VICTORY FOR THE SOPHOMORES

THEY WIN FROM THE JUNIOR LAWS.

BY A SCORE OF ELEVEN TO SIX.

The Laws Made Errors—And the Sophs Were Lucky.

The sophomores played the junior laws yesterday afternoon at Randall field and victory was with the sophomores. The game was won rather by the errors of the juniors than the skill of sophomores as several costly errors of the juniors and the good luck of the sophomores came at just the right time.

The game started with the sophs at the bat. Brewer and Libby, for the sophs, and Runkel and McCully for the lawyers succeeded in getting across the plate in the first inning. In the second Brewer and A. N. Fowle scored, while the lawyers went out in one-two-three order. Gregg brought in a tally for the juniors and Freeman, one for the lawyers in the third. In the fourth inning the sophs. were unable to score, while McCabe, Runkel and McCully scored for the lawyers. In the fifth Brewer and Manson made the circuit for the sophs. The juniors were unable to score in this inning. In the sixth neither side scored. Falk got a little nervous in the seventh and the sophs. pounded out four runs. The juniors got two men on bases in their half of the seventh, but were unable to score. As is the custom in class games, but seven innings were played.

The following are the players and their positions:

'97	Position	'96
Gregg	c	Runkel
Perkins	p	Falk
Butt	ss	Overson
Libby	1 b	Freeman
Brewer	2 b	Karel
Fowle	3 b	Hineman
Hageman	r f	McCabe
Manson	c f	Carroll
Fowle	1 f	McCully

'96 L. S.	2 0 1 3 0 0 0	—6

TRACK ATHLETICS.

All athletes should remember that the fall field day occurs on Saturday, the 13th. So only a little more than a week remains for the training. The freshman-sophomore element in the contests will not be eliminated as each class will score by points so the freshmen will, if they are strong enough, be able to conquer the class of '97, and to make the fact known.

Entries close next Monday, the 8th, and should be handed to M. J. Gillen or J. B. Amazeen on or before that day. Do not neglect this matter but enter this week if possible so that the entry will not be too late.

—C. A. Squires, '98, has been suffering with a sprained ankle for a few days, but is out again.

—Prof. Birge is in Chicago today.

Students especially urged to attend.

BOATING AT MINNESOTA.

The following from the University of Minnesota "Ariel" will be of interest to those interested in boating at the University:

"The Law School has taken the initiative in the forming of a crew. The Laws have challenged the Academics to a race to occur some time in October. The Laws are now in training at the Minnesota Boat Club's quarters in St. Paul."

IN THE REALM OF SCIENCE

THE ENGINEERS ORGANIZE A SOCIETY.

PROF. BARNES TELLS ABOUT CELL LIFE.

Something New in the Botanical Mack World.

The electrical and mechanical engineers of the sophomore class met this morning in the chemical lecture room for the purpose of organizing an engineering society. The meeting was called on suggestion of Prof. J. G. March, who acted as chairman while it was in progress. It was thought best to elect officers at once, and following are the names of those chosen.

President, C. F. Rider.

Vice President, L. Owen.

Secretary, R. F. Schuchardt.

Committees were then appointed for the following purposes: To draw up by-laws and to select a name.—C. F. Rider, H. W. Reilly, C. S. Fording, W. Alexander, and Prof. J. G. D. March (ex-officio); to procure a society room, C. Rider, R. F. Schuchardt, I. H. Fowle; to make out programs for the meetings.—C. B. Rider, E. H. Comstock, O. E. Olson.

The principal object of the society is to review the engineering magazines of the day. The meeting will take place Friday evenings at 7 o'clock. Tomorrow night the society will be addressed by Prof. March in an extended talk on its aims and objects.

LECTURE ON BIOLOGY.

Prof. Barnes began his lecture yesterday with a description of the reproduction of the plant cell. It is a very complex process. Each cell has a controlling nucleus in its protoplasmic center. When the cell attains maturity it divides through its nucleus by marked gradations and forms two cells which in turn subdivide at maturity. This characteristic runs through the whole vegetable kingdom. In the protococcus, the simplest form of plant life, this goes on continually so that the plant is called immortal. As these cells are all independent of one another they are spoken of as colonies.

Another characteristic of life is that the mature conditions of lower organisms is similar in form and nature to the embryonic conditions of the higher. The simplest green plant is the protococcus. The next is the blue green algal family, which has six distinct types. These are classed according to their three modes of cell division: (a) Those whose cells divide into three planes forming a mass, (b) those dividing into two planes forming a sheet and (c) those dividing into one plane forming a filament.

These plants grow abundantly in both fresh and salt water and are found along ditches, drains and horse troughs. They are characterized by having a blue coloring matter (phycocyanin) mixed with the chlorophyll and diffused throughout the body protoplasm instead of being limited to special plastids. There is little division of labor. They also have a more or less bulky mucilaginous cell wall.

One of the most numerous of this family is the gloeocapsa, a single celled plant which multiplies by dividing in three planes forming a jelly like cell mass held together by the mucilaginous wall. Another type is the nostoc and anabaena which multiply by dividing in one plane forming a row of cells or filament. The rivularia also forms a filament but with the distinction of having a base and apex.

The sirosiphon has the peculiarity of a branching filament.

A NEW BOTANICAL GENUS.

In the July number of the Botanical Gazette, which is published jointly by the professors in Botany at Purdue, Lake Forest, and Wisconsin, a four and a half page article is published, describing a new genus of Pseudorina. The specimen was found on the campus at Leland Stanford by W. R. Shaw, instructor in botany there. The specimen described is smaller than the head of a pin, and is on the borderland between the animal and plant kingdoms. The paper was written by Mr. Shaw as part of the work required to be done along original lines for the degree of A. M., which he obtained last year.

AT THE GYM.

The classes in physical culture are increasing every day. There were in the Freshman class yesterday fully two hundred students, the largest yet in attendance. Prof. Elsom congratulates them on their great improvement in the work during the few weeks of instruction. It is surprising to see how a little instruction in regard to the free movement of the body and limbs will limber and straighten up some men who look lifeless. The Sophomore non-commissioned officers take gymnastics with the Freshmen now to assist in calling the roll. It is satisfying to see the interest which all the students are manifesting in the new gymnasium. It is to be hoped that it is not spasmodic, but that they may realize its importance and continue the work while they have such an excellent opportunity.

DIVERSIONS.

The law school is proverbially a place where opinions are wont to be expressed without restraint. Nevertheless Prof. Burr W. Jones was somewhat taken aback when lecturing the seniors on the subject of presumptive evidence this morning. He was citing as an illustration that because a person was a democrat last year he is presumed to be one this year, when he was interrupted with, "No, no, not since the tariff bill passed." The name of the perpetrator is not recorded.

Neither is that of the student who asked the professor the color of a prism.

—Pres. Adams was in Beloit yesterday.

pleted by calling at the office for the missing numbers.The fall field day, training for which has been in progress for some time past, will be held Saturday, Oct.
13. It is expected that the meet this year will be of more than usual interest since the contests are no longer limited to members of the lower class but are open to all. The entries for the events will close on next Monday and those intending to enter should notify the managers as soon as possible.A notice will be found elsewhere in this issue regarding the organization of the university fencing club. A meeting has been called for tomorrow afternoon for that purpose, and it is hoped that those who are interested in learning to fence will be present at that time. Fencing is an art which is much cultivated at many universities and in athletic clubs, and there is no reason why Wisconsin should be behind other institutions in this respect. It is healthful, trains the eye, is conducive to agility and grace, and is just the exercise for those who do not care to go into heavy athletics.The organization of a society among the sophomore engineers is a move in the right direction. Since the engineering society ceased to exist several years ago there has been no regular organization among the engineers. The difficulty with the old society arose from the fact that its membership was made up from all classes and the discussions that were of interest to the lowerclassmen did not interest the more advanced students and vice versa. The present plan of an organization among the members of the same class will no doubt meet with success.There is considerable agitation in some of the colleges and universities over the matter of fraud in examinations and active steps are being taken in several institutions to suppress such dishonesty. The honor system is being adopted by the students as a means of doing away with such practice.
Each student is placed upon his honor to abstain from all fraud in examinations and recitations. A court composed of students is elected to whom all cases of dishonesty are referred and if the charges are proven the offenders are given over to the faculty.The lack of interest in tennis this fall is surprising. Usually the courts of the association are crowded but now there are scarcely enough players to keep two courts in order. Perhaps the fact that there seems to be no prospect of even a local tournament this year may have something to do with it. There is nothing to look forward to and no incentive to practice.
The present champion will probably keep his title by default as no tournament will be held and so there can be no competition for the championship. This is very much to be regretted and it seems that a small tournament would be better than none at all.The lecture on football this evening will be of an essentially popular character. The people of Madison and the many of the students do not understand football as they should. Many students go to a football game and show plenty of enthusiasm but know little in regard to what they are yelling about. A great number of the students do not go to the games because they see nothing interesting in them and are unwilling to go and stand an hour and a half to see something that they care nothing about. It is to both of these classes of students that this lecture appeals. Persons who have seen nothing to admire in a football game before usually become enthusiastic as soon as they learn something of the history and development of the game. The illustrations of this lecture by means of stereopticon views will add much to the pleasure of the audience. Pictures of many of the famous football players will also be given on the screen.

LITERARY NOTE.

In his recent monograph on the "Classification of Law," Prof. Russel H. Curtis, of the Kent Law School, of Chicago, attempts to give a classification of law of sufficient scope to serve as the basis for the arrangement of the laws of any nation at any stage of its development. The pamphlet is issued by the Americans Academy of Political and Social Science as No. 114 of its series of "Publications." The aid of such a classification to both members of the bar and the people at large will be much the same, as Prof. Curtis says, as the aid which meridians of longitude and parallels of latitude supply to the navigator. That it may be of much use, however, it must be generally accepted.M. S. KLAUBER & Co.,

PEDESTRIAN AND FIELD SPORTS.

Much has been said and written of the indifference of the American people toward pedestrian and field contests as compared with other forms of outdoor sport. And there would seem to be some ground for it, according to the writer's observations in and around New York this season. The programs offered at the Intercollegiate, Metropolitan and National championships were of exceptional merit, but the turnstile registers would have become rusty from the comparative lightness of their exertions had they been called upon to do duty at these meetings instead of baseball and football games. Quite a number of reasons exist for this decline in popular interest but chief among them is the failure of the average management to run off its program in anything like a reasonable time. We can see a good game of baseball or a crack tennis match in from an hour and a half to two hours; a football game started at two is nearly always concluded by four or four-thirty; but these track athletic programs drag along to such an extent that their patrons are led to feel, as the evening shadows gather fast upon the still unfinished meeting, that had they brought along a camping outfit, the oft-recurring problem as to the passing of their annual vacation might have thus been solved. Another occasion for popular disfavor is the not ungrounded fear of many that the management will not be able to, and sometimes do not even expect to, redeem their promises as to the performers. Not long ago a prominent club near New York advertised widely that sundry cracks would be among the "bright particulars" at its holiday games, but when a good-sized audience had gathered together they found that only one or two of these much-heralded stars had come to time.

If the athletic managers would place a good stiff time and distance limit upon all entries, it would eliminate from their list the names of scores of men who simply consume valuable time, although they have no chance to win, and would also raise the standard of performance to a marked extent. They should also insist on a prompt response to the clerk of the course when he summons the contestants and should hurry each event through without loss of time. It can be done; it is done, now and then. They should also give star athletes to understand that when their entries are accepted and their names published, they are expected to come to the mark. To advertise a lot of men whom they do not expect is literally procuring money under false pretenses from the people who are thus drawn to their games.

PLEASING MUSIC.

It Is Given at the Lueders' Band Concert.

The concert given by Prof. Lueders' military band and orchestra last evening at the Turner hall was thoroughly appreciated by a good-sized audience. Those who had an opportunity to attend and failed to do so missed a musical treat.

The military band opened the concert by rendering the inspiring march, The Battle, by Dalby. The band certainly shows evidence of skillful leadership. Throughout the program it acquitted itself with credit, demonstrated by the frequent applause.

Mrs. Alice Herfurth-Vaas sang in her usually charming manner and graciously responded to encores.

A feature was the rendition of the Cradle Song and Love Song by a part of the orchestra and five boy students of the violin. The boys were Masters Otto Schroeder, Ruebie Neckerman, Eyyind Bull Herman Pfund, John Meng, all of them boys about 15 years of age. Prof. Lueders feels confident that in these boys he has first-class material for development into good musicians, and their talent last evening was displayed to good advantage and should be an encouragement to the boys.

The two last pieces were perhaps the greater part of the evening's entertainment.—A Picture of Ifay, by the orchestra, and Ki-Yi by the band. Both numbers were cleverly rendered and highly appreciated.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

The thirteenth annual intercollegiate tennis tournament was begun Tuesday on the grounds of the New Haven Lawn Club. The grounds were in fine condition, the entry list was unusually large, and the attendance was good. There is no doubt that Yale will carry off the championship this year. Malcolm Chace, who has been the star player for Brown, entered the Yale Scientific school this year and with A. E. Foote it is hard to see how Yale can lose. Harvard has lost her star player this year. Bobby Wrenn, the champion, has taken to football, and is not entered in the tournament.

The great surprise of the day was the victory of Herrick, of Princeton, over Foote. Foote had just defeated Codman, but notwithstanding this he was considered a sure winner. Herrick, however, showed great improvement over his work in the early part of the season, and beat Foote in two sets. Summaries:

P. A. Colby, Princeton, defeated J. B. Read, Harvard, 6-3, 6-2; G. P. Herrick, Princeton, defeated W. E. Milne, Amherst, 6-4, 6-1; J. F. Talmage, Yale, defeated F. N. Jessup, Princeton, 6-4, 6-3; D. C. Grass, Trinity, defeated F. M. Belden, Amherst, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4; R. M. Miles, Columbia, defeated H. C. Bridges, University of North Carolina, 6-2, 6-8, 6-4; A. E. Foote beat A. Codman, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1; G. P. Herrick beat A. E. Foote, 6-4, 9-7; J. F. Talmage, Yale, beat W. B. Jones, Brown, 6-0, 6-1; J. T. Talmage beat G. C. Graves, Trinity, 6-0, 6-0; A. Spier, Harvard, beat W. O. Gener, Columbia, 6-1, 6-0; Malcolm Chace, Yale, beat W. R. Bryson, University of North Carolina, 6-1, 6-2.
