Announce Choice of 25 New Glee Club Candidates

Swinney Picks from 100 Prospects to Fill Empty Places

Following tryouts in which more than 100 men competed, Prof. E. Earle Swinney, director of the university glee club, yesterday announced the names of 25 successful candidates for membership in the club.

The newly organized concert club will hold its first regular practice of the year at noon today in music hall.

New Candidates

New men who will sing with the club this year include, tenors—Robert Hanke '30, George O. Johnson grad, Gerald C. Ward '29, Albert M. Johnston '30, Arno Myers '30, C. L. Onsgard '30, Harold Bishop '30, Chas. F. Weiler '29, George B. Thacher '30, William J. Robinson '30, Laurence W. Tice L.

Baritone—Donald T. Brennan '29, John J. Dixon '30, K. L. Westby '29, Tom Stine grad, Walter C. Rogers '29, Roland T. Molzahn '30.

Bass—Pooley Norman '29, Edward C. Crouse '29, Donald Robertson '30, Sidney Thronson '30, Arthur Kuenkler '30, Hugh J. Diulio '29, Lee Kline '29, Jerrold O. Anderson '30.

Swinney Pleased

Of the men admitted to the club, many have had previous experience in smaller college organizations, and nearly all have done considerable singing in some sort of organization, such as high school glee clubs, church choirs, quartets, and the like.

Prof. Swinney was highly pleased with the number of men who tried out for the club, and extended a welcome to the new men. He said that the club was especially fortunate in having a strong tenor section this year.

The university glee club has acquired somewhat of a reputation throughout the middle west as the result of its continuous success in concert and competitive singing during the past few years. For two years in succession, 1925 and 1926, the club won first place in the midwest college glee club contest held at Chicago. The 1927 spring tour through the cities of Wisconsin, Iowa, and Northern Illinois proved the most successful one in the history of the club, and overflow crowds greeted the group wherever it went.

In the spring of 1926, the concert club also went to New York to compete in the national contest, and to

Will o' the Wisp May Change to Student "Mag"

Plans to change The Will o' the Wisp, a national quarterly of satire and cynicism, into a university publication which particularly appeal to Wisconsin students are being considered by the editors, C. Hjalmar Nelson '30 and J. Gunnar Back '31.

The magazine, which was established in March 1926 by Nelson and Back has been offered for sale on the campus during the past year. Its place of publication has been Escanaba, Michigan.

Up until the present no attempt has been made to make a university publication out of the magazine, but the campus sales of the last two numbers were of such an encouraging nature that the two editors are now contemplating this step.

In order to make the change possible, the editors are desirous of associating with them in the venture a group of young men and women of similar tastes in writing. Positions will also be open on the business staff, a business and circulation manager being particularly needed to handle the business end of the publication.

Applicants for these positions are asked to apply either in person or by letter to either of the editors at Apartment 2, 145 Iota Court.

Hitherto the magazine has been of national in scope, but under the new plan The Will o' the Wisp will have a much greater student appeal, with articles on and by students of the university. There will however, be no conflict with any other student publication.

Make Personal Definition of Religion, Glenn Frank Urges

Music Hall Filled to Capacity at First Religious Meeting of Year

"No definition of religion can be made by any one person," President Glenn Frank declared in his address on "Toward An Understanding of Religion" at the first All-University Religious service held at Music hall Sunday night. "Everyone must make his own definition of pure and undefiled religion through discovery by personal experience and not accept a definition given out directly in the lecture room."

Music hall was filled to capacity and the first convocation of the year proved very successful. Ted Thelander '29, general chairman of the All-university Religious convocation committee, introduced President Frank following the selection by the quartet, composed of Edith McCollister, Elizabeth Hunter, Dan Vornholt, and David Roberts. The prelude and postlude were played by Paul Jones.

"Students of this university," continued President Frank, "will leave this institution changed men and women, born again while here, some for the better and some for the worse. More depends on the person, however, than on the university as to whether religion remains exempt. I myself cannot give you a brief and simple definition of religion, but I can present to you five things which pure and undefiled religion is not."

President Frank listed the five things which he believed are not to be considered in making a definition of pure and undefiled religion. He stated that religion is not a standardized formula, nor does it consist of institutionalism, intellectualism, ceremonialism, or merely good conduct.

Another fact which President Frank stressed was that one of the things which religion must teach the present generation is the gospel of solitude. An hour of solitude every day for each individual is taught to a person through religion and is one of the most needed things for existence.

Ted Thelander was immensely pleased with the flattering turnout of the student body. "If students continue to show as vivid an interest for the remainder of the school year, as they have done thus far, religious convocation will become a more worthwhile part of the university."

ITALIAN CLUB MEETS AT Y. M. C. A. TONIGHT

The Italian club will hold its organization meeting for this year at the Y. M. C. A. building tonight at 7:30 o'clock. Officers will be elected, and plans for the year will be outlined. Members will sing a number of well known Italian songs. Because the size of the Italian department does not permit the club to have a house of its own, arrangements have been made to meet at the Spanish house for lunch on Tuesday and Thursday noons. All conversation between club members is in Italian at these times. Business and entertainment gatherings are held in the evening twice each month.

Federal Dry Clean-up Over Week-end, Rumor

Rumors that federal prohibition officers are joining with Madison police officers in an attempt to halt the flow of intoxicating liquors among university students here are floating about the campus.

Reports of an unusual number of officers on the streets of Madison after mid-night both Friday and Saturday nights, and also the presence of officers on all of the roads leading into Madison is being accepted as proof that Assistant Secy. of the Treasury, Lowman, federal dry chief, included Madison when he declared that "the student and the bootlegger must stop fraternizing on college campuses."

His instructions were that all prohibition administrators not only keep an unusual watch for such activity on the campus, but also to give special attention to road houses near the campus.

The reports of this ruling were not at first taken very seriously at Madison. Madison police declared that they were not taking any extra action. Over the week-end, however, things began to happen. Reports of arrests—if there has been any—have not been made public, however.

A drive in other universities has already resulted in several successful raids, it is said.

Henmon to Guide Psychology Club

Members of New Project Will Discuss Scientific Journals

All persons interested in the study of scientific journals and psychology should be quick to take advantage of the new journal-psychology club now in formation. The new club will have a membership of 30 or 40 students, who will prepare their own discussions for meetings.

Plans for the club are going forward under the guidance of Professor Henmon, head of the psychology department, and director of the Educational Statistics and Research department, Dr. Sheldon, and Dr. Hull, also of the psychology department. Professor Henmon is intensely interested in the project because he was formerly a member of such an organization in his college days at Columbia, and he says that the benefits to be gained from such a club cannot be over-estimated.

The first meeting, which will be an informal one, and purely for purposes of organization, will be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30, in room 9, Bascom Hall; all psychology students are invited. It is estimated that the permanent membership will total about 25, and meetings are to be held twice every month. The meeting dates have been arranged to avoid any conflict with those of the Journal Club.

Bleyer, Hyde, and Patterson to Attend Milwaukee Convention

Prof. Willard G. Bleyer, Director of the School of Journalism, will be chairman of the journalism round-table discussion group at the Wisconsin State Teachers convention held in Milwaukee, Nov. 4.

Prof. Grant M. Hyde will address the group on "Journalistic Writings in High School Courses"; while Miss Helen M. Patterson will speak on "Student Publications as a Mode of Aiding Written Work of High School Students."

The journalism round-table will be a part of the English round-table; this shows that teachers in Wisconsin are beginning to recognize the value and importance of journalistic writings in high schools.

MEETING FOR DESK MEN

There will be a compulsory meeting of all Daily Cardinal desk editors and assistants this afternoon at 4:30 in the Cardinal office.

Press Gathering Here Nov. 25-26

Wisconsin High School Editors to be Journalism Department Guests

The School of Journalism will be host to numerous high school students on Nov. 25 and 26, when the second Wisconsin Interscholastic Press association convention will be held here.

President Frank will speak at the banquet given the night of Nov. 25. Other speakers will be from the Journalism school.

Chilton R. Bush, in charge of arrangements, expects between 400 and 500 high school students to attend the two day meeting.

In former years the convention was national in scope; students coming here from all over the middle-west; but this year following last year's custom the convention is limited to students who are staff members of Wisconsin high school publications.

The convention dance will be discontinued this year.

Pythia Tryouts in Lathrop Hall Tuesday

Tryouts for the Pythia Literary Society will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. in the W. S. G. A. reading room, Lathrop hall. Candidates who are selected from these first tryouts before the committee will appear for second tryouts before the entire club on Friday. All university women except first semester freshmen are invited to try out in dramatics, music, art, writing or dancing. Members of the committee handling the tryouts are: Ruth Buckley '28, Elizabeth Murphy '28, Marcella Eierman '28, Wilma Horrel '28, Evelyn Olson '28, and Marion Napier '28.

'Twas 38 Years Ago The Badgers Last Beat Michigan - This Year?

"Beat Michigan! Smash the invading Wolverines! We've beaten them before—and we'll do it again!" shrieked Welsey Bliffert '29, varsity cheerleader, in one of his moments of frenzied, semi-pugnacious enthusiasm.

Bliffert has picked a special committee of "pep producers" to meet the onrush of the over-supply of imported Michigan ballyhoo. Bill Mommson '29; Ted Thelander '29; Gen Flores '29; Bill Ramsey '30, and Al Peterson '29, have been chosen to instill the traditional Wisconsin fighting spirit into every Badger.

The cynic points back to the last local victory—1889! What of it? Here on the home field, with a team aching to be let loose, with students and faculty inwardly cheering the squad to win—success is not beyond grasp.

The senior cheerleader has planned a series of psychological attacks which will debilitate the Wolverine confidence and strengthen the hopes and prayers of those backing the Badgers.

"Beat Michigan!" he pleads, and the echo is already beginning to reverberate—let it simmer all week—to end in a thunder next Saturday!

"Lit" Campaign for Subscriptions Will Open Today

New Policy of Editor Widens Scope of Publication; New Features

Consistent with the new policy of the Wisconsin Literary Magazine, by which publication is being made one of greater interest to the entire student body, a subscription campaign among fraternities, sororities and other groups opens this morning.

Veth Evans '28 and Ed Droppers '28, are in charge of the sorority and fraternity drives. Miss Evans, a member of the literary staff of the magazine has consented to take charge of one part of the campaign as a result of her belief in the popularity of the new policy which is being instituted this year.

William Paff '28, editor of the publication is widening the appeal of the magazine greatly, and the first issue, which will make its appearance during the latter part of this month, will make its appearance during the latter part of this month, will contain articles of a much broader scope than is usual in literary magazines.

As examples of the successful working of this new plan, under which humor and satire will play a regular part in the contents, John Powell has written a humorous story entitled "A Greek Tragedy" for the first issue. Among other contributors are Phil La Follette who will discuss political matters. A half dozen contributors whose work has been reprinted in other magazines throughout the country in the past will appear in the first number. These include Al Gottlieb, Jim Chichester, "Stew" Palmer and Kwei Chen. Poetry by Juliana Cotton and Heen Howe also included.

Art work will be largely by Schomer Slichtner '31, a student of the New York Art Students league and the Chicago Art Institute. An etching by Chichester and drawings by others will also be included.

Phi Eta Sigmas to Initiate Eight on October 20

Six sophomores and two second semester freshmen will be initiated into Phi Eta Sigma, national honorary scholastic fraternity for freshmen, at a banquet at the Loraine hotel Thursday night, October 20, it was announced from Dean Scott H. Goodnight's office Monday.

A grade point average of at least 2.5 is necessary for students to qualify for the organization. Freshmen whose work for the first semester meets that standard, as well as those whose second semester grades are high enough to give them a 2.5 average for the year are eligible for initiation.

Jack Hartman and William Kuehlthau are the freshmen who will be initiated next week. They both entered school last February and will be taken into the organization on the basis of grades made last semester. The six sophomores whose grade point average for the entire year qualifies them for the honor are Roy Hertz, Zigmund Lebensohn, John Follows, Carlton Lohr, Addison Mueller, and Allen Tenny.

Hartman, whose home is New York City, made 15 credits and 38 grade points last semester. Kuehlthau made 17 credits and 43 grade points. He lives in Superior.

Hertz' record for one regular semester and two summer sessions was 43 credits and 109 grade points. Lebensohn made 28 credits and 72 grade points. Follows 30 credits and 75 grade points, Lohr 32 credits and 81 grade points, Mueller 30 credits and 75 grade points, and Tenny 30 credits and 77 grade points. Hertz lives in Cleveland, Ohio; Lebensohn in Kenosha; Follows in Milwaukee; Lohr in Hartford; Mueller in Milwaukee; and Tenny in Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

The local chapter was founded only last spring when 56 freshmen men were initiated for their high scholarship of the first semester, and seven others, were made honorary members. Dean Goodnight is also a member of Phi Eta Sigma, having been initiated last year by the chapter at the university of Illinois.

Teaching Method Bad—Thompson

Canadian Educator Finds Fault With System Used at Present

Speaking on "Some Biological Aspects of Education", Doctor J. Arthur Thomson, told the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec, Canada, at a session of their sixty-third annual convention, that thousands of young people are leaving school and leaving college without any grip of the history of their race, without any knowledge of the world in which they are going to live, and without even an elementary realization of the laws of health and happiness.

In his address, Doctor Thomson pointed out flaws in the present educational system requiring considerable remedy. He prefaced his remarks by pointing purely as a man who had no knowledge of Canadian methods of education and he was speaking purely as a man who had been teaching for 40 years and who was surveying education from his field. "Our son asks us for 'bread,' and at great cost to ourselves we coerce him into accepting a non-nutritive stone—which varies in texture in different schools from Wars of the Roses history to counties of Ireland geography. Our son asks us for a 'fish' (which must indicate Nature Study) chemistry. He asks us for an egg and we press upon his attention the value of a serpent, like premature (history, for instance) and we advise him to try his teeth on a scorpion (such as grammar)," Dr. Thomson declared.

Badgers Unhurt in Kansas Clash; Michigan Next

Weak Points Stressed in Last Night's Workout; Signal Drill Held

Wisconsin's luck this season, as far as maintaining a casualty list after its football games, held true again last week, and the Badger team returned to Madison, with their squad intact, and ready for a week of hard and fast drill for the coming Michigan game.

With everything to gain should they triumph over the coming Wolverine team, the squad, last night, was sent through a workout in which the weak points displayed in the Kansas game were emphasized.

Punting, which has been thus far, a weakness in the Badger defense, was strengthened last night, when Capt. Crofoot and Rebholtz were sent thru a long period of practice, and given and then as a practice for defense against it, was worked upon for an hour and the results were more than satisfactory.

The pass defense used in the Kansas game proved more than satisfactory and the much vaunted and expected K. U. pass offense, was completely disrupted.

In its passing game, the Wisconsin team has in the diminutive pair, Crofoot and Rose, a combination that may prove to be as famous as the Workman-to-Stinchcomb offense, that was used to such great advantage by Ohio in their championship season of 1920.

A long signal drill, and a short signal talk by Coach Thistlethwaite ended the drill for the evening, but the entire squad was given an indication of the intensive work that would have to be undergone in the coming week.

No definite first team was run last night, but the various men were shifted from time to time and given a chance to practice all of the team's plays.

Using so many men in the Kansas game, and all of whom showed up well, the Badger mentor finds himself with enough material on hand to fill every position with several men.

A New Attitude

THE WISCONSIN EDITION of a football eleven has yet to lose a game, a fact to duly rejoice about, but it has also to meet its first team of conference caliber.

We do not know whether we have a championship team this year; neither do we know if the team is one that will fizzle before its Big Ten opponents and dismally fail to win games. But what we do know is that the students of the University of Wisconsin seem to have an alert and intelligent attitude about the team this year.

They do not boast that the Badger eleven will trim Michigan this Saturday and knock Minnesota for a row of goal-posts the Saturday after that, but they do boast that the team is always fighting hard, that it plays intelligent football, and that with the breaks of the game, it will give every Big Ten opponent a fight before it either wins or loses.

Such is the attitude we have always wanted to see at Wisconsin. When we came here as a freshman, we heard everyone bragging about the team. They boasted that the Badgers were all of all-American calibre, that not a team in the Big Ten could come within two touchdowns of the Cardinal eleven, et cetera, et cetera. You can imagine our disgust when the team failed to win a single conference game.

Since that year, the new attitude has been in a period of crystallization. Last year we saw it coming. This year we think it is here.

We think it will be interesting to notice if this new attitude of the "laymen" inserts itself into the spirit of the team. If it does, we predict a season that, win or lose, will be successful.

Campus Politics

WITH FALL ELECTIONS in the offing, now is the time for students and campus leaders to think about avoiding some of the difficulties which have frequently been encountered in the past. There has always been a great deal of political maneuvering which was regarded as extremely important by those doing it, and not worth a whoop by the larger part of the student body. Consider the small number of votes cast at campus elections if you would estimate student interest.

But the fault is not wholly with the voters. They have been lead to believe that elections are mere gestures carrying out the aims of a group of self-appointed politicians. After each vote-fest these has been criticism of the political meetings, maneuverings, and bargainings which have occurred. There has been unlimited and fully justifiable criticism of the number of offices that have gone by default. Now is the time to avoid these criticisms. Now is the time when candidates can be secured who are really capable of filling the offices to which they aspire.

Let the campus politicians take heed, then. Perhaps if they will lay aside their bickerings and endeavor to place capable candidates in the field, if they will try to make the elections contests at the polls instead of at the caucuses, the student body will respond with a better showing of genuine interest.

There have lately been flickerings of real awakened student government at Wisconsin. Students will act wisely if they will help the awakening by taking an active part in making the coming elections a success.

Why "Religious" Convo?

EVERY YEAR well known speakers are brought to the campus to deliver the addresses at the so called religious convocations. Last year there was some complaint that these convocations did not adhere to the non-sectarianism which is widely advertised in their connection. This fall we read that the same non-sectarian features of previous years will be retained. Naturally, the more freedom from prejudiced pettiness that can be achieved the better. But are these gatherings really religious convocations?

There is not the space here to enter into a long discussion as to the meaning of religion. Nor would it necessarily be wise to try to define religion in these columns. It is evident that it depends entirely upon the viewpoint, the environment, the inheritance of the individual. In spite of the modernity we talk so much about, and the sophistication it is so common to affect, there is little evidence that the world has arrived at that stage where religion can be considered as a broad, general, abstract thing, something nice for presidents and divines to talk about to students.

But you may point out that the speakers who are brought here do address their audiences in such a manner as to avoid sectarianism. Do they not then succeed in putting over religion as a general sort of thing? The obvious response to this question is a repetition of the query: Are these gatherings really religious in their nature?

Another question: How is it possible to attain the principles of non-sectarianism which have been heralded as highly desirable when sectarian men of religion are brought here as speakers? Pres. Glenn Frank is in a position to make very effective addresses on these occasions; but are such addresses really religious? And is it desirable that they be so? We do not see why. If there is a religious need to be filled among students, there are enough churches in Madison to accommodate those interested. Just what is the point of assembling a group of people in Music hall, having them sing a few hymns, listen to a prayer, and then hear an address which is delivered by a sectarian man who must carefully avoid giving evidence of the principles which he ordinarily expounds as his religious beliefs?

That people do want to hear good speakers is evident from the fact that they do go to Music hall and take part in the "services." But would they not go to Music hall to hear good speakers even if the hymn singing and the name "religious convocation" were abolished? Truly, the name is a misnomer from practically any point of view. So why not come down to earth about it? The convocation committee for next year, when it is organized, will do well to plan a series of addresses by prominent men, not necessarily religious men, and offer them to the campus for their own sake without tying them up with a false idea which has, in the past, only resulted in difficulties.

BUDGET YOUR TIME

(From The Daily Iowan)

THE AVERAGE university student spend a minimum of two hours a day doing absolutely nothing. This period of loafing does not occur at one stretch, but is divided into five, ten, and fifteen minute intervals throughout the day.

With 5,000 students wasting 10,000 hours each day, something is wrong. Innumerable students complain of the amount of work that is required of them, how little time they have for anything else besides study, and how swamped they are with work and outside activities.

As a matter of fact these students have more time during the day than they know how to use profitably. The remedy for the evil, for such it must be considered, can come only when the student plans for himself a strict budget and follows it exactly.

Eating and dressing do not take more than four hours time of the most leisurely person. An average number of classes for a day is about five. Few students spend more than three hours daily upon actual concentrated study outside of classes. That leaves four hours for the student to fill and it is the activities during these hours which will show the real caliber.

Here are the alternatives for spending the time: sleeping, reading, writing, working, athletics, social activities, research work, day dreaming, or loafing. Consider, then choose.

CA NSUCH THINGS BE?

We're back again and we're just as disgusted about it as you are. The person who reads the Rockets will know that this is the third successive day we have had our name in this quarter-page. But Saturday was contrib's day and on Sunday we had a mixup; Little Boy Blue handed in a column and somebody took it out of our box and we thought he didn't have one so we wrote one and he had so both of them came out and now we're back again on our regular day.

University Religious Convo starts sometime, or has it started? Anyhow, inasmuch as the woman who went last year now has a brother in school, a larger crowd than ever is expected.

Besides, the hen's feat is not so wonderful. Suppose a rooster had done it?

See U. W. Campus as Style Center

Wisconsin is once more given recognition as the style center of the mid-west by the visit today of Jack F. Rissman, of the Strafford Clothing organization. Rissman is in town to collect style information from Joe Ripp, manager of the Co-op clothing department, and Don Barr '28. Barr and Ripp have been gathering data in preparation for Rissman's visit.

Rissman is the originator of the plan whereby college men are given a direct voice in the designing of their clothes. This is a current tendency in the clothing trade in order to get away from so called collegiate fashions as determined by persons out of touch with college campuses. As a pioneer in this field, Rissman is particularly interested in the information to be gathered at Wisconsin.

One of the features of the current movement in college men's clothing designing is the holding of annual conventions of a style board. Rissman today is making arrangements for the holding of the next national meeting, in December, in Madison. Princeton, Cornell, Yale, California, Stanford, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, and others will be represented.

In collaboration with Ripp and Barr of the Co-op, Rissman is particularly interested in learning the choice of Wisconsin men with reference to styles to be in vogue next spring.

MICHIGAN WILL TRY WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Established with the aim of giving a resume of the week's news to the parents of Michigan students, The Michigan Weekly, produced under the direction of the Michigan Daily, will soon make its appearance at the University of Michigan.

In its initial form, the weekly will consist of four pages of four columns each, and will carry only matter reprinted from the week's issues of The Michigan Daily. No advertising will be accepted, since the fact that the type used by the daily can also be used for the weekly, enables the paper to be supported through its subscription price of $1.25 per year.

This new service is undertaken because of the belief that parents of Michigan students are vitally interested in Michigan, and that neither the letters of their sons and daughters, nor the accounts of events at the university are sufficient to give the parents accurate and complete accounts of university life.
