During the past week the prosecution in the Fall-Sinclair trial after definitely tracing $230,500 in Liberty bonds into the possession of Fall, proved that these bonds were part of the profits of a mysterious deal inspired by Sinclair. M. T. Everhart, Fall's son-in-law, after being forced to admit that he deposited the bonds in a Pueblo, Colo. bank to the credit of Fall and a company in which Fall was interested, refused to say from whom he received them. Whereupon the government laid before the jury strong circumstantial evidence that this transfer of bonds was, in effect, the payment to Fall by Sinclair for the Teapot Dome oil leases.

The government also proved that the entire transaction was shrouded in secrecy and competitive bidding was stifled in the interest of Sinclair. During the testimony of several oil operators letters from Ex-Sec. of the Navy Denby were introduced in which Denby stated that Fall had full charge of the leasing of Teapot Dome and was handling the matter in person. Department of Interior subordinates testified that Fall did not seek the advice of the Department of Justice or of legal officials in his own department in the naval oil transaction. They dispelled the theory that Denby may have had a hand in the negotiations by stating that Fall gave all orders and made all final decisions in drafting the lease.

The defense gained an important point when Justice Siddons ruled that Sinclair's statements before the congressional oil investigating committee should not be admitted as evidence in the present case.

A temporary accord in the Franco-American tariff controversy has been reached in Paris between M. Bokanowski, minister of commerce, and Sheldon Whitehouse, charge d'affaires. The dispute was precipitated by the action of France in imposing maximum duties against some American goods on Sept. 6.

The agreement, which will probably be in definite form early next week, will provide for the restoration by France of the favorable rates enjoyed by American products previous to Sept. 6. The American concessions include the lifting of agricultural, sanitary and pharmaceutical restrictions on French imports into the United States, and the ending of all further effort to ascertain French production costs through treasury department agents resident in France.

While this agreement is decidedly a fortunate turn in the dispute, there remains the larger question of negotiations for a permanent commercial treaty between the United States and France.

The Swiss duty on American-made motor cars was increased 100 to 200 per cent, and not 2000 per cent as was wrongly reported last week through a typographical error. However, not much significance is attached to this move. At first it gave rise to the fear that it was the beginning of an attempt on the part of European countries to forestall American invasion of their domestic markets; but it is now plain that the Swiss authorities were prompted solely by the necessity of raising more revenues.

By the simple process of killing or routing all but one of the presidential candidates, political disturbances in Mexico have been quelled. The most persistent of the numerous rumors concerning the Mexican situation is that President Calles and Gen. Obregon have split. However, this is but a rumor.

In the meantime, Dwight W. Morrow, recently appointed ambassador to Mexico, has been conveyed to his new post with the protection of two armored cars. The Mexican press has given the former Morgan partner and Pres. Coolidge's classmate a cordial, though not very enthusiastic welcome.

The discovery of a plot to place the exiled Prince Carol on the throne of Rumania caused quite a bit of excitement in that restless country during the past week. It is certain that there is an element in Roumania that is dissatisfied with the present rule and favors the return of Carol. However, the latest reports state that Premier Bratiano has the situation in hand and the country is quiet once more.

Students Think Education Bores, Russell Claims

Information Should be Given Only on Demand, is View of Author

"Information, like chocolates, should be given sparingly, and after urgent demands," writes Bertrand Russell, world-famous author and lecturer, in a recent article on education in the New York Times.

Mr. Russell points out that too many students today have come to regard their teachers as their natural enemies, and instead of considering the acquisition of knowledge as delightful, they have come to think that learning is necessarily a bore. The reason for this, thinks Mr. Russell, is the unwise training of students in their earlier years.

Training Requires Study

"The wise handling of infants is a matter requiring much skill," he continues, "depending upon a combination of knowledge and affection and a certain type of disposition. But where it exists, it produces a girl or boy capable of profiting by methods which ordinary schools dare not employ, and the careful parents find themselves, when the child is ten or twelve years old, in great difficulties as to any way of prolonging education in the spirit in which it has been begun."

Suggests New Plan

In the way of constructive criticism of present educational methods, Mr. Russell suggests:

"First, a drastic overhauling of the traditional curriculum, with a view to lightening it of everything not vitally important, so as to make room for new knowledge and for old knowledge of which the old-fashioned pedagogue (Continued on Page Two)

Union Concerts Fill Pavilion

Stock Building Only can Accommodate Crowds That Throng to Series

The 3000 capacity University Stock pavilion was chosen for all the concerts of the Wisconsin Union because it was the only building available in Madison which could accommodate the crowds which are annually attracted by the world famous artists on the winter series, according to officials of the Union Board. This year the concert series is to be opened next Thursday night by the unique English Singers, frequently referred to as the greatest part singers in the world. The pavilion is being made ready for their appearance with decoration, flowers, and drapes so that the audience will be entirely comfortable.

The English Singers are the first of the concert series but individual tickets are now on sale for the concert at Hook Brothers Music store, corner of State Street and the Square. The tickets sell for $2.50, $2.00, and $1.50.

It is the remarks of persons who have heard the English Singers as well as the reviews of critics in the daily press which have assured the Wisconsin Union in absolutely recommending the English Singers as an outstanding great attraction which is decidedly worth hearing, according to Lauriston Sharp '30, concert manager for the Union.

"The madrigal singing of the English Singers is not only the best I have ever heard; it is quite truly better than any I ever expected to hear in my life." Thus wrote Dr. Percy Buck, whose lectures in London were illustrated by these singers. "As the performers are also excellent soloists, they should be a godsend to any who wish a quiet lesson in the subtleties of part-singing."

VARSITY OUT TO MEET THE TEAM

Win or lose—Wisconsin! Early this morning the Varsity cheer-leaders will be out and about with their Fords and horns to arouse you from the arms of Morpheus to Greet The Team!

Show your true colors this morning and get down to the West Madison Station by 8:45 and cheer the team as they pull in from the Minnesota game. Now is the time, when they need encouragement most, to give them the support that they so well deserve and have won.

There are hard games ahead of us still and every man at the station is a blow driven home to show the team that they have the school behind them. And don't forget the harriers who covered themselves with glory yesterday.

Scholarship Cup Goes to Sigmas

Dean Nardin Presents Trophy at Pan-Hellenic Luncheon

The annual scholarship luncheon given by Pan-Hellenic was held at the Loraine hotel Saturday noon. Dean F. Louise Nardin presented the scholarship cup to Sigma sorority, the organization having the highest scholarship record for last year. Thirty sororities were represented at the luncheon and the guests included, Dean Nardin, Miss Gladys Borchers, Miss M. Gunter, and Ruth King '28, president of Pan-Hellenic.

Merle Mosses '28, of Sigma sorority was toastmistress, Miss Gladys Borchers, a graduate student, read several selections of contemporary American poetry, and Dean Nardin presented the cup to Sigma. The scholarship committee included Elizabeth Gilmore, Kappa Alpha Theta; Katherine Sherman, Beta Sigma Omicron; Merle Mosses, Sigma; Frances Aylward, Beta Phi Alpha; and Loraine McManamy, Alpha Omicron Pi.

SHOWERS OF CONFETTI TO FALL ON MONDAY

Er—uh—the weather bureau predicts heavy showers of confetti in certain limited localities within the next few days.

The downpour is expected to begin early Monday night and will in all probability continue until early Tuesday morning. It will be accompanied by sharp blasts over the area affected. Danger warnings have been issued by the department of street cleaning and the Chief of Police.

In other words, Hallowe'en is October 31st and the noise makers and confetti throwers will get you if you don't watch out.

WORLD REPRESENTED AT CLUB GATHERING

Sixty students representing all the major nations of the world attended a Hallowe'en party given by the International club at the Unitarian Parish house last night.

The group representing China won the International indoor track meet which was held as the feature entertainment. Shot putting with colored balloons was one of the events in the meet. Pumpkins, corn stalks, jack o' lanterns, and orange and black streamers were included in the decorating scheme.

The International club will give a chop suey dinner next Friday evening at the St. Francis house.

Thirty-one foreign students participated in the trip to Gibraltar rock sponsored by The Friends of our Native Landscape club yesterday afternoon. The club furnished the cars and lunch for their guests. Gibraltar Rock is about 30 miles north of here on the Wisconsin river.

Team Fights Gamely; Zola and Petaja Tie In Harrier Victory

Zola and Petaja Tie for First Place, Time 22 Minutes, 25 3-5 Seconds

Wisconsin's harriers failed to be daunted by the Gopher reputation, and hills, and raced over the four mile course for a decisive victory to the count of 24-32 yesterday at Minneapolis.

Capt. John Zola, and John Petaja, two Badger hopes for a fourth consecutive title, finished the tough race, tied for first in the excellent time of 22 minutes, 25 3-5 seconds. To add further to this victory both of the Badgers finished some 20 or 30 yards ahead of North, the favorite to win the race.

Bullamore Fifth

Charles Bullamore, Badger "aWa" veteran, finished behind Anderson, Minnesota for a fifth place, with William Burgess, Wisconsin taking sixth place. Willard Wall completed the first five Badgers to finish by taking a tenth place, and thereby clinched the meet for the aspiring Badgers.

Ten Wisconsin harriers were entered in the race but of these only five are counted in the final score. Thus of the first ten places, Wisconsin took first, second, fifth, sixth, and tenth. Minnesota took third, fourth, seventh, eighth, and ninth places.

North of Minnesota, favorite to win the race, by reason of his victory over Hunn, present conference hill and dale champion, was unable to hold the pace with the two Badger harriers, and only finished third.

Petaja Surprise

A surprise of the race was Petaja's showing after his failure to show up well as expected in the Quad meet.

When the run started Capt. Binger, and Etter, of Minnesota, tried to lure the Badgers ahead to a fast pace in an effort to tire them for the finish, but Zola, and Petaja did not stay with them, preferring to remain some 20 yards behind, until the first two miles were over. Then they proceeded to step out and show the highly touted Minnesota what a championship calibre team could do.

M. Desclos Will Lecture Tuesday

To Speak on "Claude Monet" and "French Educational System"

Prof. Auguste V. Desclos, assistant director of the "Office National des Universités et Ecoles Françaises" at Paris, will lecture here at 4:30 and at 8 o'clock Tuesday, November 1, in 165 Bascom hall. The subject of his afternoon lecture, to be given in English, will be "Claude Monet." In the evening he will speak in French on "The Educational System of France."

M. Desclos has for many years been a member of the staff of the "Office National," in charge of educational interchanges between France and England. In 1926 he assumed the direction of interchanges between France and the United States. In addition he is in close touch with French educational methods and is particularly interested in modern art.

In company with M. Latie, late rector of the University of Paris, M. Desclos visited the United States last fall. At that time he arranged with the Institute of International Education, New York city, under whose auspices his lectures are being given, to come again in the autumn of 1927; and in order to see more of our educational institutions, he planned to lecture on the subjects that are his greatest interest.

BADGER PETITIONS DUE

Minnesota Steam Roller Overpowers Battling Wisconsin Team

BY DAN ALBRECHT

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., 29 — An eleven cycle steam roller bearing the maroon and gold colors of Minnesota puffed up and down memorial stadium field here this afternoon, grinding the aspirations of a gallant field eleven into small bits. The final score, Minnesota 13, Wisconsin 7, tells only part of the story, for the Badgers fought a desperate battle against odds that were simply too great.

For the 5,000 Wisconsin rooters present, the situation started bad and became, except for a slight interruption, steadily worse. The driving charges of Herbert Joesting, Harold Almquist and Mally Nydahl had netted a touchdown before the game was ten minutes old, and they continued to threaten again and again until the final gun.

Minnesota Stronger

The sheer glory of physical strength and tireless endurance carried Minnesota to victory against a lighter but no less courageous team, and the throbbing roar of triumph which swept the stadium as the game closed bore more than a resemblance to a sigh of relief. Driven relentlessly back before the sweeping Gopher attack, thwarted in every effort to gain against the powerful Gopher line, Wisconsin could only wait and hope for a break that never came. Though the field was soggy and the ball wet, Minnesota did not fumble once.

Minnesota's strength became apparent from the start. After receiving the kickoff, Wisconsin was immediately forced to punt and the Gophers took the ball on Wisconsin's 40 yard line. The great Joesting, alternating between his famous falling forward charge and his new gymnastic trick, the high dive, carried the ball almost single handed to Wisconsin's 4 yard line where the defense suddenly stiffened and held for downs.

Rebholz punted out on Wisconsin's 40 yard line and the march began again. Terrific plunges by Almquist and Joesting brought the ball shortly to the 4 yard line again. Then for three long downs, Wisconsin held these raging chargers without a gain. (Continued on Page Three)

Experimental College May Have Magazine; to Reflect Opinion

The Experimental college students are contemplating the publishing of a bi-monthly magazine, which will not only contain news of the college, but will be cosmopolitan in opinion.

This coming on the heels of the questionnaire that was sent out by the "Triad," the weekly paper of the Men's dormitories, was a very courageous move and augers well for the success of the venture. The "Triad" has suffered much in the past month as there has been little enthusiasm shown at the two halls that warrants its existence.

The editors, being extraordinarily sensible men, called the bluff of the dorms and sent out a questionnaire to each man in the halls. The substance of the eight questions asked was: Do you think that there is a necessity for a paper such as the Triad? The consensus of opinion, while not announced as yet was that there was not.

The "Triad" was originated last year, with the start of dorm life at Wisconsin, under the guidance of George Chandler, Tarrant House Fellow, and struggled through its first year. The beginning of the second year was marked by a lack of interest in the paper and the result was this move to justify its existence.

The students of the Experimental college in a meeting Friday decided that the policy of the publication which they were bringing into existence would be one of popular interest to the college as a whole.

65 Foreigners in Grad School

China Sends Most Students;
338 Come from Other
U. S. States

Every state in the union except Nevada, Idaho, New Mexico, and Vermont, and nearly every important country is represented in the graduate school of the university. Of the 922 members enrolled in this department, 519 are from Wisconsin, 65 from foreign nations, and 338 from states other than Wisconsin. Two hundred and sixty-nine of the Wisconsin students are Madisonians. The figures were made public at the graduate school yesterday.

The foreign nations and territories included in this representation are Jamaica, Switzerland, the Philippines, France, England, Costa Rica, China, Australia, Chile, South Africa, Korea, Germany, Austria, Spain, India, Russia, Japan, Poland, New Zealand, Turkey, and Canada. China leads the list in representation with 14 of her nationals at the university, while Canada is a close second with 12. The Philippine Islands and England rank third and fourth, respectively, the Islands with six, and England four. Japan and Germany have each three, while India, South Africa, Chile, and France have two apiece.

Indiana leads in the representative list of states outside of Wisconsin with a total number of 43, with Illinois trailing in second place with 37. Ohio is third with 23, while Pennsylvania and New York are tied for fourth with 19 each. Minnesota ranks fifth with a number of 16, and sixth place is given to Kansas, which has 15 members here. The District of Columbia, Virginia, Rhode Island, Arizona, Mississippi, Florida, North Dakota, and West Virginia rank at the bottom with only one member. Texas has 10 students here, while Nebraska and Oklahoma have each nine. New Jersey and South Dakota have eight each, with Oregon, Massachusetts, and Michigan having seven.

The small colleges of Wisconsin have a large representation in the university. Twelve students matriculated this fall from Milton, 11 from Lawrence, 10 from Carroll, nine from Ripon, six from Beloit, and two from Milwaukee Downer. A few have entered from the eastern colleges, such as Harvard, Brown, Dartmouth, and Amherst. Of the foreign universities represented are the Sorbonne of Paris, Oxford, University of Leeds, the University of Vienna and the University of Paris. Most of these universities have a representation ranging from one to three.

Many of the students in the graduate school, who are candidates for the degree of master of arts, or doctor of philosophy, are either assistants or instructors, and a good number of them hold fellowships.

Daily Reports of Badger Teams

CARDINAL SPORTS Athletics in the Collegiate World

Heavy Driving Offense of Gophers Wears Down Fighting Badger Team

Smashing Line Attacks of Joesting and Nydahl Prove Unstoppable

A short pass, Almqvist to Hayercroft, scored for Minnesota on the fourth down.

Badger Punts Hurried

Both of the Badger punts in this time had been so hurried that they barely missed being blocked by Minnesota linemen. Wisconsin punting throughout the game was uniformly poor because of this fact.

Minnesota continued on top of the world for a short time, letting up considerably on line rushing and attempting to launch a passing attack.

The inadvisability of such an attempt soon became apparent.

Crofoot Scores Touchdown

Late in the second quarter, Capt. Edwin Crofoot, dashed full speed into a pass hurled by Joesting, gathered it to his chest and raced 50 yards to the goal line behind perfect blocking interference. Neil Hayes kicked the goal, tying the score and giving Badger rooters a great deal to cheer about. During the rest of the first half, the Badgers played their opponents about even. Well meant Minnesota trick plays were unraveled and pinned down before they could get fairly started. While the feared Wisconsin aerial attack showed signs of becoming effective, the second quarter ended with the score tied at 7 to 7.

The Gopher team that came on to the field in the second half was even more powerful than that which had appeared in the first.

Joesting took up his job of pulverizing the Wisconsin line and began to slash the tackles and guards for gain after gain.

After having been halted in one procession down the field, Minnesota started again on the 38 yard line.

Pass Gains Nine Yards

A pass, Almqvist to Nydahl, gained nine yards and Joesting made it first down with a crashing drive off left tackle. Almqvist passed through center for two.

The Wisconsin line broke before Joesting's furious charge and he made nine yards. Left tackle was wiped out of the picture as Almqvist stabbed that position for eight yards.

Joesting Makes Touchdown

Almqvist hit center for three yards, and Joesting butted his way to within a half a yard of the goal line. Almqvist was stopped without gain. On the fourth down Joesting dove over Wisconsin's line for a touchdown. Almqvist's kick was blocked by Smith and the score stood Minnesota 13, Wisconsin 7. From that time on the Badger defense began to fail rapidly. Substitute after substitute went in to take the places of battered and bruised linemen who could not hold against the unrelenting Minnesota attack. And these substitutes could not solve Gopher trick plays rapidly enough to keep them from gaining.

In the closing minutes, Mally Nydahl, stood out as the great Minnesota star. Running behind impenetrable interference he fought through the line for gains of from three to ten yards on every try. In seven plays, he gained 39 yards, an average of better than five yards per play.

Badgers Thrill Crowd

It remained for Wisconsin to provide the crowd with its final thrill. With 3 minutes to play, the Badgers had the ball on their own 20 yard line. Gene Rose went in at halfback. A pass, Rose to Hayes, made 18 yards. Another, Rose to Hayes gained 9. Two passes were incomplete, then Crofoot caught one for a 15 yard gain. Matchan intercepted the next one, and the gun cracked a moment later. Wisconsin's last drive had failed.

The one outstanding feature of the game was Minnesota's terrific rushing at tackle. At times, Wisconsin line actually played the great Gophers forward even, but the Minnesota charges never weakened and gradually superior stamina began to tell. A Wisconsin lineman had just three things to do, he had to pass his immediate opponent in the line, pass a blocking halfback, and then tackle a slippery fast moving runner whose every muscle was bent toward going forward.

Substitutions: Wisconsin — Warren for Cameron; Conroy for Shoemaker; McKaskle for Parks; Ketelaar for Wagner; Sykes for Binish; Hotchkiss for Ziese; Kresky for Rose; Smith for Rebholz; Stevens for McKaskle.

Minnesota — Bluestein for Hayercroft; Naguerski for Maeder; Kaminski for Hanson; Johnson for Gaery; Gay for Tanner; Walsh for Gay; Riddell for Barnhardt; Nydahl for Riddell; Phar-

Women's Basketball Starts November 21; New Features Added

Plans are now being completed for the beginning of the women's intramural basketball tournament on Monday, November 21. This will undoubtedly be the largest tournament to be run off this year, there being almost forty teams entered in last year's basketball competition.

Will Run Tourney

Miss Gladys Bassett of the physical education department is the faculty advisor of the intramural committee and takes care of the general engineering of these tournaments. Miss Margaret Meyer, instructor in physical education, assists in the running off of the various matches, getting referees, etc.

The basketball tournament will be handled jointly by all members of the intramural committee, of which Sally Owen '30, is chairman.

New Feature

A novel feature is being introduced in this tournament this year. A prize will be given the team which appears consistently in the neatest and most appropriate costume. Judges will be appointed to decide who the winner will be, and the award will be made at the end of the season. It is expected that some groups will appear in unique garb.

After basketball gets into full swing the bowling tournament will get under way, and still later in the season, swimming competition will be begun.

Science Must Become Specific to Progress Kahlenberg Declares

"The last two or three decades the study of chemistry and physics has been away from the specific. The sooner we get back to the specific the more rapid will be our advancement," said Prof. Louis Kahlenberg of the chemistry department in his lecture Friday night on "Chemistry and Biology" before 250 people.

"We are still in a state of infancy in the study of medicine. Only a little over a hundred years ago the doctors killed George Washington. He had a bad cold, and after a consultation between several doctors they decided to 'bleed' him. This, not producing results, the doctors decided that he had not been 'bled' enough so they took another pint of his blood. This time they were sure they got enough of his blood and as a result he died a few days later."

He spoke of the vitamins, saying, "We are now studying the vitamins and the rats are having a good time."

"If in this little talk I have convinced you that you should experiment and not take everything for granted, I feel as though our time has been well spent."

"The same forces that operate in the chemical world operate in the biological world. The chemist must help the biologist and the biologist must help the chemist," he said.

mer for Almqvist; Malchan for Joesting.

Touchdowns — Joesting, Hayercroft, Crofoot. Points after touchdown — Pharmed, Hayes.

On offense Wisconsin was stopped unless she took to the air, and conditions for passing were very poor. During the game, Wisconsin gained 17 yards from rushing, and lost 16. The Badgers made three first downs while their opponents were making 20. Minnesota gained 219 yards from rushing.

Rube Wagner and John Parks, on the right side of Wisconsin's line did remarkably well at stopping the Minnesota rushes. Stanley Binish played a staunch game at left tackle and Sykes proved a regular strong man at guard. Harold Rebholz, fullback, had his days work in tackling men who got to the line of scrimmage. Capt. Crofoot played an all around game, scoring Wisconsin's touchdown, breaking up Minnesota's pass attack and making numerous fine tackles.

Cross Country Next

Sixteen fraternities have turned in their entries to the Intramural office for the annual Greek cross country run which will be held on Nov. 8. The race will be two miles long around the lake course. Four men will score for each fraternity.

The fraternities entered are Alpha Chi Rho, Alpha Gamma Rho, Delta Sigma Pi, Delta Tau Delta, Farm House, Kappa Sigma, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Kappa, Phi Kappa Sigma, Phi Kappa Tau, Phi Pi Phi, Phi Sigma Delta, Phi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, and Zeta Psi.

Last year's championship was won by Farm House fraternity.

Well! Anyway the cross country team settled the speed supremacy of a Badger over a Gopher. And besides Wisconsin holds seventh place undisputed.

This youngster Joesting, the "thundering bull" of the Minnesota "thundering herd," seems to have more beef than most of the conference teams can bite off. The Badger line stopped him cold during the first half, though.

Heard the man sitting next to me at the grid-graph remark that he could sleep peacefully tonight, now that Wisconsin had finally made a first down upon Minnesota for the first time in two years.

Nydahl, who proved the nemesis to Wisconsin here last year, again ran wild during the last quarter of the game, and caused Badger fans to fear his every move. We suggest he be called "Needle," 'cause that boy sure has his fine points about him as a halfback.

If Wisconsin fans would only put as much energy into their cheering as they do into their peanut eating while watching the grid-graph, what an uproar there would be. Some

Gamma Phi's win Women's Intramural Horseshoes; Kappa Deltas take Second

The Gamma Phis, by virtue of their victory over the Kappa Deltas on the Lathrop court yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, won the championship of the women's intramural horseshoe contest. Margaret McLellan '30, representing Gamma Phi, pitched a steadily excellent game, while Helen Orcutt '28, representative of the Kappa Deltas, starting out brilliantly, lost some of her splendid control after the contest was well under way.

Good Shots Made

During the first game some startlingly good shots were made, two ringers being pitched by Miss Orcutt, and one by Miss McLellan. The score at one time was 17-9, Kappa Delta leading, but by sure and careful playing the Gamma Phi representative finally took the game, 21-18.

In the second game, the pitching was wild on the part of the Kappa Deltas, Gamma Phi shooting a sure game, coming close to the stake each time. Margaret McLellan was leading 17-0, when her opponent began once more to show some of the wonderful control that has been so conspicuous in her former games. Her recovery was too late however, Gamma Phi taking the game, 21-6.

Miss Gladys Gorman, of the Physical Education department, kept score for the players.

Tourney a Success

The horseshoe tournament has been a great success, even the weather cooperating at all times. Not once, during the entire contest has a set been put off because of rain or cold weather. Excellent spirit and fine sportsmanship have been shown by everyone taking part in the tournament, and this is regarded as the greatest factor in its rosy termination.

Volley Ball

The volley ball tournament is now holding the attention of everyone. The following games are scheduled for tomorrow:

Pi Beta Phi vs. Chad. A, 3:30.
Beta Sigma Omicron vs. Phi Omega Pi, 4:30.

people thought it had started to rain outside, but it was only the peanut fans, cracking merrily away.

Crofoot advanced his claims to all-conference quarterback by his brilliant 55 yard run for a touchdown in the second quarter. How "Toad" ever got near the pass, and how Joesting ever threw it in his direction, are two of the miracles of yesterday's football game.

One highly advertised star apparently fizzled out yesterday, when Don Pharmed, sensational punter of the Minnesota squad was allowed to play only a few minutes, and in that time, did exactly nothing.

If Wisconsin had opened their pass attack sooner, if Minnesota hadn't been so good, if the Badgers had scored more points than Minnesota, then there isn't the slightest doubt that Wisconsin would have won.

Many fans at the grid-graph insisted that Walter Eckersall was doing duty during the game, but since this informed columnist knows better, they were mistaken. Still, those penalties sure came at a bad time.

Illinois deserves something for their victory over Michigan. Odds favored Michigan two to one, but sentiment gave Illinois a big following. Looks as though Michigan is clear out of it this season. They play Minnesota soon, and if they don't go down another notch then, I'll roll peanuts up and down the campus.

The team comes back tomorrow morning at 8:45, and so does the sports editor. Let's all turn out and give them a big skyrocket.

By Harold Dubinsky

These Western Conference football teams are forming the perturbing habit of doing just what they are not expected to do. Illinois receives Michigan with open arms and defeats an esteemed guest, 14-0. Ohio State, regarded as a "has been" team, calmly sets about lowering Chicago's warriors in the standing column with a 13-7 score.

Minnesota Defeats Badgers

And now that these three Big Ten games are over, Illinois stands first with a percentage of 1.000, with Minnesota also having a similar percentage. Chicago has surrendered any claim to first place, and now will content itself with third place. Wisconsin has likewise sunk a notch in the standings, and now occupies seventh place.

Missouri Beats Purple

Two interesting upsets occurred in conference matches with other non-conference schools, and notable among these is the unexpected defeat of Northwestern by Missouri, by the amazing score of 34-19. Harvard had no regard for the fact that Indiana had previously tied Minnesota, and defeated that Hoosier team with a 26-6 score. Purdue did its stuff against Montana, and came out ahead 39-7.

This Illinois team seems to have the knack of successfully hiding a championship team, and then unleashing its fury in particularly difficult and trying moments. Ordinarily Michigan would be considered as the class of the conference. But Illinois differed in opinion, and the result is that Illinois is now the Conference leader, while Michigan is in a third place tie with Chicago.

Galloping Ghost Back?

The Illini did nothing more or less than put across two touchdowns, one in the first quarter, and one in the third quarter, mainly by the alert playing of Garland Grange, brother of "Red" Grange.

Garland, it seems, was alert enough to drop on a fumbled punt on the Michigan seven yard line, and by this enabled his team to make their first touchdown.

Chicago Fights Hard

Ohio State started the first period against Chicago with a touchdown, after a few minutes of play, but the stubborn Maroons likewise made a touchdown in the third quarter, and bettered the Ohio State team by kicking the extra point. Ohio returned in the fourth quarter and made the winning touchdown, and the extra point for a final score of 13-7.

Northwestern's inauspicious defeat, by the Missouri eleven is a thorn in the side of the conference. Northwestern, although defeated by a narrow margin by Illinois last week, still stands as one of the powerful teams in the Conference.

Indiana Fizzles

Indiana, having gained some prestige by muzzling the Minnesota attack for a tie game with that team, thought to emulate Harvard's defeat by Purdue, by repeating Purdue's showing. Regardless of what they hoped to do, the fact remains that the Eastern school turned loose a fury of attack and won 26-6.

Purdue, smarting from a defeat at the hands of our own Wisconsin eleven, literally smothered a visiting team from Montana 39-7.

More Explanations

IN AN EDITORIAL appearing in its issue of October 27, the Wisconsin State Journal mildly queried the advisability of the dissolution of the Student Senate, and mildly asked why the Daily Cardinal did not strive to arouse interest in matters of student politics through sufficient publicity.

We thought we had hashed out this matter of the disbanding of the senate to fairly complete detail. Since its dissolution, we have published three comprehensive editorials on the subject, and thought that any reader of these editorials might be able to grasp the existing situation. But some of our explanations must have been vague, or, perchance, the editorial writer of the Journal did not happen to read them.

The Journal asserts, among other things, that "it is probably a fact that student self-government affords in a very real way a practical test of life itself and the student's ability to live it." The writer continues with, "One cannot be sure that the failure of student self-government is entirely the fault of the students, and it seems certain that this failure represents a loss in opportunity to the young people who attend the university."

We should like to correct these statements to read, "It is probably a fact that the Student Senate affords in a very real way a practical test of life itself and the student's ability to live it. One cannot be sure that the failure of the Student Senate is entirely the fault of the students, and it seems certain that this failure represents a loss in opportunity to the young people who attend the university."

We take the privilege of making these changes, because, as we have demonstrated in former comment, the Student Senate was not a synonym for student self-government. We too would feel that something had been taken from the university if the student body were deprived of self-government. But it merely lost the Student Senate.

To reiterate previous statements, the senate was nothing more than a dead branch on this magnificent ideal called self-government. Theoretically, it was supposed to "ascertain and express student sentiment, provide for the maintenance of good order in the student body, supervise and regulate all extra-curricular activities," and to perform various other vague or impossible functions. Practically, its sole business was to supervise student elections and act as a rubber stamp on the five undergraduate administrative boards.

So, we find, the senate had no purpose for its existence. When it was first established, in 1916, it may have been an active body which accomplished any number of good works. But this fall, after eleven years of sporadic attempts to live up to its theoretical powers, it was an empty shell. This was partly due, of course, to the fact that each administrative board, having something definite to do, had gradually absorbed some of the senate's power. The Union Board, particularly, had come to be known as the representative men's organization on the campus.

The interest excited by the senate is perhaps best evidenced by its candidates for election. For a number of years, the great majority of senate members have been elected to the body by default; that is, by merely presenting a petition bearing the names of twenty-five signers. In contrast, there is always a strong political fight for positions on the Union board. The senate was known to be a useless organization, consequently few students desired to become seated with that august body. In view of these facts, we certainly cannot understand how "the failure of the senate represents a loss in opportunity to the young people who attend the university." If there was an opportunity, these 'young people' certainly were indifferent to it.

After bemoaning the failure of the Student Senate, which he calls the failure of student self-government, the Journal writer indicates what might have been done and what he would like to see done about the whole matter. We quote:

"Student politics needs more publicity than it gets, and it needs more controversy. No doubt the Cardinal would be a more read and a more stimulating paper had it more often been possible to take a position on issues rather than upon candidates (at which point we insert an exclamatory question mark), and for the purpose of campaigns an open forum might have been conducted in which all factions could have a hearing.

"We'd like to see the senate restored, and an election held with candidates standing upon platforms which they were pledged to carry out if elected. We'd like to see the various university debating societies and women's clubs made forums for threshing out these issues, and to see adequate reporting of the debates in the Daily Cardinal. For it can hardly be doubted that were it entered into in a serious way, through the setting up of constructive politics of enough vitality to cause students to take issue, and were the campaigns and the subsequent administrations given daily publicity such as is accorded to our state government, the administration of student self-government could be made a valuable part of the student's education and at the same time accomplish much for the university."

Which is, we grant, a fine idealistic viewpoint. But there's one trouble with the plan; it won't work. We have watched the course of student politics from the inside for sufficient time to realize that useless entrance into these politics be for the benefit of one person or one organization, it is almost impossible to arouse any interest. There was no pork barrel connected with the late Student Senate. In state politics, we outsiders understand, there is a pork barrel, and we have a slight suspicion that politicians go into the game more for the honor, power, or monetary stipulations that may be received than they do through an honest desire to serve their country or state or community. Of course, being outsiders, we may be mistaken. At least, somewhat the same thing applies to student politics.

It is an honor to be a member of the Union Board. The Athletic Board has definite functions, such as the awarding of "W" sweaters. And so on. For every administrative board, with the possible exception of the Forensic board, a definite purpose may be found. And the fulfilling of these purposes brings reward of one kind or another to somebody. It was hardly an honor to belong to the Student Senate, and, as has been said, the Senate had no specific purpose to fulfill in life. Consequently, it was dissolved.

The Daily Cardinal doesn't wish to pick a bone with the Wisconsin State Journal, but merely desires to correct some misapprehensions which seem to be held by the city press and by members of the student body. At all events, we are not unappreciative of the Journal's interest.

Also About Politics

FROM VARIOUS political camps during the past month we've been hearing irritated rumbles of disapproval against the manner in which the Cardinal has been reporting pre-election news this fall. These individuals think, apparently, that their actions are in no respect humorous, and do not deserve the light touch which has been given them by the celebrated Peglers of our staff.

Assuming a disinterested attitude, we should say that the stories have been very good. We enjoyed the reporting of the amusing antics of "dese guys," and "dese guys," the spirit of harmony that prevails in the senior class which has three men at the bat for president, the rather amateurish maneuverings of the freshmen, and the extraordinary unanimity of opinion among the ranks of the juniors. All these things, it has seemed to us, were funny, and were quite justly treated in a humorous vein.

As we say, we are taking a disinterested attitude in our favorable criticisms, and do not mean to pat ourselves on the back. Perhaps our sense of humor is worked out of all proportion. To prove that it isn't, however, let's take the sophomore platforms for a test case.

The "Dese Guys" have four planks in their platform, pledging themselves to back the Memorial Union, maintain all traditions, encourage everyone to attend Wisconsin, and investigate fraternity rushing. The "Dese Guys" swear to back the Memorial Union, back the field house, back the teams, revive freshman traditions, and encourage interscholastic contests.

Now, since three of these points are held in common, your discriminating sophomore going to the polls will have to decide whether he would rather investigate fraternity rushing or back the field house and the teams, win or lose. Obviously, he will be foolish if he puts more time on reaching his decision than was taken to scribble out the platforms—probably about ten minutes.

Whichever party wins, the results will be momentous. After one or the other gets into power, the university will either have a system for fraternity rushing or will be equipped with a new field house, to say nothing of the Union building, et cetera. We congratulate members of the sophomore class on bringing a new era to Wisconsin.

Anyway Crofoot stole some of Minnesota's thunder. It must have been a stormy battle—with Thunderbolt Jeosting and Lightning Crofoot—and we'll bet that the vikings from the North never encountered such storms in all their travels this year.

Of course Minnesota had a psychological advantage; the game was played in their own horseshoe.

But doggone, the Thundering herd trampled all over the fifth plank in our platform and busted it all to . . . pieces.

This plank advocated the defeat of Minnesota, but now we'll have to go for (notice pun) Iowa. There is a rumor that a game of football is to be played on the home field next Saturday, but none could be found to support the statement as Mr. Thistle . . . (we mean the head football coach) could not be reached at a late hour last night. It is thought that he probably accompanied the team to Minneapolis.

Seven of the eight freshman wearing green caps are running for class officers. The other one forgot to take it off and at present is wondering where he mislaid it.

When is a tradition not a tradition? When it's a green cap.

It won't be hard to make a bonfire to burn all the caps. If someone will furnish a cigarette lighter that ought to suffice for the caps one sees about the campus.

We were among those present when the Cardinal bored at the festive board of the Cardinal board.

All of the elite and none of the a-light were present.

Yes, it was soup to nuts.

The speakers were as good as the feed—no, we didn't say anything about half-baked, we merely stated that they were good.

Red Stars Spotted Like Sun, Declares Prof. Joel Stebbins

The light of red stars like Betelgeuse, the northernmost of the familiar group of Orion, is prominent constellation in the eastern portion of the heavens during winter months, varies so widely as to indicate that these stars, like the sun, are spotted, according to Prof. Joel Stebbins, university astronomer.

Dr. Stebbins and Dr. C. M. Huffer of Washburn observatory in the course of their study of variations in the light of stars recently have been studying typical samples of the light of different classes of stars.

The white and yellow stars, Dr. Stebbins reports, appear to be fairly constant, but about a third of the red stars, including all of the biggest ones, shed a variable light, a few changing as much as 20 per cent in a week.

Dr. Stebbins believes that this change in light may be explained by the fact that these stars are covered with spots and that as they rotate a greater or less area of luminous surface is exposed to the earth.

The Whollygoofus—an animal found in the Sahara Mts. and college libraries on Saturday afternoons during the progress of a football game and in other desert places of the world. It eats garters, history texts, and other useless things and consequently is valued as a scavenger. It makes its nest on grassy prairies covered with trees where the monotony of the landscape is relieved by rolling hills. Because of its wooden legs it holds its socks up with thumb tacks. The Whollygoofus has one trait which marks it as peculiar from other fungi: unless it seeks cover during a rain storm it is likely to get wet.

NEW MEMBERS NAMED FOR 2ND GLEE CLUB

Tryouts for the second women's glee club were held Thursday afternoon and about twenty were chosen for the organization. Several were automatically elected from the number that did not make the first club, so that the total membership of the club is about 35. Aileen Watrous, '27, has been appointed director of the club. It is probable that as last year the second women's glee club will give a concert some time during the year in connection with the freshman men's club.

The Hour Glass

Life at Wisconsin is just one interesting incident after another (now that exams are over, we can roll that off with a graceful finesse) but there's nothing in the whole gamut of college life that can't be made more thrilling by the donning of the newest fashion note.

Now that bridge and bull sessions are in full swing, you'll never find a better background for your logic than one of the clever P. J.'s at KESSEN-ICKS. Pongee they are, not like the ordinary ones, but blazing with individuality. Each has a painted figure on the left side and a hat applied on. There are rakish cowboys with red, twisted bandanas, curls pushing out beneath a slantwise stiff hat, piquant Chinese girls, and even an Apache dancer on one. There are three styles—tailored neck lines or the v-neck with or without a collar, in blue, red, and green. They also come in black pongee, one with a fiery Spanish dancer in the midst of a tango, flaring on one side. Atmosphere and pep—you'll love them—and dream gay dreams! Prices—$5 to $9.75 tailored, one-piece styles, in a variety of grayed colors, bizarrely, yet delicately, embroidered about the neck and sleeves by a woman from Germany who has done this work in the exclusive shops of Europe.

The Necessary Touch

Pins! Severely simple, or brilliantly decorative—such a selection as I saw at MANCHESTER'S—an entire counter and show-case full of them. There are the mosaic pins from Italy, and pins in amber, cameo, yellow green, pink, and blue, in clear and opaque stones. Some are combined with oxidized silver, some with gold.

Celestial jade, grotto, sunbeam,—just what they suggest—green, blue and pink stones of purest color with bracelet and necklaces in a large selection to match.

There are pure brilliants, bone carving from Switzerland, as well as jade and amber pendants, combined with pearls, to form the newest necklaces—You'll find something in this vast variety to exactly fit your costume.

For the Formal

The Frenchwoman is willing to spend most of her allowance on shoes, but the college girls must find a golden mean. Silver and gold dancing slippers must fit perfectly to feel luxurious—and you can feel virtuously economical beside, if you get them at RIPP'S, on 234 State Street. They are made of a beautiful quality of kid, with lasts especially narrow and trim. The silver come in high and low heels, the gold in high. $8.50.

And if woman must assert her independence through the medium of the fag, she—and her collegiate brother as well—will enjoy the clever cigarette lighters which have just been received by WEHRMANN'S Leather Shop. They're patterned after the Dunhill, the famous English lighter, and are similar to the imported ones in every way but price. They are covered with ostrich, sealskin, cowhide, pigskin, and colored leathers. There are also sets of cigarette case and lighter combined, $3.65 and up.

Pottery—

Flowers blooming in a room, the fragrance of narcissi and a vivid flower pot—bring cozy hominess to a room. The CO-OP has a gay assortment of pottery from colorful flower pots with quaint colonial ladies, trees, and puppy dogs, flowers and blocked designs—to copies of rare Etruscan urns unearthed in excavations. The specimens of American wedge-wood, Japanese Satsuma, reservedly graceful Fulper ware are charming. A waffle set of quaint brown pottery is of especial utilitarian value.

And for the gorgeous grand finale—to satisfy the inevitable emptiness after a shopping jaunt—a salad and a sandwich at THE CHOCOLATE SHOP! Quiet coziness—plus food par excellence—will heal the ache of mind and movement, or increase the joy of living at Wisconsin. Students love to come here at noon, in the afternoon, and after a date—it's convenient and satisfying any time—so I can commend it with authority to my readers.

And now, au revoir, mes amis—don't work yourselves to death, and may ye gather all the rosebuds blooming!

"Seventh Heaven"

A truly wonderful drama, unusual of theme, and beautifully romantic.
It ran for two years on Broadway
Presented by

"Has a holding quality that is pleasantly stirring"
N. Y. Daily News.

"A riot with any audience in the U.
S." Chicago Tribune.

The jungle melodrama that The New York Herald-Tribune said contains "The most exciting moment in motion picture history! You'll say so too!"

"Thrilling, incredible. Must be seen!" — The N.
Y. Telegram.

"Chang" undoubtedly belongs in the category of great pictures, if only for the kick you get from it. This may not be a test of art, but it certainly is of entertainment. Nothing in the cinema line to date can beat this film for novelty, sustained interest and exciting incident. Nothing can approach it for surprise. If you are an old picture fan and think you know what the movies can do, go see "Chang." Go anyway.

INTER-SE SPONSORS 3RD ANNUAL DANCE

The third annual Thanksgiving dance sponsored by Inter-Se is to be held on Thanksgiving afternoon from 3 until 6 in Lathrop parlors. This party is the only one of its kind sanctioned by Dean F. Louise Nardin.

The party this year is in charge of Carmen E. Ammann, president of Kappa Delta. The proceeds of this party are used for the co-operative houses on the campus.

Inter-Se is an organization of the presidents of all sororities, women's dormitories, all women's co-operative houses, department houses such as the German house and the Spanish house and chairmen of those rooming houses where seven or more girls are living.

It was organized three years ago for the purpose of promoting more friendly relations between sorority and non-sorority groups, and its most important action during the entire year is this Thanksgiving dance.

This year the officers of Inter-Se are president, Wanda G. Gerhardt, of Barnard Hall, and secretary and treasurer, Marion L. Miller, president of Delta Delta Delta.

Effay Beynon and Percy Thomas Wed

Dr. and Mrs. James V. Beynon, Rockford, Ill., announced the marriage of their daughter, Effay Leora, to Percy Marvin Thomas of Indianapolis on Friday.

Miss Beynon was a member of the class of 1929 and last year studied at Rockford where she was active in Legion Dramatics. While at the University she was active with the University players and was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Mr. Thomas is enrolled in the Law school and is a member of Phi Delta Theta and is manager of the University players. He expects to enter the law office of Senator Robinson at Indianapolis after his graduation.

The wedding was held in Waukegan in the presence of close friends.

Fraternities to Have Dinner Guests Today

The pledges of Sigma Alpha Epsilon will entertain at dinner today at the chapter house, from 12:00 to 3:00 o'clock. Prof. and Mrs. W. H. Twenhofel will chaperon.

Members of Alpha Kappa Lambda will also entertain at dinner today at the chapter house. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hoebel will chaperon.

Alumni Notes

Ruth Persson '27, young Milwaukee violinist, has won a tuition scholarship at the Curtis Institute of Music, in Philadelphia. Miss Persson graduated from the university at the age of nineteen, the youngest girl graduate in the history of the school.

Fred Emig '27, has a position as chemical engineer in the United States Steel Plant at Pittsburg, Pa.

Miss Olive Dennis, former student at the university, is engineer of service for the Baltimore and Ohio Railway lines. Her work is to travel the length of the system looking for bad ventilation in trains and stations, tire-some seats, windows that stick, lump mashed potatoes in dining cars and any thing else that might arouse the passengers' ire. Miss Dennis is a graduate engineer.

Wesley Martin '26, is employed as a chemist with the Carnation Milk Company in Illinois.

Karl Mowry Mann, '11, has founded a new periodical, "Electricity on the Farm." The purpose of this is to promote the use of electricity. Mr. Mann was one of the first students in the classes in journalism at the university. He is on the board of directors of the General Alumni Association. He lives in Montclair, New Jersey.

Mary Grant O'Sheridan ex '29, connected with the Wideawake Department of the Chicago Daily News, is the author of many songs for children which will appear in book form. Miss O'Sheridan gave a recital of her songs at the university during the summer session.

Dr. Alexander C. Roberts '06, has assumed duties as president of the San Francisco Teachers State College.

REAL LIFE TARZAN FARMER'S SERVANT

The story of Tarzan has come true in the case of a native boy who spent most of his boyhood roaming with a troop of baboons in South Africa.

It was nearly 25 years ago that a squad of police were riding through the Southeast Cape Province and came upon a band of baboons. They fired at them and the monkeys scampered away, except one, who seemed to be wounded. The officers found it to be a native boy hopping along on all fours.

The lad was finally reconciled to human companionship, but only with the greatest difficulty was he taught to walk upright. He was given into the care of G. H. Smith, a farmer. He can speak English fairly well now, but his laugh sounds like the shrill chatter of the baboon. He retains many memories of his former wild life.

Weighing only 1 pound 6 ounces at birth, London's tiniest baby is thriving now. For the first five days of her life she was fed from a medicine dropper.

Extension Division Courses Help 89 Convicts to Fight Prison Monotony

WAUPUN, Wis.—Education by mail not only holds the promise of better preparation for normal life, but serves as an anodyne to better memories for 89 inmates of the state prison here.

These prisoners are enrolled in correspondence study courses supplied by the university Extension division.

Not alone the young men with short terms to serve, who might be expected to turn to study as a means of increasing earning capacity when they start their "comeback" into civil life, older men who have served years of longer sentences are numbered in the group of prisoners who do their weekly assignments to be mailed in to the Extension division offices at Madison and confer each two weeks with Chester D. Allen, field representative of the division, who helps the prisoners with knotty points in their assignments and does his best to dispel discouragement among those whose progress is slow.

In the list of correspondence students at the prison are six serving life terms and eight with sentences of more than 20 years.

"One life term prisoner told me," Mr. Allen said recently, "I'll never be without a course as long as I'm in. I'd go crazy if I didn't have a course to work on. Reading novels and short stories don't help much. It just stirs you up."

The two prisoners now enrolled in correspondence study who have completed the largest number of courses are both life-termers.

Besides mathematics, English and drawing (especially show card writing) are the courses most favored. Courses in the theory of music and in harmony have recently drawn a number of students, principally, Mr. Allen believes, because of the excellent work being done with the prison band, and the desire on the part of members of the band to know more about music. One prisoner's compositions—although not of an especially high grade, have recently been broadcast by a Chicago radio station. Another has sold a lyric to an eastern music publishing house.

The use of correspondence study to prepare a short-term first offender to make good in after-prison life is best illustrated, Mr. Allen commented, by the case of a man whom, for the purposes of the anecdote, Mr. Allen dubbed John:

"John was from an impoverished family in a rural community," Mr. Allen explained, "and had had no training in the use of money. By carefully husbanding his meagre prison pay he paid for 10 correspondence courses which fitted him for a certain line of work."

"Last year he was given a conditional pardon. He got work in the line for which his study had fitted him. It was a seasonal occupation, but he profited by his prison training in saving and looking ahead. When the winter lay-off came recently he had enough put by, he told me, so that he could get through the dull season, even though jobless."

A queer quirk of reasoning turned up at the end of the conversation.

"I asked John," Mr. Allen said, "when he was going to apply for a full pardon."

"I'm not," he said.

"Why?"

"Well, it's like this. I don't believe I'll ever get to the point where I'll think about 'doing a job' because I'm broke. But if I do, I want to go back to Waupun—instead of 'doing a job'—without a black mark against me. I can go back now, under the conditional pardon, on my own hook. That's why I don't want a full pardon."

Warden Lee declares the correspondence courses are "the most valuable prison activity for keeping discipline and contentment in the prison."

Improvements Costing $60,000 Are Planned By Wesley Foundation

Improvements on the building at 1127 University avenue, Wesley foundation, the Rev. Arlie H. Krussell, student pastor of the University Methodist church, and a directed Thursday Wesley foundation, announced the organization which now has more than 1000 student members has justified the improvements, the Rev. Mr. Krussell declared.

Construction will begin on the addition to the east side of the building as soon as $20,000 of the fund has been secured in cash or pledges. More than $10,000 of this amount has already been subscribed.

The Wesley foundation has 478 new members this year and it is necessary to double the capacity of the auditorium which now seats 275 people. Besides furnishing accommodations for 600 or more, the new addition will make room for more offices, religious and social quarters.

The history of the present foundation were approved by the inter-conference committee, appointed by the two Methodist conferences, and were approved by the Wesley foundation at its annual meeting this month.

The history of the present foundation shows rapid growth since its incorporation in 1917. Religious work among university students was begun in 1908, when Dr. Edward W. Blakeman, a graduate of Lawrence college of Appleton, came to Madison as pastor for the students attending the city Methodist church at that time.

"It was in 1914," said Mr. Krussell, "that the University Methodist church was founded. The first meetings were held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, and Dr. Blakeman remained as its pastor until 1925 when I came to take his place."

The activities of the Wesley foundation include religious education, dramatics, athletics, music, and social service. That these have met favor among university students is testified by the annual increase in membership.

The appropriations granted to colleges through the Harmon Foundation in 1926-27 amounted to $94,025 and included sixty two colleges.

Grid-Graph Affords Amusement to Wandering Cardinal Reporter

Yesterday we sat in the Annex and watched the Grid-Graph, or at least tried to, and still keep our eye on the attractive Alpha Xi transfer in the blue hat that was sitting across the aisle.

After spending several whiles calling up friends who had radios, and finding them all out, or at least not answering the phone, we packed down to the Langdon St. stadium to cheer on the Badgers and support the Inter-class fund.

Arriving when the first half was over, and the Gophers leading 7-0, we felt that we had walked into a morgue; but much to our happiness, the boys snapped into it, and Crofoot snagged a pass, bounding across the chalk-marks for some points. Just how many we are unable to ascertain as at that time someone tipped our chair over and we lost track in the rush and excitement.

At this unexpected but decidedly welcome change in affairs the crowd leapt from the depths of dejection and despair to the heights of hope and aspiration. (Tried to make this a complete alliteration, but our Roget's has been mislaid.)

Looking about, after the excitement and rioting had been quelled, we were impressed with the fact that the notorious Joesting was comparatively eliminated in the first part of the game. It seems that Wisconsin had cribbed a little from the stunt that the Gophers had pulled on the Illinois Ice Man several years ago, when he emerged from the showers, bowing to the plaudits of the crowd. This was the first and last time that the Wheaton Granges were heard from during that day's fun.

Joesting Joesting was waylaid numerous times in the first half, until it began to look rather droll. However, the fever, or lethargy left him in the second session, and it looked as if Eckersall was justified (for once) in selecting him as an all-American last fall. The comparison with Grange al goes to show that "A good big man is better than a good small man," and "You can't keep a good man down." We could go on with numerous stimulating sentiments of the same type, but won't, so there.

At the kick-off, Hayes grabbed the ball and scooted about fifty yards down the field to the elation of the multitude, who evidently thought that the Cardinal Eleven had gotten under way. The ball was brought back to midfield, amid the hoots and jeers of the crowd. The remainder of the game saw the flash-light in the middle of the field.

Beginning the second half things stopped looking Rosey and took on a Haysey hue. Minnesota took command on the scoreboard, and marched down the field for a touchdown, with Joesting returning to form. Missing the try-for-point gave the spectators a ray of hope to cling to, but nothing further materialized, except a frantic passing attack in the last few minutes of the game.

It was evident that the peanut seller (License 1930) was a southpaw facing east, from the number of easy catches that were muffed. We missed throwing peanuts in the bass horn, but bought some anyhow more from force of habit than anything else.

YOU ask for strong drama—fine acting—powerful direction. Well—here is Jannings. the screen's emotional giant, as he who dared to defy—a man who goes THE WAY OF ALL FLESH. A characterization you'll never forget! the drama you'll always remember!

EMIL JANNINGS

In its simplicity, its humanness, its stark realism, "The Way of All Flesh" will create more thought and comment than any picture we have ever shown. It is the summit, the masterpiece, the absolute triumph of the motion picture's art. We give it our positive endorsement as the finest drama we have ever presented.
