PLAN ACTS FOR DANCE AT CHICAGO

All-Wisconsin Affair Will Be Held at Drake Hotel Saturday Night

Three acts are being arranged to lend color to the all-Wisconsin dance, which will be held at the Drake hotel next Saturday night following the Wisconsin-Chicago game, according to plans announced yesterday by Fred Knowles '25, chairman of the dance committee and in charge of the ticket sales.

Paul Faust '26 and James Hildreth '26 will appear in a specialty dance as the exponents of some of the more intricate steps of soft-shoe dancing. An individual song revue by William Elliott ex-'25 will follow the specialty.

In the event that the Whirl Wind Waltons, now traveling on the senior Orpheum circuit, cannot be induced to appear in their act, the Cook sisters, playing at the Chicago theater, will present a skit.

In order to avoid overcrowding, the ticket sales have been limited to 200 of which 150 have already been sold, according to Knowles. Furthermore, the attendance has been narrowed to include Wisconsin students and alumnae. Those desiring tickets may procure them from Fred Knowles at the Alpha Delta Phi house or make reservations by telephone. An admission fee of $3 will be charged.

Senate Meets to Determine Policy

A meeting of the Student senate will be held tonight in the auditorium of the Law building to determine the future policy of the body and to elect officers according to Ralph Giles, temporary chairman.

The validity of the election of officers held at the "outlaw" meeting last week is to be the principal matter under discussion. New officers will probably be elected to take their place, in the opinion of Giles.

"The future policy of the Student senate is expected to occasion an exciting debate," Giles said.

"Election of committee heads is also to be made at the meeting. All of the 14 members are expected to be present."

TO CLOSE VODVIL MAIL ORDER SALE

Tomorrow is Last Day; Open
Sale Will Start November 26

The mail order sale for Union Vodvil to be given at the Parkway theater December 5 and 6 will close tomorrow according to an announcement made last night by Norton Smith '26, who is in charge of ticket sales.

Open sale will start one week from today, November 26, and will be continued the following Friday. At that time students will be able to get the actual tickets. The mail order sale has been for groups which desired seats in blocks. "The money for tickets ordered by mail must be in by tomorrow night," Smith said, "otherwise the orders will be cancelled."

Mail order reservations may be made by sending the reservation and money to Smith at 644 North Frances street. Tickets for the Friday and Saturday evening performances are $2, $1.50 $1 and 50 cents. Prices for the Saturday matinee are $1.50, $1.75 and 50 cents.

"Many good seats remain for the Saturday matinee and evening performances," Smith said, "and many of the cheaper seats are left for the Friday night show. The open sale had to be shifted until next week because of the interference of the Chicago game.

MUSIC SCHOOL GIVES WEEKLY RECITAL TODAY

The weekly convocation and recital of the School of Music will be given at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, in Music hall. The program will include Mac Dowell's "Hexantanz," a piano solo, by Lillian C. Soldan; Thomas' "Connaughtie Pays?" and Eunice Neckerman; Debussy's "Golliwog's Cake Walk," by Marion Vedder; Handel's "Verdi Prati" and Stephenson's "Ships That Pass in the Night," two vocal solos by Lulla Nienaber.

FRYE ADDRESSES WOMEN VOTERS ON CHILD LABOR

Amendment Aims to Prevent Commercializing of Child's
Time and Health

"It is not to prevent the child from doing any work whatsoever until he is 18 years old that upright citizens are trying to pass the child labor amendment, but it is to prevent the commercializing of the child's labor, time, future opportunities, and health," said Taylor Frye, member of the State Industrial commission at a meeting of the Collegiate League of Women Voters last night in Lathrop parlors.

Has Long Experience

Mr. Frye has worked with children for many years, having been a school teacher for 20 years, and a member of the Industrial commission for 13 years. He states that half of the controversy over the child labor amendment could be averted if people could only understand as to what child labor really meant.

The amendment before the people of the United States is stated as follows:

Congress shall have the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the employment of persons under 18 years of age.

This does not mean that the little boy may not help his father with the chores or that the little girl may not set the table for her mother, according to Mr. Frye, but it does mean that children 10, 12, and 14 years old shall not be taken out of school to be driven for eight or ten hours a day under a foreman who exacts from them every particle of strength that they can possibly put forth.

Must Uphold Standard

"Have we the right to take away our children's opportunities to be strong upstanding men and women, and cause them to be stunted in both physical and mental growth?" asked Mr. Frye. "Has our country the right to refuse help to these little boys when their parents or community cannot give it to them, and still when her own life is at stake, to call them out to protect her? Are we doing all we can for these future citizens of our great country? If not, something must be done, and done soon to uphold the standard of our country which has been so nobly upheld before these days of extreme commercialization, and this in itself is the very thing which the child labor amendment aims to do."

RECITAL TO BE GIVEN IN LUTHERAN CHURCH

The first of a series of joint organ recitals, arranged through the co-operation of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A., will be given at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the Luther Memorial church. The organ used is the largest one in the city. Those recitals are open to the public, free of charge.

Flonzaley Quartet Thrills Eager Capacity Audience in Music Hall

By K. N. H.

More than 700 persons filled Music hall to capacity last evening, in their eagerness to hear the Flonzaley quartet. The crowd's enthusiasm was rewarded by five encores, two by Moussorgsky, one by Schubert, from the "Death of the Maiden" group, and the last arranged by one of the players himself, M. Alfred Pochon.

The program included the "Quartet in D Minor" by Haydn, "Andante con Moto Scherzando" by Burlesca, "Quartet in A minor," by Albert Spalding, "Death and the Maiden," by Schubert, and "The Pixy Ring" by Waldo Warner.

The first number on the program received such overwhelming applause that the men were called back four times. The "Minuetto" was the best liked, judging from the amount of clapping which followed its presentation; but the "Vivace Assai" was by far the most brilliant of this group.

The house was unusually appreciative of the Spalding piece which is an amazingly fine work of modern writing and well suited to production through the medium of the string quartet, but the sophisticated harmony of this Scherzando rather detracted, in the opinion of some of the auditors, from the simpler and more appealing effect of

"Death and the Maiden."

The theme of the Schubert selection, which was first written in song form, was, according to tradition, one of the composer's favorites.

The Waldo Warner pieces were splendid bits of impressionistic music.

After one of these sketches,

"The Pixy Dance," the audience

clapped and requested for more last ed several minutes, but the others received only moderate approval.

Union Building to Have Show Case

For the benefit of its tenants, Union board will soon place a weather-proof show case in the front yard of its building just off the north sidewalk of Langdon street.

Advertising displays of the Octopus, Daily Cardinal, Haresfoot, Literary magazine, as well as of other university organizations, will be shown just before their respective productions and publications come out.

The case will be five feet high, three broad and eight inches deep. It will have a glass door in order to protect material placed inside.

STUDENT TICKET PLEDGE REVIEWED BY PAUL HUNTER

Ticket Sale Director Promises
Punishment For Violators of Contract

"When the student agrees to abide by the provisions laid out in his Chicago game application blank," Paul Hunter, director of ticket sales, said yesterday. "It means that he can apply only once and with his own fee card, and cannot try to get by with using the card of some friend who is not going to the game."

The application which the student is required to sign before tickets are issued to him reads:

"I hereby certify that I intend to occupy the seat applied for hereon. As a condition of receiving such ticket I agree not to sell or dispose of same at a price higher than applied for. As a penalty for violation of above condition, I authorize my name to be published and placed on the blacklist."

Scalping Cases Found

Mr. Hunter has found several cases of such type of scalping going on among the students, and the penalty for it has been that the student has had to forfeit not only two extra tickets which he got on another fee-card, but his own too, besides being put on the blacklist, which means that he can never get another ticket from the athletic department of this university for any future game.

"We have caught no women so far," said Mr. Hunter, "and we certainly hope that we will not, although we have some suspicions that they have got tickets illegally, yet we haven't the goods on them. Students who have successfully obtained two claim checks for tickets without being caught are very much surprised when they come in to get their tickets that we have detected their dishonesty. We aren't saying how we do it, but it's a sure way, and every one that we have caught so far has had to own up to his dishonesty."

Alumnus Writes Letter

"Last year we had enough tickets for the students and not enough for the alumni, and this year we had even more for the students, so you can see what happened to the alumni. In spite of our cooperation students will do dishonest tricks such as going through the line twice and cheating some other student. Here in this letter I received from one of them is what the alumni think of the situation:

My Dear Mr. Hunter:—Your communication of ninth, in which you inform me that an alumnus of Wisconsin who puts in his application for tickets to a Registration will be held in the first floor of the library for the 1000 delegates to the General Inter-Scolastic Press association convention to be held here Friday and Saturday, November 28 and 29.

The majority of the delegates will arrive in the morning and will be brought to the library from the stations by various students of the university.

They will then register, be given badges and coupon books with tickets to the different parties and meetings that have been planned for them.

They will also be assigned to rooms and to conference periods with professors in the journalism department. In these conferences each group will go over its own publication prior to its presentation to the rest of the delegates.

According to Ralph Timons '26, chairman of the registration committee, an increase of 400 delegates is expected over the 600 who came last year.

Junior and Senior Women Tie Score in Second Team Matches

The coming of snow marks the culmination of the hockey season. The match between the seniors and frosh has been definitely postponed, honors for the first team championship going to '26. In the second team matches a tie between the juniors and seniors exists, and the third team points go to '28.

The varsity squad which was announced at the homecoming hockey match on Saturday comprises Dorothy John, Daisy Simpson, Marion Streng, and Mabel Rugen of '25; Lorraine Maytum, Edith Jorris, Grace Sherman, Mildred Gray, Bernice Magnusson, and Marian Bigelow of '26; Marguerite Schwartz '27.

Elect Hockey Managers.

Election of hockey managers for next fall will take place at the seasonal hockey party to be held at the field house, at 5:45 o'clock, Thursday, November 20. The junior "champs" and the frosh will furnish the entertainment, Marian Rhode and Marguerite Schwartz are in charge of the food.

"This is the first time hockey managers have been chosen at this time and it is urged that all freshmen, sophomores, and juniors who expect to go out for hockey next fall attend this meeting," said Mabel Rugen, head of hockey. "Those planning to come are asked to sign the poster on the W. A. A. bulletin board in Lathrop hall before Thursday noon.

The Wisconsin band makes only one trip this year. But that isn't the worst of it. The band members have attended practices regularly this year and have worked hard, always planning on the Chicago trip. Now only 100 of the 145 members of the band can make the trip due to a limitation placed by the Chicago stadium authorities.

Steinauer Cuts Training Time to Give Frosh More Study Hours

"Back to the plow and ma's apron strings," that's where the "Sore-Eye Special" takes frosh athletes on the annual 'excursion' held shortly after mid-semester exams, if they fail to pass. This is the inevitable trend of events, according to a large sign posted near the swimming pool in the gymnasium.

A striking resemblance to an engine and tender (artist J. C. Steinauer) is pictured, below which are the words "Frosh Athletes Hit the Books or Write Home for Fare." The tender is heaped full of "Low Grades and Flunks," and is labelled "Annual Excursion Back to the Plow and Ma's Apron Strings." You are further advised that there are "Special Reservations Made for Frosh Athletes."

Coach Steinauer is very serious in this effort to get his men to study, and is taking every means in his power to help. He has cut the training time in half for swimmers, and in the afternoon reigns supreme in his high chair barring all freshmen from the pool in the hope that they will go home and study.

So It Seems

The varsity took to the confines of the stadium last night, where secret practice of the most secret sort was held. It looks as though what Ryan does this week will be a closed book. Let's hope that that means the more the surprise when the smoke has cleared from Stagg field Saturday.

The Maroons, although having a slight tremor of fear for the game, figure strongly on the dope and expect to do things up right. Pyott, who ruined Wisconsin's chances last year at the Midway, scouted the game Saturday and has some definite impressions as to Wisconsin's strength.

Chicago has a man who may cause Wisconsin the same sort of trouble that Allan Davey caused Chicago several years ago. He is Bob Curley, son of the managing editor of the Chicago American, who has been put in by Stagg for portions of games for the past two years. He is a consistent drop kicker. He was credited with winning the game against Wisconsin last year. For two years in succession, Davey beat Chicago by a drop kick; will Curley repeat for Chicago this year?

last night had on their oilskin pants and the team managers covered their shoes with neatfoot oil. Ryan is not letting down in practice because of the cold, but rather increasing the work for each nightly practice.

Cries of "stop McCarthy there" ring out over the practice field outside the stadium as the frosh go through their signal drills in preparation for scrimmages with the varsity. The frosh have been practicing the Maroon plays for nearly two weeks and will probably give a pretty true imitation of Stagg's puzzlers.

Daily Cardinal readers will be provided with first class service again when the Badgers meet the Maroons at Chicago Saturday. Ken Butler, sports editor, will be in Chicago Friday and will tell of the team's workout Friday at the Windy City, in addition to sending back a report of the game. He will be assisted in the press

Brunzell and Yoke Pick Three From Each of Three Classes

The winners of the Blackhawk riding contest were chosen by Major Brunzell and Mr. Yoke, yesterday at the stock pavilion. Three girls were selected from the ten beginners, intermediates, and advanced classes. All were judged solely on their ability to ride and handle a horse. Each girl rode two different horses thus eliminating the possibility of anyone riding a favorite horse.

Lyon, Harvey, Olson Win.
From ten girls who competed in the beginners class the three selected were Alice Lyon, Ruth Harvey and Vallie Olson. Miss Lyon received first prize, Miss Harvey, second, and Miss Olson, third. The prizes were different colored ribbons for the three places.

The first of the three to win in the intermediates was Doris Fishborn, the second was Dorothy Gaines, and the third, Elizabeth Adams.

Out of the ten girls entered in the advanced section Eugenia McQuatters received the first prize, Helena Laberwitch was awarded second, and Helen Mueller, third.

Go get Chicago!

That is the by-word of the campus and of Wisconsin followers as Coach Jack Ryan works with his men for the last sessions of the year in an endeavor to whip them into shape for his supreme effort.

A greater opportunity never faced a coach in the Big Ten. Wisconsin, now resting in last place, is conceded by critics to be a stronger team than some who peacefully recline near the top of the column and whose games for the season are completed. Wisconsin, in the past, has risen from the depths and defeated supposedly stronger teams and caused the whole football world to sit up and take notice.

Expect Lineup Changes

Badger enthusiasts—those who have kept faith with Ryan and his men through the disastrous season—believe it can be done again. Badger teams of the past have sprung last quarter comebacks which brought the stands to their feet.

In absolute secret practice Coach Ryan sent his men through the paces until long after dark at Camp Randall last night. What goes on at Camp Randall this week probably will not be known. Changes are due to come, but where and whom, is going to be a puzzle until Saturday afternoon.

Wisconsin was weak in spots last Saturday. Ryan will try to strengthen these so that Thomas, Curley, McCarthy and the other Maroon backs will meet opposition not expected by them.

Arrangements have been made for Wisconsin students and alumni to use the Reynolds clubhouse as their headquarters during their visit to the University of Chicago, Saturday, according to a letter sent to T. E. Jones by A. A. Stagg, Chicago athletic director.

Chicago students will hold an "open house" at the club for Wisconsin students immediately after the game, and there will be dancing and refreshments.

Free checking facilities for both men and women have been provided for. There are lounges which will serve as convenient meeting places for friends; mail and phone calls will be received and held subject to call; and the attendants of the club will be glad to furnish such information as they can as to hotels, depots, and transportation about the city.

The clubhouse is located on the southwest corner of 57th street and University avenue, under the big tower, across the street from Barrington gymnasium and Stagg field.

Moran, who is making the trip on a $5,000 wager put up by Winnipeg athletic clubs, left his starting point on May 15 and must be back by Jan. 1. He is without funds, but must earn his way by stopping off at towns and working at odd jobs. He carries food and blankets and spends every night outdoors.

Moran is carrying letters of identification from officials of the various cities he has passed through.

Badger Star End Four Years; In First Year as Coach Brings Home
Championship

Harking back again to the old days of the late '90s, the light of Bill Juneau's fame still shines in the memories of all Wisconsin athletes.

For four years he played a stellar game at right end on the Badger teams from 1897 until 1901. No plays went for any great gains around the Badger right wing while Juneau guarded the post. He was one of the grittiest players who ever donned moleskins for Wisconsin. Often he would fight on more valiantly than ever in spite of the fact that he was playing with a broken nose or some other injured member.

Captains 1901 Team.

Bill captained the team of 1901, the first championship team the Badgers had since the earliest days of football. That year the Badgers were feared all over the middle west and Juneau played no small part in establishing this reputation.

It seems that the call for his alma mater could not be resisted for he was back again in 1912 to coach for four years. His first year as coach was as successful as his playing in his undergraduate days. That year he turned out Wisconsin's second twentieth century championship team. He seemed to have a knack for being connected with Badger championship elevens. He captained one and coached another, which is quite a record in Wisconsin football history.

Since that time Juneau has coached at Texas and the university of Tennessee. At present he is in the real estate business in Milwaukee.

MEET SATURDAYWisconsin and Ohio Appear Strongest Contenders For Race at Ann Arbor

When the runners leave their marks this Saturday at Ann Arbor they will be starting out on what appears to be one of the closest and most hard fought cross country runs that the conference has ever experienced.

Although only four teams are well enough balanced to make strong bids for high honors, each of the other schools have one or two runners of ability who will cut into the point column. These lone wolves that will play a large part in determining the winning team as they may beat out one of the five point winners on the schools with winning combinations and thus deprive them of the victory.

Ohio, Wisconsin Strongest.

The present situation seems to point to Ohio as the probable winner of the race with Wisconsin, with Michigan and Northwestern fighting hard for first place. All of these universities made the best showing so far this season. Wikoff, Piper, Block, Kennedy and Couch form a quintet of hill and dale material that would be a joy to any coach's heart. This combination won an easy victory from Illinois and Michigan in a three cornered meet a few weeks ago.

Piper, Kubly, Perry, Bergstreser, Petaja and Link of the Badger squad will give every opponent a run for their money, however. These lads finish within 60 seconds of each other and this factor will mean a great deal in considering the Badger chances for victory.

Martin, Platt, Davis and Loveland of the Purple squad will also be among the leaders when the final check-up is made. Michigan has a squad of cow path men that will have to be reckoned with at all times. Although the Wolverines trailed the Buckeyes in the triangular meet, they will still be a strong contender for first honors.

Phelps Seems Fastest.

In addition to these schools there are a few men from the other institutions that must be counted on to finish well up among the leaders. Phelps, of Iowa, who ran well in the Olympics last summer is expected to take first place, but there are no other men in the Hawkeye ranks to back him up. Eddie Meier of Illinois, will undoubtedly be among the first five and Captain Marzula of the Illini will also finish well, but the Suckers have no other capable men. Bourke, of Chicago, Wentland and Cox of Notre Dame, McIntyre of Ames, and Shimek of Marquette will all be among the first dozen men to cross the finish line but a lack of good material on their respective teams will prevent their teams from winning.

The commerce team, well balanced last spring, will again make a strong bid for the honors next season. Six of the above men will be back on the lower campus with the bat and ball.

Four of the six Badger harriers are seniors and will be running their last race for Wisconsin. Captain Piuer, Perry, Bergstreser and Link have worked four years on Badger frosh and varsity hill-and-dale squads and each of them will give their best in this meet to realize a dream of four years—a championship cross country team for Wisconsin.

Sixteen teams have entered the meet. Beside the Big Ten schools teams have been entered from Notre Dame, Ames, Marquette, Michigan Aggies, Ohio Wesleyan and Oberlin. Each school may enter six men, but only the first five to finish for each school will count towards the team score.

Coach Stagg's Warriors, Without Injuries, Prepare For Hard Game Saturday

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Forced to remain inside due to the year's first snowstorm, Coach A. A. Stagg has spent the last two days in running his team through a signal practice and in developing a smooth pass attack for which fans around the Windy city are waiting. Coach Stagg is handicapped by the lack of a good oval heaver and spent much time yesterday trying his various backfield men at passing.

The weak showing against the Northwestern gridmen last Saturday has been attributed to the relapse following the strain of the Illinois game the preceding week. All the team came through in excellent condition, Harry Thomas being the only regular used for a very great part of the contest.

Not Over-Confident. "The Old Man" is not allowing his men to picture the little gold footballs, symbols of the conference championship, dangling from their watch chains yet.

The Badger game is always a real battle and Coach Stagg thinks this year will be no exception. Over-confidence will not be in the Chicago camp this week. The Maroons will take no long chances, but will play the best lineup Coach Stagg has in condition.

Our Policy in Regard to Athletics in the Future: GO GET CHICAGO

TIME TO GET GOING

The student senate meets tonight. Some time ago the Daily Cardinal remarked in this column that a doctor was needed for the senate; still more recently it remarked that an undertaker would be more appropriate. Still, it is hoped that neither will have to be called in.

In case they do not know it, the Athletic, Badger, Cardinal, Forensic, and Union boards each are entitled to, and should see that they send, a representative to the meeting. The freshman president also is on the senate.

There is a lot of work for the senate to do. For the good concern of all concerned they should do it.

TRADITIONS

Of what good to a university are traditions? Are they irksome nuisances, more honored in the breach than in the observance, mere outgrowths of medieval childishness? Or are traditions of immediate value to collegiate institutions? To find the answer compare the colleges where traditions, real and honored traditions, play an important part in the life of the campus with the colleges where traditions are lacking or are of the "rah-rah" variety. It is not necessary to mention names—can you think of a single college of distinction, one college noted for its spirit where traditions are not numerous and observed?

And the cause for this effect is not obscure—in universities of thousands of members, where university life is broken into by the manifold intrusions of city life and entertainment, where group spirit arises so easily, things tangible which have to do with the student's loyal relation to his university as a whole are intensely valuable. Such are traditions. Traditions are also valuable in that they make the student feel that he is giving up a little of his cherished liberty of action for the sake of his alma mater. A very wise oriental gentleman once remarked that the surest way to make a friend is not to do something for him, but to let him do something for you. Men avoid those to whom they are obligated but benevolently enjoy the society of those obligated to them. All the preachings as to how much the university does for the student go for naught unless the student feels that he is returning the obligation.

What of traditions here at Wisconsin? We have them, but they are not numerous or distinctively original. More traditions and better observance of those we have would greatly assist our growth to manhood as an institution, and would help to make Wisconsin more of an idea and less of a place. It would seem that the development and maintenance of traditions would be an eminently proper function for certain campus groups which, in the past, have not been notable for excessive activity—the class of officers and the student senate.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH KNUTE

With the football season ending in only a little better than a week, it is interesting at this time to take a glance back at football as it was played in the "good old days" and ahead at it as it may be played in the future.

Starting as a strictly brawn and muscle game, it was one of the most dangerous sports of the times. Scarcely a team went on the field in the late part of the nineteenth century without knowing that on the bench were several teams of substitutes who would doubtless see play before the last whistle, and that they themselves would be back on the bench—or possibly in the hospital—at the end of the tilt. The flying wedge was a treacherous scheme for gaining ground. Weight was the all-important factor on the gridiron. So it was that Wisconsin was able to defeat as many teams as it did, simply because it outweighed the majority of its opponents, that is why, for instance, that it defeated Iowa so regularly.

Gradually, however, open field work and forward passing took the place of the line buck and the flying wedge, and now it is the team which has a good passing system or a fast open field runner, who can be given able interference, which wins games.

Many teams have met Notre Dame this year, and in the past, and fallen before it. Much criticism has been brought against Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame coach, for starting the second team, then replacing it with first string men and ending the game with third or fourth string men. His critics say that it is not fair or equal to stack up against an institution where 400 men play football every day. But Notre Dame is no larger than the average school, and it would seem very possible that there is just as much good material in other institutions, especially in those which are larger than Notre Dame, as there are there.

In response to his critics, Rockne comes forth with a description of football as it will be played 10 years from now. In the Milwaukee Sentinel he says, "... the chances are the colleges now criticizing Notre Dame for having most of its students playing football will want the rules changed about 10 years hence to be more in keeping with the times. And as Notre Dame will have to change too, we can look for the Notre Dame-Nebraska game of 1935 to be something quite different from what it is now. The report of the game will be found, not on the sports, but on the society page, and will read something like this: 'On a nice, crisp autumn day, just nice enough to allow the socially elect to appear in their latest fall garb, Notre Dame met Nebraska in the nineteenth annual football contest. At fullback for Nebraska was M. Bickerdyke Hicks III of the famous North Platte family. His team was gayly attired in scarlet and mauvette tunics and suspended from their necks were pendants, on which was engraved "Fight Furiously, but Fairly."

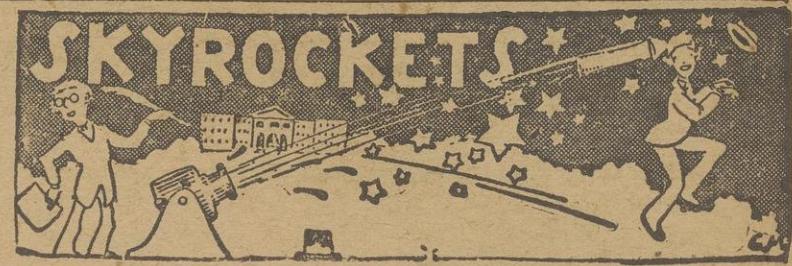

"About the waist was a girdle with a Louis XIV buckle. The shoes were by Hoofus & Son, hosiery by Charlott"

"Exactly at 2:30 'Two Lumps', as we shall call him, because he always called for two lumps of sugar in his orange pekoe, kicked off to Bickerdyke, who returned the ball ten yards before he was tagged by a Notre Dame end"

"Between halves both teams had tea, and feeling greatly refreshed went back into the game with renewed determination"

"In the middle of the fourth quarter on a hidden ball play the ethics of which was rather questioned by some of the spectators, old Bickerdyke went streaking up the sidelines with a clear field for the goal line. A groan went up from the Notre Dame stands but playing safety, 'Two Lump' saw Bickerdyke striking for a touchdown and shouted so the whole stands could hear him: 'Yoo hoo, Bickerdyke, there's a run in your stocking!'

"Poor Bickerdyke was so mortified, that what could he do but drop the ball and retire to the clubhouse in confusion. And thus was the game saved for Notre Dame, though the result was one of those 0 to 0 scores that are so unsatisfactory."

NEW EDUCATION CLUB WILL MEET

Organization Will Convene at 8 O'Clock Tonight For First Time

The first regular meeting of the Educational Administration club will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the College club, 10 east Gilman street. The program has been prepared with a view to opening up some problems which might, with profit, be discussed during the year in the meetings of the club.

The club has been organized, according to its promoters, with a view to satisfying a need felt in the School of Education for some medium that would provide a forum for the discussion of common problems, and at the same time give an opportunity for social intercourse impossible in regular class-room activities.

The students in educational administration recently held an organization luncheon, at which the possibilities of such a club were discussed. The enthusiasm at the luncheon led to positive steps toward organization, and the initial moves are being taken to bring such a club into being.

It will be the purpose of this organization to meet at stated intervals, and conduct round-table discussion over problems that are pertinent to the duties of a school administration. The qualification for membership is "a professional and permanent interest in the problems of school administration."

The program for tonight's meeting includes talks on "The Why and Wherefore of an Administration club," by A. L. Marberry; "Physical Education and Athletics," by R. E. Conners, and "Looking Forward," by Prof. G. Fowlkes.

Everybody's Alma Mater Has Pennant in Student Store

It looks like a college boy's room turned upside down and then back again. Pennants on the tables, pennants on the door, pennants on the wall. 1,500 of them. And most places that you ever heard of and some that you never heard of are represented in the collection.

Every college, it seems, that ever found a hill to rest its main hall on is there in bright colors and large white letters. Even Swedes peers out from the bottom of a large pile on one of the tables.

This is merely the pennant shop situated in a little store on State street, one block from the bottom of the hill, the only one in Madison, and one of the few of its kind in the country. It is owned and managed by Harry Horwitz '26, pre-medical student. Horwitz has been engaged in pennant work for several years and while traveling for a pennant company this summer conceived the idea of the pennant store.

With the football season over Horwitz plans to take orders for organization pennants, fraternities, sororities, etc., which he will make himself. His stock of 1,500 pennants he will reduce to a number more easily handled.

Albert Spaulding, Violinist, is One of Few American Artists

Albert Spaulding, the noted violinist, who is to play at the university stock pavilion Nov. 24, is one of the few artists who is thoroughly American. Mr. Spaulding is the son of A. G. Spaulding, the noted manufacturer of sporting goods. He was born in Chicago and started his musical studies in New York.

Later he went to Florence where he studied under Chiti, one of the famous violinists of Italy. At the age of 14 Mr. Spaulding passed the examination for a professorship in the Bologna conservatory in Italy, and then he went to Paris where he studied with Lefort.

When he was 18 he made his professional debut in Paris and toured Europe with tremendous success.

during the season of 1908-1909, when he made his American debut in New York immediately following his European tour.

Mr. Spaulding accompanied Walter Damrosch and his orchestra to Europe three years ago, and has made a tour of Europe on his own account each year since that time. His playing has always been notable for sincere musicianship, superlative technique, and a notable tone.

This is the second of the series of concerts by noted artists which is being sponsored by the Union board. The third and last number of this series will be a concert by Percy Grainger, pianist and composer, April 1.

Museum Displays Unique Collection of French Posters

In the historical museum this week there is a unique display of French posters, large and variously colored, donated by representatives of the French railroads in the United States. This is the first set of this kind ever received by the Historical society, although it has a large assortment of English and Italian posters.

Representative scenes in France are pictured including the ancient streets of Normandy, sections of the well known cities, Carcassonne, Limoges, Verdun in its demolished state, and a bird's-eye view of St. Mihiel with none other than an American doughboy overlooking it.

Visitors in the library daily recognize favorite spots of theirs, which they became acquainted with during their respective visits in France.

Active Sandman Helps to Restore Students Dignity

Did it ever occur to you to wonder who it is that covers the glassy walks on the campus with the welcome sand after an icy storm?

Monday morning between classes men and women coasted down the hill on their own runners. It took no effort to progress downward, but considerable effort was required to maintain their equilibrium, and not a few failed in the attempt.

However, after 10 o'clock, it was much harder to sail down the hill, with flags unfurled to the frosty wind, but it was also much easier to retain one's dignity, and to proceed down the hill with somewhat less fear of slipping or of being unmercifully tripped by some extremely embarrassed young gallant who has previously taken great joy in assisting unfortunate ladies fair.

For this great facility in walking, thanks is due the university service station, which renders the much appreciated service of sprinkling the slippery campus walks with sand.

For the benefit of those Presbyterians and their friends who are not going to the Chicago game, a special party has been arranged at the headquarters for Friday evening. The party will be in the nature of a railroad trip. The party starts at 8 o'clock but late arrivals may be picked up at different stations along the line. Refreshments will be served and appropriate games played. Harriet Liggett '25, is in charge of arrangements.

130 Men and One Woman Enroll in Ag Short Course

Only one woman is enrolled in the short course in the College of Agriculture while 130 men are registered.

The course opened for its fortieth session Monday with 65 freshmen and 66 second year men entered. The majority of these students are from Wisconsin but approximately 15 from each class are from Illinois, and one each from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

By means of the arrangement of schedule planned this year, a student is enabled to specialize in herding, poultry work or in managing a farm. Various courses are offered in feeding of farm animals, diseases of domestic animals, farm insects, farm economics, soil fertility, farm chemistry, agricultural drainage and library practice.

W. S. G. A. HAS DOLLS FOR FAIR

Women Will Dress and Enter Exhibits in Yuletide Contest

The dolls which are to be dressed by university women for the annual Y. W. C. A. Yuletide fair can be secured in the W. S. G. A. office tomorrow, according to Emily Davidson '25, district chairman.

Small dolls, large dolls, dolls of every type and nationality will be displayed for sale in the W. S. G. A. library in Lathrop hall December 9, as a part of the regular bazaar. Special notice of this Christmas toy shop is being sent out to all the grade schools of the city.

"Every house in all the W. S. G. A. districts have been assigned a certain number of dolls," Miss Davidson said yesterday. "It is necessary that the house chairmen call for the dolls Thursday or the office will be filled with these toys otherwise."

The dolls will be priced and judged by experts. The best individual doll and the best district group will receive prizes. All the dolls that are not sold will be turned over to the Public Welfare association in Madison. The chairmen of the doll show are Elizabeth Adams '25 and Rachel Kelley '27.

football game played by his own school in his own home town can receive no consideration is disconcerting enough to provoke a reply.

May I put in my application now for every Chicago-Wisconsin game in Chicago? May I suggest that self-supporting alumni be given preference over the children whose daddies send sonny to college and try to cultivate roses in clayey ground just because it's "the thing to do?" May I suggest that flunkers who really cannot afford to spend the week-end to go to a game be forced to waive their ticket privilege to allow alumni to see those games? May I suggest that sonny who must be disciplined for his conduct at school be denied the privilege of seeing the games? And, finally, may I hope that these suggestions are taken in the spirit in which they are given?

"We have heard," Mr. Hunter resumed, "that there are cases of real scalping going on downtown and we are employing means now of tracking these down. Penalty for this offense will then be in the hands of federal authorities who are cooperating with the athletic department in the punishment of these offenders."

entire chapter of Gamma Alpha Epsilon will act on this committee.

HBIBARD WRITES ON LAND POLICIES

PUBLISHES BOOK TRACING HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF LAND OPERATIONS

"The History of Public Land Policies" is the recently published book written by Benjamin H. Hibbard, professor of agriculture in the university and research associate in the Institute of Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities.

A sketch of the historical development and operations of our federal land policies, which is closely woven with the policies and the economics of the nation is given. The book is dedicated to Prof. Frederick Jackson Turner, now of Harvard, and formerly professor of history in the university who gave much inspiration to the study of the economic development of the west.

In his book Professor Hibbard has interpreted and traced the effects and the facts of the passage of our great public domain from public to private property.

The book is the fifth volume in the series which is edited by Prof. Richard T. Ely, director of the Institute, and will be used in the new course, "History of Public Land Policies," which will be offered by the university next semester, and which will be given by Prof. Hibbard.

SEN. EDGE HITS EXTRA SESSION; SEES COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON — A protest against proposals for an extra session of the new congress after next March 4, were made by Sen. Edge, Rep., of N. J. who called on President Coolidge today.

"I recognize many inequalities in the tax reduction law passed at the last session," the senator said "but of the two evils, the present law or a summer congress, the former seems preferable. Let's give business a chance."

MUSICAL PROGRAM HELD AT LIONS CLUB MEETING

A musical program featured the weekly meeting of the Lions club Tuesday noon. The program was in charge of Prof. Charles Henry Mills of the university school of music. It included chorus singing, a solo, and violin selections.

Instead of the weekly meeting next Tuesday, the Lions will meet with the Technical club Monday evening at 6:15, at Christ Presbyterian church to hear Arthur "Gold-en Rule" Nash.
