Educational Plans Outlined for Youth for Study At Home

The problem of the high school graduate, faced with difficulties in continuing his education, is discussed in a pamphlet sent by the University of Wisconsin Extension division to the 28,000 Wisconsin youths who are finishing high school this spring. Suggestions are made whereby college credit subjects may be taken at home in advance of college entrance, or courses of a vocational type completed through home study.

"One of the opportunities open to the high school graduate," it is pointed out, "is the privilege of continuing his education at home, under the direction of a University instructor. Such a privilege is the immediate solution of the problem of the student who is unable to go away to school."

Freshman English, required of college freshmen everywhere, is referred to as a typical subject that may be completed at home before entrance in college or University. A full semester's program of freshman work also is outlined for correspondence study. Subjects making up such a program, in addition to English, include mathematics, science, history and drawing.

Foreign language requirements also can be partially satisfied through extension work. Extension courses provide instruction in French, German, Greek, Italian, Latin, Norwegian, and Spanish.

The extension publication lists many courses that may be taken for business and technical training, without degree credit in view. Among these are two courses in business correspondence, recently revised. The purpose of these is to provide training in writing effective business letters.

Three U. W. Radio Programs Win In National Exhibit

Again this year the University of Wisconsin scored when three of its radio programs were selected as superior in competition with 113 entered by educational organizations and institutions at the recent second American exhibition of educational radio programs at Ohio State University. Last year the University won first award on an art program for schools.

First honors in the class for high schools went to "French For High Schools," by the University of Wisconsin Department of French. The winning episode was "Carinval at Nice," written by Mlle. Germaine Mercier with a translation by M. Kroff. The cast, directed by Walter Krulevitch, included M. Andre Leveque, M. W. T. Bandy, Mme. Henriette Eynon, and Mlle. Nancy Barker.

The program, according to the judges, "had everything a good program should have." It depicted the language, music and spirit of the French people so that high-school classes could better understand and enjoy their study of French.

To Establish Library In Memory of Dr. Mills

A fund to establish a memorial library in memory of the late Charles H. Mills, former director of the University of Wisconsin school of music, has been started at the school. Dr. Mills was director of the school from 1914 until his death in 1937.

The committee in charge of the memorial is composed of the following students and alumni: W. L. Higgins, '40; Elizabeth M. Schadauer, '39; Lucille Rochlus, '36; Rufin W. Boyd, '28; and Helen Piper-Law, '17. Faculty members on the committee are: Helene Stratman-Thomas, treasurer; E. B. Gordon, and Leland A. Coon, chairman.

The committee proposes to augment the music library by procuring complete editions of certain composers, to move the present library to more commodious quarters and to place a bronze plaque designating this as the Charles H. Mills Memorial Library.

U. W. Summer Classics Course to Study Abroad

A summer school field-study graduate course in "Classical Art and Archaeology," in which the students will study during a minimum of seven weeks spent on the sites and in the museums of Greece and Italy, was recently approved by the University of Wisconsin faculty.

Permission to offer the course this coming summer and in succeeding years was requested by the State University's department of classics. As planned, the course will be directed each year by a member of the department. During the coming summer, Prof. Walter Agard will have charge of the new course.

At least two of the seven weeks of the course will be spent in Rome and 10 days in Athens. The new course will count as a six weeks summer school residence course, and four credits will be allowed for it. Registration for the new course must be made in advance in the University Graduate school office, Bascom hall.

Farm Women to Talk Food, Clothes, and Homes on Field Day

Wisconsin farm women will air their problems in keeping their families well fed at low cost when they meet for Farm Folks' Field Day at the State University East Hill farm near Madison, June 11.

Among the foods to be considered are vegetables, fruits, milk, cheese, butter, meat, eggs, cereal, honey, sorghum and maple syrup. Plans for producing and preserving some of these foods at home will get prominent attention. Discussions are to be led by Mary Brady and Gladys Stillman, extension nutritionists.

A style review, "Around the Clock with Cottons" will bring out the possibilities of cotton clothing for morning, afternoon and evening wear. This part of the program, led by Gladys Meloche, Jean McFarland, and Elizabeth Birong will emphasize the points to consider when selecting attire for work, leisure and play.

Pointers on securing comfort, convenience and attractiveness in the farm home through careful planning of economical remodeling, step-saving arrangement, and tasteful decoration will be given by Max LaRock, Margaret McCordic and Wealthy Hale. Group singing will be led by Verne Varney.

Farm folks will meet about 9 o'clock in the morning of Field Day, bringing lunches for a picnic at noon. The special homemakers' program will begin at 1:30 and continue until 4 o'clock.

12 U. W. Students Are Named to Public Service Scholarships

The state bureau of personnel has announced that 12 University of Wisconsin students have thus far been chosen to serve apprenticeships in the state service under Gov. Philip La Follette's plan for an in-service apprenticeship training program in various state departments. They will start work for the state July 1.

Some time ago the names of the first five students who have been chosen were published but since then eight more have been chosen by committees representing University faculty members and state department heads.

The names of the new State University students chosen and the departments for which they will work are: Highway department: Glenn Krejchik, Friendship; Douglas E. Schneible, Superior; James S. Vaughn, Madison, and Paul Edlund, Madison.

Public service commission: Robert Blum, New York City; Paul F. McGuire, Wauwatosa.

Mental Hygiene: Hugh A. Kennedy, Madison.

The five previously chosen and the departments for which they will work are:

Hallie Lou Whitefield, Madison, bureau of personnel; Arthur C. Larsen, Racine, department of vocational education; Katherine W. Boundy, Beloit, and Pearl F. Hertz, Madison, department of public welfare; and Merrill V. Gregory, Colfax, tax commission.

According to the bureau of personnel more students will be chosen before the semester is over. All those chosen are either graduate students or will graduate in June.

Under the plan, these students enter into a contract with the state whereby they borrow a sum not to exceed $400 and pay this back from the salary they receive from the state.

Members of Class of '88 to Get Awards in Recognition of 50-Year Loyalty to U. W.

In recognition of their half-century of loyalty to the University of Wisconsin, members of the Class of 1888 who of their graduation from the State University this year will be presented with Golden Jubilee Certificates by the Wisconsin Alumni association, it was announced today by John Berge, executive secretary of the association.

The certificates will be presented to the members of the class at the annual senior-alumni dinner, which is to be held during the State University's commencement week-end, on Saturday night, June 18. The Class of 1888 will be the oldest reuniting class this year. It will be the second time in the history of the State University and its alumni association that such certificates have been presented to Wisconsin graduates. Members of the Class of 1887 received the certificates last year.

The senior-alumni dinner will be the climax of the annual Alumni Day during the University's 85th commencement week-end. Hundreds of Wisconsin alumni, returning to the campus for their annual reunions, will participate in the various events of the day, which annually lead up to the main events of the commencement week-end program — the baccalaureate sermon for the senior class, to be held in the University field house Sunday afternoon, June 18, and the 85th commencement ceremony, also in the field house, at 9 a. m. Monday, June 20.

Living members of the University of Wisconsin's class of 1888 who will receive the Golden Jubilee certificates this year are as follows:

George Bollinger, Rockford, Ill.; Kirke L. Cowdery, Oberlin, Ohio;

2,500 State High School Musicians to Compete at U.W.

More than 2,500 youthful high school musicians from all parts of Wisconsin will come to the University of Wisconsin campus this Saturday, May 28, to take part in the annual state high school Music Festival, it was announced by Prof. Orien E. Dalley, of the State University school of music faculty, who is chairman of the general committee making plans for the event.

Sponsored jointly by the University and the Wisconsin School Music association, the Festival will consist of countless music and voice contests in which the several thousand high school students will compete for the high school music honors of Wisconsin.

It will be the "cream" of Wisconsin high schools' annual "music crop" which will be competing for honors in the Festival at the State University, since only the first division winners in 12 different district contests in the state are eligible to enter the state-wide Festival, Prof. Dalley said.

Play All Instruments

Only solo and ensemble groups will be entered in the Festival contests, but every single instrument of either band or orchestra, as well as piano and voice competitions are scheduled. The 12 district festivals in which contests are now being held are at Ashland, Rice Lake, Eau Claire, LaCrosse, River Falls, Mineral Point, Columbus, Manitowoc, Marshfield, Whitewater, New London and Milwaukee.

During the one-day state-wide Festival at the University, there will be 13 different contests going on simultaneously in 13 different buildings during the entire day, Prof. Dalley said. Such a schedule is necessary, he said, in order to get through the hundreds of contests in one day. All of the contests will be held in buildings within a radius of two city blocks of Music hall on the State University campus.

Committee Makes Plans

Serving on a committee of 10 members with Prof. Dalley in making plans for the event, which is one of the state's outstanding music events each year, are the following: Dr. Charles O'Neill, Prof. E. B. Gordon, Prof. Raymond F. Dvorak, and Robert Foss, all of the University staff; T. Lane Ward, Madison; W. B. Arvold, Reedsburg, state director of the Federal Music Project; and Richard Church, William Sur, Leroy Klose, and Joseph Wolters, all of Madison schools.

Working jointly with the committee as representatives of the Wisconsin School of Music association are Paul Schenck, Green Bay, president of the association, and H. C. Wegner, secretary. A number of advanced students of music in the University have also been named to a committee to aid in conducting the various contests.

Their salary will range from $100 monthly upwards.

Students are to serve an apprenticeship of two years at the end of which time if they desire to continue in the service of the state they must take and pass a civil service exam for the position they hold. A student may leave the service at any time he chooses upon repaying the loan to the state.

While working for the state students will attend certain classes that will prepare them for better service and acquaint them with the workings of the state departments.

Milk Has Richer Color If Alfalfa Silage Fed

Milk of a richer color than that formerly produced on a hay-corn silage ration can now be produced by feeding the dairy herd alfalfa silage.

This is revealed in a special bulletin "Making Molasses Legume Silage" recently published by the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Wisconsin. The reason for this, it is explained, is that alfalfa silage contains an unusually large amount of the yellow pigment carotene, which is largely responsible for the golden color of milk. In hay-making most of the carotene is destroyed while in silage-making much is preserved.

Although the cost of the molasses added to make a ton of alfalfa silage is only about 75 cents, the actual cost is only about 20 cents as the molasses gives added feeding value to the silage. Even this slight cost may be offset by the advantage of being able to make alfalfa silage regardless of the weather, it is explained. Complete directions for making alfalfa silage are contained in the bulletin.

Hundreds of U. W. Alumni to Reune at 85th Commencement

"Reune in June" is the watchword being broadcast far and wide by 10 former University of Wisconsin classes now making preparation for the annual trek back to the campus of their Alma Mater. This year the classes of 1888, 1893, 1903, 1908, 1913, 1921, 1922, 1923, and 1924 will come back to attend the 78th annual class reunions and the 85th annual commencement exercises of the State University.

From the time the first alumnus registers on Thursday, June 16, until the carillon peals its final recital on Monday, June 20, Wisconsin alumni who attend reunions this year will have plenty to do. Two interesting adult education features, luncheons, crew races, dinners, and informal receptions, along with official University commencement activities, will fill the entire weekend.

Alumni Institute

During Friday, June 17, Wisconsin alumni will have their third opportunity in as many years to "go back to classes again" under the guidance of members of the University faculty at the third annual Alumni Institute. The four topics to be considered at the Institute this year, and the faculty members who will lead discussions on them are:

"Social Security—A Wild Dream or a Practical Plan?" discussion led by Prof. Edwin E. Witte, '09, and Fred H. Clausen, '97; "Education and Group Values," by Profs. Max C. Otto, '06, and Alexander Goldenweiser; "Speculation—A Menace or an Indispensable Feature of Capitalism?" by Prof. W. Bayard Taylor and William S. Kies, '99; and "What is the University Teaching about Capitalism, Communism, and Fascism?" by Profs. Selig Perlman, '10, and Grayson L. Kirk.

Honor Class of '88

The Wisconsin Alumni association will honor its past presidents at a dinner on Friday night, and at 10 a. m. Saturday, June 18, the association hold its annual meeting. The 77th annual senior-alumni dinner will be held in the Memorial Union Saturday night with Pres. C. A. Dykstra as the main speaker. Honored guests at the dinner will be the members of the Golden Anniversary reuniting class, 1888, who will be presented with loyalty certificates by the association.

Sunday afternoon, June 19, the alumni will attend the annual Baccalaureate services in the University field house, and on Monday morning, June 20, they will attend the 85th annual commencement exercises at which more than 1,500 young men and women will receive their first and higher degrees. At this ceremony, the University will also confer honorary degrees upon three of its illustrious alumni, Sen. Robert M. LaFollette, Jr.; Miss Katherine Lenroot, chief of the U. S. Children's bureau in Washington; and Dr. Harry Steenbock, world-renowned Wisconsin scientist.

29 Badger Counties Plan Achievement Days

Interesting things that Wisconsin Homemakers' clubs have done during the past year will be exhibited, reviewed and demonstrated when they meet for county-wide achievement day programs in 29 counties during May and June, announces Miss Blanche Lee, state home demonstration leader.

Exhibits, plays, book reviews, readings, music and folk dances by county homemakers will be featured in these county achievement programs and plans for the coming year will be outlined by club members, county home demonstration agents and agricultural agents. Travel movies and talks will be given by well-known Wisconsinists.

Extension specialists from the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture who will assist at these county meetings include Miss Josephine Pollock, assistant state home demonstration leader; Miss Gladys Meloche and Miss Elizabeth Birong, clothing extension specialists; Miss

1500 to Graduate From State U. at 85th Commencement

More than 1,500 young men and women will graduate from the University of Wisconsin at the 85th annual commencement of the State University on Monday, June 20, it was announced today by the University registrar's office. This number includes both those receiving first and higher degrees.

The commencement weekend will begin on Friday, June 17, and will come to a close at noon on the following Monday with the closing of the annual commencement ceremony.

Saturday, June 18, has been designated as annual Alumni Day, with hundreds of Wisconsin alumni from all parts of the state and nation expected to return to their Alma Mater for the occasion. The 10 classes reuniting this year are the following: 1888, '93, '98, 1903, '08, '13, '21, '22, '23, and '24. In addition, the usual annual reunions of the graduates of the Law school, the women's physical education department, and the home economics department, will be held on Saturday.

The annual baccalaureate sermon will be held on Saturday afternoon, June 19, in the University field house at historic Camp Randall. Other features of the weekend, all of which lead to the commencement climax Monday morning, will be the annual senior-alumni dinner in the Memorial Union Saturday night, the twilight band concert on Lincoln Terrace, and the President's reception at the President's home Sunday evening.

Besides those who will be granted their academic degrees at the commencement this year will be three American leaders—two sons and one daughter of Wisconsin—in the fields of science and government, who will be granted honorary degrees.

The three alumni of the State University upon whom honorary degrees will be conferred and the degrees they will receive are: Robert Marion La Follette, Jr., U. S. senator from Wisconsin, doctor of laws; Miss Katharine Lenroot, chief of the U. S. Children's bureau in Washington, doctor of laws; and Prof. Harry Steenbock, famous University of Wisconsin scientist, doctor of science.

Little City Will Soon Spring Up on Wisconsin Campus

When summer school classes open at the University of Wisconsin late in June there will spring up along the shore of Lake Mendota a complete "little city," otherwise known as the State University's summer tent colony, which is organized each year just before the summer session opens as a summer home for a large number of families whose heads desire to attend the University's annual summer school.

The colony each year is made up of at least 65 tent "homes" in which more than 300 persons live, while the heads of the families, and sometimes the wives, attend the University's summer session classes.

The colony furnishes teachers and students the opportunity to attend the State University during the summer months at a minimum of cost, and at the same time have a sort of summer outing. Instead of living in apartments in Madison, those staying at the colony live in tents which they furnish themselves. Space is rented from the University for $5.00.

A. F. Gallistel, superintendent of the University buildings and grounds, is in charge of the colony. Located on the shore of beautiful Lake Mendota out beyond Picnic point, the Wisconsin summer tent colony was founded in 1912 by Scott H. Goodnight, dean of the summer session. Accommodations are limited to out-of-town men or families. The colonists form their own "city" government at the opening of the session, electing a mayor, a city council, and law and health officers.

Registrants at the camp in former years have come from a dozen middle western and eastern states besides Wisconsin. Many of them bring their families along, and it is not unusual for both the husband and wife to be enrolled in the same classes. While they are attending classes, their children are learning to swim or are gathering information about flowers, bees, birds, and trees from a teacher maintained for them at the camp.

Wealthy Hale and Mrs. Margaret McCordic, specialists in house management; and Miss Mary Brady, food extension specialist.

Counties holding May meetings are Milwaukee, Crawford, Waukesha, Rusk, Rock, Green Lake and Brown. During June achievement days will be held in Barron, Trempealeau, Waupaca, Sheboygan, Vernon, Winnebago, Polk, Pepin, Monroe, Green, St. Croix, Kewaunee, Wood, Washington, Shawano, Price, and Winnebago counties. Open meetings will be held in Portage, LaCrosse, Outagamie, Jackson and Bayfield counties.

These achievement days and open meetings are under the direction of the county home demonstration and agricultural agents in the various counties and are part of the state home economics extension program.
