WHO TAKES THE BUMPS OUT OF YOUR FIRST RN JOB?

Congratulations! You're about to survive one of the toughest ordeals of your life—making it through nursing school.

Now it's time to grit your teeth for what could be the even tougher transition into professional life.

Here at Greater Southeast, we understand the new grad's predicament. That's why we started our 6-month internship program.

We'll assign you your very own, specially selected, experienced RN to be your role model and buddy whenever you need one. Then we'll see that you get the clinical experience and all the added classroom work you need—in the specialty of your choice.

All we ask: stay with us for a year after you complete your internship.

Which isn't much to ask considering what you're getting in return.

Primary Nursing in a prime location.

Here at Greater Southeast, we're rapidly progressing towards total Primary Nursing. (We're already at 5 RNs to every LPN.)

Our location has to be ideal.

On the periphery of the Capital, out of the heavy downtown traffic, yet no more than 15 minutes from everything that's happening culturally, recreationally, intellectually and socially.

No wonder that even with 32 other Washington hospitals vying for our nurses,

Greater Southeast has one of the lowest turnover rates in the area.
