FROM STONE TO STEEL

THOUSANDS of years ago, a skin-clad workman pounded away with a cobblestone on a slab of hard rock. In a few years, that slab might be passably square and smooth.

Today, busy machines, supervised by trained workmen, pare off crisp, curling ribbons from whirling blocks of steel, as one would unwind ribbon from a spool, shaping the metal to a thousand purposes—to an accuracy within a few ten-thousandths of an inch.

CARBOLOY—a modern tool material developed by General Electric research—has made possible this speed, this precision. It cuts materials hitherto unworkable—cuts faster and holds its edge longer than steel tools—can be run at red heat without losing its temper.

CARBOLOY is only one of the contributions made to improved industrial processes by G-E research—research that has saved the public from ten to one hundred dollars for every dollar earned for General Electric.

up and down the hill

HOWDY, howdy, howdy! Here we are, back at that pleasant task of telling you the latest in Campus gossip. We've had a very enjoyable summer and hope that each one of you had the same. . . . This happened in one of Prof. Brown's law classes about two weeks before the close of last semester. Prof. Brown called upon one of his students to discuss a case. The man, who had been day dreaming, did not hear the question. According to Law school tradition, his answer was "Not prepared." The student's name was Lloyd Garrison, dean of the Law school. . . . One of the most spectacular fires in the history of Madison occurred in September when E. J. Young's home on Picnic Point burned to the ground. The firemen were severely handicapped by the lack of water and had to pipe a hose for more than 3000 feet before an adequate supply could be reached. . . . Phi Kappa Psi, one of the oldest fraternities on the Campus, has given up its spacious house on State street and will live in rented quarters this year. Pi Lambda Phi has rented the former Phi Psi house. . . . The entire Memorial Union was closed during the last three weeks of August during which time it received a complete renovating. New sound proofing was built on the cafeteria ceiling to deaden much of the clatter of dishes which used to bother the diners. . . . Helen Theiler, a member of Pi Beta Phi, and Ed Becker, Sigma Chi, ruled over the annual Summer Prom on August 2. Miss Theiler was selected by a committee of judges and she in turn selected her king. . . . The Memorial Union has opened the terrace to cafeteria patrons and it is now possible to dine in perfect comfort on the lovely flag-stone area while enjoying a complete meal. Heretofore, food for terrace users could be obtained only from the Rathskeller. . . . The prolonged meeting of the State legislature forced President Frank to forego his vacation for the fourth year in Subscription to The Wisconsin Alumni Magazine is obtained by membership in The Wisconsin Alumni Association for which annual dues are $4.00, $3.00 of which is for subscription to the magazine. Family rate membership (where husband and wife are alumni) $5.00. Life membership, $50.00, payable within the period of five years. The Association earnestly invites all former students, graduates and non-graduates, to membership. Others may subscribe for the Magazine at same price, $4.00 per year.

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office of Waukesha, Wis., October 19, 1934, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Change of Address must be reported ten days before date of issue. Otherwise the Association will not be responsible for delivery.

Discontinuance—if any subscriber wishes his magazine discontinued at the expiration of his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent with the subscription, or at its expiration. Otherwise it is understood that a continuation is desired.

Believe it or not, twenty-five students assembled in front of the University athletic ticket office before twelve o'clock on the night before the day on which student athletic coupon books were to be sold. By four o'clock in the morning almost one hundred sleepy boys were lined up on the porch of the office waiting for the doors to open. By noon about five hundred boys and girls were wearily standing in a line which reached across the lower campus to State street. The fraternity boys are more than mildly provoked, too, because the residents of the men's dormitories were able to place their orders for books the night before without leaving the dorm quadrangles. . . . Politics and our Alumni

Alumni Must Unite for the Benefit of the University in the Coming Year

by President Glenn Frank

UNTIL the latter days of September appropriations for the University were caught in a legislative log-jam. At one time during the session, a substitute budget bill passed the Senate riding the state support of the University without rhyme or reason back of its action. Neither facts nor figures seemed to have any influence upon those in the Senate who seemed bent upon singling out the University as a pet target. The motives of some of the wrecking crew were so obvious and the financial provisions suggested so extreme that they produced a reaction. The drive to cut the University's support below its present level was stopped. The final outcome of the session was a state budget in which the University, in common with the other institutions of the state, was placed on a continuing appropriations basis. That is to say, the state's support of the University was neither increased nor decreased.

By the utmost care in budgetary planning and with the additional receipts from increased registration plus certain relief from federal funds, it has been possible to enter the new year without disturbing the salary levels by any further decreases. By the next session of the Legislature, we should be in position to move decisively forward.

The baffling riddle of the situation is this: as my colleagues and I have contact with the rank and file of the farmers, the workers, and the business and professional men of the cities and villages of the state, we cannot find the sort of nagging criticism of the University which a band of crusaders and connivers and a few newspapers have lately sought to foster. Had anyone believed the outburst of abuse on the part of certain Senators and certain newspapers a few months ago, a drastic drop in enrollment might have been expected for the coming year. On the contrary, the University has the biggest increase in enrollment the University has had in a good run of years. This is the best referendum on the attitude of the people generally towards the University that could be taken. By mail and by word of mouth I have evidence every week that the people of the State are becoming disgusted with the repeated attempts of a certain clique to "smear" the University only to end their successive "investigations" with the obvious failure to find any ground other than their own unproved assertions for the attacks that start these investigations.

If the great body of Alumni throughout the State took this situation intelligently and vigorously in hand, two years from now I doubt that any legislator could be found who would assume that slugging the University would prove politically popular.

I am not suggesting that the Alumni convert themselves into an organized lobby. I am suggesting that it is an obligation of the Alumni to see to it that the state-wide confidence and pride of the people of Wisconsin in their University be so formulated and given voice in the next two years that this insincere and demagogic slandering of the state's greatest institution shall stop once and for all.

The University has stood the gaff of depression amazingly well. Its internal morale and drive were never better. The people have voiced their judgment of its work in a flood of new students for this year. Granted decent financial support and a moratorium on the baseless heckling from certain forces of the press and politics, the University will move on to a greater and greater future.

The main reading room of the library

Beginning with the November issue The Wisconsin Alumni Magazine will present a series of articles by members of the faculty dealing with interesting subjects in diversified fields. We heartily urge our readers to submit their requests for both subjects and authors in this proposed series. During the year the Magazine will also publish several articles by prominent alumni on subjects of current interest. A third series of stories scheduled to appear during the coming year will tell of interesting and little known works being done about the Campus. This series will also start with the November issue. Be sure and watch for these informative articles which will be of interest to all our readers.

Enrollment Shows Big Increase

*Largest Freshman Class Since 1927;
N. Y. A. Jobs a Big Help to Students*

NOT SINCE 1928 has the University had as many students as were registered at the close of the regular registration period, late in September. At the time of this writing, 9,133 students have enrolled compared with a total registration in 1929 of 9,468, and 8,053 in 1934.

The largest freshman class since 1927 invaded the Campus on September 18 as the annual Freshman Week opened with a program of activities designed to make the critical and delicate transition from secondary school to university as easy and natural as possible for each student. Although classes did not begin until September 25, the first year students were required to be on the Campus a week earlier in order to have an opportunity to become acclimated to University life before the hordes of upperclassmen returned to their studies.

The purpose of Freshman Week is primarily to give freshmen an opportunity to receive first impressions of the University from members of the Faculty who are interested in developing a realization that the University is a human institution and that the Faculty is interested in the problems of the individual students.

The program for the week was carried on under the direction of several hundred members of the faculty and more than 200 upper-class men and women. During the entire period, the new students took part in numerous activities, the most significant of which was the provision for an individual conference for every freshman with a member of the Faculty. This conference was concerned with the general problems which confront the student entering the University environment and with specific problems concerning the individual students as drawn from complete records forwarded by the high school from which the student entered the University.

The remainder of the program provides for registration, the administration of certain placement tests, physical examinations, study lectures, various college assemblies, and a sufficient amount of social and recreational activities.

It is difficult to single out any one cause for the enrollment increase. Perhaps it is a result of the splendid efforts of former registrar, Frank O. Holt, and his University Days in the high schools about the state. It may be the result of better times in general, particularly in the rural areas. Perhaps the lure of National Youth Administration jobs attracted many. Or it might be, and we hope that this is the largest single factor, that our alumni and students have made a more sincere effort than ever before in the past year to "sell" the University to the people of the state in an attempt to combat the relatively large amount of adverse publicity accorded it in the sensational press. At any rate, the increase of 12% is now a matter of history and friends of the University are particularly proud of this splendid show of loyalty on the part of the sons and daughters of Wisconsin.

Financially, the University will be at a disadvantage, as described on other pages of this issue. The Legislature granted the University the same appropriations as were received during the last biennium, namely $2,150,000. The University administration had requested $2,578,000, and the governor had recommended $2,420,000. In view of the increase in the number of students enrolled, this actual decrease in appropriations will work a hardship on all departments and will mean that the budget cuts in force for the past two years will again be operative.

The N. Y. A. is certain to prove to be a tremendous benefit to the student body. More than 2000 applications were received for the 1000 positions which were made available by the Federal government. N. Y. A. supplants the F. E. R. A. of last year. The students employed under this grant may do any type of work from manual labor to scientific research. They are allowed to earn up to $15 a month for undergraduate work and up to $20 a month for the more skilled work of those enrolled in the Graduate School. Students must prove a definite need and a good scholastic average before they are assigned to positions. The project will extend through the entire school year.

Naturally with the substantial increase in enrollment, living quarters have been at a premium. The dormitories were filled late in the summer and now have a long waiting list. Most of the private rooming houses and dormitories report capacity houses at increased rates. Food prices have naturally ascended with those in the rest of the country, and students will probably find that their total cost for the year will be five to ten per cent higher than last year.

One incident which points to a general upturn in business conditions about the state and country is the increased number of student and faculty athletic coupon books which were sold during the registration period. Approximately 6000 student books and 1700 faculty-employee books have been sold at the present time. It doesn't take much stretch of the imagination to predict sell-outs for most of the basketball games this winter unless the second (Please turn to page 32)

"Red" Report Censures Administration

Senators Believe Snell Dismissal Unfair; Request Suppression of Un-Americanisms

EXPULSION from the University or other state educational institutions of all persons or societies "expounding un-American doctrines" was recommended in a report released on September 21 by the special state senate committee which investigated alleged Communistic activities and "other irregularities" at the University and other state institutions.

The report was signed by all five committee members: Sen. E. F. Brunette (D), Green Bay, chairman; Sen. Harry W. Griswold (R), West Salem; Sen. Frank E. Panzer (P), Oakfield; Sen. Harry W. Bolens (D), Port Washington; and Sen. William Shenners Jr. (D), West Allis.

Following are the committee's four recommendations:

1. That hereafter the Board of Regents of the University and the boards of other state educational institutions frown upon activities of all societies not clearly organized as American societies under the constitution, and any society organized with the intent or purpose, full or in part, to change by force or overthrow the constitution, or the American form of government; that individuals or societies offering or expounding un-American doctrines be expelled from the University or other state educational institutions, or be refused their facilities.

2. That the University co-operate with any organization or society whose purpose is the furtherance of Americanism.

3. That constant vigilance be maintained so that the University will promote and co-operate in every effort to secure full and complete information as to anti-American activities, to the end that the name and prestige of the University as a strictly American institution of high ideals and purposes may be known and recognized in Wisconsin and in the nation.

4. That the Board of Regents prevent with strict disciplinary action the efforts of any member or groups in any department to undermine the position, or besmirch the character of any individual, or take part in inter-institutional political maneuvering.

The committee's findings, upon which the recommendations were based, assailed the University administration and Prof. E. A. Ross, University sociologist. University administrative officials were blamed for permitting un-American influences to hold sway on the Campus. Pres. Frank was not named directly in this connection.

The testimony of Prof. Ross was termed "worthless" in the committee's report, which quoted that portion of the testimony in which Ross said he could see no harm in the singing of the Red Internationale at a May Day meeting in the Memorial Union.

At great length, the report quoted from the testimony of Col. Stephen A. Park, executive secretary of the Reserve Officers association, who testified he had found evidence that the long arm of Moscow was reaching into the University of Wisconsin and other American institutions of higher learning.

A large part of the committee's report dwelled upon the dismissal by the regents of Dean Chester D. Snell of the Extension Division. In connection with the Snell case, the report stated that "the entire investigation (of Snell) was unfair."

"It was unfair because Snell was deliberately deceived as to the nature of the investigation," the report continues. "He was never told that charges against him were being investigated by the regents. It was unfair because the committee (of regents) did not apprise him of what transpired in their secret investigations. It was unfair because he was given no opportunity to answer his critics.

"To find a parallel (to the Snell case) we must go to medieval inquisitions or to the present-day Russia," the report declared.

Also in connection with the Snell case, the committee report assailed the practice of the regents and their committees in holding secret sessions, of which no record is made in the board's minutes.

The report admitted that the University's reputation as a "hot-bed of Communism" is "not a true picture of the great mass of the professors, instructors and students who carried on in spite of such un-American influences."

Concerning the Student Committee of 19, which demanded and won the right to appear at a committee hearing in defense of the University, the committee's report said:

"The remarkable thing about their testimony was not their ability to deny the existence of Communistic activities on the University campus, but their absolute ignorance of such activities.

"In other words, these students, who were for the most part, genuine 100 per cent Americans, were, like most of our citizens asleep, and did not know what was going on right under their noses."

Blame for the alleged influence of radicals on the Campus was laid at the door of University officials in the following paragraph from the report:

"The fault for such a condition must be laid at the doors of the administrative officials of the University. Those men and women, whoever they were, are censurable for a lack of clear vision in relation to their duties and responsibilities."

In support of its conclusion that radicalism is rampant on the Campus, the committee report quoted at great length from the program of the May Day rally held in the Memorial Union on Apr. 29, 1934. The report also contains the entire general orders issued to National Student league units, one of which was found on the Campus here.

The testimony given by William H. Haight Jr., a University student and Reserve Officers Training corps officer, was used by the committee to further (Please turn to page 30)

Badgers Lose First Two

Lethargic Team Fails to Function Against South Dakota State and Marquette Squads

by Bob Fleming, '33
Capital Times Sports Staff

Dr. C. W. Spears
Head Coach

POSSESSING supposedly improved material over last year's squad, the 1935 Badgers have dropped their first two games, the first to a scrappy South Dakota State team by a score of 13-6 and the second to Marquette by the lopsided score of 33-0. It now appears that instead of being the "dark horse" of the Western Conference the Wisconsin football team is the "problem child."

The South Dakota opener was exceedingly drab with the "Jackrabbits" doing all the fighting from start to finish. Wisconsin seemed to be far too overconfident of their abilities and did little to show that they were of Big Ten caliber. The players did not block as they had been taught to nor did they tackle with the viciousness of Wisconsin teams in the past. The offense, except for two sustained drives down the field, simply did not function. The generalship on the whole was exceedingly poor. The lone Wisconsin tally came as the result of a pass from Lynn Jordan to Benz, a sophomore end. The other drive the Wisconsin team made ended on the one yard line when South Dakota held for three downs to repulse the Badgers' only really determined drive. The winning South Dakota touchdown came in the final minutes of the game when Miller, South Dakota halfback, intercepted a wild forward pass from Jordan and scampered sixty-five yards down the sidelines without a Wisconsin man touching him.

The story of the Marquette game is quite another tale. The Hilltoppers, denied victory in all their previous encounters with Wisconsin and able to chalk up only eight points in ten games, took the field with fire in their eyes. Every man on the Blue and Gold squad was filled to the brim with confidence, for in this 1935 Marquette squad was the makings of the best team since the famous "Golden Avalanche" of a decade ago.

It is doubtful whether the famous stars on that outstanding team of the twenties could have rolled up as handsome a score with the comparative ease which this year's Avalanche did. Only once did Wisconsin look like the team everybody hoped they would be. That was early in the first quarter when Wisconsin received the ball after an exchange of punts and on two tries advanced the ball more than forty yards. But from there on in the offense stopped functioning. Once again the blocking was ineffectual and the tackling only half-hearted.

On the other hand, every member of the Marquette team performed like a machine. The line opened huge holes and the backs cut a swath in the Wisconsin secondary every time the ball carrier swept around the ends. Ray Buivid, halfback, and Bell, end, were Marquette's most outstanding players, harassing the Wisconsin defense and offense all afternoon. For the Badgers, Eddie Jankowski, halfback, and John Golemgenske, tackle, stood out distinctly from the rest of the pack.

With these two stinging defeats under their belts, the Badgers face a Herculean task to build a team which will meet with the fair amount of success which was predicted for them before the season opened. Notre Dame's speedy eleven is to be met before you read this, on October 12. Following this, Michigan and Chicago are scheduled for successive Saturdays. November 2 is an open date followed by Purdue, Northwestern and the brilliant Minnesota team in that order.

As yet, no one has the answer to the problem. Many theories have been advanced but none holds sufficient water to be conclusive. This year's team has the ability. They have the coaching of an able coaching staff. They have the brains. Maybe this Saturday or next their offense will click, and if it does, this lethargic animal should be able to shake off its lazy ways and play real football.

Death Stalks the Faculty

Dr. A. S. Alexander

DR. ALEXANDER SEPTIMUS ALEXANDER, 75, famed University of Wisconsin veterinarian, died early June 12 at his home in Madison. He had been ill for several months.

Doctor Alexander was connected with the University in various capacities for more than 30 years. In 1901, he was special lecturer in veterinary science; in 1903 he became a regular instructor; in 1905, he started and directed the department of horse breeding of the College of Agriculture; and in 1912, he was made full professor of veterinary science. In 1930, he retired from active University service and in 1932 he was made emeritus professor.

Most widely renowned for his work in developing high standards in American horse breeding, Dr. Alexander's interests and activities were not confined to veterinary science. He was a painter in water colors and oils, a writer of verse, a well-known contributor to farm papers and magazines, and a nature lover. On the Campus, his jovial wit and helpful interest in students was a tradition. He was known as one of the most popular men in the College of Agriculture, and in 1930 his portrait was hung in Agricultural Hall.

He was the author of the Wisconsin stallion registration law, the first of its kind in America, and one of the most influential factors in raising the standards of horse breeding in the country as a whole. It has been copied by virtually every state in the union.

Prof. C. E. Mendenhall

PROF. CHARLES ELWOOD MENDENHALL, 63, famed University of Wisconsin physicist, died on September 1 in a Madison hospital after long illness.

His death removed from world science one of its most distinguished scholars and experimentalists and from the University campus one of its oldest teachers in point of service. He had taught here for 34 years.

In the field of specialization and experimentation, his success was equally significant to the march of science for he made valuable contributions to the world's knowledge of radiation and the theory of metals. His reputation as a teacher was nationwide, particularly his training of graduate students, men and women prepared to devote their lives to science. Some of the most eminent of the younger generation of scientists were his pupils here.

National recognition came often to Dr. Mendenhall. For many years he was a valued member of the physical science division of the National Society for the Advancement of Science, and later served as chairman of the physics section. He was elected to the presidency of the American Physical society and served for two years, 1923 to 1925. Membership in the nation's leading intellectual societies poured in to him, and he accepted a place in the National Academy of Science, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Philosophical society.

After early education in the schools of Columbus, Dr. Mendenhall took his bachelor of science degree from Rose Polytechnic institute, Terre Haute, Ind. in 1894, and four years later Johns Hopkins university granted him the degree of doctor of philosophy. The young physicist served briefly with the U. S. coast survey, taught a year at the University of Pennsylvania, three years at Williams college, and then came to the University of Wisconsin as an assistant professor in 1901. In 1903 he was advanced to associate professor, in 1905 to full professorship, and a few years later to the chairmanship of the department.

During his student days, Dr. Mendenhall was elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary organization for general scholarly excellence, and to Sigma Xi, honorary graduate scientific organization.

On Feb. 14, 1906, Dr. Mendenhall was married to Dorothy M. Reed, Talcottville, N. Y., who is herself now a noted physician and scientist. Besides his widow, he leaves two sons, Thomas Corwin, a Rhodes scholar at Oxford university and John Talcott, a medical student at Harvard university.

During the world war, Dr. Mendenhall served as major in the science and research division of the signal corps. He was transferred later to the work of testing scientific instruments for the division of aviation. From the close of the war to July, 1919, he was scientific attache to the American legation in London.

Prof. Max Griebisch

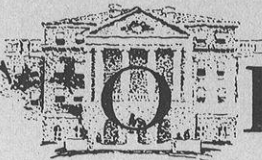

MAX GRIEBSCH, 74, emeritus professor of German at the University, and an internationally known figure in the field of German pedagogy, died on September 13 in a hospital near Munich, Germany. He had been in ill health for several months. About a year ago he retired from the University and returned to his home in Pilnitz, Germany, near Dresden. He had planned, however, to return to Madison in the near future.

Through his work in German pedagogy, Prof. Griebisch succeeded in extending influence over a wide group of students and teachers in the United States. He was the founder and for many years editor of "Monatsheft Fur Deutschen Unterricht," a pedagogical journal for teachers of German. He founded the journal in 1899 at Milwaukee, and was its editor up to the time of his retirement after summer school last year.

Prof. Griebisch had been at the University since 1927. Previously he had years of educational work in Ohio, Indiana, and in Milwaukee. When he came here in 1927, a $220,000 fund, together with a library of 5,000 volumes, several traveling scholarships and funds for main-

"Whatever may be the limitations which trammel inquiry elsewhere, we believe that the great state University of Wisconsin should ever encourage that continual and fearless sifting and winnowing by which alone the truth can be found." (From a report of the Board of Regents in 1894.)

A Biased Report

AFTER months of investigation, the senate committee investigating the charges of communism, atheism, and similar subversive influences at the University has presented its report to fellow senators.

To anyone who did not follow the various hearings carefully, the report would appear to be a severe indictment of the University administration. However, to those in close touch with the entire proceedings, the report is clearly that of a group which apparently had decided the tone of its findings long before any investigations were made.

The committee blatantly proclaims that the majority of the faculty members believed that ousted Dean Snell was railroaded from office and treated most unfairly. In reality 27 members of the faculty were called to testify. Not all of these individuals agreed with the committee's findings. 27 out of 100 on the Milwaukee Extension Center faculty and more than 1200 on the regular University faculty! Certainly the committee presumed much that was not evident in the testimony.

The senators also dismissed the vital evidence presented by the student committee of nineteen whose representatives were accorded the privilege of being heckled by the inquisitors, although Edward Haight, not a member of the student committee, appeared and was permitted to talk for almost an hour, generalizing on the N. S. L. and L. I. D. national organizations. He offered little to prove definite activities on the Campus. When the student representatives were called, the committee treated them most discourteously, curtailed their testimony, and did its best to befuddle them. The majority of the committee left the hearing room during the presentation of the student testimony and by the time the last few members of the student committee were called, only Deputy Attorney General Hirschberg was present to conduct the hearing.

These students were not and are not asleep to the fact that a handful of pseudo-radicals were active on the Campus. They attempted to tell the investigators that the influence of this small group was not felt about the Hill. Little opportunity was given them to testify in full, however, until Caryl Morse, president of the Student Church Council, gave the only remaining member of the committee, Mr. Hirschberg, a most severe tongue lashing, and the deputy attorney general was too flabbergasted to make reply.

The investigating committee dismissed Prof. Ross' testimony with a few words, probably because its members were unable to get the genial professor to say the things they wanted him to say.

All in all, the report was sorely disappointing. It might well have been written the day after the committee was appointed. It might well have been written by the reporter of a state Hearst newspaper who was permitted to sit with the committee and make suggestions as to possible questions to be asked.

Wisconsin alumni should never again permit such a ridiculous spectacle to take place.

Our Diminishing Faculty

ONCE again death has run rampant in the University faculty leaving holes which will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill. Since June, five outstanding members of the Faculty have been called by the Grim Reaper, Dean Charles R. Bardeen, Prof. C. E. Mendenhall, Prof. Max Griebisch, Prof. A. S. Alexander, and Prof. R. E. Neil Dodge. Each of these men had for years been an integral part of the University community. Each gave unstintingly of his time and learning in the never ending building of a greater Wisconsin. The University will miss the counsel, the scholarly endeavors, and the spirit of these four leaders in their respective fields.

Each year a half dozen or more of our key professors are lost by death or by resignation. Alumni of even a few years ago cannot return to the Campus and find their old professors still in active work. We cannot stop death from overtaking our scholars, but we can and should do something definite about stopping the raids of neighboring institutions upon our already depleted staff.

Faculty salaries are governed by the legislative appropriations. At present, and for some years in the past, these biennial appropriations have not been sufficient to retain many of the more brilliant members of the staff at salaries which are at all comparable to those paid by other universities. Alumni, particularly Wisconsin residents, should take it upon themselves to fully inform their legislative representatives of the necessity of paying adequate faculty salaries.

You Now Have a New Job

WITH this first issue of the 1935-36 school year we wish to broadcast an appeal to all our alumni, whether you be members of the Association or not, to send the Magazine news of yourself and your classmates. This is your magazine and it is through your efforts that alumni the world over are kept informed regarding the activities of their former classmates. Each one of you is hereby appointed Number One reporter for the gathering of alumni news. Your first assignment is a story about your own activities. Your story is due today.

Dr. H. S. Gasser Named Director of Rockefeller Medical Institute

THE appointment of Dr. Herbert S. Gasser, '10, as Medical Director of the Rockefeller Institute was a deserved tribute not only to the scientific ability of this eminent physiologist but to the university from which he came. In 1911 he took his master's degree in physiology and was at once made an assistant in that department. He remained a year longer as instructor in physiology and then went to Johns Hopkins where in 1915 he received his medical degree. He then returned to the University of Wisconsin this time as instructor in Pharmacology. In 1916 he was called to the department of physiology at Washington University Medical School, St. Louis, where he served until 1921. He was then made professor of Pharmacology at the same school. This position he held until he was invited to be Professor and Director of the Physiological laboratories of Cornell University Medical School in 1931. His present appointment is thus seen to be the last in a long line of continued promotions.

In addition to the wide experience Dr. Gasser has had in American universities he has profited by repeated visits abroad and by time spent in the laboratories of A. V. Hill in London and Lapicque in Paris.

Dr. Gasser's own researches began at Wisconsin on circulatory problems. His studies on blood volume carried out at the University aided very materially in the understanding of surgical shock. These were followed by investigations on tissue oxidations. In later years he has devoted his energies to muscle nerve physiology. With Erlanger of St. Louis he has achieved international fame for his development of the cathode ray tube as a physiological instrument. This enabled him to study conduction in nerves in a more careful way than had ever before been attempted. The generalization that velocities depend on the diameter of fibers was one of the more important findings.

To his new tasks as Director of the Rockefeller Institute Dr. Gasser brings a mind particularly fitted to deal with fundamental medical problems. His advice and council has long been sought by his colleagues in many fields. His appointment means in all probability a shift in the manner of approach to medical research not only at the Rockefeller but throughout the country. Studies of structure alone will give way to studies of function and structure. Developments will be from within out rather than from without in.

Dr. Gasser is a member of the Council of the American Physiological Society and associate editor of the American Journal of Physiology as well as Physiological Reviews.

State Farmers Honor Delwiche

BECAUSE Edmund J. Delwiche, '06, of the field crops staff of the University of Wisconsin has produced improved crop varieties and has employed better practices to develop better farms, more prosperous communities, and happier farm families, the farmers of four counties in the Lake Superior country have placed a bronze tablet, citing these facts, on a huge field boulder on the Ashland branch of the State Experiment Stations.

As superintendent of the three experiment stations located at Ashland, Spooner, and Sturgeon Bay, Delwiche has been able to aid the settlers of upper Wisconsin as they have grappled with the task of building farms out of cut over tracts left in the wake of the lumbermen's logging operations.

Addressing them in their local farmers' institutes, meeting with them in their group conferences, and conferring with them upon their individual farms, Delwiche has been able to serve them winter and summer alike for the past twenty-five years. It was in recognition of just this service that these farmers honored their counsellor and friend at the Farmers' Field Day held at Ashland one day the past summer. Naturally enough, they placed high up upon the tablet these words, "He serves best who forgets self."

Home Remodeling Wins Prizes

MISS GENEVIEVE HENDRICKS, '15, who seems to have the knack of doing interesting and different things all of the time, recently won two medals for the best remodeling work done in the District of Columbia during the past year. The medals were presented by Good Housekeeping as prizes in a nation-wide contest.

Miss Hendricks has been in the interior decorating and house remodeling business ever since her graduation from the University. She has remodeled some thirty of the old houses in and about Washington, D. C., during the past few years. Many interesting antiques and valuable historical data has been discovered by her in the course of remodeling these century old homes. An article on her remodeling work will appear in a forthcoming issue of the Decorator's Digest, the organ of the American Institute of Decorators.

Dr. Herbert S. Gasser, '10
New Medical Research Director

Appointed Virgin Island Governor

THE Virgin Islands have been a source of persistent trouble for the national administration ever since President Hoover referred to them as a poorhouse. In more recent years, severe political strife has caused the islanders to be in a constant state of uproar. To quell this raging sea, President Roosevelt has poured oil on the waters, the oil being in the form of the appointment as governor general of Lawrence W. Cramer, '23, former lieutenant governor of the islands.

Cramer went to the islands in this latter capacity in 1931 after teaching at Columbia university for five years. His work kept him on the island of St. Croix, far from the political turmoil of the capitol. He is a world war veteran, having served for two years with 120th Field Artillery. He wrote one book, "The Diplomatic Background of the World War," while at Columbia.

His appointment was nearly refused when some of the senators objected to his supposed sponsorship of a book written by Frances and Mason Merrill, '21 and ex '26, "Among the Nudists." He explained however, that the statement contained in the foreword of the book was placed there without his permission and the doubting Thomases in the senate finally O. K.'d his selection.

Nelson Heads United States Vitamin Bureau

DR. E. M. NELSON, '23, has been transferred from the bureau of chemistry and soils to become chief of the newly established vitamin division of the Food and Drug administration of the U. S. department of agriculture at Washington.

While a student in agricultural chemistry at Wisconsin, Nelson's major interest was in the field of nutrition, principally vitamins. In 1926, he was appointed associate chemist in the bureau of chemistry at Washington and has been conducting and supervising nutrition experiments in that department.

His position in the field of vitamin study was recognized when he was selected as a delegate to represent the United States at the Conference on Vitamin Standardization of the health committee of the League of Nations in 1934. Nelson is also a member of the Council of Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical association.

Directs Social Security Program

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT again turned to Wisconsin for assistance when, in the closing days of the recently adjourned congress, he announced the selection of Arthur J. Altmeyer, '14, as one of the three members of the newly created board for the administration of the social security program.

Altmeyer has been a member of the Roosevelt sub-cabinet for the last year and a half, acting as second assistant secretary of labor. His work in this department has attracted very favorable comment and it is rumored that he may be appointed chairman of the new board. Prior to his work with the department of labor, he served as chief of the NRA compliance board for about a year.

Altmeyer is a native of De Pere, Wisconsin. He was secretary of the Wisconsin Industrial commission for a number of years and resigned from this post to accept his position in the Roosevelt administration.

He Can Make or Break Markets

TO a former Madison man, once chief of the Wisconsin crop reporting service, the federal government passed the nerve-wracking task of handling figures that can, and sometimes have, boomed or broken the world's commodity markets. The man is Joseph A. Becker, '14, and his job is chief of the federal crop reporting board. He will succeed William F. Callander, who held the post for 12 years before he was promoted to be assistant administrator of the AAA.

On the former Wisconsin director, who has been with the federal board since 1918, will rest responsibility for accuracy of crop production estimates which in a split second after their release are flashed to the world markets.

Hours before each periodic report, the chief and his staff lock themselves in a suite of rooms and go to work on a mass of data gathered from agents throughout the country. On major reports they often go to work the afternoon before and stay on the job through the night and most of the next day. Doors are locked, window shades drawn, and telephones disconnected. Those precautions have been taken since, some years ago, a clerk passed advance information to confederates outside by manipulating a shade. A tip on the report might be worth millions to speculators.

Only last month a New York businessman who thought he knew how to take a short cut through the agriculture building strolled into the crop board's section at 9:15 a. m. A new guard let him in, but knew enough not to let him out again. The businessman fretted and fumed, but he didn't get out until after the grain production report was released at 3 p. m.

Burhop Elected Association Director

W. H. BURHOP, '13, secretary of Employers Mutuals of Wausau, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Alumni Association to fill the position left vacant by the resignation of Prof. F. H. Elwell. Prof. Elwell, although duly elected to the board in the election last spring will be unable to serve because of the additional duties handed him with his appointment as Director of the School of Commerce. Mr. Burhop was next in line in the number of votes received, so his election became automatic with the resignation of Prof. Elwell.

Wickhem Heads Young Democrats

THE Young Democratic Clubs of America, at their national convention in Milwaukee during August, elected Frank Wickhem, Law '27, as their new president for the coming year. When Wickhem's name was placed in nomination, his supporters paraded around the convention hall for ten minutes. When, after a sharp fight reminiscent of old time conventions, his election was announced, another demonstration took place. Hoisted on willing shoulders, he was carried to the speakers' rostrum where he made a brief speech of acceptance.

The newly-elected president is at present assistant United States attorney of Sioux Falls, South Dakota. He took his undergraduate work in Beloit college before entering the University Law school.

Assumes New AAA Duties

CALLED to supervise the potato control act, Dr. J. B. Hutson, M. S. '23, is assuming still greater responsibility in the agricultural adjustment program, of which he has been a prominent figure from the beginning of this new national policy in agriculture.

Dr. Hutson was made director of tobacco adjustment when the crop control programs were launched in 1933. Later he became head of the division for the adjustment of tobacco, sugar, rice and peanuts. Now potatoes have been added to the list of major crops under his supervision.

Dr. Hutson was born in Kentucky, where he received his common school education and where he farmed several years. His interest in better farming led him to enter the College of Agriculture at the University of Kentucky in 1913, where he was graduated in 1917. He received his master's degree from Wisconsin in 1923 and his doctor's degree from Columbia University in 1930.

Following graduation from the Kentucky College of Agriculture he was employed in farm economics work in that state, and then began a study of the tobacco industry in Europe. He was engaged in this work for the United States Department of Agriculture when he was made director of the tobacco adjustment program.

Youth Conquers Severe Handicaps

NINE cents in his pocket, one hand gone as the result of a dynamite explosion in his childhood and with his vision seriously damaged in the same accident, a young man from a Wisconsin Rapids farm came to Madison a little over a year ago. Today, through his own efforts, he is entirely self-supporting and has set out to put himself through the University of Wisconsin. He is William Van Lyssel, a freshman student in the college of letters and science.

He came to Madison for treatment at the Wisconsin General hospital. Specialists there improved his vision to the extent that he is now able to read. He was practically blind during most of his youth. During eight consecutive months at the hospital Van Lyssel won the friendship of the staff, nurses and student employees. He began to run errands for officials and became widely known and liked.

Discharged from the hospital in mid-winter, he was faced with the necessity of earning a living. One of the oldest of a family of 11 children, whose parents were having their own financial troubles, he could expect no aid from home. He decided to stay in Madison and conceived the idea of selling small articles of everyday use at the hospital where he had been a patient. Beginning with candies, cigarets, soap, tooth paste and similar items, he gradually expanded his little business until in February, at the opening of the second semester of the university session he had saved enough for fees and books.

Delay Selection of Association Secretary

DUE to delays over which the committee had no control, the successor to Herman M. Egstad, '17, resigned general secretary of the Association, has not been appointed. It is expected that a new secretary will be named by the time the November magazine goes to press and that the official announcement of this selection will be made in that issue.

The election committee, appointed last June by the Board of Directors, has held three meetings to date. At the last two of these, the thirteen candidates for the position were interviewed and given an opportunity to present their proposed programs. The next, and final, meeting of the committee will be held within a week or two.

Members of this committee are Myron T. Harshaw, '12, Chicago, president of the Association; Walter Alexander, '97, Milwaukee, vice-president of the Association; Basil I. Peterson, '12, Menomonee Falls, Association treasurer; Judge Evan A. Evans, '97, Chicago, past president of the Association; and Howard Greene, '16, Genesee Depot, Wis.

Many Schools Hear U. W. Radio

With the opening of school this fall the sound of the chimes on the radio is becoming as familiar as the clang of the recess bell. During the past year hundreds of schools have installed radio receivers to tune in the broadcasts coming from the University campus in Madison.

More than 40,000 boys and girls in schools heard the Wisconsin School of the Air broadcasts each week last year. Teachers have learned to look upon the radio as a source of timely information to supplement and enrich their teaching. It is regarded as a library which speaks for itself.

The Wisconsin School of the Air is now offering twelve series of broadcasts for classroom use each week. They are inspirational in character, rather than strictly instructional, and as such serve to motivate activity in various studies. These programs are on the air each week:

Mon. 9:35 A. M.—
Afield With Ranger Mac.

Mon. 2:05 P. M.—
Nature Tales.

Tue. 9:35 A. M.—
Story Time For Little Folks.

Tue. 2:05 P. M.—
Dramatic Moments In History.

Wed. 9:35 A. M.—Little Stories of Great Lives.

Wed. 2:05 P. M.—Journeys in Music Land.

Thur. 9:35 A. M.—Creative Art.

Thur. 2:05 P. M.—Exploring Distant Lands.

Fri. 9:35 A. M.—Rhythm and Dramatic Games.

Fri. 2:05 P. M.—The Dial News.

Sat. 8:30-9:30 A. M.—Instrumental Lessons for Beginners.

High School Programs:

Mon. and Wed. 1:30 P. M.—Gems of Literature.

Fri. 1:30 P. M.—American Problems.

The programs in this series are all broadcast from Radio Hall on the Campus. Many teachers and students find thrills in visiting the studios and watching the broadcasts as they are staged. Visitors are always welcome.

The Wisconsin School of the Air was started in 1931 by H. B. McCarty (MA-'30), WHA program director. In its fifth year it offers a wider variety of supplementary broadcasts than ever before.

High school listeners have two new series, Gems of Literature and American Problems. These are offered in response to requests for more help in social science and English.

School of Journalism Receives High Rating

The University's School of Journalism was rated "Class A" for both its professional and pre-professional work in training newspapermen and women in a tabulation of 33 American schools and departments of journalism recently made by the National Printer-Journalist, national newspaper trade publication.

In making the classification, the magazine announced that the working standards of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism formed the framework for the ratings. Standards for rating the non-professional groups were based on the standings of institutions and instructors and the general value of the work in the publication field.

Dr. Willard G. Bleyer, head of the Wisconsin school of journalism and dean of the nation's journalism teachers, was given recognition by the magazine for his work in building up the school's curriculum.

Drama Bureau Serves Nearly 500 Communities

A year's work in promoting community drama aspirations throughout Wisconsin is summarized in the annual report of the bureau of dramatic activities, University Extension division.

According to Miss Ethel Rockwell, the director, 484 communities, nearly equalling the total of Wisconsin cities and villages, were served by this University agency, and there was a record also of similar aid given to persons in 36 other states.

A total of 23,359 plays and books on drama were sent to residents of Wisconsin, and 580 plays were sent to persons in other states.

Thirteen drama institutes, ten short course classes in ten-day institutes, and one class of ten meetings were conducted in cities of the state.

The bureau staged three plays and three pageants, 27 plays through the Wisconsin Dramatic guild; wrote and published two pageants and promoted the writing of 17 prize-winning original plays and a total of 66 plays submitted in the original play contest of the guild. On the Madison campus the bureau sponsored the annual Dramatic and Speech institute, a twelve-day course which drew students from many states.

Drama promotion also was furthered through visits of the director to many communities, through six radio talks, and through more than 2,000 letters concerning projects and methods for introducing original drama into the life of communities through local group activities.

Ag School Produces New Farm Feed Mill

A new type farm feed mill that will run for hours without an attendant, that is economical in its use of power, that takes its grain from feed bins above, and that can be manufactured to sell for a fraction of what hammer mills cost, has been developed by F. W. Duffee, H. D. Bruhn, and associates of the University of Wisconsin experiment station.

Because this mill is small, the rate of grinding is necessarily rather slow. It would be expensive to have an operator in attendance all the time, and for this reason everything about the mill has been designed with the idea of making it automatic. It has a special feeding device, a safety release to permit pieces of metal or small stones to go through without serious damage to the machine, and a construction that holds the burrs apart in case the mill runs empty.

The new mill is economical of power, as measured by the amount of grain it will grind to a given fineness with a unit of power.

The experimental machine was made from a buhr mill that sells for about $9. Improvements and supplementary equipment will bring up the cost, but it is believed that manufacturers should be able to produce the improved mill to retail at well under $30.

Arboretum Development Receives CCC Aid

Greater development of the 600-acre University arboretum, which is located near the University on Lake Wingra, is seen as a result of the sending of 200 CCC men to work in the area by the national park service.

The arboretum constitutes one of the nation's largest outdoor laboratories for experimental research on vital conservation problems facing state and nation today. Started by the University in 1933, in the short space of two years it has been enlarged to about 600 acres, and within its borders a number of important conservation experiments are being carried on.

Research on conservation problems which the arboretum makes possible is important to Wisconsin, which must constantly guard its reputation as the resort center of the middlewest. The state's forests and streams annually bring to the state thousands of tourists and vacationists, and the resort business is considered among the state's largest industries.

Research in the arboretum is conducted under the general supervision of Prof. William Longenecker, executive director of the project, and Prof. Aldo Leopold, nationally known game conservationist.

Extension Offers New Wood Products Course

The principal facts about the characteristics of wood and its uses, evolved from researches made at the U. S. Forest Products laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, are embodied in a course of study offered through correspondence by the Extension division of the State University. The course, The Properties and Uses of Wood, was prepared and is taught by the now famous Arthur Koehler, wood technologist, Forest Products laboratory, and lecturer in forest products at the University.

This study centers on those characteristics and properties of wood which can be applied by the forester in selecting the more useful kinds of timber to grow, and by the lumber manufacturer, dealer, and consumer in effecting more efficient utilization of forest products.

Mr. Koehler believes that a more economical use of wood can be accomplished and more serviceable products can be made from wood by applying accurate information regarding its possibilities and limitations. He also believes that much can be done toward postponing or avoiding a timber famine through better wood utilization. Because of the keen competition between wood and other raw products used in manufacturing, technical information about wood is necessary if it is to hold its rightful markets and gain legitimate new ones.

Those for whom the course is intended include the manufacturer and dealer, inspector, architect, engineer, carpenter, cabinet-maker, and wood-worker.

Alumni Association Aids in Publishing University Booklet

A 32-page booklet, describing the University of Wisconsin was mailed this summer to educators, alumni, and prospective students throughout the state. The publication, sponsored jointly by the Wisconsin Alumni association, the Men's Union, and the citizens of Madison, is printed in two colors and is plentifully illustrated with campus and Madison scenes and with pictures of prominent alumni and faculty members.

A foreword, signed by Herbert Terwilliger, president of the Men's Union; Lois Montgomery, president of the Women's Self-Government association; Myron T. Harshaw, '12, Association president; Paul Stark, of the Association of Commerce; and Mayor James R. Law, expressed the hope that the booklet "may make its readers see as we, who have attended the university and live with it see, the great service of the institution to the state and the matchless opportunities it offers to Wisconsin's sons and daughters."

Harry Thoma, editor of the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine, supervised publication of the booklet. Copies of the booklet may be obtained by sending ten cents in coin or stamps to the Wisconsin Alumni Association.

This and That ABOUT THE FACULTY

NAMES of members of the University history department will appear on many new books which will be published during the next year according to reports which each member of the department recently submitted on his work to Prof. PAUL Knaplund, chairman of the department.

Professor Knaplund himself has completed a book entitled "Gladstone's Foreign Policy" which will be published this fall. The book is based on extensive researches in the private papers of the great English liberal statesman to which Professor Knaplund was the first American scholar to have unlimited access. The book reveals Gladstone as a friend of peace, as an upholder of the political and economic inter-relationship of nations, and as an opponent of big armaments.

Professor Knaplund has also been engaged for several years in writing a history of the British Empire since 1815. He has made several trips to England to collect material for this work. It is about three-quarters finished and will be published by Harpers.

"History of the United States to 1865" is the title of a text by Prof. JOHN D. HICKS to be published by Houghton-Mifflin next spring as a companion volume to Prof. Frederic L. Paxson's "Recent History of the United States," a revised edition of which will appear at the same time. Prof. Hicks is joint-author with Benjamin Wright, Jr., and Avery O. Craven of a small volume of essays entitled, "Source of Culture in the Middle West," which was published last year.

An attempt to re-evaluate the evidence which has condemned Grant's administrations as the most corrupt in American annals has been made by Prof. W. B. HESSELTINE in his book, "Ulysses B. Grant, Politician." An interpretation of Grant's political career in the light of the economic and social forces which were changing American life after the Civil war, the book will be published in September as a part of the "American Political Leader" series being edited by Prof. Allan Nevins of Columbia university.

In the field of American colonial history, Prof. CURTIS P. NETTELS published last year "The Money Supply of the American Colonies before 1720." At present Professor Nettels is writing a general history of the colonies which will be published sometime during the next two years. He has been working on the volume since 1924, having spent one summer in London doing research work in the English libraries and a summer investigating material in the Harvard library and the Massachusetts archives.

Prof. A. A. VASILIEV has completed the second volume of a Byzantine history which will be published in Brussels at the end of the year. The Medieval Academy of America has accepted his manuscript for a book entitled, "The Goth in Crimea." "The Foundation of the Empire of Trebizond" will be published in Europe soon.

Professor Vasiliev is now working on a history of the Empire of Trebizond, a study of the reign of Justin I, and an edition of the Arab text and a French translation of the history of a Christian Arabian historian of the 11th century.

A life of Napoleon is being written by Prof. C. P. HIGBY for the series of historical biographies being edited by Prof. C. J. H. Hayes of Columbia. He is also working on another book dealing with the reports of Americans in Europe during the period of Napoleon. In preparing for this work, Professor Higby has read all the diplomatic correspondence of the period and most of the consular reports in the archives at Washington in addition to the records in the American Embassy in Paris and the manuscripts of the Library of Congress.

Prof. R. L. REYNOLDS and Prof. HILMAR KRUEGER of the Milwaukee extension have nearly completed the work of deciphering and translating the archives of the Italian city of Genoa. These archives are important as almost the only source of medieval economic history. In connection with this work they have compiled a dictionary of hundreds of the unusual or difficult words used by medieval business men and their legal advisers.

RALPH NAFZIGER, '20, professor of journalism, has been granted a leave of absence for the coming year during which time he will be a member of the journalism faculty at the University of Minnesota. FRED E. MERWIN will take Nafziger's place.

WHEN the last blue book passed into the limbo of things past on the final day of the 1935 summer session, DEAN SCOTT H. GOODNIGHT had completed his twenty-fifth year as director of the session. During his regime as director the session has grown from an enrollment of 1200 to one of 5500, three years ago. The past session had approximately 4200 in attendance.

W I T H T H E Badger Sports

WISCONSIN'S "New Deal" for sports, inaugurated when minor sports were returned to an intercollegiate basis last spring, was administered to the wrestling team with the appointment of GEORGE MARTIN, former Iowa State ace, as full time coach. Martin brings with him a fine record as both coach and wrestler. He was Big Six conference champion for two successive years. He captained the Iowa State team in his senior year and won the National Intercollegiate and the A. A. U. titles.

Martin succeeds Paul Gerling, wrestling mentor for the past two seasons, who was employed on a part time basis. A nucleus of experienced men plus a squad of ambitious freshmen will answer Martin's call for candidates in the fall. Heading the list is Capt. Randy Haase, who won six of eight dual matches last year and placed third in the Big Ten championships in the 118 pound division. Lou Popuch and Dave Mesiroff, both minor letter winners, will be back, as will Lee Scharff, Cole, George Feinberg, and Ed Walsh, all of whom wrestled last year.

The most serious losses to the team are Fred Wenzel, second high scorer who withdrew from school in the middle of the semester, and Capt. Matt Regner. The sophomore candidates include some men who have had as much experience as the varsity men. Lederman, Beecher, Tom Moore, and Mead will probably win positions on the team.

ALTHOUGH DR. WALTER E. MEANWELL, director of athletics, thought he was forsaking basketball when he assumed his new duties a year ago, he was sadly mistaken for he now has one of the most important basketball posts in the country, chairman of the Olympic games basketball committee. The committee will formulate plans for the selection of the United States' representatives as well as for the conduct of the games in Germany next year.

WISCONSIN athletes walked off with more than their share of honors in the annual state tennis and swimming meets held in Madison this summer. ROY BLACK, captain of the University team last season captured the men's singles title and then paired with PAUL BAUHS to take the doubles title. "IKE" SIMONSEN, captain-elect of the swimming team, topped the field in the diving event in the swimming meet. DILLE, a member of the freshman swimming team took third in the 100 yard back stroke and DOYN and INMAN, varsity swimmers, were members of the victorious West Allis relay team.

PROBABLY the biggest sport news of the summer months as far as Wisconsin fans were concerned was the election of COACH "DOC" SPEARS as one of the three coaches of the college All-Stars for the game against the Chicago Bears professional team. After staying just outside the running for several weeks, "DOC" was boosted into third place through the loyal support of thousands of Wisconsin alumni and sport followers. Frank Thomas of Alabama won the head coach position and, in addition to Dr. Spears, had as his assistants, Coaches Madigan of St. Mary's and Bachman of Michigan State. Spears received a total of 2,280,418 points in the poll, certainly a great tribute to the splendid reputation of Wisconsin's coach.

George Martin
New Wrestling Coach

WITH five regulars returning and some excellent reserves, the 1936 Wisconsin boxing team is expected to be every bit as strong as the 1935 National champions. The returning veterans will be GEORGE STUPAR, 135; GORDON HARMAN, 155; CHARLES ZYNDA, 165; NICK DEANOVICH, 175; and JIM WRIGHT, heavyweight. Harman and Zynda were unbeaten last year and Stupar lost but one doubtful decision. RALPH RUSSELL, bantamweight ace of the 1935 team was graduated in June and NICK DIDIER, undefeated 145 pounder, is not expected to return to school.

Next season, Wisconsin will again take on some of the strongest ring squads in the country. The list includes Penn State, which won the 1935 Eastern intercollegiate championship and annually turns out teams that are among the country's best; Maryland, undefeated last year; Pittsburgh, always a formidable opponent in any sport; North Dakota, which has won the Minneapolis Golden Glove tournament for two years; and Michigan State, which turned out a fine team in its first season, a year ago. Syracuse will be met at Syracuse; the others in the Wisconsin field house.

In addition, the Badgers will send a full team to the National Collegiate tournament, held every fourth year, to select collegiate boxers to compete in the final American Olympic tryouts. This 1936 ring classic will be held at the University of Virginia, March 27 and 28. In addition, there is a possibility that the Badgers will be offered a trip to meet the Pacific Coast conference champions, during the spring vacation.

RUSSELL RIPPE, coach at Wisconsin High school for the past six years, has been named freshman football coach by the Athletic Board. Rippe has had a splendid record while coaching the high school teams in all sports. He did part time work in the University's department of physical education during the past six years. He is a graduate of La Crosse normal school.

- ## Deaths
- RICHARD F. HAMILTON, '95, former assistant attorney general of Wisconsin and an outstanding criminal and civil lawyer of New Mexico, died at his home in Deming, N. M., August 23. He would have been 66 years old the day following his death, since he was born August 24, 1869. Political offices held by Mr. Hamilton included three terms as mayor of Deming, district attorney of Green Lake county, and two terms as assistant attorney general of the state, the second term during the administration of the elder Robert M. LaFollette as governor.
- Among the outstanding cases conducted by Mr. Hamilton was the defense of 16 members of Pancho Villa's forces brought from Mexico by General John J. Pershing to face murder charges as the result of the famous Columbus border raid just before the war; this case was won after six other Villistas had been convicted and hanged.
He also had an outstanding record as a prosecutor.
- Survivors are Mrs. Hamilton; two sons,
Alexander R. Hamilton of San Bernardino, Calif., and John Hamilton of Deming; and one daughter, Mrs. E. G. Herlily, Atlanta, Ga.

ARTHUR F. OAKEY, '91, died at his summer home at Sugar Camp lake, Wis., after being in poor health for some time. For many years a high school superintendent in Wisconsin and North Dakota, he had retired in 1930, living in Madison and spending his summers at Sugar Camp. Mr. Oakey was 65 years old. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. S. S. Miller and Miss Anne I. Oakey, Rhinelander, and two brothers, Frank Oakey, Madison, and Edward Oakey, St. Louis.

ARTHUR E. VAN HAGAN, '06, died suddenly at Washington, D. C., on June 29, following a heart attack. He was a brother of Prof. L. F. Van Hagan, '04, of the College of Engineering. At the time of his death he was engineer for the A. T. & T. Co., located at Washington. He had been with the company for 29 years, having joined the engineering staff at Chicago immediately upon graduation. At various times he had been stationed in Detroit and New York. He was active in the early installations of mechanical switching and visited all parts of the country wherever dial phones were being installed.

Van Hagan was active in alumni affairs while living in Chicago and served as president of the Chicago Club. He was a life member of the association. His interest in the University was only one phase of his public interest. He was always ready to act the part of a good citizen. His work as a member of the traffic committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce was typical of his general attitude in regard to such matters.

His outstanding characteristic was a deep and abiding sympathy for people in distress. He was prompt to help with act or money, and his assistance continued while the need continued. His private charities, though not spectacular, were many.

He is survived by his wife, Lydia Begole. There were no children.

In the passing of DR. JOHN WEINZIRL, B. S. '96, M. S. '99, Ph. D. '06, the University of Wisconsin has lost one of her most distinguished alumni. A nationally known bacteriologist, he was the author of 45 papers dealing with his research in the fields of tuberculosis, the pure science of bacteriology, and the applied field of sanitary biology and public health. At the University of Washington, Dr. Weinzirl had been a member of the faculty for 28 years, serving as head of the bacteriology department for the past 23 years and as Director of the $100,000 McDermott Fund for Research in Tuberculosis, since its founding in 1924.

Dr. Weinzirl took an active part in the following societies: Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Sigma, University Research Society, American Association for the Advancement of Science, National Tuberculosis Association, Society of American Bacteriologists, and the State Tuberculosis Association, serving as secretary at the time of his death. He was also a member of the State Board of Examiners for Basic Science, and chairman of the Public Health Committee as technical adviser for the State Planning Council.

Suddenly stricken as he was completing for the publishers the final revision of his new book "Hygiene and Public Health," he was taken to the Seattle General Hospital, where he died a week later, June 26.

On June 30, 1896, Dr. Weinzirl was married to Miss Jacquetta Lee, of Rush City, Minnesota. About the same time, he received a very attractive appointment as Director of Research in the Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, New York, and in the fall of 1896 he returned to the University of Wisconsin for special research work in preparation for the New York State appointment. For a brief time the world looked bright and promising, but all this was changed in November, when he caught a severe cold, and discovered that he had tuberculosis. All his plans for going to Geneva were changed over night, and within a week he was on his way to New Mexico to combat the disease. This move proved successful, and he rapidly regained health.

In Albuquerque, he became acquainted with President C. L. Herrick of the University of New Mexico, and in 1897 he was appointed Professor of Biology. Shortly after, he was made Director of the Hadley Climatological Laboratory, and also served as the President of the New Mexico Academy of Science. He continued his research and published several bulletins on the effect of climate in the cure of tuberculosis.

In 1907, Dr. Weinzirl accepted an appointment at the University of Washington. Since that time he has spent one year at Harvard, where he received his degree of Doctor of Public Health in June 1918.

Dr. Weinzirl is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jacquetta Lee Weinzirl, his daughter Gertrude, and two sons, Louis and Dr. Adolph Weinzirl of the department of public health in Baltimore.

MRS. WILLIAM D. CONNOR (Mabel Witter), ex '87, one of the first women to attend the University after it was opened to women students, died at Marshfield, July 16. She taught for several years in the schools of Wisconsin Rapids and Auburndale. Mrs. Connor, who was 70 years old, is survived by her husband and five children, Mrs. M. R. Laird, Marshfield; William and Richard Connor, Laona; Gordon Connor, Ironwood, Mich.; and Mrs. James R. Mordrall, Santa Fe, N. M. She also leaves one brother, George F. Witter, Oakland, Calif.

OSCAR J. SWENNES, Sp. '16, for sixteen years city attorney of LaCrosse, died Aug. 17 from a bullet wound in his head and his wife was a victim of asphyxiation in a tragedy which shocked the city. Apparently Mr. Swennes was shot by his wife, after which she turned on all gas jets in the kitchen and asphyxiated herself. Although he lost a leg at the age of 12 and was admitted to the bar without finishing his law course at the University, Mr. Swennes was noted throughout the state as an authority in utility law. He was 42 years of age.

FRANCES PIEKARSKI, S. S. '19, died in Chicago, Aug. 8, after an illness of two months. She was nationally known as a social worker and had lectured extensively, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Piekarski of Berlin.

FREDERICK H. RUKA, '96, died at his home in Boscobel, Feb. 13. He is survived by Mrs. Ruka and one son, John Ruka.

MRS. A. E. BUCKMASTER, widow of a law school alumnus and for seven years chaperon of Kappa Delta, died July 7 after a long illness resulting from cerebral hemorrhage. She is survived by three sons, Ben Buckmaster, Chicago; Dean Buckmaster, Evanston, Ill.; and Bruce, Kenosha, all graduates of the University.

JOHN ROEMER, formerly a member of the Wisconsin and Yale law school faculties, died in New York July 7 after an illness of two years. Mr. Roemer was instrumental in organizing the state public service commission and practiced law in Milwaukee and Chicago. He is survived by Mrs. Roemer (Carolyn H. PIER), '91.

FRANK HAMACHEK, Kewaunee, inventor of the pea viner, died in a Green Bay hospital July 25. Mr. Hamachek was born in Austria in 1853 and immigrated to the United States at the age of 14. He was honored by the University a few years ago, when the title of "Valuable Citizen of Wisconsin" was bestowed upon him.

THE REV. MATTHEW GAY ALLISON, former Presbyterian pastor at the University and the first minister assigned to serve the student body, died July 25 at Madison. He came to Madison in 1907 and was a student minister for 27 years. He is survived by a brother in Windsor, Nova Scotia.

GEORGE E. TAYLOR, '04, secretary of the LaCrosse lumber company, died suddenly in Duluth Aug. 9 as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was a resident of LaCrosse and was in Duluth on a vacation trip; he was stricken in a hotel at noon and passed away two hours later. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. John W. Hoag, Detroit; and Mrs. Margaret English, Waterbury, Conn.

HENRY C. ALTIZER, ex '93, an old time Grant county printer and a former resident of Lancaster, died at Colorado Springs, Col., June 26.

GEORGE G. SUTHERLAND, '72, the oldest attorney in Janesville, died at his home Sept. 8. He was graduated from the University classics department in 1872 and from the law school two years later. He was a practicing lawyer in Janesville for almost 60 years and an active Mason. Mr. Sutherland was president of the Bower City bank and a former president of the Rock County Bar association. Survivors are a daughter, Sarah Sutherland, '04, and two sons, Clarence G. Sutherland and Frank Sutherland, all of Janesville; a sister, Mrs. George Gill, Madison; and a grandson, William D. Sutherland.

WILLIAM K. MILLS, '18, a graduate of the University pharmacy course, was found dead in his room at Reedsburg July 20. Investigation revealed suicide by poison. He is survived by his former wife, Mrs. Pearl Mills, and a daughter, Mavis, who lives with her mother in Madison.

MRS. STANLEY H. CARLILE (Harriet M. JOSLIN), '30, and her husband were killed July 13 when their car collided with a truck near Peoria, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Carlile, residents of Peoria, had been married June 14.

EDWARD C. HIGBEE, '76, former judge of the sixth Wisconsin circuit court district and a leader in state legal circles, died at his home in LaCrosse July 19 after a brief illness. Appointed to the bench by Gov. James Davidson to fill a vacancy, he was twice re-elected and served fifteen years. At the age of 16 Judge Higbee was licensed as a teacher and taught several years before he obtained in this way sufficient funds to enter the University law school. He practiced in Trempealeau, Arcadia, and LaCrosse, forming a partnership with his son, Jesse E. Higbee, '05, in 1905. After retiring from the judgeship, he again formed a partnership with his son in 1925, and continued in this firm until his death. Judge Higbee is survived by his wife, the former Grace Fassett of LaCrosse, three children, and eight grandchildren.

DR. GUSTAVE RUEDIGER, '00, noted pathologist, died at his home in Altadena, Calif., July 10. He was graduated from the University and from Rush medical college. He served as director of public health in North Dakota and was a professor of pathology at the University of North Dakota. He was director of hygienic laboratories at LaSalle, Ill., the University of Nevada, and Pasadena, Calif. He married Abbie L. Brayton, LaCrosse, also a graduate of the University. He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Gretchen Ruediger, and two sons, Gustav Ruediger and William Ruediger; he was 59 years old.

MRS. J. F. SCHREINER (Lillian E. STAIR), ex '91, died in Fort Atkinson Aug. 26, at the age of 71. She attended Wisconsin and Mount Holyoke and had been active in Fort Atkinson civic clubs. She married Joseph F. Schreiner, Sp. '91, in 1893. Surviving are her husband, president of the First National Bank of Fort Atkinson; a son, Gerald Schreiner, Chicago; four grandchildren; and a sister, Mrs. W. F. Dexheimer, Janesville.

LELA MAY THOMAS, '26, a graduate of the University and of the library school, was drowned in a camping accident at Lure Lake, North Carolina, August 24. She had been employed for the past five years at the public library in Lima, Ohio, and was 31 years of age. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas, Platteville.

LEONARD L. TESSIER, '93, died June 23 in a Green Bay hospital after an illness of several months. An active member of the Republican party, Mr. Tessier was an executive of the Wisconsin Public Service corporation stationed at DePere. He is survived by Mrs. Tessier; a son, Dr. Alban F. Tessier, Milwaukee; a sister, Sister Mary Joan, Rochester, Minn.; and two brothers, Frank M. Tessier, Winton, Calif.; and Carl P. Tessier, St. Paul.

HERBERT E. SWETT, '94, court commissioner of Fond du Lac county and former district attorney, died July 20 at his farm cottage near Fond du Lac. A staunch Republican, Mr. Swett was active in his support of local, state, and national candidates, becoming well known as a political speaker. Early in the spring he spoke at various meetings deploring "experimental" government of the present day. His fraternal affiliations included the Knights of Pythias, the Elks, and the Masons. Surviving are Mrs. Swett, and Herbert Swett, a son.

PROF. FREDERICK WILLIAM LEICH, '93, professor of systematic theology at Eden seminary, St. Louis, died in Shelby, Ohio, August 8. A state clerk of the Reformed Church of the United States, the Rev. Mr. Leich was engaged in teaching in Milwaukee before he entered the ministry.

ANNA BELLE PHEATT, ex '31, died on February 1 at Winnebago, Wis. She was 25 years of age.

MRS. RUSSELL PYRE (Lucille BOHREN), '27, former society editor of the Madison Wisconsin State Journal and wife of a State Journal staff member, died July 1 in a Madison hospital after a long illness. She was 30 years old. Mrs. Pyre is survived by Mr. Pyre; a nine-months-old daughter, Polly; her mother, Mrs. Mary Bohren, Madison; and a sister, Mrs. Marcella Chretien, Yonkers, N. Y.

L. S. SEYMOUR, '16, prominent Wichita, Kansas, hotel manager and a member of the Kansas highway commission, died in Topeka, Sept. 8, at the age of 42. Mentioned as a possibility for governor of Kansas on the republican ticket, Mr. Seymour was recognized as a leader in state politics, as well as in Masonic, aeronautic, civic, and veterans' organizations.

Mr. Seymour, a leader in Wichita's better highways campaign, was a prominent member of the Chamber of Commerce. While in the University he was an outstanding track star and a member of Delta Upsilon; he first became interested in hotel work while working while in school. After graduation he coached the track team for a time. During the war he was an army aviator and continued his interest in aviation as a sport up till his death. He is survived by Mrs. Seymour, whom he married nine months before he died.

MRS. M. S. FRAWLEY (Katherine COYNE), '87, widow of Michael Frawley, former principal of Eau Claire high school, died Aug. 4 in Eau Claire. She had planned to attend her class' 50th reunion in Madison in 1937. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. W. J. Flatley, Antigo; three sons, Robert Frawley, East Orange, N. J., Edward Frawley, Milwaukee, and Stephen Frawley, Chicago; a sister, Mary Coyne, Superior; and a brother, William Coyne, Madison.

ELEANORE KELLOGG, ex '18, Associated Press staff writer, died in New York, Aug. 11, following an operation. While working on New York papers, Miss Kellogg covered many famous trials and labor events; she wrote fashion and art columns for the Associated Press. While at the University, she did book reviews for the Chicago Evening Post.

FRANKLIN J. W. SCHMIDT, '30, son of a professor of German at Platteville State Teachers college, lost his life when defective wiring fired a summer home near Stanley. Other victims were Mr. Schmidt's mother and a caretaker. He was a research assistant in game management at the University, specializing in game birds. He was 30 years old.

RAYMOND L. BRIDGE, Ag. Short, '17, died in Chicago, July 25. He was 40 years old at the time of his death and had been in the butter and butter carton business for almost 15 years. He is survived by Mrs. Bridge, and two children, Ellen Bridge and Richard Bridge, all of Chicago.

HAROLD J. STIPE, S. S., '35, political science student at the University, collapsed and died in Lake Mendota, Aug. 11. He fell off a ladder on a fraternity pier and was dead when expert swimmers reached the body. The coroner's report advanced the possibility that a heart attack or other illness rather than drowning might have been the actual cause of death.

STEPHEN S. MCNELLY, '16, who received his Master of Arts degree at the University in 1933, died June 24 in a Marinette hospital following an emergency operation for appendicitis and gallstones. He has been principal of Marinette high school and a prominent educator. He had been principal of high schools at Westfield, Lancaster, and Marinette. He is survived by his wife and four children.

L. A. BRUNCKHORST returned recently from a Mediterranean tour which he reports as one of his most colorful European trips. He sailed on the Italian liner, Conte de Savoia, landing in Naples on July 30. Among the places visited in and near Italy were Vesuvius, Pompeii, the Isle of Capri, Rome, Pisa, and Genoa. Some time was spent at Avignon, France, the former residence of the Popes, Monte Carlo, Barcelona, Madrid, where he witnessed a bull fight, Lisbon, Portugal, Seville, Toledo, and Granada. He sailed from Gibraltar on the Rex and arrived in New York on August 29. On the return voyage he saw the rescue of five men from the yacht owned by Albert Welsh of Philadelphia who, with four companions, was crossing the Atlantic to visit his wife in Cannes, France. The boat was caught in a tropical hurricane about 700 miles out and sprang a leak. For three days prior to their rescue by the Rex, the men had stood in water up to their waists, pumping and bailing. For the same length of time they had no food. Mr. Brunckhorst visited Italy in 1931 and found conditions there this year very much better although the weather was hot and dry in Italy, France, Spain, and Portugal.—Dr. Sam HIGGINS, eye-ear-nose-throat specialist in Milwaukee Oto-ophthalmic Society and the League for the Hard of Hearing. "Toad" CROFOOT, now in the Texas offices of B. E. Buckman co., spent his vacation in Madison and northern Wisconsin and took part in a fishing adventure which shakes the credulity of those who hear the story but which is guaranteed to be the truth. Toad had never fished a great deal and owned no tackle, but one of his friends outfitted him with the necessary equipment, and the party went up to Big Sand Lake in Vilas county. While taking his first catch, a five pound pike, off the hook, Toad became so excited that he knocked the rod and reel out of the boat. He hauled in the line, which he still held, and found to his sorrow that the line had not been tied to the reel. And so for a while he fished with the line, casting it out, until suddenly that too slipped through his fingers and disappeared in the water. The next day the fishing party started out again and this time Toad was equipped with a new rod and reel which he had bought for his friend to replace the lost ones. A few minutes after they began fishing, Toad was sure he had hooked a "whopper." He reeled in his line cautiously and found—yes, that's right—the rod and reel which he had lost the day before! And then to make the story complete, on the following day, on almost the first cast, he brought up the line and hook which had disappeared into the lake after the rod and reel two days before.—John K. State Educators Criticize Senate for Political Attack on University

A RESOLUTION protesting against the continued maligning of the University of Wisconsin and declaring that the proposal to abolish the University's school of education was "a sinister threat to educational leadership and progress in Wisconsin" was adopted by Wisconsin teachers and public school administrators who attended the annual state-wide Institute for Superintendents and Principals held at the University during the summer session.

The teachers and administrators adopted the resolution as a statement of their beliefs and conclusions at a meeting held to consider various educational issues. The resolution was aimed at the recent state senate "red" investigation of the University, and the amendment to the state budget adopted by the senate, which would have slashed the University's budget and abolished the school of education.

Following is the resolution in full:

"We protest against the continued maligning of the University as a whole and the use of the University to further individual or party political interests.

"We see in the proposal to abolish the School of Education of the University a sinister threat to educational leadership and progress in Wisconsin. The Department of Education has been an integral part of the University from its earliest beginning. The necessity of educational leadership on the part of that institution has made the enlargement of its scope imperative. The School of Education was established in 1929 after a prolonged study and insistent demand on the part of the school people of the state.

"We believe that the abolishment of the School of Education would force thousands of teachers to attend universities outside of the state to obtain graduate work in Education or work of the distinctive type that only a university can maintain. It is unthinkable that the teaching profession should be deprived of university services and opportunities.

"We believe that the abolishment of the School of Education would result in increased employment of teachers from outside of the state. One hundred ten high schools of the state now require a Master's degree for principals and several have similar requirements for all high school teachers.

"We are not opposed to constructive reorganization of teacher training work in the State whenever that reorganization is based upon serious considerations and directed to the best interest of the commonwealth. We do not see any duplication of functions between the University and other teacher training institutions. We are opposed to subversive attacks on our educational institutions and personal attacks on individual departments."

University Bands to be Honored on 50th Anniversary at Homecoming

DEDICATION of the 1935 Homecoming to the University band and the celebration of its 50th anniversary on the Wisconsin campus will be the keynote of Badger alumni festivities for the Homecoming weekend, Nov. 8-10, it was recently announced by Howard T. Heun '36, Richmond, Ind., general chairman of the event and captain of the Badger varsity crew.

This year's tribute to the band comes as a recognition of the loyal service rendered by bandsmen during the 50 years of the organization's founding and progression. The band was first formed as a unit of seven men in the fall of 1885. Almost 200 men will march on the field that Saturday in November when Coach Clarence Spears' Badger gridsters line up against Coach Noble Kizer's Purdue eleven.

An integral part of Wisconsin's athletic tradition and the backbone of Badger football spirit since its organization, the band will have a prominent part in this year's celebration and ceremonies. It is now under the direction of Prof. Ray Dvorak, who will undoubtedly be remembered by visitors to last year's home games as the dynamic and spirited force behind the 1934 marching array.

Plans for the 1935 Homecoming program are more extensive than those of any other celebration in the past. Old features to gladden the heart of alumni include a mammoth parade led by the band and the huge mass-meeting with its enormous bonfire the night before the game, while among the newer additions of colorful events will be a "meet your classmate" session in the field house immediately after the game.

Homecoming, the weekend of and for alumni, promises to be chock-full of spirited and pleasant occupations to keep visitors on the go during their entire stay in Madison. An exceedingly large number of alumni from all parts of Wisconsin and the nation, including many veteran bandsmen and athletic heroes of days-gone-by, are expected to be on hand to usher in the band's "golden wedding day," and to see an invigorated Badger team fight to extract revenge from Purdue for last year's 14-0 defeat.

Student members of the Homecoming committee will raise funds to defray the expenses of the celebration by the sale of buttons during the weeks preceding the event.

Players Present Ambitious Program

TWO Pulitzer prize productions among five presentations will be on the dramatic bill of fare to be offered theatre-goers during the 1935-36 dramatic season by the University theatre, it was announced by J. Russell Lane, manager of the theatre and director of the Wisconsin Players. "Beyond The Horizon," Eugene O'Neill's Pulitzer prize play, and admittedly one of the modern classics of dramatic achievement, will be given Nov. 18-23.

"Of Thee I sing," Kaufman and Connelly's riotous musical comedy is the second Pulitzer prize winner to be staged by the Wisconsin Players. This scintillating commentary on modern politics is billed for the week of April 13.

First to be seen this year at Bascom theatre will be "Post Road," that very odd play which both rolled and mystified last season's Broadway audiences. "Post Road" is billed for Oct. 14-19.

"Seventh Heaven," the ever-popular success which has brought tears and smiles to thousands of playgoers, will be offered Dec. 14-19. And then, when the wintry blasts begin to diminish, the University theatre will offer its experimental play, "Yellow Jack," the Sidney Howard-Paul de Kruif hit. A dramatization of science's conquest of the dread menace of yellow fever, "Yellow Jack," is an entirely new project to Wisconsin Player activities. It will be presented the week of March 16.

"Red" Report Censures Administration

"expose" the National Student league, as follows:

"Mr. Haight established the connection by documents and through testimony, between the National Student league and the Communist party."

The committee's report charges that "meetings of local chapters of national and international Communistic societies were held in University halls to such an extent and with such wide and noisy publicity that the University achieved the name of being a hot-bed of un-American Socialistic and Communistic activity."

In connection with this, the report quoted the following from the state statutes:

"No instructions, either sectarian in religion or partisan in politics, shall ever be allowed in any department of the University."

Commenting on the application of this statute to the situation at the University, the report said:

"It will no doubt be urged that this provision has to do only with instruction in the class rooms and that groups of students have a right to discuss religious and political doctrines upon the Campus and that the right of free speech must not be abridged.

"The fallacy of this contention is plain because the very excuse urged amounts to a subterfuge. It is difficult to discern the difference between teachings in the class room and teaching in the Union. In both places instructors and professors are present and lead the discussions. The students are misled. They follow their teachers and are profoundly influenced by them and what they say to them. Add to all this that the meetings are held under University auspices and you have a direct violation of not only the spirit of the law, but of the letter of the law.

"That such things have been going on for some years cannot be denied."

The report further charged that "at least a part of the student body was given to understand that the administration of the University was friendly to Communistic teachings.

"We must go further and say that a large group were given to understand that Pres. Frank, among others, was one of the officers who encouraged Communistic meetings and ideas. As proof of that statement, we call attention to a pamphlet issued by the 'Young Communist League of the University of Wisconsin,' and distributed upon the Campus shortly after Mr. Frank's surprisingly unambiguous utterance repudiating Communism at the mass meeting of May 17, 1935. The pamphlet takes the form of an open letter to Mr. Frank, and states that his repudiation of the party of Lenin and Stalin was 'AMAZING.'"

The committee expressed "great regret" that it was unable, due to lack of funds, to investigate many other matters which were brought to the committee's attention in letters from people from various parts of the state.

"It was the intention of your committee to investigate all of the charges that came to its attention, but your committee was hampered from the start by a lack of funds, and while the senate was willing to provide for funds, the assembly refused the financial support, and as a result of this lack it was impossible for your committee to subpoena the various people who were making charges of irregularities, both as to the university management and as to Communistic and other subversive activities.

"That the investigation was justified your committee is amply convinced, and particularly so in view of the recent protest by the state department to the government of the U. S. S. R. Your committee regrets very much its inability at this time to give a thorough and comprehensive report on all of the questions involved in the resolution. Lack of funds precluded that possibility."

taining German exchange students was transferred here.

He formerly was director of the National Teachers' seminary in Milwaukee, where he produced many successful musical numbers. His outstanding accomplishment was his part in the festival of the Northwest Saengerbund, when 2,500 children sang under his direction. He also taught in the Cincinnati, O., public schools for three years, and in the summer school at the University of Indiana.

Prof. Griebisch continued his interest in musical activity when he came to Madison. One of his last public appearances was on Memorial day last year. Then he directed the University of Wisconsin German chorus in a presentation of Schiller's "Song of the Bell."

He is survived by a son, Edward, who was with him, and by other relatives in Germany.

Prof. R. E. Neil Dodge

R. E. NEIL DODGE, professor of English at the University of Wisconsin, died on September 6 at a Madison hospital.

Prof. Dodge was born in Washington, January 24, 1867. He received his A. B. and A. M. degrees from Harvard and spent the four following years studying in Italy, France, and England. His first teaching was done at Barnard college and at Brown university. Prof. Dodge came to the Department of English of the University in 1898, and was chairman of the department from 1930 to 1934. In 1907, he married Katherine Eleanor Staley, Madison.

Prof. Dodge was one of the foremost authorities in the country on the literature of the renaissance. Among his most important contributions to scholarship was his edition of the works of Edmund Spenser, in the Cambridge Poet series. He was a member of several learned organizations, including the Dante society.

Prof. Dodge is survived by his widow, Katherine S. Dodge, two daughters, Mrs. Hilger P. Jenkins, Chicago, and Miss Emily Dodge, at home, a son, Theodore A. Dodge, Peru, South America; a sister, Miss Theodora Dodge, New York City; and his step-mother, Mrs. T. A. Dodge, Boston, Mass.

KENNETH E. OLSON, '20, formerly professor of journalism at Wisconsin and more recently on the staff of the University of Minnesota, has been appointed head of the department of journalism at Rutgers University. He assumed his new duties at the opening of the present school year.

With the BADGER CLUBS

*Sit together, listen together, sing together, eat together,
and you'll work together.*

Chicago Adopts New Constitution

THE FIRST meeting of the new year was held by the Chicago Alumni club at the Lincoln Room of the Hotel Brevoort on September 20. Everybody was much pleased with the new quarters and the new arrangements made. A new constitution was adopted at the meeting. In addition to other objects therein stated are these:

"To encourage and assist worthy students whenever practicable or desirable.

"To encourage and support, insofar as is possible, the activities of the University, particularly as they are displayed in or about the metropolitan area of Chicago, which includes giving help to such organizations as Haresfoot Club, Glee Club, and other dramatic and musical organizations, and all athletic contests in which the University of Wisconsin takes a part."

At that same meeting, the Club celebrated the 84th birthday of Mr. Henry L. Green (Class 1872). Many tokens and a birthday cake with eight large candles—one for each decade—and four small candles for each additional year were provided. The President called on Mr. Edward F. Wilson (Class 1884) to say a word in commemoration of the event. Twice in the course of Mr. Wilson's eloquent address, he sang old time songs that stirred the memories from 'way back when. It made the occasion one which will forever remain "Green" in the memories of those who were present.

The alumni also congratulated Mr. G. L. Ekern (Class 1928) son of Herman L. Ekern (Class 1894) a former insurance commissioner of Wisconsin, on the birth of an eight pound daughter on September 19th, 1935. Mother and daughter are doing nicely. George said that it was quite an ordeal for him, but he, also, was doing so nicely, that he passed out cigars to the trusting alumni in celebration of the occasion.

Manitowoc Club Has Reorganization

ABOUT sixty alumni and former students and twenty prospective students and their parents were entertained by the Manitowoc County University of Wisconsin Alumni association at the Elks club on September 12.

Combining business with the social activities, election of officers for the alumni association was held. Ernest Strub was named president, Donald Dean of Two Rivers, first vice president, Alois Uek, second vice president, Miss Verna Rudolph, secretary and Harold Kugler, treasurer.

There was discussion as to active organization of the association, and the plan of holding informal round table groups throughout the winter months was approved. A faculty member from the University will be asked to preside at each of the round table meetings. It was decided to invite Professor Max Otto to preside at the initial one.

Prof. C. G. Stangel of Lincoln high school and a University alumnus, addressed the group. Professor I. L. Baldwin and C. V. Hibbard of the University Y. M. C. A. attended the get-together and spoke briefly and informally of University activities and student interests.

A group of Two Rivers students, accompanied by Principal L. B. Clarke of the high school, also attended.

Green Bay Entertains Freshmen

APPROXIMATELY fifty-five alumni, students and incoming freshmen attended a send-off meeting arranged by the newly formed alumni club of Green Bay on September 12. The meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. in that city.

Roger Minahan, a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumni Association, was in charge of the meeting. Neil Drought, psychology instructor and assistant to Junior Dean H. S. Glicksman, spoke to the group regarding the activities of the faculty. His remarks were addressed mainly to the incoming freshmen. Harry Thoma, managing editor of the Wisconsin Alumni Magazine, spoke briefly on the possibilities for the club during the coming year. He also presented a news reel of the Campus.

Following the meeting coffee and doughnuts were served to the guests.

New York Alumni Plan Big Year

WITH the successful record of a crowded year behind it, the University of Wisconsin Alumni Association of New York is preparing to outdo its previous records of achievement in the year to come under the leadership of the new slate of officers elected in June.

Dr. Warren M. Persons, '97, former professor of economics at Harvard University and at present consulting economist to a number of large organizations and the author of recent publications, will serve as president of the association for the ensuing year. Other officers are: first vice-president, James E. Halstead; second vice-president, Mabel Duthey; secretary-treasurer, Phyllis Hamilton; assistant secretary, Lousene Fry; executive committee (three years) Hobart S. Bird, Edwin L. Hotchkiss, Willard L. Mommson.

During the year 1934-35, the list of activities included the following:

Nov. 7—Bridge Party.

Nov. 16—Round Table. Discussion on Glenn Frank's "America's Hour of Decision" led by Dr. John Fitch.

Dec. 7—Post-Football Pre-Xmas Party.

Dec. 13—Round Table. "Government Experimentation in Business." Dr. Persons.

Jan. 17—Round Table cancelled. Prof. Dawson spoke about Madison and the University of Wisconsin.

Feb. 13—Luncheon for Dr. Frank.

Mar. 13—Round Table. "Why We Have Booms and Depressions—Must We Endure Them Again?" Dr. Daniel Starch.

Mar. 19—Bridge Party.

Apr. 9—Luncheon for Dr. Walter Meanwell.

Apr. 16—Round Table. "The Great Change—Work and Wealth in the New Age." Dr. Richard T. Ely and Dr. Frank Bohn.

May 12—Picnic at Carl Beck's Farm, Suffern, N. Y.

May 15—Round Table—"The Power Trust Vs. The Brain Trust." R. Gilman Smith.

June 4—Intellectual Excursion. GE House of Magic. By William A. Gluesing '23. Annual meeting.

SAMUEL STEINMAN,
Chairman, Committee on Information and Publicity.

Chicagoans Hear Dean Greeley

THE University of Wisconsin Alumnae club of Chicago closed its meetings for the summer with a luncheon program June 2, at which Mrs. Rhea Hunt Ullestad, president, presided. Elizabeth Johnson Todd, vice president, gave an illustrated talk on her hobby, the collecting of early American bottles.

Dean Louise Troxell Greeley of the University spoke at the May meeting and Prof. Abby Marlatt at the April meeting.

The benefit bridge parties held this spring for the raising of money for the U. W. Alumnae club loan fund at the University netted $55, and contributions may be sent to Helen Zepp, treasurer, 7746 East End avenue, Chicago.

LUCY ROGERS HAWKINS, Secretary.

Players Present Ambitious Program

ager of Bascom theatre and director of Wisconsin Players, J. Russell Lane is looking forward to a greater theatrical season. Gratified by the expressions of satisfaction accorded the selection of the 1935-36 playbill, Director Lane hopes to match this dramatic selection with a series of artistic all-talkie motion pictures. At least 12, and probably 15, foreign and American films will be shown during the school year.

Despite the general rise in prices, the cost of season ticket books will not be increased. A season ticket, which sells for $3 or $2.50, entitles the holder to admission to all the major productions, all the Studio presentations, and any three motion pictures.

WISCONSIN alumni have a special interest in the current dispute between Italy and Ethiopia because PITMAN B. POTTER, former professor of political science, is Ethiopia's representative on the conciliation commission which is appealing to the League of Nations for assistance in reaching an amicable settlement of the dispute.

Monument to Inventive Genius

Rests in Engineering Building

A 10-CYLINDER radial engine, the work of an inspired inventor who was dreaming 20 years ago of being able to give his invention to his country as a valuable aid in winning the World War, now rests—a memorial to lost hopes—in the Mechanical Engineering building.

The inventor, after having searched for and finally found a financial backer, began work back in the winter of 1915-16 in an attempt to reduce the weight per horsepower of aeronautical engines. The idea was to make fighting and scouting planes more efficient and give them increased cruising ranges, vitally important in those early days of aeronautics.

Records show that the proud designer and hopeful financial backer brought the resultant 10-cylinder radial engine to the University to take advantage of laboratory equipment in testing its expected 150 horsepower output and general mechanical durability.

But so drastically had the weights of all parts been reduced that the crankcase was not left strong enough to withstand forces developed in the cylinders. The engine made only a half dozen revolutions before the crankcase split to pieces, in spite of peculiar tie-rods placed as an afterthought to keep the crankcase from heaving.

balcony is installed before the opening of the season.

Fraternity and sorority rushing is now in full swing. Prospects for these Greek letter houses are much brighter than last year as a result of the larger enrollment and improved financial condition. Fraternities are still rushing under the system adopted last year which corresponds very closely to that in force in the sororities.

Activities are starting everywhere. The deathlike stillness of the Campus has vanished, displaced by the incessant chatter of very green freshmen and the raucous greetings of returning upperclassmen. Once more the Campus is very much alive.

AT his own request, the name of DR. GLENN FRANK was not included in a list submitted to Wisconsin Republicans to express a choice for the presidential nomination. When President Frank read in the newspaper that two Wisconsin names, that of former Governor Walter J. Kohler, Hon. '28, and his own were included, he telephoned State Chairman Roy L. Brecke and requested that his name be dropped, because "a university president should not participate in politics."

ALDO LEOPOLD, professor of game research in the College of Agriculture, is spending the first semester in Europe making a study of the forestry problems of the nations on the continent.
