BADGER FISH MEET CHICAGO HERE TONIGHT

Close Rivalry in All Events is Expected as Teams End
Training; Bennett and
Blinks May Star

All is ready for the starter's gun to send the first event men away in the Chicago-Wisconsin swimming meet, which comes off tonight at 7:30 in the gym tank. Both squads finished off their hard training on Thursday and went through only a few starts and turns yesterday.

The interest tonight will center around "Johnnie" Bennett '24 of the Badger squad, and Blinks of the Maroons. Both of these men have proved themselves to be the stars of their teams and have made fast time in meets this year. Blinks holds several conference records and is the backbone of the Chicago aquatic team. This is Bennett's first year in conference swimming and many fans are predicting that he will unseat the present champion.

Men Closely Matched
Besides Blinks, the Maroons have two other men who are expected to cop first places in their events. Byler will give Captain "Bill" Collins '22, a hard battle in the fancy diving and all Chicago is backing him to come through with a win. Hede and Hall will plunge for Chicago and the former is rated among the foremost plungers of the conference. Huebner will be given stiff competition in his event. Huebner has been going strong in this event all week, and many times has hit the end of the tank in fast time.

H. E. Czerwonky '24, new Badger breast stroke marvel, will have plenty of competition in his big event with Lyons and Mueller of Chicago as his rivals. Collins will also swim for Wisconsin in this event. Czerwonky will be depend-

FORMER HEAD OF "CENTURY" TALKS ON WRITING GAME

William Ellsworth Claims
Journalistic Profession Ends
In Making Authors

That everybody, no matter what his stand in life is, should learn to write, for we all have to write letters, and no one likes to read letters that are poorly written, was the statement made by William Webster Ellsworth, former president of the Century company, in his address "The Joy of Writing," given at Bascom hall yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Ellsworth stated that college gives us an education but it does not necessarily teach us to write. In order to be good writers, we must rewrite the same thing over and over again, so that we may cultivate the art of writing, and then should not be afraid of criticism.

In Mr. Ellsworth's second address last night on "The Writing Game," also at Bascom hall, he said that only one out of every 50,000 people of our population, who have not been journalists, ever become authors.

Reinsch Speaks at Convocation Monday

Prof. Paul S. Reinsch, formerly professor of political economy here, then ambassador to China, and later, financial advisor to the Chinese government, will speak on some question of the Far East before a convocation, Monday at 4:30 in Music hall.

Will Announce Stock Show Slogan Sunday

Only two more days remain for those who wish to enter slogans in the "Little International" slogan contest, according to H. L. Edwards '23, chairman of the slogan contest.

Many slogans have been received, but the committee wishes to receive more. Five dollars will be awarded to the winner of the contest.

The slogan for the "Little International" will be picked by a faculty committee. It is planned to announce the winner Sunday.

Concert Sunday to Be Departure From Usual Band Program

Getting away from the rather heavy and dramatic tone of previous concerts, next Sunday's program by the Wisconsin concert band at the armory will be almost entirely made up of simple melodies and pieces with a distinct rhythm.

The band has been working twice a week since its last concert, and in the light of the recent exhibition of the Illinois band at Chicago, has been spurred on to attempt things beyond the realm of most college organizations. The band is directed by Major E. W. Murphy.

To Stage Military Musical Comedy

That a musical comedy with a military setting will be given by the members of Gun and Blade club at the Parkway theater on the afternoon and evening of March 28 was the announcement made by Paul T. Tobey '23, chairman, yesterday.

"We are waiting for the arrival from Chicago of Miss Alice Keith who directed our play last year before we decide what production will be put on by the club in March," said Tobey.

The play this year will be part of the pre-Military ball activities, coming just two weeks before the main event.

Gun and Blade Will Give Banquet March 3

Gun and Blade will give its annual banquet on March 3 in the Woman's building. Special decorations, lighting schemes, vaudeville acts, music, cigars, and a five-course dinner have been planned by the committee in charge.

Several noted speakers, among whom is Major General Bell, of Chicago, have been invited to attend.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT RECEIVES CRITIC'S STRONG COMMENDATION

Music lovers of Madison heard one of the greatest musical treats of the year at the First Baptist church Thursday night when the Glee quartet gave a concert including songs of almost every variety—classical, popular and college songs.

The first number was "Pot Pourri en Vogue," which was a medley of songs now or formerly popular. Many old favorites were greeted with satisfaction and delight by the audience, and the whole thing reached a final climax in a very peppy rendition of "Ain't We Got Fun."

Decided contrasts and variety in selections were used to keep the interest of the audience at a high pitch.

In his rendition of "Roses of Picardy," Noel Stearns displayed his art to the fullest. Mr. Stearns' talent as an entertainer came out most strongly in his rendering of "Tommy Lad," which was received

JACK BELIEVES THAT A BODY CAN BE USEFUL

Railroad Jack has willed his body to the Wisconsin Medical school in the interests of science.

Known in private life as Harry Cooper, Railroad Jack has been a prominent vagabond for a quarter of a century, lecturing and answering questions about everything from cabbages to kings.

But Railroad Jack seems to have an inclination for giving away his body. About 10 years ago, in the course of his friendship with Dr. J. H. Carstens, he promised his body to him for dissecting purposes. Next he gave it to the Detroit College of Medicine, and later, after brousing for a summer in the Ann Arbor university library, gave his body to the medical department of that university.

Last week he promised it to the Wisconsin Medical school.

"While most of the above is news to me, some of it is official," said Jack at the Cardinal office last night, "but you know it is the last will and testament that is legal. I have positively made no other will in the last three weeks, and do not expect to for the rest of my life."

Octy Art Editor Calls Meeting of Mag Cartoonists

The art editor of the Octopus has called a meeting of all those interested in art work for the magazine for 3:30 this afternoon. There will be a discussion of art work and the commercial aspects will be talked over.

The art policy of the Octopus and the art for the remainder of the issues will be explained, according to Henry Rubel '23, the art editor. The meeting is to be held in the Octopus office at the Union building.

Edwin Booth Plans Spring Production

Plans for the spring production of Edwin Booth, the election of officers, and appointment of a committee in charge of tryouts were made at a meeting of the Edwin Booth club last night.

The officers elected are Roy French '23, president; Heinz Rubel '23, vice-president; Vincent Conlin '23, secretary; William Tannowitz '23, treasurer.

The committee in charge of tryouts is composed of Arthur McCaffery '23, Horace Gregory '23, and William Tannowitz.

by the audience with delight. Three lighter numbers, "Ole Man Moon," A College Medley, and "Three Vamps," brought a keen appreciation of humor and clever acting.

The "Venetian Love Song," with solo parts by Mr. Dartnell, was the most applauded of the group of "Songs for Lovers," while the volume and range of Mr. Brown's voice showed up at its best in his two solos, "The Gondolier" and "Inter Nos." The combination of voice and the selection of materials made Mr. Brown's solos one of the most enjoyable and pleasing parts of the evening's entertainment, and one which will be long remembered.

The depth and strength of Mr. Huff's voice were well displayed in his rendition of "Look Down Dear Eyes," and the "Floral Dance."

Of a group of negro songs sung by the quartet "Hear Dem Bells" and "Jordan Roll" were most enthusiastically received by the audience.

Hold Charity Ball Tonight At Lathrop

"McDougall's Alley" Act and
Dolphin Club Swimmers
Are Features of Program

The annual Charity Ball mixer will be held tonight at 9 o'clock in Lathrop gymnasium for the benefit of the Wisconsin State Conference of Social Work, a combination of all Wisconsin charitable organizations. Dr. and Mrs. Smiley Blanton have charge of all arrangements for the ball.

"McDougall's Alley" will be a special feature of the mixer. A group of pretty co-eds, "the best dancers on the campus," and a carefully waxed floor will greet the mixer patrons in the concert room. Confetti will be distributed liberally. Each dance will be 10 cents. Members of Dolphin club will perform stunts in the tank as an additional feature of the ball.

Music will be furnished by the Badger orchestra and tickets can be had at "25 cents a foot" at Morgan's, at the University pharmacy, or at the door. Attractive paper hats will be sold for 10 cents.

Following are the committee heads:

Adrian Scolten, general chairman of student body; William Peebles, publicity; William Madden and Frank Shokey, tickets; Whitford Huff, special feature; Rowena Brown, floor arrangements.

Tragic Number of Twelfth Night Bill Has Strong Appeal

Three Playlets Will Be Presented by Society Saturday Night

"The Stuart Walker one-act version of Oscar Wilde's "The Birthday of the Infanta," which Twelfth Night dramatic society will present as part of their program of one-act plays Saturday night, has all the appeal of spectacular scenes and highly suggestive artistry which have made it a favorite of the Little Theatre," declared Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, the dramatic expert of the English department.

"The play was presented in Madison by the Portmanteau players some years ago, and I still recall vividly the dramatic appeal of this little piece of intense pathos."

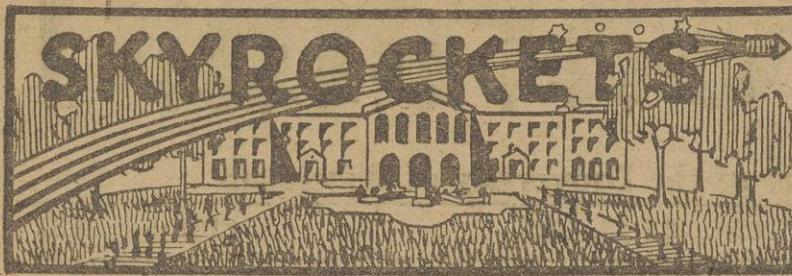

"The Birthday of the Infanta" is the tragic part of the program which will begin at 7:30 Saturday night in the Lathrop concert room. A farce, "The Pet Boiler," and a quiet, quaint little Spanish comedy, will complete a program chosen particularly for balance in emotional appeal.

Expect Dean Nardin To Return Saturday

Dean F. Louise Nardin is expected to return Saturday from Chicago where she has been attending the National convention of deans at the Blackstone hotel.

Previously, Dean Nardin went to Ithaca, N. Y., where committee meetings of the American Association of University Women were held.

MU ALPHA ELECTS
Mu Alpha, honorary music sorority, announces the election of Miss Marion Phelps and Miss Jane Peterson as honorary members.

THE time having come around again for us to review the Lit for the benefit of the 6,000 and sundry odd persons who don't read it and for the contempt of the remaining queer ones who do, we ask you to take up the column, this morning, with an attitude of serious attention and devoid of vacant smiles. * * *

THE cover of this issue is more attractive than usual; it has only three titles instead of the regular four. In addition to this, there is the advantage of having a foreign looking thing that nobody understands, and therefore expect to read something worthy of La Vie Parisienne. * * *

THERE is an admirable editorial this month by P. V. G. Who is this person? His quiet, shy, reserved personality is so whimsical that it is hard to believe he's serious when he suggests taking down the precious piece of tin on Bascom hall. Why, if they took that tablet away, what would the poor journalism students have to write their prize editorial about every year? Probably this P. V. G. was in a hurry or perhaps he was up a bit late the evening before he wrote this bit of over-wrought nervousness. * * *

WHEN the supposedly decent review of this number came out, the critic called somebody a very insulting name,—he called Horace Gregory the poet laureate of the campus. Why didn't he call him a nice lady-like name instead? Gregory's King Midas is a poetical picture of John Barrymore as Mr. Hyde playing Blind Man's Bluff,—you remember the bodies, the fingers, and the bad dreams. It is undoubtedly a very good job, for we saw the movie and remember the scene from which the poem was taken. The name, of course, is a mistake,—what the poet means is King Vidor, the movie actor. * * *

THE story of Ernest Meyer's also shows a faulty acquaintance with the world of facts. He calls it Webs, whereas he means Hair-nets. He starts with a false premise, that of having got a woman in a box, otherwise a tight fix, something no man ever did. The hero of the tale is a newspaper reporter, we knew that because he smoked so many cigarettes and had a grouch on. The final proof was his shady reputation. * * *

GREGORY kicked over the traces and tried to write a story. We advise him to get a job writing for Dr. Beechman's Almanac so he can get money enough to allow him to write his superior poetry for Captain Billy's Whizz Bang. * * *

WE found out that Don Hanson had a Landlord. It was a shock for we never believed he had to have a house to live in, what with seeing him at so many different hours of the night. Hanson earns our admiration with his essay on Taking a Cold Shower, however, instead of calling somebody a man because he takes a shower, he should have called him a moron. * * *

After looking at Pennell Crosby's Dark Ultramarine and Scarlet, and then looking below it to find The One Thing Worse by Bailey, we couldn't believe it possible, so we read it. Whoever made up the magazine was right,—it is the one and only thing worse, impossible as it seems. * * *

SOME young lady made an old woman out of Henry James, by giving him a scrap bag. Now if she had called her essay Sundry Wallops Delivered by Henry James to His Punching Bag, it would have been more to our liking. * * *

THE DEVIL received more than his share of notice when Elizabeth Katz took her pen in hand. However, in view of the fact that the Devil is always pictured as a bulky looking guy, we think that the title might better have been the Holy Cow. * * *

OLD DUSKY-DUST, the bushwa artist on books, got real humorous this month, by asking for a boost to help him finish reading some book. If he'd quit handing out so much Dust, he would do more credit to his Bookshelf. HI N. LOW.

LET US BE THANKFUL

SEVERAL remarks made by Prof. Adam Munchausen in his illustrated lecture "The Universities of Salzkorn," given at the new city hall and auditorium last night, seem worthy of comment here. Professor Munchausen's lecture was of value not only to that class of university men, fortunately in the minority, who are inclined toward a pessimistic view of our school, but also to that larger class of students unacquainted with the superior position our university holds in comparison with those of other lands.

Some of Professor Munchausen's remarks were of such a surprising nature that we have decided to give a few of them verbatim. Said the speaker, in referring to the method of conducting examinations at the University of Meltau, the leading school of higher education in Salzkorn:

"I doubt that I can adequately describe to you the deplorable conditions that prevail at Meltau around examination time. I had the good fortune to be present at one of the term examinations. Proctors occupied vantage points in all parts of the room. There was a sinister atmosphere of foreboding over everything. The questions, instead of being designed to give the students some chance to exhibit what they had learned, were cleverly worded with the deliberate intention of tripping the unwary and confusing the most level-headed. It is not surprising that nearly a third of that class did not pass the examination; nor is it at all remarkable that every year about a quarter of the total number of students are requested to leave the institution because of failures.

"I asked one of the students, a bright young chap from southern Salzkorn, what he thought of the large number of failures.

"'Well,' he said, 'too many of the fellows come here with the wrong impression; too many try to get what they need out of their courses instead of what their instructors want. There is but one royal road to good grades. Study your professors first and your lessons next.'

"Another weakness in the Salzkorn universities, caused no doubt by the great shortage of teachers since the war, is the large number of part-time instructors employed. These men have little interest in their work and often exhibit small knowledge of the subjects they teach. In some of the general courses they mark the examination papers and hold regular quizzes. In quiz they 'bluff,' as you would say here, and when marking papers, no attempt at a uniform standard is maintained.

"The University of Meltau adopted the co-educational system but a few years ago. Perhaps when it has become as accustomed to women students as you have, better conditions will prevail; but it must be admitted that the presence of girls at Meltau has had a somewhat disquieting effect on the institution. It has been found necessary to adopt many regulations governing their social life. Cigarette holders—of the highly inflammable gasoline type—have been denied them, and even their face powder must be approved by the pure food commissioner. It was hinted by some of the young men that here and there many of the less mature instructors have been 'vamped' by the girls in order to obtain higher class marks, but as these statements were unsubstantiated and as such methods seem highly improbable, I took such charges with a grain of salt.

"Meltau has no responsive governing body as you enjoy here. Let me give you an illustration. A rapid and dangerous river flows near the university buildings. Every year several students are drowned in this stream, but as yet no adequate life-saving system has been adopted. Much discussion arises every year, especially after one of the frequent tragedies, but the matter is forgotten before the next accident."

We believe that every university student should have heard Professor Munchausen's lecture. It is unfortunate that the speech did not occur during school hours so that a general convocation announcement would have insured the presence of the entire student body. As it was, those fortunate enough to have heard the lecture will, no doubt, be ready to answer any derogatory statements concerning this university with a description of the infinitely worse conditions which prevail in Salzkorn.

THE PARTHENON

EVERY day, hundreds of students, in descending one of the end stairways of Bascom hall, pass a large picture representing the remains of perhaps the most stately and imposing structures ever built by the hands of men—the Parthenon of ancient Athens. How many of the students who daily pass it by have ever noticed it, and of those who have, how many have paused in their hurry to admire those lonely ruins that still remain after more than two thousand years of eventful history? Trained to observe, have they noted the power and simplicity of those mighty Doric columns? Taught to think, have they realized how many architectural ideas incorporated in the state capitol building or in Bascom hall itself were evolved in the days when the Parthenon was still a temple of Zeus?

The explosion of a Turkish powder mine and the vandalism of the English have almost destroyed the original outlines of the Parthenon; the winds and storms of twenty centuries have discolored its marbles and smoothed out its reliefs. Perhaps in another thousand years this master-piece will be no more. But for long men will turn back in their memories to the Parthenon to find the most perfect art ever attained by the carvers of stone and the builders of temples.

DATE OF MILITARY BALL

Editor Daily Cardinal:

According to reports published in the Cardinal, the date for the Military ball has been set for April 7. I wonder if the committee in charge has thought of the fact that this is during Lent? There are many students who will be unable to attend for this reason and therefore I would like to suggest that it be postponed until at least April 21. Surely the Military department wants everybody to attend the ball. Why not give every student a fair chance?

WHAT IS A FLAPPER? TRY TO DEFINE IT

What is a flapper? That is the question.

"A girl who believes personality is physical, who considers all advice abstract, who loves continual change, and who converses in generalities," says Mary Ida Bentley, speaking of the girls at the University of California.

"And being a flapper is not a question of age, but of outlook on life," adds Eleanor Richardson, social worker, speaking of the girls at the University of Chicago.

The Daily Maroon, the university publication, characterizes her thus:

"A flapper is a girl who parades around the campus bareheaded, wearing a huge fur coat and unbuckled galoshes. She specializes in lines and tea hounds. In most respects she is a 1923 model, with streamline body and a carriage with 60 miles an hour guaranteed."

MANY SCHOOLS ENTER ANNUAL RELAY RACES

State Schools to Send Teams of Picked Runners

Four colleges and two normal schools will compete in the college relay race which will be one of the fastest events of the annual relay carnival to be held Saturday evening. With the receipt of the entries for Lawrence yesterday, the colleges entered for the run are Beloit, Milton, Ripon, and Lawrence. The two normal schools which are sending men to the meet are La Crosse and Milwaukee.

Beloit, with three of the four men team which won the event last year, and which holds the annex record for the race, stands the best chance of again taking the inter-college run. The event consists of eight laps, each of the four men running two laps.

A banner is given to the winning team and four gold watches to the individuals of the team. In addition to these prizes, to make the affair one of annual interest, a silver statue trophy will this year be awarded to the winner to be held for one year, the prize being permanently awarded to the school taking first place for three years.

Seven Open Events

There are seven open events in which athletes of state colleges, normal schools, and the University of Wisconsin are eligible to compete. The one which will attract the most attention will be the 16 pound shot event, to the winner of which the Arlie Mucks trophy will be awarded for the coming year. For the past two years this prize, offered in memory of the giant Wisconsin athlete who held the world's record for putting the shot, has been held by the star Badger athlete, Guy Sundt. The football captain will again compete for the trophy Saturday night.

The four military academies will put up an interesting scrap in their special relay event. The strong Culver team is the favorite for first place, although in the two fast squads representing St. John's they will find keen rivalry. The Culver team consisting of Crawford, Williams, Richardson, and Halls, will arrive in Madison Friday night for the meet. In the relay, the first man runs a half mile, the second, one lap, the third, a quarter mile, and the last, three quarters of a

HARD SCHEDULE FACES BADGERS ON ROAD TRIP

Standings Will Depend Upon Clash With Suckers Monday Night

With a victory over Northwestern safely tucked away, the Badgers are now priming themselves for the two hard foreign games which face them next week.

Wisconsin has at least a temporary claim to third place, and there is plenty of possibility that they can still work up a notch before the season is over. The question as to whether or not the Badgers can oust the Illini will be pretty much decided when the two teams meet at Urbana next Monday night.

The exhibition given Wednesday evening was easily the worst seen here this year. The Badgers piled up a 10 to 1 lead in the first few minutes of play, which was the only time that the Wisconsin offense worked at all smoothly.

Purple Wins Are Puzzle

Wisconsin fans are all wondering how Northwestern won from Indiana and Minnesota. Coach Evans' men appeared to have no offense whatever, and the defense was poor except when the ball was directly under the basket, at which time the Evanstonians usually did tighten up and fight.

The game was no test as to what kind of a fighting front Meanwell's men will be able to present against Illinois. Every man appears to be in fairly good shape, and each seems to "know his stuff," but the erratic playing this season makes it difficult to predict as to whether or not the five individuals can coordinate successfully and play the kind of ball that they did agains Illinois here.

Prizes in this event consist of a banner to the team and gold watches to the individuals.

In preparation for the sorority relay race, the most popular event of the evening, some changes have been made in the lineups for the 20 honorary teams. Running as captain of the Kappa Delta team in the place of George Finkle, is Nightingale. Sam Robinson will lead the Alpha Phis instead of Thompson, Gunderson will take the place of Carl Nelson for the Alpha Gamma Deltas, Niederman will run for Robinson on the Gamma Phi team, McClure for Suzuki and Tomlinson for McClure on the Sigma Kappa squad. C. Benson for Otto on the Tri Delt aggregation, and Phillips for Lonegran, representing Chi Omega.

Finkle Forced To Decline Penn State Invite By Injuries

An invitation to George H. Finkle asking him to run in the two-mile special event at the Penn State relays has just been received by Athletic Director Thomas E. Jones. The invitation came from George W. Orton, who is directing the nation's outdoor track and field classic.

Because of Finkle's recent injury, Coach Jones was forced to refuse the proffer. Finkle would have been pitted against such stellar long distance men as the Bunker brothers, of Maine, Romig, of Penn State, and Orton, of Illinois.

Finkle would have done the two miles in 9 minutes 30 seconds," said Coach Jones yesterday. "Romig, one of the best eastern runners, has been negotiating the distance in 5 seconds slower time than Finkle's."

The Badger distance runner, now in a South Bend hospital suffering from a broken leg, will return to Madison with the Badger track and field men who compete at the Illinois relays, Urbana, next Saturday.

Betas Beat Zeta Psi In Frat Semi-Finals

The Betas gave the Zeta Psis a beating last night in the semi-final series of inter-fraternity basketball. The score was 13 to 8.

By winning the game last night, the Betas are assured a place in the finals, and also one of the four cups. They completely outplayed the Zeta Psis, and had the game cinched at the end of the first half. They scored some more points in the beginning of the second half, and then stalled. After that, the Zeta Psis took advantage of the let-up on the part of their opponents, and managed to pile up a few extra points, but it was too late for them to win the game.

Every member of the Beta team played a good game, their center, Nolte, being about the best. The lineups were as follows: Beta, Leberman and Gill, guards; Nolte, center; and Pollock and Fitzgerald, forwards. Zeta Psi, Mahoney, Taft, and Willey, forwards; Stolte, center; Park, and Hartlett, guards.

The Phi Psis were to have played the D. U.'s, but postponed the game until next Monday.

Close Rivalry in All Events is Expected By Natators

ed upon to hold his end up in the back stroke as well and will give Ivy and White of Chicago a battle for the honors. Copeland is also entered in this event.

Wisconsin's record breaking relay quartet will be given a chance to meet the present title holders this evening and the Badger fans are confident that the unbroken string of victories in this event will not be broken this evening. In swimming against the Frosh relay team on Wednesday, the Varsity, with B. F. Shory '24, F. C. Davies '22, J. J. Lamboley '22, and "Johnnie" Bennett '24 doing the four laps, came within less than a second of the present conference record, held by Chicago. The above four men will represent Wisconsin in the banner event tonight. The Maroon relay team will be composed of River, Vandeventer, Gleason, and Blinks.

If Blinks and Bennett are opposed as anchor men in the relay, the fans will witness a real battle when these two stars go into action. J. J. Lamboley will be the Badger hope in the 40 yard swim and he will have to extend himself to keep up his record of victories for he will undoubtedly be pitted against Blinks. Either Story or Sollitt will also swim in the 40.

Bennett and Blinks Rivals

Besides Bennett in the 100 and 220, Wisconsin will have Davies, and Lamboley. However the interest will center around Bennett and Blinks in both of these events and the outcome of the meet may depend upon the results of these two events. A great deal will also depend on how the second and third places go. If either team can gather in a large majority of these, it will offset any lead that the first places may give to the opposing squad.

The Badger squad has a record of three straight victories in swimming meets, having defeated the Milwaukee Athletic club on two occasions and the Illinois squad last week.
