

Tekana?tsyá·sle Lato·láts.

[s.l.]: [s.n.], 1970/1979

<https://digital.library.wisc.edu/1711.dl/GAIVO3DFFRRN49C>

The libraries provide public access to a wide range of material, including online exhibits, digitized collections, archival finding aids, our catalog, online articles, and a growing range of materials in many media.

When possible, we provide rights information in catalog records, finding aids, and other metadata that accompanies collections or items. However, it is always the user's obligation to evaluate copyright and rights issues in light of their own use.

Double-Pail Hunts

They say that Double-Pail had gone hunting and he made a kill. Then evening came and it got dark on him. It had just been dark a short while when he got back at the edge of the cornfield. He considered what he should do: whether he should go around the field or go back through the field since he was so tired carrying his burden. So they say he chose to go back through the field. Since there were so many ears in the corn he had planted, he just barely got back with so many ears of corn striking his body.