FACULTY GETS UNDER WAY ON UNION DRIVE

Canvassing is Organized By Professor Sharp; Gamma Alpha Offers $1,000 to Memorial

The faculty drive for the Memorial Union is well under way. The various schools and colleges have been organized under Prof. Frank Sharp of the philosophy department, and each one has favorable reports as far as the work has gone.

"Everything is in good shape in the College of Agriculture," said Prof. Edward Jones, in charge of that part of the work. "We have canvassed about one-third of those who did not subscribe before, and have received many $100 subscriptions. Most of those who gave before have doubled their pledges this time."

$1,000 Offered

Gamma Alpha, honorary graduate science fraternity, have $1,000 which they are willing to turn over to the Memorial Union fund, if they may be assured a place for their archies and their meetings in the new building. They also feel that this interest in the Memorial Union is a personal tribute of the organization to those of their number who died in the service.

"That is just what the Memorial Union is for," was the reply made by Dean Scott H. Goodnight, when the proposition was presented to him.

Hard Work Done

"We of the engineering school are working pretty hard, and things are going to be all right by the first of the week. At present many of our faculty are in Milwaukee, so that I can give no definite report until Tuesday or Wednesday," said Prof. L. Van Hagen of the engineering faculty.

The canvassing personnel of the Economics department met yesterday with Professor E. A. Ross, and definite plans were made to start in on Monday. The College of Letters and Science has been divided into departments and the various department heads have charge of their particular divisions.

Short Course Men And Badger Club To Hear Elliott

A. J. "Dad" Elliott, student Y. M. C. A. secretary for the central states, will address the short course students this morning in the auditorium of Agricultural hall at 9 o'clock. He will also deliver a talk on "The Student Situation in the Middle West" to the Badger club in the Y. M. C. A. this evening at 8 o'clock.

The Y. M. C. A. conference for college students held at Lake Geneva last June was under the charge of Mr. Elliott and he has been active in student affairs ever since he graduated from Northwestern university about 20 years ago. He became a famous football player while attending Northwestern,

Deserted Village Looks Like County Fair beside Madison

Deserted, dead, forlorn, forsaken, Goldsmith might just as well have meant Madison during the Chicago game when he said:

"Sweet, smiling village, loveliest of the lawn,
Thy sports are fled and all thy charms withdrawn,
And desolation saddens all thy green."

There is nothing very certain about the "green," or the "lawn," but as for "all the sports"—they went on the special Friday noon, or most of them did. The only ones who didn't, had been sports once too often before.

State street's like Lover's lane in the bright sunshine, but even the sunshine must have gone on the special to see that game. Two places in the "loveliest village" were at least thronged with human beings. Those more hopeful souls plodded to the door of the gym, and with Polly-Anna in their voices, simpered, "We can see the game for 10 cents." But even the heroic attempt to be cheerful became weaker and weaker, until at 4 o'clock the crowd emerged, saying not a word.

The rest of the school—more noble souls—swathed their emotions in study. Apparently an extra library force was put on to fulfill the eager demand of the assembled multitude for sources of information. Really, the old libe hasn't been so overworked for many a day.

At least three different people said they hadn't noticed it the other time they went over to study. Poor observation, no doubt.

Now it's Sunday. It's rather nice to have a peaceful Sabbath. But another Saturday like yesterday will make an extension necessary across the lake.

KENT TO SPEAK ON MONDAY AT RELIGIOUS MEET

Two Other Addresses Will Reconcile Science and Religion

An address by Prof. Charles Foster Kent of Yale university on "The Democracy of the Prophets and Jesus," the first of the talks, will open the campus religious convocation, Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Professor Kent will speak on "The Place of Religion in the Life of an Educated Man" in his second talk to be given Monday evening in Music hall at 8 o'clock. At this time questions will be welcomed by the speaker. He will speak on "The Interpretation of the Bible" at a luncheon in Lathrop hall Tuesday noon, and the closing address will be given at Wesley hall at 8 p. m., Tuesday. His subject for this address is "The Dramatic Interpretation of the Bible."

Brought by Council

Professor Kent, who is touring the country on a year's leave of absence from Yale, has been brought here by the Campus Religious council, an organization comprised of several church groups and members of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. He recently delivered a series of lectures at the University of Minnesota.

Speeches during the convocation will be along the fundamental idea that science and religion are not incompatible.

New York Man Gets Gale Scholarship

The Zona Gale scholarship, first announced last August as an experiment in specialized education, has been awarded for this year to R. F. Weber of Brooklyn, New York. One scholarship each year, amounting to $700, is to be granted to some student with marked ability in special fields, but lacking the usual entrance requirements for a college course.

Mr. Weber was recommended by a former Wisconsin graduate for ability in literature and music, and the recommendation is supported by such men as Wallace Irwin, Julian Street, and John Farrar, editor of the Bookman. Weber completed only two years of high school, finances preventing him from finishing his course.

This experiment in specialization has attracted much press notice, and will be watched as a possible basis for changing the arbitrary entrance requirements to all courses. The committee of administration of the fund consists of Prof. M. V. O'Shea, Dean Harry Glicksman, Prof. V. A. C. Henmon, Prof. C. E. Mendenhall, and Prof. W. E. Leonard.

Glee Club to Give Concert at Chicago

The University Men's Glee club will give a concert on January 14 before the Wisconsin society of Chicago. Thirty-six members will make the trip to Chicago, and S. B. Silber will be in charge.

"Rollie" Williams Elected Captain of Wisconsin Eleven at Meeting After Game

BULLETIN
CHICAGO—Rolland F. Williams was elected captain of the 1922 Wisconsin football team at a meeting of the team held after the game.

By CHAS. J. LEWIN
(Special to the Cardinal)

CHICAGO—Milton C. Romney, Maroon quarterback, is Chicago's hero of the hour. In a game which for climax rivaled modern Staggcraft at its best, the Salt Lake City youth stepped back on Wisconsin's 17 yard line and sent a perfect drop-kick between the goal posts for the three points which gave Chicago a victory over the fighting Badgers.

More than 30,000 people went wild with joy or commiserated with each other as the oval spun through the air and over the crossbars.

Score Comes Late

The winning points came late in the fourth quarter after Wisconsin had unsuccessfully spent its failing strength in the last of three attempts to snatch victory from the grim Maroon eleven. Thomas, the fullback, who single handed beat Illinois, and "Bobby" Cole were sent into the game to replace Timme and Pyott. By a series of demonical line plunges, the pair worked the ball to midfield and a pass to Strohmeir brought the Maroons to Wisconsin's 27 yard line. On their 15 yard line the Badgers were penalized five yards for being offside; and, with five more yards to gain for a first down, Romney stepped back and carved his niche in the University of Chicago hall of fame.

Badgers Rally

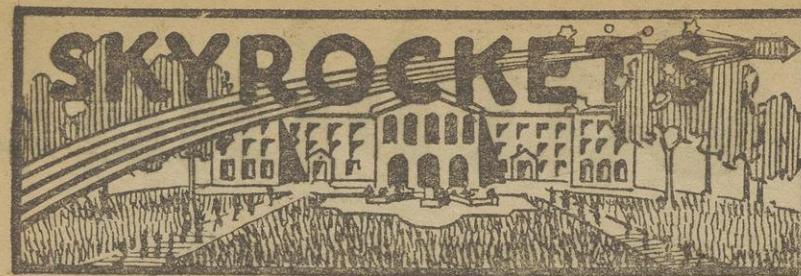

A dangerous forward pass rally threatened to put Wisconsin within scoring distance for the last time but the game ended soon after a pass, Elliott to Williams, had put the sphere in midfield.

Three potential opportunities to sew up the contest, one each in the first, third, and fourth periods, were thrown to the winds by the vanquished Cardinal eleven. An irresistible attack which pushed the Stagmen back in the shadow of their goal posts cheered the hearts of Badger rooters shortly after the opening kickoff. With the sphere less than 10 yards from the Chicago goal line, Williams fumbled and a golden chance was lost.

Wisconsin on Defensive

Wisconsin was on the defensive for the remainder of the first period and during all of the second. A bad punt which traveled only 10 yards from the toe of young Mr. Romney gave Wisconsin the edge again in the second half. Steady gains through the Maroon line coupled with a heave, Elliott to Tabbell, brought the Badgers to their opponents' 20 yard mark. Sundt missed a place kick from a position directly in front of the goal posts and the second golden chance had gone.

Gibson and Elliott alternated to a gain which sent qualms of fear through Maroon rooters. Their efforts were of little avail; for, with the ball on Chicago's 20 yard line, (Continued on Page 3)

ROMMEY'S TOE BEATS BADGERS IN LAST GAME

Chicago Gets All the Breaks; Wisconsin Offensive Strong But Final Punch Lacking

"Old Man" Stagg's charges held and, gaining possession of the oval, started on their juggernaut drive which battered Wisconsin into defeat in a game which dropped the curtain on Western football.

Maroons Get Breaks

Every break in the battle went to Chicago. Not once did Dame Fortune turn her smile Wisconsin-ward. Bitter frowns were the Badgers portion when a bit of luck would have turned defeat into victory and gladdened the hearts of 3,500 students who cheered their team to the last play.

The Wisconsin offense proved more powerful than the Chicago attack, but the final punch was lacking. In the punting duel between Sundt and Romney, the Badger captain out-classed his touted rival. Sundt's kick went high and far down the field. In one instance he punted 60 yards from behind his goal line to put the ball in the center of the field and keep his team out of danger. Both forward walls battled with determination and ceaseless aggressiveness. They fought to a standstill, and if the game had been decided by line playing, Wisconsin would be joyful in victory instead of sombre in defeat.

Five Play Last Game

Playing their last game for Wisconsin, five Wisconsin athletes distinguished themselves. Capt. Guy Sundt was a power on defense and his punting was marveled at by the Chicago stands until an injury forced him to leave the game as the fourth quarter swung underway. "T" Gould was the Badger's most consistent ground gainer. At left end on defense, left half and fullback on attack, his work was of the highest calibre, and whenever distance was needed, Gould usually made it.

George Bunge completely out-played the bulky King at center. His accurate passing, roving defense, and strength made the center of the line invincible.

"Rowdy" Elliott flashed in his old-time form yesterday. He tore around the ends and drove off the tackles with amazing rapidity and force. "Jimmy" Brader, another of Wisconsin's Big Five, displayed speed and aggressiveness in the last contest he will play for the Badgers. His steady work all season has made him a predominant choice for tackle on honorary teams.

Tebell's vicious tackling and the manner in which he nipped forward passes for long gains made him an outstanding star. He was active in every formation, and his brilliant flank work was a bright spot in a dark day for Wisconsin. "Rollie" Williams and Woods played consistent ball.

Richards Refuses To Attend Banquet; Hits Ticket Sale

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO—The controversy over tickets for the game Saturday took a new turn when Coach Richards of the Wisconsin team declared the distribution of tickets was "unfair" and that hundreds of Wisconsin students were unable to get tickets. He refused to attend the Badger Alumni banquet Friday night.

Coach Richards' statement followed charges by local Wisconsin alumni that none of the 3,000 tickets given the local alumni of 300 members reached those who were members, but went to outsiders.

THE LIGHT THAT STRENGTHENS

TIME and again friendly and hostile critics of the university have hammered awful pronouncements against what they conceived is a growing trend to irreligion and irreligious indifference in our midst. As a matter of fact it shames us to answer their criticisms first, because these people attempt to shout "thumbs down" to a whole community of students without distinction, and secondly, because too often they reveal crude and immature notions as to the relation of science to religion. However, lest our position be further misunderstood, we feel duty-bound to answer our critics.

No conflict exists between science and religion; no conflict has ever existed between them. It is only narrowness and a blighted sectism that has regarded and probably will continue to regard the advancement of science as a menace to the established order. But, happily, sectism is short-lived and transitory, whereas, religion, the consciousness of a divine spark in man, is enduring and eternal. Both are devoted to the revelation of truth and the attainment of happiness. They cannot be rent apart in the life of the modern man.

The findings of men of science, laboring incessantly in the quiet of their laboratories, have been of infinite value in heightening our susceptibility to the awe-inspiring mysteries of the universe. Today we treat of atoms and electrons and microscopic life; we learn of the extreme magnitude of the universe; we have come to recognize that man himself is the culmination of a series of complicated processes that have operated during vast geologic ages—operated on an unknown minute living substance! But here the trouble begins. "Evolution," cry our critics. "Is man the child of the brute?" they ask in hysterical bewilderment. "What is the world coming to, anyhow?" This is the famous harangue of William Jennings Bryan and his antiquated cohorts.

But then, despite these feeble voices that have arisen, the doctrine of evolution is established like a Rock of Gibraltar, and no group will succeed in convincing people otherwise. Men are beginning to recognize that it is far more religious to think of the human race as having slowly and painfully emerged out of the darkness of the distant past than to think of it as having been fashioned and designed out of peculiar mud pies!

University men and women are falling in line with the new scientific teaching. Yet, to say that it hurts their moral natures, as our critics contend, is foolish. How can truth, and that is the beginning and the end of science, be contrary to right conduct? If the doctrine of evolution is true, and most thinking beings have accepted it as such, how can it be contrary to religion whose very soul clamors for truth?

Wisconsin is now launching a religious conference because it believes that its doctrines are not only consistent with the highest aspects of religion, but that it contributes to the furtherance of high ideals in conduct and life. It believes that religion, in its broadest interpretation, is an inevitable factor in human life and that it serves as the light that guides and strengthens the individual in his gropings to find himself.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR UNIVERSITY WOMEN

THERE are few women who do not know what the Young Women's Christian association does. And one has but to know its work and purpose to realize the important part it plays in the university, and that realization in itself is sufficient reason why the association deserves all the support that the university women can give it.

No finer organization than the Y. W. C. A. exists in the university. Based upon loyalty and faith, it embraces all that is noble in womanhood. Its purpose is spiritual, mental, and social development. It aims to train women for leadership that they may do a definite service in the world.

This training is not merely theoretical and separated from the world which its purpose is to serve. The university association takes an active part also in the field of social service. The Y. M. C. A. co-operates with the settlement house, the Bradley Memorial hospital and the City association. The university members hold joint meetings and conferences with industrial girls in order to make the relationship between them closer, and destroy any artificial barrier.

The Y. M. C. A. has long proved its worth as an organization among the university women. Providing, as it does, a broad, non-denominational religious element, it fills an important place in a college woman's life, giving expression to those ideals that are essential to character.

The best luck to the association's membership campaign next week.

WHEN WILL MADISON LOWER PRICES?

THE student body has repeatedly made known their disgust with the exorbitant and unreasonable prices that have been charged here without any regard to the financial ability of the students. The idea of thinking every student a child of pampered opulence must cease once and for all.

We hope the Madison merchants and restaurant keepers will act on their own initiative to lower prices. The depression demands it. Otherwise the students themselves will be compelled to decide upon a drastic and definite course of action. We trust, however, that the students will not be driven to that necessity.

MADISON, WIS., SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1921

Largest High School Editors' Convention Convenes Here Next Friday and Saturday

Association Formed in Madison Last Spring

by I. H. Peterman
THE LARGEST high school editor's convention ever held in the Central West will convene in Madison next Friday and Saturday, when the Central Interscholastic Press association meets for its annual session.

The convention is sponsored by the University of Wisconsin Course in Journalism, assisted by Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, men's and women's journalistic fraternities, and Press club.

The Central Interscholastic Press association was founded on April 23, 1921, during the University Exposition, as a part of the accomplishments of the Course in Journalism. At that time it enrolled nearly 100 editors who had come to view the journalism exhibit and to take part in a preparatory school contest for publications, representing in all 71 publications.

To John G. Baker '21, and George W. Greene '22 is due most of the credit for the success of the organization during its early existence, although they were greatly aided and encouraged by Professors W. G. Bleyer, G. M. Hyde, and E. M. Johnson of the Course in Journalism.

Includes 383 Publications

The success of the first convention and contest so interested Middle-Western publications that at present the membership has reached a total of 383 publications, some of which come from states as far away as Florida, Washington, Arizona, New Hampshire, and Pennsylvania.

The purpose of the association is "to promote friendly relations between the schools represented, to maintain high standards of scholastic journalism, to aid in the solution of problems of future editors and business managers, and to provide desirable publicity for the schools which are members."

"We propose to give a short training for all the delegates present," said Professor W. G. Bleyer in commenting on the convention. "While we cannot, of course, teach many details of journalism in such a brief space of time, we can, however, show the need for training above a high school education, in the profession."

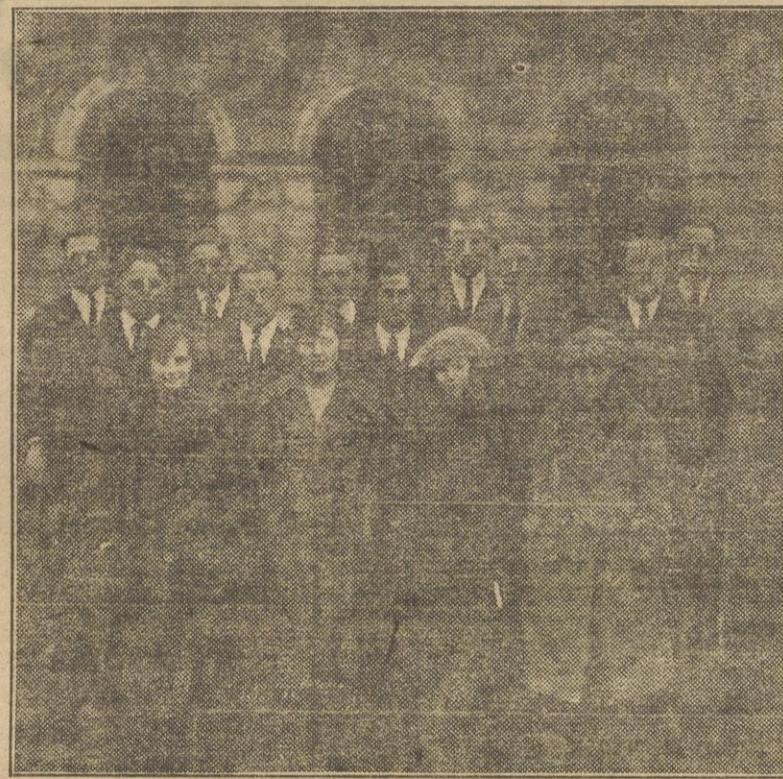

"Adequate preparation for journalism is conceded to require more than the comparatively elementary studies that are taught in high schools, and it is our hope therefore to influence many of these young people to attend some college or university where they can continue their studies."

Not an Ad for Wisconsin

"We do not intend this convention to be primarily an advertisement for Wisconsin, because, while our university will no doubt get much desirable publicity through such a convention, the purpose of the thing is not to draw prospective students here over other universities. But if we can convince students that they should attend at least some journalistic training school, we feel that we have succeeded."

"It is a known fact that the total number of journalistic students graduated from American colleges every year goes a very small way toward filling the demand for them. Consequently newspapers have to accept untrained men and women, many of them having only high school or even less education, with the result that the profession is handicapped in a way that it should not be. The more journalists we can train in our universities, the better the profession will become."

They Organized Big Meeting

The convention will begin at 7:30 Friday evening. Registration of delegates and their advisors begins Friday noon, and trains will be met and accommodations provided as fast as the editors and their assistants arrive. Friday evening the first session will be held, at which a number of prominent speakers will address the delegation.

Radiphone Concert on Program

One of the features of the meeting Friday evening will be a radiphone concert, given in the auditorium of Sterling hall, where the convention meets. Music will be obtained, probably from the Chicago Grand opera, and all present may have an opportunity to hear Mary Garden and her cast sing just as plainly as though they were in the same room. M. F. Hanson, of the Physics department, is in charge of the radiphone entertainment.

"We may be able to obtain music from Pittsburgh, Denver, or the Texas Mechanical and Agricultural college also," he said last night. "These institutions have very modern sending apparatus and have lately been giving concerts which we are able to pick up as clearly as those from Chicago."

will complete the first day's activities, there will be a series of advisors', editors', and business managers' sections Saturday morning at which time such subjects as news writing, editorial writing, copy reading, humor departments, art editing, magazine work, and business problems will be discussed at round tables under the leadership of Professors Bleyer, Hyde, Johnson, and Tom Coxon, Fred Brewer, Rodney Welsh, Charles P. MacInnis, Irwin Maier, Herbert Brockhausen, and Paul Gangelin.

Saturday at 1 o'clock the annual banquet for delegates, members, and students of the course in journalism, will be held at the Woman's building, following a short meeting at noon in the Biology building auditorium. At this time William T. Evjue, editor of The Capital Times, will address the editors, as will one or two Chicago newspaper men who have not as yet been announced.

The banquet is being given through the courtesy and co-operation of The Capital Times, The Wisconsin State Journal, The Daily Cardinal, The Wisconsin Octopus, The Wisconsin Literary Magazine, Sigma Delta Chi, Theta Sigma Phi, and Press club.

The contests carried on are perhaps the most interesting part of the convention. Conducted under the supervision of the three directors of the association, Professor Bleyer, G. W. Greene, and C. P. MacInnis, the contests fall into four groups, those for newspapers, magazines, cover designs, and cartoons.

Winners to Receive Prizes

Prizes for all winners and honorable mention entries will consist of some very handsomely engraved and stamped certificates of merit. It is possible that some trophy awards may also be given.

The contest rules are as follows:

First—each publication will be individually scored by the judges on the following points: amount of news, form and style of news stories, headlines, make-up, editorials, humor, special articles, advertising (typography and content), and illustrations. Variation of these points may be made for magazines. The score cards will be returned to the editors, either at the convention or by mail.

Sections and Classes

Second—the contest will be divided into sections as follows:

Newspapers—Class 1: Best newspaper in Middle West. Class 2: Best newspaper in Wisconsin. Class 3: Best newspaper printed in school print shop. Class 4: Best newspaper in high school of over 1,000 students. Class 5: Best newspaper in school of 400 to 1,000 students. Class 6: Best newspaper in school of 100 to 400 students. Note: Annuals cannot be entered. Semi-annuals and the like coming in Class G may be entered in that class, but not in the regular magazine classes. Winners of Class 1 and A are automatically eliminated from other classes.

The officers of the association include besides Directors Bleyer, MacInnis, and Greene, the latter acting as convention secretary at the same time, the president of the organization, Harold Kannak, last year editor of the Racine, Wisconsin, "Enicar," one of the prize winning publications.

Judges of the contest are Professor Bleyer, Hyde, and Johnson, and the art editors of the Octopus.

1,500 Are Invited

During the past two weeks Secretary Greene has written more than 1,500 letters to members of the organization and to high school editors, asking them to send delegates or entries in the contest. Entry of a publication with the attached fees automatically carries with it membership in the association.

Among some of the delegates who are coming long distances are representatives of the Porpoise, Daytona, Fla.; The Scout, Muskogee, Okla., and The Buzz, Hutchinson, Kan.

Large delegations include 13 members from the Washington high school paper staff, Milwaukee; four from Grand Rapids, Mich., and a like number from Minnesota.

Plan Advisory Council

In addition to the regular program the directors have planned an advisory council which will be held Friday, beginning at 1 p. m., in the journalism reading room of South hall, at which any high school delegates, or advisors may obtain personal advice upon problems they have with their publications. Instructors in the Course in Journalism and several of the journalism seniors will be on hand to give advice in such cases. A similar council will be conducted Saturday morning.
