William H. Kiekhofers Dies at 68

Skyrockets for 'Wild Bill'

See Page 5 for President E. B. Fred's tribute to Professor Kiekhofers. Ed.)

GOVERNOR WALTER J. KOHLER

I am very much distressed to learn of Prof. Kiekhofers' passing. He was a great asset to the University of Wisconsin, and the tens of thousands of citizens of Wisconsin who studied economics under him will certainly mourn his death.

He has been not only a great teacher but an exemplary citizen.

The state of Wisconsin will be poorer by his passing.

GLENN WILPOLT, STUDENT

He was one of the great traditions of the Wisconsin campus. He was a man students heard about before they came to the university and they talked about him when they left. Former students were always asking "Is old Wild Bill still there." And they used to swap stories with you about his classes.

The skyrockets he was always given were a tribute to a man who could bring excitement and interest to his subject. His style of oratory, rare in teachers these days, gave him the ability to reach the hundreds of students in his classroom with a personal touch.

The fiery last lectures of each semester were a part of the Kiekhofers tradition. Many of the students who had already taken his courses came back for them year after year.

PROF. WILLIAM H. KIEKHOFERS

Known to Students as 'Wild Bill'; Only Prof Given Daily Skyrocket

"Wild Bill" Kiekhofers died yesterday afternoon. He was 68 years old. Kiekhofers, who started as an economics teaching assistant at the university in 1908 became famous throughout the state for his boosting of the university and the Wisconsin Idea. His book "Economic Principles" is the most widely used textbook in economics in the country and he was the only university professor to receive the traditional "skyrocket" cheer from his students before each lecture.

He had been ill since mid-May.

Kiekhofers, it was estimated by secretary of the faculty Alden White, taught over 50,000 different students at the university since he became a full professor in 1920. His lecture classes were the largest on the campus.

When asked this spring how the "Skyrockets" cheer originated, the white-haired professor said: "I tried to stop it at first, but I guess you can see how little influence I have with my students."

Born in Forest Junction, Wis., Kiekhofers studied at Arcadia high school and then at Northwestern college, Naperville, Ill. He served as principal of the St. Peter, Minn., and the Arcadia, Wis., high schools from 1904 to 1909. He received his doctor's degree at Wisconsin in 1913. He also studied in Europe between 1908 and 1913.

He taught courses in Economics 1a and 1b. One of the highlights of his course along with the traditional Kiekhofers "Skyrockets" was his concluding lectures of the semester which drew students from all parts of the campus anxious to hear "Wild Bill" talk it up for the American economic system.

Except for two summers as a visiting professor of economics at the University of California in Berkeley in 1917 and 1922, Kiekhofers devoted his time to the university.

He was chairman of the university economics department from 1916 to 1931 and from 1938 to 1946 he was chairman of the graduate division of the social sciences.

Kiekhofers had conferred the university's honorary degrees at every commencement from 1939 to 1950. He was unable to do so this spring, being confined to the hospital by his illness.

Waupun Project Receives $140 DKE, DG's Lead

The Waupun project for migrant workers had received about $140 by last night out of a goal of $400 for the week. Collection in the dorms was to begin today, with donations accepted during mealtimes.

Delta Kappa Epsilon leads the fraternities in the amount contributed with $15 and Delta Gamma gave $9 to top all other sororities.

Collection containers have been placed in the main corridor of Bascom, near the Rathskeller in the Union, and in Ag hall, and a giant thermometer was to have been set up on the front steps of the Union to record progress of the drive.

Contributions received so far include: $5.45 from AEPi fraternity; $4.30 from Alpha Gamma Delta; $3.81 from Chi Psi; $3.50 from Victoria house; $3.18 from ZBT; $3 from Psi U; and $5 from WKOW and $50 from student board reported yesterday. Student board is sponsoring the project.

Board to Ask SLIC, Not Regents, for WSA Fee

By DICK CARTER

The problem of collecting Wisconsin Student association (WSA) fees will be brought before the Student Life and Interest committee (SLIC) at its next meeting, possibly late next week, Jennie Stumpf, summer board president, said yesterday.

Board moved Tuesday night to bring the fee problem to SLIC suggesting that university endorsement and enforcement are essential after striking out the previously passed motion that the fee problem be presented to SLIC for the "sole purpose" that they recommend the regents take action.

The new motion, introduced by Ed Green, states that "the (board) committee on compulsory fee present our fee problem to SLIC at their next meeting with the suggestion that university endorsement and enforcement by withholding records is essential."

Board was enabled to defeat the previously passed "sole purpose" (Continued on back page)

Blood Drive Ends With 79 Donors; Goal Unreached

The all-campus blood drive wound up with a record of 79 successful donors, according to Dr. Merle Hamel, medical director of the Red Cross mobile unit which visited the Union yesterday.

"This doesn't mean 79 full pints,"

At loss for a "speech to convince" topic in his public speaking class yesterday, Dick Foltz decided at the last minute to give a pep-up talk for the campus blood drive. His speech was a convincing one. He went right down after class to add his blood to the total.

she commented, "Nine of those donations were half-pints from half-pint girls."

Jim Bailey, general student chairman, said that the goal of the drive, 150 donors, was not reached because (Continued on back page)

Board Slashes Funds; May Cut NSA Delegates

Four of seven delegates probably will not be able to attend the National Student association (NSA) convention because of summer student board's action Tuesday night, Armond Fields, summer NSA coordinator, said yesterday.

Summer board Tuesday night rescinded a motion passed the previous week to appropriate $200 to the NSA delegates for board and room. The rescindment came on a vote of 7 to 3.

Without the appropriation of $200 in full, Fields stated, four delegates would not be able to attend the convention. Three of those four are students who take an active part in board affairs, he said.

Board approved a motion by Betty Sims that $105 be appropriated to the NSA delegates in addition to the $70 already given them for registration. The $70 is not affected by the rescindment.

Fields asserted that board was "ignoring its responsibility as a student government." Tuesday night he claimed that board is "going against regular board by not sending seven delegates."

Bob Gesteland resigned from summer student board Tuesday night. Don Wippermann, co-chairman of the Waupun migrant workers project, was elected by board to succeed Gesteland for the summer.

Board also moved Tuesday night that a committee of three be set up to advise the NSA co-ordinators on the selection of delegates and the distribution of the monies appropriated if all seven would not attend. The committee is to be appointed by Jennie Stumpf, summer president of board.

In discussion on the appropriation to be made to the delegates (Continued on back page)

'Murder Has Been Arranged' Features Innovations

Author, Director, Lead, Unite Again

Wisconsin Players will present Williams', "A Murder Has Been Arranged", tonight, Friday and Saturday, as their third play of the summer season. This production has several coincidences.

Seven years ago the campus drama group presented another murder melodrama, by the same author, staged by the same director, in the same playhouse, the Wisconsin Union theater, and with the same player in the lead role.

The author is Emyln Williams, who wrote "Night Must Fall," the memorable earlier production; the director is Prof. John Dietrich; and the actor is Julius ("Sarge") Bensick, who was an undergraduate in 1944, is actor-in-residence at Stephens College, Missouri, during the winter seasons now, but spends summers working on his Ph.D. at the university. Last summer he directed "The Second Man" on the Wisconsin Players summer bill.

First produced in 1930, "A Murder Has Been Arranged" was Williams' first successful play. Williams, an actor as well as a play (Continued on back page)

LIGHTS AND BACKGROUND music for tonight's production of "A Murder Has Been Arranged" will be controlled from the booth shown here. The booth faces the stage from the rear of the first level of the Union theater. Chuck Schmitt is at the light panel, which controls all lights used in the play. Don Voegeli (background) is at the specially equipped organ, used only once before in Union Theater dramatic productions.

Special Devices In Music, Lights

For the second time in the history of the Memorial Union theater an organ will furnish background music for a play, and the lights will be controlled from a switch board out in the audience.

These two devices are being used by Mr. John Dietrich in tonight's production of "A Murder Has Been Arranged."

The organ and the light board are temporarily placed in the left section of the chair circle for this show only. Don Voegeli of the WHA staff has composed 3 main themes and will play the organ during all performances.

Chuck Schmitt, master electrician for the show, will operate the board. Normally the lights are operated from a panel back stage, but because of the nature of the set and the light changes, it was decided that they could more effectively be controlled from out front.

When Schmitt planned the lighting for the show he divided the stage into nine acting areas. He is using 63 individual lamps of 12 different colors on 38 separate circuits to light these areas. The light (Continued on back page)

AT A GLANCE

THE EIGHTEENTH MEETING of Korean truce talks is scheduled for tonight at 7 p.m., CST. The seventeenth meeting adjourned last night.

The latter meeting, held amid heavy weather and rain, saw no change from the deadlock. The Imjin River had to be crossed by helicopter because the pontoon bridge was completely wiped out by the raging river. A new bridge will probably be built in a day or so.

In Washington Secretary of State Dean Acheson declared that a UN retreat from present battlelines is militarily unthinkable. In Peking the Reds said that further conferences may well be futile if the 38th parallel is not accepted as a dividing line.

ADMIRAL WILLIAM FECHTELER, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, has been nominated to succeed the late Admiral Forrest Sherman.

President Truman singled Fechteler out from five top ranking Navy officers. Fechteler had been slated for appointment as Supreme Commander of Atlantic Naval Forces under the North Atlantic Treaty.

"WORLD WAR III is probable unless the United States builds up its defenses, including a two-ocean Navy," said the late Admiral Forrest Sherman as he addressed the House appropriations committee several weeks before his death.

Thomas Finletter, Air Force Secretary, echoed Sherman's advice by setting forth the plea for a large Air Force, larger than the 95 groups now planned.

DEFENSE PREPARATIONS are being made in at least two service branches. The Air Force said it is buying four models of a new intercontinental bomber that will drop its bomb load above 50-thousand feet. The planes cost more than $21 million apiece.

The Navy has developed a modern coat of armor, capable of stopping a .45 caliber bullet at short range.

RENT BOSS TIGHE WOODS says he will roll back rents on the servicemen's quarters around military posts. Present prices are outrageous. "Every excessive rent that stands up like a sore thumb is going to be knocked down," stated Woods.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN predicted that the new controls law would bring higher prices, and the Chrysler corporation is the first concern to move for price hikes.

Unofficially the corporation has intimated that it wants a nine and one-half percent price boost. Price officials say that the price increases may be granted.

DUN AND BRADSTREET reports that the average price of wholesale food climbed a bit this week. The level now is nearly six percent above that of a year ago.

This rise is the second straight weekly hike in wholesale food prices since the general decline in February.

The eight lawyers assigned by Federal Judge Sylvester Ryan in New York to defend the indicted party leaders have petitioned the judge for permission to resume their normal practices.

They said that the defendants don't want them, and their practices have been interrupted.

According to Judge Ryan, the eight lawyers were selected because of their association with the causes before. Some of them were present at the bail hearing proceedings.

Cardinal Interviews

Here Are Three From Prom Court

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of two articles presenting an interview with each girl on the Prom court of honor. The other three girls will be interviewed in tomorrow's Cardinal.

"I'd really like to transfer to Wisconsin." These words become familiar on the campus every summer, but this time they came from Debbie Phillips, a junior from Skidmore college, and a member of the Prom court of honor.

Miss Phillips made plans to come to summer school at Wisconsin after she talked to a friend who had come last summer.

"You just hear about Wisconsin summer school . . . really . . . all over the East," she said.

An art major now, Miss Phillips is planning to go into occupational therapy in the near future. She is from South Royalton, Vermont, although she spent most of her life just outside of New York.

The blue eyed brunette has had other beauty honors before election to the court of honor. This past spring she was on the May court at Skidmore college.

Miss Phillips will be escorted to Prom by Jim Whiffen, a Phi Gamma Delta from Madison. He is a senior in pre-med.

A yellow strapless net gown has been chosen by Miss Phillips as her dress for the dance. It has a matching net stole, and features a hoop skirt. She will complete her outfit with pearl accessories.

Miss Phillips favors casual clothes, and is used to very informal clothes for school.

"We don't have many dressy occasions at Skidmore," she said, "and we don't do much dating during the week. But we really play on weekends, when we go to Dartmouth or other colleges."

Photography is her favorite hobby, but skiing and swimming are her interests when they are in season. Miss Phillips is living at the Alpha Chi Omega house this summer.

Another brunette, Jackie Jones, is also living at the Alpha Chi Omega house, and a member of the Prom court of honor.

Miss Jones is from Black River Falls, Wisconsin, and goes to the university during the regular year. She is a junior in nursing, and an Alpha Chi here.

Biff Bunney, from Milestone, New Jersey, will be Miss Jones' date for Prom. He is a senior in pre-med.

A bright carnation red dress will be worn by Miss Jones. The gown is ballerina length, featuring red velvet trim on the bodice which extends over the shoulders in small straps. The bouffant skirt is trimmed in tiers of accordion pleated net, forming an apron effect in the front. Fine red straw pumps will complete her dress.

Red is Miss Jones' favorite color, and she uses it to accent her dark hair and eyes.

"I love anything really well tailored," she said, "and I'm particularly fond of solid dark colors."

Miss Betty Johnson, also on the Prom court is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta during the school year and is living at the Beta house this summer. She is a sophomore from Milwaukee.

A blue-eyed blonde, Miss Johnson is serving as president of the junior Dolphin club. Swimming is one of her main interests.

She will attend Prom with Dick Von Treba, a member of the Prom promotions committee. He is a Phi Delta Theta from Whitefish Bay.

Miss Johnson has selected a white waffle pique dress for the dance. It has a plain bodice with small shoulder straps, and a full length skirt. A short-sleeved jacket completes her dress.

THE FIRST WAVE, of settlement in the Wisconsin area was the result of the boom in lead mining in the southwest, beginning in the 1820's and continuing for two decades. The Wisconsin land district of those early days was bounded on the north by the Wisconsin river, on the west by the Mississippi river, and on the east by today's counties of Dane and Green.

Ramanohar Lohia, Indian Leader, Speaks at Union

A hero of India's independence movement, Dr. Ramanohar Lohia, will speak at the Memorial Union on August 8. He will stop in Madison for two days as a part of his first visit to this country.

Lohia was a close friend of Mahatma Gandhi and the present Indian prime minister, Pandit Nehru. Two years ago Lohia took part in founding the Indian Socialist Party, the first organized opposition to the ruling Congress Party. Lohia's tour of the United States is under the sponsorship of the Foundation for World Government. Harris Wofford, Foundation trustee and author of the recent book "India Afire," will accompany the socialist leader.

The campus meeting will be held by the student forum committee. During his Madison stay, Lohia will also speak to the School for Workers.

Summer Band Gives Terrace Concert Tonite

The University of Wisconsin summer session band, under the baton of Robert M. Fleury, will present another of its summer evening concerts on the Union terrace tonight at 7 p. m.

The program will include Al Sweet's "Ringling Bros. Grand Entry March," "Southern Cross Overture" by Yoder, "Yankee Doodle Setting for Band" by Morton Gould, and "Aida March" by Verdi. These selections will be conducted by Albert Leach of Kemper Military Academy in Boonesville, Missouri.

Richard Bjorklund, band director, Beloit, Wisconsin, will then conduct Henry Fillmore's "Military Escort in Five Ways." This selection consists of five different interpretations of the same theme. The first is the original march; the second as Mascagni, composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" would have written it; the third a Johann Strauss interpretation; the fourth as a modern dance band leader would have written it; and fifth as a military band passing in review.

The next two selections, "Esprit de Corps Overture" and "Texas Plains March" will be conducted by Ernest Justice, Northeastern College, Tahlequah, Oklahoma, and Clyde Knox, Reedsburg, Wisconsin, respectively.

Final pieces include "Danza Calabrese," Morelli and Norberts; "Fiddle Faddle," Anderson - Lang; "Someone to Watch Over Me," Gershwin - Pelouquin, "Alhambra March," W. Paris Chambers; "Homestretch Galop," Karl L. King; and several Wisconsin songs.

In Memoriam

William Kiekhofer

By PRESIDENT E. B. FRED

NO WORDS CAN express the loss which has been sustained by the people of Wisconsin and their state university through the death of Professor William H. Kiekhofer.

Professor Kiekhofer first joined the university staff as an assistant in economics in 1908. Since then he has personified the public-spirited scholarship and the vital human qualities that are the ideals of the institution which he served with devotion and distinction for so long a period.

PROFESSOR KIEKHOFFER was a great teacher.

To many generations of students he brought instruction that was as forceful and stimulating as it was colorful. The affectionate daily "skyrocket" for "Wild Bill" in Music Hall became virtually a trademark of university undergraduate experience.

To scores of graduate students in economics, Professor Kiekhofer gave at once strict, careful guidance in the disciplines of advanced study, and warm, personal counseling.

His economics texts set national standards.

NOT ONLY THROUGH his students, but by many direct services, Professor Kiekhofer influenced the whole state. A man of thorough religious background and convictions, he gave unendingly of his time and his talents to the duties of faculty citizenship. Many groups and many functions were indebted to him for irreplaceable advice and administration.

His later years were marked particularly by his chairmanship of the university's Honorary Degrees committee and the university Centennial committee.

IN ALL MATTERS, he placed the interests of the university above his own. This devotion to duty found expression, as well, in varied municipal, state, national, and business interests.

Professor Kiekhofer's voice and writings were known to town-and-gown, in the far corners of the state, and around the country, as they were to his beloved students.

Those of us who knew him intimately knew of the great courage it took for him, in the face of ill health, to even increase his services to the university. His strength is our heritage. His loyalty to students, to university, to state, was the loyalty of love.

WE ARE EXCEEDINGLY fortunate that Professor Kiekhofer's testimonial of faith in Wisconsin and her people should be preserved in his writings and speeches which breathe the very life which he lived, a life of devotion, but also of good humor and friendship.

Speaking to a Centennial audience in the Union Theater in June of 1949, Professor Kiekhofer told us of his dreams of "the campus beautiful," of "the intellectual comradeship of teachers and students," of "the ceaseless quest for truth," and of "universities as the bulwarks of democracy."

TO THE MANY sons and daughters of Wisconsin who had the great privilege of knowing and working for and with Professor Kiekhofer, and who live on to revere his memory, these words and others, as well as the example of his sterling career, shall forever inspire that intense devotion to America and its institutions which was the glory of this Wisconsin servant.

To the Cardinal:

"When Enoch Arden died, the village had seldom seen a costlier funeral."

Somehow I don't find the above closing lines of "Enoch Arden" which Don Marino has called "offensively vulgar" nearly so much so as his own closing lines: "it was already an overly sticky creampuff of an evening. Enoch, enoch. Arden enoch?"

Bascom Cocktail Bar Proposed To End Student, Faculty Apathy

By TOWNER V. SARKIS

FROM TIME TO TIME proposals have been advanced for a milk bar in Bascom hall where, between classes, students and faculty might mingle and come to know each other. To date, nothing has been done about this proposal, due, probably, to faculty apathy which in turn, is the result of ignorance of the merits such a scheme would possess.

This uninterest, however, is not wholly unreasonable, for who, actually, would want to frequent a milk bar? What we need is a cocktail bar in Bascom hall.

Let us consider the advantages. Such a bar would bring faculty and students closer together, because alcohol lowers inhibitions to a far greater degree than does milk; indeed, hard liquor will do this more efficiently than beer. Faculty members are notoriously aloof and conservative; the future of America belongs to the young, extroverted, and liberal.

Such a bar would bring reactionary professors under a more liberal aegis: mingling with young people and hearing their ideas on world and national affairs would undoubtedly broaden professional horizons. Alcohol would be a salutary means to this end.

BUT LEST IT BE said that we are lacking in patriotism, let us hasten to point out that beer performs a useful economic function, especially since its sale benefits one of Wisconsin's largest industries, and no one will deny the duty of a state-supported university to benefit its supporters, both financial and athletic. Moreover, this sale of beer may develop the drinking habit in the student, and this too will benefit the state's brewing industry after the student leaves college.

One may expect that at least 10 per cent of those exposed will remain steady beer drinkers throughout life, and a few may even become confirmed alcoholics, thus adding not a little to the state's revenue.

Actually, so worthwhile is this proposal that it should not be limited to a bar in Bascom: beer and liquor should be brought into the classroom. No one will deny that drinking alcoholic beverages stimulates loquacity, and this unquestionably means a benefiting of class discussion, as anyone who has attended a Rathskeller bull session will admit. The instructor himself should be provided with a pitcher of gin with which to refresh himself when he finds his flow of ideas running dry.

AND ONE CAN cite precedent. In many grade schools it is customary to pause in the middle of the morning while each child drinks a bottle of milk. No one would suggest interrupting a college class for this; the only sensible thing is to substitute an appropriate beverage, and beer or liquor is obviously the only suitable one. Every student should at all times have a cocktail, glass of beer, or highball on his paper-rest to stimulate both thought and discussion.

From these arguments there can be not the slightest doubt that the introduction of a liquor dispensary into Bascom hall and of liquor into the classroom would be a measure of the highest value to the advancement of education and student-faculty relationships. Introduction of such a system moreover would relieve an instance of the most flagitious discrimination: law students would not be the only ones admitted to the bar.

In the interests of education, patriotism, and social justice, the University of Wisconsin should actively promote the drinking of alcoholic beverages in its classrooms and buildings. Not alone these noble ends but the customers should be served, and the sooner the better.

Lone Petition Signer Refutes 'Pretty Boy's' Definition of 'Sensible'

By JIM DICKSON

WHILE THE CAPITAL TIMES "Declaration of Independence" petition story is being ricocheted off comic tangents in the current feud between the Madison newspapers, the fireworks have completely obscured the position of the only person who found enough intestinal fortitude to sign the petition.

He is Wentworth A. Millar, a 38 year old insurance man and the father of two children. Millar boasts that he is a reader of both Madison daily newspapers and that politically he is "a Willie Republican, and proud of it." The latter are as rare as chocolate cheese today.

According to the innuendo of the State Journal's editorial, no "sensible" person would have signed the Declaration of Independence petition circulated by Capital Times reporter John Hunter because Hunter is so abominably homely that most sensible citizens would naturally be fearful of his motives. One might conceivably contract cataracts looking for the logic in such a position.

'UGLY CHILE' HUNTER

UPON INTERVIEWING MILLAR, we found him to be anything but an insensible person. We learned that he was born and reared in Marshfield, Wis., and captained his high school basketball team which participated in the 1931 state tournament in Madison. He later attended the university, served in the armed forces during World War II. Today he holds a responsible position with the Mutual Service Insurance Co.

Millar's version of how he happened to sign the petition was that it resulted from a chance encounter with Hunter—whom he knew slightly—on University avenue. He said that Hunter asked him if he would sign a petition which contained the Declaration of Independence and parts of the Constitution. He asked to see the petition, naturally, and read it through when Hunter produced it. Upon recognizing the text of the precious documents—unlike many whom the State Journal considers "sensible persons"—he consented to sign it. At the time he said,

"Sure I'll sign the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights—we were never closer to losing the things that they stand for than we are today."

THE TRAGIC PROOF of his statement was exemplified in the concern shown by his wife when his statement was published in the Capital Times the next day.

"My wife asked me later that night if I was sure

I had done the right thing in signing the petition. I told her that if a person was going to be afraid in these times to give an honest opinion, then the forces attempting to destroy this country had achieved another victory."

Millar stated that he would gladly sign the petition again. He also indicated that he was displeased by what he termed, "the personal attack directed at John Hunter and the inference that he was not an able reporter—because of his mustache, glasses, and the way he wears his hair."

It is submitted here that Hunter is the first to admit that he does not possess the most irresistible puss in the community, but that Journal editor Matson has yet to cause Cary Grant to lose much sleep.

As Millar said, "It was asked what sensible person would sign the petition? I contend that whoever does not support the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights—both in writing and verbally—is not showing good common sense. For the Wisconsin State Journal to infer that John Hunter and myself are insensible would leave considerable room for discussion among the many good citizens of Wisconsin who have known both of us for a long time. To me, neither pulchritude nor party politics is the question in point, but rather, what groups in America today are behind the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights."

Insensible, Mr. Matson?

SURELY, PRETTY BOY, the proverbial estrangement of beauty and brains cannot be so great that you fail to see that it was because 54 men once signed the same "petition" that the State Journal can legally perpetuate the Senate-floor lies of Joe McCarthy.

Heart of Russia Is in the West USSR Expert Says at Institute

Despite rapid industrial growth beyond the Volga, the heart of Russia is in the West, John Morrison, University of Maryland geographer and expert on the USSR, told those attending the Institute for Geographic Understandings Wednesday morning at the university.

History proves to Russian leaders that military threats come from the West, he said.

When threatened, he pointed out, Russia has "adopted the traditional gambit of allying itself with a third power on the other side of the threatening nation—to the west of it—even though it distrusted its ultimate aims and despised its institutions."

Russia historically has followed the principle of "he who is the enemy of my enemy is my friend," Morrison said.

"And from the West — Poles, Swedes, French, and Germans have invaded Russia deeply. Not since the Mongol invasion in the 13th century did Russia suffer as she did from the last German invasion," Morrison added.

In World War II the "old pattern was repeated," he continued. "The power to the east and the powers in the west became allies against the power in the center."

Morrison spoke on a panel with university Profs. Richard Hartshorne, chairman of the geography department, and Chester Easum, noted historian. Social studies teachers from throughout the state were among those registered at the institute.

The future course of Russia-U. S. relations may depend on what happens in Germany, Morrison said.

"Will Germany become reunited and, playing off the U. S. against the USSR, succeed in becoming again the strongest power in Europe?" he asked.

"Will the U. S. and the USSR then forget their mutual suspicions and their incompatible ideologies and unite against the common enemy as did England and Russia when England was the strong power to the west of Germany?" Morrison asked.

Morrison said this would be no more of a turnabout than happened a decade ago when the Soviet was an aggressor in Finland.

"Certainly if anybody in Washington during the period of the Soviet-Finnish war in 1939-40 had predicted that the Soviet aggressor we were then denouncing would be honored two years later in Constitution Hall by a Russian Relief program at which the hammer and sickle red flag was born down the aisle by a U. S. marine—if that had been predicted in 1940, the predictor would have been regarded as mildly insane by both Americans and Russians," Morrison said.

The USSR is blocking achievement of a western European union in every way she can, he added. "A federated western Europe might look too much like Napoleon's united Europe to the men in the Kremlin."

Professor Easum outlined the historical development of Russia's alliance in Europe and pointed out that the Truman Doctrine has the purpose of sustaining Turkey and Greece and the Marshall Plan is designed to "followup. UNRRA with blood transfusions to make western Europe less susceptible to communism."

These programs have been answered by the organization of southeastern Europe on the Soviet model under USSR sponsorship and control, of which only Yugoslavia "has so far seemed really restive in it, or been excluded from it."

Professor Hartshorne said that "Europe is the one part of the world that possesses power and proximity to the United States sufficient to threaten our security."

Since the end of World War II, Hartshorne added, the major tensions have been due to a struggle for power—sought for security or for aggressive purposes.

"Europe since the end of the second world war has continued in a state of active expansion of power," Hartshorne said. "The current threat, the Soviet Union, is motivated probably by all the factors that lead a state to seek increase in power, and has the least to lose by destruction or disorganization in the rest of Europe."

Many Scholarships Await Claimants

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A survey by the U. S. office of education has revealed that an estimated $4,000,000 worth of college scholarships will go unclaimed in this country in 1951.

The disclosure was made in the Educator's Dispatch, published in Washington and circulated to libraries and school officials.

"Students either did not know about them (the scholarships) or were uninterested," the news-letter commented.

The office of education study, to be published Dec. 1, shows that scholarships totaling $31,000,000 are available this year. They range in value from token inducements to eight-year medical school stipends valued at about $4,000.

Youths are advised to study college catalogues, available in all public libraries, for information on scholarship benefits. The office of education points out also, that many of the scholarships are not for class leaders alone. Other reasons for awards are place of birth, racial extraction, place of residence, character or financial needs.

Klotsche Stresses Position of Speech In World Conflicts

The importance of communications in the present "ideological conflict" among nations was stressed at the opening of the three-day Conference for Speech Teachers and Coaches at the university.

J. Martin Klotsche, president of Milwaukee State college, gave the keynote address before almost 100 instructors of discussion, debate, and oratory.

"Speech is the instrument by which we share what is in the minds of men and therefore is our most important instrument of enlightenment and education," Klotsche said.

He gave the speech teachers three criteria to pass on to their students. "What we say must be true, it must be meaningful, and it must be related by our acts to the world of which we are a part," he said.

Klotsche pointed to the world situation today, calling it an "ideological conflict," as well as a military struggle. He blamed this partly on the fact that "we are constantly bombarded by words which have ceased to have any significance."

As examples, Klotsche noted words such as "liberal," and "democracy," which, he said are used by both sides but with different meanings.

Klotsche also traced the growth of communication. He said the Gettysburg address as originally delivered by Abraham Lincoln was heard by 20,000 people. A short time ago, the same address by Charles Laughton in a movie was reportedly heard by 235-million persons.

The conference is sponsored by the university departments of speech and education, the university Extension division, and the Wisconsin High School Forensic association.

Bower Aly, author and professor at the University of Missouri, spoke Wednesday. Hurst Anderson, president of Hamline university, will talk at the closing session today.

Diers of Tarrant Wins 8th Straight I-M Loop Game

Happy Hal Diers, ace hurler from Tarrant, racked up twelve more strikeouts tonight to pace his first place ball club to their eighth straight win in the Intramural softball summer league.

Tarrant, in capturing its final triumph, beat Schlichter Number Two by a 5 to 3 score, and ended their season in sole possession of first place. Siebecker beat Winslow and Richardson 13 to 9 in a free scoring battle. Ochsner beat the fifth place Schlichter Number Three team by a 14 to 4 count and wound up their season in fourth spot.

DiMaggio's Return Big Lift to Yanks

The New York Yankees expect easier sailing in the tight American league pennant race now that "the big guy is hitting for distance once again."

Joe DiMaggio, hobbled by injuries all season, came to life over the weekend and forced the experts to put his obituary back on the shelf.

The $100,000-a-year outfielder looked like the DiMaggio of old as he slammed three home runs in as many games to help the Yanks sweep a three-game series from Chicago and knock the White Sox out of the race for at least the time being.

DiMaggio clinched Friday night's disputed 3-1 victory with a homer and Sunday he enjoyed his greatest day of the season before 70,972 fans, largest crowd of the year at Yankee stadium.

The poker-faced veteran drove home five runs on a pair of homers to spark the Yanks to an 8-3 victory in the opener. He singled and scored the insurance run in a 2-0 nightcap triumph.

The sweep enabled the Yanks to pull two games ahead of the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. The Indians nipped the Red Sox, 5-4, to tie Boston for second place. The fourth-place White Sox are lagging 6½ games off the pace.

Ortmann Signs With Pittsburgh

Chuck Ortmann, star of the last Rose Bowl game, has decided to play professional football. He mailed his signed contract Thursday to the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National league. The terms were not revealed.

The former East Division high school boy returned home this week from Ann Arbor, Mich., where he had a job. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in June after starring in the Wolverines' backfield three seasons.

Ortmann reported Thursday to the college all-star squad at Delafield, where Coach Herman Hickman of Yale and aides will prepare last year's collegians for their game with the Cleveland Browns, pro champions, in Chicago's Soldier Field.

Announce Nicholas As Winner Of Rogers Scholarship Prize

Albert D. "Ab" Nicholas, Rockford, Ill., star guard on the university basketball teams of 1950 and 1951, will receive the Harlan B. Rogers scholarship award of $150 for the 1951-52 school year, Paul L. Trump, director of student personnel services announced Saturday.

Nicholas, a senior, who is working towards his bachelor of science degree, is an outstanding student with a better than "good" average earned during the past three years. As a guard on the Badger basketball teams, he was the leading scorer in 1951, was voted the most valuable man by his teammates, and was selected on the All-Conference team. He is a cadet lieutenant colonel in the university ROTC corps.

Major League Batting Averages Are Told Today

The Chicago White Sox have faded in the American League pennant race, but their hit-and-run star, Orestes Minofo, is still the man to catch in the league batting chase.

In the National League, Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals boosted his lead to 17 points, with a .375 average including Sunday's games.

Another heavy week of slugging at Sportsman's Park produced nine hits, including three home runs, in 21 trips for Stan—A .438 pace.

While Musial boosted his average four points, Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn slipped five to .358.

Richie Ashburn of the Phillies held third at .351 with Johnny Wyrostek of Cincinnati fourth at .335. Brooklyn's Roy Campanella had a good week, taking over fifth place with a three-point jump to .333 while Bob Elliott of Boston dropped to sixth, .327.

Others in the top 10 were Alvin Dark of New York, .321; Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh, .318, Pee Wee Reese of Brooklyn, .315, and Carl Furillo of Brooklyn, .312.

Through Sunday's games, Minofo owns a .346 mark, climbing two percentage points during the week, for a six-point margin over Washington's persistent Gil Coan. Coan picked up nine points last week for a .340 listing, wrestling second place from injury-benched Ferris Fain of Philadelphia. Fain is third with .334.

Minofo clubbed nine hits in 24 trips despite the continued Pale Hose slump last week. Coan slammed 10 safe blows in 22 AB's.

Fifth Grid Official To Be Used In Fall Grid Wars

There'll be a fifth whistle tooter officiating at football games in the 10 major athletic conferences this fall.

Commissioners of the conferences agreed here today to experiment with the fifth official "at least in some games" in the coming season. The Western (Big Ten) Conference already has decided to try a fifth official this fall.

Pro football for many years has used a fifth official, known as the sideline judge, in addition to the standard quartet of head linesman, referee, field judge and umpire.

Victor O. Schmidt, spokesman for the annual meeting of the National Association of Collegiate Commissioners (NACC), said the fifth official in college football probably will be known as sideline or back judge.

Schmidt, commissioner of the Pacific Coast conference, said "in the mechanics of officiating there are several blind spots on the football field that need covering. The fifth official is expected to remedy that.

The sidelines judge will be stationed two yards back of the offensive line on the opposite side from the head linesman.

The commissioners also modified their officials' guide to approve the use of the whistle by the field judge to kill the ball on downfield punts and long passes. This practice has been followed for a number of years in the Pacific Coast, Big Seven, Southwest, Missouri Valley and Mountain States (Skyline Eight.)

A big blow to Badger Basketball fans is the loss of Jim Clinton for the coming cage season. Big Jim, last year's sophomore sensation will be ineligible for the major part of next season.

Because of a Western Conference rule requiring six consecutive school calendar months of residence after dropping out during a semester of varsity competition, Clinton would only be able to play the last few games of the schedule if he were to return to school in the fall.

Jim has been advised to stay out of school until February, and complete this six months residence during the second semester of next year and the first few months of the fall semester of '52. This would make him eligible for the complete '52 season as well as the '53 season.

Clinton will be missed by Coach "Bud" Foster mostly because of his rebounding ability and his ruggedness under the boards. His value to the cage team was increasing with each game as was his shooting average.

In looking for a replacement for the under-the-board work, Foster must now turn to Chuck Dahlke, last year's sophomore center. Probably the most improved member of last year's squad, Dahlke has the height needed for the rebounding chores. He is not as aggressive as was Clinton, but showed his worth against such rugged foes as Chuck Darling of Iowa and Bob Carey of Michigan State. You can look forward to seeing a lot of Chuck next year.

To add depth to the center slot two members of last season's freshman squad will be available for work. Paul Morrow, 6 foot 7 inch giant from St. Croix Falls and the leading scorer of last winters yearling squad will be a strong contender for honors on the varsity squad. The tall boy, who holds the state scoring record for state tournament play has a left hand hook shot that reminds one of the great Don Rehfeldt.

Also from the first year aggregation, Bob Weber, another lanky sharpshooter, will possibly give Coach Foster added height under the boards. It is altogether possible that one of these boys will be shifted to a forward position in an attempt to add inches to the Badger forward line.

In looking over the rest of the prospects for the coming cage campaign, it is necessary to start with Wisconsin's All-American candidate, Abner Nicholas. The Rockford, Ill. senior, high scorer of last year's team, will again add his terrific defensive ability and fine shooting eye to the Badger hoopers. His added value in helping the younger players will also be an asset to a team that will see only six major letter winners returning.

Other members of last year's squad who will be counted upon are "Si" Johnson, who plays either guard or forward, Tom Ward; guard; and "Pete" Anderson and Bill Buechl, both forwards.

Junior "W" award winners that will return include centers Ed Carpenter and Ed Heins; guards Chuck Clatworthy, Jim Justesen, Harvey Kuenn, and Bob Wolff; and forwards Carl Harreid and Charles Siefert.

Other members of the freshman squad that are expected to help considerably are two of the best ball players that have been on a Badger yearling squad for some time. Tony Stracka, a forward from Hartford who was second in scoring last year, and Mike Daily, last year's frosh captain and play-maker. These two boys should help lighten the load on Coach Foster's shoulders.

Other promising members of the first year team that show promise are Jack Manning, John McDermott, and Hal Raether.

Although it is too early to tell exactly who will be entering school in the fall, it must be remembered that freshmen will be eligible for varsity competition in the fall. One of the best prospects, if he enrolls, will be Rube Schultz, 6 foot 5 inch center from Watertown.

However, rather than build up hopes, perhaps it is best to wait until the fall to see just exactly who turns up before any newcomers are counted on. Western Conference competition is tough enough for the old timers, but the youngsters will possibly add depth to a small squad of returning veterans.

No Possibility Of U.S. Labor Party Says Prof

There is no possibility in the near future for the formation of an American Labor party, said Philip Taft, visiting professor from Brown university, Tuesday night at a Union forum.

Till the 1948 union conventions, Taft said, the unions merely endorsed political candidates and gave minor financial support. Now, they have an almost full-time political campaign going on.

"The old Gompers' sentiment of 'reward your friends and punish your enemies' is still the political guide for a large portion of American labor, but the old unionists are afraid of the Taft-Hartley act because it might bring the old usurpation of justice by the courts as before the Norris-LaGuardia and Wagner acts.

"It is this fear," said Taft, "which has inclined labor to a more active participation in politics. However, in my opinion, the sentiment for an independent, political, labor party has never been weaker."

This sentiment goes back to Gompers' ideas, Taft explained. Gompers thought an American labor party would weaken labor's power as there is no class feeling in the U. S.

Prof. Taft received his doctor's degree from Wisconsin. He is chairman of the economics department of Brown, and author of many articles and books. With Selig Perlman, university economist, he wrote "History of Labor in U. S. 1896-1932."

He was introduced by Stanley Silverberg, summer chairman of the Union forum committee.

Navy Loans Launch, 'Impulse' To University for Fish Research

Most fisherman would trade any three of their favorite tricks for the Impulse.

The Impulse is a 12,000 pound reconditioned navy launch loaned to university lake scientists by the Office of Naval Research.

And she can literally sound out the spots where the fish are swimming.

If this sounds like a whale of a story, ask any old navy man about the echo-sounder. He'll say it's an electronic device to send out split-second sound waves and then calculate and record water depth from the echo. The echo-sounder will also detect other objects in deep water—such as schools of fish.

The university scientists hope to be able to track some of Wisconsin's best known game-fish species by bouncing the sound waves off their backs. As soon as the echo-sounding instruments have been adapted to shallow water, the scientists intend to use the launch to locate schools of fish and chart both size and daily movements of the school to and from feeding grounds.

In past years university lake scientists under Prof. Arthur Hasler have tried netting, underwater electric eyes, and even deep-sea diving gear and cameras in an effort to get accurate records of the schooling, feeding, and traveling habits of fish.

The echo-sounder mounted on the navy launch may very well provide the answer to a tough research problem, say Hasler and his associates, J. R. Villemonte, professor of engineering, Physicist L. V. Whitney, and Engineer-Zoologist Richard Dugdale. The information gathered will be valuable to biologists trying to make U. S. lakes and streams more useful and productive.

The engineers even hope that the sensitivity of the instruments can be developed to a point where the echo can be used to tell size and composition of the school.

This may not be as hard as it first appears, Villemonte points out.

After the sound of 1/1,000-second duration has been emitted from the loudspeaker in a float lowered over the gunwale, some sound will bounce upward from the school of fish. Some will continue down through the school and bounce back from the lake bottom. By the difference in intensity between the two echos it may be possible to figure out such things as fish size, school size, and the shape of both fish and school.

"These factors may then enable us to find patterns characteristic of the various species of fish without the necessity of netting one or two fish and disturbing the school," the engineers say.

The university scientists point out that no one will be able to hear them experimenting even when the loudspeaker is operating full blast on its 110-volt generator mounted in the launch. The sound will have a frequency of some 15,000-20,000 vibrations.

That's too high a sound for most humans to hear. The fish can hear it, but they don't seem to mind, the scientists say.

Death of Kiekhofer Mourned By Students and Faculty

the university's centennial committee and in his centennial valedictory speech "The University of Our Dreams", he foresaw a Fine Arts building on the university campus, urged bringing to campus great teachers for courses of instruction and public lectures, and pointed out that in teaching "it isn't what the professor knows but what the student learns that really matters."

When Kiekhofer became ill in the middle of May it was reported that he had only missed 20 lectures during 43 years at the university.

When asked how his nickname "Wild Bill" originated, Kiekhofer said: "I don't know how it started and I never have taken time to find out."

Kiekhofer's latest book published this spring was titled "To Thee, Wisconsin, State and University." In it he toasted Wisconsin because "Wisconsin has had the good fortune and the intelligence to develop a richly diversified economic life . . . the cultural unity of her people . . . and . . . unafraid of new ideas, Wisconsin has been a pioneer of social progress."

A member of the neo-classical school of economics, Kiekhofer was the author of "Outline of Economics," which has gone through seven editions; "Syllabus of Economic Theory;" "Economic Principles;" and "Problems In Economics." He also edited the 12 volume "Century Studies in Economics."

He is survived by his wife Gladys, a son William H., Jr., a daughter Emilie; and a brother and two sisters, Benjamin, Margaret, and Alma Kiekhofer, of Milwaukee.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. The body was taken to the Frautschi funeral home.

attending the convention in Minneapolis, Aug. 20th to 29th, Chris Anastos, board member, said:

"In my opinion board would not get $270 worth of benefits from the NSA convention."

Miss Sime said she didn't think that board should spend over one-fourth of its income on the one project.

"The money would be spent wisely," board member Marvin Kahn said.

The motion to rescind the $200 appropriation of the previous week was made by Miss Sime. She said she believed that a 5 to 4 decision was out of order because one of the affirmative votes was that of Fields, a delegate.

She quoted a procedural point of order that no person "with pecuniary interest" should be allowed to vote on an issue in which he has said interest.

Fields' vote on the $105 appropriation motion was recorded.

motion when Don Mitchell moved to reconsider the motion. He had voted on the affirmative during the original vote. An effort to rescind the "sole purpose" motion had been voted down last week.

A brief outlining the necessity, relationship, and financing of student government in the university was approved by board Tuesday night. The brief is to be used in presentation of the fee problem to SLIC.

The brief was submitted by board's committee on compulsory fees. The committee headed by Chris Anastos, board member, was ordered to prepare the brief by Miss Stumpf.

Green yesterday described his motion as "the quickest way to get action." He and four other board members had abstained from voting on the "sole purpose" motion which passed on a three to one vote.

Marvin Kahn, board member, said Tuesday night that the abstainers "didn't realize what their abstention votes meant." He said the "sole purpose" motion introduced by Armond Fields was not a committee report and asked for one.

The committee composed of Anastos, Fields, Kahn, and Ann Holden had not been able to agree on a single method of procedure and individual members had advanced their own plans.

Green said he didn't see that any progress was being made so he submitted his motion as a "compromise." Anastos had recommended getting SLIC's approval before bringing the problem of fees to the regents; Fields wanted SLIC to pass the problem on to the regents without considering it for approval or disapproval, only recommending that the regents take action on the problem.

After Green's motion passed, Fields termed summer board "conservative and inept." "It was killing any chance of successful student government this fall," he said.

Anastos favored the Green proposal because he believed it to be the procedure recommended by administration officials to whom board had talked. "I feel that it is essential that we get the backing of the faculty," he said.

SELIG PERLMAN,
PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS

"Prof. Kiekhofer was a true pillar not only of the department of economics but of the university as a whole. He was a constructive thinker and a master organizer in his particular field of intellectual interest and one of the most outstanding teachers of economics in the country. As chairman of the department for a quarter of a century, his name was synonymous with broad mindedness and the strictest integrity. With his passing away, the university has lost an exceptional leader as well as a most colorful personage."

HENRY R. TRUMBOWER,
PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS AND COMMERCE

"Prof. Kiekhofer was outstanding in every field of academic activity—a superb lecturer, a discriminating scholar and writer, and an inspiring director of research. The welfare and progress of his students were matters which always lay close to his heart. His capacity for friendship and for leadership were unexcelled. Prof. Kiekhofer's host of friends and thousands of former students mourn his passing as an irreparable loss."

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

JESSE WHITE, auditor of the United Mine Workers Union, was shot and critically wounded yesterday in West Frankfort, Illinois. He was involved in a love triangle.

White, 30 years old, is a brother of Hugh White, Illinois district president of the John L. Lewis union. Former city commissioner Orville Nolen gave himself up in the shooting at the sheriff's office in Benton, Illinois.

BERNARD BARUCH, elder statesman, says that anyone who tries to divert the attention of General Eisenhower to politics is doing a disservice to the general and the country.

Baruch spent a month in Europe, and he is now on his way back to the United States on the Queen Mary.

WILLIAM O'DWYER, ambassador to Mexico, has replied to the report that a $1 million letter of credit had been transferred to a Manhattan bank to his account. He terms the report a "cowardly and contemptible smear."

O'Dwyer says the story, which was carried in a dispatch from Washington by the New York Daily News, is "a diabolical hoax which ordinarily would be too fantastic to receive attention, except that it appears to have emanated from the Senate crime investigating committee."

Stokes Claims Force Essential In Latin Culture

PROF. WILLIAM S. STOKES

Violence in Latin American politics is as common as elections in the United States, according to Prof. William S. Stokes of the university political science department.

In an article soon to be published by the Miami Law Quarterly, Stokes maintains that force and violence are an essential part of Latin-American culture. He has traveled widely in South and Central America.

"I am inclined to believe that the family, church, army, educational institutions, and economic systems in Latin America are essentially authoritarian in nature, hence conditioning the individual to an acceptance in politics of processes of dictatorship, including violence, more frequently than processes of political democracy," the article says.

Force is institutionalized to such an extent that there are several accepted methods for overthrowing the government in power, he says. However, Stokes points out that revolution, in the sense of a fundamental breaking with the past, is almost never found in Latin America.

Stokes is pessimistic about eliminating such violence in the near future because it is so deep-rooted and so traditional.

The article is part of a book soon to be published, titled "The Nature of Power in Latin American Politics." Stokes has written extensively for other publications. He is also a regular contributor for the "Americana."

Local Dems Propose Debate of McCarthy

The effect of Senator McCarthy on the nation is the subject of a proposed debate between Dane county Democrats and Republicans.

Democrats want the Republicans to select a speaker to debate the question, "Has Senator McCarthy been a good or bad influence in America?" at a picnic Aug. 12.

The county Democratic chairman, Stanley Prideaux, who invited the Republican voluntary committee to choose a speaker for such a debate, said a moderator acceptable to both sides would be chosen if the invitation was accepted.

wright, frequently plays in his own shows. He was the young miner in the initial production of his play, "The Corn is Green," and patrons of Movie Time at the Union Play Circle saw him recently in his screenplay, the "Woman of Dolwyn." Frequently cast in other writers' plays as well, he has a part in the film "Major Barbara" by Bernard Shaw, recently re-issued.

Other lead roles in the campus production will be played by Waylene Edwards, L. L. Zimmerman, and Dorothy Bush.

Members of the cast include Robert Petersen, Edith Dell, Gloria H. Burneson, Ray Burneson, and Rossme Sterling.

The melodrama takes place on the stage of the St. James theater in London, and concerns a millionaire-to-be who dies on the eve of his inheritance, and an ancient myth which surrounds the theater. The actors are attending a party in the costumes of famous ghosts of history, and the set is that of a 16th century castle.

Voegeli has 58 organ cues and will most of the time be playing variations of his three basic themes. These themes he associates with specific characters and situations, and uses appropriate variations when the proper character is on stage.

A special volume control was added to the organ so that Voegeli can fade the music completely out with no audible break.

This combination of remote controlled lights and organ background music was used once before when Mr. Dietrich produced "Winterset" five years ago.
