally in Marriage; The Critic Says, "Read 'em and Weep"

The Beginning of Wisdom, by Stephen Vincent Benet. Henry Holt and Co., New York, 1921. $2.

Mr. Benet reminds me of a former literary genius of Wisconsin and editor of the Lit, who showed me with considerable pride a catalogue of ideas, or a thought-collection, all arranged in alphabetical order. When he felt the urge, he would take out several ideas and arrange them in a systematic manner. The result was a novel. Benet must have gone through the same process in the making of The Beginning of Wisdom. The book does not contain a single original idea. We can perhaps forgive him that, but the ideas it does contain, picked up from everywhere and nowhere, are written down in the dullest fashion. We can forgive a writer for being sentimental and good, like a Y. M. C. A. secretary, or nasty and shady like some of the editors of the Lit, but it is an unpardonable sin to be dull.

The familiarity of the subject should perhaps make the book interesting to a college man. The main character, Philip Sellaby, is a Yale man who writes poetry. He is one of the big men in college, being the chief editor of the "Lit," art editor of the "Record" and a member of a prominent fraternity. In short, he has all the qualifications for talking to an audience on leadership. An unfortunate love-affair ends his college career; he wants to enlist. But, "for the first and only time in his life," the big man in college faints, when the doctor tells him he has tuberculosis. Later he is accidentally deported with the I. W. W. from a mining town, breaks with his family, and becomes a movie actor. But in 1918 he enlists and makes up again with his family. The author "kills him off" at the age of 28, in the year 1920, by making him happily married.

Philip is like many other big men in college, sentimental and a terrible bore. "I passed out cold at ten p. m. in a minor dive, quoting the 'Shropshire Lad,'" he writes to an intellectual friend. It is sad that anyone should write about such an uninteresting being in such an uninteresting way.

When the author wants to be satirical, he is comical. His comparisons are hectic. The only chapter that is not immensely boring is the most sentimental chapter in the book, describing the love-affairs of Philip and Milly. It is written with ease, but it is called "Frankie and Johnny were Lovers."

In spite of all I have said, I recommend the book to the editors of the Literary Magazine, to journalists who write poetry, and the fraternity men who are proud of being fraternity men. I only pray that after they have read it, they will never get an inspiration to write a novel on a Wisconsin man.

To Take Play On Road Is Planned By Edwin Booth

Edwin Booth dramatic club has made definite plans this year for a distinctly Edwin Booth club production consisting of a full length play to be presented the latter part of March.

This is a departure from the custom in the past and comes as a result of the club's aim this year to broaden its dramatic activities.

A play will be presented which has few woman parts and offers considerable opportunity for participation by the members. The play will be presented at the Parkway and then taken on the road. The trip will include Milwaukee.

A committee consisting of Arthur McCaffery '23, Henry Rubel '23, William Tannowitz '23, and Horace Gregory '23, are at work looking for a suitable play.

everything go till the last minute and is now trudging around in the snow trying to buy ten presents at once. It's the Lord's mercy she has plenty of money."

The girl was glad when her car came and she could leave the loquacious woman. She thought of her six packages carefully tied with green and with red ribbon, all lying on the snowy spread of her bed, ready to be packed. Her car stopped at the station and she went up to the ticket agent.

"Where to," he snapped. "Home," she beamed. And the ticket agent lost his cynicism for a minute and kindly inquired if it was Fond du Lac instead of snapping out in his usual vein:

If your sense of humor was so fortunate as to receive the nourishment afforded by H. L. Mencken's article in the recent Nation, it will wax and grow fat over William McFee's caustic advice to Mr. Mencken in the December Bookman. Before setting himself up as a philologist, Mencken, in the opinion of McFee, would do well to recast the spelling of his name.

Keith Preston's Splinteres appear to be sticking in the hands of the public, despite the fact that there is nothing wooden about them.

When H. M. Tomlinson goes down The docks and wharves on LONDON RIVER, He does his job up green and brown, Producing a delightful shiver.

The latest authority on the South Seas seems to be Walter Traprock whose explorations in the Filberts appear to have affected his viewpoint on travel writing.

From its name, we judge THE BEGINNING OF WISDOM is not a book for those subjected to the rigors of this collegiate environment.

Have you been able to get hold of a Christmas La Vie Parisien? There is much to be said for the French spirit at Yule.

This page would be a much better imitation of the Chicago Daily

News book page if we had a woodcut and some book-ads. You know —If we had some ham, we'd have ham and eggs—if we could cajole some Plymouth Rock to part with the proceeds of a day's labor.

All of which reminds us that Sherwood Anderson's THE TRIUMPH OF THE EGG is not altogether a book for poultry fanciers, except, perhaps, in the slang sense. Columbus should have written this book the morning after a certain banquet, but evidently was forced to pass the buck along through the centuries until Mr. Anderson was able to open, which he seems to have done with a pat hand.

"And Even Now," Max Beerbohm's latest job, Has made its bow To some, but not the mob.

The crop of novels, the offsprings of young writers who neither starve nor struggle, is inspiring in one direction. Some day we intend taking the time off and turning out one of these sets of three hundred or so pages. And after doing this, we'll drift eastward and get a job tending Christopher Morley's furnace or cleaning his walks,—they say that he is the Saint Peter who guards the gate to the paradise of publishing houses.

"It's a fine season for ducks," remarked the reviewer as he tossed the twelfth new novel into the corner.

WISCONSIN LEADS WAY.
That people are moving forward in the direction of social justice; that Wisconsin, a leader, has made great progress by the establishing of an industrial commission, a juvenile court, and the passing of such laws as the child labor law, the Huber law and the mother's pension law, were statements made by Ernest Warner in an address Thursday night before the Luther League at the Trinity Lutheran church.

of several plays. One, dealing with Chinese life, was written in collaboration with R. C. Ruben '14, who is now on the staff of the Milwaukee Journal. This play has been under consideration for production by several leading managers, and may still be accepted and produced. Another play concerning French life was being re-written and revised with the help of Prof. A. B. Ernst, of the Romance Language department.

"All sorts of work came easily to Yewdale," said Professor Ernst, yesterday. "He worked almost without effort, and always produced results of the highest degree. His literary ability was very marked, and his knowledge of the drama and French literature was remarkably complete. That he was a brilliant man is to be noticed in the splendid letter sent here by Dean West of the Graduate school of Princeton University. West knew Yewdale only by his work, and saw in him a man of great ability."

Weeks Would Conscript Men and Money in War

WASHINGTON—Secty. of War, Weeks, is in favor of the mobilization of men, money and manufactures under a conscription law in the event of future war. Such a course he declared last night at the annual reunion of war industries board would preclude profiteering and slacker lists. "I would conscript every person from 18 to 60 years of age, should a future war prevail," he said.

AT THE ORPHEUM

Doc Baker "the lightning change artist" is the headliner act of the program offered at the Orpheum for the first part of the week, starting Monday night. Other acts which catch the eye are Lutes Brothers, Buddy Walker, Frank and Gertie Fay, and West and Van Sien. Doc Baker has established a reputation for himself as the swiftest of all those who seek to astonish by the rapidity with which they alter their appearance.

Vaudeville with plenty of variety is the offering at the Orpheum for today, headlining the bill being two exceptional acts, J. C. Nugent, author comedian, with a line of talk both bright and entertaining, and the Popularity Queens, a quartet of good looking young ladies,

AT THE STRAND

Tom Moore will be shown at the Strand for three days, starting today, in a delightful Rupert Hughes comedy, "From the Ground Up," that was produced by Goldwyn. In this photoplay, Mr. Moore begins life as a ditch-digger in an excavation for a business building. The lowly hero arouses the envy of the rich and care-worn builder. His daughter, too, is attracted to the happy spirit in the ditch.

When the building becomes too great an undertaking for the builder, and his fortune is lost, the ditch-digger has already risen to a position of semi-responsibility.

There are many humorous and pathetic episodes in this Rupert Hughes comedy which lead to a satisfactory conclusion.

able event. Business always has and always must move in cycles."

The affirmative upheld the Huber bill as a method for successfully working out compulsory insurance as a method for relieving the state from unemployment and its attendant ills. They stated further that such a system would place the responsibility of the matter in the hands of those most competent, the captains of finance. These men have both an incentive and a feeling of compulsion to relieve the situation through the proposed system.

Bergerman, the Athenae closer, stated that the proposed bill would benefit all of the three classes of society, the employer, the employee, and the public. He claimed that there would be a minimum of poverty and other subsequent evils of unemployment, and he said that employers would be forced to cut down to a minimum their labor reserves.

Professors J. M. O'Neill, Andrew T. Weaver, and Robert Owen, of the department of speech; Professor Frank C. Sharp, and Walter C. Owen of the state supreme court, acted as judges.

As result of the debate last night, Philomathia will debate the Hesperia next year. Philomathia won from Hesperia last year.

Both of the literary societies were present in a body. By many songs, yells, and cheers a great deal of enthusiasm was worked up for both sides. At the beginning of the program a bit of excitement was occasioned by a dispute as to whether Athenae's symbolic rooster, should decorate the platform or not. A compromise was affected by limiting the time that it should remain in its position.

Halsey Kraege of Hesperia introduced Governor Blaine.
