OUR ALUMNI IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

By EDWARD W. BLAKEMAN, M. A. '11

Pastor University Methodist Church

THE presence of eighty-two students from foreign countries, a number larger by ten than the entire class in which President Van Hise and Senator La Follette graduated, impresses one with the increasing size of the cosmopolitan nature of our student population. Our graduate friends abroad are of four somewhat distinct groups,—those representing the idealistic or religious institutions of America,—teachers and specialists for government schools abroad,—those dispatched by commercial interests,—and students from foreign countries who have returned with degrees from Wisconsin. We shall confine our review to the first two.

A list of 314 available positions which may be called missionary has recently come to our attention. Finding that they call for engineers, farmers, teachers from kindergartens to graduate courses, physicians, surgeons, stenographers, physical instructors, business managers, printers, and musicians, as well as ministers in the formal sense, we are not surprised to find that some from Wisconsin are already in the far East in the work of the church.

First in achievement and position, as well as first chronologically, is Dr. James W. Bashford, B.A. '73, M.A. '76, LL.D. '12, who was at one time an instructor at the university and is now Bishop of China for the Methodist Episcopal Church. After several successful pastorates in Massachusetts and New York he became president of Ohio Wesleyan and during the sixteenth year of his administration was elevated to the Board of Bishops and given supervision of the five conferences, together with Bishop Lewis, in China.

He is a member of the World Commission on Faith and Order which deals with the co-ordinated program for the related creed of Christendom, and president of the Continuation Commission for China. His sane program for educational progress has made him a leader in the readjustment of the educational system of the New Republic. His sagacious and constant movements in behalf of Opium Reform among the Chinese, his statesmanlike leadership of the Christian Forces during the recent revolution, and the loyalty which his graceful personality has won him among the leaders of reconstruction throughout the Republic place him among the first in influence in China. When conferring the degree of Doctor of Laws President Van Hise introduced him as "the apostle" of America to China. This title has won large acceptance and is coming to be quite generally applied in the United States to our esteemed alumnus.

Mrs. Bashford was Jane M. Field, Ph.B. '74, M.L. '82, daughter of Hon. W. W. Field of Madison. Their residence in Peking is a home for that which is best from America and we are told by recent visitors that her leadership in the society which centers in the capitol is scarcely less important to the work of the Christian church in the Orient than that which engages the Bishop.

Carlisle V. Hibbard, '00, is in the employ of an institution which is charged with the more practical and immediate demonstration of Christianity,—the Christian Association. Mr. Hibbard is known among his intimate friends, for he is one of the most popular men Wisconsin has graduated, as "the hair-clipping secretary." He was in Japan at the outbreaking of the Russo-Japanese war, and seeing the strategic importance of ministering to the soldiers during hardship and temptation he planned a unique method of serving. He went to the front and improvised a Christian Association among the men in the field. His tent became the library, the writing room, the news stand, the information bureau, the barber-shop, bath room, dispensary, and at times the operating room for the soldiers. This simple service has done more perhaps to carry the Christian Association into general favor in Japan than any other single enterprise. Mr. Hibbard has for some time been stationed at Dairen, Manchuria. Mrs. Hibbard, formerly Sue E. Lowell, '00, is now with her parents in Janesville and will be joined by Mr. Hibbard soon, as he is completing his second six-year term of service in the Orient.

The following are also in distinctly missionary work: Frederick O. Leiser, B.L. '02, secretary of the Christian Association in Canton, China; Thomas W. Mitchell, B.L. '99, is at Chenchow, China; Walter F. Seymour, B.S. '90, is physician and surgeon in a missionary hospital in Tenchowfu, China; George D. Swan, '05, and Mrs. Swan (Helga M. Ekern, '05) are stationed at Tokyo; Richard Williamson, '01, is Christian Association secretary in Mexico City, Mexico.

Teaching is the profession which calls most of the graduates to the foreign countries. Five have accepted important positions during the past two years. Henry V. Lacy, M.A. '12, is principal of the Carolyn Johnson Institute at Lungtien, China; Clarence A. Hibbard, '09, teaches English in a boys' school at Nagasaki; Osborne E. Hooley, B.A. '10, M.A. '12, is instructor in history in Methodist College, Singapore; and Theodore R. Hoyer, B.A. '12, from whose ready pen magazine readers have descriptions of the recent catastrophe, was, prior to the earthquake, a teacher of English at Satsuma, Japan.

Susan Quale, '10, is Mrs. Edgar M. Flint of Madura, India. Mr. and Mrs. Flint sailed in 1912 under the employ of The American Board, spent six months in Europe where they studied school systems and purchased laboratory equipment for the science department of American College, one of the largest and best equipped educational institutions in India. Mr. Flint is head of the department, having assumed his duties in August, 1913. Lona Irene Bergh, '09, is the wife of Arthur P. Jorgenson, formerly Association secretary at Wisconsin. They are stationed at Tokyo and write home interesting accounts of their trip through Europe and across Russia to the Orient. Mr. Jorgenson is representative of the Association among the students of Japan with headquarters at the capitol, where over fifteen thousand students study in a score of academies, several colleges and the Imperial University.

The following are also in foreign positions: Elsie L. Bristol, B.L. '86,

M.L. '97, Talas, Caesae, Turkey; Grace L. Dillman, '00, Yeng Byrn, Korea; Alice Julia Ellinwood, '10, Wong Long Girls' School, Bongkong, Siam; Charles Albert Engelbracht, '94, and Mrs. J. M. Espey, '03 (Mary Jenkins), 18 Peking Road, Shanghai, China; Mr. and Mrs. Dana Grover, '02 and '07, are at Doshisha College, Kyoto, Japan; Helen Fairfield Fitch, '09, now Mrs. McLaughlin, is at Panulcillo-Coquimbo, Chile; Mrs. H. B. Sanford (Dorothy E. White of the class of '97) is in Shanghai; Paul Boström, M.A. '10, at one time a Lutheran pastor in Madison, now preaches in VaKristianstad, Sweden, and Warren DuPre Smith, B.S. '02, Ph.D. '08, is division chief of the U. S. Bureau of Science in the Philippine Islands.

THE NEW GENERAL SECRETARY

AS we go to press, the result of a vote by the Alumni Executive Committee on a successor to Louis P. Lochner, '09, general secretary of the Association, is announced. The unanimous choice of the Committee is Thomas Lloyd Jones, '96, principal of the Madison High School. A sketch of him will appear in a later issue.

A LETTER FROM SIAM

C. E. ("Red") Rightor, '09, is one of the younger graduates who are rapidly rising to positions of influence in the commercial world. He is now in the employ of the Standard Oil Company, with headquarters at Bangkok, Siam. In the letter which follows, and which was addressed to Professor S. W. Gilman, '09, Mr. Rightor narrates his experiences. As this issue is devoted to foreign interests, we are glad to republish the letter.

My Dear Professor:

Greetings from Siam! They are belated, as I have intended for weeks to write you of my little experience in the Orient.

I left for San Francisco directly from the Wisconsin Commencement and sailed from there by the Southern Route (Pacific Mail, flying the U. S. flag, thanks be!) for Hongkong. This is an excellent route for summer ocean travel, and affords one the opportunity of visiting Honolulu, Yokohama, Kobe, Nagasaki, and Manila en route, with time for a run up to Tokio from Yokohama.

At Honolulu one sees the famous Waikiki bathing beach with its thrilling surf riders, a large aquarium of rare specimens, and several historic sights in and around a typically American city. There is time for an excursion out to some of the many sugar and pineapple plantations, and a visit to Pearl harbor, our strong naval base.

Yokohama is a busy port, in which one from the States receives his first impressions of the Oriental people. Fujiyama is an inspiring sight from the harbor. Tokio is eighteen miles distant, and a day's tour of the city permits many sights. These include the grounds of the Imperial Palace, several parks and their temples, Tokio and Waseda Universities, the mansion and garden of your distinguished friend and prominent Japanese citizen, Baron Shibusawa, and so on. At Kobe one sees also immense shipping activities, and many signs of western progress, and if one go by rail from Yokohama to Nagasaki he may stop off also at Osaka. At Nagasaki I enjoyed a pleasant reunion with C. A. Hibbard, '09. Here is a wonderfully situated harbor, and I count among the interesting sights the coaling of vessels by hundreds of women.

In going to Hongkong by way of Manila one misses Shanghai. But Manila is the reward, and while the boat makes a four days' stop to unload its cargo of potatoes from Japan, machinery for sugar mills, automobiles, etc.—one indication of Manila's growing importance in Oriental trade,—one is enabled to inspect the city. It is a combination of native tribes, Spanish, and American regimes, and to my mind is the most American city in the East. Civilization is being thrust upon the natives even faster than they can assimilate it. It is a notable fact that some of the Pacific Mail S. S. Co.'s boats have abandoned Shanghai in Manila's favor in their route to the East. Its possibilities as against Singapore and Hongkong are striking, and it has a great future under American control. Manila is well governed and policed, is now very healthful, has abundant schools, hospitals and markets. The industries are various, including tobacco factories, lumber, cloth making and fruit raising. It would take pages to outline the interesting points, and among the sights should be mentioned the famous model prison of Bilibid, Fort McKinley, and that guard to the excellent harbor—Corregidor, the rival or superior now of Gibraltar.

It is a two days' trip to Hongkong, the port of southern China, and ninety miles up river to Canton. This is a British port, and very important commercially. Hongkong had an excellent harbor, but the city is crowded on the side of a mountain. It is quite up to date, and one who likes English ways could enjoy life here.

Upon reporting to our Hongkong office, I was assigned to Bangkok, so caught a coastwise trader and came on to the capital of Siam. As I have been here but three months, I cannot yet write much about either Siam or Bangkok—which is the greater part of the state, with its 800,000 of many races.

At home we may not know much of Siam, except it is known for its teakwood—and cats! I might add it should be famous throughout the solar system for its heat, mosquitoes and bedel-nut chewing. It is said Siam is progressing, and indeed there are possibilities as are there indications of it. The common people still live primitively, many thousands living on the water,—in klongs (canals) or the main river of the city. They are indolent, even as we become who stay long in the tropics,—and their wants are few. Rice, fish and fruits are their chief articles of "chow," while they chew bedel-nut (a piece of the nut mixed with a green leaf and some pink slack lime!) until their teeth are shining black. Other than that some of them wear priest's garb, or are of the army or navy,; I have failed to ascertain what they do except sit around in their small shops, six to twenty in one room. Coolies are imported from China to do the work of personal service, hauling rickshas and cultivating rice.

Siam is commercially to be noticed for its rice crop, while it also exports teak and other woods, as rose, sandal, etc. Pepper, silk and fish are lesser exports, and tin, gold and diamonds are found sparsely. Imports consist of cotton and silk goods, also tea, metal and machinery, sugar and oil. Not to be ignored are opium from India, and all kinds of liquor from Europe. I might here state that my opinion of the greatest curse to a foreigner in the Orient is the great amount of drinking expected of him, not to mention the easy system of signing "chits" (I. O. U.'s) for them without reckoning on redeeming them on payday. But I am not a missionary, so only mention it in passing,—it happens I am the only foreign teetotaler I've found.

Means of transportation are varied,—one sees autos and street cars, boats, ponies and rickshas; and up-country elephants, buffalos, and bullocks are all used industrially.

The number of things to engage one's attention is endless. There's the government,—a young King (the first one without a harem) worshipped as almost divine by his subjects. The state is well organized, and at the head of several departments are Europeans. Much of the wealth is owned by the Privy Purse, so his income is enormous, and he regulates activities. Large revenues accrue from taxes on imports of opium, on gambling houses, and his lands. Irrigation and other problems are being studied, for the benefit of the nation. Education is not compulsory, but is started toward it.

The Buddhist religion is an important part of a Siamese's daily life, and there are many wats (or temples) throughout the city for worship. The language is a jargon of five tones, forty-four consonants, thirty-two vowels and numerous exceptions to the rule, but it is an interesting study. The customs of the country and people are very different from ours, and allow one much to observe that is novel. So also is the coinage peculiar, —the unit being a "tical," worth 37 cents of States money; weights and measures, methods of banking, shopping, travel, etc., all are different.

Bangkok has a big river trade on the River Menam, it has several good streets and parks, many wats, royal buildings, good stores, two railways, etc., all worthy of being visited by a transient—if he comes at the present cool season.

I will forego further description, having intended merely to mention some of the things about the nation and its capital city.

A RECORD BREAKER FOR '89

By MRS. MARY CLARK BRITTINGHAM, '89

THE local '89ers are planning a record breaking reunion for June. It is still too early to know just how many will be on hand, as replies are coming in every day, but the following have accepted: Lillian Baker Warner, Claire B. Bird, Theodore A. Boerner, Mary Clark Brittingham, Cornelius A. Harper, Edward B. Hutchinson, James B. Kerr, Frederick G. Kraege, Helen Steensland Nielson, Annie A. Nunns, Arthur Parsons, William E. Persons, Marshall P. Richardson, Nell Smith Case, Ernest N. Warner, John Stevens, Jr., Edward W. Lawton, Emeline H. Conway. The following will make every effort to be present, but at this early date can not promise: Belle Flesh Johnson, John D. Goss, Edward H. Rogers, Frederick H. Whitton.

Commencement plans have been somewhat changed since our last reunion, and accordingly Monday will be devoted to class reunions and Tuesday will be all-alumni-day.

'89 will take a steamer from the U. W. pier at 12:30 on Monday, June 15, for Bernard's Park, where a picnic luncheon will be served, and after which youth will be renewed in a program arranged to suit the occasion. At 5 o'clock the return to the city will be made, and in the evening '89 en masse will attend the class play and witness the pipe of peace ceremony on the lower campus.

Tuesday morning the '89ers will assemble at the business meeting, and go from there to the alumni dinner at the Gymnasium, and in the evening will dance at the alumni ball, the gaps in between being filled with wandering over familiar places, and renewing acquaintances with those outside of '89.

WISCONSIN ALUMNI IN CHINA

By STANLEY K. HORNBECK, PH. D., '11

WHEN his excellency Paul S. Reinsch, the newly appointed Minister to China, arrived in Shanghai on the first of November last, it was possible for some twenty Wisconsin alumni to greet him at an informal reception held a few hours after his landing. That there should be this number of Wisconsin graduates able to assemble in one port alone gives some indication of the way in which, as to numbers of individuals, Wisconsin is represented in the Far East.

It is the purpose of the following notes to tell something briefly of the activities of Wisconsin graduates in China. Although there are about as many Wisconsin men in Japan as there are in China, it is not within the intent of the present account to deal with those who are in Japan. It is possible, however, to account for most of those who are or have recently been in China.

At the annual banquet of the American Universities Club at Peking last November the Wisconsin group numbered but five, being much outnumbered by the representations of Yale, Harvard, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and California, but our inability to equal some of the others in pride of numbers and in noise was more than made up for by the fact that the Wisconsin banner hung over the head of the chief guest of the evening, the newly arrived Minister—who had come direct from Madison.

It is at Shanghai, among the "ports" of China, that Wisconsin is most conspicuously represented as to numbers. There an attempt was made some three years ago, over a feast which the writer well remembers, in a Chinese restaurant on Foochow road, to found a Wisconsin Alumni Club. The Revolution scattered the members of the group which was at that time assembled. But last year some of those who were left, together with new arrivals, took the matter up again and succeeded in effecting an organization which bids fair to be permanent. There are now at least twenty Wisconsin graduates in and about Shanghai.

There is no need of addressing to Wisconsin readers any extended account of His Excellency PAUL S. REINSCH, '92.* Both Dr. Reinsch and Mrs. Reinsch (ALMA M. MOSER, '00) were Wisconsin born and Wisconsin bred. Dr. Reinsch has been connected with the University for over twenty years. Ever since the appearance in 1900 of his "World Politics" Prof. Reinsch has been recognized as one of the foremost authorities on the politics of the Far East. His "Intellectual and Political Currents in the Far East," which appeared in 1911, added to a reputation already well established. His connection with three Pan-American Conferences, and service as Roosevelt professor at Berlin confirmed his reputation as a scholar-diplomat. Pres. Wilson could not have made a happier choice for the post of Minister to China than that which he made in his appointment of last July. Dr. Reinsch and his family reached Shanghai in November and proceeded at once to Peking where the new minister presented his credentials to Pres. Yuan Shih Kai and took up his residence and duties as chief representative of the American government in China.

* Throughout this article only one date, that of taking the first of any degrees received at Wisconsin, will be given.

Dr. Reinsch was enthusiastically received by the Chinese and he and his family were cordially welcomed by the cosmopolitan and brilliant society of Peking. The legation at Peking is one of the most important posts in our diplomatic service. At no place have our diplomatic representatives greater responsibilities and greater opportunities than in China. Since Dr. Reinsch entered upon his official duties five months ago, plans have been practically matured for the big Hwai River Conservancy Loan and for the concession to and loan from the Standard Oil Company, and a multitude of minor affairs have been successfully dealt with. The American legation has for years taken a leading place in the social life of Peking, and it has during the past winter become more than ever a favorite social centre, especially for the personnel of the diplomatic corps.

BISHOP J. W. BASHFORD, '73, and MRS. BASHFORD, '74, are also too well known to the readers of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE to need any introduction. As Bishop Bashford's work will be dealt with elsewhere in this number of the magazine it will suffice here to say that he has been for some years past resident Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church in North China with headquarters at Peking.

MR. H. B. HAWKINS, '05, left Madison for Shanghai in 1905 to enter the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs service. After a period in the Shanghai offices Mr. Hawkins was, upon the invitation of the Chinese authorities in Kiangsu Province, "detached"—that is given special leave—for service in the Kiangsu Provincial College at Soochow. Here he taught until the end of 1911, during this period producing two text books on Geography for the use of Chinese students. These books have met with a very favorable reception. In the summer of 1911, Mr. Hawkins married MISS HILDRED DAISY MOSER, '08, at Madison. Five weeks after his return with Mrs. Hawkins to Soochow, the Chinese Revolution broke out. In December, 1911, Mr. Hawkins was recalled to the regular Customs service. He was appointed temporarily to the Shanghai office, then sent to Santuao, and was later transferred again to Shanghai—where he is stationed now. Mrs. Hawkins has spent the past winter with Dr. and Mrs. Reinsch (her sister) in Peking.

At Nanyang College in Shanghai there are no less than five Wisconsin graduates on the faculty. Nanyang (The Imperial Government Institute of Technology) is one of the leading, best conducted, and best known of the Chinese colleges. PROF. SIDNEY R. SHELDON, '94, went from Idaho State University of Nanyang in '09, intending to stay in China but one year. He has been retained, and has risen to the position of Dean of the College. PHILIP ROSENBERG, '11, went directly from Wisconsin University to Shanghai and is now Professor of Physics at Nanyang. H. B. SANFORD, '07, went to Nanyang in 1912 as Professor of Electrical Engineering. He and Mrs. Sanford (DOROTHEA E. WHITE, '07) are popular in Shanghai social circles.

F. J. SEEMAN, '12, has been at Nanyang a year and a half as Professor of Chemistry.

EDWARD CHARLES STOCKER, '09, went to Shanghai in the Fall of 1911 to take a position at Nanyang. No sooner had Mr. and Mrs. Stocker arrived than the Revolution broke out. The college was closed for some months. Mr. Stocker entered the employ of the Shanghai Municipality as an engineer in the Board of Public Works. After some months in that position he accepted an appointment as Secretary to the Whangpu Conservancy Board, the most important of the permanent engineering services established in China.

When the China branch of the Harvard Medical School was established and the first five physicians were sent to China in 1911, DR. HAROLD E. EGGERS, '03, was among the number. Dr. Eggers has remained in China and has already established for himself a reputation in Far Eastern medical circles.

EARL BROWN ROSE, '05, son of ex-mayor Rose of Milwaukee, was appointed at the end of 1913 by Pres. Wilson as Clerk of the U. S. Court for China. Mr. Rose left for Shanghai, the headquarters of the Court, a few weeks ago.

Late in 1913 CARL A. NEPRUD, '12, and C. M. PETERSON, '13, went to Shanghai to join the Chinese Customs Service. According to reports which have reached Madison they are being rapidly initiated into the life of the Far East and are making progress in the study of the Chinese language.

In 1909 PAUL D. MERICA, '08, who was then doing graduate work in Science, and STANLEY K. HORNBECK, '11, then Instructor in Political Science, left Madison for Hangchow, China, to join the staff of the Chekiang Provincial College. Each expected to spend a year in China. Mr. Merica stayed two years and Mr. Hornbeck nearly five. Hangchow is one of the most beautiful cities in China and the College was one of the best organized of the Provincial Colleges. The city of Hangchow was described by Marco Polo six hundred years ago as "the most magnificent city in the world." After two years Mr. Merica went to Berlin, whence he has recently returned to the United States. He was succeeded at Hangchow by I. B. CRANDALL, '09. After the outbreak of the revolution Mr. Hornbeck and Mr. Crandall were, during the eight months of enforced vacation, designated "Advisors to the Bureau of Education" of Chekiang Province. Mr. Hornbeck served for some time in the offices of the Famine Relief Committee with Headquarters at Shanghai. Mr. Crandall returned to the United States at the end of a year. Mr. Hornbeck spent a fourth year at Hangchow and then went to Fengtien Law College, at Mukden, Manchuria. After eight months there, followed by six months of travel, and subsequent to the arrival of Dr. Reinsch at Peking, Mr. Hornbeck returned to the department of Political Science at the University of Wisconsin.

MR. A. E. RANDALL, who spent some years in the engineering school, is a lieutenant in the U. S. Marine corps and has been for some months past stationed with the Marine guard at the legation at Peking.

MR. AND MRS. C. V. HIBBARD, (SUE E. LOWELL) '00, have been for some years past located at Dairen, Manchuria. Although Dairen is under Japanese jurisdiction it is nevertheless on Chinese soil. Mr. Hibbard is secretary of the local Y. M. C. A. He has recently been joined by THEODORE R. HOYER, '12, who has gone to aid in the education department.

F. O. LEISER, '02, is also in Y. M. C. A. work, being a Secretary of the International Committee, and is located at Canton.

DR. W. F. SEYMOUR, '90, is in medical missionary work, being located at Tienchowfu in Shangtung province.

MRS. J. A. ESPEY (MARY L. JENKINS) '03, is working with her husband, Rev. J. M. Espey, in the Presbyterian Mission. Mr. and Mrs. Espey are in charge of a school for children of missionaries located at Shanghai.

Among the Chinese alumni who have returned to China and are actively engaged in affairs, the following are prominent:

CHU-TUNG TSAI, '10, was well known during two and one half years which he spent at Madison. He returned to China at the outbreak of the Revolution. He served as a secretary to Dr. Wu Ting Fang, during the peace negotiations. He was sent by the Nanking government as one of the delegates to Peking in the Spring of 1912 and was among the members of that party which had to flee for their lives during the mutiny of the troops at Peking. He was shortly appointed Assistant Commissioner of Foreign Affairs in Shantung province. After a few months he was made Commissioner and retains that post now as head of the Board of Foreign Affairs of the Shantung government, with residence in the capital of that Province, Tsionanfu. Among other of his duties he has charge of the "foreign settlement" at Tsionanfu. This is one of the best governed and most attractive of the modern "settlements," and Mr. Tsai has already made a reputation through his progressive and enlightened methods of administration. His friends predict for Mr. Tsai a brilliant career in the service of his government.

MR. YE TSUNG TSUR, '10, was, shortly after his return to China, made assistant to the Director of the Ching Hwa Academy (The American Indemnity College) at Peking. Upon the death of the director, Mr. Tong Kai Son, Mr. Tsur succeeded to the Directorship (Presidency) of that college. He has been conspicuously successful in his administration, having succeeded in dealing effectively and satisfactorily with situations of a sort which in various Chinese schools have resulted in the downfall of the administration. Ching Hwa College is now recognized as one of the most efficient of the educational institutions which are under Chinese Directors.

Mr. Tsur is ably assisted by MR. GUOK-TSAI CHAO, '10, who is assistant director at Ching Hwa. Mr. Chao soon after his return to China married a daughter of Chang Su Ho, one of the leading business men and financiers of Shanghai.

MR. LAU-CHI CHANG, '10, was some time since appointed chief of the bureau of Translation of the Salt Gabelle at Peking. In connection with the reform of the Salt Administration which is being made under Sir Richard Dane, and in view of the prominence of the salt revenues in China's budget, this is an important position.

MR. NAE TSUNG WOO, '10, who specialized in public finance while at Madison was, upon his return to China, appointed to the Board of Finance. He has become recognized as an authority in some departments of public finance. He was recently appointed a member of a commission to go to Japan to study certain phases of financial administration.

MR. WEN-SHION TSU '12, is a member of the faculty of Nanyang College, which we have mentioned above. He is an instructor in the Department of Mathematics.

MR. TREUSINN ZOEN ZEE, '12, is an instructor at the Tsing Hwa College, also mentioned above.

MR. YET C. OWYANG, '10, having spent most of his life in the United States, returned to China after his graduation at Madison and was appointed to the Board of Finance at Peking.

MR. YING-YUEH YANG, of '11, is known to be at Wassih, China, and MR. KUNSHAO CHU, '10, is at Nanking, but their occupations are not known to the writer.

In addition to these, the writer knows of at least half a dozen other Chinese students who have spent more or less time at Madison and whom he has met in China, but of whom he is unable to give either the addresses or an account.

Although they are not graduates of the University, an account of Wisconsin's representation in China would be incomplete indeed which made no mention of MISS A. S. MAYHEW and

DR. AMOS P. WILDER. Miss Mayhew, so long connected with the department of Physical Education of the University, went out to China about two years ago under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. to investigate the possibilities for physical education among the women of China. She has travelled extensively in China, has made a careful study of the situation and its problems and needs, and will return to the United States soon in connection with that work. DR. AMOS P. WILDER, then editor of the State Journal (Madison), was appointed early in the Taft administration as American Consul-General to Hong Kong. He was transferred in 1909 from Hong Kong to Shanghai, where he held the office of Consul-General until February, 1914. Thanks to his social gifts, his high ideals both as to private life and public service, his devotion to his duties and to the interests of the community, and his brilliancy as an orator and after-dinner speaker, Dr. Wilder exerted an influence and established a reputation in China which will endure. He took a personal interest in every Wisconsin man who came within his reach. Dr. Wilder resigned the service last year and returned to the United States, joining his family in California, in March of this year.

IN HONOR OF MISS MAYHEW

A REUNION LUNCHEON will be held for former Chadbourne Hall girls in honor of Miss Mayhew June 15th. Those interested are requested to send their names to Mrs. Sam Swansen, 409 W. Wilson Street, Madison, Wisconsin, before June 5th.

ATHLETICS

By W. D. RICHARDSON, '11

Basketball.

FOR the third successive time since his installation as head coach of basketball at the University of Wisconsin, Dr. W. E. Meanwell presented the Badgers with the conference championship. The 1913-14 team went through the entire season, preliminary and conference, without tasting defeat, thus duplicating the work of the 1911-12 team. This makes a total of 44 victories out of a possible 45, the Badgers dropping only one game during the three years.

Although handicapped by a scarcity of basketball material at the outset of the season, Dr. Meanwell developed a team that was the equal, if not the peer, of any team he has had since coming to Wisconsin. The brunt of the fighting throughout the season was borne by the two veterans, Captain Van Gent at center and Harper at guard, but the new men—Lange and Hass—played wonderful games throughout the season, while Sands, who was only a mediocre player last year, developed into a star this season.

No one except a rank enthusiast would have predicted a conference championship for the Badgers at the beginning of the present season, let alone a clean slate. Chicago, with ten men who were individually the peers of anything that the other conference schools had to offer, was regarded as a sure winner but the Badgers started them on the downward path when, in the first game between the pair, played on the maroon floor, Wisconsin had their rivals utterly outguessed and succeeded in carrying away the victory. Two later defeats put them clearly out of the running.

The narrowest escape from defeat that the Badgers had was in the home game with Purdue. Before a crowd which taxed the capacity of the Gymnasium and which set a new attendance record up to that time, the Boilermakers played as though possessed and for a time it looked as though the record was going to be broken. Toward the middle of the second half, however, Captain Van Gent put his team back in the running with two remarkable shots from the center of the floor. Harper followed with another, putting his team in the lead; but just before the whistle blew Purdue tied the score with a long lucky shot from the center of the floor.

An extra five minute period was ordered by the officials and the Badgers, urged on by the crowd, completely smothered the Purdue offense and scored five points themselves.

The Chicago game here was nothing like the game played in Bartlett Gymnasium, for the Badgers got away to a big lead and had the Maroons at their mercy throughout. Never were they in any danger and their teamwork, probably the best of the year, was a wonder to the crowd.

The Badgers lose three stars this season with the graduation of Captain Van Gent, Harper and Sands, but with Hass and Lange back and with such material as Diggle, Smith, Anderson, Levis, Kessenich and with a coach of Dr. Meanwell's calibre, the rooters are not worrying about the outcome of the season.

Baseball.

The Badgers opened their conference baseball season auspiciously on Thursday, April 23, by defeating the University of Indiana, regarded as the most dangerous team in the "Big Nine," by a score of 3 to 1. The game developed into a pitching duel between "Lefty" Neuenschwander, the little sophomore heaver on whom depend the Badger hopes of winning the championship, and "Toots" Schulz, the star Hoosier hurler, with the Badger having the better of the argument.

After presenting the visitors with a run in the sixth inning, the Badgers came back strong in the seventh and before they had stopped three runs had flashed across the home plate and the game was as good as won right there with Neuenschwander going the way he was. The little twirler helped win his own game in this inning by singling to center field and bringing in Slaby with the tying score. Jewett, who came to bat a little later, drove out a two-bagger, scoring Neuenschwander and Herzog.

The Badgers are going great guns right at this time and high hopes of winning the title again are entertained by the rooters.

The team took a spring training trip during the easter recess, meeting defeat at the hands of Notre Dame in their first game on the road, 9 to 2. The South Bend team had been in training for three weeks and were playing more advanced baseball than the Badgers were and had an easy victory. Neuenschwander pitched the second game on the road against Armour Institute of Technology and lost, 4 to 2. The Badgers had plenty of opportunity to win the game but were unlucky in their placing of hits. On Monday, April 13, the team met and defeated Campion College of Prairie du Chien by a score of 4 to 3, on the latter's home grounds. Three more preliminary games were played before the regular season opened up, Wisconsin defeating Carroll College here on April 15, by a score of 8 to 2 and Northwestern College of Watertown by a score of 4 to 1 on April 18.

Track.

Although the Badgers had high hopes of winning the conference indoor track title at the intercollegiates held at Evanston under the auspices of Northwestern university on March 20 and 21, they did not succeed in getting the "breaks" and the best they could do was to take second place with a total of  $27\frac{3}{4}$  points, Illinois winning with 36.

In the first event—the sixty yard dash—Knudsen regarded here as sure to place failed to get into the finals and the points were divided by Illinois and Chicago. Legler, regarded as the best conference high hurdler, was caught off his stride and pulled up second to Ward of Chicago in the finals after winning his heat in easy fashion.

Schley, the Badger quarter-miler, ran Sanders, the star Illinois quarter-miler, a great race and gave his teammates three more points in this event after which Harvey, the little sophomore miler, brought up the total three more points, placing second in the mile. These were later withdrawn, however, an official claiming that Harvey had fouled at one of the turns. Downly took third place in the half-

White, the mainstay of the Cardinal in the two-mile, was unequal to the task of defeating Mason, the Illinois wonder, and took second place after a brave fight.

Kerr, the little Badger vaulter, furnished the surprise of the night. Regarded as only a possibility for fourth, he vaulted six inches higher than he had ever done in practice, clearing the bar at 12 feet and tying for first place with Schobinger of Illinois. Captain Wahl lived up to the reputation he has established as a high jumper by winning the event at 6 feet,  $\frac{1}{2}$  an inch. Van Gent again proved his ability as a shot-putter by heaving the sixteen point shot 42 feet 3 inches while Keeler, the football captain-elect, took third.

The relay team had bad luck when Williams, the first Badger runner, fell on the first turn and lost fifty yards.

The subsequent runners were unable to make up the lost ground and Schley started a hopeless race, almost a lap behind. He made up some of the distance but could not put his team into better than fourth place.

The score: Illinois, 36; Wisconsin,  $27\frac{3}{4}$ ; Chicago,  $20\frac{1}{2}$ ; Northwestern,  $14\frac{1}{2}$ ; Purdue,  $6\frac{3}{4}$ ; Ohio State,  $4\frac{3}{4}$ .

The Badgers succeeded in coming back at the annual relay games held under the auspices of Drake university at Des Moines on April 18. Wisconsin sent a four-mile relay team to the meet and the Badgers runners succeeded in defeating Illinois by nearly a quarter of a mile. The members of the Wisconsin team were Perry, Hedges, Harvey and White. The time was slow, the race being run in a sea of mud and against a heavy wind.

THE CALL OF EIGHTY-NINE

By T. A. BOERNER

Class Poet, U. of W. '89

O, all ye eighty-niners, have ye heard the mentor say
That a quarter century has flown since that momentous day
When with fear and trembling in the soul and a sheepskin in the hand
Ye were thrown for life's great battle on a most indifferent land?
The call has come to meet once more on old Mendota's shore,
And 'tis hoped that when the roll is called ye'll all be present, for
The years are rolling fast away to join the realms of time,
And the day is not far distant when there'll be no eighty-nine.

We've wandered far, we've wandered wide, we've camped on many a trail,
We've been through mighty struggles in our efforts to prevail,
We've had our sorrows and our joys, our losses and our gains,
We've sometimes wondered if it all was really worth the pains.
But we've run the gauntlet safely and we know that we will all Endeavor so to make our plans to meet the mentor's call;
And we're coming back to Mater in the glory of our prime
And we'll show that there is vigor left in good old eighty-nine.

We shall have with us the lawyer who'll forget his legal strife,
We shall have with us the doctor but without his gruesome knife,
We shall have with us the farmer though not redolent of soil,
And the great industrial captain who'll forget to talk of spoil.
We shall have with us the teacher with his school ways left behind
And the writer who'll forget he's got a story on his mind,
And best of all we'll have with us the matron and the maid
To lend the proper coloring and keep us staunch and staid.

We will meet as was our custom five and twenty years ago,
We will feel that we're just out of school, but for a day or so,
And in all our joyous meeting we'll forget the vanished years,
Lay aside life's growing burden, all its sorrows and its fears:
If there's gray hair we'll be color blind and wrinkles we'll not see,
And stooping forms will look to us straight as straight can be,
For we'll cast from off our shoulders all the evidence of time
And we'll be as once we used to be in eighteen-eighty-nine.

Then let us all be present on the great reunion day;
With governor and faculty we'll march in grand array.
We'll see the untried neophytes launch out as once did we,
And we'll lend them of our courage on their plunge in life's wild sea.
And a record day it shall be for the eighty-niner tribe
When the lawyer and the doctor and the farmer and the scribe
And the great industrial captain and the teacher mild and meek
Shall meet as in the olden day on graduation week.

CLASS OF 1904

Motto: "Wisconsin, I Hear you Calling"

The Reason Why.

IN considering the seasons why members of the Class of '04 should attend the reunion, the class seems to divide itself naturally into groups, and I shall set forth without fear or favor the reasons why each and everyone should attend.

The Agrics and the Anarchists: In our day the Agrics were few in number, but as the Committee on Ways and Means has allotted unto them some very important duties, which will be referred to later, it is necessary that they all be there.

No, girls, it is not true that those fellows who wore sweaters, flannel shirts and a three days growth of beard were Anarchists. No, they were not Anarchists; they were Engineers. Dame Rumor says that a class meeting at the university to-day resembles an I. W. W. convention, but that was not true ten years ago, so it will be perfectly safe for the mine owners, manufacturers and predatory rich in the class to attend the reunion.

The Bankers and the Burglars: I am informed that Bob Minton, Morris Fox, Art Thiede and Jim Blake are getting out a bond issue to cover the financing of the reunion, and that only the Bankers who are in Madison on June 15th can underwrite these bonds. Nothing like it has been put on the market since the "South Sea Bubble," so you Bankers can't afford to be absent when the bidding takes place. Remember that the issue is limited.

The promoters anticipate that the profits will be so large that they have decided to use a large sum as a loan fund to aid destitute Wall Street operators and Mexican property owners to attend the reunion. The names of applicants for loans will not be disclosed.

Just a word to the Burglars: The Bankers and bejeweled "Society" will be there.

The Bachelors and the Benedicts: The Committee on Matrimony will have a bevy of Beauties to receive the Bachelors at the train and will give each an opportunity to change his legal status at the earliest possible moment. The assortment arranged for your selection is a choice lot running all the way from widows to debutantes. Bachelors can't afford to stay away.

All we ask of the Benedicts is that they let their wives open their mail from this on until June 15th.

The Doctors and the Debutantes: I am now compelled to reveal some of the secret plans for the reunion. On Monday morning, June 15th, at 5:13 A. M., all of the young ladies of the class who have not yet "come out" will be introduced to "Society." This reception to the Debutantes will be held in the Stock Pavilion and will be conducted by the Agrics, each of whom will have his nails freshly manicured, be dressed in hygienically laundered overalls and jumpers, snow white in color. Mr. Pat Crow will assist. It should be strictly understood that no other opportunity will be presented to the young ladies who do not take advantage of this occasion, until our next reunion in 1919. And whoever heard of a Debutante of thirty-seven or more years being a social success?

After the reception in the Stock Pavilion the young ladies will be feted and wined and dined until they are mere shadows of their former selves. During all this time the Doctors should be in constant attendance, giving the young ladies pepsin tablets and taking their temperatures, and they should have readily accessible a large supply of heated atmosphere to use when the Beau Brummels dancing attendance to these dainty delicate Dresden dolls have run out of that light frothy stuff which passes current with Debutantes as conversation. On the third day Doctors and Dubutantes will be received at the Student Infirmary.

The Engineers and the Evangelists: Of course, you Enginers are all going to be there. You have just got to be. If you are not, it will be just like a family reunion with the Bad Boy absent.

All I have to say to the Evangelists, and the only reason I can see why they are coupled with the Engineers, is that missionaries should go where the heathens are.

The Lawyers: I have been unable to find any group whose qualifications entitle them to be classed with you, and you therefore stand majestically alone; and it is you to whom we look to furnish that dignity and poise to the reunion without which the unknowing observer would believe we were all Engineers.

The Suffragettes and Soubrettes: The Suffragettes—I pause here and I am seized with a sudden fear and trembling. Do Suffragettes approve of Reunions? If they don't, woe be unto us! If we want them to come, they won't; and if we don't want them, they will. What are we to do?

The Soubrettes: We now come to a very pleasant subject—that is, pleasant to some members of the class. None of these light and airy ladies will be absent if they will but remember the gorgeously arrayed Lotharios who were wont to lead the fair co-eds to the most shady of nooks and the most lonesome of paths. And you may have recognized some of them sitting there in the front row, somewhat more corpulent, with a ruddy apoplectic glow lighting their still handsome features and the reflected rays from the footlights glistening on their alopetia areata, that indellible sign of advancing age.

There is just one more thing that I wish to say. Bob Minton confided to me the other day that Millie Askew (in polite correspondence referred to as Mrs. Werder) had confessed to him in one of her recent letters that last winter she became a Short Course Agric, but that if this could be kept secret she would be tickled to death to serve on the Reception Committee and she would be there to receive us with a glad hand and a bunch of alfalfa—now I forget whether she said it would be under her belt or on her belt. These days it's impossible for a hard-worked lawyer to keep up with all the advance sheets and advanced breakfast foods—but at any rate, she will be there, unless the Committee on Credentials decides that she should be ostracized.

Yours for a Jubilee Reunion, '04.

JOHN S. LORD,

General Chairman.

1334 First National Bank Bldg.
Chicago.

To The Women.

No member of 1904 can read the messages in THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE without responding to the enthusiasm with which they are filled. It is a queer thing how in the busy years we may have forgotten some of our classmates and some of the happenings which made up our daily life at the varsity, but now with the thoughts of the Decennial coming in June, we recall vividly those whom we met daily in our classes, and the memory of old class jokes and the strife and excitement of class meetings quickens our thoughts and brings back the days of varsity life to us.

If the history of these strenuous class meetings of '04 and its glorious going out from the university amid all the wonders of that university celebration is any indication of the superiority of our class and of its matchless class spirit, then surely, with the energy and enthusiasm stored for ten years, we can expect great things to happen when we all go back to Madison in June.

The Laws and the Engineers have made a special plea for the return of their men, and I make such an appeal to the women of 1904. If you are obliged to forego something else—do it and come by all means, for the class reunion would be a failure without the women—though I realize this would sound better coming from the men.

Let each student respond to the call of his classmates—that enthusiastic crowd in Chicago to whom we shall owe much for helping us to give ourselves one of the greatest enjoyments of our life time—something we shall never regret, but shall always look back to with the keenest pleasure. Let everyone come for the good it will do him; it will honestly make him years younger for the space of a week. Now is the time to come—if we wait for another reunion we may be too old to recognize each other.

Remember that upon the class as a whole depends the success of your first reunion; but upon each individual student rests a responsibility to help make this success a sure thing. So, 1904, come to the varsity in June and help to make your reunion a never-to-be-forgotten one.

MARY ALICE HIGBY, (Nee Gillen)

Ripon, Wis.

From the Ends of the Earth.

Ten years have passed since the Jubilee class left the university and we are coming back. On June 15 we'll be there and we shall make more noise, and more stir, and more red fire in little old Madison than the town has seen since the mighty conflagration which consumed Dean Birge's shingles and all other available combustibles.

We are coming several hundred strong. Count on two, my wife and me, from the tip end of the Buzzard's Bay county, so close to the Atlantic Ocean that we frequently fall in as we rush to preserve Plymouth Rock from the ravages of the western tourists. We shall start early, and if there is any sleepy rapsallion of a '04 man between here and Chicago who has forgotten to buy his ticket,

I shall rake him aboard and make him ride blind baggage to within walking distance of the campus. I command Pease, away down in the Southwest corner of the United States, to keep out of the clutches of the Mexicans until June 1, then charter a special car, round up every '04 man and woman between San Diego and Madison, drive them aboard, and unload them at the St. Paul crossing on University Avenue. The Northwest country I leave to my fellow booster, Blackman, with the command that he stretch forth his tentacles, seize all those from Seattle and Tacoma eastward who have ever thirsted for "Blood and Gore," and bring them back to the scenes of their college days.

That takes in the edges of the continent. Now you fellows, eds or co-eds, who are closer to Madison than the Atlantic or Pacific coasts, if you are not on the campus by 9 A. M. June 15, I hereby decree that your effigies be tossed into Lake Mendota with as little ceremony as accompanied our drowning of the class of 1903, 14 years ago.

After we strike the town there will be just one thing doing. To be sure, the class of '14 will have to be graduated and sent home to rest; '09 will hold a testimony meeting; a few other classes and a few stray alumni will be on hand; but these things will attract no notice. The Jubilee class of 1904 will be, as it always has been, the one big show. There has been but one Jubilee class. There will not be another for forty years. Believe me, this first decennial Jubilee class reunion will set a mark for which other classes will be striving for more than forty years to come.

I am told we shall not know the Hill with its dozen new buildings; or the town with its new capitol, new hotels, and new policemen. My prediction is that the town will not know itself after we have spread again from Capitol to Randall Field the imprints of,

"Blood and Gore! Blood and Gore!
Varsity, Varsity, Nineteen-four!"

FRANK B. SARGENT,

80 Willis St., New Bedford, Mass.

No Moss on 1904.

Every one of us is coming back in June; we have been intending to all along. But many are so busy with less important matters that a little reminder now and then may not be amiss. Some of us, therefore have been pressed into service for this memory-jogging work. And this is the absent treatment now being offered; we are all coming early, we are going to stay until the last rites have been performed; and we are going to show the newer generations that there never was another class like ours.

Then let us keep the ball rolling; for, as we all know, a rolling stone gathers no moss. And we want no moss-backs among us—of course there are none really, but it is best to take all precautions. And now that we have set rolling this Hibernian conglomerate, let us join in singing the following:

How dear to each heart is our old
Alma Mater as fond recollection presents her to view;

We walk through the woods and the bridge which came later and every sweet spot that our college days knew;

Beloved Mendota, the Gym that stood by it, the Middleton road—is it popular still?

Science Hall, the old lab, and the spoon-holder nigh it, and that proud stately hall on the crest of the hill.

O hall, ivy covered, O hall, memory haunted,

O proud, stately hall on the crest of the hill!

KATHARINE HALL,
237 Langdon Street Madison.

1904—

Come Back!

The robins still sing in the trees along the drive—or maybe it's the red-eyed vireos. Anyhow they're still there and singing.

And the lake is still blue.

And the Libe, the Gym, the Observatory, State Street, and Picnic Point are right in their old places.

And you'll find more.

You'll find the fellows and girls you chummed around with in the funny old pink-and-white days.

They won't be changed either—even if their coats today do descend below the northern coastline of the trousers: even if their skirts are slashed and draped and all the rest of it.

They're the same old folks and they want to see you as much as you want to see them.

Sure thing.

Isn't it worth it?

Don't you feel the U-fever in your blood that makes you long to chuck today's worries and slip back to the campus?

Don't you feel the call of the talk-fest luring you to the nearest dee-po where they sell tickets to Madison?

Of course you do. And you needn't feel ashamed of it, because all the rest of us feel it hammering at our hearts.

James J. Jeffries couldn't come back, but we're extra favored by fortune—we can.

To the Only Jubilee Class.

We have reached another goal, our decennial reunion. Ten years ago we graduated. Do you recall that eventful year? We can make this a brighter spot in our memories than that great University Commencement, for this is really and truly our inning.

A great privilege was accorded the class of 1904 in that many great celebrities even from foreign shores graced their commencement. They made the commencement on that day regal and grand. They were dignified and celebrated and stately in doctors' robes and in scholars' garbs. The color scheme, too, of this celebrated aggregation rivaled any that ever marched down Langdon on Commencement Day. An impressive scene indeed was all of this,—but where was 1904? We were there,— of course we were. We brought up the rear. Even when fairly seated in the accustomed places of the graduating classes before that reverend body of Doctors and Scholars, we still felt deeply our importance and superiority. We listened attentively for hours, during which time countless degrees of high honors were conferred until our time should come to march across that great platform to receive our much coveted Sheep Skins. Keen disappointment was ours. We were told to call at the office the following day for those precious diplomas.

Now let's get even. This is our inning. We are to do it all this year, but we cannot do it without numbers. Everbody must come. Come in your official robes. Let us do the right thing by our Alma Mater. No other class, remember, can possibly celebrate as can the Jubilee Class of 1904.

A special mandate has already been proclaimed in these pages demanding the presence of Laws and Engineers. This is a special plea and a special personal invitation extended to all 1904 graduates from the College of Letters and Science. We need your support and we must have it. Our Band will welcome your return to the good old town. The strains of Hot Time will make you live all the good old days over again. Be one of us!, Come!

U Rah Roar,

U Wisconsin. 1904.

THE CRYSTAL ANNIVERSARY OF '99

By C. A. KELLER and G. I. HAIGHT

THE next Anniversary of our departure from the University of Wisconsin should be happily celebrated by returning to Madison at the June Commencement. Will it not gladden our hearts there to loiter a while in woodland dells or by shady cliffs,—there to wander among stately buildings and upon the proud campo santo of earlier years,—there to listen to the voices of the trees on Mendota's shore, and hearken to the whisperings of the waves,—there to cruise around the Picnic Point, and see from afar the majestic hills? What memories will be stirred! How eagerly we shall meet old friends and new! What joy will it be to feel the hearty handclasps in greeting those whom for long we have missed, and those whose comradeship has grown rarer with the years! What converse will there be of what has been, what is, and what is to be! What feasting upon rare viands and vintages! What jests, what mirth, and what dances of long ago to music inspired!

Come with wives, husbands and children. Let us gather for deep refreshment. Let us renew our friendship on hallowed ground, and there enjoy a never-to-be-forgotten day,—our Crystal Anniversary.

Let the '99ers in the various cities and communities consider themselves a committee for the purpose of making up a party and arrange for transportation, hotel accommodations, etc., to attend our reunion. This, we are glad to note, has already been started.

The Madison contingent has chosen Mr. Emerson Ela as their chairman, and Miss Cook as their secretary. The committee of Chicago and vicinity consists of Messrs. George I. Haight, Richard T. Logeman and Carl A. Keller.

We understand that there has been considerable correspondence going on between the 99ers throughout the country, which no doubt is creating considerable interest and enthusiasm and should help to make this reunion a grand success.

First Reunion of the Class of 1909 UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

June 14, 15, 16, 17

MAIN OFFICE: 821 STATE ST., MADISON
SUB-OFFICES EVERYWHERE

April 15, 1914

Ye mighty hosts of 1909! Greetings!
Don't read this unless you are prepared to shell out FIVE BONES
You'll see later why.

Each and every member of '09 is herewith sentenced to Sixty Days of Hard Labor to make the First Reunion of our glorious class the One Great Event of Commencement Week. Mark down the date--Monday, June 15th, 1914. Just label your baggage "'09, Madison, Wis.," and check it early.

There will be such a congestion of '09 hat boxes, vanity bags, music cases, and straw satchels at the R. R. Station that you simply must send your war paint and other paraphernalia early to avoid the rush.

They say that there will also be scattered remnants of '04 baggage straying into Madison; but this will be stowed away in the now defunct Hospital on Gilman Street (formerly the Farmers' Home). Straggling old fogies of '04 will also be put up there for the night by the '09 Charity Committee.

Note the galaxy of committee members on this letter head. "Can you doubt the success of the reunion with such a crowd in charge? When any of them calls on you for the coin of the realm or for active service, it's up to you to respond. Do you get that?

Here is the list of attractions thus far planned for June 15 and 16:

2

4:15 to 10:00 A. M. Arrive at R. R. Station. The '09 BAND will meet you with "A Hot Time" and other operatic selections.

10:00 to 11:00. Register at Class Headquarters. (You'll hear later where these will be located--Ole Syftestad hasn't yet found a place big enough.) Prexy Buchen will give you the glad hand. He feels so important about this that he is going to get married a couple of days before,--so his wife may see him in all his glory.

11:00 to 11:13. Don your Reunion Regalia. Chairman Johns is rigging up the classiest garb ever worn on the U. W. campus. Come prepared with the loudest socks and stockings in your town.

11:13 to 11:59. Grand "Peerade" around the Campus and the Latin Quarter. A defy to the police.

12:00 to 2:00 P. M. A jolly good class luncheon. Hot air effusions by Grover Rapps, Kinichi Sato, and other post-prandial stars. Come prepared with eggs.

2:00 to 7:00. Class Picnic. All the newly-weds will chaperone. Stunts galore. ("Coots" is a stunt in himself.) Baby contest. This is the time to get any poetry that you may want to dedicate to '09, out of your system. Watch for Chairman Richards' announcements.

8:00 to 11:00. Attend Senior Class Play in body. Special row for bald-heads. Darkened corners for the newly-weds.

11:00 to 12:00. Pipe of Peace Ceremony. Begin practicing your Indian War Whoop now. Don your war paint and learn to walk Indian fashion.

12:00 to 10:00 A. M. Sleep for those who need it. Otherwise continuation of above program.

10:00 to 12:00. Attend Annual Business Meeting of the Alumni Association in a body. Bring Robert's Rules of Disorder with you. The band will assist.

1:45 P. M. Annual Banquet of the Alumni Association at the Gym. Write your special '09 songs now and send them to Chairman Amy Comstock of the Publicity Committee. '09 will perform a special stunt during the eats.

3:30 to 6 P. M. All Alumni Frolic on the Upper Campus. This is your chance to encounter stray members of '07, '08, '10 and '11 with whom you want to chat or settle old scores. The Stunt Committee will put on some classy numbers for the edification of all alumni.

8:00 to 12 P. M. Alumni Reception and Ball at Lathrop. Your chance to trip the light fantastic with your old sweetheart. Write her today.

Some program, eh? Only one thing lacking to make it go: YOUR CASH. If you have any class spirit, send in FIVE DOLLARS today for the good of the cause. If you know of any ex-'09 people, write us about them. We'll invite them to contribute, too.

Don't be a tight wad. Just send Five Dollars--you'll see when you get to Madison that we've done the rest.

Anticipatingly yours,

LOUIS P. LOCHNER, Chairman,
F. S. BRANDENBURG, Treasurer.

P. S.--We're organized for economy and efficiency. For this reason no stamped return envelope is enclosed. Don't let this stand in the way of your remitting AT ONCE.

A PACIFIC COAST TRIP FOR THE GLEE AND MANDOLIN CLUBS

By MARION JOHN ATWOOD, '10

IT was my good fortune recently to attend a joint concert of the glee clubs of the Universities of Michigan and California in the wonderful Greek Theatre of the University of California, and as I listened to the beautiful "All Hail" of California and "The Yellow and Blue" of Michigan, I could not but feel a little lonesome and wish that I might see and hear twenty or thirty Wisconsin boys waking the echoes of the region with "Varsity" and "On Wisconsin." In the Bay region of California alone there are more than one hundred loyal Wisconsin alumni separated from their Alma Mater by 25,000 miles of steel rails, stretching away over the plains and mountains to far away Wisconsin, who are longing for a song from "home."

Now I query,—why in the world can't the University of Wisconsin send its glee and mandolin clubs to the Pacific coast next year? We have demonstrated our vocal ability, time out of mind, for the people of Milwaukee, Lacrosse, Rockford, Chicago and St. Louis. Has the time not arrived when the alumni on this western coast are to be rewarded for their unflagging devotion to their Alma Mater by a visit from the musical clubs?

There are "oodles" of Wisconsin men and women out here. You find them everywhere but in jail. An inspection of the faculty list of the University of Washington reveals the fact that that sturdy young institution is but a second edition of the University of Wisconsin. The same is true, although possibly in a lesser degree, of the Universities of Oregon, California and Stanford. What is true of college teaching is true of every other profession and business from Seattle to San Diego. We're out here alright but its a long way "home." We can't get back very often for a "Home Coming" or "An Alumni Day" or, best of all, Commencement, but we would like the opportunity to greet the musical clubs,—to hear again our fine old college songs,—to reminisce a little,—and to thank Heaven that we are Wisconsin men and women.

Will some of the other coast alumni take this up? Let's get together and bring our glee and mandolin clubs, as well as our fine band, to the coast next year. It will be Exposition year and it is fitting that Wisconsin should be well represented.

THE ONLY CLASS, 1910

IF one were to judge from the amount of printer's ink wasted in the April number of THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE, the class of 1909 is beginning to show signs of recovery from the bath in Lake Mendota administered by mighty 1910 during the class rush in 1906. Just getting the water out of your lungs and getting your breath, 1909?

And 1909 claiming the initiation of the green cap tradition! Do you hear that, 1910? 1909 lost all ambition after that bath in the lake. It was 1910 and not 1909, who started the green cap tradition.

Whose crew swept the Hudson at Poughkeepsie in 1907? 1910.

Who ever heard of the Engineer's Minstrel Show until Henry Traxler and 1910 put on a real live one?

What freshman class dared to hold a night-shirt parade? 1910.

When it comes to "real" class, 1910 was the only class.

We'll get together this June, '10, and plan a celebration for 1915 that will outshine any of the past and any in the future. Start the celebration this year and run THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE for 1910 next year. All those of the class of 1910 who will be in Madison this June will meet as a committee and the 1915 reunion of 1910 will then be started.

What will we do? We will

Soak 'em again!

Soak 'em again!

'Varsity, varsity,

Nineteen ten!

O. W. STOREY,

Madison.

REUNION OF '79

INVITATIONS have been issued by President C. R. Van Hise, '79, to all his classmates for a reunion luncheon to be given at his home on Monday noon, June 16, 1914.

EDITORIAL

IT is the desire of the Alumni Headquarters to publish from time to time directories of Wisconsin alumni belonging to a certain occupation or to a certain profession. It would not be necessary to do this if the Regents of the university could appropriate funds by means of which the General Directory of Graduates could be published more frequently than is the case at present. Thus, no General Directory has appeared since 1911, and already many of the addresses then given are obsolete. The probable time of publication of the next issue is still shrouded in nebulous uncertainty.

But while there is no up-to-date printed list of all graduates available, the Alumni Headquarters maintains a card index record on which every change is noted immediately. The sending out of the Commencement invitation early in June is now regularly made the occasion for an annual check-up of these records.

These groups of alumni have recently asked that a special directory of the graduates belonging to their group be compiled and published by the Alumni Headquarters. The first of these were the alumni engaged in the practice of law. It was impossible to use the columns of THE WISCONSIN ALUMNI MAGAZINE for this purpose, as the list of Wisconsin attorneys numbers approximately 1,500. Some other means had to be found. We therefore suggested to the well-known West Publishing Company of St. Paul that they agree to publish such a directory and distribute it free of charge to all Wisconsin graduates whose names appeared in it, on condition that they be permitted to insert advertising matter concerning their numerous legal publications. This the West Publishing Company courteously agreed to, and the copy for the directory has just been expressed to St. Paul.

In passing we desire to call attention to one misunderstanding that arose in the minds of some law alumni. In order to check up our information, a return card was sent to every graduate engaged in legal work, requesting certain data. With it we very naturally included an invitation to join the Alumni Association. This invitation—in order to save time and expense—was inserted with every letter, whether the graduate in question was a member of the Association or not. It appears that some of the recipients of these letters interpreted the invitation to mean that our records were faulty, as they knew themselves to be members in good standing. That, of course, is not the case. We therefore suggest that those who are already members pass this invitation on to such of the fellow graduates as have not yet seen the light.

Another group is that of graduates in the Course in Commerce. We are glad to call attention to the fact that a Directory of Commerce Alumni appears elsewhere in this issue. This Directory was compiled under the supervision of Professor Fayette H. Ellwell, '08, of the commerce faculty and secretary of the Commerce Alumni Association.

A third group is that of alumni in pharmacy. Professor Edward Kremers, '88, director of the Course in Pharmacy, has promised his cooperation with the Alumni Headquarters in preparing a Directory of Alumni in Pharmacy. This Directory will appear either in June or next fall.

Still another special directory has recently made its appearance. By a system of cooperation between the Alumni Headquarters and the College of Engineering, Professor Robert C. Disque, '03, has compiled a College of Engineering Alumni Directory which has just been published as a Bulletin of the University, and which is to be distributed to all engineering alumni. We had hoped to publish this as a supplement to THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE, but found the cost to be prohibitive in view of the straitened finances of the Alumni Association.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

TWO important changes will take place in the Commencement Week program. The first of these is the shifting of the Annual Alumni Reception and Ball to Tuesday evening, June 16, instead of Wednesday as heretofore. It was felt by the Alumni Executive Committee that the ball has not been a success in recent years, as most alumni return to their homes either Tuesday night or Wednesday noon. Moreover, the ball will this year be strictly limited to the alumni and former students.

This change in turn necessitates the holding of the Annual Alumni Dinner at noon (12:45 P. M.) instead of in the evening of Tuesday, June 16.

Monday will as usual be reunion day for the five-year classes, and Tuesday the All-Alumni Day. Full particulars will appear in the June issue.

THE WISCONSIN ALUMNI CLUBS

COMMERCE ALUMNI

THE Commerce Alumni of Milwaukee and Chicago entertained the Commerce seniors, who were on their annual inspection trip, at banquets in their cities on April 7 and 8 respectively. This was the first time such affairs had been held and the attendance and good feeling which prevailed is the best illustration of the spirit of interest which the Commerce Alumni take in their Alma Mater. Both banquets were great successes and it was voted that they be considered an annual affair so that the alumni and undergraduates might continue to keep in close touch with one another.

The Milwaukee banquet which was held at the University Club was in charge of Morris Fox, '04, and Hugo Kuechenmeister, '13. The following alumni were at the Milwaukee banquet:

Regent T. M. Hammond, Prof. S. W. Gilman, W. H. Grell, '12, W. H. Schroeder, '12, B. F. Springer, '10, H. H. Seifert, '09, E. W. Krauthofer, '08, M. T. Slade, '08, R. C. Allen, '13, M. F. Fox, '04, Frank Frey, '12,

H. Kuechenmeister, '13, G. B. Averill, '08, A. L. Lindeman, '06, J. C. Pritzlaff, '13, W. C. Roberts, '13, F. G. Rice, '08, E. J. Dohmen, '11, C. F. Rohn, '11, G. Shibata, '09, G. T. Bulfin, '10, A. Prinz, '10, A. W. Schwartzing, '11, C. A. Eierman, '12, R. J. Dickleman, '12, R. F. Kahn, '13, A. L. Zinke, '13, J. E. Sheridan, '13, F. H. Elwell, '08.

Dick Hollen, '03, president of the Commerce Alumni Association, had charge of the Chicago banquet given at the Auditorium Hotel. The following alumni were at the Chicago banquet:

Prof. S. W. Gilman, B. D. Burhoe, '13, M. H. Jackson, '03, John W. Leslie, '07, R. H. Hollen, '03, A. E. Thiede, '04, C. L. Jamieson, '13, S. B. Eros, G. M. Pelton, '09, H. R. Moore, '13, D. C. Porter, '13, S. B. Kirk, '13, F. J. Novak, '13, Robt. Usher, '07, M. H. Hoskins, '13, R. M. Niven, '07, Roy S. Edwards, '08, E. R. Walker, Henry Shields, '04, M. F. Hendrickson, '13, E. L. Wedlock, '13, S. B. Gross, '09, C. R. Hoffman, '12, M. B. Law, '12, F. H. Elwell, '08.

TWIN CITY ALUMNI

By J. H. CURTIS, '10

The annual banquet of the University of Wisconsin Twin City Alumni Association (Saint Paul and Minneapolis) took place at the Commercial Club in Saint Paul, Thursday evening, March 26. Seventy-five graduates were present, Judge Oscar Hallam presiding. The principal speaker was Professor Pyre from the faculty, who told us some very interesting things regarding university history. Mr. Pyre's talk was a very entertaining and instructive one and the enthusiastic reception he received it is hoped well repaid him for his consideration in addressing the banquet.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

J. L. Erdall, 2019 Irving Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minnesota, president.

C. R. Fletcher, 935 Andrus Bldg., Minneapolis, Minnesota, secretary and treasurer.

The next banquet will be held in Minneapolis.

Just before the banquet, the assembled Badgers were thrown into consternation by the announcement of the Commercial Club steward that some mistake had been made as to the banquet date and that no food had been prepared for the Wisconsin banquet on that evening and that instead the club records showed the banquet scheduled for the following week. A long discussion followed as to what should be done and the steward finally said that he would provide the room and serve sandwiches, coffee, etc. Everyone thereupon went into the banquet room where they were surprised of course to find all preparations made. A seven course dinner followed.

A pleasant surprise at the banquet table was a present of a little individual box, containing three large bitter sweets, compliments of the Palace of Sweets at Madison.

At each place at the banquet table was laid a copy of The Daily Cardinal, an edition of last fall's Chicago game. A large black ribbon tied up each copy of the paper.

Following the banquet and reception an informal dance was held, after which the banqueters left for their homes, all having enjoyed a most pleasant evening.

ALUMNI NEWS

The success of this personal news department is dependent upon the interest every alumnus takes in his Magazine. News items should come direct from graduates if this department is to be valuable and reliable. Contributors to these columns will greatly aid the editor if they designate the class and college of the subject of their sketch in the news items.

Following is the list of class secretaries who have been requested to send in news of their respective classes: 1884, Milton Orelup Nelson; 1886, Mrs. Emma Nunns Pease; 1887, Mrs. Ida E. Johnson Fisk; 1888, Florence Porter Robinson; 1889, Byron Delos Shear; 1890, Willard Nathan Parker; 1892, Mrs. Linnie M. Flesh Lietze; 1893, Mary Smith Swenson; 1896, George Farnsworth Thompson; 1897, Louise P. Kellogg; 1898, Jeremiah P. Riordan; 1899, Mrs. Lucretia H. McMillan; 1900, Joseph Koffend, Jr.; 1901, Paul Stover; 1902, Mrs. Merle S. Stevens; 1903, Willard Hein; 1904, Mrs. Florence S. Moffat Bennett; 1905, Louis H. Turner; 1906, Marguerite Eleanor Burnham; 1907, Ralph G. Gugler; 1908, Fayette H. Elwell; 1909, Eugene Arthur Clifford; 1910, Kemper Slidell; 1911, Erwin A. Meyers; 1912, Harry John Wiedenbeck.

DEATHS

MRS. JOHN M. DODSON.

Mrs. John M. Dodson, wife of Dr. John M. Dodson, '80, dean of the Rush Medical School, died at her home in Chicago on April 13. She leaves beside her husband a son and a daughter.

MRS. JOHN D. ROWLAND, '84.

Lizzie Hand Rowland, eldest child of Judge E. O. Hand, '59, and Margaret Budd Hand was born in Racine, Wisconsin, July 26, 1863. Her girlhood and young womanhood was spent in the city of her birth where she attended the public schools, later becoming a student at McMynn's Academy, from which she was graduated in June, 1881. Her bright, sunny, care-free nature made many warm friendships during these early years.

The following year she entered the sophomore class of the University of Wisconsin, completing the course in three years and graduating in 1884. She was a member of Laurea Literary Society, of Delta Gamma sorority, and of the University Choral Union (conducted by Prof. Parker), in all of which organizations she took keen interest. She was chosen valedictorian by the membership of her class.

October 23, 1890, she was married to John B. Rowland, '86, who was engaged at that time in business at Phillips, Wisconsin, where the young couple went to live. Life in northern Wisconsin at that time was practically pioneer life and the close relationship and inter-dependence of the young people bearing an equal share of the burdens and responsibilities of that life developed deep and lasting friendship which was one of Mrs. Rowland's chief joys.

In June, 1892, a daughter, Margaret, was born and later (two years) an infant son who lived only twenty-four hours. There had been at the time of his birth many forest fires in northern Wisconsin—Phillips seemed seriously threatened with danger, a dense smoke was constantly in the air, and a force of men was employed to watch the outskirts of the village. At length late one afternoon two weeks after the death of her baby boy, when the danger was considered practically over, a huge sheet of flame came sweeping, leaping from the west,—so intense in heat, so wide in extent, there was no checking it and the people fled for their lives. Mrs. Rowland and her nurse left the front door of her little home containing all her cherished gifts and possessions just as the flames were bursting in the back door; her husband and daughter separated from her, each enduring tortures of uncertainty concerning the others. The anxieties of that night, spent in a box car, with flames on all sides and the resulting exposure produced a shock to Mrs. Rowland's strength and constitution which seemed to lessen her chances of recovery during her last illness. Mr. and Mrs. Rowland returned to help rehabilitate a new town, building a new home amidst the ashes, and starting life anew. They remained for two years, when Mr. Rowland accepted a position with the Wisconsin Central Railroad with headquarters in Milwaukee, where they lived for two years, and where David, their eldest living son, was born. In 1896 Mr. and Mrs. Rowland returned to Racine, Mr. Rowland becoming a member of the insurance and real estate firm of Carpenter & Rowland.

Since coming to Racine, another son, John, was born. Margaret, the daughter, attended Milwaukee-Downer College for three years, leaving there for the University of Wisconsin, where she entered the course in physical education which she expected to complete in two years. But after attending one year her mother's last long illness compelled her to leave college in order to take her mother's place as home-keeper. The two boys, David, aged 15, and John, aged 12, are attending the public schools of Racine.

Mrs. Rowland's life in Racine has been one of constant activity; a member of the First Presbyterian church of Racine since girlhood, a forceful, prayerful teacher of young men in the Sunday school, an efficient worker in the Ladies' Union, a zealous laborer in the Missionary Society. In the Woman's Club she was reliable and ready. She had a cultivated appreciation for music and was always a lover and promoter of musical enterprise.

Two years ago in April after the death of her mother, Mrs. Rowland was taken ill with melancholia. This condition had been intermittent for some time before it became severe. Suddenly it became very pronounced and she was taken for treatment to Waukesha Springs Sanitarium, under the care of Dr. Caples, where she remained sixteen months with no improvement. February 24, 1914, her weakened condition succumbed to pneumonia and she awakened at last "in His likeness." The funeral was held February 26th at Racine, Wisconsin, at the First Presbyterian church, where her stricken family and the old and tried friends of her girlhood, wifehood and motherhood gathered for the last sad rites. I. H. C.

MRS. D. W. NORTH, '86.

Mrs. North (Sarah E. Nelson), died at her home in Edgerton, Wis., on March 31. She was born on August 15, 1864, at South Wayne, Wis. She attended Lawrence College for several years, but came to the university later and graduated with the class of 1886. On July 15, 1887, she was married to D. W. North. After her marriage Mrs. North lived in Madison, Wis., and later in Evansville, Ind. She has lived in Edgerton for the past eighteen years, during which time she has been actively associated with temperance work. She leaves two daughters and two sons.

THE CLASSES

W. W. Armstrong is one of the leading bankers of Salt Lake City, Utah.

1889.

Frederick H. Whitton has headquarters at 805 Charleston Building, San Francisco.

E. W. Austin is practicing law in Chicago with offices at 904 Chamber of Commerce Building.

Edward B. Hutchinson is practicing medicine in Chicago. His home is at 5601 Monroe avenue.

James B. Kerr is a member of the law firm of Carey and Kerr, 1410 Yeon Building, Portland, Oregon. Mr. Kerr and his family will spend two months in Madison this summer.

F. G. Kraege has returned to Mazomanie, Wis. in order to accept the superintendency of the public schools of that city. Mr. Kraege was formerly head of the public schools of Nampa, Idaho.

Mrs. Nettie Smith Dugas and her family are living at 1675 Capitol avenue, St. Paul, Minn.

John B. Goss is practicing law in Marshfield, Oregon.

1892.

J. J. Cunningham who was appointed postmaster of Janesville a month ago by President Wilson has assumed the duties of his new position.

E. T. MUNGER, '92

positions with public utility corporations. His first position was foreman of wiremen of the Metropolitan Elevated Railway of Chicago where he was employed for two years. In 1897 he became superintendent of the Havana Electric Light Company of Havana, Ill. He held this position until 1899 when he was made president and general manager of the Havana Telephone Company of the same city. In 1904 Mr. Munger went back to the Metropolitan Elevated Railway to accept the position of master mechanic, and in 1908 was promoted to the superintendency of motive power and equipment. One year later he was called to the general superintendency of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company where one of his most important duties was to give personal attention to the "Public Be Pleased" policy instituted by the president of the company, W. G. McAdoo.

Professor F. W. Meisnest, head of the department of German of the University of Washington, is the author of a monograph on "Wieland's Translation of Shakespeare" which was published in the Modern Language Review of London for January, 1914. The work is the result of investigations made by the libraries of the universities of Wisconsin and Munich and in the British Museum.

1894.

S. R. Sheldon, dean of the department of electrical engineering of the Imperial Polytechnic College at Shanghai, China, has been awarded the decoration of the Fair Corps of the Fifth Class by the president of China. This unusual honor is a recognition of the services Professor Sheldon has rendered in his official capacity at the college. Thanks to the interest of Professor Sheldon several graduates of his department have secured places with American electrical firms where they are able to gain much more practical experience than in their native country.

1896.

G. M. Dahl of the Electric Bond and Share Company of New York City has been promoted to the vice-presidency of that company.

F. J. Smith, a member of the law firm of F. J. and A. H. Smith, has been elected mayor of Merrill, Wis. Mr. Smith's plan of administration is best summed up in his own words as follows.

"It is my belief, that the present dissatisfaction with the governing of municipalities, particularly of cities of the size of Merrill, about 10,000, is due to the system of the general charter law which places practically the duty of government on the city council who have neither time nor opportunity to reach the multitude of details and information necessary for intelligent action. Government by the council is very often action without thought. It is my plan to urge the proposition that the mayor take the initiative in cities of this size and place before the common council a plan for all work; that under some such plan the city council will act more as the board of directors of a private corporation, but who have a manager or executive officer who really takes the initiative and becomes responsible for the general conduct of the business, but subject to the supervision and control of the board of directors.

Augustus W. Trettien, associate professor of education and director of the teacher's training school of the University of Kansas, has been honored with a request to join the Royal Society of Arts of London. During the summer session Professor Trettien will give courses in the University of Washington.

1900.

Harry W. Adams was elected mayor of Beloit, Wis., on April 7 by a majority of 539 votes.

George M. Ferris has dissolved his partnership with Jay W. Page of Elkhorn and has opened up a office in the First National Bank Building at Whitewater Wis.

1901.

E. O. Leatherwood is the district attorney of the third judicial district of Utah with offices in Salt Lake City.

1902.

Professor S. S. Huebner, of the University of Pennsylvania, who was one of the experts engaged by the Congressional committee on the merchant marine last year to investigate the shipping trust, appeared before the Senate committee on interoceanic canals on April 13 to give his views on conditions in the coastwise trade and their relationship to the Panama Canal tolls exemption. Mr. Huebner unhesitatingly pronounced the exemption provision a subsidy and proved his statement by showing that the entire coastwise trade is under the control either of the railroads or shipping consolidation through direct ownership or agreements.

Benjamin C. Adams is at present in London in consultation with several capitalists of that city who have electric interests in Brazil. Mr. Adams will proceed to South America after the conference to take up the managership of these electric interests.

Professor W. B. Richards, of the North Dakota Agricultural College at Fargo, has resigned his position in the animal husbandry department of that institution to accept the position of field agent for Dickey county, North Dakota. Professor Richard is recognized as one of the leading authorities on draft horses in this country.

Harry Shields, is with C. S. Kidder Co., Bond Dealers, Woman's Temple, Chicago.

1903-1905.

The "Robin" of '03 and '05 has come "a-tapping" again and we extract the following:

D. O. Hibbard, secretary of the Community Young Men's Christian Association of Mason City, writes as follows:

"We have just been through a sore trial to me, as I had worked hard to educate the people of this city to such a point as would lead them to vote for municipal playgrounds. In my capacity as promoter, I spoke to audiences in different parts of the city, I kept the papers full of playground stories, I spent an evening with the Commercial Club, and got the endorsement of a large number of organizations, so that we felt sure that the people would vote for the two-mill allowance. The playground proposition, however, got mixed up with a general anti-tax movement and was lost. This is one of the discouragements of this work. In a few minutes I must go to court to take up the cases of two defective children whose parents are reluctant to send them to the state school for defectives, and this afternoon I have two boys 16 years old up in the district court as house breakers. If the people would vote playgrounds for the boys and girls, fewer of them would get into trouble, for in almost every instance I find that the boys were seeking excitement when they got into trouble."

D. O. Thompson of Purdue University writes as follows:

"Spring is here; our city has a 'city beautiful' campaign on, and we are all out with the lark and the English sparrow, cleaning up the back yard and trying to grow flowers and 'garden sass' where none ever grew before. Some farce for a man to be tied to a city lot built upon tin cans and refuse of past years when he might be stirring some old eighty or hundred and sixty acres with life."

Mackery Rood of Alpine is the author of the following:

"It has developed that I must change my line of work, so tomorrow I leave for a lumber camp and saw mill just this side of the summit of the Cascade Mountains. I am taking the little family and so for the next year we will all be roughing it indeed."

A. E. Anderson of Laramie, Wyo., writes the following:

"We are getting along finely with the individual men's club, and the federation of men's clubs is doing well. We now have a civic league under construction and look for much good in the coming elections. Politics are still rotten here in spite of woman suffrage. We expect an anti-pass bill this coming session of the legislature and we central station men are preparing for a public utility commission. We are lining up for a fair bill in which political appointees will be forgotten. We are advocating a bill modeled after Wisconsin's with proper modification as to salary, method of appointment, etc."

George D. Swan of the Tokyo Y. M. C. A. sends the following:

"We are living very easily in a little Japanese house with two very capable Japanese maids to make up for the lack of home conveniences that only Americans know. The climate has been most delightful all winter, crisp nights and warm, bright days.

Our days go along with little to disturb us except old mother earth's uneasiness. Earthquakes have been of daily occurrence the past week and about a month ago we were treated with a shake-up that set our little house to rocking like a ship at sea. They are utterly lacking in pleasant features and we will be glad to get down to Kobe out of the quake region."

Daniel W. Hoan was reelected district attorney of Milwaukee last month on the social-democratic ticket.

1906.

Paul H. Kremer has his offices in the Wells Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

Marshal Arnold is with Frank Pegin, Real Estate, 72 Washington St., Chicago, Ill.

C. P. Norgord, associate professor of agronomy in the University of Wisconsin, has been made superintendent of the farmers' institute of this state.

Joseph Zwolanek has resigned as chief engineer of the International Gas Engine Company of Cudahy, Wis., to accept the position of the managership of the Creamery Supply Manufacturing Company of Clinton, Wis.

H. C. Stark is in the Real Estate business with offices at 1105 Vhet St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Myron E. Keats, superintendent of schools of Oconomowoc, Wis., was elected president of the Association of Wisconsin Superintendents and Supervising Principals on April 4th.

In an article in The Washington Alumnus Edward McMahon is spoken of as follows: "The average student who first comes in contact with Edward McMahon, associate professor of history, will contend that either his high school instructors didn't know anything about United States history, or else he now faces an entirely new point of view. Mr. McMahon is a progressive and handles his courses in United States history with bare hands. Before an undergraduate has had very many classes under Professor McMahon he will appreciate just what is meant by the Wisconsin point of view."

1909.

Paul H. Neystrom of the Extension Division of the university, has been appointed to an instructorship at the University of Minnesota where he will give special courses in retail merchandising.

J. R. Pfiffner, of Tomahawk, Wis. has been elected secretary and treasurer of the Lincoln County Bar Association. Mr. Pfiffner is one of the first members of his class to signify his intention of attending the first big '09 reunion in June.

Morris W. Richards of the horticultural department of Purdue University has been given charge of the university's new eighty acre orchard near Bedford, Ill.

Harry L. Budd is in the power and mining department of the General Electric Company and is at present stationed at Scranton, Pa. with the D. L. and W. R. R.

1911.

L. E. Voyer has been transferred to the San Francisco office of the General Electric Company where he will hold the position of illuminating engineer. His address will be General Electric Company, Realito Building.

1912.

R. H. Merkel is with the Morgan Engineering Company, City National Bank Building, Dayton, Ohio.

Carl Hoffman is now with the Lee Jones Advertising Company, 1920 Republic Bldg., Chicago.

R. J. Dickelman is now with the Weinbrenner Shoe Mfg. Company, Milwaukee, Wis.

1913.

Richard M. Tunncliffe is superintendent of music in the public schools of Boston, N. Y. and teacher of methods in the normal school of the city.

Alfred W. Kliefoth of Madison has been appointed to direct the work of the Social Service Commission of the American Federation of Catholic Organizations, with headquarters at Milwaukee. The position is a new one, and contemplates the direction of social reform work throughout the United States. According to Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, who is a national authority on labor and social reform movements, Mr. Kliefoth's work is bound to become a vital factor in the affairs of this country. It will identify him with the most prominent men of the nation interested in social work.

Mr. Kliefoth will travel extensively, and will give considerable time to writing and lecturing.

Mr. Kliefoth is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, class of 1913, and during the past year has been connected with the New York Life Insurance Company as statistician. Recently he passed the examination for the consular service in the orient, but declined appointment in view of the larger opportunities offered by the position he is about to assume.

While an undergraduate of the university, Mr. Kliefoth was prominent in student activities, especially in the International Club, of which he was secretary, and in the Edwin Booth Dramatic Society, of which he became president after distinguishing himself in various productions by that organization.

E. L. Wedlock is with Sears Roebuck Company of Chicago and lives at 5906 Rice St.

Mark Hoskins' residence address is 3336 Michigan Ave., Chicago, and his business address is Chicago Telephone Co.

Doric Porter's residence address is 4816 Kenmore Ave., Chicago, and his business address, Chicago Telephone Co.

Leo C. Smith is now with the J. Cox Advertising Company, Milwaukee.

FROM THE CAMPUS

March 26th—It is announced that the Co-burn players will present the "Merry Wives of Windsor" and "The Canterbury Pilgrims" as a part of the annual May Festival to be held on May 24.

In a bulletin issued by the United States Bureau of Education the university campus is valued at $1,865,361. This places us at the head of all state-aided institutions, with Minnesota, Ohio, and Washington following in the order named. In regard to the size of faculties Cornell leads with Wisconsin second, followed by Illinois, Minnesota, California, and Michigan.

March 27th—W. H. Allen, head of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research, begins the investigation of the university ordered by the state board of public affairs.

March 28th—Both the affirmative and negative teams representing the College of Agriculture are victorious over the teams representing the Minnesota college of Agriculture in a joint debate on the subject of co-operative agricultural banks.

March 30th—In order to stimulate scholarship among the fraternities, the inter-fraternity council decides to offer three loving cups for three fraternities that rank the highest in studies.

March 31st—The Athletic Department will build twelve new tennis courts this spring and make a $2,500 addition to the university boat house.

April 1st—Mortar Board, the honorary senior girls' society, announces the following elections: Freda Boss, Julia Avery, Genevieve Hendricks, Winfred Rettger, Hildegarde Hagerman, and Esther Kelley.

April 2nd—"Minna von Barnhelm" is given by the German Society at the Fuller with Winfred Rettger and Ernst Feise in the two leading roles.

April 3rd—Grover L. Broadfoot and A. W. Powell are elected editor and business manager, respectively, of the 1916 Badger.

Gustave Wright representing Wisconsin gets third place in the Hamilton Oratorical Contest.

Lester Rogers is elected president of the Y. M. C. A. for the school year 1914-1915.

April 4th—The varsity crew is given its first workout in the shells on Lake Monona. Mendota will not be open until after the Easter vacation.

Katherine Faville is elected president of the Self-Government Association for next year.

April 7th—The question of no license is submitted to the voters of Madison and is rejected by the small majority of 69 votes. The closeness of the result is due in a large measure to the heavy student vote cast in favor of prohibition. The fifth ward which includes most of the student rooming houses in the city went dry by an overwhelming majority.

April 8th—The varsity baseball team leaves for a short spring training trip.

The annual Easter vacation begins.

April 14th—The crews have their first spin on Lake Mendota.

April 15th—Wisconsin defeats the Carroll College nine by the score of 8 to 2.

Spring football practice begins with forty candidates out for the preliminary drill.

April 16th—The regular monthly meeting of the regents is held.

BOOK REVIEWS

The March issue of the Advocate of Peace contains an article by Louis P. Lochner, '09, entitled, "A Plea for the Small Town." Mr. Lochner urges that the peace propaganda be directed not merely at the congested centers of population, but also to the rural communities, the typical "one-horse" towns.

Before us is a copy of the first issue of The Open Door, a new illustrated eight-page magazine, or bulletin, "printed for distribution among the students of the University of Wisconsin Extension Division." We are not convinced that there is any necessity for adding still another to the flood of Wisconsin publications, but shall reserve our final judgment until more issues have appeared.

Theodore H. Hoyer, '12, contributes a fascinating illustrated article on "The Story of Kagoshima" in the Outlook for February 28.

An interesting feature of Farm and Fireside (Dallas S. Burch, '08, editor) for March 28 is a page of ten short poems on "Ten Comforts that Pay their Way," three of which are written by Mr. Burch himself ("The Cream Separator," "My Partner, the Gas Engine," and "The Fanning Mill"); three by Alice Lindsey Webb of the university extension division ("Running Water in the House," "The Washing Machine," and "A Song for the Sewing Machine"); and one by Berton Braley, '05, ("The Typewriter"). It is surprising to see how these intensely practical subjects lend themselves to poetic treatment.

That the writer of Job was influenced by Hellenistic thought is claimed by Dr. H. M. Kallen of the university in the February number of The Playbook. Dr. Kallen gives an account of the analogies of Job and the plays of Euripides. He shows the similarities of the prologues and traces out how the differences between Job and Greek tragedy may have arisen.

Years of Discretion. By Frederic Hatton, '10, and Fannie Locke Hatton. Novelized from the Play by the Authors. With illustrations by Alonzo Kimball. New York, Dodd, Mead and Company. 349 pp.

We have not been so fortunate as to see the play from which this story was novelized. After reading the novel, we are extremely anxious to see the play. There is a strong moral to the story. Incidentally, we get many an interesting glimpse of New York's smart set. Mike Doyle, John Strong, and Farrell are all types such as are to be found in the gay bachelor set of New York's rich. And as for the women—who has not seen the types exemplified by Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Brinton?
