COMMITTEE ASKS $5,000 FOR USE IN ALUMNI WORK

New Regent Group is Appointed to Secure Alumni Co-operation

For the purpose of keeping and compiling records of alumni and former students, the cooperation committee, organized within the last month, yesterday recommended to the board of regents an appropriation of $5,000. It also asked $1,000 for the travelling expenses of speakers sent to address alumni meetings, and $1,000 for those of the speakers sent throughout the country for "Founder's Day."

Closer cooperation between Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, chairman of the athletic council and the department of physical education was facilitated by the board of regents adopting a recommendation from the athletic council.

Athletic Department Changes
Adoption of the recommendation clears the way to give Athletic Director T. E. Jones a voting membership in the council and delegates certain details formerly taken care of by Director Jones to the care of Professor Pyre. It also affects reorganization and strengthening of the athletic department.

Emergency funds amounting to $31,800 were approved by the State Board of Normal Regents following the adoption of a report from the business committee at its meeting January 15. It was pointed out yesterday that Secretary of State Zimmerman, who voted against the funds, has not officially notified the normal regents of any disinclination to certify the funds. Plans are complete for carrying the matter of certification to the supreme court, it was said yesterday.

Cooperation Committee
The cooperation committee includes 21 alumni, faculty members, and students.

Members from the regents are H. L. Butler, Elizabeth Waters, Zona Gale, and J. C. Schmidtman, and Theodore Kronshage.

Faculty members are E. H. Gardner, Max Mason, J. F. A. Pyre, Otto Kowalke, C. S. Schlichter, Andrew Hopkins and Margaret H. Doubler.

Alumni members are George Haight, Charles Rogers, S. T. Swanson, Lucien Hanks, Rose

PUBLISHER SPEAKS TO AG STUDENTS

Maintains Scientific Facts Must Be Humanized to Make Appeal

Putting romance and humanizing elements into the useful but rather scientific facts of agriculture is the contribution of the farm press to scientific agriculture said J. F. Cunningham at a banquet held at Luther Memorial last night for agricultural students interested in journalism.

Mr. Cunningham is the owner and publisher of the Wisconsin Agriculturist, a state farm paper and is one of the founders of Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural fraternity and a former regent of Ohio State university.

"The columns of the farm press held that personal appeal is not possible to realize in a bulletin of facts or any other scientific publication. This appeal must be used in order that these facts can be used by the farmers and give them a closer touch with scientific agriculture. Dusty volumes of facts never can do this, but well-read farm papers can and will."

More than 50 students of the agricultural college attended the banquet. Prof. A. W. Hopkins was toastmaster. Dean Russell and other members of the faculty also attended.

PRE-PROM TICKETS ARE SELLING FAST

Reservations For "The Torch-Bearers" Are Being Made By Many Groups

"Am I the last? I'm rushed like mad."

And so Miss Florence McCrickett rushes on the stage, always fearful of being the last. She is one of the characters in "The Torch-Bearers," the pre-prom play which will be presented at the Parkway the afternoon and night of Feb. 8. Her role is taken by Olivia Orth '24.

Last year Miss Orth took a lead in the pre-prom play "Stop Thief" in which she played opposite Roy French, who, with Prof. Gertrude Johnson of the speech department is directing this year's play.

Half the seats for "The Torch-Bearers" have already been sold, according to Harold Bentson '24, business manager of the Wisconsin Players. More than half the house has been sold for the night performance and the special matinee tickets are going almost as fast, Bentson declares.

The matinee is being held especially for students who are not going to prom and who will be in Madison during the weekend and for prom parties which have made other plans for Thursday night. Many orders have already been received from parties of this sort.

Mail orders should be sent to Kenneth Gardner '25 at 622 Mendota court and should be accompanied by checks to cover the amount. The box-office sale will start at the Parkway a week from today. The evening performance will not be formal, according to Gardner.

Everett Onstad '26, will lead the discussion of "How to Prevent Wars in the Future," at the meeting of the sophomore commission in the fellowship room of the Y. M. C. A. at noon today.

This is the first meeting at which the discussion of world topics will be introduced. Sophomores interested in the discussions are invited to attend the meeting. Talking over the plans for their part in the organization of the Y. M. C. A. next year, will be the main topic taken up at the meeting of the junior council in the fellowship room.

WOMEN TO HEAR TALK BY MISS A. L. MARLATT

"The Opportunities Open to Graduates in the Home Economics School" will be discussed by Miss Abby L. Marlatt, professor of home economics at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow in 18 home economics building.

Miss Marlatt will point out the opportunities for advancement in fields other than the teaching of home economics, such as scientific research in hospitals, infant welfare, commercial advertising, and salesmanship promotion.

LIT ANNOUNCES CHOICE OF NEW BUSINESS STAFF

C. R. Hansen '25 is Appointed as New Business Manager

As the climax to the investigation into the solvency of the Wisconsin Literary magazine and the announcement yesterday by the editors, Kenneth Fearing '24 and Jack Weimer '25, that a new business staff was being organized, it was announced yesterday afternoon that Carl R. Hansen '25 has been chosen business manager. Hansen is the head of the merchandising service bureau of the 1925 Badger.

"The entire personnel of the business staff has not yet been selected," said Jack Weimer yesterday in commenting on the affair, "but we are ready to definitely announce Hansen's election, and also that of Kenneth Butler '25 as publicity manager and of Vern Beardsley '24 as sales manager."

Ad Staff Enlarged

The advertising staff will remain much the same, according to the editors, with the exception that it will be amplified. Edna Walter '25 will remain in charge. New members on her staff will include Richard Marquardt '25, Harold Griffin '25, Lewis Mrvicka '25, Dorothy Burns '25, Louise Barbee '26, Elmer Giesell '25, Marguerite Widmann '26, and Agnes Zeimet '25.

"Of course our advertising has suffered a lot by all the adverse publicity we have been getting lately, but nevertheless, we are doing fairly well," said Miss Walter last night. "We have met with some trouble with merchants who still think the magazine has been permanently discontinued. As soon as they understand the actual situation, our advertising will be on a sound basis."

Satire Issue Next

The next issue of the magazine will be a satire number, and will be sold next week.

"The fate of the Lit is in our hands," said K. Fearing last night, "—in ours and in the hands of the student body. If they will support the issue, the future publishing of the magazine is an established fact."

S. G. A. GIRLS HOLD SLEIGHRIDE TOMORROW

S. G. A. will hold a sleighride party from 8 until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow night, after the weekly party in Lathrop parlors.

The three sleighs will accommodate approximately 60 women, and the lucky ones will be the first ones who get into the sleighs after the party. There will be no charge for this party, and all women in the university are welcome.

Three sets of Mah Jong have been purchased by the association for Friday night parties, and these will be in use tomorrow night for those interested in the game. Bridge and dancing also will be included in the party. These parties will continue on Friday nights through the exams.

Observatory Invites Students to Study Heavens at Night

Come and gaze at the mysteries of the moon and stars is the invitation offered by the observatory every first and third Wednesday in each month. On these nights, under the supervision of either Prof. Joel Stebbins or Mr. Charles M. Huffer, the observatory is open from 7:30 until 9 o'clock. During the winter months approximately 50 students take advantage of this opportunity, while in spring and early summer the number increases to 75 or 100.

STUDENTS ARRANGE CLASS SCHEDULES

L. and S. Men and Women Confer With Advisers This Week

All students in the College of Letters and Science are expected to report to their advisers this week, to make out schedules for the second semester.

Students are advised to make a careful study of the time-tables, which can be secured at the office of the registrar, 158 Bascom hall, prior to seeing their advisers, to take up as little time as possible. The office hours of all advisers are posted on their doors and may be obtained also at the registrar's office.

In the event a student does not wish to carry a full program the second semester, it is necessary to secure a written permit from Dean Roe or Dean Sallery before consulting with advisers. The permit must be attached to the election card, all four copies of which are to be left with the advisers.

Until Saturday, February 9, changes in programs may be made by obtaining written consent of advisers, but those made after February 9 must have the approval of the dean to become effective. Students are urged not to change their mind unnecessarily after January 19, because it will involve a great deal of extra work for the registrar.

Y. W. C. A. WORKERS TO BANQUET TONIGHT

Tickets for the Y. W. C. A. workers banquet, to be given at 5:45 o'clock this evening, still can be obtained at the Y. W. office.

Any student who takes part in the work of the sophomore commission, Vespers club, Neighborhood house, infirmary, clinic, industrial and Bradley Memorial committees, or any of the freshman clubs is invited to attend the banquet.

"A few tickets will be sold at the door, so that any who cannot arrange to get theirs from the office can attend the banquet," Louise Holt said yesterday.

Tickets will cost 50 cents.

DIRECTORS TO CONSIDER MEMORIAL UNION PLANS

The board of directors of the Memorial Union building will meet in Milwaukee January 22 to consider floor plans and elevations of the building.

The elevation plans have been completed only recently.

SEEK MEN'S UNION FOR UNORGANIZED CAMPUS GROUPS

University Officials Give Favorable Action on Petition Presented By Students

Request for a men's union to take in all unorganized groups of male students, was made of the university authorities yesterday by the presentation of a petition signed by a number of prominent students representing such groups.

The petition received favorable action by the authorities and also by members of the executive committee of the board of regents. Cooperation of the faculty, dean of men's office, athletic department, and the Union board probably is assured as a result of the action taken.

Present Petition

The petition presented reads as follows:

We propose a thorough organization of the men's student union at the university. This organization to take the form of geographic groupings of non-fraternity men into groups of approximately 50 each, and that intramural athletics and social activities be encouraged within the groups. It seems unlikely that many fraternity men, who already have affiliations, will be interested in the plan, but those who are should be encouraged to membership and leadership in the groups. This operation will require the joint cooperation of the faculty the office of the dean of men, the athletic department and the student Union board. We, the undersigned, will personally give the undertaking our warmest support.

Such an organization has been successful, at the University of Illinois, and we believe that it can be worked here at Wisconsin. When the organization is effected, it is our further belief that it will tone up the scholastic, athletic and social activities of the University.

We present this solution for the approval of the university authorities and if it is looked upon favorably, we believe that the following steps would be of the greatest assistance to the promotion of the project:

1. That the matter be recommended officially to the university cooperation committee.
2. That the University authorities, the dean of men, and the athletic department, give their earnest support to the project.
3. That the student Union board be requested by the President to appoint a stu-

TO PICK WOMEN BY NEW SYSTEM

Badger Devises Nomination Plan to Pick 10 Representative Women

The ten women who are to be featured in the 1924 Badger as the most representative of Wisconsin women are to be chosen by a new system this year, according to Dorothy John '25 chairman of this department.

Each organization of the campus representing women's activities will nominate girls for this section. These nominations will be made the first of the second semester. The final choice will be made by a carefully selected committee.

The basis for the choice will be substantial scholarship, participants in major campus activities and attractive personality. The announcements will be made when the Badger comes out.

INSTRUCTORS GIVE MUSIC RECITAL

Piano, Contralto Program Includes Compositions of Many Writers

Music selected from writings of composers of many lands will be presented by Louise Lockwood and Signe Holst in a joint piano and contralto recital this evening in the auditorium of Music hall.

Miss Lockwood will play two compositions by Schumann, the first his "Carnaval" a picturesque group of minute sketches depicting the spirit of a French carnival. "Romance" is the other Schumann composition she will play.

Two selections from the compositions of Liszt are included in Miss Lockwood's program, the "Valse de Mephisto" and the "Etude in D. Flat Major."

Miss Holst will sing two Scandinavian songs, and several songs in French and English. She will sing the Rimsky-Korsokow "Oriental Romance," and the popular song by Walter Kramer, "The Faltering Dusk."

The aria "O Don Fatale" from Verdi's "Don Carlo" is a number included by Miss Holst in the groups of songs for this program. Songs by Nevin, Eleanor Smith, and Branscombe will be sung in English. "Lungi Dal Caro Bene" by Secchi, "Un Doux Lien," by Delbruck, "Det Blinker," by Heise, and Rosenfeld's "Hoor Bogeskoen Lukker Sig" also will be sung by Miss Holst.

Leland A. Coon, professor of piano and of theory in the university school of music, will act as accompanist for Miss Holst.

Seek Four Men to Direct Traffic at Capitol Prom Night

Four university men are wanted to direct traffic at the four automobile entrances to the capitol on prom night is the announcement made by Valentine Guenther '25, chairman of the transportation committee.

These traffic managers will be stationed at each avenue entrance to the state house and will be on duty from 9 to 11 o'clock for the convenience of taxi drivers and those who have their own cars.

"We feel that by having students stationed at the doors and in the approaches to the capitol we can avoid much confusion," Guenther said.

Students desiring to apply for the position of one of the traffic policemen may do so by calling Guenther at B. 196. Each man will receive $2.50 for his work.

CAISSON CLUB HEARS COMSTOCK ON PEACE

That the only way to assure peace in the world is to prepare for war was the substance of a speech made by Lieut. J. H. Comstock before members of the Caisson club Tuesday night in the Delta Chi house.

"No man will obey a world court unless there is some power to enforce the orders of the court," the lieutenant pointed out.

Tentative plans for entrants into the Little International were arranged at the meeting. Mounted wrestling, bucking horses and a three-gaited team were suggested by various members.

The constitution drawn up since the previous meeting in December was signed by the members who were present.

ALUMNI CLUBS MEET FEBRUARY 15 AND 16

"Meetings of alumni clubs will be held February 15 and 16 all over the country to commemorate Founders' Day which comes on February 5," John Dollard, secretary of the Memorial Union, said last night.

"University committees and alumni officers are receiving many requests for university speakers to go out at that time. President Birge is directing arrangements to have faculty speakers available for the alumni meetings," Dollard stated.

Professor Lighty also is making arrangements for radio broadcasting on the evenings of February 15 and 16.

NEW YORK—New York university has decided to award varsity letters to women students under rules similar to those regulating the right of male athletes to wear numerals.

13 HIGH SCHOOLS TO JUDGE STOCK

Winners of District Contests Will Come to Little International

By winning their respective state district contests, 13 Wisconsin high schools became eligible to compete in the state high school stock judging contest to be held in connection with the Little International stock show at the College of Agriculture February 22 and 23.

"High school agricultural departments have taken an increased interest in the contest this year, and the teams have shown unusual ability," T. L. Bewick, state leader of boys and girls' club work, and secretary of the committee in charge of the contest, said.

"The state is divided into districts containing from three to six high schools offering agricultural courses. One team from each district is picked to come to Madison to try for state honors."

High schools sending teams to Madison are: Milton, Dodgeville, Chilton, Laona, Marshfield, Bloomer, Chippewa, Mondovi, Holman, Roberts, Hillsboro, Mazomanie and Oregon.

Judges for the state contest will be picked by the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association.

Members of the committee in charge of the contest are Prof. J. A. James, assistant dean of the college of Agriculture, chairman; T. L. Bewick, state leader of boys and girls' clubs, secretary; R. F. Murray, secretary of the Livestock Breeders' association; J. G. Fuller, professor of animal husbandry; E. M. Tiffany, assistant professor of agricultural education; and G. W. Gehrend, director of vocational agriculture.

Students Express Desire for Change in Literary Magazine

Is the present financial indebtedness of the "Lit" a reflection on the University of Wisconsin? Is its limited circle of subscribers an indication that there is no place for a publication of that type on the campus? What's the reason for the apparently annual slump of Wisconsin's literary magazine?

Students interested in literary ventures have expressed the ideas that lack of co-operation from the student body and the antagonism between a strictly literary policy and a popular one as the main causes.

John Schindler, graduate student was of the opinion that, "A literary magazine should give the student what he wants and what is best. The ideal would be to combine both. When these policies do not coincide the latter should be followed." Regarding the temporary failure of the publication, he said, "I should say it was the fault of the student body."

Comparing the "Lit" with other college periodicals, he said, "My experience from the college literary magazine of California and Southern California is that they are of a different type, and are symposiums of student thought. They have no definite editorial policy; while the 'Lit' aims to have all its contributions meet a certain standard."

Ethel Shreffler '24, voiced the opinion that the non-support of a majority of the students was due to "a misunderstanding of the purpose of the magazine."

"The 'Lit' is an expression of the student body," she declared. "It is in their hands. The idea that it belongs to a certain clique is entirely wrong. Contributions to be constructive must represent the student body. Surely, I think, there is a place for it on the campus, since it is a means of expression for the student. The trouble has been with the means of inspiring to write."

David Sinclair '24, while not intimating that the failure to support a literary magazine reflected on the students, admitted that it was largely up to them to make it what they wanted. His opinion of the need for a literary magazine was decided.

"It would please me more if greater attention were given to the 'Lit' than to some of these so-called humor magazines. I think the 'Lit' is the expression of certain talents on the campus, and as such, ought to be continued," he said.

SEMINARY ROOM GETS FRESH COAT OF PAINT

A fresh coat of paint is being applied to the history seminary room at the library. Work will be completed within several days, after which the Semetic room also will be redecorated. This is a continuation of the painting work begun last year when the main reading room was repainted.

WISCONSIN GAMEClaims Howard Jones Resigned
For Other Reasons Than
Heavy Schedule

Howard Jones, University of Iowa football coach who recently handed in his resignation did not take such action because he was forced to schedule a 1924 game with Wisconsin, but to the contrary wanted such a contest.

Such is the statement of T. E. Jones, athletic director, who yesterday denied the claim published Tuesday that the Iowa mentor quit because he did not want to play Wisconsin because of an already too heavy schedule.

"The Iowa coach wanted a game with Wisconsin," said the Wisconsin athletic director, who went to Iowa City in December to arrange the tilt. "I know why he resigned, but do not feel that it is my place to give the thing any publicity. Although he had a rather heavy schedule already when we were negotiating for the battle, Jones was more than willing to take us on for our Homecoming game here."

Howard Jones, a brother of the famous Tad Jones of Yale, has been instrumental in putting Iowa on the football map in recent years, and his resignation was a surprise to the athletic world.

He has received an attractive five-year offer from Trinity college, and will go there as head football coach and athletic director this year.

FROSH WRESTLERS
TO MEET VARSITYScherburne, Injured in Last Contest, Will Be Out of Matches

A real scrap quite similar to the good old bag rush will be offered to the wrestling fans at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon on the third floor of the gym when the varsity wrestlers again meet the frosh. All the men who grappled last Saturday will be on hand with the single exception of Scherburne, varsity 135 pounder, who sustained a broken collar bone in his tussle with Holmes in the last meet.

Coach Hitchcock has an ice squad to work with. He will soon organize a team from the all-Americans to give his men further practice for the first conference match which will be against Chicago. This first match is to be held here on January 26.

It is expected interest in the mat sport will greatly increase as a result of Coach Hitchcock's promotion of the sport. Wrestling offers a field of endeavor that is open to the tall, short, light or heavy.

Limit Prom Box
Reservation Date
To Friday Night

"Reservations for prom boxes must be made before 6 o'clock tomorrow, Don McArthur, chairman of the box committee of the 'Prom of History,' said last night." The reservations must be sent to him at 811 State street, and each should be accompanied by a check for $15.

Although more than 30 boxes have already been reserved there are still many desirable ones left.

At least five more boxes will be arranged for within the next two days it is expected as there were more than 40 at last year's prom.

AUTOISTS ARE ASKED

Cooperation of the public in preventing the ruts in Madison's snow covered streets, is asked by Mayor L. Milo Kittleson. Motorists are asked to keep from existing ruts as much as possible and in this way distribute the burden over the entire pavement lessening the danger to traffic and preventing rapid destruction to the street.

Jones in Direction of Sports

Prof. J. F. A. Pyre was given a more active part in Wisconsin athletic department, headed by Director T. E. Jones.

Jones will be relieved of certain details which will be taken over by Professor Pyre, chairman of the athletic council.

The board adopted the recommendation of the council, endorsed by President E. A. Birge and made at the request of Jones, whereby Pyre will be enabled to collaborate more closely with the department of physical education.

Increase pay of $750 was voted for Professor Pyre in view of the added responsibilities and work the step will entail. His relation to athletics hereafter will be similar to that of Prof. Ralph Aigler at the University of Michigan. It will be a part of his duties, it is expected to pass on eligibility facts.

As part of its contemplated program, Professor Pyre declared yesterday the athletic council plans to ask certain changes in its organization including the appointment of another alumni member, giving the grads one resident and one non-resident member on the council instead of one as at present. Jones will also be given a voting membership under the plan. These recommendations will be placed before the faculty for approval.

Winter Sports
Ski Race Set
For Saturday

A ski race will be held Saturday under the auspices of the recently organized winter sports club. The racers will start from the foot of Park street at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The race has been divided into two classes. Class A will be composed of members of the Badger Ski club and class B will be for all novices.

Four ribbons will be given for places in both classes. George Martin, instructor of winter sports, will act as judge for the races. Martin expects a large number of people to enter the competition.

Ice Boating Made Fascinating
By Many Thrills and Spills

By DOC FAVILLE

Have you ever scudded across the lake at a mile-a-minute clip and laughed at the gale that stung your face and tore at your clothes? Have you ever jumped open cracks in the ice or felt the spray of upflung snow in your eyes?

If you haven't you've missed the thrill of a lifetime, for there is no sport on land or water, outside of surf riding, that can furnish the thrills that one finds in ice boating.

If you have never done any ice boating, get acquainted with the sport this winter. Scout around until you find someone that can run a boat, and some afternoon when there is a good wind call "Cap" Bernard and get a boat.

Cap Knows Boats

Cap has twenty boats that he rents and says that he could rent a hundred some days, if he had them. He has been building boats for years and knows all the tricks of the trade, for his boats are as speedy as they make them.

Put on about three times as many clothes as you think you'll need and take a blanket or two for good measure. You'll need them all and more too before night.

As the boat tacks out of Cap's yards the wind catches it and before you know it you are abreast of Picnic point. If you want an extra thrill stand out on the runner and see if the steerer can lose you. Ten to one he can, for no matter how hard you clamp onto the guy, until you've learned the trick you'll find it hard to stay on when he comes about.

Is Exciting Sport

Cracks in the ice are plentiful this year and increase the sport. Try jumping them some day when you're travelling fifty miles an hour, if you want to cultivate an indifference to danger.

When you've tried all the variations that you can think of and your stomach is protesting that it hasn't been fed for a week, go in and eat three dinners, and try to find someone that will believe your stories.

You'll be sleepy before you're through dinner, but you'll want to go out again the next day. It's a grand sport.

"Doc" Spooner, flashy varsity forward who sustained a wrenched knee in the Northwestern game, and who was therefore kept out of the Indiana fracas, is getting back into shape slowly.

The long layoff for our basketball team until the Chicago game on January 26, will materially aid Wisconsin's chances for successive wins. With Spooner unable to scrimmage, the end of ten days rest should bring him around for the game at Chicago.

Diebold went on a rampage last night in practice. Gibson and Wackman both received black eyes from the big head of our Marshall. Gibby swears he'll make a forward out of Diebold yet. (This is not a paid advertisement.)

Today's the day when Joe Steinauer's swimmers travel to Iowa in a private car. Some class to these boys. We hope it's a steel car—a wooden one would be so unsafe, if the boys make as much noise and damage as they do in the tile tank.

The interfraternity basketball games are drawing large crowds now. There are only twelve teams left in the running at present. The Betas, P. A. D's, Sig Phi Eps, Kappa Sigs and Theta Omis look good. All have won every game thus far.

SWIMMING SCHEDULE

Northwestern has been dropped from the swimming schedule and two meets with the Milwaukee Athletic club have been added, according to Coach Joe Steinauer. The schedule, as it now stands, is as follows: January 19, Iowa at Iowa City; February 9, Milwaukee Athletic club here; February 15, Milwaukee Athletic club at Milwaukee; February 21, Minnesota here; March 1, Indiana at Bloomington; March 7, Chicago here; March 13 and 14, conference meet at Chicago.

SWIM TEAM READY
FOR IOWA MEETSteinauer Prescribes Long
Workouts to Get Men Into Best Shape

Varsity swimmers are taking their last workouts today for the first dual tank meet of the year which will be held Saturday night with the Hawkeyes at Iowa City. Coach Steinauer will take about 25 men on the trip including members of the waterbasketball team.

Iowa has been a weak sister in swimming in former years, but late reports have it that they are out for a championship. Early in the season one member of the squad tied the conference record in the plunge for distance. This means that Iowa is sure to win in this event, more so as Dummer, varsity plunge star, is ineligible and will be unable to make the trip.

Coach Steinauer has put the squad through long, slow workouts this week. The men swam ten laps each with the boards and tires, aimed at improving the arm and leg action. Divers have been going through two workouts each day to improve their diving form.

The series of three practice meets with the frosh which ended Tuesday night in a third victory for the regulars, helped a great deal in getting the men nerved up to fast starts and finishes.

The team leaves for Iowa City tomorrow.

Junior Women Plan
Calling Week For
Freshman Advisees

The junior advisory committee, sponsored by Yellow Tassel, junior women's organization, is planning to make this week and next "Calling Weeks". Junior girls have been urged to get into touch with their advisees and give them what encouragement and suggestions they can.

"We feel that the older girls can do much to help the freshmen through these trying examination days," Lois Jacobs, '24, president of S. G. A. said.

Jean Palica '25, is chairman of the advisory committee which includes 17 junior girls.

WOMEN SHOOTERS TO FIRE AGAINST
OKLAHOMA TEAMSquad of Ten to Be Picked
Soon For Practice
Work

Major Lampert has accepted a challenge from the University of Oklahoma for an intercollegiate women's rifle meet to be held the last of February. Each team will fire on its own ground and the scores will be sent by telegraph.

A team of ten will be picked from a select squad probably the second week of the new semester. Special practices may be scheduled before then. At the meet, ten shots will be allowed each member and the five highest individual total scores, the other five excepted, will determine the final score.

The meet will take place in the concert room at Lathrop, the range there being the only one now available. Rifle fans and rooters may occupy the balcony. No admission will be charged.

Seventy girls are practicing hard at present under the direction of Major Lampert, conscious that their records are being carefully watched in anticipation of picking the team.

Major Lampert expressed the willingness of organizing beginners' classes next semester if such action met with the approval of the women's physical education department and a number of girls interested in rifle practice turned up at registration time. But with only the three classes now existing there is no possibility of accommodating a larger number he declared.

"If interest in shooting continues to be as keen as has been shown, there is no reason why a girls' rifle club could not be organized," he said.

SPEED PROMISED
FOR TRACK MEETFrosh and Varsity Runners to Engage in Second Contest Saturday

Frosh and varsity track teams will clash again at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the gym annex in what promises to be a fast meet. Both teams have been practicing steadily and it is expected that real class will be shown in a great many of the events.

Such Varsity veterans as Captain Hamman, Valley and Hilberts will be on hand in their events. Valley distinguished himself last year by winning first place in the half mile in the conference meet held at Ann Arbor while Hilberts, his team mate, placed third in the same race.

Hamman, this year's captain, starred in the pole vault in the all-around conference meet at Illinois.

Schwarze, the big Frosh lad, will display his ability once more in the shot put. The two Macs—McGivern and McAndrews, are among the other good freshmen. These two are in the low hurdles and dashes.

All of the yearlings are working hard in order to raise their chances of making the team which will be picked at the close of the meet to be held January 26. The meet this Saturday is the second of a series of three.

CAPITAL GIVES $873

Exactly $873.30 had been collected from state employees in the capitol as their contribution to the fund for the relief of starving Germans at an early hour Wednesday morning, according to Edward J. Nordman, commissioner of markets, who is charge of drive in the state house. It is expected that this amount will be increased within the next few days to $1,000. Six of the seven supreme court judges donated $50 each, according to Mr. Nordman.

OUR SICK CONTEMPORARY

We are pleased to learn that the untimely demise of the well known Lit has not as yet taken place. While life remains to it, there is always hope of financial and literary rehabilitation, both of which seem to be badly needed if the publication is to maintain itself on the campus. While the Lit's troubles may have been aggravated by mismanagement of its business affairs, as stated by one of the editors, it seems hardly likely that the whole blame should rest with the business staff. Primary responsibility must always lie with the editorial department, not only by reason of their control over the business staff, but also because it is the editorial province to determine the whole character of the magazine.

Whether or not the character of the Lit, as it has appeared thus far this year, is beyond all criticism, we do not presume to judge. Quite likely it leaves something to be desired; most publications do. But it does seem evident that, such and as it is, whether or not it be art at its noblest and best, or vulgarity at its lowest and noisiest—I isn't precisely what the student public wants. And since it is—ostensibly, at least—published for the student body, its failure to appeal to that public is so far a shortcoming. Even a literary magazine, if it wishes to prosper, must pay some attention to the wants of its readers.

We hope that the Lit will prosper, prosper enormously, prosper enough so that it can continue publishing, and hand itself over to a new group next year, as has been done from time immemorial, or about seven years. Almost anyone who reads the Lit will admit that this is a long time.

THINKING INTERNATIONALLY

Whether or not Mr. Edward Bok has succeeded in inspiring the formulation of an infallible plan for world peace, he has at least been successful in inspiring a lot of thought on the subject. Scarcely a newspaper is published without quoting the opinion of some more or less notable personage regarding the practicality of the Bok plan. People whose interests are chiefly in their own immediate concerns may be found heatedly discussing international affairs and world policies, are looking at life and human activities in their larger aspects.

Most beneficial of all, a good many who turn eagerly to the discussion of the burning question of the day find with some mortification that they are handicapped by lack of any sort of knowledge of sociology, history, or international relations, and endeavor to supply the defect by reading and study. The insular and provincial opinion no longer carries much weight, and those whose business it is to be oracular find it advisable to embellish their rhetoric with a knowledge of actual facts and conditions.

In university students particularly, this newly awakened interest in the world as such is an extremely hopeful sign. It is no longer possible to hide one's head in the sand like the traditional ostrich, and hope for the best. War and peace are hard, solid facts, as some who are still among us have good cause to remember. It will do no one any harm to take a look at the world he lives in—a comprehensive, scientific look—and form some opinion as to how he and his kind are going to get along with that world with as little bayonet practice and poison gas as possible.

NOT ILLITERATE, BUT—ALMOST

The various problems connected with the elimination of illiteracy in the United States were discussed last week in a national conference at Washington, D. C., of delegates from the United States Bureau of Education, the American Legion, the Federation of Women's clubs, and the National Education association.

At the meetings of these groups, ways and means for lessening the illiteracy in the country were discussed. It was estimated that there are at the present time five million illiterates in the United States who do not know how to read or write. The work of these most representative and live organizations in attacking this appalling state of affairs is certainly commendable, and in the light of their program something surely will be done.

But when news of this nature comes and there is talk of the illiteracy in the nation's people, a wonder comes as to the actual literacy of the group outside the five million. Take the college men and women, for instance. Certainly the charge would never come that these are illiterate. But yet there is a great deal of queer English which one can hear on the campus. Some of it is avowedly slang, of course, and is intended as such. But on the other hand there is much which is passed as perfectly good construction which Wooley would never sanction.

Even the professors with perfect ease now and then say "He don't," and among the student body "they was" is quite acceptable. A mere "Good English week" campaign would never medicate permanently these ills. But if some national movement, headed by such representative bodies as are urging this illiteracy campaign, were to be launched and a plea for better English in its use in the daily communion of work and business, were to be made, perhaps our foreigners and native born illiterates would not find such difficult work in mastering our tongue. The American people, themselves, intelligent and keen though they are, are not illiterate, but—almost.

Other Editors Say—

DEPLORABLE ENGLISH

An instructor in a commercial course has informed his students that a portion of the quarter's work would have to do with the study and correct usage of the English language, in which knowledge the average student is rather sadly deficient.

It really is quite depressing to hear many undergraduates play havoc with all rules of good English in their daily conversation. Their writing, though more carefully done, is not free from glaring faults of grammar and spelling. And yet, these undergraduates, many of them, are juniors and seniors, soon to be graduated from this University and considered as "educated" persons.

Among the best of this University's rules is that which requires all freshmen to take a year of grammar and composition. The one year, however, seemingly is not enough, or many students are able to "get by" with a passing grade without assimilating much of the material offered them.

After all the training in composition and rhetoric given in grammar and high schools, and the additional year here at Ohio State, the average junior or senior should be well able to handle the mother tongue rather effectively. Surely the upperclassman should know its correct use.

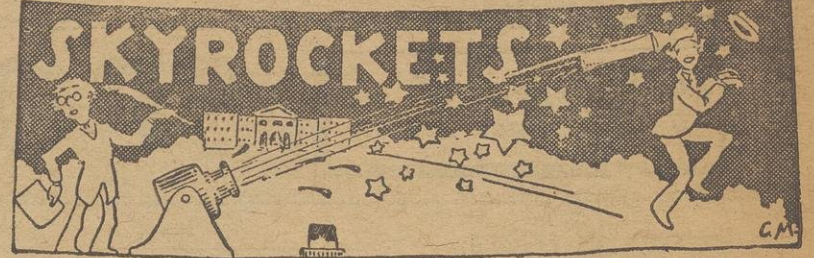

It may be that every college student should be required to review his knowledge of grammar in his junior or senior year. Again, it might be well to insist on a somewhat higher standard in high school and in the freshman year at college.

In concluding this editorial on student use of English, we rather hope we are making no grammatical errors in our editorial columns today. If we are, however, we offer this to soften the harshness of our critics—if an English course of the type mentioned above were offered, we'd jump at the opportunity to take it.—Ohio State Lantern.

Editorial Quips and Facts

"Flaming Youth" made quite a sensation here a month or so ago, but the critics seem to be overlooking a picture which is in town now.

After the publication of a story which told of a man who had been killed by anthrax received while shaving, beards will probably become a new style.

A TALE OF THE ORIENT

Darius sat on his golden throne
Munching nuts and a warm ham bone;
"Bring on the captives" he cried in glee,
And he playfully slapped his royal knee.
"Ha ha!" and he whistled a Persian tune,
"One is as fat as the round full moon;
"I'll flay him alive, and I'll crush his bones,
Till he weeps and cries and wimpers and groans.
I'll punch in his eyes till they pierce his brain,
And his blood will flow like a warm spring rain!
The other is skinny and wrinkled and dry—
Not enough breath in his lungs for a cry—
I'll boil him in oil to loosen his joints,
Ha Ha! This is torture in all its fine points."
The captives crawled in on a humble knee,
And prayed for their lives and their liberty.
The king was great and all knew he was kind,
There was no sorrow to which he was blind;
None were too small to be out of his grace
They would give him spices and gold and lace!"
But the king was hard in his heart that day,
And the executioner took them all away,
Condemned to tortures fearful to hear,
Tortures that torture the unwilling ear.
They were flayed and broken and boiled in oil,
And strewn on the ground for the good of the soil.
And the king went back to his harem girls,
And kissed their red lips and twisted their curls.
He laughed in their arms as he told the tale
Omitting never a doleful wail.
And the harem clapped and danced in glee,
And swore there was never such king as he.
They stroked his beard and kissed his hair,
And perfumed his palace with incense rare,
Singing him hymns, "Oh, great is Darius,
Already dead are those who defy us."
And the king's head dropped in sleepy nods,
And the captives' souls broke bread with the gods.

Davenport Boy Stars in "The Torch Bearers" Prom Play of the University of Wisconsin Which Has Been Booked Over Circuit in the Middle West

The greatest dramatic honor which can come to a student at the University of Wisconsin has been won by Otis L. Wiese of Davenport, son of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Wiese, 1203 West Locust street. Mr. Wiese will be leading man in the annual Junior Prom play, "The Torch Bearers". The competition for the cast was unusually keen this year, over 200 students trying out for positions.

Owing to the calibre of the cast, combined with the intrinsic merit of the play, which such a critic as Heywood Brown ranked with "Merton of the Movies" the Wisconsin U. production will take the road after its premiere in Madison. Milwaukee, Chicago and a dozen other cities in the Middle West will be visited. There is a possibility that the play may be brought to the Tricities for one performance.

Mr. Wiese was asked by The Democrat to give a description of the play and of the part he takes. He has kindly consented to do so. His letter tells of the fact that the Junior Prom is the great social function of the entire year at the U. W., one which students plan on attending a year in advance. The Junior Prom play, originated by the class of 1908, has since that time been the other big event of Prom Week. Many Davenporters will witness the play this year. Mr. Wiese tells of it as follows.

Leading Man Explains Play

Prominent at N. W.
Mr. Wiese is at present affiliated with the University glee club and with the Badger, the Wisconsin annual, in the capacity of engraving-editor. Recently, for the first time in the club's existence, he was elected to membership in the Wisconsin Players, without having to pass thru the customary six months probation period. While in the Davenport High School, he was fairly prominent in forensics, winning both the Iowa and Illinois league championships in extemporaneous speaking. Also he was in several plays, including the class play of 1922, and they allowed him to be president of the Dramatic club, associate editor of the school paper and annual for two years, and president of the 1922 graduating class.

At Wisconsin a sophomore in the university and a member of Delta Chi fraternity.

WORK OF HYGIENE LAB IS REVEALED

Semi-Annual Report Shows How Health of Public is Protected

How a group of four chemists and bacteriologists in the laboratory on the fourth floor of South hall under the direction of Dr. William D. Stovall, professor of hygiene, are working to safeguard the health of the people of the state is revealed in the last semi-annual report of the laboratory.

That persons may be released from anxiety and uncertainty concerning the presence or nature of a disease about which there is some doubt, the men make scientific examinations of specimens there.

A total of 33,659 such examinations have been made during the last six months, or approximately twice as many as were made in the corresponding period last year, according to the report.

Out of 25,581 diphtheria specimens considered, the laboratory was able to send back the encouraging news that 21,364 showed negative results in the test. Although many specimens may have come from a single case, several thousand persons have thus been freed from the fear that they might have the early stages of that disease.

In other cases the work of the laboratory makes the cure of a patient more speedy and sure. If the tests show positive results, treatment may be administered at once.

Testing of water supplies is one of the most important services which the laboratory provides. During the recent local controversy concerning the advisability of using Lake Mendota as Madison's source of water supply, many of the tests were made by the state laboratory of hygiene.

The rapid increase in the amount of service the laboratory is able to render is shown by the fact that in 1910 only 4,304 specimens were examined, while during the last year the number was approximately 50,000.

Committee to Make Report at State Y. M. C. A. Meeting

Recommendations for the future of the Y. M. C. A. will be given at a Saturday noon luncheon during the state meeting of the association next week in a report by a committee appointed for that purpose a year ago. Arrangements for the final suggestions will be given Friday.

Herbert F. Lindsay '05, president, will have charge of the meeting. The board includes business men of the state as well as the general secretaries throughout the state.

Dr. Norman Henderson, pastor of the First Baptist church, will speak on "The Test of Christian Personality," Saturday morning. Prof. E. B. Gordon will have charge of the direction of the music for the meetings.

Recently returned from his work as a Y. M. C. A. secretary in Tokio, Japan, Arthur Jorgenson, secretary of the university association prior to 1911, will speak at the meeting Sunday afternoon. Mr. Jorgenson is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

STOVALL INVESTIGATES ANTHRAX IN NEENAH

Dr. W. D. Stovall, director of the state hygienic laboratory at the university, and a representative of the state health department, has gone to Neenah to investigate the presence of anthrax bacilli found in shaving brushes there.

Ferdinand Pluger, 68, died of anthrax there last Saturday, according to the state health department.

A shaving brush received by Pluger was declared to contain anthrax germs, following an examination at the state laboratory.

Distributors probably will be warned about using brushes of the same manufacture as the one which caused the death.

Marion, the seat of the county that has gained the name of "Bloody Williamson" in many coal mine wars, is again in open revolt, but the mines are only an indirect factor in the trouble this time. Citizens have taken up arms in what they explain is a battle to wipe out bootleggers and vicious resorts in the section, and the trouble has become so serious that state militia under Colonel A. L. Culbertson has been called in.

Country Mag Puts Out Special Issue On Livestock Show

A 40 page combined Livestock number and program for the Wisconsin International Livestock show will be issued by the staff of the Country Magazine and put on sale during the two show days February 22 and 23.

The cover will carry a large picture of last year's event, and news and contributions of more than 300 animal husbandry grads will be featured prominently.

Near the front of the number will be found a short history of the Wisconsin International which is tied up with the past of the Saddle and Sirolo club. An article on the "Value of Showing," by Byron Heal '24, as well as some authoritative statements on horse back riding by an expert are there.

An article by Prof. E. H. Farrington on Craig, the inventor of the livestock judging scorecard which is now universally used by colleges and expert stock judges, is certain to prove valuable. Pictures of all the exhibitors at the show will be contained in the issue.

Other things of interest which will make this a banner number will be an article on "Opportunities in Animal Husbandry," by Prof. G. C. Humphrey and cuts of the judging teams.

Silly Men, Exams, Send Emporia Date Agency Upon Rocks

Miss Margery Markley, student of the College of Emporia, Emporia, Kan., is ready to sell out her dating agency for $2. If no one offers her that much she'll just close up and quit.

Miss Markley organized her dating agency a month ago, offering to make dates for bashful men and timid girls of the college, at 25 and 50 cents. The idea spread far beyond the campus. Miss Markley has received letters from New Jersey, New York, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Washington, California, and points between.

"I have received a perfect slew of letters," Miss Markley said, "and they take too much of my time, with final exams coming on. Mostly they were from silly men who wanted me to arrange marriages for them or give them the name of a college or Emporia girl they could correspond with."

Six proposals and $6 are the total receipts of the agency to date.

Lhevinne is Asked
For Many Encores
In Third Recital

By L. C.

Josef Lhevinne made more secure his popularity with Madison music-lovers in a concert at Christ Presbyterian Church last night, given under the management of the All-Star Concert series.

The applause which greeted the pianist when he entered the stage and the many encores to which he was forced to respond gave evidence that his favor with his audience was being more firmly established with each selection played.

At the close of the concert the audience stayed in their seats, unwilling to leave, while the musician played four encores.

The program, not including the many encores given, included three groups, the opening group consisting of the Beethoven "Andante Favori in F. Major," and the Weber-Tausig "Invitation to the Dance."

Four selections from Chopin's compositions made up the second group, including the "Impromptu C Sharp Minor," two preludes, "D Flat Major" and "B Flat Minor," the "Nocturne F Sharp Minor," and his short "Minute Waltz."

Works of the French composers Ravel and Debussy opened the third group. "Une Barque Sur L'Océan" by Ravel, and "Minstrels" by Debussy were the selections played. Liszt's "Lieberstraum," the Liszt-Busoni "Campanella," and "Hungarian Gypsies' Airs," by Tausig, completed the program.

Houdini, Handcuff King, Will Feature Next Bill at Orph

Although he is always busy entertaining the public, Harry Houdini, is literally continually "at liberty." At the Orpheum theatre next week, where he is a head-line feature, Houdini will extricate himself from a Chinese water torture cell. He offers this amazing feat as the most difficult achievement of his career.

Houdini was born on a farm near Appleton, Wis. He was apprenticed to a locksmith, but shortly after ran away from home to join a small circus. During his mechanical apprenticeship, he learned much about locks which later proved of remarkable value.

But circus life attracted him first. He conducted a little Punch and Judy show, did a ventriloquist act, and appeared as a clown. He even "doubled in brass" in the street parade. Then he began entertaining the circus audiences by the rapidity with which he could escape from ropes tied about him in every conceivable way. This was but a step to introducing his mystery of handcuffs and shackles.

The leaden tablet and the hole from which it was dug.

The discovery of this laden tablet by Russel Kaufman while digging a hole for a tree in Washington may solve a mystery that has defied American historians. When a waxen substance was removed from its surface it was found to bear an inscription dated 1590 indicating that it marked the burial place of Virginia Dare, the first white child born on the North American continent after the visit of Columbus, and a member of a lost colony whose fate never was solved.

LATHROP DATES MUST BE EXACT

Dean Nardin Urges Campus Groups to Give Specific Reservations

Necessity of asking for definite dates for reservation of rooms in Lathrop hall to prevent conflicting engagements next semester was emphasized in a letter by Dean Nardin to student organizations.

As has always been the custom, Lathrop hall will be for the exclusive use of university student and faculty organizations only.

The letter follows: "In order to have no misunderstanding or conflict of dates for rooms in Lathrop hall for the coming semester, we are asking each group that has engagements listed, or that wishes to have, to send to this office as soon as possible a list of the numerical dates of such engagements and the room to be used. Please do not say 'the second and fourth Tuesday', for we cannot take upon ourselves to carefully list the dates in that way.

"Each date held by one organization keeps other organizations from meeting in that room. We often have two and sometimes three requests for a room on a certain date, and a prompt notice of cancellation may allow another group to use the room."

Dean Nardin also requests that every group should be willing to give up the room it has engaged for a larger group, and arrangements for the first group will be made in the office of the Dean of Women at Lathrop.

PSYCHOLOGISTS HONOR PROFESSOR JASTROW

Yes, Music Hath Charms to Soothe Big Leaguers

Joe Bush drawing plaintive strains from his fiddle, Bob Shawkey tuning up his favorite instrument for a day's hunt, and Waite Hoyt as he listens for the down payment tinkle in a real estate deal.

Music hath charms to soothe the savage, it is said. That apparently includes big league ball players. For here we have three illustrious hurlers of the world's champion Yankees providing music for their own savage breasts. Joe Bush is really an accomplished violinist and devotes much time in the off months to practicing on it. He hopes to enter the musical field when his days on the ball field are done. Bob Shawkey finds music in the crack of his rifle and spends most of his time hunting near Philadelphia, his home town. Waite Hoyt is a real estate salesman in his home town of Larchmont, N. Y., and says there's a tuneless note in the tinkle of the dough that marks the first down payment on one of his choicest lots. They're all choice, of course. However, all three hurlers get more joy out of the hum of a ball zipping past a batter.

SOPH SEMI-PUBLIC DEBATE POSTPONED

Decide to Permit First Semester Juniors to Participate in Event

The eligibility of sophomores who become juniors next semester to participate in the sophomore semi-public debate, delayed the final decision of the three mens' literary societies to postpone the date of the event, last Friday night.

After considerable argument, it was decided to hold the debate early next semester, instead of tomorrow and also permit members of the several teams who advance to the rank of juniors to take part in it.

The subject of the debates to be held between Hesperia, Philomathia and Athenae Literary societies will be, "Resolved, That Congress Enact Such Legislation as is Necessary to Provide for the Nominations to the Presidency and the Vice-presidency of the United States by the Direct Primary."

The closers of the six debate teams are Harold Jordan and I. G. Alk for Philomathia, William Blake and Earl Bell, Athenae and Arthur Nickel and Leslie Peard, Hesperia.
