INDUSTRY SHOULD BE DEMOCRATIZED STATES RUSSELL

Noted Philosopher Deplores Absence of Happiness in Present Day Life

That we should use the whole mechanism of our industrial organization to make our lives fuller and happier rather than to make us identical units for national competition was the central thought developed by Bertrand Russell, one of the greatest philosophers of the present day, in his lecture in Muste hall last night.

"I should like to see industry democratized," said Mr. Russell, "in order to preserve life and our civilization, in order to give leisure for art and literature, the greatest elements of a civilization. The humanistic force, rather than the mechanistic should control our society."

Competition of Nations

We have reached the stage of competition in the progress of industrialism, according to Mr. Russell, a competition, not of individuals, but of nations. The luxury in which we now indulge is war.

"Every new labor saving device turns more of our civilization into the activities of war and unless these devices are stopped we shall eventually wipe each other out," he said.

Progress, which seems to be the modern ideal, has come to mean rapid change—toward what it does not matter. Mr. Russell enumerated the progressions of the last hundred years as mere labor-saving devices, more war, an increase in the size of states, and an increase in the extent to which people read newspapers.

Must Extend Democracy

"There has been no progress in art and letters nor in the joy of life," said Mr. Russell. "The average man is not as happy now as he was in the eighteenth century. We have grown incapable of enjoying life by the way."

To extend democracy from the political sphere, where it exists in form at least, to the industrial life of the age, is the only logical solution Mr. Russell finds for the situation.

"It is necessary to rid ourselves of competition and oligarchy and then we may use our machines for happiness and the development of the arts," Mr. Russell said.

ISSUE ELECTIONS PUBLICITY RULES

Matter For Publication Must Go Through Committee's Hands

All matter for publication regarding announcements for candidacy for offices in the spring election May 9 must go through the hands of the elections committee of the senate. Wilber Wittenberg '24, chairman of the committee, said last night. Every statement of qualifications must bear the O. K. of a member of the elections committee before it will be accepted by The Cardinal.

Such matter will be published only once in The Cardinal and it must run before the issue of Thursday, May 1. Candidates will be required to comply with the new regulations to the letter, Wittenberg stated. A list of the elections workers will be published before the date of balloting in order to allow protests.

No petitions will be accepted after 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. The petitions, with 25 names attached, may be filed at the office of the dean of men. The fee receipt, eligibility slips, and qualifications must be presented to some member of the senate elections committee as soon after filing as possible. The statements of qualifications will be published in the order in which they are received.

Turn 'Em Red While You Wait For $10; Peroxide Does It

Oh, when will Bill Bower's red hair turn to jet black? For ten measly dollars Bill became a peroxide blonde last week, and now maybe he'd be willing to give the money back for a return to the old arrangement.

It was on William J. Bower's spring vacation. A family chauffeur bet the young collegian a decimal-note that he couldn't change the color of hair without the aid of a drug store dye. You can't fool a college man, especially where there's money involved; and Bill knew what peroxide and water will do.

Now they're call him "Red" Bower. Yes, he's a frosh.

SCHAFFER SPEAKS AT Y. M. TONIGHT

Ad Club Brings Marshall Field Advertising Manager For Banquet

Students desiring positions in advertising will be interested in the lecture by Ray G. Schaffer, advertising manager of Marshall Field and company, at a dinner tonight at 6 o'clock in the fellowship room of the Y. M. C. A.

"The interest lies in the fact that advertising is the largest immediate opportunity for the student and includes the retail store field, the advertising department of the manufacturer, and the advertising agency," said E. H. Gardner, professor of business administration. "The retail store field includes positions on the staff of a newspaper as a solicitor and writer of ads for the stores," he continued.

Mr. Schaffer represents the largest retail store and the largest wholesale dry goods store in the world, and is in a position to interpret the methods which brought Marshall Field and company into their prominent position, all of which will be brought out in his lecture, "Retail Advertising Policies."

The speaker will address Professor Gardner's classes Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in 402 Sterling hall. Mr. Schaffer is here under the auspices of the Advertising club who have sent invitations out to the Madison Association of Commerce, to the Madison Advertising club, and to business men who are interested.

Paul K. Robertson '24, will preside at the dinner. People wishing to attend are asked to call the Y. M. C. A.

Freshmen girls who have charge of the news and corridor stories have contributed a considerable proportion of the material. Ida Mae Johnson, Edith Waechelburg, Louise Zimmerman, Carol Biba and Josephine Dietrich are in charge of this work.

La Crosse normal alumni will hold a stag banquet at 7 o'clock tonight at Wittwer's cafe, 729 University avenue. All former La Crosse normal school men are urged to attend.

Frosh Wield A Wicked Paint Brush; Seniors Are Dismayed

The class of '27 scored yesterday. At least the freshmen thought so when some of their members facetiously altered the "Watch '24" sign in front of the Union building in such a manner that the younger class receives the benefit of the publicity.

A bucket of green paint was used in converting the flaring red "4" into a more modest and unassuming "7". The effect of the new display was entirely without precedent.

"It is encouraging to know that the freshmen have followed the example of the seniors and are determined to support the Memorial union," said John Dawson '24 in commenting upon the revised aspect of the billboard. "Their assistance will be greatly appreciated."

That there soon will be more bill boards from which the freshmen painters may broadcast their art was the opinion of Vernon Beardsley '24, a member of the publicity committee of the senior class. Walter Frautschi '24, president of the class, would like the painters to report to the Memorial union promotion committee to be assigned to further duties.

Faded Green Beats Yellow For Spirit on the W. K. Hill

Yellow slickers and green caps, representing the weather-man and the "Spirit of '27", respectively, engaged in a lively contest yesterday in their efforts to gain the monopoly of public attention.

Late reports from the hill and from Langdon street where the struggle was fiercest show the first count to be a tie between the contending forces.

The yellow slickers had the advantage of being fresher than the faded green caps who, in some cases had had their members mercilessly amputated and who were for the most part worn out before they began their spring season. Nevertheless they exceeded the weather-man's forces in number and so managed to hold their opponents to a tie-score.

JOURNALISM HOUSE WILL BE CORANTO

File Papers With First Women's Professional in the Country

Papers were filed by the Journalism house recently to incorporate under the name Coranto, it was announced yesterday. This organization is the first women's professional journalism fraternity in the country.

The name Coranto comes from the title of the first English newspaper published in Holland in the seventeenth century. The fraternity consists of women active in some journalistic work, or enrolled in the course in journalism.

The Journalism house was organized in 1920 by Irabel Bugbee '21, with the help of Prof. W. G. Bleyer, director of the course in Journalism, and occupied the house at 430 N. Francis street until this year. The chapter house is now at 434 Sterling place.

The active members of Coranto are Lois Cole '24, Bertha Elbel '24, Dorothy Lawton '24, Florence Victor '25, Kathryn Shattuck '25, Lucile Kirk '25, Esther Shreve '26, Dorris Berning '24, Ruth Carlberg '27, Dorothy Johnson '26, Annette Hirschfield '26, and Ruth Krause '26.

The honorary members are Professor W. G. Bleyer, G. M. Hyde, and E. M. Johnson, of the journalism department, and W. J. Fronk.

PLANS READY FOR CHEMISTRY LAB

Institute to Be Organized Under National Research Council

With plans and sketches drawn up and the first steps taken toward the financing of the proposed National Institute of Colloid Chemistry here, the university promises to become the center of a new and important science which has grown to maturity within the last 20 years, according to Prof. J. H. Matthews of the chemistry department.

Professor Matthews is at present in the East, visiting Washington and New York to interest wealthy persons in financing the institute which will be operated on a basis similar to the Forest Products laboratory. He is expected to return Saturday.

The institute will be organized under the auspices of the National Research council and will cooperate with the university chemistry department. It is proposed to raise $1,000,000 to found it. According to the sketches of the proposed institute made by Arthur Peabody, state architect, the building will bear a general resemblance to those erected on the campus.

The present plans are that the university provide a suitable site for the institute near the chemistry building; furnish service in the way of heat, light, power, janitors, a stenographer, mechanic, and glass blowing service; raise a fund of $10,000 a year for new apparatus and supplies; exempt fellows connected with the institute from tuition and laboratory fees; and give credit for the work of fellows toward higher degrees in the graduate school.

Control of the institute will be vested in a board of trustees consisting of seven members. Two of these will be appointed by the president of the university and one each by the National Research council, the American Chemical society, the Federation of Societies for Experimental Biology and Medicine, the American Physical society, and one by the donors.

MORE PROM PROGRAMS ARE AVAILABLE TODAY

Prof. Leland A. Coon, of the School of Music, will be at the second piano.

FLORENCE SIMS' AWARD WINNERS NAMED AT DINNER

Lescohier, Goodnight Express Faith in Success of Summer Experiment

Announcement of the eight winners of the Florence Sims' scholarships was made at the annual spring student-industrial banquet held last night at the City Y. W. C. A. The girls who have been chosen to attend the summer sessions are: Marie Hlasney, Lois Hankerson, Inga Hagene, Emma Bolstad, Inga Sveum, Gunhilde Kohl, Frieda Marty and Matilde Steinhauer. They will live at Barnard hall.

In announcing the winners, Prof. D. D. Lescohier explained that his committee tried to select those who had taken the most advantage of their opportunities, who had an overwhelming desire to develop, and who would be earnest students.

Train Native Powers

"We expect no miracles to be worked by this course at the university," said Professor Lescohier. "It is enough if you girls train your native powers and broaden your outlook on life. You will return to industry with a stronger desire to serve as interpreters and counselors to those who have not had your opportunity."

Dean Goodnight, who has been influential in arranging for the entrance of the industrial group, said "I have not the slightest fear in regard to the success of this experiment. The type of girl selected is one who has developed and shown earnestness—the type that is bound to make a good student. The ones that fail in this capacity are those to whom "college-bred" means a four-year loaf."

Lescohier Heads Committee

The committee who made the selection was composed of Prof. D. D. Lescohier of the economics department, Miss Mary Anderson, secretary of the university Y. W. C. A., Miss Mary Simpson, industrial secretary, Miss Jane Sherrill, secretary of the City Y. W. C. A., Miss Nell Martinson, Madison representative to the Bryn Mawr summer session and Miss Anne Ligon '25.

Miss Alice Corl '25, who has had charge of the student-friendship work this year was in charge of the meeting, and announced the next year's chairman who will be Miss Isadore Clissold '25.

PAN-HELL RULES STRICT THIS YEAR

Rushing Regulations For Coming Year Outlined at Meeting Monday

Strict rules concerning the six September rushing parties were outlined at the meeting of the Pan Hellenic association on Monday.

According to Ernestine Blatz '25, chairman of rushing rules, the first function, for which engraved invitations may be sent not earlier than June 25, will be a tea on Saturday, September 20. Two informal parties may be given on Monday, September 22, at which flowers may be used on the table but for which place cards must be plain.

No expenses whatsoever will be allowed on Tuesday for an informal party. Rushees will pay for all dinners and luncheons which they attend. The last two functions on Thursday and Friday are formal and the sororities are permitted to engage orchestras which will not exceed $30 in price for Thursday night or $50 for Friday night. The total amount allotted to any one sorority for decorations to be used only on Thursday or Friday night is $25.

Rules concerning split dates, the hours during which rushees may be entertained, and the nature of invitations, as well as the time and means of their delivery, were also decided upon during the final discussion.

CRITICS PRAISE 'TWINKLE TWINKLE'

Newspapers make Enthusiastic Comments on 26th Annual Production

Reviews coming to Madison from the newspapers in the cities where the Haresfoot club presented "Twinkle Twinkle" on its spring tour contain nothing but praise for the club's 26th annual production. Some of the comments about the show are:

Milwaukee Sentinel—"Such gorgeousness as was presented in the two acts of this fantasy fairly astonished the onlookers, for, accustomed as we are to the extravagances of Mr. Ziegfield and the Shuberts we scarcely expected to see them emulated by the boys from Madison. The chorus twirled and skipped with a precision that strongly recalled the Tiller girls of the Follies. That such a production could be conceived and executed by a company of young men whose experience at the most covers three years indicates the adaptability and power of the American youth."

Indianapolis News—"It is a regular musical comedy and was by far the best college show the reviewer ever saw.The score was unusually tuneful. There was an amusing book and the lyrics were clever. The principals were more than acceptable and the chorus danced its head off. One has seen several road company casts this year which in no way compared with these college boys."

Peoria Star—"The theater never housed so enthusiastic an audience and its stage was never peopled by a finer company. Roll into one Black Crook in its palmiest days, Pinafore, George M. Cohan's best productions, add the pep, good looks and fine voices and genius of these boys of the Badger state, environ them in gorgeous scenic effects and costume them lavishly and you have the Haresfoot club. The jazz orchestra playing between the first and second acts was such a hit that the audience insisted on more and more until it fairly stopped the show.It is the best show of the winter."

Kenosha News—"The costumes and settings were almost beyond imagination.No one chorus number in particular could be distinguished for its attractiveness because they followed each other in a whirl of beauty and striking effects in profusion.Porter F. Butts as Leonis showed up well in his feminine role. Every grace of body, speech and movement was his."

Rockford Republic—"Byron Rivers made the most bewitching bit of femininity seen here since Julian Eltinge played the varieties. He danced with the grace of a Dolly sister, sang very agreeably and acted like a Follies' soubrette. "Twinkle Twinkle" tuneful melodies will long be remembered along with Byron Rivers' beauty and gorgeous raiment."

Rockford Star—"Settings and costumes are more elaborate this year than ever before and attractive enough to be a credit to any Broadway show."

Appleton Post-Crescent—"When the curtain went up on the first act, this city beheld one of the most artistic stage settings ever brought to Appleton."

Box office sale for all the Madison performances opened at 10 o'clock yesterday. Rumors that all seats had been sold were declared false by the Parkway management. Good seats may still be obtained for all the performances, club officials said.

STREET CARS GET BIG CITY TRAFFIC

More and more people who own automobiles are using them mainly for pleasure riding and are making use of street cars for business trips, according to Dudley Montgomery, vice president of the Madison Railways Co., in a report given Friday afternoon at the electric railways sectional meeting of the annual convention of the Wisconsin Utilities' association at Milwaukee.

The city board of health will be reorganized at a meeting Tuesday in the offices at the Washington building. Present members are Miss Catherine Corscot, Dr. Harry E. Purcell, Leo T. Crowley, Ald. W. L. Woodward, and Herbert C. Schenk. Miss Corscot probably will remain as president. A new secretary must be elected to succeed Ald. R. F. Elver.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB BUSY ON REVUE PLANS

Rehearsals are being held daily for the International Revue to be given Friday evening in the Concert room of Lathrop. The revue is being given by members of the International club and will include twelve acts showing scenes and customs of foreign countries. These reports include the number of excellents, goods, fairs, poors, conditions, or failures received by each girl in the house for the first semester of the present school year.

In the case of the houses with the highest and with the lowest scholastic average a report will be made as to what conditions in the house may have been the cause.

Athenae's program consisted of a talk on "Principles of Debating" by Otto E. Messner and a debate on the proposition: "Resolved, that laws made unconstitutional by the supreme court be constitutional if repassed by a two-thirds of congress." The decision was given the negative which was upheld by Lester Daugs '27, and John Knapp '27.

An informal discussion on the Japanese situation was the feature of Philomatheas' program. Because of the present attitude toward forensics, the constitution which has been in effect since the organization of the society was revised.

ATHLETICS IN THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

NEW SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED FOR INTERFRAT GAMES

Greek Baseball Teams Will Go Into Action This Week, Crane

The old schedule for the interfraternity baseball league has been discarded on account of the exams held last week and the games scheduled for Easter also had to be called off. Only one game of the old schedule has been played; the Betas won from Farm House last Friday, 9 to 4.

The new schedule goes into effect tomorrow when teams from the first two divisions cross bats. The fraternities have been divided into eight divisions with six teams in each section. Each division will play a round robin tournament among its own teams. For the semi-finals the first two teams from each section will be chosen. The eight winning teams from the semi-finals will then compete in the final round of the tournament.

All teams who have not paid their entry fee to "Ez" Crane '24, chairman of the tournament, are urged to do so at once or they will have to forfeit all games until the fee is paid.

The committee in charge is to meet this week to select the trophies for the winning teams. Geo. Levis, sport devotee, will offer a new traveling trophy for the winning team, and 5th places and one for a consolation cup.

The new schedule for the interfraternity baseball league will probably permit the teams to complete the final round sometime the latter part of May. This will get the games out of the way in time for the final examinations. The new schedule is as follows:

Capt. Isabel Following Crew on Mendota

Captain Isabel has been in charge of the University life-saving station for 14 years. As soon as the lake breaks in the springtime, he is a great aid to "Dad" Vail, varsity crew coach. He is the pilot for "Dad" when he is following his crews around the lake and giving them direction. His boats, the "Isabel" and the "Cardinal," are used to go out on the lake at any time to help anybody who happens to be in distress. He is back again this year and has been piloting "Dad" back and forth on Mendota for the past week.

BUILD CONCRETE BASEBALL STANDS

Six New Diamonds Will Be Placed About Randall Stadium

Athletic officials at the university are now making plans for building concrete baseball grandstands for the fans who attend the varsity diamond games. Arrangements are also being made to have at least six diamonds on the land outside of the Camp Randall football stadium.

In a recent conversation, T. E. Jones, director of athletics, revealed these facts. He said that the regular diamond will be moved as near as possible to University avenue and Warren street.

This will put the home plate of the diamond on which conference games are played back near the tennis courts and quite near the railroad tracks in the rear of the Forest Products laboratory.

The nightly practices are now being held on the ground back of the stadium, which has been leveled off. The concrete stands will probably not be completed for several years, but they are part of the extensive program of expansion which is now under way. These stands will be a great advantage, as the present facilities for the seating of the crowds at the games is entirely inadequate.

The first issue of the new Big Ten weekly came today. It predicts that Ohio has the best baseball team in the Big Ten, judging from preliminary dope at least. Statistics compiled by the paper show that although Wisconsin tied for first, they placed seventh in number of baskets scored.

A. M. Varsity Field. Delta Chi vs S. A. E. 9:00 A. M. Frosh Field. Alpha Gamma Rho vs Kappa Psi 9:00 A. M. Frosh Field.

Interesting Facts Remain About Late Basketball Race

Now that the storms of the conference basketball season have blown over, several facts still remain which are very interesting to ponder over. Of all the teams in the race for honors, Wisconsin was the biggest surprise. Wisconsin tied with Chicago and Illinois for championship honors, but the Badgers only finished in seventh place in the number of baskets scored.

The Gophers led with 141, while Wisconsin had only 111. Chicago and Illinois, the other two champs, had 130 and 123 respectively. But when it comes to the number of goals which the opponents garnered, Wisconsin and Illinois top the list with 97. This shows that Wisconsin had a strong defense, but the offense and the drive were at times lacking.

This was the seventh championship for the Badgers, and most of the credit for this last one must go

Hitting the High Spots With Ken

Five crews were out on the lake this afternoon starting the second week of work this spring. There were three frosh crews, a second varsity crew, and the first string varsity. Dad Vail was looking 'em over and telling them the big points and little. It sure is a grand sight—makes up for the long weeks we put in waiting for our snow drift to drift away.

'S a strange thing but there are no left handed pitchers on the varsity pitching staff this year. But the team seems to be top notch, south paws or no south paws. A strong right arm has done the business for years.

But this man "Lefty" Edwards on the frosh team sure looks like a big-gun-to-be as a hurler. His throwing was responsible for a win over the varsity the other night, 1 to 0.

"Hooks" Czerwonky took second in the 200 meter breast stroke event at the annual national intercollegiate swimming championship at Annapolis. He gained three points for Wisconsin by his placing.

Joe Steinauer started his annual course in handling the canoe last week. When Joe makes announcement of this instruction it is a sure sign to dust off your canoe, think up a new name for it, and give her the annual launching into the fast-warming waters of Mendota.

A team of red-hot basket shooters is one thing, but a team of five good guards is another. It shows a fighting team with an eye on the other team is bound to get somewhere.

ENTRY LIST FOR CARNIVAL GROWS

Latest School to Enter Team is Oak Park of Illinois

That the entry list of the first annual University of Wisconsin interscholastic carnival to be held at Camp Randall on Saturday, May 3, will total more than 50 schools, was the information given out by officials of the carnival at the gymnasium yesterday afternoon.

Among the latest are Oak Park high school, Chicago, Ill., and South Division, Milwaukee, Wis. Oak Park ranks as one of Chicago's most athletic high schools, holding several championships in various branches of sports, while Arlie A. Schardt, former star Wisconsin track man who was a member of championship Badger relay teams, is coach of the tracksters at Milwaukee South Division.

With the addition of Oak Park to the schools from Chicago which have filed applications to participate in the relay carnival, the number totals four. Nicholas Senn, Hyde Park, and Austin have already accepted the invitation to compete at Camp Randall, while Rockford high school, Rockford, and Waukegan Township high school, Waukegan, are the other Illinois schools entered.

"Arrangements for the relay carnival are rapidly getting under way," declared Arthur W. Trost '24, general chairman, "and with the large number of entries it is hoped that Wisconsin students will take more interest in the affair and try to make it a big success."

Bronze shields will be awarded to each team which finishes first in the relay races, in addition to individual medals. The bronze shield will take the place of the loving cup trophies which have been given to winners in other interscholastic meets. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be given to the winners of the first three places in the 100-yard dash, high jump, shot put, high hurdles, broad jump, discus and javelin throw.

Former Badger Stars Accept Coaching Jobs

Two former Wisconsin men have been named to coaching positions lately. Harold F. Ofstie, three letter man at the University of Wisconsin, has been appointed assistant football coach and head basketball and track coach at Center college, and will take up his new duties on September 1. Ofstie has coached three years at Ripon college.

Al Buser of Madison, former Wisconsin football star, has accepted a position as athletic director and head football and track coach at Hamline university, St. Paul, Minn. Buser was athletic director at the University of Florida for three years.

CINDER PATH MEN TAKE FIRSTS AT OHIO AND DRAKE

Half-mile Relay Team Wins at Ohio, McAndrews First in Hundred

After winning first places in the one-mile relay race and 10-yard dash, and second place in the one-mile relay run, in the Ohio State relays at Columbus, Ohio, last Saturday, and finishing second in the four-mile relay race in the Kansas relays at Lawrence, Kas., Wisconsin's track athletes have started a week of intensive training in preparation for the Drake relay games at Des Moines, Iowa, on Saturday, April 26.

The half-mile relay team, composed of Herbert A. Flueck '25, Kenneth R. Kennedy '26, Bert M. Hilberts '25, and Harry McAndrews '25, took first place in this event at Columbus, by covering the distance in 1 minute 30 7-10 seconds, while the same team, with Gilbert J. Smith '26, running in place of McAndrews, won second place in the one-mile relay.

McAndrews won first in the 100-yard dash, when he broke the tape ahead of Higgins, Michigan; Otto, Michigan State Normal, and Donovan, Ohio State. His time for the event was 9 9-10 seconds.

In the Kansas relays, John L. Bergstresser '25, Clayton G. Cassidy '26, Earl E. Schneider '24, and Lloyd M. Valley '25, took second place in the four-mile relay run. The Oregon Aggies' team, which defeated the Badger runners, completed the distance in 18 minutes and 39 seconds.

Although the one-mile team ran well at Ohio State, there is still room for improvement; while one of the members of the four-mile relay team became ill before the race in the Kansas relay games.

Time trials will be held in all of the track events today and tomorrow, in order to determine which runners will compete at Des Moines, although it is possible that several Cardinal tracksters will enter the Penn relays at Philadelphia, Pa., on Saturday. Wisconsin will also be represented in several of the field events in the Drake games.

PHI BETA KAPPA ELECTS

The annual election for Phi Beta Kappa may serve to remind us once more that the citizens of Wisconsin did not create this university and do not maintain it for the purpose of affording an excuse for athletic contests or an opportunity for "outside activities."

The list of the elected is of general interest, as is any other attempt to pick the winners of a race. Contrary to what is perhaps a common opinion, the membership of the Society as a whole can be shown to include a percentage of successful men very much larger than its ratio to the total number of college and university graduates in the United States.

BEHIND THE TIMES

Very conspicuous for its absence is Wisconsin's golf course. Time was when it would have been the height of folly to think that a university should have a golf course. Yet now the larger schools have their own links, indeed, a great many of the smaller ones do.

THE DIFFERENCE

For many years Madison, a town of about 50,000 population, has had inadequate hotel accommodations. It is not that the quality has been poor; it is that the quantity has been far from sufficient. Conventions have met in other Wisconsin towns as a result, and the city of Madison has suffered. But the university has suffered as well. At Homecoming time, during the basketball tournament, in the spring when the interscholastic track meet is being held visitors have been poorly provided for as far as the city is concerned.

Now however, Madison is approaching a new era and the university with it. With the acquisition of two new hotels Madison should spring up, should be the center for conventions and meetings not only of the state but of the central states.

This bob-haired bandit they picked up in Florida isn't so much. The restaurants and ice cream parlors around our own campus are just full of them.

The passing of another Easter leaves a lot of students without a chance of going to church again until next Christmas.

Other Editors Say—

"DOC" MEANWELL

All over the basketball world they call him "Doc." He is the real miracle man of miracle men, the man who always comes through.

Dr. Walter E. Meanwell has been coaching college basketball for thirteen years, during which time his teams have been champions or tied for the championship ten times. Gil Dobie, Harry Gill, Tom Robinson, or no other coach in any branch of college sport has a finer record.

"Doc" Meanwell has coached ten Wisconsin teams since 1911 (he was at Missouri for three years, 1918-19-20) and he has never finished lower than in a tie for third place in the Big Ten. Including ties, he has won seven championships, finished second once and third twice.

As long as Meanwell is coaching basketball at Wisconsin, it seems absurd for any other school in the conference to seriously consider itself a rival of the Badgers over a period of years. Occasionally teams may tie Wisconsin, or even beat them in a championship race, but it is rare that it will be the same university two years in succession that can rival Wisconsin.

For rugged strength, uncanny defensive thoroughness and effective offensive drive that gathers momentum as the season progresses, Meanwell's teams in the general run of averages, outclass the output of any other single university in the country.

Any basketball team in the world gets beaten, particularly away from home, but when the final standing is tabulated at the end of the season, Wisconsin is always there—or thereabouts. It is getting to be so regular that the basketball fan who follows the game over a period of years accepts it as an axiom that Meanwell will win the championship.

It does not seem to be a question of material. Wisconsin teams look, in the average, on a physical par with the other conference teams. Often the men are slightly bigger, but that is because Meanwell invariably chooses the biggest men available to teach his system. Size, weight and rugged strength are of more importance to Meanwell than skill or previous experience.

The woods are full of basketball fans who can talk glibly about Wisconsin's "short pass game" or "five man defense" and believe they know all about Meanwell's peculiar style of play. But smart basketball coaches and scouts, who have studied it over a period of years admit that they are just beginning to understand it.

I had a hundred different girls, A hundred different styles; I liked each one, and loved each one For all her different wiles. I had a hundred different girls But oh, I never knew Until I lost them—everyone That I could be so blue.

Danseuse: "You have impressed me very much." Dancer: "How much?" Danseuse: "To the bone of my right foot. But there's only a bruise on the left one."

AMONG FRIENDS

"A fellow just told me I looked like you." "Where is he? I'd like to knock his block off." "I killed him."

"And where do you wish to sit, sir?" inquired the little usher as she walked down the aisle. "Down, mostly," replied the very tired old gentleman as he trudged heavily after her.

"He ought to be a good high jumper." "Why?" "Because he's always up in the air about something."

LONESOME

Bobs, bobs, bobs; All other girls have a bob. Some bobs are curly, Others are straight; Babe gets hers early, Grandma quite late; But wherever one looks, On the street or in books, There are bobs, bobs, bobs.

Bobs, bobs, bobs; Why can't I too, have by bob? My heart's all awfully, I can't sleep or eat. I'm only a girlie And must be discreet; But he's such a dear I must have him near; I want my Bob! Bob! Bob!

SPRING SONG

The little co-ed's heart beat fast As hurriedly the school year passed And thus she spoke in accents drab "Good bye, Marie,, if I don't grab A MAN."

Her head was bowed, her heart was sad Her look was queer, her make-up bad Then to Marie she turned and flung This shriek of anguish from her tongue, "A MAN."

"Forget it dearie," was Marie's reply Let not a tear drop stain your eye Forget your cares, you little vamp." But the co-ed's moan was low and damp: "A MAN."

What do you think of mud as a beautifier? Well, it hasn't done so much for the turtle.

She: "My goodness-----" He: "That's nothing to get excited about." - She: "What?" He: "Your goodness."

ADVISE THESIS REQUIREMENT CHANGE

Editor, The Cardinal:

Some time ago Mr. Louis Brachman expressed his worth while opinion on the subject of thesis. The question has to be taken one step further. The faculty ought to realize that the thesis requirement does the students, with few exceptions, less good and more harm.

If thesis is to lead students to constructive thinking, why make them a requirement of all upper group students? The very inclusiveness evades the purpose. The general procedure in writing a thesis is as follows. The senior summary notifies the student that on the basis of grade points a thesis is required.

This is the result in the vast majority of cases. How insulting it is to those who have given their problems thought long before and who have looked forward with delight to work up those particular problems, and how tickled is the variety of those who by a requirement have been put in the same class with the above.

Ground is Broken For Construction of New Hospital

Work on Madison's new contagious hospital on E. Washington ave., between First and Second streets, was started on Monday morning when Miss Catherine Corscot, president of the board of health, broke ground in the presence of board members and civilians.

The building will be completed this fall at a total cost of $175,000. A bond issue for $75,000 has already been issued and the remainder will be appropriated as needed to continue the building.

The main building will be three stories in height.

All fireproof construction will be used. Claude and Starck, architects, designed the building. J. H. Findorff and Son were awarded the general contract.

The shovel used in starting construction on the new building was presented to the board by Mr. Findorff and will be placed in the new building upon its completion, Miss Corscot said.

Members of the board of health gathered at the site at 8 o'clock Monday morning. Miss Corscot removed the first shovelful of dirt.

"May the good deeds performed within the finished walls be as lasting as the materials of the structure itself," she said. "I hope, I know, that this building will be of great value to the city."

The party was composed of Miss Corscot, president, Ald. R. F. Elver, present secretary of the board and representative of the common council, Ald. W. L. Woodward, newly elected council representative, H. C. Schenk, school board representative to the board of health, and J. H. Findorff, local contractor.

MEAD SPEAKS FOR HIS PROFESSION

Tells Kiwanians Engineering Needs Rules For Guidance; Overholser Talks

"The engineering profession, like any other profession, needs rules by which to guide the professional conduct of its members," said Prof. D. W. Mead before the Kiwanis club Monday noon on "The Place of Rules in a Profession."

"If every man would live according to the golden rule, no rules would be necessary," he said, "but as every man is human, it is found that some standard is necessary. In the early days of the profession it was a case of every man for himself, but now men in all lines of life are showing more regard for their fellowmen."

"The rules in force for engineers at present are based upon the fair treatment of every man for his client, employee, his professional brother, and the public in general," Prof. Mead concluded.

R. A. Overholser, Boy Scout executive, described the summer camp to the Kiwanis members. The ten acres of land which the Scout council purchased for the camp are so well situated that they have risen in value $600 an acre since the scouts took them over.

The Kiwanis club is sponsoring an inter-scholastic high school music contest to take place in Madison May 3 and 9.

ENGINEERS HONOR LATE JOHN MACK

Wisconsin Society Lauds State Chief in a New Memorial Statement

The Engineering Society of Wisconsin, through a committee consisting of Charles L. Corp, C. M. Larson and W. L. Millar, has prepared a statement as a memorial to J. G. D. Mack, late chief state engineer. The statement says:

"In 1915 the state legislature created the state department of engineering, and Mr. Mack was appointed the first state chief engineer. This position carried with it great authority and still greater responsibilities. He found the several departments in various states of efficiency and he welded together the existing engineering staffs of various state departments into an effective state engineering department whose scope and efficiency can hardly be equalled elsewhere in the country. The product he obtained was largely the result of his tact and good judgment, but more especially the result of his invariable demand that things should be done right.

"His most outstanding characteristic was, perhaps, his helpful and friendly spirit. Nothing was too much trouble and no responsibility too great if he could help. This applied to his professional as well as to his private activities. He is mourned as a friend as well as an adviser by his associates and by all who in any way came under his influence.

"In addition to being a charter member of this society, he was a charter member of the Technical club of Madison and of the Kiwanis club. He was also a member of the Masonic order, a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the University club and the honorary fraternities of Tau Beta Pi, Sigma Xi, and Phi Rho Sigma. He was instrumental in organizing the Engineering Society of Wisconsin and had an active part in its affairs.

He was president in 1913, a member of the board of trustees in 1920 and was continuously a member of one or more of the Society's standing committees.

"Mr. Mack was a ceaseless worker; he scarcely ever took a day off and had had no real vacation for many years. Nothing his friends could say would induce him to take a rest and it seems likely that his unremitting toil contributed to his untimely death.

"The Engineering society, as well as the university, the state and the community, has lost one who was always an active and untiring contributor to progress and to the well-being of all with whom he came in contact. His influence however, will continue to be an inspiration to all who had the privilege of knowing him and working with him."

Why work overtime?

The student who works overtime is often the one who, for some reason, is not truly efficient. The almost imperceptible slowing-down of his thinking necessitates spending more time and labor on his work.

It is a surprising fact that much of this inefficiency is due to a slight neglect in eating. Many people do not realize that all the healthful, nutritive and laxative properties of whole wheat bran can be secured in a really tempting breakfast dish.

Post's Bran Flakes, while retaining all the natural properties of bran, have a rich, appetizing flavor that is deliciously different. Crisp, crunchy, and nut-brown, Post's Bran Flakes appeal to the most critical.

To satisfy your taste and your reason, try Post's Bran Flakes for tomorrow's breakfast. You will be treating yourself to a pleasant surprise, and storing up hours, not for "overtime," but for recreation.

JACKIE AND TED MAKE SPLENDID TEAM OF ACTORS

"A DOG OF FLANDERS"
Presented at the Madison.
Featuring Jackie Coogan and Produced by the Metro.
Teddy.

By F. H. W.

Jackie Coogan, and Teddy the great Mack Sennett dog is a combination which could do nothing but please everyone....and the audience at the Madison proved it.

The story is taken from "A Dog of Flanders" by Ouida, and deals with the hardships which tiny Nello goes through with only the great dog to help him, everyone seems against him, he is unjustly accused of setting fire to a barn, he is hurried and thrown from place to place and by the people around him who tower over him.

Pathos runs throughout the entire picture, and Jackie is even more appealing than he was as Oliver Twist. There is something about his eyes and general wistfulness that gets a grip on the emotions of the audience that very few others can equal.

The photography is splendid and the settings well worked out. The subtitles would be much better however if they stayed a little closer to earth and did not wax so poetical and ultra-touching as "True unto Death", which is an example of this sort, and we credit the audience with some intuition without having to tell them things so point blank.

Jackie Coogan's acting which includes actions of his whole body as well as just as his facial expressions is of the best.

Old Timer Featured In Western Picture

"PIONEER TRAILS"
Presented at the Parkway.
Featuring Cullen Landis and Alice Calhoun.

Produced by Vitagraph.
By H. E. R.

The West in olden days forms the background for "Pioneer Trails" a melodrama with plenty of excitement. The cast entire is good, so that the few defects in the plot are overlooked.

Despite the fact that the advertisements gave us the idea that the play was built around a lot of Indians and covered wagons, we found that merely formed the prologue, and that the rest of the picture centered upon the later life of the sole survivor of a wagon train.

The survivor is played by Cullen Landis. Naturally, he fell in love with a young lady, and then trouble began as usual. The play "sparkles with humor" at times, and serious young couples will find quite a bit of pathos in it, also.

"THE GOLDFISH"
Presented at the Strand.
Featuring Constance Talmadge.
Produced by First National.
By H. J. B.

Slangy, yes. Uncouth in spots. But highly entertaining for all of that. Connie Talmadge is placed in a series of predicaments which best emphasize her best moods. And she capitalizes her chances to the utmost.

A big, fat slimy goldfish in a bowl of aqua is a simple exit from cunnubial ties. Nothing draggy about a plot in which Connie deserts hubby one, enjoys the luxuries of a Riverside drive apartment (even if it is furnished 'at a discount') with hubby two, is parted by death from hubby three, seriously considers a hubby number four, and culminates everything with a finale return to hubby one. Each chosen mate contributes his ratio of entertainment, with Krauss "who is SO in luff" coming in first perhaps. Even the accessory cast, from Sen Sen who must have mama cradle him to sleep, to the tutor Count are substantial atmospheric elements.

The "rough stuff" is funny, rather than unpleasant. The puns are poor when analyzed but seem to fit into the general scheme well enough to leave a comfortable reaction. It's human, mighty human, right straight along.

For the Shiek or Shiekstress who is out of line "The Goldfish" is a veritable supply station. In fact, it's quite the "cat's cuffs" to watch Connie "go up in the elevator, step by step, and husband by husband."

HOWARD JONES WINS TEXAS DRAMA PRIZE

Howard Mumford Jones, alumnus of the class of '14 won the prize offered by the Green Mask players of Houston Texas, in a best play contest recently. He has written various poems, plays, masques and pageants. His "Masques of Marsh and River" was produced at the La Crosse Normal six or eight years ago. His forte in college seems to be oratory, but he was also concerned with dramatics.

WASHINGTON—The federal government was granted permission today by the supreme court to file an original bill against Wisconsin to recover lands which it charges belonged to the Indians and had been improperly conveyed to Wisconsin under the Swamp act. The motion was made returnable Oct. 6.

"THE NIGHT HAWK"
Presented at the Majestic.
Featuring Harry Carey.
By TED

To tell the truth, we prefer the Kansas City Night Hawks to "The Night Hawk" now showing at the Majestic, but we'll say this for the author of the story; he sure had an imagination. The picture starts out to be a crook story laid in modern New York, and ends up by being a wild west thriller with a miniature battle as excitement.

We would rather have had the scene remain in New York, and leave the picture as a half good crook drama, than make a no good mixture by switching (as the subtitle announced) to "the open west, where man acts as on a mighty stage in the never ceasing drama of life."

The film has good photography, and good scenery, but is rather poorly edited. On the whole, it is not quite good enough to worry about missing, and not quite bad enough to jump on with both feet. It is merely indifferent.

Prize is Offered For Best Sketch By Student Writer

For the purpose of fostering keener interest in the writing of one-act plays, Milton Hockey and vaudeville theaters, are offering a prize of $250 in addition to royalty for the best playlet submitted to them.

John Pollock, playreader for the B. F. Keith and Orpheum Circuits, Edgar Alan Woolf, writer of vaudeville sketches, and Milton Hockey and Howard J. Green, vaudeville producers will be judges of the contest.

The winning contestant shall receive a prize of $250 which shall be payable simultaneously with the appearance of an advertisement announcing the winner in the July 10th issue of Variety, which is the representative trade paper of vaudeville.

Some of the conditions of the contest are as follows:
The author must be an undergraduate of an American university.

All manuscripts should be addressed to the intercollegiate prize playlet committee, in care of Hockey and Green, 110 West 47th street, New York City.

Manuscripts must be mailed not later than May 30, 1924. The manuscript should contain the name and permanent address of the sender, also the name of the college that the writer attends.

Novelty in subject matter and

Upstage Bits

By TORMENTOR

The Haresfoot boys have now had a chance to get rested up, and in between moments of hard study, rehearsal for the Madison performances and busy hours recovering the scenery so it will be fresh for Madison, they drop casual hints as to what went on during that 10 day trip.

It appears that the entire crew of men, 60 of Wisconsin's fairest, almost lost their lives just out of Peoria when the special train, going more than 100 miles an hour let a pin slip somewhere and a near smashup of tremendous proportions occurred.

Peoria was notable too because Chris Randall, assistant manager, was left behind in the town with no money and just his shirt sleeves. He journeyed all the way to Milwaukee that way, and transferred through Chicago with no coat and just the good graces of the conductor to help him.

The Peoria Rotary club almost broke up the show by presenting "leading lady" Porter Butts with two dozen roses and as many lilies, all in a big bouquet. Rather suspicious and premature for a Haresfoot man to be wearing a lily.

In Chicago at College Inn, after the show, Paul Faust did honors for the club by winning first prize for being the best dancer present and thereby winning a large silver loving cup.

Among those who had the best time at the Haresfoot shows were those men who were old Haresfoot men and recalled other days of Haresfoot work.

The boys tell of meeting Don Marvin, Jerry Koch, Tom Tredwell, Van Pinkerton, Reg Garstang, Vance Smith, George Hazen, Sunny Ray, Milt Blair and many others.

Milwaukee gave the boys a royal reception. At an after the theater entertainment Chuck Carpenter, Johnny McPherin, and Sunny Ray representation is an important factor in vaudeville production.

The manuscript must be written with a view of keeping the "running time" of the playlet within a limit that is practical for vaudeville's purposes, that is, fifteen to twenty-five minutes.

LAVERNE ACTORS DO BEST WORK IN "MRS. WIGGS"

By DOT

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" Alice Hagen Rice's comedy, is being presented this week by the Dorothy LaVern players at the Orpheum, and judging from the expressions of approval of Sunday night's audience, it is the best produced play of the season.

Everyone is familiar with the story of the play and has at some time in his life read the book, seen the movie, or the play. The lines throughout the production are clever and well-calculated to make everyone laugh.

The settings for the production are extremely effective, and the costuming and make-up are excellent. It is in the characterizations of each individual that the company this week excels. Each person does just what he should, and all are true to life in every instance. Mae Rey, generally rather ineffectual, has the somewhat difficult role of Mrs. Wiggs, and handles it with ease and sureness. Her characterization is excellent and she wins the audience with her cheerfulness and optimism.

Melvin Hesselberg, who is splendid wherever cast, is Billy Wiggs, and he gives a good interpretation of a rather awkward country fellow.

Dorothy LaVern seems just fitted for the part she takes—that of Miss Hazy, a flighty, self-conscious old maid. Miss LaVern is far better in a character part like this than when cast as an ingenue. Al Jackson has a small part but one which pleases everyone. Mrs. J. G. Mac Farlane does perhaps the best character work in her part of Mrs. Schultz, and her German is delightful. Jack Conley is good as Hiram Stubbins, especially when drunk. Lovey Mary is played by Madeline Eswood, who is sweet and unassuming.

The other minor characters in the play were all good.

sented Haresfoot alumni by reviewing their specialties.

Marie Schultz, wardrobe mistress, will be here Tuesday to press the 200 costumes to be ready for Madison showings.

Eddie Spranger, honorary member of the club, broke his record of having toured with every show since 1911, this year, because of an enforced engagement with the Milwaukee Passion Play.

As a last word there are still many good seats to be had at the Parkway box office for all performances this week end.

ELEANORE DUKE, ACTRESS, DEAD

Celebrated Italian Tragedienne Dies Following an Attack of Influenza

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Mme. Eleonora Duse, famous Italian tragedienne, died at 2:30 this morning at a hotel here where she had been confined for two weeks with an attack of influenza.

Mme. Duse had been making an American tour and after spending the winter on the Pacific coast, gave a performance late in March at Detroit. There she became indisposed and after her appearance here April 5, contracted influenza.

Duse was pre-eminently the world's greatest tragedienne, following the death of her friend and contemporary, Sarah Bernhardt, in whose theater in Paris she played by invitation.

The love affair between the actress and Gabrielle D'Annunzio came at the height of her career, after her union with the actor, Checchi, had been dissolved. It set all romantic Italy a-tremor.

The poet wrote a number of plays for Duse, in which she scored some success in Italy, but which were a failure on tour in the United States.

The tragedy queen herself was a laughter of the stage, born of strolling players. Her father was Alessandro Duse and her mother Angelica Capeletto. The child was born near Venice, Oct. 3, 1859.

Duse made her first appearance on the stage in 1863, as the child Cosetta in "Les Miserables," and from her earliest years worked with her parents, playing in a variety of pieces. Subsequently she joined other traveling companies, touring all over Italy and made her first substantial success in Turin in 1879, in "La Princesse de Bagdad"

Representatives From Midwest Will Hold Conference in St. Louis

Wisconsin's three delegates will leave today for the conference of mid-western S. G. A. organizations to be held in St. Louis, Mo., from next Wednesday to Saturday.

Lois Jacobs '24, former president of S. G. A., is to speak at the second meeting of the conference on the "Organization of V. S. G. A." A Wisconsin delegate has been chosen to speak on this subject because of the efficient and well-developed association in existence here.

Alice Corl '25, president of S. G. A., is the other official delegate from Wisconsin. Dorothy Strauss '26, S. G. A. census chairman, is the third delegate to the convention.

While in St. Louis the delegates will be entertained at a sorority dinner, fraternity luncheon, journalism luncheon, faculty dinner and several other social functions.

The convention is to close Saturday afternoon after a business meeting and the election of officers.

Bunnies, Eggs, Costly Flowers Make Easter

Despite the modern ascendancy of youthful wisdom and the overturning of heretofore sacred customs, there is one ancient and honorable practice that will continue with undiminished zest for parents and children this year.

It is the visit of the proverbial Bunny—remember him?—who stole into the house the night before Easter and left eggs, candies and other good delicacies for the children who have been good.

Madison candy dealers and other shopkeepers say that the Easter rabbit was on hand full force this year, judging from sales. They sold many bags and boxes of cunningly fashioned sweetmeats. Dozens and dozens of eggs went over the counter, to be taken home to be dyed and decorated so that even the most acute-eyed hen would not know her hard-shelled offspring.

Flowers, too, of all varieties were bought in Madison to decorate homes and gathering places for Easter day, or for the parties to be held this week. One man was heard to remark that his wife had appropriated a week's salary he had
