BADGERBOARD'S WORK

NEW FEATURES WHICH WILL BE OF INTEREST.

Increase of Price Will Permit of Marked Improvement in Book—Work of Committees.

The chairman of the Badger Board returned Monday from Chicago, where he made final arrangements for the publishing of the 1902 Badger. By the end of this week it is thought that all of the material for the first half of the book will be in the hands of the publishers. This will insure the appearance of the book at a much earlier date than last year, as there has been much less difficulty with the senior photos and other material which has in past years delayed the Badger.

The Board has this year attempted to solve a problem which has heretofore been presented to all Badger Boards of recent years but which they have not yet been able to overcome—that of raising the price of the book. It is merely a business proposition and the board has no fear but that it will be supported in this experiment by the students at large. $1.50 has been fixed as the price for the book instead of $1 as heretofore.

Before tackling this proposition the board made a careful inquiry into the price of annuals at other colleges and found prices to range from $1.50 to $2. Every book costs the Board at least $2.25 and it seems only right that they should ask this increase in price. Then again with this increase in price a fine opportunity for improvement in the book is given. The Boards heretofore have had no margin to work upon and have therefore been unable to put the amount of money into the book that is necessary in order to get out a book which is a credit to the University in every department.

This raise in price will enable the Board to introduce special features and a quality of material into the book which they would not otherwise have been able to do. Besides a rich cover, artistic and neat and up-to-date in every detail and with a special design the finest quality of paper will be used which will show up the fine half tone and zinc work to the best advantage.

Marsh and Grant of Chicago, have been given the contract for publishing the book. This firm has published the Badger for the past two years. Besides the Badger they will this year publish the "Illio" for the University of Illinois, the "Cap and Gown" for the University of Chicago, the "Forester," for Lake Forest, the "Syllabus" for Northwestern and other annuals for minor colleges.

Of all these the contract for, the Badger is largest both as regards the number of copies and the number of pages. In fact the Badger has the reputation of being the largest annual published in the West. The increase of statistics this year has necessarily increased the number of pages.

The engraving has been put into the hands of the Binner Engraving Co., of Chicago, one of the largest and oldest established firms in the West. Many innovations will be introduced in this department, especially in the grouping of photos. The general standard of the work will be raised materially, no expense being spared in this department, the Board recognizing it as one of the chief factors in the attractiveness of the book.

The chairman of the Board has worked out a system of grouping the senior photos which it is hoped will do away with the confusion which has formerly existed in the senior groups and summaries. Both summaries and groups will be arranged alphabetically with the names of the seniors on the pages opposite their photographs.

The number of pen and ink drawings submitted to the art committee, together with the excellent work of the committee itself, will insure a very fine grade of art work. Besides the work of Miss Nora McCue, chairman of the art committee, there are drawings by R. B. Ellis, '04, W. W. Hughes, law '03, Miss Grace Gapen and other local artists. An exceptionally high grade of work has been submitted by High School students, which demonstrates their interest in the publication.

In the literary department the work is of an exceptional grade of excellence. The amount of work submitted in the competition is exceptionally large and is all of about the same grade of excellence.

The Literary committee of which W. F. Moffatt is chairman, has done fine work. The personnel of this committee is of itself a proof of the high grade of excellence that the work will have. Besides the chairman the committee is composed of Ida Elliot, Mary Swain, Nora McCue, Marie Hinkley, Sarah Seeber, Agnes Merrill, Dwight Beebe, John Brennan, Robert Davis, Victor Cronk, W. E. Smith and Guy E. Diehl.

The Photograph committee has done faithful work and has collected an unusually fine lot of subjects for the Badger. The Chronicle committee has also been diligent in the work on the senior summaries and other uninteresting work which falls to their lot and deserves special mention for this.

The Business committee, of which Walter F. Mabbett is chairman, has attended the business end of the board with great credit. It was through the diligence of this committee that the support of the Board of Regents was secured in raising the price of the book. The plan met with instant favor with them and they have pledged their support of the increased price.

The committee figures that with this raise of price there will naturally be a small falling off in the sale of the Badger among students and with this in view a special effort has been made to reach the alumni. Every alumnus for many years back has been notified of the efforts of the Board to turn out an unusually fine book this year and their support has been solicited.

VALUABLE SOCIETY

WISCONSIN ACADEMY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES.

Organized in 1870 for Material, Intellectual and Social Advancement of the State.

The Wisconsin Academy of Arts, Letters and Science was organized in 1870 by a convention called for that purpose by Governor C. C. Washburn and more than one hundred prominent citizens of the state were present. The objects aimed at were;—the material, intellectual and social advancement of the state and the advancement of Science, Literature and the Arts. It was obvious to the founders of this rising important organization that the advantageous geographical position of the state, the variety and vastness of its natural resources, and the character of its population, both demanded and encouraged the employment of agencies calculated to rapidly advance it to a condition of material prosperity and power, yet it was not less demonstrable to them that true greatness could only be assured by the timely adoption and earnest use of measures looking to high intellectual and social development.

Since the gradual development of a people is largely illustrated and measured by its cultivation of Science and the application of it to the numberless uses of political, social and industrial life, as well as by its achievements in Literature and Art new agencies for the advancement of the commonwealth had to be wisely planned and put into successful operation.

At this time practically nothing had yet appeared to the public through the medium of any publication in Philosophy, the science of Sciences.

In Jurisprudences, in which there was great ground for pride and satisfaction as the decisions of the supreme court of Wisconsin had gained very high reputation, there had however been no publication of this department other than a catalogue of publications. The Science of Politics existed only in the legislature journals, executive messages and pamphlet forms. The Useful Arts had been cultivated with considerable success. Agriculture had advanced with steady pace. Horticulture had won many honors in its struggles with the adventus of climate. The inventive genius of our citizens had made valuable contributions to the mechanic arts. State and county societies were in successful operation guiding and stimulating the industry of the state in its various departments. Although a portion of this was published yet it had great need of an exponent. In fact the first publication of the Wisconsin Academy revealed the marvelous results which had been made in the Practical Arts by a state but twenty-two years old, yet on the other hand it revealed how little had been accomplished in the scientific, literary and aesthetic lines. Accordingly as well as exposing the deficiency in this it also demonstrated that the welfare of the state would be promoted by an efficient organization formed for the express purpose of supplying it.

The reasons which prompted the founding of the Academy were that the aspirations and sympathies of a

DR. PYRE RETURNS.

Completes a Successful Lecture Tour in Louisiana.

Dr. J. F. A. Pyre returned this morning from his southern tour. As a result of a series of lectures which Dr. Pyre gave last summer before the Louisiana Chataqua on English Literature he was invited to give a series of lectures about the state. Accordingly he lectured before a number of leading social and literary clubs, about which centers the culture of the cities.

His first lecture was given at Lake Charles which is in the extreme southwestern portion of the state. At Alexandria he met the Magnolia Club. From Alexandria he proceeded to Natchitoches where he lectured before the Normal School. This Normal school has the largest attendance of any educational institution in the state. It is also interesting to learn that Natchitoches is the oldest town in the state and the third oldest in the United States. It was here that Evangeline the heroine of Longfellow's famous poem of the same name is reputed to have been buried. And it was in this same city that General Grant first met his future wife while in route for Mexico during the Mexican war.

After lecturing before the Symphony Club of Conchatta, Professor Pyre visited Shreveport, the most enterprising city in the state, where he met a former Wisconsin crew man, C. Scott Delay who is the managing editor of the Shreveport Times which is the leading paper of the state. While enroute to Baton Rouge where he was to appear before the State University and Military Academy he talked at Monroe and Ruston. Sunday night he spoke before a company of University and city people in New Orleans. Monday noon before leaving he spoke at the University at Tulaine.

LECTURE ON ERICSSON.

To be Given Friday in Engineering Series by Prof. Mack.

An illustrated lecture on the Life and Work of John Ericsson, the designer of the "Monitor," will be given in the auditorium of the Engineering Building on Friday, March 8th, at 3 p. m. by Professor J. G. D. Mack.

Although Captain Ericsson is best known as the designer of the "Monitor," which was his greatest work, he was engaged in all branches of engineering, in addition to his army service. He built one of the first locomotives which was in the competition with Stephenson's "Rocket," in 1829, and about this time built the first steam fire engine.

His work with the screw propeller made it a commercial success and drove the side-wheel steamer from deep water navigation. He twice made the navies of the world obsolete, once by the Princeton and again by the Monitor. All are invited.

A meeting of the Contemporary Club will be held at the Unitarian church this evening. Dr. E. A. Brown will read a paper on "How to live a Hundred Years," which will be discussed by Drs. H. A. Gilbert, L. R. Head and others.

Badger Pharmacist.

The publication of a book by the students of the School of Pharmacy, in the interests of pharmacy in Wisconsin is an innovation which would seem to be worthy of being made an annual occurrence. The book should serve to unite and arouse the pharmaceutical students of the state into some sort of organization, and also be useful for purposes of reference in regard to the history of Wisconsin pharmaceutical practice and in many other ways. While the "Badger Pharmacist" has some of the characteristics of a college annual, yet it will not hurt the work of the regular junior publication and should be of special value to all in the school of pharmacy. The publication should receive the support which it deserves.

Lectures by an Authority.

The series of lectures on "Unrest and Aspiration in English Poetry of the Nineteenth Century," to be given by Professor Manly of Chicago should be of great interest to all students interested in literary work. The course will cover a subject in which Professor Manly is especially interested and there is no doubt but that it will be highly entertaining. There has been a general demand for lectures from noted men of neighboring institutions this spring and the English department is making an effort to supply this demand. As an English scholar Professor Manly stands among the first of this country, and is the best authority on the pre-Shakespearean drama. Such lectures as these should receive the attention of all Madison people interested along literary lines.

The Weather.

Partly cloudy with snow flurries west tonight and east. Thursday rising temperature.

Germanistische Gesellschaft.

At last evening's meeting of the Germanistische Gesellschaft, Minna von Barnhelm was again read. So much ground was covered during the evening that but one act of the play still remains to be read, which will be done next Tuesday evening. The reading of the beautiful comedy was heartily enjoyed by all those present.

The Gesellschaft has just had printed a small 12 page pamphlet giving much information about the society and also giving a brief outline of Minna von Barnhelm and the cast of characters who will present it Thursday after next. Copies of this pamphlet are to be had from the German teachers in North Hall.

people should not be limited to the state only but must contribute to the best interests of the race. In thus joining themselves together these founders were able to awaken a scientific spirit in all inquiring minds.

At the time of its organization it had a membership of ninety-six. Some of the charter members were: Gov. Nelson Dewey, Dr. Chapin, Dr. J. E. Davies, Prof. W. F. Allen, Hon. J. L. Mitchell, Hon. S. A. White, Prof. T. C. Chamberlain, Prof. W. W. Daniels, Rev. Fallows, Hon. S. D. Hastings, Rev. A. O. Wright, Prof. Eaton. It has now a membership of nearly two hundred and is steadily increasing.

The Academy exchanges publications in thirty-seven foreign countries and has in all about six hundred exchanges. This only goes to show the strength of the movement. And besides it is the exponent of all advances in its line. Every movement in the scientific, literary or art world in the state is seconded by the Academy in obtaining legislative enactments and other important provisions. It has been heartily in sympathy and to a large extent promoters of the work done by the state Geological Survey in the investigation of clays, stones and the mining resources of the state.

The present officers of the Academy are:

President, Charles S. Slichter, Madison; vice-presidents, Harriet B. Merrill, Milwaukee; Chas. H. Chandler, Ripon; Erastus G. Smith, Beloit; secretary, Prof. Frank C. Sharp, Madison; treasurer, Ernest R. Buckley; librarian, Louis Kahlenberg; curator, Samuel Weidman.
