ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

ADJUTANT GENERAL

OF THE

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

WITH REPORTS FROM THE

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL AND SURGEON GENERAL,

FOR THE

YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 30th, 1865.

MADISON, WIS.:
WILLIAM J. PARK & CO., BOOKSELLERS, BINDERS AND STATIONERS.
1866.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Madison, Dec. 30th, 1865.

To his Excellency, JAMES T. LEWIS, Governor:

I have the honor herewith to submit my annual report from this department for the year 1865;

Very respectfully,

your obedient servant.

AUG. GAYLORD,

Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, September 1, 1866.

In consequence of delay, arising from various causes, in the publication of this volume, all organizations of Wisconsin troops have been mustered out of service, in time so that their completed histories could be inserted in this report, and this has been done, in order to make a complete and compact official history of the part taken by Wisconsin in the great struggle for the maintenance of the General Government against rebellion. This will serve to explain the fact that while this is the report of this office for the year ending September 30, 1865, it contains histories, rosters, mortality lists, etc., complete to different dates in 1866, when the organizations have been disbanded, which were in the service of the United States, on the 30th of September, 1865. This course was deemed to be exceedingly desirable in connection with the reprint of regimental narratives from the reports of previous years. These additions to the report have been made from data coming into possession of the office partly previous to the resignation of General Gaylord, on the 1st of May last, and partly since.

JAMES K. PROUDFIT,
Adjutant General.

ANNUAL REPORT.

GOVERNOR:—In submitting to your Excellency this, my fourth annual report, it is with lively pleasure I recall the fact that the days of our nation's civil strife are ended; that the victory of the Union forces over an armed rebellion against the General Government is complete and final, and that with labors all done, and well done, we have been permitted to welcome home again so many of those who went forth from the state to battle in this great struggle.

In the accomplishment of this result, Wisconsin has, in common with her sister states, right nobly borne herself in every department aroused to activity by this contest: through her soldiers in the field, and her patriotic men and women at home. Her sons have gone forth manfully, achieving for themselves, and reflecting honors upon their state, from every battlefield.

Whether in the army of the Potomac, the army of the Cumberland, the Tennessee, or the Gulf, or in the more remote and less conspicuous array, her soldiers have stood shoulder to shoulder with those of other states, equal with any, and second to none in deeds of heroism and devotion to our country's cause and flag.

In every department of sanitary and Christian labor, through public channels and private munificence, her people at home have given unceasing and unwearied labor to sustain and cheer their sons and brothers at the front, and to maintain and secure the perpetuity of the National government.

RECRUITING SERVICE.

The succession of Union victories culminating in the surrender of the main rebel forces under Lee and Johnston, in April of the present year, and the consequent suspension of recruiting, and the disbandment of the volunteer force, preclude the necessity for any extended report of the recruiting service in this state during the year, and will render the character of this report that of a review of the volunteer service of this state during the rebellion; rather than any extended record of the labors of the present year.

The labors of the first three months, although of short duration, were, however, remarkably active, and successful in securing the General Government a larger number of recruits from this state than in any corresponding period subsequent to the autumn of 1862; the total number of volunteers and drafted men exceeding twelve thousand.

The call of the president of the United States, dated December 19th, 1864, for three hundred thousand volunteers, was issued to the people of this state on the 3d of January, 1865, in General Orders number one, current series, from this office; also directing the organization of the Forty-sixth regiment. The Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth, organizing and incomplete at the commencement of the year, with half a regiment each at the front, were, by active exertions of the commanding officers, speedily filled to the minimum, the recruits being mustered and forwarded to the front by companies.

The provisions of the Act of Congress, approved July 4th, 1864, for "calling out the national forces," permitted the terms of one two and three years' enlistment, and the new regiments were under this call and subsequent orders designated and organized as one year regiments. Subsequent orders were issued as late as March 1st, directing the organization of new regiments, numbering from the Forty-seventh to the Fifty-third, inclusive.

Recruiting slackened, however, to such an extent before the completion of the last-named regiment, that it became necessary to consolidate the four companies of the Fifty-third with five of the Fifty-first, yet incomplete, and they were thus mustered into the service under command of Colonel Leonard Martin.

Besides the volunteers constituting the new organizations, under this call there were, during this period, from January 1st to April 15th—the date on which recruiting ceased by order of the War Department, a large number of recruits and drafted men assigned to old regiments in the service, both infantry and cavalry.

An order from the War Department authorizing the organization of a "veteran corps," to be commanded by Major General W. S.

Hancock, and composed of veteran troops from all northern states, was also published in this state, and enlistments encouraged. Through the exertions mainly of officers formerly connected with Wisconsin regiments, two hundred and fifteen recruits were enlisted for this service.

Recruits generally preferring to join either old or new regiments from our own state, instead of that proposed, the endeavor was not highly successful.

During this period, also, the First cavalry, whose original term of service had expired, and many of which had accordingly been mustered out of service, was permitted to reorganize. This was done at Nashville, where the old organization was mustered out, and the regiment remustered on the 14th day of February, under command of O. H. La Grange, the former colonel.

The following is a list of the new regiments sent to the field the present year:

Infantry.			Men.
46th,	Colonel	F. S. Lovell commanding,	914
47th,	"	Geo. B. Ginty, commanding,	927
48th,	"	U. B. Pearsall, commanding,	828
49th,	"	Samuel B. Fallows, commanding,	986
50th,	"	John G. Clark, commanding,	942
51st, 53d,	"	Consolidated, Leonard Martin, commanding,	841
52d,	"	Lieut. Colonel Hiram J. Lewis, commanding,	866

So far as possible, it has been the endeavor on the part of our state, and with a fair degree of success, under each gubernatorial administration, to keep full the ranks of the old regiments, rather than create new organizations. These have been directed only as such action seemed necessary, with a view to success in recruiting. This course has been pursued in the belief that in the discipline obtained by months of service, one recruit in an old regiment is equal to three in a new regiment entirely unacquainted with the discipline and requirements of active service.

This course was highly appreciated by the commanding generals of the army. Major General Wm. T. Sherman, in his late visit to this state repeatedly alluded to the fact in public and private, that in this respect our regiments were unequalled, and that therein lay the secret of their marked efficiency.

Little transpired during the time occupied in the foregoing labor, which requires special mention.

Under a decision of the Provost Marshal General prohibiting the recognition of the recruiting officers and the plan previously followed, some difficulty arose, which for a time threatened the destruction of the recruiting service in this state. The course heretofore pursued was fully set forth in the following letter, addressed to the Secretary of War, with request that the restriction might be removed:

GENERAL HEAD-QUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, December 21, 1864.

HON. EDWIN M. STANTON, Secretary of War:

SIR: The governor is in receipt of a communication (a copy of which, with endorsement, is enclosed,) Lieut. Colonel Giddings, United States mustering and disbursing officer at this place, which bears an endorsement from one of the bureaus of the Provost Marshal General's office, asking for information "by what authority the governor has issued recruiting commissions," other than those authorized by General Orders No. 131, current series, from the War Department, indicating from the nature of the inquiry, that question has arisen relative to the manner in which the recruiting service has been heretofore conducted in this state.

Omitting any notice of the language of the endorsement referred to, I am instructed to state in reply, that the governor is not aware of the existence of any specific orders on the subject, other than General Orders No. 75, series of 1863, and No. 131 current series, from the War Department, which recognize and modify the existing system of recruitment. In connection with this matter, it is perhaps unnecessary to request your notice of the fact that from the commencement of recruiting volunteers for the General Government, the labor of enlisting men has been almost exclusively performed by citizens, who, acting under authority conferred by appointment of the governors of states, have, by personal exertions and influence in their respective localities, enlisted the soldiers who constitute our volunteer regiments.

And further, that from this state, at least, not one thousandth part of the volunteers in the service were enlisted by the second lieutenants referred to. In many, and it may be said, in the majority of regiments from this state, the second lieutenants, thus authorized, did not receive notice of their discharges, enabling them to be conditionally mustered for the duty contemplated until after the companies to which they were assigned had been completed, through the exertions of recruiting officers. These appointments by the Governor have been issued to persons of ability and energy; in some instances, limiting the appointments for each regiment to the number of line officers required, and frequently issuing a larger number.

In the latter case, many of these appointments were granted to citizens, merely to confer authority, by virtue of which a sufficient number of men might be enlisted to fill the quota assigned to a particular locality, frequently without any resultant expense to the government, the enlistment appearing in the name of the Provost Marshal.

Such appointments (in the form of blank enclosed, marked "A,") were accepted with the following understanding:

I. That personal services, rendered under the appointment, were to be without compensation from either the state or the United States.

II. That if successful in recruiting the required number, a commission—at the discretion of the governor, might be issued, in which the recipient was supposed to find a proper equivalent for the labor and expense incurred in recruiting.

III. That certain expenses only were authorized by the Regulations; such as subsistence of recruits for a specified time, transportation to camp of rendezvous, and rent of office, limited and guided by the Letter of Instructions, a copy of which is enclosed, marked "B."

IV. That all accounts for expenses incurred must be certified by the recruiting officers, and upon being verified by the enlistment papers, and muster rolls, were approved at this office, by order of the governor, no expense being allowed for recruits who had not subsequently been mustered into United States service.

This plan met the approval of the United States mustering and disbursing officers, and under it accounts were audited and paid until the month of April last, when it was modified in some respects, by the circular of instructions from the Provost Marshal General (see copy enclosed marked "C,") by the provisions of which recruiting officers have since been guided and under which similar accounts have been paid without question, until the present instance. It may here be stated that this is substantially the course pursued in the adjoining states.

Further: it would seem that some recruiting officers, other than the second lieutenants referred to, were recognized by the War Department, as indicated by the following statement, to which your attention is respectfully invited.

On the 26th of October last, a request was sent from this office for the discharge of the persons designated as second lieutenants under General Orders No. 131, in the Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth regiments of infantry, then organizing. To this application the following reply, dated November 2d, was received by telegraph, viz:

"Discharges of enlisted men for promotion cannot be made until commands are reported ready.

(Signed,) T. M. VINCENT,
Assistant Adjutant General.

This decision was confirmed by subsequent correspondence.

If the second lieutenants are refused discharge, it may be asked by what agency is it contemplated that volunteers shall be enlisted and the commands put in readiness, if not through the action of recruiting officers appointed by the Governor? If the latter agency is now acknowledged, by what authority is it specifically recognized?

It is believed that there exists a misapprehension of the matter concerning which reference was made by Lt. Col. Giddings, to the Provost Marshal General. Although the number of appointments made by the governor may, in some instances, have been large, with a view to securing enlistments promptly, and in every locality, yet, it should be borne in mind that no extra expense is thereby incurred, accounts being paid only for expense accruing for recruits who have been mustered into service, and, even then, only with the restrictions established by the War Department.

The above detailed statement is respectfully transmitted for the information of the War Department, as there seems to be in bureaus charged with the payment of accounts, some great misunderstanding as to the nature and necessities of the volunteer recruiting service in this state.

In connection with this subject, information is respectfully requested as to the manner in which it is contemplated that recruiting should be carried on in future. The experience of the last three and a half years has demonstrated to the state authorities that the enlistment of volunteers in any considerable number can only be effected by the personal influence and exertion of men whose character and standing are well known in their respective localities; and in this view of the case, it is respectfully asked, whether it is intended by the War Department that enlistments under the pending draft shall be conducted exclusively by the Provost Marshals and other United States officers on duty within the state.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

AUG. GAYLORD,

Adjutant General.

Reply was received authorizing the governor "to appoint not to exceed three recruiting agents for each new company you are raising under the present call," and volunteers were recruited and companies organized in the same manner as before.

DRAFT OF 1865.

In the call of December 19th, 1864, it was ordered that unless the quotas of the several sub-districts were filled by voluntary enlistments before the 15th of February ensuing, draft should be made in the sub-districts deficient at that date, for the requisite number; but the district Provost Marshals having been unable to complete the enrollment and correction at the time appointed, the draft was delayed. By order from the War Department, dated February 23d, draft was directed on the 27th following, in all sub-districts where no efforts were being made to fill quotas by volunteering.

It was accordingly commenced in the Second district on the day appointed, in the Third district on the 28th, in the Fith on the 1st of March, and subsequently in the Fourth district. Owing to the large extent of territory included in the Sixth district, the enrollment and corrections were still incomplete at the date of suspension in recruiting, and there was consequently no draft in that district under the last call. The first quota assigned to the state under the call of December 19th, was erroneous, being announced at seventeen thousand eight hundred and five (17,805). The corrected quota of this state, under the former call of July 19th, 1864, for five hundred thousand troops, was but fifteen thousand three hundred and forty-one.

By what calculation the quota was increased over twenty-five hundred on the subsequent call for a number of troops two fifths less, was not readily apparent, and was so manifestly wrong that it was made the occasion of protest and inquiry.

A subsequent reassignment of quotas by the department reduced the quota of this state to twelve thousand three hundred and fifty-six, which number was assigned to the several sub-districts in the manner prescribed by formula from the Provost Marshal's department.

It is, perhaps, useless at this date, to recall the difficulties under which the state authorities, and consequently the people, labored in their endeavors to comprehend the wishes, or manner of procedure of the Provost Marshal General in the assignment of quotas and distribution of credits under this call. A statement of the course pursued by this office to ascertain the facts, is, however, due to the legislature and people of the state. The method adopted in the assignment of this quota was deemed a breach of faith with the people in this respect, namely: Under the call of July 18th, 1864, the various sub-districts in the loyal states were assured that their quotas in the (then) future would be increased or lessened in the proportion that they furnished a less or greater number of men (in years of service) to the United States governemnt; in other words, that the number required from each sub-district under subsequent calls would depend upon the credits arising from its own contributions to the number called for. This promise was not and could not be fulfilled in the assignment of the quota of December 19th, in the manner proposed and illustrated by the formulas from the Provost Marshal General's bureau. The plan adopted did give credit to congressional districts for all excesses of credits existing in the sub-districts composing them, in the distribution of which excess, credit was given pro-rata to each sub-district; thereby rewarding the delinquent sub-district for what it had not done, and defrauding those entitled of what was their due. Had each sub-district exactly filled its quota, the plan adopted would have been a just procedure, but in the existing state of the case, it wrought injustice.

In proof of this position I append a copy of General Fry's formula and tables "A," "B" and "C," illustrating the theory; and also the following letter addressed to and accompanying copies of the same tables to the adjutants general of other states, as explanatory:

HEADQUARTERS STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, February 3d, 1865

Gen.

Adjutant General of

SIR:—The accompanying tables, "A," "B" and "C," have been compiled for the purpose of illustrating the formula contained in the lettor of the Provost Marshal General, dated January 24, 1865, and are respectfully submitted to you for your inspection.

It will be observed, that in each table the credits of the Fourth sub-district are identical with General Fry's formula, the only change being in the terms of service of men furnished by the other seven sub-districts.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the rather extraordinary results which follow: The quota of the Fourth sub district, according to schedule "A," is one hundred and eighty-two, according to schedule "B," ninety, and according to schedule "C" two hundred and ninety-three; and this it should be noted, without change of credit in that sub-district, or alteration of the number assigned as quota to the district of which it is a part.

I am, General, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,

AUG. GAYLORD.
Adjutant General,

PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S FORMULA.

[EXTRACT.]

Suppose the quota under the present call in a given district containing eight (8) sub-districts is 1,000 men and that the quota in that district under the call of July 18th, 1864, was 1,600, which was filled as follows:

Sub-Districts.	No. of men furnished.	PERIOD OF SERVICE.			Total No. of years service.	Excess of No. of years of service over No. of men.
		1 year.	2 years.	3 years.
First,.....	200	140	20	40	300	100
Second,.....	240	180	10	50	350	110
Third,.....	160	80	12	68	308	148

Eighth,.....	180	132	24	24	252	72
Total,.....	1,600	932	136	582	2,800	1,200

"It will be seen that the excess of years of service over the number of men furnished in the 1st sub-district is 100, in the 2d 110, etc. Total in the district 1,200."

"The quota of the district under the present call is 1,000, this multiplied by three (3) gives 3,000 years of service; to this add the excess (1,200) then as the number enrolled in the district (20,000) is to this sum (4,200) so is the number enrolled in the sub-district to the number of years service required increased by its excess; from which deduct the excess of years service which the sub-district has furnished, and divide the remainder by three (3) to find the quota of the sub-district."

Sub-Districts.	No. enrolled in district.	Quota of district multiplied by 3 & excess added.	Number enrolled in sub-districts.	Gross quota..	Excess furnished by sub-districts.	No. of years service required & to be divided by 3.	Nett quota or the required No.

Total,.....	20,000	4,200	20,000	4,200	1,200	3,000	1,000

"The above formula is furnished to boards of enrollment as a rule by which they will apportion the quotas of sub-districts, and determine the amount of credit due them."

(Signed,) JAMES B. FRY,
Provost Marshal General.

In an examination of the foregoing tables it will be seen that retaining the figures of General Fry's formula in each, A, B and C, with the exception of changing the terms of enlistment only of men furnished by all the sub-districts, except the fourth, the credits of which are identical with the formula; the number to be raised by that (fourth) district, is in proportion to the excess or deficiency of its associated sub-districts. Its own and just credit is ignored, and its quota is thereby made to depend upon the exertions or apathy of its neighbors, and the sub-district is held accountable for action over which it had no control. To an earnest protest from many states, reply was made that the proposed plan of assignment had been submitted to an eminent committee, who had reported the theory of the Provost Marshal General as correct in principle. It may at least be said in reply, that if the formula is correct as an abstract proposition, it did not treat with sub-districts in the manner before proposed and promised. Certain it is that the foregoing tables elucidating the formula prove its incorrectness for the purpose contemplated on its own premiss.

I have treated this matter somewhat at length; not so much to show the fallacy of the position, or to find fault with the Department in what is now past, as to give evidence to your Excellency and the legislature that this office was not quiescent under what was generally deemed an erroneous procedure, and that it sought by all proper means to remedy that which was inexplicable, and unjust to the sub-districts, and equally injurious to success in recruiting. In this, as in all former calls, where there was evidence of fairness in the assignment of quotas, there was enthusiasm and success in recruiting, while doubts and ignorance most effectually hindered it. The people sought only to know that they were fairly dealt with, and they were in readiness to respond to any call.

The gross results obtained from the five districts in which partial draft was made under this call are of

Drafted men,	1,325
Substitutes before and after draft,	1,140
A total gain to the service of	2,465

Owing to the closing of the District Provost Marshal's offices and shipment of the records to Washington, I am unable to give detailed statement by districts.

Further information will be gained by reference to appendix B.

THE TOTAL OF TROOPS FURNISHED.

The General Government up to the 31st of December, 1864, as given in the last annual report and for which number this state received credit, was seventy-seven thousand four hundred and twenty-one, (77,421.) The number of volunteers constituting the new regiments organized the present year is seven thousand one hundred and eighty-six (7,186.) Recruits for old organizations mustered during the same period number two thousand seven hundred and fifty-four (2,754.)

Total number drafted and held to service under the call of December 19th, 1864, thirteen hundred and twenty-five (1,325.) Substitutes before and after draft eleven hundred and forty (1,140) making a total of twelve thousand four hundred and five (12,405,) furnished the general government the present year.

To this number are also added naval recruits, including all of that class reported as having joined that service from this state since the commencement of the war; and all recruits from rebel states mustered with our regiments during the same period, of which this office is now advised by the War Department, and numbering altogether seven hundred and forty-three (743) men.

Under the first call of the president for troops in April, 1861, the First regiment was immediately forwarded to Washington, and being at the front when orders were issued for change of term of service to "three years or the war;" served out its original term of three months, and returned to the state, where it was reorganized as a three years regiment.

For this original term of three months service no credit has heretofore been given, it is however, now allowed in settlement and the state credited with the eight hundred and ten (810) constituting that regiment.

These credits added to the total of December 31, 1864, constitute a grand total of ninety-one thousand three hundred and seventy-nine, (91,379) furnished to the ranks of the Union army from this state under all calls from the General Government during the war of the rebellion.

The following table gives in better form a recapitulation of the account for the past year:

The following table, which, owing to its size, might properly appear in the appendix, is introduced in the body of this report, as detailing items of special interest to those familiar with the recruiting service of this state. It will be observed that the original strength of each organization is therein given, together with all gains by volunteers, drafted men or substitutes, and the losses of each by death, discharge or desertion, with the total strength a muster out of service.

Table showing total number of Volunteers originally in the several organizations from the State, with changes and present numerical strength.

*November 1st, 1865.

†October 1st, 1865.

‡Drafted men who paid commutation; volunteers, substitutes and drafted men, mustered out before assignment; musters in the field reported by the War Department, without stating organization.

ʒTo the number of 615 remaining in the service, November 1st, 1865, should be added 145 transferred from the 20th and 23d regiments.

Among the items suggested in a review of the foregoing table, your attention is invited to the total mortality occasioned by wounds or disease, amounting to one in every eight (or nearly) of the entire number furnished. In the preparation of this table it also appears that the regiments serving principally in the western campaigns suffered more heavily in losses by disease, owing undoubtedly to climatic influence, and quality of the water upon which the army was dependent. These figures are not to be taken as exact; they are, however, a close approximation, and are as correct as a careful and thorough examination of official records will permit me to furnish.

The relative losses of regiments in action, or death from wounds or disease, will be found at the close of each regimental narrative.

QUOTAS AND CREDITS.

The following is a recapitulation of account between this state and the General Government, under all calls during the war of the rebellion, giving the corrected quotas under each, and so far as possible, the credits applicable to each:

Your Excellency's attention is invited to one or two facts in connection with the above statement of account. First, that the state has furnished an excess of twelve hundred and sixty-three (1263) over her entire quota, which, if not large, is all that was required, and in connection with which this fact should also be made prominent, viz: that with very few exceptions, in which recruits joined companies forming in counties adjacent to surrounding states, which number is fully offset by counter enlistment,—these are Wisconsin men.

The Act of Congress and subsequent orders of the War Department authorizing recruiting in rebel states were not looked upon in this state as furnishing extraordinary inducements for active exertions in that direction, and while formal appointment and permission were given to various applicants, no special effort was put forth by the state. The correctness of our position is fully confirmed by the reports of commanding officers of the military departments south, and the results of this system in some of the states adopting it. Statistical evidence already developed shows that after all the expense and trouble incident to this labor, and transportation of the recruits, a large percentage deserted before reaching their regiments, and were mainly worthless, other than to count to the credit of the state which furnished them, and proving a loss to the General Government.

In this matter Wisconsin has a right to claim for herself a just and proper record. She sought to shirk no responsibility, nor to avail herself of representation foreign to the state, but from her shops, her farms and offices, her own sons went forth to fill the ranks of her regiments, manfully daring and doing whatever was required.

It will further be noticed that the total credit differs some five thousand from the number announced by the Provost Marshal General in October last and published to the people of the state. The records of this office, already approaching completion in this respect, did not confirm the statement, but it was deemed best to await further developments before raising any question in the matter. A letter from the same bureau under date of October 23d, notified us that an error existed in the former statement, and that the correct total credit is as stated, ninety-one thousand three hundred and seventy-nine (91,379.) In this conclusion the records of the War Department and this office agree, the account by sub-districts since October 12th, 1863, differing but twenty-eight (28) in number, from the records of the Assistant Provost Marshal General in this state.

Of this total number, five thousand seven hundred and eighty-four (5,784) are re-enlisted veterans under the War Department order of June 25th, 1863, and it is believed that five thousand will cover all re-enlistments of others discharged for disability, and other reasons, thereby giving an actual individual enlistment and service from this state in round numbers of eighty thousand.

An average of the population of the state, under the census of 1860, and that of 1865, gives the sum of eight hundred and twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-eight (822,278.) The total number furnished, viz: ninety-one thousand three hundred and seventy-nine (91,379), is, therefore, (omitting fractional figures) equal to one in every nine of the entire population, and one in every five of the entire male population of the state; or, taking the presidential vote of 1864 as a basis, more than one in every two voters in the state.

MUSTER OUT OF REGIMENTS.

Immediately after the cessation of hostilities, the War Department issued orders to commence the muster out of the Union forces; the first order embracing those only whose term of service expired on or before the first of October, 1865.

The agricultural needs were such, and the demand for laborers so great in every industrial department of the state, that your Excellency made a personal request of the Secretary of War to extend the provisions of that order, so far as our troops were concerned, and urging that, for the above reasons, all of our regiments might be mustered out at the earliest practicable moment.

The Fifth battery was the first organization to reach the state under orders mustering out, arriving on the sixth of June, since which time others have returned as fast as relieved from their various posts of service, in the following order:

Owing to the fact, that the chief United States mustering officer of the state is stationed at this place, and that it is also the head quarters of the Pay Department, also that the majority of returning soldiers would probably, if not necessarily, come to Madison to close up their state aid and allotment accounts; and for a further reason, that in many cases a difficulty and detention through lack of proper papers, the assistance to be rendered through state officials and the records of this office, would relieve many cases otherwise delayed in settlement: application was made to the War Department, and orders obtained, that Camp Randall, in this city, be made the rendezvous for returning regiments.

The act of the legislature, authorizing proper expenditures in the reception of returning regiments, has proved a source of comfort and gratification to the soldiers, and an assurance of kindly recognition on the part of the state. Under the immediate supervision of the Quartermaster General, each returning regiment, company or squad has, whenever that officer has been seasonably advised of its coming, been supplied with warm meals of good quality and quantity upon its arrival. A formal reception has been tendered to each, in most cases accepted, and a cordial welcome extended by the state and municipal authorities.

A portion of the returning regiments, composed of men principally from the eastern part of the state, have rendezvoused at Milwaukee, where, under the auspices of the ladies connected with the Soldier's Home, or through individual exertion, each regiment has received a welcome at the hands of that city. Special mention is justly due, of the deeds of the people of Beloit, Janesville and Racine, in which places, the first especially, as there was better opportunity; all regiments received tokens of a grateful appreciation, in well prepared meals and such other demonstrations as the length of stay permitted.

REGIMENTS REMAINING IN SERVICE.

At this date there remain in the service of the United States only the following named regiments from this state, viz.

Organization.	Commanding officer.	Stations.
Ninth infantry (bat. four co's)....	Col. Arthur Jacobi,...	Little Rock, Ark.
Thirty-fifth infantry,.....	" Geo. H. Walther,..	Brownsville, Texas.
Forty-eighth infantry,.....	" U. B. Pearsall,.....	Fort Larned, Kan.
Fiftieth infantry,.....	" John G. Clark,.....	Fort Rice, D. T.
Fourth cavalry,.....	" N. F. Craigue,.....	San Antonio, Texas.

The Ninth infantry and the Fourth cavalry are veteran organizations; the Thirty-fifth a three year, and the Forty-eighth and Fiftieth one year regiments,—the term of service of the last two expiring early in the coming year.

HISTORICAL RECORD.

In pursuing each year this branch of labor, it has been a matter of real regret that I could not give full notice and mention of the many meritorious deeds of individual service, displayed by Wisconsin troops, but I know from the character of my information, that while mention of many worthy soldiers would be made, as many, no less worthy, would be omitted through lack of proper knowledge; and that any attempt at such individual history would be in some measure unjust.

I have therefore waived those items of personal history in the hope that they may all be gathered and the facts correctly, if but briefly, presented in the proposed catalogue and record of Wisconsin soldiers.

Following each regimental history, I have in this report, appended a list giving the names of those of each organization, who were killed in action, or who died of wounds or disease; so far as the records of this office furnish the information. The list is not only valuable for reference but it is also of melancholy interest to many families of the state. It is requested of friends of the deceased soldiers of our regiments, who may discover omissions or errors in these lists, that they will advise the Adjutant General in what the error consists, that the records of this office may be perfected.

In carrying out again this year, the plan heretofore followed, I am indebted to Quartermaster General J. M. Lynch, formerly chief clerk in this office, for valuable assistance in the compilation of the following narrative of the movements and actions of our troops in the field, during the past year, a plan which has involved much extra labor, but is, I am assured, generally acceptable to the people of the state:

FIRST REGIMENT.

The First regiment, originally organized in compliance with the President's call for 75,000 three months' volunteers, having completed its term of service, was mustered out of service on the 21st of August, 1861. Orders were received for re-organization as a three years regiment on the 28th of August. Under the supervision of the former commander (Colonel John C. Starkweather), the various companies were rapidly recruited, organized and sent to the regimental rendezvous at Camp Scott, Milwaukee, where the regimental organization was perfected, and their muster into United States service completed on the 19th of October.

Nine days afterward, on the 28th, the First again left the state for active service, under orders to report at Louisville, Ky. Proceeding by way of Chicago and Indianapolis, they went into "Camp Sherman," on the north bank of the Ohio, opposite Louisville, on the 31st. Leaving Camp Sherman on the 14th of November, they crossed the river, marching through Louisville to Portland's Landing, a distance of six miles; whence they proceeded by steamer to Camp Buell, near West Point, Ky., at the mouth of Salt River. Having been assigned to Negley's brigade, they left Camp Buell on the 3d of December, and joined the brigade on the following day at Camp Negley, fifteen mil s from Elizabethtown, Ky. They left this place on the 11th, and marching about fourteen miles, encamped at Bacon Creek, whe re they remained five days; marching on the 17th, nine miles to Green River, where they went into Camp Wood, near Munfordsville. At this place the winter was passed, the regiment being employed on outpost and picket duty, and participating in various reconnoitring expeditions through the surrounding country.

On the 14th of February, 1862, they left Munfordsville, and marching northward fourteen miles, bivouacked for the night at Upton's Station, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad. On the following day the direction of their march was changed, and proceeding southward, they passed Cave City on the 17th; encamping near Bat's Cave, from which place they moved on the 23rd to Bowling Green, Ky. The march was resumed on the 27th. Proceeding by way of Franklin and Mitchellville, they encamped at Edgefield on the 2d of March, and crossing the Cumberland River on the 7th, went into Camp Andy Johnson, three miles south of Nashville, Tenn. On the 8th of March five companies were sent out on outpost and picket duty. Company B, holding the right of the line, was extended right and left as skirmishers, ten men of the centre being posted as a reserve. This small number was suddenly attacked by about two hundred rebel cavalry. The skirmishers immediately rallied on the reserve, and while in the execution of this manœuvre the company was attacked on all sides. The movement, however, was effected in good order, and the company fell back, having lost Private Willett Greenly—the first Union soldier killed in Tennessee—and two others of their number wounded.

Meanwhile company C, hearing the fire on the right, had advanced to their support, and arrived just in time to hold the enemy in check and carry off the wounded. On returning to their original position, it was discovered that the rebels had in their absence set fire to some buildings near which they had been stationed, destroying their knapsacks and blankets. The whole line was held until reinforcements came up. The regiment left Camp Andy Johnson on the 29th of March, marching by way of Franklin, crossed Duck River, and encamped on the 2d of April, two miles south of Columbia, Tenn., where they remained five days, marching on the 7th fourteen miles to Mount Pleasant, where they went into camp. Moving to Lawrenceburg on the 3d of May, they were ordered back next day to Mount Pleasant, in anticipation of an attack upon Columbia, and returned to Camp Walker at that place, having accomplished a march of fifty miles within thirty-seven hours.

On the 10th of May they again broke camp at Mount Pleasant, taking part, with an additional force of infantry, cavalry and artillery, in a reconnoissance under command of Colonel Starkweather. Marching by a circuitous route over a rough and broken country; passing through Pulaski on the 11th, they arrived on the 13th at Rogersville, Tenn., near which place a force of the enemy's cavalry, which attempted to cut off their communications, was defeated in a sharp skirmish. A forced march of seventeen miles to Shoal Creek Bridge was effected on the 14th. Having stationed a guard at the bridge, the main force of the expedition advanced three miles to Bainbridge Ferry, on the Tennessee River, where they destroyed three ferry boats and shelled the rebels out of their camp on the south side of the river. Thence on the 16th they marched eight miles to Florence, Ala., where the expedition received orders to return to Columbia. Marching on the following day, they reached Columbia on the 20th, and went into Camp Scribner, two miles south of that place; having marched one hundred and eighty-seven miles within ten days.

Leaving Camp Scribner on the 25th of May, they moved nine miles to Calioka, at which place they were ordered to construct a railroad bridge. On the 29th, companies A, B, G and K, under command of Major Bingham, were detached from the regiment to join an expedition against Chattanooga. Proceeding by way of Pulaski, Fayetteville and Tullahoma, they crossed the Cumberland Mountains on the 4th of June, and, on the 8th, took part in a skirmish with the enemy on the bank of the Tennessee River, opposite Chattanooga. The object of the expedition having been accomplished, they were on the same day ordered to return. Marching via Altamont and Winchester, they arrived at Shelbyville on the 13th, having marched a distance of about two hundred and seventy miles. The remainder of the regiment—with the exception of company C, which was detailed as provost guard at Columbia—was occupied in constructing bridges and repairing and guarding the railroad between Columbia and Pulaski. On the 23d of June they marched ten miles, to Pulaski, and thence, on the following day, to Elk River, from which place they proceeded by rail, via Huntsville, arriving on the 25th, at Stevenson, Ala., the junction of the Nashville and Chattanooga, with the Memphis and Charleston railroad.

Meanwhile companies A, B, G and K left Shelbyville on the 23d, and marching by the way of Fayetteville and Pleasant Plain, took the cars on the 25th at Elkton Station, on the Nashville and Decatur railroad, proceeding thence via Athens and Huntsville to Stevenson, Ala., at which place they joined the regiment on the 27th of June. The regiment moved on the 29th, twelve miles, to Battle Creek, encamping in a wood, near the Tennessee River. Here they were constantly employed in the performance of outpost, picket and signal duty, until the 25th of July, when they marched five miles to Bridgeport, proceeding thence by rail to Mooresville, Ala., when they went into camp on the following day. On the 3d of August camp was moved to Decatur, at which place they were stationed five days, returning on the 9th to Mooresville, where they remained in the performance of guard duty, with frequent reconnoissances through the surrounding country, until the 18th, when they were ordered to Nashville.

Taking the cars on the 19th, they arrived at Nashville on the following day, and crossing the Cumberland River at that place, encamped at Edgefield.

On the 3d of September, was organized the Twenty-eighth brigade, consisting of the First, with three other regiments and two batteries of artillery, Colonel Starkweather being placed in command. The brigade left Edgefield at one in the morning of the 6th, and marching rapidly, by the way of Franklin, arrived at Bowling Green, Ky., on the evening of the following day. The general movement of our army towards Munfordsville commenced on the 15th. On arriving within eight miles of that place, General Rousseau's division, to which the Twenty-eighth brigade was attached, took position and remained until the 21st, when the brigade, having been ordered on a reconnoissance, moved by a circuitous route to Glasgow, rejoining the division next day at Munfordsville. The march was resumed on the 23d: proceeding by way of Elizabethtown and West Point, marching almost literally day and night, they encamped on the 26th at Louisville, Ky., on the Ohio River, where they were joined by the Twenty-first regiment. The movement of our forces to meet the rebels under Bragg, began on the 1st of October. Marching by way of Taylorsville, Bloomfield and Chaplin, the Twenty-eighth brigade bivouacked near Mackville, on the 7th. Next morning they were hurried forward a distance of twelve miles, and placed in position on the extreme left of our lines, during the battle of Chaplin Hills.

Arriving on the field at half-past one in the afternoon, the First took the extreme left, supporting the Fourth Indiana battery, the Twenty-first being posted a little in advance. Shortly before, the rebels had succeeded in driving back a portion of General Jackson's division, who rushed through and on either side of the Twenty-first, the latter holding their ground firmly, until the pursuing rebels came up in front in greatly superior numbers, and a terrible conflict ensued. At the same time the enemy availing himself of his vastly greater force, attacked the brigade on the right, simultaneously planting a battery on the left, designed to cover an attempt on the flank. The flank movement was prevented by our artillery, which shelled the rebel position, dislodging the enemy, while the attempt on the right was gallantly repulsed by the infantry.

At this moment, the Twenty-first was ordered to "fire and charge to the front," but being a new regiment, and their colonel being severely wounded and their major killed at about the time such order was given, no field officer was left to carry the command into execution, although several companies, hearing the order, attempted to obey it, but being sorely pressed by the brigade and battery in front, they retired in ome disorder and confusion. * In justice to this (the 21st) regiment, it should be noted that, at the date of this battle, they had been mustered into the service only thirty-four days, and were kept almost continually on the march, having, during that time, the advantage of only four days actual drill. So inexperienced, indeed were even the company officers, that Colonel Sweet in anticipation of the emergency which occurred, had, before the battle, addressed the regiment, telling them, that in such event, he would simply give the command "Break and Rally," and, as no regimental colors had as yet been furnished, they must make himself the point around which to rally after they had retreated. The necessity having arrived, the order was given and the regiment broke, rallying in good order around their colonel in the rear of the main line of battle, where they continued in the fight during the remainder of the afternoon.

On the withdrawal of this regiment the "Old First," supporting the artillery, was advanced to the front, which position they held until many of the artillery horses were killed, and the balance became unmanageable, when with two other regiments of the brigade, they were ordered to hold their position, while the guns, which were yet manageable, were retired to a safe position. When this was effected, "a part of the First Wisconsin then charged to the front, capturing the colors of the First Tennessee. The fire from the Seventy-ninth and Twenty-fourth held the enemy in check, while the balance of the First Wisconsin took by hand every remaining gun and caisson from the field." * By this time the enemy was completely routed, and our troops retired to the support of their new position. In this great battle the First regiment had four hundred and seven men engaged, of whom fifty-six were killed, one hundred and twenty wounded, and four missing. The Twenty-first, out of six hundred and sixty-three men engaged, lost forty-one killed, one hundred and one wounded, twenty-one prisoners and fifteen missing. In his official report of the battle, General Rousseau thus speaks of the First: "I had great confidence in the gallantry of these two regiments, (1st Wis. and 79th Penn.) and was not disappointed when their time of trial came. They drove back the enemy several times with great loss, and until their ammunition was exhaustud, bravely maintained their position, and then quietly (not under fire,) retired under orders, to the line of battle originally selected by General McCook and myself, where they got a supply of ammunition, and were again ready for action."

They left Perryville on the 11th of October, following the retreating rebels as far as Crab Orchard, where the pursuit was abandoned, and our army took a more southerly direction, the brigade arriving at Mitchellville, Tenn , on the 12th of November. At this time, Mitchellville was the terminus of our railroad transportation south, and they were stationed here in the performance of guard and provost duty until the 9th of December, when they moved to Edgefield, Tenn. On the following day they crossed the Tennessee River, and, passing through Nashville, went into Camp Andy Johnson, four miles south of that place. In the reorganization of the army, their brigade became the Second of the First division. Participating in the movement of General Rosecrans' army, they left camp on the 26th of December, in charge of a large train, and proceeding by way of Nolansville, arrived on the 30th at Jefferson, a small town on the Lebanon and Murfreesboro pike. Near this place the enemy's cavalry made a fierce attack upon the train, which was handsomely repulsed by the brigade in a severe engagement, our regiment losing two killed and seven wounded. Next day they were ordered up to take part in the battle of Stone River, near Murfreesboro, where they were assigned position in the centre of our line, and held in reserve. On the 2d of January, 1863, they took position in the entrenchments on our front, which they held until the following day, when they advanced, taking part in a severe engagement with the rebel infantry. The enemy withdrew during the night, and the 4th was spent in burying the dear on the field nf battle.

* Official report of Colonel Starkweather.

In consequence of having been placed in the roserve they suffered but trifling loss in this celebrated conflict, and soon after, in the beginning of January, encamped within the fortifications at Murfreesboro. Marching with the centre of the Army of the Cumberland, under command of General Thomas, they left Murfreesboro on the 24th of June, taking a southerly direction on the Manchester pike. On the following day, they were ordered to the front and led the advance, skirmishing occasionally with the enemy as he retreated before them. Proceeding by way of Fairfield, Manchester and Tullahoma, they went into camp on the 14th, at Cowan Station, on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad. Leaving Cowan on the 10th of August, they marched with the division, bivouacking for the night at Crow Creek Valley. Next day the division moved across the mountains, passing Anderson, and going into camp three miles south of the state line of Alabama. At this place, the First regiment was detached from the brigade, proceeding to Stevenson, Ala., where they were employed in preparing the ground for a field hospital. At this place they were joined by the brigade, and participating in the forward movement of the army on Chattanooga, they left Stevenson on the 2d of September, marching to Bridgeport, Ala., where they crossed the Tennessee on the 4th, and proceeding up the Tennessee valley on the following day, crossed a spur of the mountains and bivouacked. They ascended Raccoon or Sand Mountain on the 6th, encamping for the night on the summit. On the following day they descended the eastern side, bivouacked at Johnson's Cove, in the valley between Raccoon and Lookout Mountains, where they were delayed one day to enable General Negley's division in their advance to ascend the latter. On the 9th they encamped on the summit, moving on the following day down the eastern slope of the mountain.

At three in the morning of the 11th, they were ordered forward to the support of Negley's division. then five miles in advance, near Dug Gap. They moved forward, skirmishing the whole distance, occupying the position assigned about eight o'clock. Severe skirmishing soon commenced and the Second brigade was ordered to take the place of a portion of General Negley's troops in the advance. This was gallantly accomplished under a severe fire, and the brigade held the position, resisting the enemy's attempts to dislodge them until half past three in the afternoon, when a retrograde movement having commenced, they were ordered to cover the retreat. This difficult duty was admirably performed under the command of General Starkweather, and they went into camp at Stevens' Gap, Ga., at one on the following morning. They remained here until the 17th, when they marched, proceeding by way of Owen's Ford and Crawfish Springs, and arrived on the field of Chickamauga on the 19th, taking position early in the morning on the left of Colonel Wilder's brigade, at the Cross Roads.

At ten o'clock they were ordered to move in support of the First and Third brigades. On coming up with a portion of the Third, they were ordered to change their direction and proceed to the left, relieving a portion of General Brannan's division, which was then out of ammunition. On taking the place assigned, they were assailed by a severe fire on the front and right, and had scarcely effected a corresponding change of position, when they were attacked by heavy columns of the enemy and forced to retire a short distance to the rear, leaving two guns. At this moment the enemy was attacked on the flank and rear by other portions of our troops, thrown into disorder and driven from the field, leaving the guns untouched. The batteries were at once re-arranged, and the Second brigade, closing on the First and Third, took position in the second line of battle, supporting General Johnson's division on the left of his command. This position they held until evening, when they were ordered forward and took position in the first line, relieving the troops in their front, whose ammunition was exhausted. By the time the movement was completed, darkness set in and the positions could only be known by the flashing of the musketry and artillery of the first line. Under these circumstances our troops in their vicinity, mistaking them for the enemy, poured in a terrible fire, and thus assaulted at once on front, right and rear, there was no alternative save that of retirement in confusion and disorder. Line was immediately reformed at the foot of a ridge to the east of their former position, where they remained until our lines were withdrawn, when they moved back in good order, going into bivouac in an open field on the left of General Johnson's ammunition train.

Moving thence at three in the morning of the 20th, they took position on a ridge, forming in two lines, with the right of the brigade resting upon General Johnson's division. At this place they felled trees, forming two barricades to obstruct the advance of the enemy and cover the further retreat of our forces. This position was retained during the day under repeated attacks by the enemy in heavy columns, supported by artillery, until evening, when they were ordered to retire to Chattanoogo. On arriving within a mile of that place, the order was countermanded, and they again marched to the front, and remained in position until the morning of the 23d, when, with their front division, they covered the retreat of the army on Chattanooga, going into bivouac at that place. In these battles the First sustained a loss of twenty-five killed, ninety-one wounded, and eifihty-four missing. The Twenty-First lost two killed, thirty-six wounded and seventy-six missing. Of the missing, the greater number were prisoners in the hands of the enemy.

The First and Twenty-first regiments, attached to the Third brigade, First division, Fourteenth army corps, were subsequently stationed at Chattanooga, Tennessee, employed in picket duty and labor on the fortifications, until the 23d of November. At this date they left the fortifications, participating on the 25th in the celebrated assault upon Mission Ridge, during which they acted as a reserve to the First division, sustaining no loss. On the 30th, they accompanied the movement of the brigade, which was ordered to effect a reconnoissance, on the crest of Lookout Mountain, and having proceeded rs far as Cooper's Gap, they returned on the 3d of December to camp at Chattanooga, without having encountered the enemy. On the following day, the Twenty-first Wisconsin, with another regiment of the brigade, marched to and encamped on the summit of Lookout Mountain, three miles from Chattanoogo, where they were stationed in the performance of outpost and picket dutp, until the opening of the spring campaign.

The First regiment, with the exception of Company "F," which had been detached, on the 14th of November, to take charge of a steamer on the Tennessee River, remained at Chattanooga, engaged in picket duty and labor on the fortifications, until the 22d of February, 1864. At this date, they left Chattanooga, accompanying the movement of the Fourteenth corps towards Dalton, near which place they remained in camp until the 22d, when camp was removed to Tyner's Station, nine miles from Chattanooga, on the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad, whence they marched on the 19th of March, encamping at Graysville, Ga. At this place, they were employed in drill and guard duty until the 2d of May, when they rejoined the division, the movements of which they accompanied during the Atlonta campaign.

Of their actions during this campaign, the rolls and returns of the regiment, on file in this office, furnish no information, and I am therefore compelled to refer to the record of the Twenty-first, attaehed to the same division, for a general idea of their service.

For the information which follows relative to the subsequent movements of the "Old First," I am indebted to Mr. H. F. Stone, formerly Sergeant-Major of the regiment.

On the 16th of September, orders were received from the War Department, assigning the First Wisconsin, whose term of service was about to expire, to the Fourth division of the Twentieth corps, and at the same time directing the transfer of all veterans, drafted men and recruits, to the Twenty-first regiment, thereby augmenting the numbers of the latter to nine hundred and forty-one. The transfer of these men, numbering three hundred and sixty-eight, having been completed on the 21st, the First regiment left Atlanta on that day, en route to join their new division, which was then at Tullahoma, Tenn. They arrived on the 24th at Bridgeport, Ala., where orders were received directing the regiment to report at Stevenson, Ala., from which place they moved immediately by rail, arriving on the following day at Nashville, Tenn., where they went into camp.

The term of service of the regiment having expired, they left Nashville on the 6th of October, and proceeding thence by rail, arrived on the 8th at Milwaukee. Here the necessary rolls were completed, and the muster out of service of the last company effected at Camp Washburn, on the 21st of October. The field and staff officers were mustered out on the 18th of November, to date from the 13th of October, at which time the first company was discharged.

IRON BRIGADE.

SECOND REGIMENT.

The Second regiment, like the First, was originally enrolled under the President's call for 75,000 three months' volunteers. The various companies were ordered to rendezvous at Camp Randall during the first week of May, 1861, where the regimental organization was effected under the supervision of Colonel S. Park Coon, of Milwaukee. Meanwhile the General Government had decided to accept no more troops for this short term of service, and accordingly on the 16th of May, the regiment was called upon to re-enlist "for three years or during the war." The men complied enthusiastically, with the exception of one company, which was immediately disbanded, its place in the regiment being supplied by the "Wisconsin Rifles," of Milwaukee, under command of Captain A. J. Langworthy. On the 11th of June, the Second regiment, thus reorganized, was mustered into the United States service for "three years or during the war," being the first Wisconsin organization so mustered.

Having been completely uniformed and equipped by the State, with the exception of arms, they left Madison for service in the field, on the 20th of June, and proceeding by way of Chicago, Pittsburg and Baltimore, arrived on the 25th at Washington, the first regiment of three years' men to appear in the capital, encamping in the suburbs of the city, whence they marched on the 2d of July, by the Georgetown Aqueduct, to a point two miles west of Fort Corcoran, on the Fairfax road. In this camp the regiment was brigaded with three New York regiments, under command of Colonel (now Major General) W. T. Sherman, Colonel Coon being detached for staff duty.

The movement upon Manassas began on the 16th of July, General Tyler's division, to which they were attached, moving by way of Falls Church, Vienna and Germantown, a distance of twenty-three miles, to Centreville, at which place they bivouacked on the 18th. About noon, the regiment was ordered up to support the remainder of the division, which had come up with, and engaged the enemy at Blackburn's Ford, on Bull Run. Advancing on the double quick upwards of three miles, they deployed under heavy artillery fire in the second line of battle, but without becoming actively engaged. In the evening they retired to Centreville, taking position one mile from that place, on the Warrenton turnpike.

At an early hour on the 21st, Tyler's division moved down the Warrenton road to occupy and hold a position near the Stone Bridge, while Hunter's division flanked the enemy's left by way of Sudley's Ford. The latter movement proving successful, Tyler's division, filing to the right, forded Bull Run a short distance above Stone Bridge, and joined in the pursuit of the enemy towards Manassas. On a range of hills a little south of the Warrenton pike, at right angles with the Sudley road, the enemy made a stand; his batteries being advantageously posted, and his infantry supports concealed and protected by the heavy growth of timber. Being ordered to assault one of the batteries on the east side of the Sudley road, the Second moved up under a terrific enfilading fire of shell and canister from other batteries, formed in line at the foot of the hill and charged up, driving back the enemy's infantry, which had emerged from cover in pursuit of a body of our troops, just repulsed in a similar assault, and almost reaching the guns. At this critical moment, the absence of their two field officers led to a confusion of orders, which caused the two wings to be separated and eventually threw them into disorder. But the spirit of the men was unbroken and they remained on the field, fighting in squads, under the direction of company officers, for nearly an hour longer, when the rebels being reinforced by the arrival of Johnson's troops from the Shenandoah, they were attacked on their right flank and subjected to a cross fire which compelled them to fall back in disorder, having suffered a loss of thirty killed, one hundred and five wounded and sixty-five missing; most of whom, with a number of the wounded, were taken prisoners.

By noon of the following day, the regiment had assembled at Fort Corcoran, and on the morning of the 23d, they went into camp close to the left of the fort, where they remained, perfecting their discipline and engaged in the performance of outpost duty, in the vicinity of Ball's Cross Roads, and on the Alexandria and Leesburg railroad until the 27th of August, when they were transferred from Colonel Sherman's command, to that of Brigadier General Rufus King, which then consisted of the Fifth and Sixth Wisconsin, together with the Nineteenth Indiana, since proudly known by the title given by the acclamation of their comrades in arms, as the "Iron Brigade."

It may here be stated that on the 9th of December following, company K was permanently detached from the regiment, by order of the War Department, and organized as heavy artillery, its place in the line being filled by the present company K, whose muster dates from the 20th of December, 1862.

The subsequent history of the regiment was identified with that of the "Iron Brigade," nntil the month of May, 1864, when they were engaged with the army of the Potomac, in the advance upon Richmond, under General Meade.

After the battle of Laurel Hill, the Second regiment, having become so reduced that less than one hundred men were present for duty, was permanently detached, on the 11th of May, 1864, from the celebrated brigade, whose movements they had accompanied from its organization, and to whose reputation their valor had so signally contributed. Thenceforward they were employed as provost guard of the Fourth division, Fifth army corps, and following the march of that division, in the grand movement to the left, crossed the North Anna River on the 23d, arriving on the 6th of June at Bottom's Bridge on the Chickahominy, where they remained until the expiration of their term of service as soldiers in the army of the United States. The following graceful valedictory from the division commander, himself a citizen of Wisconsin, needs neither preface nor comment:

"HEADQUARTERS, FOURTH DIVISION,
FIFTH ARMY CORPS, June 10th 1864.

"The Second Wisconsin Volunteers, having served their full term of three years in this army, and being about to leave for their homes, the General Commanding deems it proper for himself, and in behalf of those of their comrades who remain behind, to address the officers and men of that command a few parting words.

"Three years ago you entered the service more than a thousand strong. You now leave us with one hundred and thirty-three all told. Where are they? O'Connor, Stevens, Colwell, Randolph and many others, both officers and men, are mustered with the hosts on high. Others are disabled for life. Others still are in rebel prisons.

"Among all these things you have always been true to your flag and your conntry. You have never failed in any duty required of you. You have a right to be proud of your record. The state has reason to be proud of you. You leave with the best wishes of all your comrades, and to that I wish to add my most cordial desire for your future honor and prosperity, collectively and individually.

"(Signed) L. CUTLER,
"Brig. General Commanding."

Members of the regiment on detached duty in the various departments of the army, were recalled, and on the morning of the 11th of June, the remnant of the Second Wisconsin was finally relieved from the front and marched to White House Landing, where they embarked. They arrived in Washington on the 13th, and proceeding thence by rail arrived on the 18th at Madison, Wisconsin. They were greeted at the capital of the state with an enthusiastic welcome from the state authorities and citizens, and after a delay of some days, awaiting the arrival of the necessary papers from Washington, the last company was finally mustered out of service on the 2d of July, 1864.

INDEPENDENT BATTALION, SECOND REGIMENT.

By order of the Division commander, the members of the Second Wisconsin, who had joined the regiment after its original organization, were organized on the 11th of June, 1864, as an independent battalion of two companies, under command of Captain Dennis B. Dailey, of company B. The battalion was assigned to duty as provost guard of the Fourth division, Fifth army corps; Captain Dailey being appointed Provost Marshal, and Lieutenant Morgan assuming the immediate command of the battalion. They left Bottom's Bridge on the night of the 12th of June, as rear guard of the division, and crossing the Chickahominy River, accompanied the general movement of the corps by way of Charles City Court House, to the vicinity of Wilcox's Landing, where they encamped on the 14th.

Crossing the James River at this point on the 16th, they marched by way of Prince George's Court House, in the advance upon Petersburg, and took part on the 18th in the battle before that place, with a loss of two men wounded. From this date they remained on provost duty at division headquarters, on the Petersburg and Norfolk railroad, four miles from the former place, until the 17th of August, when they were again put in motion, accompanying the movement of the corps to Yellow House, on the Weldon railroad. Here they were deployed in the rear of the division, and participated in the action of the following day, losing one man wounded. In the battle of the 19th, they were again engaged, and Lieutenant Morgan, having been severely wounded, the command devolved upon Lieutenant Naegeli. They were employed on the following day in building entrenchments on the left of the railroad, and on the 21st assisted in repulsing the enemy's attack upon our line. In this action the casualties were four wounded, including Captain Dailey, who was severely wounded and sent to General Hospital. The Fourth division having been temporarily broken up, they were assigned on the 24th, to provost duty at corps headquarters, where they remained until the 1st of September.

At this date they were transferred to the First brigade of the Third division, and assigned to the performance of guard and picket duty. Lieutenant Morgan rejoined and took command of the battalion on the 27th of September; Captain Dailey, who returned to duty on the same day, having been detailed on staff duty.

The battalion remained in line of breastworks near the Weldon railroad, one mile from Yellow House, Va., until the 27th of October 1864, when they accompanied the march of the brigade and participated on that and the following day in the engagement at Hatcher's Run, sustaining a loss of one killed and four wounded. They returned on the 28th to camp near Yellow House, resuming the performance of picket and guard duty in the trenches.

On the 30th of November the battalion was transferred, as companies G and H, to the Sixth Wisconsin infantry, with which this remnant of the Second was subsequently connected until their muster-out of service.

SIXTH REGIMENT.

The several companies composing the Sixth regiment were ordered to rendezvous at Camp Randall, about the 25th of June, 1861. Under the direction of Colonel Lysander Cutler, the regimental organization was soon effected, and the regiment was mustered into United States service on the 16th of July. Twelve days afterward, on the 28th, they left the state for active service, under orders to proceed to Harrisburg, Penn., where they remained until the 3d of August, at which date they moved by rail to Baltimore, Md. Proceeding to Washington on the 7th, they encamped on Meridian Hill, joining at that place the command of General Rufus King, which has since become so justly celebrated under the name of the "Iron Brigade of the West."

SEVENTH REGIMENT.

The companies comprising the Seventh regiment, were ordered to rendezvous at Camp Randall, at various dates during the month of August, 1861. The regiment was organized under the direction of Colonel Joseph Van Dor, of Milwaukee, and the muster into United States' service completed on the 16th of September. They left the state for field service on the 21st of September, arriving at Washington on the 1st of October, when they joined General King's command at Camp Lyon. Since that time their history is identical with that of the Iron Brigade.

"IRON BRIGADE."

Early in the beginning of the rebellion, a commission as Brigadier General was tendered to General Rufus King, of this state, a graduate of West Point, and one of the oldest citizens of Milwaukee. On his arrival at Washington, he was assigned to the command of such Wisconsin troops as had already arrived, or were then expected at that point. The Fifth regiment, arriving in the latter part of July, and the Sixth, arriving on the 7th of August, were, with the Nineteenth Indiana, organized as a brigade, and encamped under his command on Meridian Hill, in the suburbs of Washington, where they were joined on the 27th of August by the Second Wisconsin. The brigade thus organized, marched on the 3d of September, occupying a position at the Chain Bridge, five miles from the camp on Meridian Hill. On the following day the Second and Fifth Wisconsin, with the Nineteenth Indiana, being temporarily detached from the brigade, crossed the Potomac, accompanying the division of General William F. Smith, occupied a commanding position covering the approaches to the bridge, and commenced the erection of earthworks now called Fort Marcy. It may be here stated that the Fifth Wisconsin was soon after permanently attached to General Smith's command. On the 5th of September, the two remaining regiments went into "Camp Advance," near the fort, at which they continued to work by details, until its completion; at the same time performing outpost duty on the roads leading to Lewinsville on the left and Deansville on the right.

They remained at this camp until the 1st of October, when they recrossed the Potomac, joining the brigade, which was further augmented on the same day, by the arrival of the Seventh Wisconsin. Having been ordered to join McDowell's division, the brigade marched on the 5th of October, by way of Georgetown Aqueduct, a distance of six miles, to Fort Tillinghast, on Arlington Heights, Va., where they went into winter quarters, and were employed in drilling and the performance of outpost duty, near Falls Church, until the 10th of March, 1862.

At this date, the brigade, taking part in the advance of the army upon Manassas, marched out sixteen miles, encamping at Germantown, near Fairfax Court House. General King having been promoted to the command of a division, Colonel Cutler of the Sixth took command of the brigade, and returning on the 15th, they proceeded by way of Alexandria, encamping on the following day at Fort Tillinghast; whence they moved on the 18th, occupying a position at Fairfax Seminary, near Alexandria. General McDowell having been placed in command of the department of the Rappahannock, they left Alexandria on the 5th of April, and marching by Centreville, Manassas Junction and Bristoe Station, encamped on the 12th at Catlett's Station, on the Orange & Alexandria railroad, where they were employed in railroad guard duty until the 21st: at which date the march was resumed, the brigade going into camp at Falmouth, opposite Fredericksburg, on the 23d.

On the 27th of April they moved to Brooks' Station, on the Richmond and Fredericksburg railway, where they encamped and commenced the erection of a bridge across Akakeek Run, returning on the 2d of May to camp on the north bank of the Rappahannock, from which various detachments from the brigade were sent out for the purpose of building and guarding bridges and blockhouses on the south side of the river. While at this place, General Gibbon took command of the brigade. They crossed the Rappahannock on the 25th of May, advancing on the Bowling Green road eight miles, and occupying a position near Guineas' Station, from which they marched on the 29th, with a large detachment of our forces, designed to cooperate with Banks' and Fremont's forces in cutting off the retreat of Jackson from the Shenandoah valley. Proceeding by way of Falmouth and Catlett's Station, they encamped, on the 1st of June, at Haymarket, on the Manassas Gap railroad, where they remained three days, removing camp on the 5th, to Warrenton. The attempt upon Jackson's forces having proved abortive, the return march was commenced on the 8th, and marching by Warrenton Junction and Hartwood, the brigade encamped at Falmouth, on the 10th, having marched a distance of one hundred and four miles.

On the 24th of July they left Falmouth under orders to effect a reconnoissance in the direction of Orange Court House, to ascertain the force and design of the enemy, then gathering on General Pope's front. Advancing by way of Chancellorville, they encountered the enemy's pickets on the 26th, at the distance of a mile from the Court House. A skirmish ensued, in which the enemy was routed and a few prisoners captured, when, having accomplished the object of the expedition, a return was ordered, and the troops re-entered camp on the evening of the 27th, having marched a distance of eighty miles within three days.

In order to cut the enemy's line of communication, the Sixth Wisconsin, with a small additional force of cavalry and artillery, under command of Colonel Cutler, was detached on the 5th of August, for the purpose of destroying the Virginia Central railroad in the vicinity of Frederick's Hall, twenty-three miles from the junction with the Richmond and Potomac railroad. They arrived at that place on the following day, and tore up the track for a mile in each direction, burned a large warehouse filled with confederate supplies, tobacco, and other articles, and destroyed the depot, switches and telegraph, burning two bridges on their return. Meanwhile, to effect a diversion, the balance of the brigade had marched on the telegraph road, engaged the enemy's cavalry on the 5th in a sharp skirmish at Thornburg, on Tar River, and pushing forward on the following day to the vicinity of Beaver Dam Station, on the Virginia Central railroad, when the rear of the column was attacked by Stuart's cavalry. The assault was handsomely repulsed, the rebels being driven back to the neighborhood of Fredericksburg, where they made their escape across the fields in disorder, carrying with them seventeen men of the Second regiment, who had become exhausted on the march, and had been sent back in the morning. Our troops moved to Spottsylvania Court House on the 7th, where they were joined by Colonel Cutler's command, which had marched upwards of one hundred miles within three days, penetrating to a point thirty miles within the enemy's lines. The brigade returned to Falmouth on the 8th. Two days afterwards, on the 10th, they marched by Hartwood Church, a distance of twenty miles, to Barnett's Ford, where they crossed the Rappahannock River and pushed forward on the following day, by way of Stevensburg, thirty miles to Cedar Mountain, near Culpepper Court House, where they took position in the advance line of the Army of Virginia.

Taking part in the general movement of the army under General Pope, they moved, on the 19th, in the direction of Rappahannock Station, on the Orange and Alexandria railroad, crossing the Rappahannock on the following day, and occupying a position north of the railroad, whence they moved to the right, covering Beverly Ford, where a skirmish with the enemy took place, in which the loss of the brigade was comparatively trifling. On the 23d they encamped near Warrenton, on the road to White Sulphur Springs. Moving towards the latter place on the 26th, they skirmished all day with the rebel forces, sustaining slight loss, and on the following day, marched by Warrenton sixteen miles to Buckland Mills. In the forenoon of the 28th of August, they proceeded slowly on the left of the army, by Gainesville, to Groveton, where they turned to the right on the Bethlehem Church road, and lay under arms until five in the afternoon, when they returned to the Warrenton pike, marching towards Centreville. While marching by the flank, the Second Wisconsin in advance, was attacked by a battery posted on a wooded eminence to the left. The regiment promptly advanced upon the battery, and soon encountered the enemy's infantry. While awaiting the arrival of the rest of the brigade, this regiment sustained and checked, for nearly twenty minutes, the onset of "Stonewall" Jackson's entire division, under a murderous concentric fire of musketry. The battle was continued by the brigade until nine in the evening, when the enemy's attack was repulsed, although he continued to hold his own line. About midnight, General King, the division commander, ordered a retreat by the Bethlehem road to Manassas Junction, where they arrived on the following morning at sunrise, having been compelled to leave a number of their wounded and hospital attendants to fall into the hands of the enemy. In the afternoon they moved up the Sudley road to the crossing of the Warrenton pike, where they rested under arms.

On the 30th of August, the Second was temporarily consolidated with the Seventh Wisconsin, and the brigade, about noon, moved down the north side of the Warrenton pike, in the second line of battle, to assault the enemy's left, posted in a thick wood. The enemy was driven through the wood, and succeeded in making a stand in an old railroad cut. While engaged in assaulting this position, the success of the rebel attack upon the left flank of our army made it necessary to fall back, the brigade occupying a new position on an eminence in the northeast angle of the Warrenton and Sudley roads. The repeated attacks of the enemy on the front and flank of this position were repulsed with great slaughter, but his continued success on the extreme left, threatening the communication with Centreville, rendered it imperative to withdraw. Although under a heavy fire of artillery, this movement was effected in good order, the brigade occupying a hill near Bull Run, overlooking and commanding the Stone Bridge and its approaches. Acting as rear guard to the army, skirmishers were thrown out, and the Iron Brigade, formed in line of battle, retained the position until the entire army had passed, on the road to Centreville. About eleven in the evening, they marched across Bull Run in column of companies, and bivouacked at Cub Run. An eye witness writes: "Gibbon's brigade covered the rear, not leaving the field until after nine o'clock at night, gathering up stragglers as they marched, and showing so steady a line that the enemy made no attempt to molest them." The movement to the rear was resumed on the following day, and proceeding by Centreville, Germantown and Falls Church, they went into camp on Upton's Hill, near Washington, on the 2d of September.

Participating in the movement of the army under the command of General McClellan, they broke camp at Upton's Hill on the 6th of September, crossing the Potomac at Washington, and proceeding by way of Mechanicsville, and New Market, a distance of eighty miles, entered Frederick City, Md., on the 14th. Passing through the city, they marched to Turner's Pass of South Mountain, where the enemy was strongly posted in the gorge and across the national road. To the brigade was assigned the duty of storming this position. The assault commenced about half-past five in the afternoon, the Second leading on the left of the road, and the Sixth and Seventh on the right. At nine o'clock the enemy was routed and driven from the pass, which was occupied by our forces. On the 15th, leading Hooker's division in advance of the entire army, they pursued the retreating enemy through Boonsboro, a distance of fourteen miles to Antietam Creek, where a skirmish ensued, in which they sustained no loss. On this march, the fatigue and exposure of the two campaigns began to be felt so severely that a number of men were compelled to remain behind from sickness and exhaustion. The following day was spent in attaining a position on the south bank of Antietam Creek, opposite the enemy's left flank. The battle of Antietam was commenced by the advance of Hooker's column. Early in the morning the brigade became hotly engaged, dislodging the enemy in their front, after a severe conflict, and occupying the position for two hours, until relieved by fresh troops. During the remainder of this and the following day they remained under arms on the field, marching on the 19th to the Potomac River, near Sharpsburg, where they went into camp.

On the 20th of October, camp was removed seven miles to Bakersville, where the Twenty-Fourth Michigan was added to the brigade. From this place they marched on the 26th, and proceeding by way of Keedysville and Crampton's Gap, a distance of twenty miles, encamped on the following day at Petersville, in Middletown Valley. Moving thence on the 30th, they crossed the Potomac at Berlin, and marching sixty-two miles through Snickersville and Bloomfield, arrived on the 9th of November at Warrenton, Va., where they remained five days, marching six miles on the 11th to Fayetteville. The march was resumed on the 17th, the brigade moving by way of Morrisville, and Stafford Court House, thirty miles, to Brooks' Station, on the Acquia Creek railroad, where they encamped on the 22d. General Gibbon having been placed in charge of a division, Colonel Cutler of the Sixth Wisconsin took command of the brigade on the 5th of November, retaining it until after their arrival at Brooks' station, at which place General Meredith took the command.

Taking part in the general movement of the army, ordered by General Burnside, they left Brooks' Station on the 9th of December, forded Potomac Creek south of the railroad, and crossing the Rappahannock on the 12th, under the fire of the enemy's artillery, occupied a position at Bernard House. In the great battle of Fredericksburg on the 13th, the brigade held an exposed and very important position on the extreme left: was constantly changing lines in accordance with the varying fortunes of the day in other parts of the field, and always under severe artillery fire, but suffering little from musketry, except when engaged in skirmishing with the supports of the light artillery, attached to Stuart's Cavalry, and posted opposite their left flank. Shortly after sunset they drew in towards the right, and advanced to the Bowling Green road, for the purpose of assuring the position of batteries placed to cover our lines in front of Fitz Hugh's Crossing. While effecting this movement they were subjected to as heavy fire of grape and canister, but the range being inaccurate, owing to the darkness, they suffered but slight loss. During the two days following they were constantly under arms, retiring safely on the evening of the 15th to the north bank of the Rappahannock, where they bivouacked in line facing the river for four days, moving on the 20th towards Belle Plaine, Va., twelve miles distant, at which place they went into winter quarters on the 23d.

On the 20th of January, 1863, they broke camp, taking part in the movement since known by the army as the "Mud Campaign." Marching as far as Stoneman's Switch, on the Acquia Creek railroad, the stormy weather and muddy roads compelled a return to camp, which they re-entered on the 24th, having accomplished nothing but a very toilsome and vexatious march of forty miles.

On the 12th of February the Second and Sixth Wisconsin, under command of Colonel Fairchild, of the Second, left camp at two in the afternoon, embarking at Pratt's Landing, and proceeded down the Potomac. Landing at Cone River, in Northumberland County, Va., at noon on the following day, they marched to and occupied Heathsville, the county seat, five miles distant, at which place they seized a number of horses and mules, with a quantity of stores, and took prisoners several prominent secesionists, returning the same evening to the vicinity of the steamer. On the 14th, Colonel Fairchild, finding it impossible to ship all the horses which had been seized, detached thirty-four men of the Second to take charge of the same number of horses and proceed overland to camp, when the expedition re-embarked, proceeding to an anchorage in the river, and returned in safety to camp on the following day, bringing 5,000 pounds of confiscated bacon, thirty horses and mules, seventy contrabands and four prisoners. The detachment also arrived safely on the 17th, after a journey of nearly one hundred miles through the enemy's country, in which they added largely to the proceeds of the expedition by the capture of valuable horses and mules, which they brought into camp under the charge of negroes, who had joined them en route.

The monotony of life in winter quarters was again relieved on the 25th of March by a similar expedition under Colonel Fairchild, consisting of the Second Wisconsin, with a squad of twenty cavalry. Embarking at four in the afternoon, they steamed down the Potomac about sixty miles, and came to anchor. At daylight on the following morning the expedition landed in Westmoreland County, Va., the infantry remaining three hours near the place of debarkation, to afford time for a reconnoissance by the cavalry. This having been effected, the whole force marched three and a half miles to Lower Machodoc Creek, where the steamer soon arrived. Here they remained, seizing and loading on the transport such stores and forage as could be readily gathered, until the morning of the 28th, when a return was ordered. The cavalry, with the addition of twenty-three infantry volunteers mounted, was despatched overland, under command of Captain Wood, and arrived safely in camp on the following day, with forty-eight confiscated horses and mules. The main body of the expedition rejoined the brigade on the evening of the 28th, bringing in fifteen horses and mules, with a quantity of bacon, wheat, corn and beans, and two anchors and chain cables, the latter having been taken from a rebel schooner found in the creek, which, after being dismantled, was burned by the expedition.

The command of the army of the Potomac having been transferred to General Hooker, a forward movement was ordered, in compliance with which the brigade left camp on the 28th of April, and bivouacked in the woods near White Oak Church, two miles from the river. At an early hour in the following morning they marched to the Rappahannock, at Fitz Hugh's Crossing. The engineers with the sharpshooters, stationed for their protection, having been discovered and driven from the bank by the enemy, the brigade was formed for the purpose of forcing a passage. Companies B, D, and E, of the Second Wisconsin, detailed for that purpose, manned the pontoon wagons and ran them down to the river, when the whole line advanced on the double quick, under a galling fire from the enemy's rifle pits. The pontoons were launched and instantly filled by men from all the regiments of the brigade, who pushed across, and, led by the Sixth Wisconsin and Twenty-fourth Michigan, charged up the heights, carrying the rebel rifle pits by storm, and capturing several hundred prisoners. The bridges were immediately laid, and the brigade, reinforced by the balance of the division, when they proceeded at once to entrench the position, in order to command the approaches against the greatly superior forces of the enemy, who constantly menaced the front, keeping his outposts within musket shot of the works. Here they remained under occasional fire from the enemy's artillery, until the 2d of May, when they recrossed the Rappahannock, and moving with the First corps, the brigade took up the line of march to join our forces on the extreme right. Crossing the Rappahannock at United States Ford, at four in the morning of the 3d, they reached the front near Chancellorville, at sunrise, after a march of eighteen miles. Here they took possession of and entrenched a position on the right of, and covering the road from Fredericksburg to Ely's Ford on the Rapidan, and remained without being seriously engaged, until the 6th, at which date they again returned across the Rappahannock, and marching eighteen miles to Fitz Hugh's Crossing, went into camp.

On the 21st of May the brigade was dispatched on an expedition down the "Northern Neck" for the relief of a regiment of cavalry, reported to be cut off by the enemy. Proceeding by way of Oak Grove they met the cavalry at Westmoreland Court House, and returned to camp on the 27th, having marched one hundred and twenty miles. Shortly afterwards the Seventh Wisconsin, with companies A and I of the Second, under command of Colonel Robinson of the Seventh, were detailed from the brigade to serve as support to a cavalry reconnoissance in the direction of Culpepper. Leaving camp on the 7th of June, they crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford on the following day, and marched to Brandy Station, on the Orange and Alexandria railroad, participating in the cavalry battle at that place; after which they recrossed the Rappahannock, encamping on the 10th at Bealton Station.

Marching in the advance of the army of the Potomac in its movement to intercept the progress of the rebels under General Lee, the brigade broke camp at Fitz Hugh's Crossing on the 12th of June, and having been joined at Bealton Station on the following day by the detachment under Colonel Robinson, crossed the Potomac on the 25th at Edward's Ferry. Continuing the march through Maryland, they arrived on the 30th at Marsh Creek, in Adams County, Penn., after a toilsome march of about one hundred and sixty miles.

At an early hour on the 1st of July they moved cautiously in the direction of Gettysburg. When within a mile of that place, they turned to the left, under orders to advance to the support of General Buford's cavalry, then hard pressed by the enemy's advance on the Cashtown road. The Second Wisconsin haivng that day the lead of the marching column, first met the enemy, (Heth's division of A. P. Hill's corps), who was rapidly advancing on the front and both flanks of one of Buford's light batteries, on the west of the Theological Seminary. The regiment came into line on the double quick behind a slight elevation, and without waiting for the rest of the brigade to form, advanced over the crest, receiving a volley which cut down over thirty per cent. of the rank and file. With Wisconsin bravery, they dashed upon the enemy's centre and crushed it, when the rebel advance was at once checked, and as the other regiments of the brigade came successively into line, the enemy was driven across a wheat field, through a thick wood, and out of a ravine in which he was strongly posted. After a conflict of less than half an hour's duration, the rebels entirely abandoned the field, leaving upwards of eight hundred prisoners, including General Archer and the Second Mississippi, with its colors, in the hands of the brigade. They then occupied a position in the woods, remaining under arms until three in the afternoon, when Hill's corps, reinforced by the arrival of Ewell from Carlisle, advanced to the assault in overwhelming numbers. Notwithstanding the enormous losses in the early part of the day, it was only after a stubborn resistance of nearly two hours, and when almost surrounded, that the brigade retired through the town of Gettysburg to a position on Cemetery Hill, with their left resting on the Baltimore pike, where they threw up slight entrenchments, and remained exposed to the enemy's artillery until the 5th, when they moved to the Emmetsburg road.

Participating in the pursuit of the enemy, which followed this memorable battle, they left Gettysburg on the 6th, and marching by way of Middletown and Williamsport, crossed the Potomac at Berlin on the 18th, and encamped at Warrenton Junction, Va., on the 25th of July. Moving thence on the 1st of August to Beverly Ford, they crossed the Rappahannock on the following day and remained under arms a short distance from the ford, until the 7th, when they re-crossed the river and went into camp south of the railroad, at which place they were stationed for the performance of outpost and garrison duty in the works on the south bank of the river, near Rappahannock Station. On the 16th of September they again re-crossed the river, marching by Brandy Station to Pony Mountain, near Culpepper; where, on the anniversary of the battle of Antietam, the brigade was presented with a beautiful flag, the gift of citizens of Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan residing in Washington. Remaining here a week, they moved on the 24th to Morton's Ford on the Rapidan, where they were employed in the performance of picket and guard duty, until the 24th, at which date the Second was moved a mile to the left; the balance of the brigade retiring a couple of miles from the river, and going into bivouac as permanent reserve to the picket guard.

The losses of the brigade in the various general engagements in which they were under fire may be seen from the following table, compiled from the official returns:

A list of casualties, amounting to nearly one hundred per cent. of the numbers engaged. Trustworthy at all times, unflinchingly performing their whole duty as soldiers, the conduct of the Iron Brigade has won the admiration of the highest officers in the army. From a host of others, but one encomium is here inserted. The following endorsement, by General McClellan, upon a letter, written shortly after the battle of Antietam, to the Governor of Wisconsin, was made the subject of a congratulatory order by General Gibbon, the brigade commander: "I beg to add to this endorsement the expression of my great admiration of the conduct of the three Wisconsin regiments in General Gibbon's brigade. I have seen them under fire, acting in a manner that reflects the greatest possible credit and honor upon themselves and their State. THEY ARE EQUAL TO THE BEST TROOPS IN ANY ARMY IN THE WORLD."

The Iron Brigade remained near Morton's Ford, on the Rapidan, as permanent reserve to the picket guard, until the 10th of October, when, after a feint of crossing, they marched as rear guard of the corps, crossing the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford, and proceeding by way of Warrenton Junction and Manassas to Centreville, from which place they marched on the 19th by way of Gainesville to Haymarket, where the brigade was deployed on the Greenwich road, as support to Kilpatrick's cavalry. In the evening, one hundred men with two officers were detailed from the Seventh regiment for picket duty near Buckland, where they were attacked by overwhelming numbers of the rebel cavalry, which succeeded in turning both flanks of the picket line, and captured one officer and thirty-four men. Next day the brigade marched through Thoroughfare Gap to Georgetown, whence, on the 24th, they returned by Haymarket and Gainesville to Brentsville, and finally to Bristoe Station, on the Orange and Alexandria railroad, where they were stationed, furnishing daily details for picket duty, on Kettle Run and the Brentville road, until the 5th of November. At this date they again marched, and proceeding by Catlett's Station and Morristown, crossed the Rappahannock at Kelly's Ford, encamping on the 8th at Brandy Station on the Orange and Alexandria railroad. On the following day they recrossed the Rappahannock at the railroad bridge and went into camp at Beverly Ford, where they resumed the performance of guard duty.

Participating in the general movement of our forces to repel the threatened attack of the rebels upon our communications, they were put in motion on the 26th of November, and crossing the Rapidan at Culpepper Mine Ford, at daybreak on the following morning, they marched by Parker's Store to the intersection of the Spottsylvania road with the Orange plank road. At this point the Sixth, which was acting as guard to the corps ammunition train, repulsed in a severe skirmish the assault of a portion of Hampton's Legion, which attacked the train. Pursuing the march through the Wilderness, they bivouacked for the night near Robinson's Farm on the old turnpike. On the 28th they advanced, driving the enemy's outposts and skirmishers across Mine Run, when they bivouacked in line on a crest overlooking the stream, and in sight of the rebel works on the opposite side, in which position they remained under occasional artillery fire, and awaiting the signal for assault. The attack upon the enemy's works at this place having been abandoned, the return march was commenced on the 1st of December, and crossing the Rapidan at Germania Ford, they encamped, on the 4th, at Kelly's Ford, on the Rappahannock, where they went into winter quarters, furnishing heavy details for outpost and picket duty.

On the 28th of December, the total number of men belonging to the Seventh regiment, present with the army, was two hundred and forty-nine. Of these, two hundred and eleven re-enlisted as veterans, under General Orders of the War Department. On the 31st, two hundred and twenty-seven of the Sixth regiment also re-enlisted, and at various dates during the month forty members of the Second had re-enlisted. The veterans of the Sixth and Seventh were re-mustered into the service on the 1st of January, and those of the Second shortly afterward. The non-veterans of these regiments having been temporarily transferred to other organizations, the re-enlisted men of the Seventh left Culpepper, by rail, on the 4th of January, 1864, and arrived on the 12th at Madison, Wisconsin, where they received veteran furloughs for thirty days, at the expiration of which they were ordered to report at Racine.

They were followed by the veterans of the Sixth regiment, who left Culpepper, Va., on the 7th, arriving at Milwaukee on the 14th. The re-enlisted men of the Second arrived at Madison on the 28th. On receiving their furloughs, these veterans of many battles dispersed to their homes in various parts of the state, to enjoy their short respite from duty.

During the absence of the re-enlisted men of the Wisconsin organizations, the Second regiment, with the non-veterans of the brigade, participated, on the 6th and 7th of February, in a reconnoisance to the Rapidan River, during which they advanced to Raccoon Ford, burned the village and returned, without loss, to camp.

The Veteran Seventh rendezvoused on the 11th of February at Racine, and again left the state for the seat of war on the 18th, arriving on the 24th in camp, near Culpepper. The Sixth left the regimental rendezvous at Milwaukee on the 22d, and rejoined their comrades in arms on the 28th. The veterans of the Second followed shortly afterwards.

Thenceforward, until the opening of the campaign, the Iron Brigade was thoroughly drilled in all the requirements of the soldier; and in the organization of the army was, in March, assigned to position as the First brigade, Fourth division, Fifth army corps, with which they were subsequently identified.

Accompanying the grand forward movement of the army of the Potomac, under Generals Grant and Meade, the Iron Brigade, commanded by Brigadier General Cutler, formerly colonel of the Sixth Wisconsin, broke camp at Culpepper at midnight on the 3d of May, and marching all night, crossed the Rapidan at Germania Ford on the following morning, and taking the plank road in the direction of Chancellorville, bivouacked at Old Wilderness Tavern. On the morning of the 5th they diverged from the plank road a mile to the right, where line of battle was formed in the Wilderness, the Second being placed on the right of the Seventh, which was in the front line on the left of the brigade. The Sixth was held in the rear as reserve to the brigade. Shortly afterwards, at the command to move forward, they advanced by companies, through a heavy growth of pine and underbrush, a distance of nearly a mile, where at noon they encountered the enemy's line, in position, covered by the forest and thick underbrush, with his skirmish line but a few paces in advance. At a distance of forty paces, the enemy, directly in front, poured in a terrible fire, which was at once returned with such effect as to throw the rebels into disorder. Our troops immediately charged with the bayonet, and at this point Corporal George A. Smith, of company H, Seventh regiment, rushed forward, capturing the battle-flag of the Forty-eighth Virginia, which was in their front.* The brigade steadily advanced, driving the enemy to his second line, which was also routed, "the severe fire from our ranks strewing the ground with dead and dying," when the rebels were reinforced by A. P. Hill's corps. At this time our troops had driven the enemy a mile and a half through the timber, and the line on the left of the brigade having given way, they were, by a flank attack, in turn driven back in disorder, but without panic, to their original position, where the line was reformed. At six in the evening, they moved to the left, near the Fredericksburg and Orange Court House road, to support the Second corps, which had been fiercely attacked by the enemy. About dusk they advanced to within seventy-five yards of the rebel lines; in which position they lay on their arms during the night.

The battle was resumed at daylight on the following morning. Acting as support to the Second corps, they participated in the grand charge upon the rebels in front, (A. P. Hill's corps,) forcing the enemy steadily back until he was reinforced by the arrival of his artillery and a part of Longstreet's corps. Owing to the nature of the field, it was impossible to bring our artillery into position, and the troops were compelled to fall back to the line which they had occupied during the night. During the day, two other unsuccessful attempts were made to advance our lines on the left, after which the enemy, having massed his troops, made a determined assault upon our lines, which, after a severe contest, was repulsed with great slaughter. In the third assault upon the enemy, General Wadsworth, the division commander, was killed, when the command of the division devolved upon General Cutler, Colonel Robinson, of the Seventh, assuming command of the brigade, and Lieutenant Colonel Finnfcum taking charge of the regiment. On the same day, Colonel Bragg, of the Sixth, was placed in command of the Third brigade, which position he retained until the 10th of June, when it was transferred to another division, and Colonel Bragg took command of the First (Iron) brigade.

The 7th of May was principally spent in effecting certain changes of position. In the evening commenced the movement in the direction of Spottsylvania Court House; marching all night by way of Shady Grove Church and Todd's Tavern, they arrived at ten next morning at Laurel Hill. Near this place the troops were halted, and while preparing breakfast were again ordered forward. Forming line of battle under the fire of the enemy's artillery, with the Sixth Wisconsin on the right, and the Seventh on the left of the brigade front, they immediately advanced to the assault of the enemy's entrenchments. After a severe contest, they were compelled to fall back half a mile, when they rallied and again advanced, driving the enemy over the ground where they had just fought, and taking a strong position within three hundred yards of the enemy's works, which they fortified and held, successfully resisting several attempts to dislodge them.

On the evening of the 9th, the enemy advanced, driving in the pickets on the left of the brigade front, and succeeded in establishing a body of sharpshooters in a thick wood, within about fifty yards of the breastworks. These sharpshooters were driven out the same evening by a detachment of sixty men from the Seventh regiment, who volunteered for that purpose. Next day they again advanced to charge the enemy's works in front, the Seventh holding the extreme left of the brigade. The troops on their left having given way, under the severe fire to which they were exposed, this regiment deployed out in heavy skirmish line, covering a space equal to three times its front, and the attack being repulsed, the brigade retired under fire in good order to the breastworks. The 11th was occupied in shelling and skirmishing on both sides.

On this day, the Second Wisconsin, having been reduced to less than one hundred men present for duty, and having lost both field officers, who were wounded and in the hands of the enemy, was detailed as provost guard of the Fourth division, Fifth army corps, thus severing its connection with the Iron Brigade, with which the regiment had been identified since its organization in 1861.

At nine in the morning of the 12th of May, the brigade again took part in an unsuccessful assault upon the rebel works, shortly after which they moved about three miles to the left to the support of the Second corps, which had gallantly carried an important part of the enemy's line, in the charge of the morning. Here they occupied position on the right of General Hancock's troops, standing in deep mud and keeping up a constant fire for the protection of the troops who were at work on the fortifications. From constant firing, the muskets became so foul that it became necessary to send details of men to wash the guns, while their comrades kept up the fire. In many instances, also, the weariness of the men was so overpowering, having been under fire day and night since the morning of the 8th, that they lay down in the mud and slept under the enemy's fire, notwithstanding the exertions of the officers to keep them awake. Early on the following morning, the brigade was relieved, and marched back to position near Laurel Hill, rejoining the Fifth corps.

Participating in the general movement of our army to the left, they marched from this place late in the evening, and having forded the Po River twice during the night, occupied position at five in the morning of the 14th, on the right of Burnside's corps, one and a half miles from Spottsylvania Court House, where field works were thrown up in front of the enemy, and the brigade remained engaged in picket and guard duty, with occasional artillery duels and shelling from the enemy, until the 21st, when the flank movement of the army was resumed. Marching in a southeasterly direction, they crossed the Po River and the Richmond and Fredericksburg railroad, halting on the following day at a point five miles southeast from Guineas' Station, where breastworks were erected, and the brigade remained as guard until the trains had passed, when they again pushed forward in pursuit of Ewell's corps to Bull Church near the Mat River.

March was resumed on the morning of the 23d. The brigade crossed the North Anna at Jericho Ford in the afternoon, and moved forward to a point one mile from the river, where line of battle was formed—the Sixth on the left of the brigade, with the Seventh next on the right. While the line was yet incomplete, at six in the evening, the enemy attacked in front and flank, forcing the line back half a mile, when they were reinforced by two batteries of artillery, and the brigade rallied, the Seventh being placed on the right of a battery, holding the extreme right of the line. After a severe conflict, lasting upwards of two hours, the rebels were driven from the field in disorder. The conduct of the brigade in this action was highly complimented by the officers of the army. During the following day, they remained upon the field of battle, occasionally skirmishing with the enemy, and on the morning of the 25th, moved three miles to the left, taking position on the left of the Sixth corps, where they were employed in severe skirmish and guard duty during the day. They were again in motion on the following day. Proceeding by way of Magnolia Church, they crossed the Pamunkey River on the 28th and moving forward about a mile, erected breastworks which they occupied during the passage of the river by the army, and next morning marched three miles, part of the way on the 'double quick,' to reinforce Griffin's division—the rebel attack upon which was repulsed—when the brigade, moving to position on the right of the division, threw up slight breastworks, and bivouacked in line of battle, near the grave of Patrick Henry.

On the 30th, they moved two miles to the front, and constructed earthworks under a heavy shell fire from the enemy's batteries. This position was retained until the 1st of June, when the brigade moved forward in the evening, under severe artillery fire, to support some batteries of artillery which were planted in an exposed position, after which, under cover of the darkness, they advanced the lines on their front, within four hundred yards of the rebel works. Here they remained, exposed day and night to the continuous fire of artillery and musketry, until the evening of the 5th, when they were again put in motion to the left, and traveling all night, arriv e at four in the morning at Cold Harbor. On the 7th they marched to the Chickahominy, and were stationed one and a half miles above the crossing of the Richmond and West Point railroad, where they were employed in picket duty until the 12th, when they again changed position to the left. Marching late in the evening they crossed the Chickahominy River at Long Bridge, and pushed forward to Charles City Court House, about a mile from which place they encamped on the 14th, near Wilcox's Landing on the James River.

Here they crossed the James on the morning of the 16th, and pressing forward by way of Prince George Court House, erected breastworks in front of the enemy before Petersburg on the 17th, the Sixth Wisconsin, which was on the left of the brigade, constituting the extreme left flank of the army of the Potomac. The day was occupied in constant skirmishing with the enemy, and at five on the following morning they moved forward in line of battle, with skirmishers deployed in advance, the Sixth on the left and the Seventh on the right of the brigade front. They advanced, forcing the enemy to his earthworks one mile from Petersburg, when the skirmishers were recalled, and shortly after three in the afternoon, charged the enemy in his earthworks. The brigade, on the extreme left of the line, advanced steadily under a withering fire of artillery and musketry, to a position within pistol shot of the enemy's works, which they held until compelled by an attack in flank to fall back one hundred and fifty yards. In the evening and night, works were constructed within five hundred yards of the enemy's line, from which time, they were constantly engaged in the duties of the siege until its termination.

They remained in the front line on the left of Petersburg, until the 18th of August, when they marched six miles to Yellow House on the Weldon railroad, accompanying the movement to the support of the First division, which had obtained possession of the railroad at that point. In the battle of the next day, the brigade was deployed as skirmishers, the line extending from the right of the line of battle of the Fifth corps to the Second corps, in the main works before Petersburg, the Seventh regiment occupying the extreme right of the skirmish line. The skirmish line was pierced by the enemy, on the left of the Seventh Wisconsin, which retained the position during the night, captnring twenty-six prisoners, without sustaining loss. In the evening of the 20th, this regiment rejoined the brigade on the west side of the railroad, where breastworks were thrown up. On the following morning, the line in front of the railroad, consisting of the First and Second brigades, was attacked by a large force of the enemy, whose assault was gallantly repulsed with great slaughter, the Seventh Wisconsin capturing the battle flag of the Sixteenth Mississippi, with all its field officers.

After the engagement of the 21st of August, 1864, the Iron Brigade was employed in siege duty, and guarding the position on the Weldon railroad, until the 27th of October following. At this date, the First brigade, accompanying the Third division of the Fifth army corps, to which it had been transferred, took part in the movement to the extreme left of our line, and participated in the battle at Hatcher's Run, which had for its object the extension of our line still farther to the left. In this engagement, the Seventh regiment, numbering one hundred and fifty-six muskets, captured two hundred and sixteen prisoners, and released about fifty Union prisoners, with the loss of one man captured by the enemy.* Of the losses of the Sixth, no report has been received. The brigade subsequently returned to camp near the Yellow House, on the Weldon Railroad, resuming the performance of siege and guard duty.

On the 1st of November, the independent battalion of two companies, composed of members of the Second Wisconsin, remaining in service after the muster-out of that regiment, was transferred to the Sixth Wisconsin, upon the rolls of which they were taken up as companies G and H of that regiment.

Early in December, the brigade participated with the Fifth corps, in General Warren's raid on the Weldon railroad. They struck the railroad at Jarratt's Station, thirty miles south of Petersburg, and having destroyed several miles of the track, the Third division returned to position in the trenches before Petersburg. Under command of Brigadier General E. S. Bragg, formerly colonel of the Sixth Wisconsin, the brigade encamped about sixteen miles from City Point, near the military railroad connecting that place with the left of our line on Hatcher's Run.

Here the brigade remained, until the 6th of February, 1865, when they broke camp, and moving to the left, participated, on that and the following day, in the engagement at Hatcher's Run, near Dabney's Mill. In this movement, the Third division had the advance, and comprised the principal troops engaged. The Sixth Wisconsin sustained a loss of nine killed, three mortally wounded and seven missing. The casualties of the Seventh were two killed, twenty-one wounded, and three missing. The brigade returned to camp near the military railroad, remaining about ten days, when orders were received, directing General Bragg's command to proceed to Baltimore, Md.

*Official Report of Major Hollon Richardson, commanding regiment.

The brigade accordingly moved to City Point, and embarked; but before setting sail, the orders, so far as they related to the Sixth and Seventh regiments, were countermanded, and these two regiments directed to return immediately to the old brigade camp. On reporting at Humphrey's Station, on the military railroad, to General Crawford, that officer directed their organization as the First Provisional brigade, of which Colonel Kellogg, of the Sixth, was placed in command; Lieutenant Colonel Kerr assuming command of the regiment. Colonel Kellogg's command was augmented, about the 5th of March, by the assignment to the brigade of the Ninety-first New York Heavy Artillery, increasing the aggregate strength of the brigade to nearly three thousand men.

Of the operations of the First brigade, during the final campaign, which resulted in the capture of the army commanded by General Lee, I quote the following from the official report of Colonel Kellogg:

"On the morning of the 29th of March, 1865, the brigade broke camp, situated near the military railroad, about two miles from Humphrey's Station, and moved in a southwesterly direction to a point about half a mile from the Boydton plank road. At this point the brigade was halted, and moved in column of regiments, right in front. Some firing being heard in my front, the men were ordered to load, soon after which, the command was moved into position in line of battle, as follows: The Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin Veteran Volunteers forming the first line, in rear of the Second brigade, commanded by Brigadier General Baxter. The Ninety-first New York Veteran Volunteers, divided into three battalions, formed on the left flank of the brigade, ready to be deployed, either on the left flank of the line of battle, or in rear of the first line, as circumstances should require.

"The enemy being driven from his position on the Boydton plank road by the troops in my front, my command was ordered to a position near that road and facing the same; the Seventh Wisconsin, under command of Colonel Richardson, being advanced to the road; the balance of the brigade being in line of battle about eighty rods to the rear, connecting on the right with the Second brigade, where we remained during the night. On the morning of the 30th of March, the brigade was moved to the Boydton plank road and threw up breastworks, remaining there during the night.

"Pursuant to orders from the division commander, my command, on the morning of the 31st of March, moved from their breastworks on the Boydton plank road, in a northwesterly direction across Gravelly Run, about one mile, when the brigade was massed in column of regiments, right in front, in a thick wood near an open field, and remained in this position about half an hour. The command was then ordered to deploy in line of battle on the left of the Second brigade, commanded by General Baxter. In compliance with this order, I directed the brigade to deploy on the First battalion, but before the movement was completed, (two regiments only, to wit: the Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin being in line; the Ninety-first New York, treated as three battalions, not yet having time to deploy), I was ordered to deploy the two Wisconsin regiments and arrest the troops belonging to the front line, consisting of a portion of the Second division, who were flying in confusion from the field. This order I found myself unable to execute; the men breaking through my line, and throwing my own command into confusion. I then ordered the Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin to close their intervals, formed them into line of battle, and directed them to open fire, at the same time directing the Ninety-first New York to deploy on the Second battalion, [the Sixth Wisconsin].

"Both orders were promptly executed. The brigade remained thus in line of battle firing rapidly upon the advancing enemy, until both flanks were turned; and the enemy firing on both flanks and the rear of my command, I then directed Colonel Richardson, commanding the Seventh Wisconsin, to change front so as to meet the fire on his flank, which movement was executed, but the enemy appearing in so large force in my rear, I directed my brigade to retire across Gravelly Run in as good order as possible. In retiring across the stream, my command was somewhat broken up, owing to the fact lhat the enemy was in their rear, compelling them to fight their way back. My command was the last organized troops to leave the field. The Sixth and Seventh regiments were formed, as they arrived, on the front line, next to the creek near the bridge crossed by the troops in the morning. The Ninety-first New York fell back across the stream, farther to the right. One battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Denslow, formed in an interval between the troops of the Second division, where they remained during the balance of the engagement, doing good service.

"When the firing had ceased, I reformed the brigade in the rear of their first position, and ordered the men to lie down. We remained in this position about one hour, when we again moved to the front, across the battle field of the morning, and went into camp about half a mile in advance of the same, in column of battalions, right in front.

"About daylight on the morning of the 1st of April, in accordance with orders, I changed the front of my brigade, (by a change of direction,) by the right flank, facing east, and moved in column, faced by the rear rank in a westerly direction, about three-fourths of a mile, through an open field; my right connecting with the Second brigade. At this point, by direction of the general commanding the division, the command was changed from the order in column, and moved, left in front, in a southwesterly direction, following the Second division of the Fifth army corps, to a position on Gravelly Run, near the Moody House and Gravelly Run Church, where, by order of the division commander, the brigade was formed in two lines, the Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin, holding the front. The right of the brigade connected with General Baxter's command; the left with the Second division. Receiving orders to that effect, I advanced my command to a road, about half a mile in my immediate front, at which point it executed a left wheel.

"Here we became engaged with the enemy, my command moving forward and firing as it advanced, driving the enemy before it. In moving through a dense thicket and road, the connection was broken between my left and the Second division, leaving a large interval, which was taken advantage of by the enemy, who threw a force on my left flank and opened fire, evidently with the intention of arresting the forward movement of the line of battle. I ordered my front line to continue the advance, and directed one battalion of the Ninety-First New York, forming a portion of my second line, under Colonel Tarbell, to deploy on the left flank of the brigade, covering that flank, with orders to move forward and engage the enemy at short range. This order was promptly executed, holding the enemy at bay until the Third brigade, commanded by General Coulter, came up and filled the interval. My brigade now occupied the centre of the line, midway between the brigades of Generals Baxter and Coulter, and remained in that relative position until we found the enemy entrenched. We then drove them from their works across an open field, pursuing them closely about three-fourths of a mile, taking many prisoners, and killing and wounding many of the enemy; when, in compliance with orders, the brigade was moved into camp.

"Next morning the brigade moved to the South Side railroad, only to find the position abandoned by the enemy. The command, without halting, here moved on the railroad track three or four miles; the mile-board marking thirteen miles from Petersburg, when, by order of General Crawford, the command moved at a rapid rate in a westerly direction, about five miles, where the enemy was found in strong force, in an entrenched position on the Burkeville road. By order of the division commander, I deployed in two lines on the right of the road, my right resting on a wood, my left connecting with the Second brigade. The Seventh Wisconsin was deployed as skirmishers, with orders to cover the entire front of the line of battle. By this time it was quite dark, and the enemy not being able to distinguish our uniforms, was at a loss to know whether we were Yankees or not; and before he had obtained the desired information, the troops were in position to attack or resist, as circumstances should require. Upon ascertaining who we were, the enemy opened fire upon my portion of the line. My men replied, and immediately advanced towards the enemy, and halted within a few rods of his breastworks. The enemy's fire having ceased, I re-formed the line, and the men lay upon their arms until daylight.

On the morning of the 3d of April we again took up the line of march, in pursuit of the flying enemy, who had beaten a hasty retreat in the night, but we failed to overtake him, and late in the evening bivouacked for the night.

"We broke camp at an early hour on the following morning, and took up the line of march in pursuit of the still flying foe, reaching the Danville railroad at Jettersville Station in the afternoon, finding it occupied by the cavalry of General Sheridan, and the enemy in strong force just beyond. Here the brigade was formed in line of battle, and the troops, weary and footsore, having traveled all day without food, labored nearly all night throwing up breastworks. We remained in this position, resting and awaiting an attack, until the morning of the 6th, when we marched out to attack the enemy, who was found to have again retreated. The day was spent in pursuit, but without overtaking him.

"Still pursuing the enemy, on the 7th of April, our tired but gallant column pushed on, following the west side of the Appomattox to High Bridge, on the railroad reaching that point just after the enemy had crossed, the structure itself having been fired and three spans destroyed. On the 8th, we made a long forced march, the most tiresome, I believe, ever made by troops, being impeded by the wagon train of the Twenty-fourth corps; the infantry being obliged either to march through the thickets, or mix in promiscuously with the wagon train. We camped that night in line of battle.

"On the morning of the 9th of April, we again started in pursuit of the enemy, who was brought to bay near Appomattox Court House; but before we became engaged, the enemy, tired, dispirited, harassed and surrounded, surrendered at discretion.

"The tabular and nominal lists of casualties in each engagement of the campaign, I have already had the honor to forward.

"In conclusion, I beg leave to submit the following list of names of officers and men of my command who have distinguished themselves, and to ask for them a suitable recognition of their services.

* * * * *

"Captain Oley Grasley, Captain Frederick R. Dearborn, Captain Nicholas Heber, Captain Edson Terrell, Captain John Hoyt, First Lieutenant David C. Ashmore, First Lieutenant Jesse M. Roberts, First Lieutenant Onesime

Rondeau, First Lieutenant Washington Stever and Adjutant Russell Moore, of the Seventh Wisconsin, are all noticed in the most favorable manner for their gallantry, by their regimental commander.

"First Lieutenant Mair Pointon, Sixth Wisconsin, proved himself a most reliable officer, and held his company well in hand, both by command and example. Lieutenant Thomas Kelly, of the same regiment, distinguished himself for the coolness and judgment with which he managed his company when assailed by the enemy in their rear—having had a personal encounter with a rebel, meeting the bayonet with his sword.

"Sergeants Chauncey Winsor and Isaac Fort, of company A, Sixth Wisconsin, especially deserve mention for their successful efforts in keeping the company together and up to the line, while enduring a severe flank and front fire. The former was severely wounded during the advance of his company.

"Corporal James Moody and Sergeant Charles Patrick of company H, Sixth Wisconsin, are mentioned as using the bayonet upon the enemy, and deserve honorable mention. First Sergeant Lewis Ladloff and Corporal Ole Torgerson, of company B; Corporal John H. Jordan and Corporal Richard Corcoran, of company C; Sergeant Henry Jewitt and Sergeant Guilford Smith, of company E, and Corporal James Barry, of company I, all of the same regiment, displayed the highest courage and gallantry.

"Color-Sergeant George W. Davis, of company C, Seventh Wisconsin, was conspicuous for gallantry in carrying the colors of the regiment in advance of the line of battle, while advancing to meet the enemy on the 31st of March, and also for great bravery in leading and encouraging the command during the engagement of the 1st inst., especially in the second and third charges of that day.

"Sergeant Major William Booth; Sergeant John Harrison, of company E, and Sergeant Hugh Evans, of company G, Seventh Wisconsin, are distinguished for uniform courage, ardent devotion to the interest of the service, and prompt attention to duty.

"Sergeant Albert O'Connor, of company A, and Sergeant William H. Sickle, of company B, Seventh Wisconsin, were conspicuous for bravery in rescuing Captain W. L. Herwerth, of the Ninety-first New York, who was a prisoner in the hands of the enemy; capturing three prisoners. This was after our line had fallen back across the creek, on the 31st of March. The circumstances were as follows: Seeing a stand of Confederate colors, they recrossed the creek, and were only foiled in their efforts by the firing of the Union troops. Observing a detachment of some nine Confederates, they attempted their capture, and succeeded in taking three of their number with Captain Herwerth, who was in their hands, and dispersing the remainder.

"Sergeant O'Connor also merits particular mention for great bravery on the 1st of April, when, with five enlisted men of other commands, seeing a stand of Confederate colors at the breastworks, when the troops of this command made their second charge through the open field, rushed in front of the line of battle to secure the colors. In the contest, which was hand-to-hand, his five comrades were all killed. He shot the Confederate color bearer, seized the colors, which had been taken up by a Confederate captain, with one hand, and with the other, using the butt of his musket, killed the officer; when, being surrounded by Confederates, he was compelled to relinquish the colors and take shelter behind a friendly tree, where he remained fighting until our line advanced and rescued him. * * *

"I desire especially to invite attention to the merits of * * * Lieutenant Colonel Kerr, of the Sixth Wisconsin, who was badly wounded while cheering on his men; of Colonel Richardson, of the Seventh Wisconsin; also, of Adjutant Jerome A. Watrous, of the Sixth Wisconsin, A. A. A. G.; of Second Lieutenant Charles W. Atherton, A. A. D. C., and Captain Henry T. Garfield, Brigade Inspector, members of my staff.

"The gallant conduct of these officers came under my immediate notice. Lieutenant Watrous was wounded and taken prisoner while gallantly discharging his duty. Lieutenant Watrous and Lieutenant Atherton each lost a horse shot under him, which with the horse shot under my orderly, William Holloway, makes three horses shot from my headquarters on that day by the firing of the enemy.

"I beg leave to call attention to the management of the medical department of the brigade during the recent campaign. Surgeon D. Cooper Ayres, of the Seventh Wisconsin, brigade surgeon-in-chief, is deserving of special notice; not only for skill and good management of his department, but also for personal bravery in finding and ministering to the wounded under fire. I respectfully recommend him for brevet, if admissible by the rules of the service.

"My two orderlies, William Holloway, of company K, and Henry A. Hackett, of company H, Sixth Wisconsin, behaved in the most gallant manner." * * * *

After the surrender of the rebel army, the brigade, on the 11th of April, marched to and encamped at Blacks and Whites, a station on the Petersburg and Lynchburg railroad, thirty-seven miles from the former place, where they remained until ordered to participate in the general movement of the army of the Potomac towards Washington. Marching from Blacks and Whites about the middle of May, they took part on the 23d of that month in the grand review of the army at the national capital, near which they afterwards went into camp.

Having been ordered, with a number of other western regiments, which had served in the army of the Potomac, to report to Major General Logan, commanding the army of the Tennessee, the Sixth and Seventh Wisconsin broke camp near Washington on the 17th of June, moved by rail to Parkersburg, Va., and embarking at that place descended the Ohio River to Louisville, Ky., where they arrived on the 22d, and went into camp.

Here ten regiments from the army of the Potomac were organized as a Provisional division, under command of General Morrow. Of the two brigades constituting the Provisional division thus organized, the Seventh Wisconsin was assigned to the First, and the Sixth Wisconsin to the Second brigade, which was placed under command of Colonel Kellogg. Upon the muster out of General Morrow, Colonel Kellogg assumed command of the division.

The Seventh regiment was mustered out of service at Louisville on the 3d of July, and on the same day set out for home, arriving on the 5th at Madison, Wisconsin. On the 14th of July, the Sixth was also mustered out of service, and on the 16th, arrived at Madison. On reaching the capital of the state, they became the recipitents of an enthusiastic public welcome, in the Capitol park, at the hands of the state officers and citizens.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, "the words of command were given; the bronzed veterans wheeled to the right; drums and fifes struck up their stormy music, and with guns at 'right shoulder shift,' and bayonets gleaming in the slant sunbeams, under the green arches of the summer trees, the last organized fragment of the old IRON BRIGADE of the army of the Potomac, bearing the rent and shot torn banners, on which are inscribed the names of such historic battles as South Mountain, Antietam, Chancellorville, Gettysburg, The Wilderness, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Weldon Railroad, Hatcher's Run and Five Forks, passed on; to dissolve and disappear from men's eyes forever, but to live immortal in history and in the memory of a grateful people."

THIRD REGIMENT.

The Third Wisconsin Veteran Infantry, attached to the Second brigade, First division, of the Twentieth army corps, remained in Atlanta, Ga., encamped on the eastern side of the city, near the Georgia railroad, until the 11th of October, 1864, when they set out on a foraging expedition, with a body of troops, under command of General Geary, in which they were engaged five days and marched fifty miles. On their return, they encamped on the northwest side of the city, near the Western and Atlantic railroad, whence they again moved on the 22d of October, accompanying a forage expedition, with which they marched forty-four miles, returning on the 20th, to camp at Atlanta.

In the preparation of General Sherman's forces for the memorable "march to the sea," the Third Wisconsin, with other forces, effected a reconnoissance in the direction of the Chattahoochee River, on the 2d of November, and on the 13th assisted in the destruction of the railroad from the Chattahoochee to Atlanta.

They left Atlanta on the 15th of November, accompanying the movement of the army to the eastward, and passing through Decatur, bivouacked on the Georgia railroad near Stone Mountain, about fourteen miles from Atlanta. The march was resumed on the following morning and daily urged forward, following the general direction of the Georgia railroad to Madison, sixty-seven miles from Atlanta, which place they passed through on the 19th of November, encamping a short distance to the eastward. In the evening, an expedition under command of Colonel Hawley, left camp for the purpose of procuring provisions, returning late at night, after a march of eight miles.

Next morning, they were again in motion to the southward, in the direction of Eatonton, the northern terminus of the Milledgeville and Eatonton railroad, and having passed through this place on the 21st, they arrived on the following day before Milledgeville, the capital of Georgia. On approaching the city, the corps was halted, and by direction of Major General Slocum, the Third Wisconsin and a New York regiment entered the place, in charge of Colonel Hawley, who assumed command of the post.* During their short stay in the city they were occupied in "patrolling the streets, ascertaining the amount of public and other property captured, and guarding the same, and maintaining, so far as possible, good order in the city." A considerable amount of military property was burned or rendered unserviceable to the enemy, and having been relieved on the 24th of November, the regiment rejoined the brigade, and resumed the forward movement on the same day. Following the direction of the Central railroad, by way of Tennille Station and Davisboro, they reached Bostwick, one hundred and three miles from Savannah, on the 29th. At this place, the railroad track and a large amount of property was destroyed.

* The regimental flag was hoisted on the capital.

The direction of the march was changed, and crossing the Ogeechee River on the 30th of November, they moved to the eastward, and crossed the Augusta and Savannah railroad on the 3d of December. Eleven miles beyond Springfield, on the 9th, the direction of the march was again changed, and taking the direct road to Savannah, they had proceeded about four miles when the "enemy was discovered, strongly entrenched and occupying two small forts directly in front, entirely covering the road over which they would be compelled to pass. At this point the First division, having the advance, was halted and formed for the attack, the Second brigade taking position on the right. This brigade, to which the Third Wisconsin was attached, in order, if possible, to gain the rear of the enemy, made a detour to the right, moving by the flank a distance of a mile and gaining a position in a rice swamp, through which the rear of the forts could be reached. The Third was formed in line of battle in the swamp, with a Massachusetts regiment on the right and the balance of the brigade on the left. In this order they advanced nearly a mile, when the skirmish line became engaged, and the brigade halted. They remained in this position awaiting orders to advance, until the enemy, who had meanwhile been hard pressed by the balance of the division, began to retreat. The regiment then moved rapidly forward, but the swamp being deep, they were unable to overtake the retreating rebels, and having marched in pursuit two miles, were ordered to return, and encamped near the enemy's deserted works."*

During the action three of the enemy were captured by the skirmish line, and one officer of the regiment wounded.

The forward movement was resumed on the 10th of December, when they marched to the Charleston and Savannah railroad, and having destroyed a portion of the track, moved forward, taking position in the evening about three-quarters of a mile from the enemy's outer line of works at Savannah. On the following day, Colonel Hawley was directed to move with his command to Argyle Island, in the Savannah River, with orders to secure the rice and other public property on the island, and to effect a reconnoissance of the South Carolina shore.

In accordance with this order, two companies were transferred to the island during the night, and were followed on the morning of the 12th, by the balance of the regiment. "While crossing, three rebel steamers were discovered coming down the river. Two of them proved to be gunboats, by almost immediately becoming engaged with our batteries on shore. Two companies were immediately deployed by Colonel Hawley, to intercept them if possible, and pick off their gunners; but before the skirmishers could reach a position where their fire could be effective, the gunboats had retreated, making their escape up the river. While changing their position, they had both run into the third vessel, (which subsequently proved to be the armed tender Resolute), thus disabling her so that her wheels could not revolve. When our troops reached the vessel, the officers and crew had burned the small boats, and were busily engaged in getting off their baggage. After one volley, resulting in the wounding of the executive officer of the boat, the vessel was surrounded, immediately boarded by our troops and brought to the Georgia shore. The prisoners numbered five officers and nineteen men. The two following days were occupied in collecting boats, reconnoitring the island and securing such property as could be found."

"On the 15th of December, in compliance with orders of the corps commander, five companies of the Third Wisconsin crossed to the South Carolina shore, driving the enemy from Izzard's plantation, and effecting a reconnoissance in the vicinity for about two miles, during which much valuable information was obtained, respecting the country and roads. After a stay of about one hour, the enemy made his appearance, in their front, in strong force, and being entirely isolated from the army, with limited means of transportation, Colonel Hawley deemed it prudent to withdraw his small force and return to Argyle Island. Although vigorously pressed by the enemy, this was successfully accomplished. In response to Colonel Hawley's application to the corps commander for additional troops to enable him to recross and hold the plantation, his command was reinforced by the Second Massachusetts; but before a recrossing could be effected, the boats were withdrawn, for the purpose of transporting to the island and South Carolina shore, the entire brigade, upon the arrival of which, Colonel Hawley was relieved from the command of the expedition."*

On the 19th of December they recrossed, with the brigade to the South Carolina shore, where they occupied position and were engaged during the next day in some skirmishing with the enemy. During the operation of returning to Argyle Island, on the 21st, the Third Wisconsin acted as rear guard, and though severely pressed at times, the movement was effected, late at night, without loss. On the following day, they crossed to the main Georgia shore, and having marched a distance of seven miles, encamped near the city of Savannah, where they remained, with slight changes of position, until called upon to participate in the great movement of the army to the northward, their list of casualties during the campaign from Atlanta, showing a loss of one man killed and four wounded.

On the morning of the 17th of January, 1865, they crossed the river at Savannah with the Second brigade, and following the direction of the Charleston and Savannah railroad, arrived on the 19th at Purysburg, about eighteen miles from Savannah. From this place the march was resumed on the 26th, and daily pressed forward until the 29th of January, when they reached Robertsville. The Third Wisconsin leading the division, "encountered the enemy about a mile from the village, when two companies were ordered to deploy as skirmishers and engage the enemy. The firing soon became sharp, but after a short resistance, the rebels fled through the town, leaving the regiment in full possession. One prisoner was captured. The casualties in the regiment amounted to three wounded."*

They remained in camp at this place until the 2d of February, when the line of march to the northward was again taken up. Proceeding almost directly northward by way of Lawtonville, the the regiment acting as train guard during a portion of the time, they struck the Charleston and Augusta railroad on the 8th, at Graham's Station, nineteen miles west of Branchville. During the next two days, they were occupied in destroying the railroad towards Augusta, some distance beyond Blackville, and on the 11th of February, the direction of the march was again changed to the northward. They crossed the Edisto River during the night, and proceeding via Lexington, crossed the Saluda on the 7th, west of Columbia. Thenceforward the movement was steadily urged day by day, by way of Winnsboro and Cheraw to Fayetteville, N. C., at which place they arrived on the 12th of March, and crossing the Cape Fear River on the following day, reached Averysboro on the 15th. They participated next day in the action near this place, with a loss of twenty-eight of their number killed and wounded. They left Averysboro on the 17th of March, and having participated, with great credit, in a skirmish on the 19th near Bentonville, arrived on the 24th at Goldsboro, where they remained in camp until the 26th, at which date the regiment was detailed to guard trains to Kinston, whence they returned on the 30th to Goldsboro, and went into camp.

On the 10th of April, they were again put in motion. They reached Raleigh, the capital of the state, on the 13th, and lay in camp at that place until the 25th, when they marched twelve miles to Jones' Cross Roads. They returned on the 28th to Raleigh, whence on the 30th, they set out for home, and marching by way of Richmond, Va., (May 7th,) arrived on the 16th of May at Alexandria, and on the 19th, moved to Washington, at which place, on the 24th, they took part in the grand review at the national capital.

They remained encamped in the vicinity until the 10th of June, when they left Washington, proceeding by rail to Parkersburg, Va., at which place they embarked on the 13th, and descending the Ohio River, landed on the 15th at Louisville, Ky., where camp was established.

While at Washington, a number of the regiment, whose term of service was about to expire, were mustered out on the 9th of June, and arrived on the 13th at Madison, Wisconsin.

* Official Report.

The main body of the regiment remained at Louisville, Ky., until the 18th of July, when they were mustered out of service and set out for home. They arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 23d of July, and were shortly afterwards paid and formally disbanded.

FIFTH REGIMENT—REORGANIZED.

Immediately upon the muster-out of the Old Fifth, the necessary steps were taken for its reorganization. Under the supervision of Colonel Allen, who was recommissioned colonel of the regiment, seven companies were rapidly recruited and organized, the last of which was mustered into the United States' service on the 1st of October, 1864. They left Camp Randall on the following day, to join their future comrades in the field, and arrived on the 7th at Washington, remaining at the Soldiers' Home in that city until the 14th, when they moved to Alexandria, Va., where they were employed in provost duty. They returned to Washington on the 20th of October, and proceeding thence on the same day by rail, arrived late in the evening at Martinsburg, W. Va., on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. They remained in camp at this place until the 25th, when they moved forward as escort to a supply train, and arrived on the following day at Winchester, where they joined the veteran companies of the regiment, which for some time previous had been stationed at that place as part of the garrison.

Marching with the Third brigade as escort to a supply train, the Fifth Wisconsin, numbering in the aggregate nine hundred and twenty seven officers and men, left Winchester on the 29th of October, arriving on the following day at Middletown, where they took position with the brigade in the First division, Sixth army corps. They broke camp at Middletown on the 9th of November, and moving with the army under command of Major General Sheridan, marched nine miles on the Winchester road to Camp Russell, where they remained in camp until the 22d, at which date the regiment left camp as guard to a supply train, and passing through Winchester, where they bivouacked for the night, reached Martinsburg next day. On the return, they left Martinsburg as train escort on the 29th of November, rejoining the division, at Camp Russell next day.

In the transfer of troops to the army of the Potomac, the regiment, accompanying the movement of the Sixth corps, left Camp Russell on the 1st of December, and proceeding by rail from Stephenson's Station, on the Winchester and Potomac railroad, reached Washington on the following day, when they were placed on transports, and arrived on the 4th at City Point, Va. Here they joined the army of the Potomac on the 5th, going into camp at Warren's Station, whence they set out on the 9th, accompanying Warren's raid, from which they returned on the 13th, and remained in camp, employed in various duties, until the 5th of February, 1865, when they marched from camp, accompanying the movement of the forces in the demonstration on the left of our lines. They participated in the engagements of the 6th, and two following days, near Hatcher's Run, with a loss of one killed and three wounded, and returned on the evening of the 8th to camp at Warren's Station.

On the 25th of March, they took part in the movement for the relief of Fort Steadman, marching subsequently to the left of Fort Fisher, where they participated in a severe engagement, during which they lost one killed and five wounded. They returned on the 26th to camp.

Participating in the movements of General Sheridan's command during the celebrated final compaign of the army of the Potomac, which resulted in the defeat and surrender of the rebel forces under General Lee, the Fifth Wisconsin left Warren's Station on the 2d of April, and took part in the assault at Petersburg, sustaining a loss of ten killed and seventy-three wounded. The brigade to which they were attached was formed in three lines, two regiments in each, the Fifth Wisconsin, with the Thirty-seventh Massachusetts, taking position in the extreme front. The signal for the charge was sounded at four in the morning, and the colors of the Fifth were first planted on the enemy's works. After the storming of the entrenchments, the regiment, under the lead of Colonel Allen, pressed forward with great rapidity, two miles through the lines of the retreating rebels, to the South Side railroad. The troops, who had become somewhat scattered in the darkness of the early morning, were reassembled at eight o'clock, and marched six miles to the left, inside of the works so lately in possession of the rebels, capturing a large number of prisoners. They then marched back to the right, and bivouacked near Petersburg, late in the evening, having been under fire and engaged with the enemy during the whole day.

On the afternoon of the next day [April 3d] they pushed forward in pursuit of General Lee's forces, and marching rapidly day and night, the Sixth corps encountered the rebel General Ewell's forces on the 6th, at Sailor's Creek. Line of battle was immediately formed, and the Fifth Wisconsin rushed forward at a double quick. With unbroken line the regiment advanced through a swamp waist deep, under the fire of the enemy's musketry to the brow of a hill, upon which the rebels were encountered, admirably posted, and fighting with the energy of despair. In the sanguinary conflict which followed, during which the regiment lost ten killed and seventy-seven wounded, the regiment was for some time exposed to a severe flank and cross fire, and acted with such distinguished gallantry as to elicit the warmest encomiums from the brigade, division and corps commanders. Lieutenant General Ewell, with his staff, surrendered to six men of the skirmish line, commanded by Sergeant Angus Cameron, of company A, who was promoted a lieutenant on the field for gallantry.

In obedience to General Grant's celebrated order to General Sheridan to "press things," the pursuit was vigorously urged during the next two days, and on the 9th of April, General Lee surrendered near Appomattox Court House. The Fifth remained in bivouac until the 10th, and on the following day were again put in motion, arriving on the 13th, at Burkeville, fifty-three miles from Richmond, at the junction of the Richmond and Danville, and Petersburg and Lynchburg railroads. They remained in camp at this point until the 23d of April, when they left Burkeville, and proceeding by rapid marches, arrived on the 27th at Danville, the terminus of the Richmond and Danville railroad, accomplishing the march of upwards of one hundred miles in four and a half days.

They broke camp at Danville, on the morning of the 3d of May, and proceeding thence by rail, encamped next day at Wilson's Station, twenty-seven miles from Petersburg on the Petersburg and Lynchburg railroad. Here Colonel Allen assumed command of the brigade, and the Fifth Wisconsin remained in camp until the 18th of May, when they set out for Washington, D. C. They reached Richmond on the 20th, and resuming the march on the 24th, arrived on the 2d of June at Hall's Hill, two miles southwest of Washington, where camp was established. At this place, the non-veterans of the regiment, whose term of service expired previous to the 1st of October, 1865, were mustered out in obedience to General Orders from the War Department, and started for home on the 20th, arriving on the 24th of June, at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were paid off and disbanded.

The Veteran Fifth accompanied the Sixth corps to Louisville, Ky., where the regiment was mustered out on the 11th of July, and arrived on the 13th at Madison, Wisconsin, where they received their pay and final discharge, on the 20th of July, 1865.

EIGHTH REGIMENT.

On the return from the long march with General Mower's expedition in pursuit of the rebel General Price, the Eighth Wisconsin embarked at Cape Girardeau, Mo., on the 5th of October, 1864, and proceeded up the Mississippi to St. Louis. New clothing and equipments having been furnished the regiment at this city they were again placed on transports and sailing up the Missouri River, landed on the 15th at Jefferson City, whence they immediately moved forward by rail fifty miles to Lamine Bridge. From this place, they again set out on the 19th of October, with the expeditionary force in pursuit of rebel forces in southwestern Missouri and Kansas, under General Price.

Passing through Sedalia, Lexington, Independence and Kansas City to Little Santa Fe, Kan., the expedition commenced the march in return from the latter place, and moving toward St. Louis, the regiment arrived on the 31st at Pleasant Hill, Mo., having been transported by rail and steamer during the month, six hundred and sixty-five miles, and marched two hundred and ninety-six miles. Continuing the march on the 1st of November by way of Georgetown, Eulalie and Lookout Station, they arrived on the 6th at Jefferson City, and pressing forward by way of Westphalia and Lynn, having crossed on their route the Osage and Gasconade rivers, they arrived on the 15th of November at Benton Barracks, Mo., near St. Louis, at which place they were re-clothed, paid and "fitted up for another expedition."

Accompanying the command of General A. J. Smith, in the movement of our forces to repel the advance of the rebel army under General Hood, they embarked on the 23d of November at Benton Barracks. On the following day the fleet steamed down the Mississippi, and proceeding up the Ohio and Cumberland rivers, the Eighth arrived, on the morning of the 30th, at Nashville, Tenn., where they at once disembarked, and joining the army under command of Major General Thomas, marched to position in the line of defences of the city, the aggregate distance traveled during the month amounting to six hundred and sixty miles, of which they had marched two hundred and sixty miles.

On the 15th of December and the following day, eight companies of the regiment participated in the battle of Nashville, sustaining a loss of seven killed and fifty-six wounded, and subsequently took part in the pursuit of the enemy, marching a distanee of one hundred and fifty-six miles, by way of Pulaski and Waynesboro to Clifton, Tenn., where they encamped on the 2d of January, 1865. Embarking at this place on the 8th, they proceeded up the Tennessee River on the following day and landed at Eastport, Miss., where they went into camp, and remained nntil the 6th of February. Embarking at this date, tney moved next day down the Tennessee River, and proceeding by Cairo, Ill., arrived on the 14th at Vicksburg, Miss, at which point they landed on the 16th and encamped four miles in rear of the city.

They again embarked on the 19th of February, and on the following day moved down the Mississippi, landing on the 22d at New Orleans, La., five miles below which place they went into camp at Chalmette. They were again put in motion on the 5th of March, and proceeding by transport down the Mississippi to the Gulf of Mexico, landed on the 7th at Dauphin Island, Ala., where they remained in camp until the 20th, at which date they moved across Mobile Bay, and ascending Fish River, ten miles, disembarked and went into camp.

They broke camp at this point on the 25th, and on the following day took position in the lines before Spanish Fort. The line was advanced close to the enemy's works on the 27th of March, from which date they were constantly employed in fortifying and the performance of picket duty, in the trenches, until the 9th of April, when they marched four miles and took position before Fort Blakely, where they lost two men wounded. After the surrender of this place, they were put in motion to the northward on the 13th, and having marched through the interior of Alabama, a distance of one hundred and eighty miles, they arrived on the 25th at Montgomery, Ala., (the capital of the state), at which point they remained in camp until the 10th of May. Leaving Montgomery at this date, they marched eighty miles in a westerly direction, arriving on the 14th at Selma, Ala., whence they moved on the 19th, thirty miles by rail to Uniontown, the terminus of the Alabama and Mississippi rivers railroad. Here the regiment went into camp and remained until the order was received for their discharge.

They were mustered out at Demopolis, Ala., on the 5th of September, and arrived on the 13th at Madison, Wisconsin, where they soon afterwards received their pay and were finally discharged.

It is, perhaps, not unworthy of note, that the eagle, which they took with them from the state, still lives, apparently in the enjoyment of excellent health and undiminished appetite.

NINTH REGIMENT.

During the greater part of the past year, the Ninth Wisconsin, was stationed at Little Rock, the capital of Arkansas, and engaged in building and guarding fortifications in the vicinity.

Having sustained very severe loss at the battle of Jenkins' Ferry, on the Saline River, and their numbers having been still further reduced by the muster-out of the non-veterans, upon the expiration of their original term of service, the regiment, on the 17th of November, 1864, was consolidated into four companies of veteran volunteers, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Jacobi, the colonel, major and other officers, rendered supernumerary by this consolidation, were mustered out of service at that date.

On the 22d of January, 1865, they left Little Rock on an expedition to the Saline River, and passing through Pine Bluff, arrived, after a march of five days, at Mount Elba, about eighty miles from Little Rock. They remained two days at Mount Elba, and returned to winter quarters at Little Rock on the 5th of February, having lost one man during the expedition.

The Ninth was employed in guard and fatigue duty until early in June, when orders were received to proceed to Camden, Ark., one hundred miles south of Little Rock. Embarking on the 4th of June, they moved down the Arkansas and Mississippi, and ascending the Red, Black and Washita Rivers, landed on the 13th at Camden. Here they remained until the 3d of August, when they commenced the return march to Little Rock, and reoccupying their old quarters on the 10th, resumed the performance of guard duty in the city. Lieutenant Colonel Jacobi having been appointed Provost Marshal General, and Judge of the Provost Court of the Department of Arkansas, the command of the battalion devolved upon Captain Eckhart, of company A.

The Ninth was mustered out of service on the 30th of January, 1866, at Little Rock, and embarking at that place on the 1st of February, set out for home. They arrived on the 9th at Cairo, Ill., and on the morning of the 12th reached Madison, Wisconsin. On the 14th of February the Ninth was paid and disbanded.

The Eleventh Wisconsin remained at Brashear City, La., employed in building fortifications, together with guard and picket duty, until the 26th of February, 1865. During this time detachments of the regiment took part in several important expeditions up the numerous bayous connecting with Berwick Bay, the object of which was to prevent the massing of any considerable force of rebels, and to break up an extensive smuggling trade, which was being carried on in the vicinity.

On the evening of the 10th of October, 1864, a detachment of seventy-five men of the regiment, under command of Captain Park, was placed on a gunboat, and next morning proceeded up Berwick Bay to Flat Lake, and thence into Bayou Long and Grand or Belle River. They ascended the latter stream as far as Natchez Bay, about twenty-eight miles from Brashear City, and having effected a thorough reconnoissance and made several arrests the expedition returned on the 13th to camp. On the 22d of October, Captain Park, with a detachment of thirty-five men of the Eleventh, and a small additional number of colored troops, embarked on a gunboat for a similar expedition to the head of Belle River, and having captured a number of prisoners and destroyed several boats, returned on the evening of the 26th to camp.

Major Miller, with one hundred and fifty men of the regiment, and fifty colored troops, set out, on the 19th of November, on an expedition to Bayou Portage. Having participated in a sharp skirmish with a body of rebel guerillas, with a loss of one killed and one slightly wounded, the expedition returned on the following day.

On the 20th of November, Captain Park, with forty men of company A, and one piece of artillery, left Brashear City and having destroyed a number of small vessels and effected several arrests in the vicinity of Bayou Long, Magazine Bayou and Lake Verret, returned on the 27th to Brashear. Captain Park again left camp on the 6th of December, in command of a similar expedition, consisting of four companies of the Eleventh with a small additional force of colored troops, capturing a number of prisoners with several horses and accoutrements, on the bank of Lake Natchez, and returned on the 10th to Brashear City. Captain Park also commanded two similar expeditions during the month of January, 1865.

On the 26th of February, 1865, the Eleventh regiment left Brashear City, under orders to report to the general commanding the Sixteenth army corps, at Camp Chalmette, three miles below New Orleans. On arriving at Algiers, they bivouacked for the night near the railroad depot, and embarking next morning proceeded down the river to Chalmette, four miles below which place they went into camp, and remained until the 6th of March, when they marched for Chalmette. Here the regiment was assigned to the Third brigade, Second division of the Sixteenth army corps, Colonel Harris taking command of the brigade, and Major Miller of the regiment.

They embarked at Chalmette on the 9th of March, and landed on the 11th at Dauphin Island, near Mobile, Ala., going into camp with the brigade. Re-embarking on the 19th, they crossed Mobile Bay to Navy Cove, where they remained at anchor during the night, and next morning were put in motion with the Sixteenth corps, for the mouth of Fish River, which they ascended, disembarking on the 21st at Donnelly's Landing, one mile from which place they went into camp. The whole column was put in motion on the 25th of March, when they moved forward, encamping near Sibley's mills, on the following day. At this point the Second division was detached from the main body, and marched two miles to the rear, under orders to guard the wagon train of the army, then occupied in the investment of Spanish Fort. They were employed in this duty until the 3d of April, when the Second division broke camp near Sibley's Mills, and marched to the support of Major General Steele, commanding the forces in front of Blakely, the troops under his command not being sufficient to properly invest the place.

"The division arrived at four in the afternoon, [April 3d], after a march of six miles, and took position on the left of Veatch's division of the Thirteenth army corps, our (Third) brigade on the extreme left of the line. Here we rested until sundown, when I was ordered with the Eleventh to support a line of skirmishers, thrown out for the purpose of ascertaining the enemy's position, and with a view of establishing a line nearer his works. The line advanced through the timber about a quarter of a mile. The Eleventh Wisconsin following close up to the skirmish line, came to an opening in front of the enemy's fortifications, about one thousand yards distant, where we encountered his pickets in strong force, and after some skirmishing, succeeded in driving them back. Our skirmishers took possession of the line and entrenched themselves. I was ordered to halt about fifty yards in rear of the line, fortify, and form connection with the brigade on my right.

"About eleven P. M., the skirmish line being hotly engaged, I sent company D, Captain Toms, to reinforce it; at the same time I reeeived information that the enemy had come out of his works, and was flanking our skirmishers on the left. I immediately sent companies E and G to protect the flank. They were successful in frustrating the designs of the enemy, who had contemplated turning our flank, our line not extending to his right. The enemy's forces kept up a constant fire of musketry and artillery during the night, but owing to the darkness, were unable to fire with any degree of accuracy, and at daylight, having worked incessantly the whole night, we were sufficiently fortified for our protection. The regiment sustained no loss in getting into position.

"At noon on the 4th of April, the regiment was relieved from the front by the Fifty-second Indiana and Fifty-eighth Illinois of our brigade, except company I, which was sent to the extreme left of the skirmish line as sharpshooters, and remained there until five in the afternoon of the 5th, when they were relieved by company E, Lieutenant McDonald commanding, who during the night advanced across a ravine filled with fallen timber laid in every conceivable shape, so that it was almost impossible for men to penetrate, and fortifying themselves on the other side, about seventy-five yards in advance of the line of skirmishers. During the night, repeated attempts were made by the enemy to dislodge them, but they stubbornly resisted each attempt and held the position.

"On the 6th of April, at half past five in the afternoon, the regiment was again sent to the front, and relieved the Thirty-fourth New Jersey, when company E was relieved by company F, Lieutenant McConnell commanding. Up to this time the line had not been advanced from the position first taken on the 3d by the skirmish line. At ten in the evening, I received orders to advance the line two hundred yards nearer the enemy's works.

"Companies A, C and H, under command of Captain Lang, were selected as skirmishers to make the advance, each officer and man being provided with a spade. At a signal agreed upon by myself and the officer commanding the skirmishers of the brigade on my right, the line moved forward in concert two hundred and fifty yards, the enemy's pickets retreating without offering any resistance. Here they fortified themselves, and after a few hours hard digging, succeeded in connecting their rifle pits with those of the brigade, on the right.

"During this time, Lieutenant McConnell, who was on the opposite side of the ravine, isolated from the balance of the regiment, advanced still nearer the enemy's fortifications, but was unable on account of the distance to connect with the companies on his right, and fearing the enemy might cut him off, I sent company H to his support, also sending company G to fill the gap between his and the other companies. The balance of the regiment was held in reserve, and occupied the line vacated by the skirmish line."

"An hour before daylight next morning, April 7th, the enemy made a sortie in force upon our line established during the night. Our skirmishers reserved their fire and allowed them to come within thirty yards, when they gave them a volley, causing their instant retreat in the wildest confusion. At six in the afternoon of the 7th, company F was relieved by company E.

"On the 9th of April, at five in the afternoon, I received orders to move the regiment to the front, and in the advance rifle pits form line of battle on the left of the Hundred and Seventy-eighth New York, and Fifty-eighth Illinois, which composed the first line of our brigade, to throw out a strong line of skirmishers connecting with the skirmishers of the brigade on my left, preparatory to assaulting the enemy's works, and at a signal to be given by the bugle to advance. Companies A, F and D were immediately deployed in front, close to the ditch, and lay down behind the fallen timber, awaiting the approach of the skirmishers on the left, who were some distance in the rear and not deployed.

"The hour agreed upon to charge having arrived, (half past five), the bugle sounded the signal for the skirmishers to advance, when they sprang from their concealment, and rushed forward about one hundred yards, where they encountered a strong force of the enemy, who were posted in small redoubts. Having received no orders, but fearing a check of the skirmishers, I immediately gave the command, 'Forward Eleventh.'"

"The regiment leaped from the ditch, and with yells of defiance, moved rapidly on the enemy's outer line of works, carried them, and followed the retreating foe so closely that his reserve in the main line of works was unable to fire upon us, until we were close upon them, when they poured into our ranks a murderous fire of musketry, grape and canister, cutting down many brave men in our midst; yet the survivors faltered not, but increased their speed, and gained the top of the parapet, upon which our colors were the first planted.

"Here hand to hand encounters ensued, the enemy showing no disposition to surrender or retreat, but fighting bravely, and with desperation. But they were soon overpowered by our men, who were the first to break their line, when they fled in confusion towards the river; many hoping to escape in their gunboats, but finding that impossible, surrendered without further resistance.

"We remained inside the works until a late hour of the night, securing prisoners, artillery, arms, etc., burying our dead, collecting and caring for our wounded, when the regiment returned to the camp previously occupied.

'The regiment sustained a loss in this engagement of fifteen killed and forty-four wounded: the names of the wounded and the nature of the wound is appended.

"I cannot speak in too much praise of the zeal, energy and faithfulness of both officers and men in the late glorious campaign, and of the gallantry displayed in that memorable charge on the enemy's works at Blakely, Ala., on the 9th of April. To name all those who have distinguished themselves it would be necessary to furnish the names of every man in the regiment.

"Accompanying this is the list of the brave and herois men who fell on the field, and who have since died of wounds received there. I I deem it just to their memory, as it would no doubt be gratifying to their friends, that I should notice them. They were good and brave med, beloved by all their comrades, and fought with courage unsurpassed.

"To particularize, when officers and men displayed unusual gallantry, may seem invidious, yet I cannot neglect to mention First Lieutenant Angus R. MacDonald, who commanded company E, for his gallant and heroic conduct; who, on mounting the parapet of the enemy's works was attacked by six men. He knocked down two men with his sabre, and in return received a shot through the thigh, and two bayonet wounds in the breast. Also Sergeant Daniel B. Moore, of company E, whose timely aid saved the life of Lieutenant MacDonald, when attacked by the enemy. Sergeant Moore shot one, bayonetted another, and when his own gun was shattered, seized another, and compelled the remainder of the party to surrender."*

On the 13th of April, the Eleventh marched from their camp in front of Blakely, and carrying five days' rations, set out in the direction of Montgomery. During the march; the Third brigade, for a considerable distance, acted as guard to the division train, and the troops suffered greatly from fatigue, in assisting to move the trains over horrible roads, on which progress was rendered almost impossible by the frequent heavy rains. They crossed the Escambia River on the 17th, and marching by way of Greenville, through which place they passed on the 22d, arrived on the 27th at Montgomery, and went into camp one mile northeast of the city.

On the 29th of April camp, for sanitary reasons, was moved one mile farther east, where the regiment remained, engaged in the performance of light duty, until the 23d of July, at which date they embarked on transports, and descending the Alabama River, arrived on the 26th at Mobile. Here they were assigned to duty within the city as provost guard, in which they were engaged until relieved on the 3d of September by the Fourteenth Wisconsin.

The Eleventh Wisconsin was mustered out of service at Mobile, on the 4th of September, and next day was placed on transports, en route for home. They arrived at New Orleans, La., on the 8th, and re-embarking next day, arrived on the 14th at Cairo, Ill. There being no transportation provided at this place, they continued up the Mississippi to St. Louis, Mo., arriving on the the following day. They left St. Louis on the 16th, and proceeding thence by rail, arrived on the 18th of September at Madison, Wis.

The men were permitted to go to their homes, and remain until the 27th, when they returned, and on the 28th of September, 1865, they received their pay and final discharge, four years and two days from the date of their original muster into the service of the United States.

TWELFTH REGIMENT.

The Twelfth Wisconsin, at that time attached to the First brigade, Third division, Seventeenth army corps, left Atlanta, Ga., on the 4th of October, 1864, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Proudfit, and accompanying the northward movement of the corps, kept almost constantly in motion during the month, proceeding via Marietta to Resaca, and thence through Snake Creek Gap, LaFayette, Summerville and Cedar Bluffs, and encamped on the 30th at Cave Springs, Ga., having marched during the month about two hundred and twenty-five miles.

The movements of the army under General Sherman having produced the desired effect of changing the line of march of the rebel forces to the west and northward, the regiment accompanying the movement of the army of the Tennessee, left Cave Springs on the 1st of November, and arrived on the 5th at Smyrna, fifteen miles north of Atlanta. Here they remained in camp until the 13th, when they marched to Atlanta, from which place, on the 13th, they set out, participating in the celebrated march af General Sherman's army to the sea.

They moved forward daily during the month, assisted in the destruction of many miles of the Georgia Central railway, and on the morning of the 30th, were encamped on the railway near the east bank of the Ogeechee River, having marched a distance, estimated at three hundred and five miles. Leaving the Ogeechee River on the last of November, and following the general direction of the Georgia Central railroad, they arrived before Savannah on the 10th of December. With one change of position they remained in the trenches before the enemy's works at this place, until the evacuation of the city on the 21st, when they encamped in the suburbs, having lost during the siege Major Price killed and one private wounded.

In the preliminary movements, preparatory to the grand march of the army northward, the Twelfth Wisconsin embarked at Thunderbolt Battery, a short distance below Savannah, on the 5th of January, 1865, and landed on the evening of the same day at Beaufort, on Port Royal Island, S. C., about fifty miles from Savannah. Here the final preparations for advance were perfected, and on the 13th, they moved with the division against Pocotaligo, on the Charleston and Savannah railroad. Having participated on the 14th in a severe skirmish with the enemy, during which Captain Chandler, who commanded the brigade line of skirmishers, was killed, and a number of men belonging to the regiment, wounded; they, next day, occupied Pocotaligo, which the enemy had evacuated during the previous night.

The regiment was subsequently engaged during the month of January, singly and with other regiments, in various reconnoissances and demonstrations against the rebel forces on the line of the Combahee River, and, on the 30th, accompanied the march of the army from Pocotaligo, encamping on the night of the 31st, near Whippy Swamp, S. C. During the month of February, they were kept constantly in motion, "tore up railroads, waded swamps, made roads, built bridges, skirmished, without loss, with the enemy at Orangeburg, drove him out, and occupied the town, assisted in the capture of Columbia, Winnsboro and other places, and camped for the night of the 28th of February, in Chesterfield District, near Cheraw, S. C., having marched during the month about three hundred and thirty miles."

In March, the movement of the army was continued to the northward, the regiment taking part in several skirmishes, and arriving in the latter part of the month at Goldsboro, N. C., where they lay encamped until the 10th of April, when they were again put in motion, arriving on the 14th at Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina, and subsequently encamped eleven miles north of the city, on the Raleigh and Gaston railroad.

On the 1st of May, commenced the joyous march homeward, and moving by way of Petersburg, Richmond, Fredericksburg and Alexandria, Va., they passed through Washington, participating in the grand review at the capital of the United States, on the 24th of May, in the afternoon of which day, they went into camp near Fort De Russey, about six miles north of the city.

They left this camp on the 7th of June, and proceeding thence by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, arrived on the 10th at Parkersburg, Va.; embarked at the latter place on the 11th, and descending the Ohio River, landed, on the 12th, at Louisville, Ky., where the army of the Tennessee went into camp.

On the 16th of July, they were mustered out, left Louisville on the 18th, and arrived at Madison, Wis., on the 21st. On the 9th of August, 1865, the regiment was finally paid off, and formally disbanded.

THIRTEENTH REGIMENT.

On the 30th of September, 1863, the Thirteenth was on duty at Stevenson, Ala., thirty-eight miles from Chattanooga, at the intersection of the Nashville and Chattanooga, and Memphis and Charleston railroads. Colonel Lyon was then in command of the post of Stevenson, which at that time was the depot of supplies for the army of the Cumberland, whence supplies were transported in wagons across the mountains to our army at Chattanooga, Ga. This fact rendered it a position of great importance, as its capture by the enemy would have inevitably resulted in compelling our army to fall back from Chattanooga to Tullahoma or Murfreesboro.

After the battle of Chickamauga, when the army of the Cumberland was besieged in Chattanooga, the Tennessee River was at a very low stage, and easily fordable at many points. The garrison of Stevenson was very small, provided with but little artillery and the place was easily accessible to the cavalry of General Bragg. Its capture was of such vast importance to the rebels that the garrison was in daily expectation of an attack, until relieved in the beginning of October by the arrival of the Eleventh and Twelfth corps, under the command of Major General Hooker, from the army of thePotomac.

It has since been ascertained that the rebel General Bragg was strongly urged by all his corps commanders, immediately aft er the battle of Chickamauga, to send a large cavalry force upon Stevenson, and that he promised to do so; but delayed issuing the necessary orders, until the arrival of reinforcements rendered such a movement impracticable. He, however, sent a force under General Wheeler, to destroy the railroad between Stevenson and Tullahoma, and this force, before being driven back, succeeded in cutting off the communication with Nashville, until the supplies at Stevenson had been thoroughly exhausted, and our army was in imminent danger of being starved out of Chattanooga.

The country never fully understood how nearly we lost the fruits of the victories of the gallant Rosecrans from Murfreesboro to Chattanooga, during this dark period in the history of the war: but the Thirteenth Wisconsin, occupying the post of peril and of honor, and charged with the duty of defending and holding the key of the entire position, was fully conscious of the imminence of the danger.

On the evening of the 26th of October, 1863, the regiment left Stevenson, Ala., to join the brigade to which it was attached, at Nashville, Tenn., and on the 27th, went into winter quarters at Edgefield, on the Cumberland River, opposite Nashville. Here they were employed in the performance of picket and guard duty, and more than three-fourths of their number having re-enlisted as veterans, they left Nashville for Wisconsin on veteran furlough, arriving on the 18th of February, 1864, at Janesville, Wisconsin, where they were cordially welcomed and hospitably entertained by the citizens of that place, and a large concourse of people from the surrounding country. It was a source of great regret that owing to the pressing nature of their duties at that particular time, no state officer was present, to welcome the regiment home on behalf of the state. At the expiration of its veteran furlough, the regiment rendezvoused, on the 25th of March, at Camp Utley, Racine, whence it proceeded again to Nashville, arriving at its old camp on the 25th of March.

As the regiment passed through Chicago, both going and returning, it was elegantly entertained at the "Soldiers' Home;" and the kindness of the managers of that institution, particularly of those patriotic ladies who devoted their time and energies to the promotion of the comfort and welfare of our brave soldiers, will never be forgotten by the veterans of the Thirteenth.

The regiment remained at Edgefield, engaged in garrison duty, until the last of April, when it was ordered to Stevenson, Ala. Colonel Lyon was again placed in command of that post, and of the railroad defenees contiguous thereto, and the regiment constituted a part of the garrison of Stevenson and of several stations upon the railroad.

In the re-organization of the army in the winter of 1863–4, the Thirteenth was assigned to the First brigade (Brigadier General R. S. Granger), Fourth division, (Major General L. H. Rousseau), of the Twentieth army corps, (Major General Joseph Hooker).

In April, 1864, the First brigade was ordered by General Sherman to join the army, which was then about to move upon Atlanta; but before the campaign opened, the order was countermanded and the brigade assigned to the duty of guarding the Tennessee River, from a point near Stevenson to Decatur, Ala., to prevent the enemy from crossing that river and destroying the railroads, upon which General Sherman depended for his supplies, and without which his army could not advance. Pursuant to this order, the Thirteenth Wisconsin on the 6th of June left Stevenson, and on the 9th took position on the river at the various fords and crossings from Law's Landing to near Trianna, a distance of forty miles, with headquarters at Claysville, Ala., where it remained for three months.

Here the position was at times perilous, and the duties very laborious. The whole country, both in front and rear, was infested with some of the most desperate and murderous bands of guerillas that the rebellion had produced. Large parties from the flank of Johnston's and Hood's armies approached in the direction of the river, with artillery at different times, with the avowed intention of forcing a passage, and destroying the railroads in the rear. Exposed points were strongly fortified, and the river was constantly patrolled day and night. Frequent expeditions, commanded by different officers of the regiment, penetrated the country south of the river, skirmishing with, routing and pursuing the enemy wherever found. Isolated from any support or assistance in case of attack, and constantly menaced by superior numbers, nothing but the most untiring vigilance, with the most prompt and energetic offensive operations, whenever and wherever the foe appeared, saved the command from being destroyed or captured in detail.

In the latter part of August, the rebel General Wheeler, with a large cavalry force, having crossed from Georgia into East Tennessee, moved westward and cut the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, doing immense damage. He then moved in the direction of Huntsville and Decatur. General Rousseau, who had been left in command of the District of Tennessee, and General Granger, adopted energetic measures to arrest his progress, and preserve the railroad running by way of Pulaski, Decatur and Huntsville to Stevenson, then the only remaining road to Nashville.

The Thirteenth was ordered to Huntsville, and leaving company C strongly entrenched at Gunter's [or Claysville] Landing, on the Tennessee River, the balance of the regiment left Stevenson on the 1st of September, arriving on the 3d at Huntsville, where Colonel Lyon was placed in command of the forces at that place, and of the defences and troops on the railroad and river from Huntsville to Stevenson, a distance of sixty miles. His command comprised one regiment and several detachments of infantry, three large regiments of cavalry, a portion of which were dismounted and used as infantry, and a battery of artillery. He was vested with power to move troops and locate them as his judgment might dictate, and was responsible for the preservation of the posts and lines of communication under his command.

The headquarters of Colonel Lyon were established at Huntsville, and from this time until about the 1st of April, 1865, he was not in immediate command of the regiment, which was under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Chapman, until his discharge from service, when it was placed under Captain Blake. During the whole time, however, the regiment constituted a part of Colonel Lyon's command.

The rebel General Wheeler was driven across the Tennessee, without having been able to accomplish his design of destroying this railroad, and on the 14th of September, the Thirteenth, which up to this date had been employed in scouting and on guard and picket duty, was again posted along the line of railroad, with regimental headquarters at Brownsboro, Ala., thirty-five miles east of Decatur, on the Memphis and Charleston railroad. Companies B, G and K, under command of Captain Norcross, were stationed at Paint Rock Bridge; company E, at Paint Rock Station; company I at Hurricane Creek; company H at Gurley's Tank, and companies A, D and F at Brownsboro. The regiment was employed in strengthening the railroad defences, building stockades to command the bridges, constantly patrolling the road, and taking every precaution for its safety.

Leaving the sick to guard the stations along the railroad, the remainder of the regiment, on the 25th of September, marched thirty-five miles to Decatur, in anticipation of an attack upon that place, and returned on the 30th, dispersing on the return march a detachment of Forrest's cavalry, engaged in destroying the track. During this month, the men had suffered severely from sickness.

A month later, General Forrest with a large force, crossed the Tennessee at Muscle Shoals, surprised and captured Athens, and destroyed the Nashville and Decatur railroad from that place north beyond Elk River. Leaving the sick to garrison the block-houses along the railroads, the effective force of the regiment, on the 1st of October, proceeded to Larkinsville, to keep open the line of communications for General Stedman's reinforcements for Huntsville, which had been attacked by Forrest, and summoned to surrender. Returning in the night, during a severe rain storm, to Brownsboro, they proceeded thence to Huntsville, removing the obstructions from the railroad track as they advanced. The enemy having withdrawn from Huntsville, they returned on the following day to the stations previously occupied on the railroad.

In the month of October, it was ascertained that the rebel General Hood with his army, was approaching the Tennessee River, in the direction of Gunter's [or Claysville] Landing. Accurate and prompt information of his movements was obtained by Captain Fish, of company C, who commanded that post, and forwarded to headquarters. General Hood crossed Sand Mountain, and then turned westward. Fearing lest he might attempt to cross the Tennessee at Whitesburg, the garrison at that point, then commanded by Lieutenant Couch, of company D, was strongly reinforced with cavalry and artillery, to resist the passage of the river. The enemy, however, continued to move westward, and finally attacked Decatur. That post was immediately reinforced with all the available troops at Huntsville, including the Thirteenth, under command of Captain Blake, which, with the exception of the sick men left to guard the block-houses, moved to that point on the 24th of October. The regiment defended the south side of the fort at Decatur, with the loss of three men wounded. General Hood remained several days before Decatur, with his whole army, making repeated attempts to capture the place, failing in which, he raised the seige and moved to Florence, whereupon the regiment returned to its former position.

On the 8th of November, the non-veterans of the regiment, including the lieutenant colonel and major, with many of the line officers, were mustered out, their term of service having expired. The effective force of the regiment, under the command of Lieutenant Cobb, on the 23d of November, proceeded with a force of cavalry to Newmarket, where they routed and dispersed the Fourth Alabama cavalry, and having, in two days, marched thirty-six miles, over miry roads, and exposed to a drenching rain, they returned, without loss, to camp on the railroad.

When General Hood was at Florence, and while his future movements were yet uncertain, Colonel Lyon received an order, direct from Major General Thomas, that in case Hood crossed and moved up the river when he reached Athens, Huntsville should be evacuated, and the garrison should fall back across Flint River at Brownsburg, where they were directed to make a stand and resist the passage of that stream. In the event of being driven from that position, the troops, with the railroad garrison, were to fall back slowly towards Stevenson, fighting and retarding, in every possible way, the advance of the enemy; thus making of a brigade a forlorn hope to contest and retard the movement of a large army, until an adequate force could be collected to stop its farther advance. But the rebel forces, having crossed the river, moved directly upon Nashville, whereupon General Thomas ordered General Granger to concentrate all the troops then occupying northern Alabama at Stevenson, which place he was directed to fortify.

The Thirteenth Wisconsin was therefore concentrated, and on the 27th of November, set out for Stevenson, Ala., fifty-four miles distant, and reached that place on the 1st of December. The regiment at once commenced the erection of strong fortifications, and remained at Stevenson until after the defeat of General Hood's forces in front of Nashville. They left Stevenson on the 18th of December, and arrived on the 21st at Huntsville, from which point detachments of the regiment were sent to various posts on the railroad; companies A and B, under command of Captain Cobb, being stationed at Brownsboro, and company G, together with a detachment of cavalry, at Paint Rock Bridge, the remainder of the regiment performing picket, interior and provost duty in and around Huntsville.

Early on the morning of the 1st of December, company G, stationed at Paint Rock Bridge, and commanded by Lieutenant Wagoner, was suddenly attacked by a large force of the enemy, and the lieutenant, with forty-five of his men, taken prisoners. No farther change in the position of the regiment took place until the 20th of March, 1865, when by order of Major General Thomas, it was assigned to the Fourth army corps, in which the Thirteenth, commanded by Colonel Lyon, was attached to the Third brigade of the Third division. The brigade was commanded by Brigadier General Sam. Beatty; the division by Major General T. J. Wood, and the corps by Major General D. S. Stanley. During the whole period, while the Thirteenth was located on the railroad, the regiment was kept actively employed in erecting railroad defences, and in pursuing the guerillas, who were persistent and untiring in their attempts to destroy the road.

The summer and autumn of 1864 were very unhealthy seasons on the Tennessee River. The men were much exposed to the malarious influences of the climate, another result was that during the autumn and the following winter, nearly all the officers and men in the regiment became seriously ill. Many died, and many others were discharged the service with impaired constitutions and broken in health. The regiment was doubtless as greatly reduced in strength from these causes, as it would have been from the casualties of service, had it been allowed to accompany General Sherman on the Atlanta campaign.

After the re-occupation of Huntsville, companies C and G, Captain Fish commanding, were, on the 20th of February, 1865, sent back to Claysville Landing. While stationed at that place, Lieutenant Loucks, of company C, then in command of company G, crossed the river with a a party of men, attacked and routed a band of guerillas, led by Pete Whitecotton, a noted and most desperate partisan leader; and in a personal encounter with revolvers, in which several shots were fired by each, Lieutenant Loucks mortally wounded Whitecotton, thus ridding that country of one of the most dangerous men that ever infested it.

The detachments having been called in from the different points at which they had been stationed, the Thirteenth, on the 23d of March, 1865, left Huntsville with the Fourth corps by rail, and proceeding by way of Chattanooga Tenn., arrived on the 25th at Knoxville, East Tennessee, en route for Virginia. Marching thence by way of Newmarket, they arrived on the 30th at Bull's Gap, where they remained four days, and resuming the march on the 4th of April, they reached Jonesboro, East Tennessee, on the 7th, having marched ninety-eight miles from Knoxville. At this place news was received of the surrender of General Lee, when the movement was countermanded.

The regiment left Jonesboro on the 20th of April, and arrived on the 22d at Bull's Gap, whence they proceeded by rail to Knoxville, Tenn., seven miles from which place they went into quarters at Camp Harker. At this place a number of men from the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin, were transferred to the Thirteenth, and on the 16th of June, the regiment, accompanying the movement of the corps, left Camp Harker by rail for Johnsonville, the terminus of the military railroad from Nashville to the Tennessee River. They embarked at Johnsonville, and proceeding down the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi rivers, arrived on the 24th of June at New Orleans.

Here the regiment encamped at Chalmette on General Jackson's battle ground, until the 5th of July, when they marched to the Mississippi River. On the 7th, they embarked for Texas. On reaching the Gulf of Mexico, the engine of the steamer became disabled, in consequence of which they were compelled to return to New Orleans, where they again embarked on the 10th of July, and on the 14th landed at Indianola, Texas. During the night of the 15th, they marched in intensely hot weather a distance of twenty-four miles, to Green Lake, where they went into camp. During their stay at this place, the men suffered greatly from the heat and lack of water and supplies.

They left Green Lake on the 11th of September, and passing through Victoria next day, arrived on the 24th at San Antonio, after a most exhausting march of one hundred and forty-five miles, during which the troops suffered greatly from excessive heat and thirst. They went into camp, nearly seven miles from San Antonio, in a good locality, where wood and water were abundant, and where the health of the men rapidly improved.

At length came the order directing the Thirteenth to prepare for muster-out, which was effected on the 24th of November, and on the 27th, the regiment, under command of Captain Cobb, left San Antonio, en route for home. Having accomplished the march of one hundred and sixty miles in six and a half days, they arrived on the 3d of December, at Indianola, at which place, after a delay of two days, they embarked, arriving on tne 13th at New Orleans, La., Re-embarking before daylight, on the 14th of December, they proceeded up the Mississippi, and arrived on the morning of the 21st, at Cairo, Ill, whence they continued by rail, arriving on the 23d at Madison, Wis., at which place, on the 26th of December, 1865, the Thirteenth Wisconsin was paid and formally disbanded.

"It has been the duty of the regiment rather to preserve what had been gained, than to wrest from the enemy; to hold positions upon the safety of which great movements depended. It has performed the laborious garrison, guard, patrol and picket duty, requiring ceaseless vigilance and stern fidelity. For over two years, until the assignment of the regiment to the Fourth corps, each man able to do duty has been on actual duty about one half of the time."*

* For the above report of the operations of the Thirteenth Wisconsin, during the past two years, I am indebted to Judge William P. Lyon, formerly colonel of the regiment, who was mustered out of service in September, of the present year; and also, to Rev. Joseph I. Foote chaplain of the regiment.

FOURTEENTH REGIMENT.

The Fourteenth Wisconsin, which, from the previous 14th of July, had been stationed at Natchez, Miss., embarked at that place on the 9th of October, 1863, under orders to proceed to Vicksburg, where the regiment arrived two days later, and went into camp for the winter.

More than two-thirds of their number having re-enlisted, under the provisions of General Orders No. 191 of that year, from the War Department; the Fourteenth, on the 11th of December, became a veteran organization, and on the 3d of January, 1864, embarked at Vicksburg, under orders to proceed to Wisconsin on veteran furlough. They arrived on the 20th of January at Madison, Wis., where, on the 26th, the men were paid and received furloughs for thirty days, at the expiration of which, they were ordered to rendezvous at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee.

Owing principally to the severe snow storms, accompanied by intense cold, which rendered traveling in the country districts almost impossible, a very large proportion of the members of the regiment were unable to report promptly on the day specified, and a peremptory order to rejoin the corps at Vicksburg, which was received by the colonel on the 27th of February, compelled him to leave the state accompanied by scarcely half his command.

Major Worden remained at Milwaukee, with instructions to collect and assume command of those who had failed to report in time, and to follow the regiment.

The Fourteenth, Colonel Ward's command, arrived at Vicksburg, Miss., on the 6th of March, two days after the return of the celebrated Meridian Expedition, and just in time to take part in the Red River Expedition, the result of which was so disastrous. The regiment, at this time, was not in the best condition for field service, a large proportion being recruits just brought from the state; no company had all its members present, and several companies were without officers. Brigadier General T. K. Smith was assigned to the command of the designated provisional division of the Seventeenth army corps, known the "Red River Division," and Colonel Ward placed in command of the Second brigade, composed of the Fourteenth Wisconsin with two Illinois regiments.

On the evening of the 10th of March, the whole force, under command of Major General A. J. Smith, left Vicksburg, and proceeding down the Mississippi to the mouth of Red River, ascended the latter stream to the Atchafalaya, ten miles from the confluence of which with the Red River, they disembarked on the 13th, near Simmsport, La. The regiment was present on the following day, at the capture of Fort De Russy, thirty-two miles from Simmsport. Their division, which during the two succeeding days was occupied in the destruction of the captured fortifications, rejoined the main body on the 17th of March at Alexandria, on the Red River, going into camp on the north bank of the stream. Here the expedition was joined by the forces under General Banks, who assumed chief command.

Accompanying the movement of the entire force, they set out, on the 26th of March, from Alexandria, and arrived next day at Bayou Cotile, twenty-eight miles distant. On the 2d of April, they embarked at Bayou Cotile, and arrived on the 3d at Grand Ecore, at which place the Red River division of the Seventeenth army corps was detached from the main body, and distributed as guards among the entire fleet of upwards of thirty transports, freighted with an immense quantity of supplies for the future use of the expedition. It was intended that this fleet, with the gunboats, should arrive at Shreveport at the same time with the main force of the expedition, which set out from Grand Ecore to reach that place by land, under the immediate command of Major General Banks.

In accordance with this plan, they left Grand Ecore on the 7th of April, and ascended the river slowly and cautiously, with frequent reconnoissances of the banks, meeting with but little annoyance from the enemy, until reaching Loggy Bayou, about seventy miles below Shreveport by the river. Here, on the 10th of April, it was discovered that a large transport, filled with stones, brick and earth, had been sunk across the channel. While occupied in the attempt to remove this obstruction, a courier, despatched by General Banks, arrived with intelligence of the disaster on the 8th, at Sabine Cross Roads, and the subsequent retreat upon Grand Ecore, to which point the fleet was ordered to return as rapidly as possible, and rejoin the main body, already suffering for lack of supplies.

The retrograde movement was at once commenced, and from this time until the arrival of the fleet at Grand Ecore, the troops on board were constantly harassed by the almost continuous fire of the enemy from both banks of the river. On the evening of the 12th of April, the fleet was attacked at Pleasant Hill Landing by a strong force of the enemy, commanded by General Green, of Texas. After a severe fight, lasting nearly an hour, the attack was repulsed and the rebels driven off, with the loss of their commanding general, who was killed on the field.

The fleet arrived on the 14th of April, at Grand Ecore, where the division of the Seventeenth corps to which the Fourteenth Wisconsin was attached, rejoined the main force, remaining in camp until the 20th, when the return march commenced. Passing through Natchitoches, they crossed Old River on the following day, and on the 23d of April, participated in the battle near Cloutierville. They also took part, next day, in the battle of Cane River, and subsequently, pressing forward by way of Bayou Cotile, arrived on the 26th at Alexandria, where the whole force was delayed, awaiting the construction of a dam across the river, to enable our gunboats to float over the rapids at that place.

The march was resumed on the 4th of May, and on the 16th, the regiment took part in the action at Marksville; also, in the engagement of the 18th, at Yellow Bayou, in which the rebel attempts to cut off the retreat of our forces were defeated. They reached the mouth of the Red River on the 19th of May, and embarking on the 22d, arrived on the 24th at Vicksburg, whence, after a short delay, they ascended the Mississippi to Memphis, Tenn., at which place, on the 30th, they went into camp.

As a part of the forces, constituting the Tupelo Expedition under command of Major General A. J. Smith, they left Memphis on the 22d of June, and proceeding by way of Moscow, Tenn., arrived on the 27th at La Grange, Tenn., where the forces were concentrated, and having obtained the necessary supplies, the whole expedition set out from La Grange on the 5th of July, in extremely hot weather. They arrived on the 11th in the vicinity of Pontotoc, Miss., and on the 13th, while marching from that place to Tupelo, the rear of the train was attacked, near Carmargo Cross Roads, by a brigade of the enemy's cavalry. Colonel Ward's brigade, of four regiments, marching on the flanks of the train, was acting as guard, and the rebel attack was gallantly repulsed by the Fourteenth and Thirty-third Wisconsin, capturing the colors of a Mississippi regiment, which were brought off the field by Captain Mansfield, of the Fourteenth.

On the following day, [July 14th] they were engaged in the battle of Tupelo, which resulted in the defeat of the rebel forces under Generals Forrest and S. D. Lee, and again on the 15th, they participated in the engagement at Old Town Creek, five miles from Tupelo, in which the rebel forces were again routed and driven from the field.

The return march met with no further interruption from the enemy, and the expedition reached La Grange, Tenn., on the 21st of July. Next day, the Fourteenth went into camp at Memphis, where after a brief rest they again embarked on the 3d of August, and proceeding next day, down the Mississippi to the White River, ascended the latter stream to St. Charles, Ark., where they were employed in guard duty, and labor upon fortifications, until the 1st of September, when they moved up the river to Duval's Bluff.

"At Duval's Bluff an expedition, including the Fourteenth Wisconsin with three other regiments of infantry, and a small additional force of cavalry and artillery, was organized and placed under command of Colonel Graves, of the Fifteenth Michigan, for the purpose of ascertaining the whereabouts of the rebel forces under General Shelby. The expedition moved up the river, on transports and on the afternoon of the second day from Duval's Bluff, was, fired into by a large body of the enemy, concealed in the timber on the bank of the river. Several men were killed and wounded, among the latter Colonel Graves.

"The command of the expedition then devolved upon Colonel Ward, under whose direction the forces landed twenty miles above and marched upon Augusta. The enemy made but slight resistance, and evacuated the town on the approach of our troops. The desired information having been obtained, and the object of the expedition accomplished, the command returned, arriving at Duval's Bluff on the 6th of September."*

From Duval's Bluff, the Fourteenth proceeded next day by rail to Brownsville, Ark., twenty-five miles from Little Rock, and on the 17th, the regiment, at that time temporarily attached to General Mower's division of the Sixteenth army corps, marched with that command, from Brownsville, in pursuit of the rebel General Price, who with his army was then marching into the state of Missouri. The expedition however proved to be too late to attain the end proposed, and encountered none of the enemy's forces.

Marching in an northeasterly direction, through Austin and Stony Point, they forded the Little Red River on the evening of the 19th, at Searcy, the county seat of White County, and reached the White River on the 21st of September, at Sulphur Rock, midway between Batesville and Jacksonport. Next morning, they forded the river, and continued the march to Elgin, on the Black River, where they bivouacked for the night, and the stream at this place not being fordable, our forces set to work to construct a bridge, which was completed by noon of the 23d, when they crossed the river, and marching in the valley, on its left bank through a fertile country, which furnished abundant forage for the jaded animals, they bivouacked, on the evening of the 26th of September, opposite Pocahontas. Passing over a rough bridge, which had been hastily constructed by felling trees across the stream, they re-crossed the Black River, on the 28th, near the state line, and marching through swamps, over which much difficulty was experienced in moving the train, forded the St. Francis River at Greenville, Mo., on the 2d of October.

At this point their supplies were exhausted, and on the 4th, the whole command made a forced march of twenty-nine miles, during a severe rain storm, meeting in the evening a train of supplies dispatched from Cape Girardeau, Mo., at which point they arrived on the 5th of October, having on ten days' rations accomplished a march of about three hundred and thirty miles, over a very rough and difficult country.

The regiment embarked on the 7th of October at Cape Girardeau, and ascending the Mississippi and Missouri Rivers, arrived on the 16th at Jefferson City, the capital of Missouri, whence they marched to Lamine Bridge, on the Pacific railroad. A few few days subsequently, they moved to Warrensburg, Mo., still farther westward, on the same road, where the brigade to which the Fourteenth was attached remained during the short and decisive campaign which resulted in the expulsion of the rebel army from the state. About the middle of November, the regiment returned to St. Louis, and remained in Benton Barracks until the 23d, when they again embarked, under orders to join the army of Major General Thomas.

They arrived at Nashville, Tenn., on the 30th of November, the date of the engagement at Franklin, immediately after which Nashville was invested by the rebel forces under General Hood, and the regiment was employed in erecting temporary defences in front of their position on the extreme right of our line.

"On the morning of the 15th of December, the army under General Thomas moved out of Nashville, and attacked the enemy under General Hood. The Fourteenth at this time was attached to the First brigade, Third division, of the army of the Tennessee; Colonel Ward commanding the brigade, and Major Ferris commanding the regiment. The part taken in the battle by our division was not very active and our loss was slight.

"About two in the afternoon, an order was received from General A. J. Smith, commanding the detachment of the army of the Tennessee, directing the First brigade to move one and a half miles to the right, and in advance of the position then occupied, to the support of General McArthur's division, which was to make an assault. The order was complied with as soon as possible, but the assault was made and the works carried before the command could get within supporting distance. Immediately after his arrival, Colonel Ward reported to General McArthur, by whom he was directed to occupy the works just carried, to guard against a flank attack while the division advanced."

"Shortly afterwards, the enemy was discovered in force on the 'Granny White Pike,' and the First brigade selected to dislodge him. On either side of the turnpike was a stone wall, about waist high and a foot and a half thick, between which the enemy's lines were formed. The Fourteenth occupied position in the centre of our line. The brigade moved forward at the double-quick, but contrary to all expectations, a few scattering shots were all the resistance offered to our advance. Most of the rebels jumped over the wall behind them and scattered to the rear. The substantial result of this almost bloodless success, was the capture of two hundred and eighty prisoners, nearly all of whose guns were loaded and capped.

"We subsequently moved forward from the pike across a plantation to some timber, where, on the approach of darkness, we bivouacked for the night. At four on the following morning, [December 16th,] the regiment accompanied the movement of the division to the extreme right on the Franklin pike, where they occupied position during the day, without becoming engaged.

Before dark the rebel forces were in full retreat, and on the 17th of December, our army moved forward in pursuit."*

The march in pursuit was steadily urged until the 3d of January, 1865, when they reached the Tennessee River, at Clifton, Tenn., at which place they embarked on the 8th, and ascending the Tennessee, landed on the 11th at Eastport, Miss. On the 18th, the regiment set out with an expedition to Corinth, which dislodged Ross's rebel brigade from that place, and returned on the 22d to Eastport. Accompanying the movement of General Smith's command, they embarked at Eastport on the 8th of February, and proceeding by way of the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, landed on the 13th at Vicksburg, whence, after a delay of one week the journey was resumed, the command arriving on the 22d, at New Orleans, La.

While in camp at New Orleans, the force, under command of General A. J. Smith, previously known as 'Detachment: Army of the Tennessee,' was designated as the Sixteenth army corps. On the 12th of March, they left New Orleans, via Lake Pontchartrain, for Dauphin Island, near Mobile, and from Dauphin Island, they proceeded on the 20th, eight miles up Fish River, on the bank of which they disembarked.

Here they remained until the 25th of March, when General Canby's forces moved forward, and on the 27th, arrived in front of and invested Spanish Fort. From this date until the capture of the fort, the Fourteenth was constantly engaged as skirmishers and sharpshooters, sustaining severe loss. On the 9th of April, they moved to Blakely, from which place, on the 12th, they commenced the march to Montgomery, Ala., where they arrived on the 23d, and encamped on the west side of the city. The regiment on the 19th of July, was ordered into the city, and Colonel Ward placed in command of the post, Lieutenant Colonel Ferris assuming command of the regiment.

Major Worden, who in obedience to orders remained at Milwaukee, after the departure of Colonel Ward, for the purpose of collecting the balance of the regiment, arrived at Vicksburg, Miss., with his command on the 16th of March, 1864, a few days after the regiment had left that place to join the Red River expedition. His command, consisting of company E, entire, with detachments from the other companies of the regiment, and known as "Worden's Battalion," was attached to the Seventeenth army corps, whose movement up the Mississippi River in the latter part of March, they accompanied.

Worden's battalion subsequently took part with the Seventeenth corps, in the operations for the reduction of Atlanta, and on the 30th of November, rejoined the regiment, on its arrival at Nashville, with the exception of company E, which under command of Captain Henry, accompanied the march of General Sherman's army from Atlanta to Savannah, and through the Carolinas as guard to the pontoon train. This company rejoined the regiment on the 16th of July, 1865, at Montgomery, Ala.

On the 27th of August, 1865, the Fourteenth arrived at Mobile, Ala., where they were occupied in provost and guard duty, until the 9th of October, when they were mustered out of service and set out for home. They arrived on the 22d of October at Madison, Wisconsin, where the men were soon afterwards paid and discharged the service.

FIFTEENTH REGIMENT.

The Fifteenth Wisconsin, which had previously been stationed as provost guard at that post, left Chattanooga, Tenn., on the 17th of October, 1864, and in compliance with the orders of General Steedman, marched fourteen miles to Whiteside Station, Tenn., on the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, at which point they were employed in guarding the railroad bridge during the winter and until the completion of the period of service of the greater portion of the regiment.

Upon the expiration of the term for which they had enlisted, company B of the Fifteenth, marched to Chattanooga, where they were mustered out, paid and formally disbanded on the 1st of December. Companies A and E, at the same place, were also mustered out on the 20th, and company C on the 31st of the same month, the balance of the regiment remaining as garrison at Whiteside until the 13th of February, 1865, when the last company was disbanded at Chattanooga.

The non-commissioned officers and enlisted men of the regiment, seventy-two in number, who, under the orders of the War Department, were not entitled to discharge at this time, were transferred to the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin, and subsequently, upon the discharge of that regiment, to the Thirteenth Wisconsin, with which they served until the discharge of that regiment from the service.

SIXTEENTH REGIMENT.

The Sixteenth Wisconsin, at date of the last annual report, was attached to the First brigade, First division, Seventeenth army corps, and stationed at Redbone, Miss., a small village twelve miles southeast of Vicksburg, to which point they had been ordered for the purpose of guarding the fords on the Big Black River in the vicinity, and also for the protection of the citizens, many of whom had given substantial evidence of their loyalty to the government. During the winter, detachments of the regiment had frequent skirmishes with various bands of Wirt Adams' rebel cavalry, in which the rebels were uniformly defeated.

They were engaged in the performance of this duty until the 5th of February, 1864, when the regiment marched to Vicksburg, and encamped within the fortifications, as part of the garrison of that important post. Here they were joined on the 4th of March by three full companies, F, H and K, which had been recruited in Wisconsin for the regiment, and on the 6th, the old companies, A, C, E, G and I, having re-enlisted, left Vicksburg on veteran furlough. Proceeding up the Mississippi to Cairo, Ill., and thence by rail to Wisconsin, they arrived at Madison on the 16th, and next day received a public welcome at the capital by the state officers and members of the legislature, after which the men dispersed to their homes throughout the state.

Companies F, H and K, which had been left at Vicksburg, with the non-veterans of the regiment, moved on the 19th of March, to Black River Bridge, where they remained as railroad guard, until the 5th of April, at which date they returned to Vicksburg. Here they embarked on the following day, and proceeding up the Mississippi, disembarked at Columbus, Ky., in anticipation of an attack upon that place. They were stationed at Columbus, in the performance of guard and picket duty, until the 18th, when they proceeded by steam to Cairo, Ill.

Meanwhile, the veterans of the regiment had rendezvoused at Madison, on the 18th of April, and proceeding thence by rail on the 20th, arrived on the 22d, at Cairo, Ill., where they joined the non-veterans with companies F, H and K, and also company B, which had been recruited and sent forward from Wisconsin, some days previous, thus augmenting the force of the regiment to nine companies.

While here the regiment was assigned to the First brigade, Third division, Seventeenth corps, with which they left Cairo on the 4th of May, proceeding by transports up the Tennessee River, to Clifton, Tenn., where they remained until joined by the balance of the division. With the whole force, they left Clifton on the 15th, under command of General Leggett, and marching across the country, arrived on the 23d, at Huntsville, Ala. The march was resumed on the 25th, and moving in a southeasterly direction, they arrived at Warrenton, Ala., on the 30th, having marched one hundred and ninety miles from Clifton. They left Warrenton on the following day, and marching by way of Van Buren, reached Rome, Ga., on the evening of the 5th of June, and proceeding thence next day arrived on the 8th, at Ackworth, thirty-five miles from Atlanta, on the Western and Atlantic railroad.

Here they joined the forces under General Sherman, and on the 10th, moved forward to the front, the division taking position on the extreme left of the army, which was then in front of the enemy's entrenchments on Lost and Kenesaw Mountains. The Sixteenth remained in the trenches, constantly engaged in skirmishing, until the 19th of June, when the division moved forward and occupied Brush Mountain, east of Kenesaw, without severe opposition. On the 23d, the regiment accompanied the brigade, in a reconnoissance to the left, and on the 28th, took part with the division in the demonstration against the enemy's right, after which they returned to Brush Mountain.

Accompanying the celebrated movement of the army of the Tennessee, under General McPherson, to the right, they left Brush Mountain on the evening of the 2d of July, marching during that night and the following day towards the mouth of Nickajack Creek, and threatening the enemy's communications at Turner's Ferry across the Chattahoochee. This movement having resulted in the enemy's retreat from Kenesaw, the regiment on the 4th, accompanied the brigade on a reconnoissance to the extreme right to ascertain the enemy's position, which having been effected, they rejoined the corps on the following morning and took position on the extreme right of our army, nearly a mile from the Chattahoochee River. On the 10th, they moved to Sweetwater Creek, where they remained as guard until the 16th, at which date they marched towards Marietta, and crossing the Chattahoochee on the following day, encamped three miles south of the river. They passed through Decatur on the 20th, taking position in line of battle before Atlanta, with the extreme left of the army, and next day charged upon and carried the enemy's works on Bald Hill by assault, with a loss of seventy-eight men, killed and wounded. They were engaged during the 22d, in defending these works against the repeated efforts of the rebels to retake the position, sustaining a loss of twelve killed, twenty-six wounded and seven missing. They were thenceforward occupied in strengthening the works, and gradually advancing towards the enemy's defences, until the 26th, when they moved to the right, taking position on the left centre of the investing force.

They were occupied in siege and fatigue duty at this point, until the 26th of August, when they left the trenches, to accompany the movement to the right of the army of the Tennessee, and moving in a circuitous route, by way of Sandtown, struck the West Point railroad above Fairburn, on the 28th, and destroying the railroad in their advance, arrived at Jonesboro on the 30th, where they assisted in repulsing the attack of the enemy on the following day. On the 2d of September, they moved forward in pursuit of the enemy, participating in the skirmish near Lovejoy Station, after which they retained the position until the 5th, when they commenced the return march to Atlanta, at which place they went into camp on the 8th.

The Sixteenth Wisconsin, accompanying the movement of the First brigade, Third division of the Seventeenth army corps, to which it was then attached, left camp at Atlanta, Ga., on the 4th of October, 1864, and marched northward by way of Marietta and Ackworth to Resaca, and thence through Snake Creek Gap westward to La Fayette. Returning through Summerville and Dallas, the regiment encamped early in November at Smyrna, twenty miles from Atlanta, on the Western and Atlantic railroad.

After a few days rest at Smyrna, they marched, on the 13th of November, to Atlanta, whence they set out on the 15th, accompanying the movement of General Sherman's army to the seaboard. Passing through McDonough, two days afterwards, and marching through a rich country abounding in forage, they crossed the Ocmulgee River at midnight on the 18th, and at noon next day passed through Monticello.

On the 22d of November, they arrived at Gordon, twenty miles from Macon, at the junction of the Milledgeville and Eatonton, with the Georgia Central railroad, at which point the First brigade was ordered to destroy the road. Thence following the line of the Central railroad, which was destroyed as they advanced, they crossed the Ogeechee River on the 30th, and on the 2d of December, arrived at Millen, seventy-nine miles from Savannah, at the junction of the Augusta and Savannah, with the Central railroad. Having destroyed the railroad buildings at this place, the march was resumed. They encamped at Cameron, fifty-five miles from Savannah, on the evening of the 4th of December, and having crossed a large swamp on the 7th, arrived on the following day, within sixteen miles of Savannah.

They took position on the 11th of December, four miles from the city, near the Little Ogeechee and being relieved next day by the Fourteenth corps, moved ten miles to the southwest, taking position on the edge of a rice field, which had been overflowed by the rebels. While here, Major Dawes, who had commanded the regiment since the 21st of July preceding, when Lieutenant Colonel Reynolds was wounded, was mustered out by reason of the expiration of his term of service, when Captain Craig assumed the command.

The Sixteenth entered Savannah on the 21st of December, and remained in camp within the city until the 4th of January, 1865, when they marched to Fort Thunderbolt, at which they embarked on the following day, and accompanying the Third division, proceeded to Beaufort, S. C., on Port Royal Island, where Colonel Fairchild rejoined and took command of the regiment. On the 13th of January, they marched to Broad River, which separates Port Royal Island from the main land, laid a pontoon bridge in the night, and next morning crossed the river, marching in the direction of Pocotaligo.

They had advanced but a short distance, when the rebel pickets were encountered. Skirmishers were at once deployed in front, and the First brigade ordered to make a detour, and, if possible, gain the rear of the enemy. The Sixteenth, with a battery of artillery, was shortly afterwards detached from the brigade, and after a march of four miles, without again meeting the enemy, they reached the main Charleston road, there rejoining the brigade as it advanced. The rebels were thence driven back one mile farther to Fort Pocotaligo, which they abandoned during the night. On the 16th of January, our troops marched in pursuit as far as Pocotaligo bridge, on the Combahee River, at the crossing of the Charleston and Savannah railroad.

General Force having been ordered to the command of the division, Colonel Fairchild here assumed command of the brigade, and the regiment remained in camp at this point, until the 30th, when they again took up the line of march, accompanying the movement of General Sherman's forces, northward, through South Carolina. On the 2d of February, they participated in the action at Whippy Swamp, and the 8th reached Midway, ten miles west of Branchville, on the Augusta and Charleston railroad. Having destroyed the railroad for some distance, the march was urged forward, and crossing the South Edisto on the 10th, they arrived next day at the North Edisto, in front of Orangeburg, seven miles from Branchville, on the railroad connecting with Columbia.

At this point, a strong rebel force was posted in an advantageous position, to contest the passage of the river. The First brigade, having the advance, bivouacked in line of battle for the night, and on the morning of the 12th of February, while a heavy cannonade was kept up in front of the main line, they moved by a circuitous route upwards of a mile to the right, taking position on the bank of the river, close to an almost impassable swamp. The pontoons having been laid, they crossed the river, and immediately moved upon the town, which the enemy evacuated on their approach. They arrived before Columbia, the capital of South Carolina, on the 16th, and crossing the Saluda River, entered the city on the following day.

Pressing forward from this place, by way of Winnsboro, and Cheraw, they crossed Pedee River on the 14th of March, and on the 11th reached Fayetteville, N. C., on Cape Fear River. They took part on the 19th, in the sanguinary battle at Bentonville, and on the 24th entered Goldsboro, at the intersection of the Wilmington and Weldon, and North Carolina railroads. Here

The Sixteenth Wisconsin remained at Goldsboro, until the 10th of April; when they were again put in motion, and accompanying the movements of the Seventeenth corps, arrived on the 14th at Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina, in the vicinity of which place they remained in camp, until the 1st of May, when they commenced the march towards Washington and home.

Crossing the Roanoke River on the morning of the 5th of May, they entered Virginia, and marching about twenty-five miles a day, they arrived on the 7th at Petersburg, Va, and next day encamped at Manchester, on the James River, opposite Richmond. Proceeding thence by easy marches to Washington, they took part in the grand review of the 24th of May and encamped within a short distance of the city. At this place on the 2d of June, were mustered out those members of the regiment whose term of service expired previous to the 1st of October, and on the 7th of June, the regiment broke camp, proceeding by rail to Parkersburg, Va., and thence by steamer, descending the Ohio, to Louisville, Ky., near which city they went into camp on the 12th.

On the 12th of July, the Sixteenth was mustered out of service at Louisville, and immediately sets out for home. They arrived on the 16th at Madison, Wis., where they were paid and formally disbanded on the 1st of August, 1865.

SEVENTEENTH REGIMENT.

The Seventeenth left East Point, Ga., in the beginning of October, 1864, accompanying the army of the Tennessee in the movement to repel the threatened attack of the rebel General Hood, upon the line of communication with Chattanooga.

On their return from this expedition, they encamped on the 4th of November at Smyrna, Ga., twenty miles from Atlanta, on the Western and Atlantic railroad. Here they remained until the 13th, when they marched to Atlanta, whence on the 15th, they set out with General Sherman's grand army, in the march to the eastward. They arrived before Savannah on the 10th of December, and on the 21st, entered the city.

They accompanied the subsequent movements of General Sherman's forces, through South and North Carolina to Richmond and Washington, where they took part in the review of the 24th of May, and subsequently moved to Louisville, Ky, where the regiment was mustered out and started for home on the 14th of July of the present year.

They arrived on the 17th at Madison, Wis., where they were soon afterwards paid and finally discharged.

The returns of this regiment contain no memoranda from which to compile its military history.

EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT.

At the date of the former report from this office, the Eighteenth Wisconsin was stationed at Allatoona, forty miles from Atlanta, where the Western and Atlantic railroad passes through a gorge in the Allatoona Mountains. Here they participated in the battle of the 5th of October, in which the garrison held the position against the repeated assaults of a greatly superior force of the enemy.

On the 12th of November, the veterans of the regiment, who had re-enlisted at Huntsville, Ala., in March, 1864, left Allatoona, en route to Wisconsin, on veteran furlough, the non-veterans and recruits being temporarily assigned to the Ninety-third Illinois, and subsequently accompanying General Sherman's forces in the march to Savannah.

The Veteran Eighteenth arrived at Madison, Wis., on the 25th of November, and on the 28th the men received furloughs, at the expiration of which, they were directed to report at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, where they re-assembled on the 28th of December, and were immediately ordered to Nashville, Tenn. They left Milwaukee on the 5th of January, 1865, and upon reaching Nashville, on the 11th, were temporarily assigned to the First brigade, First provisional division of the Fifteenth army corps.

On the 18th of January, under orders to join the army of General Sherman, they embarked at Nashville, and proceeded to Cincinnati, O., from which place they resumed the journey eastward on the 27th, arriving on the 31st at Baltimore, Md. Here they embarked on the 2d of February, and proceeding thence by sea, arrived on the 8th, at Beaufort, N. C. Continuing thence to Newbern, they encamped at that post on the 11th, and remained during the month, and until the latter part of March, when they joined General Sherman's forces at Goldsboro, rejoining their comrades of the First brigade, Third division, Fifteenth army corps, the movements of which to the northward they subsequently accompanied.

Having taken part in the grand review of the 24th of May, at Washington, they moved, in the beginning of June, to Louisville, Ky., where the regiment was mustered out of service, on the 18th of July. They arrived at Madison, Wis., on the 29th of July, 1865, where they were soon afterwards paid and disbanded.

The returns of this regiment on file in this office, are, in some instances, incomplete, so far as they relate to their movements and services, for which reason, I am unable to present a complete record of their operations.

NINETEENTH REGIMFNT.

The veteran portion of the Nineteenth, on the expiration of their veteran furlough, again left the state on the 7th of October, 1864, and disembarked on the 12th at Aiken's Landing, on the James River, from which point they marched to camp on Chapin's farm, in front of Richmond, taking position in the Third brigade, First division of the Eighteenth army corps, and resuming the performance of picket and fatigue duty in the trenches.

On the 27th of October, they participated with the First division in the disastrous engagement at Fair Oaks. The division, about noon, arrived on the right of our lines, when they advanced about one mile beyond the old Fair Oaks battlefield, deployed to the left of the highway, and advanced through a pine copse, where they engaged the enemy's skirmish line. They then advanced in line, on the double-quick, driving the enemy across a ploughed field on an ascending plane, until arriving within one-eighth of a mile of a rebel fort. The forward movement was kept up until they had attained a position close under the walls of the fort, where they were assailed with an enfilading fire from right and left, simultaneously with the direct fire from the fort in front.

In this position, unable to advance or retire, and exposed to a very severe fire, the troops were kept for about three hours, when from lack of support, they were obliged to withdraw, leaving on the field, out of less than two hundred men engaged, seven officers and one hundred and thirty-six enlisted men, most of whom were wounded and captured by the enemy.

After the battle, the Nineteenth, numbering about eighty men, returned to camp at Chapin's farm, where they were soon afterwards joined by the non-veteran portion of the regiment, which for upwards of two months had been employed in provost duty at Norfolk, Va. At the consolidation of the Tenth and Eighteenth corps, the regiment, on the 5th of December, was transferred to the First brigade, Third division of the Twenty-fourth army corps, with which they were thenceforth identified.

From this time, the regiment was employed in picket duty on our lines in front of Richmond, until the 3d of April, 1865, when the regiment finally broke camp at Chapin's farm, at three in the morning, and moved forward with the division, under orders to assault the enemy's works in their front. The rebels having evacuated the city, the regiment entered Richmond without opposition at eight o'clock, and immediately planted the regimental colors upon the City Hall. The Nineteenth was appointed city provost guard, in the discharge of which duty they were employed until the 20th of April, when they marched to Broad Rock Run, three miles south of Manchester. They left camp at this place on the 28th of April, under orders to proceed to Fredericksburg, Va., at which place they arrived and were assigned to provost duty, on the 2d of May.

From Fredericksburg, they were transferred on the 24th of July, to Warrenton, on the Orange and Alexandria railroad, where they were employed in similar duty until the 4th of August, at which date they moved to Richmond, Va. Here they were mustered out on the 9th of August, and on the same day set out for home, under orders to report to the chief mustering officer of Wisconsin.

The regiment arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 15th, and the men having received their final payment and discharge, were formally disbanded on the 27th of August, 1865.

TWENTIETH REGIMENT.

The Twentieth Wisconsin, on the 1st of October, 1864, was encamped at Navy Cove, Mobile Point, Ala.

On the 15th of October, Colonel Bertram having been assigned to the command of the District of South Alabama, the command of the regiment devolved upon Lieutenant Colonel Starr, under whose direction the regiment was employed in picket, guard and fatigue duty, on Mobile Point, until the 14th of December. At this date, accompanying an expedition of considerable force, under the command of Colonel Bertram, they embarked on transports, and proceeding to the mouth of the Pascagoula River, landed on the following day at East Pascagoula, in Jackson County, Miss. Moving thence six miles in an easterly direction, on the Mobile road, they bivouacked for the night. On the 16th, they moved forward nine miles, to Franklin Creek, near which on the following day they took part in a skirmish with a reconnoitring party of rebel cavalry, who were driven from the field, the Twentieth, which had the advance of the column, losing one man wounded.

A large quantity of lumber having been discovered at Goods' Mill, on Franklin Creek, near the confluence of that stream with the Escatauba or Dog River, company A of the regiment was ordered to that place, for fatigue duty in rafting the lumber. On the 21st of December, the balance of the regiment moved to this point, where they were employed in similar duty until the 25th, when the work of rafting the lumber having been completed, the regiment embarked on the raft and swung into the stream, charged with the duty of taking eight hundred thousand feet of pine and cypress lumber, with a quantity of cotton and rosin, through the enemy's country, a distance of thirty miles, to the Gulf of Mexico.

"It was a first designed to ship the captured lumber down the river in boats, but this being found impracticable, I detached the Twentieth Wisconsin, commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Starr, aud assigned to them the work of rafting it. Great credit is due the officers and men of that regiment for the successful manner in which this was accomplished. The regiment embarked on their rafts December 24th, and reached Griffins' Mill without accident or loss, taking with them eight hundred thousand feet of matched and planed lumber. At Griffins' Mill they captured and rafted another large amount, making in all about one million five huneree thousand feet rafted and sent down the river."*

On the 26th of December, the regiment landed and encamped at Griffins' Mills, Miss., on the Pascagoula River. Here they were employed in picket and fatigue duty, until the 13th of January, 1865, when they marched down the bank of the river to Williams' Mills, about two and a half miles from East Pascagoula, at which place they were employed in similar duty. On the 31st of January, at the evacuation of East Pascagoula by our forces, they marched to that place, where they covered the embarkation of the troops, and embarking late in the evening, proceeded by steamer to their old camp, at Navy Cove, on Mobile Point, where they landed and encamped on the evening of the 1st of February, resuming the performance of picket, garrison and heavy fatigue duty.

Accompanying the First brigade, Colonel Bertram commanding, of the Second division, Thirteenth army corps, to which the regiment had been assigned upon the organization of the forces destined for the reduction of the fortifications defending Mobile, the Twentieth Wisconsin, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Starr, moved camp on the 8th of March, from Navy Cove to a point three miles farther east on the peninsula, remaining until the 13th, when they left camp, participating with the Twenty-third Iowa, in a scouting party, ten miles to the eastward, from which they returned on the following day.

In the general movement of the forces, under command of Major General Canby, they broke camp on Mobile Point on the 17th of March, and marching over very bad roads a distance of about eight miles a day, they crossed Fish River on pontoons, on the 22d and arrived on the 25th at Montrose, on Mobile Bay.

"During this march the First brigade had the ordnance, and a vast amount of hard labor to perform. The roads were almost impassable; the artillery and wagons were hauled by the men for miles, besides which, the brigade performed a great amount of pioneer work; bridging creeks and making corduroy roads."*

On the 26th of March, they moved forward six miles on the Bay road, encamping for the night within two and a half miles of the rebel works, and next day the First brigade advanced under a severe fire and occupied position on the extreme left of the line of investment, drawn around Spanish Fort, a large rebel earthwork situated about five miles south of Blakely. From this time they were constantly employed in picket and fatigue duty, and urging the attack upon that rebel stronghold, until the morning of the 9th of April, when they marched into, and took possession of Spanish Fort, which the enemy had evacuated during the previous night. Here they were employed in collecting the stores, ammunition and artillery abandoned by the enemy, until the 21st of April, when they marched five miles in a northerly direction to Blakely, where camp was established. On the 6th of May, they descended the river and crossed the bay to Mobile, going into camp four miles from the city, on the Shell road, where the regiment remained until ordered to Texas.

* Extract from official report of Lieutenant Colonel Starr.

On the 22d of June, companies A, B, D, F, G and I, under command of Captain Gillett, embarked at Mobile, and on the 25th reached Galveston, Texas, where they were joined on the 28th of June by the balance of the regiment, which left Mobile on the 25th. While stationed at Galveston, the regiment was employed in garrison and guard duty until the 14th of July, when the Twentieth Wisconsin was mustered out of service.

Commencing the journey homeward, they embarked at Galveston, at four on the morning of the 17th of July, and arrived at New Orleans, La., on the afternoon of the 19th. They left New Orleans at noon next day, on transports; the left wing, under command of Colonel Bertram, the right wing under command of Captain Gillett, and ascending the Mississippi River, Colonel Bertram's command arrived at Cairo, Ill., at eight on the morning of the 28th, the balance of the regiment arriving at noon on the same day.

The regiment left Cairo at four in the afternoon, and proceeding by rail via Freeport and Beloit, they reached Madison, Wis., on Sunday, the 30th of July. Here, on the 9th of August, 1865, the regiment was paid off and disbanded.

TWENTY-FIRST REGIMENT.

On the 1st of October, 1864, the Twenty-first, attached to the First brigade, First division of the Fourteenth army corps, was in camp at Atlanta, Ga.

In the pursuit of the rebel General Hood, in his attempt to cut General Sherman's communications with Chattanooga, the regiment, under the command of Major Walker, accompanied the movement of the Fourteenth corps. During this campaign, the marching was unprecedented for swiftness, and for the length of time spent each day on foot. Much of the route passed over in the preceding summer was retraced, and at Kenesaw, the positions of the two armies were just the reverse of those occupied in the preceding campaign.

The regiment, on the 1st of November, was at Kingston, Ga., where Colonel Hobart was placed in command of the brigade, Lieutenant Colonel Fitch assuming command of the regiment. They left Kingston on the 12th, and on the 14th of November, re-entered Atlanta, from which place, on the following day, they set out on the march to Savannah. They crossed the Oconee River on the 17th, near Covington, and passing through Milledgeville on the 24th, struck the Savannah River on the 6th of December, fifty miles from its mouth. From the 11th of December, when they arrived within four miles of Savannah, they took part in the operations before the place, until the 21st, when they entered the city.

On the 20th of January, 1865, they left Savannah as a part of the Fourteenth corps, and encamped seven miles from the city, on the right bank of the Savannah River. At this point, they were detained several days by heavy rains, which rendered the roads for a time impassable, and resuming the march on the 25th, they moved forward to Sisters' Ferry, on the Savannah River. Crossing the river at this point on the 14th of February, their line of march was directed by way of Robertsville and Barnwell, towards Augusta, S. C., thirty four miles from which place, on the 12th of February, they struck the Augusta and Charleston railroad, at White Pond Station.

Destroying the railroad at this point, they moved by way of Lexington, in the direction of Columbia, the capital of the state, near which place, they turned to the left, and crossing the Saluda River, on the night of the 16th and Broad River on the 19th, they entered Winnsboro, thirty-three miles north of Columbia, on the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, on the 21st of February. The next day was occupied in the destruction of the railroad a distance of seventeen miles northward to Blackstock Station; and resuming the eastward march on the 23d, they crossed the Wateree River on the 28th, and encamped at Rocky Mount, S. C.

On the 1st of March, they were again in motion, and crossing the Great Pedee River, seven miles above Cheraw, S. C., they arrived on the 11th at Fayetteville, N. C. Crossing Cape Fear River at this point on the 13th, they participated on the 16th in the battle at Averysboro, and on the 19th in the battle of Bentonville, in which engagements the Twenty-first sustained a loss of three killed, twenty-five wounded, and two missing.

They crossed the Neuse River on the 23d of March, near Goldsboro, at which place they arrived on the afternoon of the same day, and remained in camp until the 10th of April, when they again took up the line of March, and proceeding by way of Smithfield, arrived on the morning of the 13th at Raleigh, the capital of the state, the regiment leading the advance of the army. Their brigade, being the first to enter the city, was assigned to temporary provost duty, from which they were relieved on the following day, and resuming the forward movement, they rejoined the division on the 16th, at White Oak Creek, N. C.

On the 21st of April, the regiment was detached from the brigade as guard to Avent's Ferry, on Cape Fear River, near Haywood, and on the 28th, having rejoined the division, they set out towards Raleigh, and encamped on the 30th at Morrisville, thirteen miles west of Raleigh, on the North Carolina railroad.

Resuming the march homeward from Morrisville, on the 1st of May, they entered Virginia next day, and arrived on the 8th at Richmond, having accomplished a distance of one hundred and eighty-five miles, within six days. Marching from Richmond on the 11th, they proceeded by way of the Wilderness and Bull Run battlefields, arriving on the 20th at Washington, where they took part in the grand review of the 24th of May.

They remained in camp near the national capital until the 8th of June, when the regiment was mustered out of service. They set out for home, and moving by rail via Detroit and Grand Haven, they arrived on the 10th at Milwaukee, where the Twenty-first Wisconsin was paid and disbanded on the 17th of June, 1865.

TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

During the movements of a part of General Sherman's forces, to meet and foil the rebel General Hood's attempt upon the communications with Chattanooga, the Twenty-second, attached to the Second brigade, Third division of the Twentieth army corps, was stationed at Atlanta, Ga., and occupied in strengthening the fortifications of that place. On the 26th of October, 1864, the brigade left Atlanta, as guard to a large forage train, and after an absence of three days, during which they marched about eighty miles, returned on the 19th to camp. They accompanied a similar expedition to Stone Mountain, which set out on the 26th, and returned on the 28th of October.

On the 15th of November, the regiment set out on the march to Savannah, during which they accompanied the movement of the Twentieth corps, and were occupied for a great part of the distance as train guard. Following the general direction of the Georgia railroad sixty-seven miles, to Madison, they moved thence by way of Eatonton, the terminus of the Milledgeville and Eatonton railroad, to Milledgeville, the capital of Georgia. They arrived on the 9th of December, before the line of fortifications defending Savannah, and on the 21st, entered the city with our forces.

On the 2d of January, 1865, they crossed the Savannah River, and encamped, eight miles from Savannah, on Hardee's Plantation, S. C., remaining until the 17th, when they moved to Purysburg, eighteen miles from Savannah, on the Charleston and Savannah railroad. From Purysburg, they marched on the 29th, and on the following day encamped at Robertsville, whence, after a short delay, they marched on the 2d of February, on the campaign through the Carolinas. Advancing by way of Blacksville and Williston, they crossed the Edisto, Saluda, Broad and Catawba Rivers, and on the morning of the 28th of February, were encamped at Hanging Rock, S. C.

Resuming the march at this point, on the 1st of March, they crossed the Great Pedee River at Cheraw on the 7th, and Cape Fear River on the 13th, at Fayetteville, N. C. On the 16th of March, they took part in the action at Averysboro, in which four men of the regiment were wounded. In this engagement they participated in the assault upon the fortified position of the enemy, which resulted in the capture of three pieces of artillery and a number of prisoners. They were also present, but not actively engaged, in the battle near Bentonville, and with the Twentieth corps crossed the Neuse River on the 23d, and encamped on the following day at Goldsboro.

They marched thence on the 27th, as guard to a wagon train, which they accompanied to Kinston, and returning on the 30th to Goldsboro, remained in camp at that place until the 10th of April, when they set out for Raleigh, which they reached on the 14th. On the 25th of April, they moved to Holly Springs, and returning on the 28th, remained in camp at Raleigh until the 30th, when they set out for home.

In their march to the national capital, they passed through Richmond, Va., on the 11th of May, and on the 19th, arrived at Alexandria. They moved thence to Washington, at which place they took part in the grand review of the 24th of May, and subsequently remained in camp near the city until the 12th of June, when they were mustered out of service and started for Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where they were soon afterwards paid and disbanded.

The reports from this regiment are incomplete, so far as they relate to its military history.

TWENTY-THIRD REGIMENT.

The Twenty-third Wisconsin, which had been stationed at that place as garrison, embarked on the 3d of October, 1864, at Morganzia, La., and proceeded to Bayou Sara, whence they marched sixteen miles to Jackson, La. They returned next day to Bayou Sara, skirmishing heavily with the enemy during the march, with a loss of two killed and four wounded. They returned on the 5th to Morganzia. On the 10th of October, they moved on an expedition a few miles above the mouth of Red River, where they landed and effected a reconnoissance sixteen miles into the interior. They returned on the following day to camp at Morganzia, where they re-embarked under orders to proceed to White River, Ark., at the mouth of which stream they landed and went into camp on the 16th of October.

They again embarked at the mouth of White River on the 2d of November, and ascending the Mississippi, arrived on the night of the 30th at Helena, Ark. Here they went into camp on the 4th of November, and were stationed in the performance of garrison duty until the 23d of February, 1865, when they embarked under orders to report at New Orleans, to the officer in command of the Reserve corps, and descending the Mississippi, they landed on the 27th at Algiers, La., where camp was established.

Owing to the fact that Colonel Guppey was absent by order of the general commanding the District of Western Kentucky, dated October 27th, 1864, as commandant of the post of Paducah, Ky.: and that Lieutenant Colonel Hill was also absent as president of a court martial at Helena, Ark., the command of the regiment devolved upon Major Green.

On the 1st of May, in obedience to the orders of Major General Canby, the regiment marched from Algiers, and embarked at Hickox's Landing on Lake Pontchartrain, as a part of the forces destined for the reduction of the defences of Mobile, Ala. They landed on the 3d on Dauphin Island, at the mouth of Mobile Bay, where they remained in camp until the afternoon of the 17th, when they again embarked and proceeded across the bay to Navy Cove, on Mobile Point, from which place, with the Third brigade of the First division, Thirteenth army corps, they took up the line of march on the following day for Spanish Fort.

For three days, during the march, rain fell almost incessantly, rendering necessary the construction of ten miles of corduroy, road. They reached Fish River on the 24th, and on the 26th of March, they arrived in the vicinity of Spanish Fort, the siege of which commenced on the following day. They were occupied in active siege duty until the 30th, when their brigade was ordered to Blakely, five miles to the northward.

"At daylight on the morning of the 3d of April, we arrived at Sibley's Mills, about two miles from Blakely. After a few hours rest, we were ordered towards the left of our own line to take up position before the works of the enemy. Companies G and I, under command of Captain Tolford, were thrown forward as skirmishers. They had advanced to within a few hundred yards of the enemy's works, when we were relieved by a division of the Sixteenth army corps, and ordered to encamp in rear of, and act as support to the other forces. On the night of the 5th of April, we moved in light marching order, with the other regiments of the brigade to the extreme right of our line, for the purpose of supporting the troops in advance in case of an attack, which was expected during the night. No demonstration having been made by the enemy, we were, at daylight, ordered back to camp.

"On the night of the 7th, two hundred men of the regiment were detailed to erect fortifications for batteries. A portion of the detail was exposed to artillery fire from the enemy and suffered a loss of one man killed and three slightly wounded. Late on the afternoon of the 9th of April, the regiment, with the exception of two hundred men employed in the rifle-pits, moved in light marching order to the front, where we formed part of the line supporting the force which immediately charged and captured the enemy's works. After nightfall we moved back to camp in obedience to orders."*

On the evening of the 11th of April, the Twenty-third marched fifteen miles to Stark's Landing, on Mobile Bay, where they embarked and on the following day crossed the bay to Magnolia Race Course Wharf, five miles below the city. Here they disembarked in the evening, and marching thence to Mobile, encamped late at night, in the fortifications on the west side of the city, where they were assigned to patrol, fatigue and picket duty. On the 6th of May, companies C and E were detached from the regiment and ordered to East Pascagoula, Miss., on fatigue duty, where they remained until the 10th of June, at which date they re-embarked, rejoining the regiment at Mobile on the following day.

The regiment remained at Mobile, occasionally furnishing large detachments for various duties in the city and vicinity, until the 4th of July, when the Twenty-third Wisconsin was mustered out of service, and embarking next day, they set for home. They arrived on the 16th at Madison, Wisconsin, where the men received final payment, and were formally disbanded on the 24th of July, 1865.

TWENTY-FOURTH REGIMENT.

During the past year, the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin was attached to the First brigade, Second division of the Fourth army corps. Of the movements of the regiment during the Atlanta campaign, under command of Major General Sherman, the following, which was received too late for insertion in the last report from this office, furnishes an official account:

"On the 3d of May, 1864, the regiment rejoined the brigade while on the march, having for the previous three months, been on duty at division headquarters. We advanced on the 9th and took position on Rocky Face Ridge, in front of Dalton, Ga., remained in this position, with some slight changes, until the morning of the 13th of May, when it was ascertained that the enemy had evacuated his fortified position.

"We passed through Dalton and continued the march in the direction of Resaca, near which place the enemy was developed the following day. About two in the afternoon, advanced with the brigade about three hundred yards, when we emerged upon an open field, where we were exposed to a galling fire of both artillery and small arms. Receiving no orders to halt, the regiment advanced at a double quick towards a small elevation, behind which we took temporary shelter. After a short delay, we advanced to the crest of the elevation and engaged the enemy. In crossing the field before mentioned, the regiment became detached from the balance of the brigade, with exception of the Fifteenth Missouri and the Thirty-sixth Illinois. After being engaged about two hours, I went to the rear with my command, to replenish ammunition and clean the guns. Towards night I again took position, but was not engaged, night having temporarily put an end to the fighting.

"About two on the morning of the 15th of May, I was relieved from this position, and retired about two hundred yards, where I remained until daylight. About eight o'clock, I again engaged the enemy, but as we were behind works, no one was injured. Towards noon, we relieved some troops on the right of battery M, First Illinois light artillery. I retained this position until the next morning, when it was developed that the enemy had retired from our front. During the engagement Lieutenant Colonel West was wounded, and the command devolved upon myself.

"The line of march was immediately taken up in pursuit of the retiring enemy, and passing through Resaca, on the night of the 16th of May, we encamped near Calhoun, through which place we passed next morning. Towards noon, I relieved the Thirty sixth Illinois, in support of the skirmish line. The skirmishers advanced without aid from me of any moment, until we arrived within a few miles of Adairsville, Ga. Here the enemy displayed so strong a force, that Colonel Barrett, commanding the skirmish line, requested me to deploy three companies on the right of the road to assist his line. In accordance with the request, I deployed companies A, F and D, under command of Lieutenant Thomas T. Keith. Shortly afterwards, Colonel Barrett requested me to bring the balance of my command to his assistance. I immediately deployed two more companies on the right and the remaining four on the left of the road. The united efforts of the two regiments made no available impression on the enemy. Soon afterwards, the entire brigade became engaged. The fighting was very severe, and lasted from three in the afternoon until after dark.

"I have to lament in this engagement, the loss of Lieutenant Thomas T. Keith, killed; and Lieutenant George Allanson, badly wounded.

"Next morning the march was resumed, passing through Adairsville, in the direction of Kingston, where we arrived, without any interruption of moment, on the 19th of May. We remained in camp near Kingston, until the 23d of May, when the march was again resumed, and continued without interruption until arriving on the 25th in the vicinity of Dallas. During the night we got into position, and next morning threw up works. We remained in this position eleven days, all the time under fire, men being killed and wounded in the most retired lines. While in this position, Lieutenant George Coote, of company H, was seriously wounded.

"From the position in front of Dallas, we moved toward Ackworth, near which place I remained until the 10th of June. Nothing of moment occurred in my command until the night of the 15th, when we threw up entrenchments, which were abandoned on the following day, and a new line constructed in advance.

"On the 17th of June, it was ascertained the enemy had again abandoned his position in our front. Next morning I advanced on the enemy by the right of companies to the front. This was accomplished with much difficulty, as the rain was pouring in torrents, and the ground to be passed over was almost impassable on account of mud. During the day we threw up works, under fire. In the night the rebels again left their position, and were again developed near Kenesaw Mountain. On the 20th of June, works were constructed, which proved a valuable protection. In the afternoon, Captain David Y. Horning was wounded, and in the evening I was relieved by a portion of the Fourteenth army corps, when I marched one-and a half miles to the right. After getting into position, works were immediately constructed.

"On the morning of the 22d, I was ordered with my command on the skirmish line. In accordance with instructions from the division officer of the day, I advanced in conjunction with the skirmish line of the Fourteenth army corps, but owing to some misunderstanding, the line connecting with my left did not advance; thus exposing my left to be flanked, and my entire line to an enfilading fire. On this account, I was compelled to retire, leaving two of my dead in the enemy's skirmish pits. In the afternoon, I advanced again, and occupied successfully all the ground that had been deserted. When relieved, about midnight, I retired behind the works, in which position I remained, without occurrence of importance, until the morning of the 27th of June.

"In accordance with directions, I formed my regiment on the first division, right in front, and directly in rear of the Eighty-eighth Illinois. About half past eight the formation was completed and the advance ordered. The ground to be passed over was covered with fallen timber, forming an almost impassable abatis. The men, however, moved forward most admirably. Having advanced about three-fourths of the distance between our own and the rebel works, I received orders to halt. The head of the column had reached the enemy's works, and on account of our halting began to retire in some confusion, which was communicated in some degree to the men who were somewhat retired, but was quickly arrested. I remained in this position, exposed to a most galling fire of artillery and musketry, for half an hour, unable to reply on account of the formation. After it had been sufficiently demonstrated that we could not carry the enemy's works, I was ordered to retire, with my command, and marched the regiment back to the position occupied before the assault. In this engagement I have to lament the temporary loss of Adjutant Horace Buchanan, who was quite severely wounded. On the night of the 27th of June, I was on picket, during which several men were wounded.

"I remained behind the works at this point, until the 2d of July, when I was relieved, and took a new position about a mile to the left. On the morning of the 3d, it was found that the enemy had again withdrawn from our front. The march was taken up and continued a distance of about five miles south of Marietta, where the enemy was encountered. He evacuated this position on the morning of the 5th, when we moved forward in pursuit, and encamped for the night on the north bank of the Chattahoochee River.

"I remained in this position, with slight change of camp, until the 13th of July, when we crossed the Chattahoochee, and encamped, remaining until the 18th. On the night of the 19th of July, we crossed Peach Tree Creek, and took position near the battle ground of the following day. The engagement of the 20th was a very brilliant affair: the enemy advancing upon our works, which were slight and very hastily constructed, was each time repulsed and driven back in great disorder. On the 21st, we remained quiet. Next day, the enemy retired, when we immediately moved forward in pursuit, and got into position and threw up works in the vicinity of Atlanta. I remained here, with slight changes of position, until the night of the 25th of August, when we withdrew from the position, and joined the general movement towards the right.

"The march was continued, without special occurrence, until we struck the Macon railroad, on the 1st of September. The day was principally spent in destroying the railroad, and towards evening, the firing on the right indicated that the enemy was engaged with a portion of our army. I took position in line at double quick, and advanced by the right of companies to the front. About half past five in the afternoon, I became engaged, and moved across an open field, in conjunction with the Forty-fourth Illinois. I have to lament the loss of Lieutenant Frederick Schlenstedt, who was killed.

"On the morning of the 2d, we advanced, without opposition, near Lovejoy Station, where we went into position, and remained until the night of the 5th, at which date we retired in the direction of Atlanta, arriving at the latter place on the 8th of September."*

In the latter part of September, the Twenty-fourth proceeded by rail to Chattanooga, Tenn., where the regiment was stationed in the performance of guard and garrison duty, until the 1st of November, at which date, participating in the movements of our forces under Major General Thomas, to repel the rebel invasion under General Hood, they left Chattanooga by rail and arrived on the following day at Athens, Ala., one hundred and seven miles from Nashville, on the Nashville and Decatur railroad. Thence on the 3d of November, they marched to the northward, and fording Elk River next day, they arrived on the 5th at Pulaski, Tenn., eighty miles from Nashville.

They moved into camp on the 7th, on the north side of the the town, where the regiment was engaged in guard duty and the construction of fortifications, until the 22d of November, when they were again put in motion to the northward, and marching by way of Linwood, they encamped on the 24th at Columbia, forty-six miles from Nashville, on the Nashville and Decatur railroad, at the junction of the Mount Pleasant branch road.

Here the regiment set to work building fortifications, and on the afternoon of the 25th of November, moved out on a reconnoissance, for the purpose of developing the position of the enemy in the vicinity, and having encountered the rebel pickets, within about two miles of the town, returned in the evening to the fortifications. On the 28th, they retired across Duck River by the railroad bridge, which was subsequently burned.

"At eight o'clock on the morning of the 29th of November, in obedience to orders, we broke camp in front of Columbia, Tenn., and marched out, left in front, following the Thirty-sixth Illinois. Marching rapidly, we arrived at Spring Hill, about eleven A. M., moving through the town at double quick, and formed in line of battle, with the Thirty-sixth Illinois on our right and the Forty-fourth Illinois on our left; advanced in line about four hundred yards, halted and threw up a barricade of rails; arriving just in time to prevent the enemy's cavalry from entering the town. We remained in this position until about four and a half P. M., when we were ordered to move to the railroad station, where we threw up another barricade, and lay during the night, picketing our front, and connecting with the pickets of the Forty-fourth Illinois on our right.

"At four on the morning of the 30th of November, in obedience to orders, we marched to the right of the Franklin pike, where we formed in line with the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Ohio on our right, and the Thirty-sixth Illinois on our left, acting as rear guard. We marched in this manner until we arrived near Franklin, (twelve miles), when the skirmishers being withdrawn from the front, we were ordered to take position behind a stone wall, on the left of the pike, and observe the movements of the enemy. After remaining in this position nearly an hour, we were ordered to move by the flank again to the rear. On moving a short distance, this order was countermanded, and the regiment was deployed as skirmishers. Having remained in this position half an hour, we were ordered to move by the flank into Franklin, which we did, first deploying three companies as skirmishers to cover the rear.

"On arriving near the works the regiment was relieved by a regiment from the Second brigade. We then marched in with the other regiments of the brigade, four hundred yards to the rear of the works, where we stacked arms, and the men were allowed to rest and get their dinners; it being now past two in the afternoon, and having marched without breakfast.

"At about half-past four in the afternoon, the enemy attacked our line furiously, and the troops occupying the works in our front gave way in confusion. We charged forward with fixed bayonets, driving many stragglers back to the works, and retaking a part of the lines, which had been momentarily held by the enemy. The fighting at this point was for a time hand to hand, one of my sergeants receiving a severe wound in the head from a sabre in the hands of a rebel officer. The regiment remained behind the works, keeping up a continual fire, until about eleven at night, when Major McArthur having been wounded and Captain Philbrook, acting field officer, killed, I assumed command of the regiment.

"In obedience to orders, I formed the regiment and marched back to town, remaining half an hour, when I was ordered to follow the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Ohio, and formed line a short distance in rear of the works, to support the lines in case of necessity. We remained in this position nearly an hour, when I was ordered to follow the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Ohio across the river, marching all night towards Nashville.

"Major McArthur was severely wounded soon after the engagement commenced, while gallantly leading his regiment in the thickest of the fight; and Captain Philbrook, than whom a braver officer never lived, was instantly killed near me, while nobly performing his duty. I deeply regret that we were obliged to leave his body in the hands of the enemy. Our loss in enlisted men was one killed, six wounded and three missing.

"Where all did so nobly, it is impossible to note each individual case of bravery without doing injustice to others. For some seven hours the regiment was under the fire of the enemy; the men volunteering as often as was necessary to go back and bring up ammunition, and keeping up so constant a fire as to prevent the enemy's again advancing on the works.

"I desire to make mention of Sergeants Thomas Toohey and Felix McSorley, of company F, who assisted to work the guns of a battery near the right of the regiment, after nearly every man had left them, the fire of the enemy being hotter at this than at any other point on the lines. I would also mention Corporal John Miller, of company B, who brought off the colors of the Fifty-first Illinois, which had been left on the field, he having carried them all night, and delivered them next day to the adjutant of that regiment.

"On the 1st of December, we continued our march until about noon, when we formed line and went into camp near Nashville."*

"On the morning of the 15th of December, the command was in readiness to move at an early hour, but did not until about eight o'clock, when it followed the Seventy-third Illinois, and moved out of the entrenchments to the right of our former position, closed en masse in rear of the first line of battle. After lying in this position more than two hours, the order was then given to move forward; we halted several times before reaching the first range of hills. When near the brow of the hill, we halted until the fire from the enemy's battery became so accurate that orders were given to deploy column and move forward a short distance. We remained in this position two hours, when the regiment moved over the hill, through a ravine and to the foot of another hill on which the enemy had a redoubt, whose guns commanded our approach. Remained here but a short time, getting into position, preparatory to making a charge on the enemy's works, when we moved forward at double quick, but met with no opposition; the skirmish line, which was composed of details from the regiments in the brigade, having succeeded in capturing the works with slight loss.

"After reaching the top of the hill the regiment lay in line nearly an hour, when we moved by the right flank about a mile to the front. The regiment was then ordered on the skirmish line. It was now dark, and the regiment, having moved about half a mile after deploying, encountered the enemy's skirmishers, when brisk firing commenced. The regiment lay down until ordered to retire, when we moved a short distance to the rear, threw up a line of works, and remained during the night.

"At six on the morning of the 16th of December, orders were received to move forward. We advanced cautiously nearly two miles, when we came upon the enemy's skirmishers, and steadily drove them back to his main line of works. The regiment remained close to the enemy's works, keeping up a constant fire until three in the afternoon, when we were relieved by a regiment from General Steadman's command, after which we retired a short distance and awaited orders from the commandant of the brigade. We remained in this position two hours, when orders came to rejoin the command. After rejoining the brigade, we marched in line of battle two miles to the front and went into camp." †

The regiment participated in the subsequent pursuit of the rebel forces, arriving on the 29th of December at Lexington, Ala., where the pursuit was abandoned, within a short distance of Florence, on the Tennessee River. Marching from Lexington on the 31st, they crossed Elk River on the 3d of January, 1865, and arrived on the 5th at Huntsville, Ala., on the Memphis and Charleston railroad, where they went into winter quarters.

During this celebrated campaign, the regiment had "marched a distance of nearly one hundred and fifty miles, through drenching rains and over almost impassable roads. The men suffered extremely, and bore their fatigue with patient endurance."

The regiment left Huntsville on the 28th of March, and proceeding thence by rail, arrived on the 31st at Bull's Gap, East Tenn, fifty-six miles northeast of Knoxville, on the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad. They marched thence ten miles eastward to Blue Springs, where they were engaged in repairing the railroad, until the 19th of April, at which date they returned to Bull's Gap. They left this place on the 22d by rail and reached Nashville, Tenn., on the 24th of April. Camp was established four miles from the city on the Charlotte pike, where the regiment remained until mustered out of service on the 10th of June.

On the 15th of June, 1865, they reached Milwaukee, Wis., where they were shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

TWENTY-FIFTH REGIMENT.

The Twenty-fifth Wisconsin, attached to the Second brigade, First division of the Seventeenth army corps, left East Point, Ga., on the 1st of October, 1864, as part of a reconnoitring expedition, and having next day developed the enemy, entrenched and in force near the Newman road, on the Montgomery railroad, returned on the morning of the 3d, to camp at East Point.

Accompanying the Seventeenth corps, in the movement of General Sherman's forces, to meet the attempt of the rebel forces upon the communications with Chattanooga, they again left East Point on the 4th of October, the regiment during the beginning of the march, acting as guard to the supply trains, which they frequently were called upon to assist in their passage over the muddy roads. They crossed the Chattahoochee River on the following day, and passing through Marietta, and around Kenesaw Mountain on the 9th, reached Ackworth and crossed the Etowah River on the 11th of October.

Continuing the march, they passed through Kingston on the 12th, arriving on the afternoon of the next day at Adairsville, whence they moved by rail to Resaca, at which place they took position on the ground occupied by the regiment during the engagement of the 15th of May.

On the 15th of October they moved to Snake Creek Gap, and the enemy, who had established himself in the works formerly erected by our troops, having been driven out, they pressed rapidly forward in pursuit, companies F and G acting as pioneers, to clear off the obstructions, which the enemy, in his flight had placed in the road. Passing through Ship Gap, on the 16th of October, and Summerville on the 20th, they crossed the state line next day and bivouacked at Gaylesville, Ala., on Little River. From this point companies B, E, F, G and H were detailed to guard the supply train to Rome, Ga., and rejoined the regiment on the 27th at Gaylesville. On the 24th of October, Lieutenant Colonel Rusk rejoined and took command of the regiment, which he retained, until its muster-out of service, with the exception of eight days subsequently, when in the vicinity of Pocotaligo, S. C.

The Twenty-fifth left Gaylesville on the 28th of October, and marching to the southward, arrived on the 30th at Cave Springs, Ga., having marched during the month a distance estimated at two hundred and seventy miles.

The march was resumed on the 1st of November, and proceeding by way of Cedartown, Dallas and Marietta, they crossed the Chattahoochee River on the 10th and entered Atlanta on the following day. Here they were engaged in various duties until the commencement of General Sherman's celebrated march through Georgia to Savannah.

Accompanying the Seventeenth corps, and acting as train guard, the Twenty-fifth left Atlanta on the 15th of November, and taking the road to McDonough, passed through that place on the 17th, bivouacking on the road near Jackson. On the 20th, they passed through Monticello, where the regiment was relieved from duty as train guard, and rejoined the brigade. They arrived on the 22d at Gordon, the junction of the Milledgeville and Eatonton, and Georgia Central railroads, where they were ordered to destroy the road. Pressing forward from this point on the 24th of November, and destroying the railroad as they advanced, they arrived on the 26th in the vicinity of Toombsboro, where the regiment was detailed as pontoon guard, and the engineer corps placed under the charge of Lieutenant Colonel Rusk.

They crossed the Oconee River on the 27th, companies B, E, G and H, acting as rear guard, and on the 30th crossed the Ogeechee River, and bivouacked, having marched two hundred and thirty miles during the month. Resuming the march on the 1st of December, they crossed Buckhead Creek, near Millen, on the following day, and on the 8th reached Marlow, a station on the Georgia Central railroad, twenty-six miles from Savannah, where the regiment was temporarily relieved from duty as guard to the pontoon train.

On the 9th of December, they encountered the enemy posted near the west end of Long Swamp, and the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin, taking position in the rear of the brigade, was shortly afterwards ordered to support a battery. The rebels were soon driven from their position, when the regiment moved forward through the swamp south of the railroad to Station No. 1, where a number of torpedoes had been planted by the enemy. Here they took position and commenced the construction of breastworks.

On the 10th, they moved out in the rear of the brigade, and having advanced about three miles, again struck the enemy. The regiment took position in the rear of the Third brigade, and subsequently moved to the right, fronting the Ogeechee Canal. Their position here being very much exposed to the enemy's artillery, they forded the canal, and took position with the brigade within five hundred yards of the enemy's fortifications. At night, they were ordered to advance the line two hundred yards and erect substantial breastworks and rifle pits, when it was found that a deep swamp extended in front of the rebel lines. On the afternoon of the following day, during which one of their number was killed and one wounded, they were relieved by the advance of the Fourteenth corps, and recrossing the canal, they marched around the swamp, a distance of five miles, "and finding a dry spot bivouacked for the night."

They took position on the 12th of December, at Dillon's Bridge, in unfinished works, previously erected by the Fifteenth corps, which they completed and held until the 19th, moving on that day to King's Bridge. On their arrival, they were ordered by General Sherman to return to the entrenchments at Dillon's Bridge, which they occupied, engaged in the performance of heavy picket and garrison duty, until the 3d of January, 1865, when they marched through Savannah and embarked next day below the city at Thunderbolt, arriving in the afternoon at Beaufort, Port Royal Island, S. C., where they encamped three and a half miles from the city.

They remained in camp on Port Royal Island until the 13th of January, when they commenced the march through the Carolinas, and crossing the Pocotaligo River on pontoons next day, bivouacked within a mile of Fort Pocotaligo, which the enemy abandoned during the night. On the 15th of January they advanced, with little opposition, through several strongly fortified lines of the enemy, which were very difficult of approach on account of swamps and deep ditches, arriving about noon at Pocotaligo, forty-nine miles from Savannah, on the Charleston and Savannah railroad. In the afternoon, they moved one mile to the left, and encamped in the woods, on the right of the road, where they lay, until ordered on the 18th to protect the forage ,train reported to be attacked by the rebels; in obedience to which order, they moved five miles towards McPhersonville, and having participated in a slight skirmish, returned without loss to camp.

On the 20th of January, they moved out on a reconnoissance towards the Salkehatchie River. Having marched about five miles, they encountered the enemy, drove in his pickets, and dislodged a small force from temporary earthworks in the road, thence moving down the river, which they were unable to ford, returned to camp in the evening. The regiment on the 23d was ordered on fatigue duty, and moved towards Fort Pocotaligo, in the vicinity of which they were employed in cutting timber and corduroying the roads, which at this point were impassable for teams, until the 30th of January, when they marched nearly six miles towards the Salkehatchie River, encamping near Pocotaligo.

On the 1st of February, they advanced thirteen miles. Next day, having moved forward about ten miles, driving the enemy from his entrenchments as they advanced, the trains were halted, and the Twenty-fifth ordered to take the advance. Companies C, E, I and K, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Rusk, were deployed as skirmishers, and rapidly advanced on the left of a large swamp, the remaining companies, under Major Joslin, following as reserve.

They were soon afterwards ordered to charge the enemy's works at Rivers' Bridge, on the Salkehatchie River, and sustaining a severe fire from the batteries commanding the road, they steadily advanced, crossing several bridges, until their progress was arrested by the Salkehatchie, an unfordable stream, on which the bridge had been destroyed by the enemy.

They were then ordered to shelter in the swamp on each side of the road, where companies were deployed and advanced slowly through mud and water, waist deep, to the bank of the river, on which they retained position for several hours, keeping up a steady fire on the rebels in front, until relieved in the evening, when they moved to the rear and encamped, having sustained a loss of three killed and five wounded, during the day. The night was occupied by the pioneers, assisted by details from the regiment, in opening a way through the swamp and timber, on the left of the road, and on the 3d of February, the regiment formed in line, and advancing over very difficult ground, had obtained position within a short distance of the rebel works, when the enemy abandoned the post.

The forward movement was resumed on the 6th of February, and crossing several swamps, where it was necessary to 'corduroy' the road, and removing obstructions as they advanced, the regiment on the 8th struck the Charleston and Augusta railroad at Midway, seventy-two miles from Charleston. Having spent the day in the destruction of the railroad near this point, they marched on the 9th of February to the south branch of the Edisto River, where the enemy appeared in force.

"The Second brigade, about noon, was ordered forward, moved out to the bank of the stream, which they crossed on pontoons, and advanced through the swamp in mud and water, waist deep, upwards of half a mile, when they formed in line, and charged the works, dislodging the enemy, who abandoned the post and position. They were subsequently ordered to erect works on each side of the battery, and the men and officers, much fatigued, spent most of the night in drying their clothes."*

The 10th of February was occupied in crossing the teams and material; the brigade was ordered out on a reconnoissance, and having marched five miles returned to camp. On the following day, they passed through Roberts' Swamp, and encamped within five miles of Orangeburg, seventeen miles from Branchville, on the Columbia railroad. On the 12th, the left wing, under command of Major Joslin, was ordered on a foraging expedition, and during its absence, the right wing moved to the support of the Third and Fourth divisions of the corps, then engaged with the enemy. At ten in the evening, the regiment moved forward, passed through Orangeburg, which had been captured by our troops, and encamped two miles from the town. On the 13th, they were occupied in the destruction of the Columbia railroad, encamping near Lewisville. The march was continued on the following day, and on the 15th of February, they moved towards the Congaree River, within four miles of which stream their course was changed to the left, the regiment, on the 16th, going into camp in sight of Columbia, on the ground previously occupied by our prisoners in rebel hands.

They crossed the Saluda River on the 17th of February, on pontoons, and moving thence on the left to Bush River, encamped in the woods until four in the afternoon, when they marched to and crossed Broad River, encamping near the railroad in the suburbs of Columbia. Next morning they were ordered to destroy the railroad, and the brigade having been appointed provost guard, they returned late in the evening to Columbia, where they were occupied in provost duty until the 20th of February, when the march was resumed.

Proceeding northward, on the line of the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, which was destroyed as they advanced, they passed through Winnsboro on the 22d of February, and changing the route to the eastward, they crossed the Wateree River on the evening of the 23d, and bivouacked next day near Liberty Hill. They crossed Lynch's Creeks on the 26th and the following day, and on the 28th, the regiment, detached from the brigade, was ordered to take possession of Wilkes' Mills, in the forks of Juniper Creek, and grind corn for the division, in which they were employed until the 3d of March, when they rejoined the brigade, and marching with the supply train, crossed Thompson's Creek, and encamped at Cheraw, the terminus of the Cheraw and Darlington railroad. Here the brigade was assigned to duty as provost guard.

The regiment left Cheraw on the 5th of March, crossed the Great Pedee River in the afternoon, and passing through Bennetville next day, entered North Carolina on the 8th, the regiment as they advanced, corduroying the roads, which for a great distance lay through swamps and timber. On the 11th, they passed through Fayetteville, N. C., and over the bridge on Rockfish Creek, near which they remained in camp until the 13th, when they crossed Cape Fear River on pontoons, and participated in a slight skirmish with the enemy near the river.

Resuming the march on the 15th, they passed through Blockersville to South River, where a body of rebels were stationed in charge of the bridge, and ready to burn it upon an attempt to cross. A regiment each of cavalry and infantry was quietly formed, and supported by three regiments of infantry, including the Twenty-fifth Wisconsin, charged and routed the enemy, and crossing through a swamp, bivouacked for the night, protecting the passage of the trains.

Passing through Brockersville on the 17th of March, they proceeded by way of Clinton, in a northerly direction, towards Dudley, and on the 20th, when moving with the brigade in rear of the train as guard, were ordered forward to join Major General Howard at a point on the Goldsboro and Fayetvteille road. Accompanying the brigade, they moved forward on the flank of the the train to the point designated, where, after an hour's rest, they took position in rear of the Thirty-second Wisconsin, as support to a charge made against the enemy's works defending Goldsboro, which were carried and occupied by our forces. The regiment at dusk moved a short distance to the rear and bivouacked for the night.

On the 21st of March, they moved in rear of the train, and on arriving on the right of our line, the regiment was ordered to support the Third Michigan battery. Companies A, F and G were deployed as skirmishers, with one company in reserve covering the bridge over Falling Creek; the remainder of the regiment supporting the battery and guarding the train. During the engagement one man was wounded. Early next morning, they marched into and occupied the rebel works, which had been evacuated before daylight. Here they were joined by the other regiments of the brigade, and advancing on the 23d, they crossed the Neuse River next day, and passed through Goldsboro, at the intersection of the Wilmington and Weldon, and North Carolina railroads.

The Twenty-fifth established camp within four miles of the city, where they remained, occupied in various duties, until the 10th of April, when they were again put in motion. Marching in the general direction of the North Carolina railroad, by way of Boon Hill and Smithfield, they crossed the Neuse River and entered Raleigh on the 14th of April, encamping within one mile of the city, which is situated near the Neuse River, at the junction of the Raleigh and Gaston, with the North Carolina railroad. In the movement against General Johnston's forces, they had advanced on the 15th a short distance from the city, when intelligence was received, that the rebel army had surrendered. They thereupon returned to camp near Raleigh, where the regiment remained, furnishing occasional details for guard and patrol duty, until news was received of the President's disapproval of the terms of surrender.

On the renewal of hostilities, the regiment, on the 25th of April, marched ten miles to Jones' Cross Roads, and General Johnston, having next day accepted the proposed terms of surrender, they returned, on the 27th, to camp near Raleigh, where preparations were made for the homeward march to Washington.

On the 29th of April, they set out from Raleigh, and crossing Crabtree Creek and Neuse River, encamped in the woods, ten miles from the city, where they rested during the next day, (Sunday,) in accordance with the instructions of Major-General Howard.

The march homeward was resumed on the 1st of May. Passing through Forestville, on the Raleigh and Gaston railroad, they crossed the Tar River next day, and proceeding northward by way of Ridgeway and Warrenton, they crossed the Roanoke and Meherin Rivers on the 5th of May, encamping on the Boydton plank road, in Virginia. They crossed the Nottoway River on the 6th, and proceeding on the following day, by way of Dinwiddie Court House, to the canal near the Danville railroad, three miles from Petersburg, they passed through that city in review on the 8th, and crossing the Appomattox River, encamped on the road two miles from Petersburg.

On the 9th of May, the regiment, taking the advance of the brigade, took the road to Manchester, near which place, they encamped in the evening, remaining until the 12th, when they crossed the James River to Richmond, and passing through the city, encamped on the evening of the 13th, near Hanover Court House. They marched through Chesterfield on the following day, and having advanced sixteen miles, encamped near Hancock Junction.

They crossed the Mat, Ta and Po Rivers on the 15th of May, and the Ny River on the following day, when they passed in review through Fredericksburg, before Major General Sherman, and crossing the Rappahannock at that place, pressed forward a distance of ten miles from the city, and bivouacked for the night. Proceeding on the 17th by way of Stafford Springs, they forded the Occoquan River on the following day, and crossing Acquia Creek on the 19th, went into camp four miles from Alexandria, remaining until the 23d, when they marched through Alexandria, and encamped a short distance from the city on the bank of the Potomac.

On the 24th of May, they crossed the Potomac River to Washington, where they participated in the grand review of General Sherman's army, after which they went into camp at Crystal Springs, four miles from the national capitol.

Here the regiment remained until the 7th of June, when they were mustered out of service and set out for home. They arrived on the 11th of June 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were shortly afterwards paid and formally disbanded.

TWENTY-SIXTH REGIMENT.

The Twenty-sixth, which during the Atlanta campaign had been attached to the Third brigade, Third division of the Twentieth army corps, was detached from the brigade on the 8th of October, 1864, and ordered to the Chattahoochee railroad bridge, at which place the regiment remained until the 14th of November, when they returned to Atlanta and rejoined the brigade, then under command of Colonel Ross, of the Twentieth Connecticut.

Next day, the Twenty-sixth set out on the grand march to the sea-coast. Passing through the desolate village of Decatur; by Stone Mountain, a huge cone of solid rock, they reached and crossed Yellow River at Stone Bridge on the evening of the 16th of November. On the following day, they passed through Sheffield, commenced foraging with good success, and reached Social Circle on the 18th, fifty-one miles from Atlanta, on the Augusta railroad. Destroying the railroad as they advanced, for a distance of sixteen miles, they arrived on the morning of the 19th at Madison, and marching thence to the southward, they arrived on the 22d, at Milledgeville. After a day's halt at the capital of Georgia, they again moved forward, and the march being much impeded by swamps and creeks, arrived on the 26th at Sandersville.

Moving thence by way of Davisboro to the Ogeechee River, in the vicinity of which a great deal of bridging and 'corduroying' was necessary; through Louisville, over innumerable rivers, creeks and swamps, the Twenty-sixth arrived and took position in front of Savannah on the 10th of December. Siege operations were commenced at once, and on the morning of the 21st, the city was occupied by our forces, the main body of the enemy having retreated across the Savannah River.

On the 2d of January, 1865, the regiment crossed the Savannah River, encamping opposite the city on the South Carolina bank of the stream, and on the 18th, marched to Hardeeville, S. C., twenty miles from Savannah on the Charleston and Savannah railroad.

Commencing the movement northward through the Carolinas the regiment left Hardeeville on the 29th of January, and marched through Robertsville and Lawtonville, across Beaufort Swamp and the Big and Little Salkehatchie Rivers, to the Augusta and Charleston railroad, which they struck at Graham's, fifty-six miles from the former place. The next three days were occupied in destroying the railroad, the regiment moving westward as the work progressed, a distance of twenty-one miles from Graham's. On the 11th of February, the march northward, was resumed, leading over the South and North Edisto Rivers, and to the Congaree, opposite Columbia. They thence turned to the westward up the Saluda River, a distance of ten miles to Zion's Church, where a pontoon bridge had been thrown across the stream, and moving northward from this place they crossed Broad River on the 20th of February.

From this point, their subsequent route lay through Winnsboro, Rocky Mount, on the Catawba River, which they crossed on pontoons; through Hanging Rock, across Lynch's Creeks and Flint River to Chesterfield, where they arrived on the 3d of March. From Chesterfield they moved on the 6th to Cheraw, crossing the Great Pedee River at that place on pontoons, and continuing the march into North Carolina, during which the column crossed numberless streams, of which the most considerable were Lumber River and Rockfish Creek, they arrived on the 11th of March at Fayetteville, N. C., on Cape Fear River.

The regiment marched through the city on the 13th, crossed the river, and next day accompanied the movement of the Third brigade to reconnoitre a crossing of Black River. Having ascertained that the crossing was held by the enemy in considerable force, the brigade returned, and on the 15th moved out in the direction of Averysboro, taking part on the following day in the action near that place.

A brigade of General Kilpatrick's cavalry and Hawley's brigade of the First division, Twentieth army corps, was already on the ground, and the Third division now joined them. Line of battle was formed, and a strong skirmish line thrown out in advance, when a very hot skirmish ensued. The enemy was obstinate, but was gradually forced back and compelled to abandon several lines of breastworks and three pieces of artillery, with heavy loss in killed, wounded and prisoners. The battle lasted until night, when the enemy had been driven back into a strong line of breastworks, extending from the Cape Fear River on his right to the Black River on his left. Captain Schmidt and Lieutenant Klein, with five enlisted men of the Twenty-sixth were killed, and ten enlisted men wounded in this engagement. Next morning the position was found to have been abandoned by the enemy, and the column moved on to Averysboro.

On the 18th of March, they set out from Averysboro, in the direction of Goldsboro, and on the afternoon of the following day arrived on the field of Bentonville. The Third brigade was at once dispatched to the assistance of the Fourteenth corps, which was already engaged, assigned to position in line of battle in a swampy wood, and ordered to advance. The brigade soon encountered a strong column of the enemy advancing against it, and a severe engagement ensued, lasting until night, when the enemy withdrew, leaving his dead and many of his wounded on the field. The Twenty-sixth having been held in reserve during the action, had no opportunity to deliver its fire, and sustained a loss of one killed and four wounded. On the 22d of March, the regiment marched to Cox's Bridge, where they crossed the Neuse River on the 24th, and moving forward to Goldsboro, went into camp at that place, situated at the intersection of the Wilmington and Weldon, and North Carolina railroads.

Throughout the last two campaigns, the regiment had subsisted by foraging, and had never known a scarcity of provisions. In the last campaign they had captured a large number of mules and horses, which were turned over to the quartermaster's department. The inclemency of the weather, together with the fatigues of the campaign, had caused considerable sickness, and the troops were much rejoiced to reach the new base, with the prospect of new clothing and a short rest.

The army was electrified on the 6th of April, by the news of the capture of Richmond. On the 10th, it was again put in motion, and marching through Smithfield, where intelligence of Lee's surrender was received, arrived on the 15th at Raleigh. Here the Twenty-sixth remained in a pleasant camp, while the negotiations for the surrender of General Johnston's forces were pending. General Grant arrived on the 24th of April, and on the 26th, the regiment performed a day's march in a southwesterly direction. While at this point, hostilities ceased, and after a few days it was announced that Johnston had surrendered, on the same terms extended to General Lee.

Their march homeward commenced on the 30th of April. Richmond was reached on the 8th of May, and on the 11th the march was resumed. Passing over the field of its first battle near Chancellorville, the Twenty-sixth Wisconsin arrived on the 19th at Alexandria, Va. On the 24th of May, they passed in review, with General Sherman's army, through Washington, and encamped near the city, their time being occupied in preparations for discharge.

The military history of the regiment, as such, terminates with the disorganization of the Third brigade, with which they had been so long identified. The brigade commander, Brevet Brigadier General Coggswell, in an official communication to the Secretary of War, thus speaks of the regiment: "The Twenty-sixth Wisconsin is one of the finest military organizations in the service."

The regiment was mustered out, and left Washington by rail on the 13th of June, and at noon on the 17th, arrived at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, by steamer from Grand Haven, Mich. Here the Twenty-sixth was paid off and disbanded on the 29th of June, 1865.*

* The above military record of the Twenty-sixth Wisconsin during the past year, is compiled from the military history written by F. C. Winkler, Esq., of Milwaukee, late colonel of the regiment.

TWENTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT.

On the 3d of October, 1864, the Twenty-seventh Wisconsin embarked at Little Rock, Ark., and descending the Arkansas River, landed at Pine Bluff, Ark., under orders to reinforce General Clayton, whose command was at that time threatened by a greatly superior force of the enemy, under General Magruder. Here the regiment was retained until the 22d of October, when they left Pine Bluff, and arrived in camp at Little Rock on the 24th, having marched a distance of fifty miles.

By order of the general commanding the district of Little Rock, the regiment, on the same day, was detailed to guard the stations and bridges on the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, west of Brownsville. Companies A, D, E and H were assigned to this duty, and stationed at various points on the line of railroad; the remaining companies going into camp at Little Rock, on the left bank of the river, near the railroad depot.

In this duty the regiment was employed until the 7th of February, 1865, at which date, under orders to join General Canby's forces at New Orleans, they embarked at Little Rock and descending the Arkansas and Mississippi Rivers, landed on the 12th at Algiers, La. Here they re-embarked on the 20tn of February, and landed on the 25th at Navy Cove, Ala. They encamped at Mobile Point, near Fort Morgan, where on the 27th of February, the regiment was assigned to the Third brigade, Third division of the Thirteenth army corps.

As a part of the forces under command of Major General Canby, destined for the reduction of Spanish Fort, they left Mobile Point on the 17th of March, and moving slowly, on account of the condition of the roads and the difficulty of moving the trains, took position on the 27th in the trenches before Spanish Fort. They were thenceforward occupied in picket and fatigue duty, until the termination of the siege, during which the regiment sustained a loss of three killed and nine wounded.

The enemy having evacuated the fort during the night of the 8th of April, the Twenty-seventh on the following day marched five miles northward to Fort Blakely, before which they arrived in time to witness its capture by the forces under command of Major General Steele. On the evening of the 11th of April they marched twelve miles to Starks' Landing on Mobile Bay, where, owing to lack of transportation, the regiment was separated from the brigade. Having remained two days at Starks' Landing, awaiting transportation, they returned on the 14th of April to Blakely, and marched thence next day through Mobile to Whistler Station, five miles north of the city, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, where they rejoined the brigade and encamped late in the evening.

Marching from Whistler on the morning of the 19th of April, a distance of thirty-six miles, they encamped at noon next day at Nannahubbah Bluff, near the confluence of the Alabama and Tombigbee Rivers. On the 25th, they ascended the Tombigbee River, twenty miles to McIntosh Bluff, where the regiment was employed in building fortifications, until the surrender of the rebel General Taylor's forces rendered further occupation of the post unnecessary.

On the 9th of May they were placed on transports, and proceeding down the river to Mobile, went into camp, three and a half miles from the city. Here they remained until the 1st of June, when they again embarked, and leaving Mobile on the following day, proceeded via the Gulf of Mexico to Brazos Santiago, Texas, at which place they disembarked on the 6th of June. On the 13th, they marched eight miles to Clarksville, at the mouth of the Rio Grande, where they were employed in picket and guard duty, until the 2d of August, at which date they marched to Brownsville.

Here the regiment was mustered out and set out for home on the 29th of August. They arrived next day at Brazos Santiago, where they embarked on the 1st of September. They reached New Orleans, La., on the 5th and re-embarking on the 7th, left that city in the evening. Proceeding up the Mississippi River, they arrived on the 14th at Cairo, Ill., from which point the journey was continued by rail.

They arrived on the 17th of September, 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where the regiment was shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

TWENTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT.

The Twenty-eighth remained in camp at Pine Bluff, Ark., engaged in garrison and fatigue duty, until the 30th of November, 1864, when they were relieved from duty at that post, and marching by way of Rock Spring, a distance of fifty miles, arrived and encamped at Little Rock, Ark., on the 2d of December.

On the 22d of January, 1865, accompanying an expedition under command of Brigadier General Carr, they left Little Rock, and having marched a distance of seventy-five miles, arrived on the 27th at Mount Elba, on the Saline River. In returning they left Mount Elba on the 30th, and on the 4th of February returned to camp at Little Rock.

In obedience to orders to report to Major General Canby at New Orleans, they left Little Rock on the 11th of February, proceeding thence by rail forty-five miles to Duval's Bluff, Ark., where they embarked, and descending the White and Mississippi Rivers, arrived on the 16th at Algiers, La. Re-embarking on the 22d, they landed on the 25th on Mobile Point, where the regiment was shortly afterwards assigned to the Third brigade, Third division, Thirteenth army corps.

Accompanying the movement of our forces against Spanish Fort, they left Mobile Point on the 17th of March, and advancing with great difficulty over very bad roads, a distance of forty-five miles, arrived on the 23d at Fish River, where they were delayed two days. Resuming the march on the 25th, they took position on the 27th in the trenches before Spanish Fort, where the regiment was employed in siege and picket duty, until its evacuation by the rebels during the night of the 8th of April. On the next day they marched five miles to Blakely, which they reached too late to take part in its capture.

They left Blakely on the evening of the 11th of April, and marching thence fourteen miles to Starks' Landing, embarked at that point on the 12th and crossed Mobile Bay, landing five miles south of Mobile. In the evening, they marched to and encamped in the city, which had been abandoned by the enemy. On the 13th, they marched northward to Whistler Station, five miles from Mobile, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad; remaining at that point until the 19th, when they were ordered to move to the northward and encamped on the following day thirty-five miles from Whistler at Nannahubbah Bluff, near the confluence of the Tombigbee and Alabama Rivers. Embarking at this place on the 25th, they ascended the Tombigbee River to McIntosh Bluff, where the regiment was employed in the construction of fortifications, until the surrender of the rebel forces under General Dick Taylor.

Proceeding down the river on the 9th of May to Mobile, they remained in camp at that city until the 31st of May, when the regiment was placed on transports, under orders to join our forces in Texas. They arrived on the 6th of June at Brazos Santiago, Texas, whence on the 16th, they marched to Clarksville, at the mouth of the Rio Grande. Here the regiment was employed in garrison and picket duty, until the 3d of August, at which date they marched to Brownsville, where the Twenty-eighth was mustered out and placed on transports en route for home, on the 23d of August.

They arrived on the 15th of September, 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where the men, on the 23d were paid and disbanded.

TWENTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

On the 23d of October, 1864, the Twenty-ninth regiment embarked at St. Charles, Ark., where for some time previous they had been stationed as garrison, and ascending the White River, arrived next day at Duval's Bluff, then the terminus of the Memphis and Little Rock railroad.

Returning, they left Duval's Bluff on the 25th, and landed next day at St. Charles, where they re-embarked on the 27th of October, under orders to proceed to the mouth of White River, at which place they went into camp on the evening of the same day, and were engaged in guard and picket duty until the 11th of November, when they were placed on transports, with an additional force of cavalry, and moved ten miles up the Mississippi, on an expedition organized for the purpose of obtaining mules for the quartermaster's department. Landing at McGee's plantation, Miss., the infantry remained near the river, while the cavalry moved into the country, and having captured a number of prisoners, returned in the evening to camp.

The regiment again embarked on the 12th of November, and moving up the White River, landed on the 15th at Duval's Bluff, whence, on the 17th, they proceeded by rail to Little Rock. On arriving at the latter place, late in the evening, they were invited to share the hospitality of their comrades of the Ninth Wisconsin, who had kindly prepared supper for them in anticipation of their arrival.

They were employed in heavy fatigue and picket duty at Little Rock, until the 24th of November, when they moved by rail to Duval's Bluff, and embarking at the latter place on the 25th, proceeded by way of the White and Mississippi Rivers to Memphis, Tenn., where they landed on the 28th, and went into camp. Accompanying General Lawler's forces in an expedition as support to General Grierson's cavalry, they left Memphis on the 21st of December, and having advanced a distance of forty miles, arrived on the 24th opposite Moscow, on Wolf River. Commencing the return march on the 26th, they arrived on the 31st at camp in Memphis, where company I rejoined the regiment.

While the Twenty-ninth was stationed at Little Rock, this company was detached from the regiment on the 19th of November, and ordered up the Arkansas River to Fort Smith, as guard to a steamer. When about sixty-five miles above Lewisburg, the boat was snagged and sunk, proving a total wreck. The company remained near the place until the 20th of December, when they embarked, and, after considerable delay, succeeded in rejoining their comrades at Memphis.

On the 1st of January, 1865, the regiment embarked at Memphis, under orders to report to Major General Canby at New Orleans, where they arrived on the 4th. Next day they encamped at Kennerville, a railroad station on the bank of the Mississippi, and remained until the 5th of February, when they embarked, under orders to proceed to Dauphin Island, near Mobile. They landed on the 8th near Fort Gaines on Dauphin Island. Here the regiment was assigned to the First brigade, First division of the Thirteenth army corps, and on the 17th of March, participating in the general movement of the forces put in motion against the defences of Mobile, they crossed the bay to Mobile Point, whence on the 19th, they set out for Spanish Fort.

The ground over which they marched, being low and swampy, it was necessary to 'corduroy' about twenty miles of the road, and having encountered great difficulties during the march of fifty miles from Fort Morgan, they took position on the 27th in the trenches before Spanish Fort. While stationed at the front the regiment lost one killed and one wounded. Under orders to guard a supply train for General Steele, then at Blakely, they left the trenches in front of Spanish Fort on the 31st of March, meeting the train at Holyoke Farm, where they lay two days, and took position on the 3d of April, with the forces besieging Blakely. Here they remained until the evening of the 8th, when in obedience to orders to report to General A. J. Smith, they marched three miles in the direction of Spanish Fort.

On receiving intelligence of the evacuation of Spanish Fort, this order was countermanded, and on the 9th of April, they returned to position near Blakely, which was assaulted and carried by our troops in the afternoon. In this action the Twenty-ninth was not engaged. On the 10th they marched four miles to the right and rear of our lines, and on the evening of the following day set out for Starks' Landing, on Mobile Bay, arriving at four in the morning of the 12th of April. Thence crossing the bay, they landed at noon on its western shore, five miles below the city. The Twenty-ninth Wisconsin, the second regiment to reach the city, entered Mobile at two in the afternoon. Here they were assigned to permanent duty as provost guard. By the explosion of the magazine on the 25th of May, two men of the regiment were killed, and four wounded.

Under orders to report at New Orleans, they embarked at Mobile on the evening of the 26th of May, and arrived on the 28th at Hickox's Landing, on Lake Pontchartrain, about four miles from New Orleans. Marching thence by way of Halfway House, they arrived on the 30th of May at New Orleans, where they immediately re-embarked, under orders to proceed to Shreveport, La., and leaving New Orleans next day, they arrived and encamped at Shreveport on the 8th of June.

The regiment was employed in provost guard duty at this place, until the 22d of June, when they were mustered out of service, and placed on transports, en route for Wisconsin. On arriving at the mouth of Red River on the 25th, they moved to Port Hudson, La., where they were detained one day while awaiting the result of a communication by telegraph, with New Orleans, and resuming their progress up the Mississippi on the 26th, they arrived on the 3d of July at Cairo, Ill. Proceeding thence by rail, they reached Madison, Wisconsin, on the 5th of July, and on the 17th of July, 1865, were paid off and formally disbanded.

THIRTIETH REGIMENT.

On the 1st of October, 1864, detachments of the Thirtieth Wisconsin were stationed at various places in Dakota Territory, as follows: Companies A, C, F and H, under the immediate command of Colonel Dill, at Fort Rice, of which post Lieutenant Colonel Bartlett was placed in command; companies B, E, G and K, under command of Major Clowney, at Fort Wadsworth, near Coteau des Prairies; company D, under command of Captain Fulton, at Fort Sully; and company I, under command of Captain Grier, at Fort Union.

Companies A, C, F and H, commanded by Colonel Dill, left Fort Rice, in Dakota Territory, on the 12th of October, and descending the Missouri River on flat boats, arrived on the 2d of November, at Sioux City, Ia., where they were joined by company D of the regiment, under Lieutenant Marshall, who had assumed command of the company on the 14th of October previous, the date of Captain Fulton's departure to accept promotion. Continuing the journey down the Missouri, on the 3d of November, they arrived on the 17th of November at St. Joseph, Mo.

Company H having been detained by floating ice, Captain Bedal abandoned his boat a few miles above St. Joseph, and marched with his command to the city, rejoining the other companies on the 23d at that place.

They left St. Joseph on the 24th of November, and proceeding by rail, arrived on the following day at Quincy, Ill.; and continuing thence by way of Springfield, Ill., and Indianapolis Ind., arrived on the 29th at Louisville, Ky., where they went into camp.

Companies B, E, G and K, under command of Major Clowney, left Fort Wadsworth, Dakota Territory, on the 29th of September, en route for Fort Snelling, Minn., where they arrived on the 12th of October, having marched upwards of three hundred miles. Embarking at Fort Snelling on the 20th of October, they descended the Mississippi River to St. Louis, Mo., where they arrived on the 26th, and were quartered in Benton Barracks. They left St. Louis on the 29th, and arrived next day at Paducah, Ky., at the mouth of the Tennessee River. Here they were employed in guard duty until the 6th of December, when they again embarked, and proceeding up the Ohio River, landed on the 10th at Louisville, Ky., where they rejoined the balance of the regiment, with the exception of company I, which still remained at Fort Union, Dakota Territory.

On the 12th of December, the Thirtieth Wisconsin, nine companies, left Louisville by rail, and next day arrived and went into camp at Bowling Green, Ky., seventy-four miles from Louisville, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, near Green River. Here the regiment was assigned to the Second brigade of the Second division, Military District of Kentucky. Colonel Dill took charge of the brigade, and Major Clowney assumed command of the regiment.

The regiment on the 10th of January, 1865, left Bowling Green, and arrived en the 12th at Louisville, where they were assigned to duty as guard at the military prison in that city.

On the 20th of January, companies A, D and F, under command of Captain Meacham, were detached as provost guard in the city; and on the 8th of February, companies B, E and G, under command of Major Clowney, proceeded by rail to Frankfort, Ky., sixty-five miles from Louisville, under orders to assume the duties of permanent garrison of that city. Company B, on the 20th of March, moved from Frankfort to Georgetown, near which they were stationed as garrison, under command of Lieutenant Gill.

Lieutenant Colonel Bartlett rejoined and assumed command of the regiment at Louisville, in the latter part of February, and on the 17th of April, Colonel Dill was appointed provost marshal general of Kentucky. Company B returned to and rejoined their comrades on the 27th of May, and early in June, companies E and G returned to Louisville, where company I also rejoined the regiment on the 22d of June, having been relieved from duty at Fort Union, Dacotah Territory, on the 4th of June.

The regiment was mustered out of service at Louisville, and set out for home on the 20th of September, 1865, and on the 25th, arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, where it was paid and disbanded.

THIRTY-FIRST REGIMENT.

Subsequent to the capture of Atlanta, Ga., the Thirty-first Wisconsin was stationed within the fortifications at that place, where they were employed in guard duty as a portion of the garrison. The regiment was also ordered upon two foraging expeditions, one of which left camp on the 16th and the other on the 26th of October. These expeditions, each of which occupied five days, were attended with much labor and danger.

The regiment, attached to the Third brigade of the First division, left Atlanta on the 15th of November, with the Twentieth corps, the movements of which they accompanied during the march to Savannah.

On the route, they participated in nothing of more importance than the usual skirmishing while in advance, until the 9th of December, when the march of the column, of which the regiment formed part, was checked at a point nine miles from Savannah, by a body of the enemy, posted in two small redoubts, commanding the Springfield road, upon which the column was advancing. Under orders to move to the left, and flank the rebel position, the Thirty-first Wisconsin and Sixty-first Ohio, struggled through an almost impenetrable swamp, and under a severe fire of musketry, charged upon and carried the works, before other troops could arrive, capturing the entire camp and equipments of the rebels.

In this affair, the Thirty-first sustained a loss of one killed and three wounded, one of the latter mortally. For this gallant exploit, these two regiments received the compliments of the division and corps commanders, and also of Major General Slocum, commanding the left wing of the army. The regiment occupied position on the left of the investing line, during the siege of Savannah, and after the surrender, occupied position within the city.

On the 18th of January, 1865, they crossed the Savannah River, to rejoin the brigade, from which they had been separated for some days, and at Purysburg, about twenty-five miles from Savannah, they overtook the First and Third divisions of the corps. Owing to the heavy rains which prevailed at the time, in consequence of which the whole country was flooded, the corps was compelled to remain at this place until the 28th of January, when the forward movement was resumed. It is worthy of remark, that at this village, in the month of January, 1779, the American army, under General Lincoln, was delayed for three weeks by high water, in consequence of which Savannah was lost.

During the laborious and eventful march through the Carolinas, the Thirty-first performed its full share of skirmishing, foraging, destruction of railroads, and corduroying the common roads for the wagon trains, and on the 1st of March formed part of the advance column of attack upon Chesterfield, S. C., which was held by a brigade of rebel cavalry. In the brief action which followed, resulting in the capture of the place, the regiment sustained no loss.

They were in the front line during the battle of Averysboro, N. C., on the 16th of March, losing one man killed and twelve wounded. At the battle of Bentonville, N. C., on the 19th of March; the Thirty-first, with two other regiments, was thrown forward without support or connections. These regiments were attacked by the rebels on both flanks and in front, doubling up the line and forcing them back about a quarter of a mile, in which position, having re-formed the line and established connections on the right and left, they repulsed five different charges of the enemy, holding their ground from two in the afternoon until dark, when they were relieved and took position in the second line. In this engagement, the regiment lost sixty men, killed, wounded and missing. On the 24th of March, they arrived at Goldsboro, N. C., where the regiment was reclothed and refitted.

The Thirty-first remained at Goldsboro until the 10th of April, when they set out with the corps for Raleigh, and passing through that city, had advanced eighteen miles beyond, when hostilities were brought to a close by the surrender of General Johnston, after which they returned to Raleigh and encamped. Commencing the homeward march on the 30th of April, they reached Alexandria, Va., on the 20th of May, and on the 24th, took part in the grand review of General Sherman's army at Washington, three miles east of which they went into camp.

Having been assigned to the Provisional division of the Fourteenth army corps, composed of western troops, they left Washington by rail on the 10th of June, for Parkersburg, Va., where they embarked on the 13th, and descending the Ohio River, landed on the 15th, at Louisville, Ky., encamping four miles from the city.

Here companies A, B, C, D, E and F were mustered out of service on the 20th of June, and next day set out for home, arriving on the 23d at Madison, Wis., where they were paid and formally disbanded on the 8th of July.

The other companies of the regiment, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Rogers, were mustered out on the 8th of July, and left Louisville on the following day. On the 11th, they arrived at Madison, Wis., where they were paid and disbanded on the 20th of July, 1865.

THIRTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

Early in the month of October, the Thirty-second regiment moved from East Point, Ga., to Atlanta, where they were employed in fatigue and guard duty until the 15th of November, at which date they rejoined the Third brigade, First division of the Seventeenth army corps; and accompanying the movement of General Sherman's army, set out on the march to Savannah.

They crossed the Ocmulgee River, sixty-five miles from Atlanta on the 19th of November, and on the 22d, arrived at Gordon, twenty miles from Macon, at the junction of the Milledgeville and Eatonton, with the Georgia Central railroad. Destroying the railroad as they advanced, the regiment crossed the Ogeechee River on the 30th, and on the 2d of December, reached Millen, seventy-nine miles from Savannah, at the junction of the Augusta and Savannah, with the Georgia Central railroad. Having destroyed the public property at this place, they moved forward next day, and on the morning of the 5th, encountered the enemy, posted in considerable force to dispute the passage of the Little Ogeechee River. After a sharp skirmish at this place, which resulted in the rout of the enemy, they pressed forward, passing through Marlow, twenty-six miles from Savannah, on the 8th of December. Next morning, a short distance from Marlow, on reaching the Louisville road, they encountered the enemy's skirmishers.

"The First division, having the advance, deployed in line of battle and throwing out skirmishers, advanced a distance of eight miles, driving the rebels from several strong positions, and establishing our line in the evening, eight miles from Savannah. Loss during the day, four men wounded."*

Early on the morning of the 10th of December, they moved with slight opposition, four miles to the Ogeechee Canal, near which they took position, and developed the enemy's works, without loss. On the 12th, they accompanied the movement of the corps, which had been relieved on the preceding day, and took position on the extreme right. The regiment, on the 13th, was detailed to guard a forage train, and returned to camp on the following day, having marched a distance of fifty miles.

Accompanying the First division, which with the Second, had been ordered to destroy the Savannah and Gulf railroad between the Ogeechee and Altamaha Rivers, they left camp on the 16th of December, and arrived on the 18th at Wallhourville. Having completed the destruction of the railroad, they returned on the 24th to Savannah, and went into camp near the city at Fort Thunderbolt, where they remained until the 3d of January, 1865, when they embarked, and proceeding to Beaufort, on Port Royal Island, S. C., landed at that place on the 5th.

* Official report.

They left Beaufort on the 13th of January, and having marched a distance of twenty-four miles, encamped on the 15th, at Pocotaligo, which the rebels had evacuated during the previous night. From the 16th to the 26th, they were employed on two expeditions to the Salkehatchie River, and on the 30th, broke camp at Pocotaligo, accompanying the advance of the army.

Crossing Whippy Swamp on the 1st of February, they arrived on the following day at Rivers' Bridge, on the Salkehatchie, where the regiment, during the day, took part in several charges upon the enemy's works. Early on the morning of the 3d of February, the Thirty-second deployed in front of the enemy's works, and by ten o'clock had succeeded in passing company B across the river. This company was followed at noon by the balance of the regiment, and shortly after four in the afternoon, they had succeeded in effecting a lodgment on dry ground, outflanking the enemy on his right. The enemy having retreated from the position, the regiment moved into his abandoned works at six in the evening; having worked from six in the morning until four in the afternoon, in water from one to four feet deep, and sustained a loss during the day of eight killed and forty three wounded.

Resuming the forward movement on the 6th of February, they crossed the Little Salkehatchie River next day, and occupied Midway, sixty-five miles from Augusta, on the Charleston and Augusta railroad. Here the regiment destroyed the railroad, and on the 9th, skirmishing with the enemy as they advanced, accompanied the forward movement of the corps to Binnaker's Bridge, on the South Edisto River, where the enemy held a strongly fortified position. At three in the afternoon, company E of the regiment, by means of a small raft, was thrown across the stream some distance below the rebel position. A boat was then procured from the pontoon train, and companies C, G and I crossed the river, holding the opposite bank until the pontoons were laid, when the balance of the regiment crossed, and supported by two other regiments, succeeded by eight in the evening in securing a position on firm ground. An hour afterwards, they turned the enemy's left flank and carried the rebel works by assault, driving the garrison out in disorder, and capturing a number of prisoners. In this gallant affair, the regiment lost one killed and five wounded.

On the 12th of February, they acted as support to the Third division in the engagement at the North Edisto River, and crossing that stream in the afternoon, bivouacked at Orangeburg, seventeen miles from Branchville, on the Columbia railroad. Having destroyed the railroad in the vicinity, they crossed the Saluda and Broad Rivers, and entered Columbia on the 17th. They left Columbia on the 18th of February, and marching northward on the line of the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad, passed through Winnsboro on the 22d, and thence moving eastward on the Camden road by way of Liberty Church, crossed the Wateree River at Peah's Ferry, on the 23d. Marching by way of Liberty Hill on the 24th, they crossed Lynch's Creeks on the 26th and 27th, and arrived near Cheraw on the following day.

In a reconnoissance on the 2d of March, the enemy was discovered six miles from the city, stationed in rifle pits, commanding the road, when the right wing of the regiment was deployed, and, supported by the brigade, charged upon and carried the rebel position, driving the enemy back to his main line in front of the city, the Thirty-second losing one man wounded. Next day, having marched six miles in line as support to a battery, they entered Cheraw, the terminus of the Cheraw and Darlington railroad. They left Cheraw on the 4th of March, and crossing the Great Pedee River in the evening, passed through Bennettsville on the 6th, and having been delayed two days on the road by heavy rains, arrived on the 11th at Fayetteville, N. C. Here the Third brigade on the 12th of March, was ordered to cover the laying of pontoons across the Cape Fear River, and the regiment crossing in boats, was engaged in heavy skirmishing during the day. They advanced next day, driving the rebel skirmishers through several miles of swamp, and losing two men wounded.

From this date, they moved forward with much difficulty through a very swampy country, until the 20th, when the regiment was ordered forward as support to the Fourteenth and Twentieth corps, near Bentonville. At noon on the following day, they took position on the right of the army, and advancing with the First division, through a swamp two miles wide, charged and captured the enemy's works, driving him in confusion from the field. The regiment held the captured ground until all support on right and left had fallen back, when by order of the commanding general, they withdrew to a less exposed position. In this action, the regiment sustained a loss of two killed, twenty-three wounded and two missing. On reaching the Neuse River, on the 24th of March, the regiment was detached as guard to the pontoon bridge, in which duty they were engaged until the 31st, when they were relieved and rejoined the brigade, two miles from Goldsboro.

Accompanying the general movement, they left Goldsboro on the 10th of April, and having marched sixty-four miles, arrived on the 14th at Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina. On the 25th, they moved fifteen miles in a westerly direction, and upon the final surrender of General Johnston with his army, returned on the 27th to Raleigh. Commencing the march to Richmond, they left Raleigh on the 29th of April, and crossing the Neuse River near the city, remained in camp during the following day.

Resuming the homeward march on the morning of the 1st of May, they moved northward by way of Forestville and Clarksville, arriving on the evening of the 3d at the Roanoke River. Here they were detained one day to allow the Fifteenth corps to precede them, and crossing the river on the morning of the 5th, reached Richmond, Va., on the 9th of May. They left Richmond on the 12th, and moving by way of Hanover Court House and Fredericksburg, arrived on the 19th at Alexandria, where they remained until the 23d of May, at which date they moved eight miles to Long Bridge. On the 24th they took part in the grand review at the national capital, and encamped in the afternoon at Crystal Springs, near Washington, where the Thirty-second was mustered out of service on the 12th of June, 1865.

They set out for home on the same day, and proceeding by way of Pittsburg and Detroit, arrived on the 10th of June at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where they were soon afterwards paid and disbanded.

THIRTY-THIRD REGIMENT.

The Thirty-third Wisconsin embarked at Cape Girardeau, Mo., on the 7th of October, 1864, and ascending the Mississippi River, reached St. Louis on the evening of the following day. Without landing, the men were here supplied with clothing and equipments, preparatory to a campaign up the Missouri River, and on the morning of the 11th of October, left St. Louis under orders to proceed to Jefferson City, where they disembarked on the evening of the 15th, their progress up the river having met with frequent interruptions, owing to the low stage of water. After a delay of two days, awaiting transportation, they proceeded by rail on the 17th of October, to Lamine Bridge, at that time the terminus of the Pacific railroad, which had been destroyed beyond that point by the rebel forces under General Price. They left Lamine Bridge on the evening of the 22d of October, and marching westward a distance of fifty miles, encamped on the 24th at Warrensburg, where the regiment was employed in the performance of guard and provost duty, during the pursuit of General Price's forces by our army.

On the 1st of November, the regiment was ordered to St. Louis as guard to a body of rebel prisoners, numbering upwards of six hundred. They arrived at St. Louis on the 6th of November, and occupied quarters in Schofield Barracks, until the 12th, when they moved to Benton Barracks, at which place the regiment was re-equipped for an active campaign.

The Thirty-third embarked at Benton Barracks on the 23d of November, under orders to reinforce the army under command of Major General Thomas; and landing on the 30th at Nashville, Tenn., encamped three miles from the city, taking position on the extreme right of the army.

While here, General A. J. Smith's command, with which the regiment had been identified since the 8th of March previous, was reorganized and designated as the detachment army of the Tennessee, and was occupied in strengthening the works in front of the city, and occasional skirmishes with the rebel forces, until the 15th of December, the first day of the battle of Nashville, when our forces, commanded by General Thomas, attacked in his entrenchments the enemy under General Hood.

The Thirty-third, in the morning, moved out from the position on the Hardin pike, and was held in reserve with its brigade [First brigade, Third division] until three in the afternoon, when the brigade was ordered to the support of the First division, closing a gap between that and the Second division. They shortly afterwards charged a body of the enemy posted on the 'Granny White' pike, between two stone walls, and having encountered but slight resistance from the enemy, captured two hundred and eighty prisoners, many of whom surrendered with loaded arms. The brigade afterwards advanced to the edge of some timber, and bivouacked for the night. Early on the morning of the 16th of December, they were ordered to the support of the Twenty-third corps, and moved to the extreme right, taking position on a range of hills, which they held, without becoming engaged, until three in the afternoon, when a general advance was ordered, resulting in the utter rout of the enemy, who abandoned his position at all points. The regiment bivouacked for the night on the ground occupied before the charge by our advance line.

Next morning, [December 17th], commenced the march on the track of the dispirited and demoralized enemy, which was kept up until the remnant of his army was driven across the Tennessee River, when farther pursuit was abandoned. During the latter part of this march, many of the men were barefoot, and all "suffered great hardships, which were endured without a murmur."*

The regiment, on the 2d of January, 1865, reached and encamped at Clifton, Tenn., on the Tennessee River. From this point the army was ordered to proceed by transports to Eastport, Miss.; the Thirty-third at the same time being assigned to the duty of guard for the transportation train to Savannah, Tenn. In the performance of this duty, the regiment left Clifton, on the morning of the 9th of January, but the roads were so bad that at night, the advance of the train had accomplished but seven miles, and the rear of the train was still within two miles of the town. Next morning, Lieutenant Colonel Lovell, with companies A, C, D, F, H and I, and part of the train, proceeded to Savannah, while Major Virgin with companies B, E, G and K, and the balance of the train, succeeded in reaching Grand View. The detachments proceeded from these points by transports, arriving on the 14th of January, at Eastport, Miss., where the regiment rejoined the brigade and went into camp. They accompanied the brigade on the 18th, in a reconnoissance to Corinth, Miss., from which next day, they dislodged Ross' rebel brigade, after a sharp skirmish. They bivouacked in the town until three in the afternoon, when they marched in retvrn, arriving on the 21st, in camp at Eastport. On the 31st, they again left camp on a reconnoitring expedition to Iuka, and on their return had a slight skirmish with the enemy, arriving at Eastport on the 1st of February.

Accompanying the movement of General Smith's command, which was now ordered to the Department of the Gulf, they embarked on the 6th of February, at Eastport, and proceeding by way of Paducah, Ky., arrived on the 8th, at Cairo, Ill. Descending the Mississippi River, they reached Memphis, Tenn., on the 10th, and resuming the journey thence on the 12th, arrived on the following day at Vicksburg, Miss. Here the regiment landed, and moved to camp at Four-mile Bridge, in rear of the city, remaining until the 20th of February, at which date they re-embarked at Vicksburg, and continuing down the river, landed next day at New Orleans, La. They encamped at Chalmette, upon the field of battle of New Orleans, where General Smith's command was reorganized and designated as the Sixteenth army corps.

On the 11th of March, they moved to Lake Pontchartrain and again embarked, arriving on the 14th at Dauphin Island, near Mobile, whence they proceeded on the 18th to Cedar Point. They lay on their arms during the night, and next morning advanced along the west side of the bay, company A and part of company B being deployed as skirmishers. This demonstration was kept up until they had driven the rebel force across Fowl River, upon the bank of which the regiment remained until four in the afternoon, when they marched in return, the enemy skirmishing with the rear, as the line was slowly retired. They again embarked on the 22d of March, and crossing Mobile Bay, ascended Fish River next day to Smith's Mills, where they rejoined the main body, and commenced the erection of earthworks.

The whole force was put in motion on the 25th of March, towards Spanish Fort, before which the regiment arrived on the 27th, having in their advance driven the enemy to his entrenchments. Early next morning, company E, on the skirmish line, was ordered forward to take possession of a hill about two hundred yards from the fort, which was occupied and held by the company, under a severe fire. During the night, the regiment threw up works and established position within one hundred and fifty yards of the fort, which distance by the 2d of April was diminished to one hundred and twenty-five yards, the nearest approach to the rebel works. From this time the Thirty-third was constantly occupied in heavy fatigue and picket duty, until the 8th of April, when Spanish Fort was occupied by our forces, the Thirty-third being the first organized regiment to enter the main fort, where they captured two Napoleon guns and a number of prisoners. During this campaign, the regiment sustained a loss of four killed and forty-seven wounded.

On the 9th of April, they moved to Blakely, and were held in reserve during the assault and capture of the place. From Blakely, on the 13th of April, they commenced the march to Montgomery, Ala., where they arrived on the 25th, and were stationed for some time in the performance of guard and picket duty. They left Montgomery on the 23d of May, and marching eastward, arrived on the 25th at Tuskegee, at which point they were employed in provost duty until the 19th of July, when they returned, rejoining the brigade on the 21st at Montgomery.

Under orders to proceed to Vicksburg for discharge from service, they embarked at Montgomery on the 23d of July, and descending the Alabama River, landed on the 25th at Selma, from which place they proceeded by rail, arriving on the 28th at Jackson, Miss. Marching thence on the 29th, they arrived next morning at Big Black River Bridge, from which point they again proceeded by rail, reaching Vicksburg on the last day of July.

The intervening time having been fully occupied in completing the necessary rolls, the regiment was mustered out of service on the 8th of August, and on the same day embarked, en route for home. They reached Cairo, Ill., on the 12th, and proceeding thence by rail, the Thirty-third arrived on the 14th at Madison, Wisconsin, where the regiment was paid and finally disbanded on the 1st of September, 1865.

THIRTY-FIFTH REGIMENT.

Of the Thirty-fifth Wisconsin, recruited and organized under the superintendence of Colonel Henry Orff, the first company was mustered into the United States service at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, on the 27th of November, 1863, and the last company on the 27th of February, 1864, when the regimental organization was perfected.

Under orders to report to Major General Steele, at Alexandria, La., they left Milwaukee on the 18th of April, 1864, and on the 21st arrived at St. Louis, Mo., where the regiment was quartered in Benton Barracks and equipped for active service. They embarked on the 26th of April at St. Louis, and descending the Mississippi River, reached the mouth of the Red River on the 1st of May. Failing to obtain transportation at this place, they continued down the river to New Orleans, where, after a delay of two days, they received orders from Major General Banks, to report to Brigadier General Ullmann, commanding Port Hudson, La., at which place the regiment disembarked on the 7th of May.

The navigation of the Red River being closed, they remained in camp at Port Hudson, employed in guard, picket and fatigue duty, in and around the fort, until the 26th of June, at which date, by order of Major General Reynolds, commanding the Nineteenth army corps, they moved up the Mississippi to Morganzia, La., where the regiment was assigned to the First brigade, Third division, Nineteenth army corps, commanded by Brigadier General A. L. Lee.

At the time of the invasion of Missouri, by the rebel forces under General Price, and the anticipated attacks of General Magruder in Arkansas, the regiment, with the First brigade, was ordered to St. Charles, Ark., on the White River, and leaving Morganzia on the 13th of July, arrived on the 24th at St. Charles. Here they were employed in guard duty and labor on the fortifications, with occasional scouting expeditions through the surrounding country, until the 7th of August, when they re-embarked, and descending the White and Mississippi Rivers, arrived on the 14th at Morganzia, La.

At this place they were employed in guard and picket duty, until the 1st of October, when they set out with the brigade on an expedition to Simmsport, on the Atchafalaya River, during which they participated in several skirmishes. They returned on the 10th of October to Morganzia, where they embarked on the following day, and proceeding up the Mississippi and White Rivers, landed on the 18th of October at Duval's Bluff, Ark. Marching from Duval's Bluff, on the 9th of November, a distance of twenty-five miles, they encamped next day at Brownsville, under orders to protect the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, and intercept the retreat of the rebel forces under General Price.

They left Brownsville on the 1st of December, and next day reached Duval's Bluff, where the regiment on the 14th of December was assigned to the Fourth brigade of the Reserve corps, Military division of West Mississippi.

The regiment was stationed at Duval's Bluff, employed in guard and picket duty, with labor on the fortifications, until the 7th of February, 1865, at which date, in obedience to orders to join Major General Canby's forces at New Orleans, they embarked, and descending the White and Mississippi Rivers, landed on the 13th at Algiers, La., remaining in camp at that place, until the 22d of February, when they re-embarked, under orders to join our forces operating against the defences of Mobile. On the 26th of February, they landed on Mobile Point, where the Thirty-fifth was assigned to the First brigade, Third division of the Thirteenth army corps, with which, on the 17th of March, they commenced the march for Spanish Fort.

They arrived and took position in front of Spanish Fort on the 27th of March, and were engaged in siege duty, with a loss of two killed and fifteen wounded, until the evacuation of the works by the enemy on the night of the 8th of April. On the following day, they marched ten miles to Fort Blakely, arriving too late to assist in its capture, and on the evening of the 11th, they set out for Spanish Fort, near which they embarked next day, and crossing Mobile Bay, landed on the west shore, five miles below the city. They marched through Mobile on the 13th of April, to Whistler Station, five miles above the city, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad.

From Whistler Station they moved on the 19th of April, and marching northward a distance of forty-five miles, encamped on the 21st at Nannahubbah Bluff, near the confluence of the Alabama and Tombigbee Rivers. On the 26th of April, they moved up the bank of the Tombigbee River a distance of ten miles to McIntosh Bluff, where the regiment was engaged in building fortifications until the surrender of the rebels under General 'Dick' Taylor. Proceeding down the river on the 9th of May, to Mobile, they encamped in the evening near the city, remaining until the 1st of June, when they were placed on transports, under orders to proceed to Texas.

They arrived on the 8th of June, at Brazos Santiago, Texas, where they remained in camp until the 20th of June, when they marched nine miles to Clarksville. They left Clarksville on the 2d of August, and marching a distance of twenty-five miles, encamped on the following day at Brownsville, Texas, where the regiment was assigned to the "Separate brigade," army of the Rio Grande.

Camp was established a short distance northeast of the town, in which the regiment remained during the balance of its term of service. They were occupied principally in the performance of guard duty in and about the town, and upon several government steamers, plying between that place and Brazos Santiago.

Here the regiment was mustered out of service on the 15th of March, 1866. Commencing the journey homeward on the 25th, they embarked late in the evening, and ascending the river, landed next day at White's Ranch. They thence proceeded by rail in the afternoon to Brazos Santiago, where they were placed on transports, and on the 27th set sail for New Orleans, at which place they arrived on the 1st of April. Resuming the journey next day, they reached Cairo, Ill., on the 8th, and on the 10th arrived at Madison, Wisconsin: where, on the 16th of April, 1866, they were paid and disbanded.

THIRTY-SIXTH REGIMENT.

The Thirty-sixth Wisconsin, recruited under the Government call of February 1st, 1864, for 500,000 men, was rapidly recruited to the maximum, and organized at Camp Randall, Madison, under the superintendence of Colonel Frank A. Haskell, previously adjutant of the Sixth Wisconsin, whose muster into service as colonel dates from the 23d of March, 1864.

The regiment was assigned to the First brigade, Second division of the Second army corps, with which it served until the close of the war.

The Thirty-sixth regiment left the regimental rendezvous at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 10th of May, 1864, and arrived on the 14th, at Washington, where they took transports on the Potomac on the 16th, landing at Belle Plaine, Va., on the evening of the same day. On the 17th, the regiment marched from Belle Plaine via Fredericksburg, to Spottsylvania, and next day acted as reserve, during the engagement at that place. Having joined the brigade to which it had been assigned, on the 19th of May, the regiment, on the evening of the 20th, started for Bowling Green, and crossing the Mattapony River on the following day at Milford, rested for the night and threw up works. On the 22d, they advanced about a mile and erected another line of works, and on the night of the 23d of May, marched to the North Anna River, where the regiment supported a battery and constructed breastworks, while another portion of the division assaulted and captured a rebel fort, thus securing a crossing.

On the 24th of May, they crossed the North Anna on a raft bridge, threw up a line of works, lay in line of battle during a heavy rain storm, and witnessed a very severe engagement about half a mile in front. Companies C and I went on picket and were relieved on the evening of the 25th, by companies H and K, which two companies were ordered on the evening of the 26th of May, to deploy and charge a line of rebel works; in which they were successful, capturing the works with a loss of two killed, twelve wounded and one prisoner. On the same night, they withdrew across the North Anna. While in line of battle on the 27th, a shell struck company A, killing three, and severely wounding four men. The regiment on the same day moved out by the left flank, and marching twenty miles down the north bank of the Pamunkey River, bivouacked at eleven in the evening. At seven in the morning of the 28th of May, they crossed the Pamunkey River, and moved to within fifteen miles of Richmond, and advancing one mile on the following day, they threw up breastworks, and slept on their arms during the night.

At four on the morning of the 30th of May, the regiment moved to the southwest, and at seven o'clock found the rebels drawn up in line of battle in dense woods, in front of which was an open field. In taking position, one man was killed and four wounded. Next day a few men were wounded, during the sharp-shooting, which took place on both sides.

On the 1st of June, occurred the battle of the Tolopotomoy, a general engagement along various parts of the line. About four in the afternoon, the line about four miles to the left being very severely pressed by the enemy, orders were received for a vigorous demonstration in front of the First brigade, in order to retain the rebel divisions, which were moving to reinforce their lines to the left. Four companies on the right of the regiment, B, E, F and G, under command of Captain Warner, were moved forward as skirmishers, forming part of the line which was to advance. The rebels held a strong line of works, with guns mounted, about one hundred yards to the front, to reach which it was necessary to cross an open field. At the command to advance, these companies moved forward at double quick. The line at the right and left, composed of veterans, after advancing a few rods and firing one volley, fell back to the works. The enemy opened upon the advancing lines with grape and very severe musketry, from the front with an oblique fire from right and left, making it almost impossible for a man to live on the field. The line continued to advance, driving in the rebel skirmishers, a portion of it actually passing down to and over the rebel works. Of two hundred and forty men of the Thirty-sixth, engaged in this charge, one hundred and forty were killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

While this seemed like a useless sacrifice of life, it fully accomplished the object proposed. The rebel divisions were returned to this part of the line on the double quick, and our line on the left, already hard pressed, was thus enabled to maintain its ground. In the charge, Captain Burwell, a brave and efficient officer, was mortally wounded and taken prisoner; Captain Lindley slightly wounded, and Lieutenant Newton severely wounded and taken prisoner. The other six companies, while advancing, lost about fifty men wounded.

The regiment moved out at dark, marched all night, and arrived at Cold Harbor, at eight in the morning of the 2d of June. At four next morning, the whole line advanced upon the enemy by brigades, in column closed in mass by regiments, the Thirty-sixth being in rear of the brigade. On advancing about three-fourths of a mile across an open field, under a heavy artillery fire, and when within about twenty-five rods of the rebel works, partially protected by the brow of a low hill, the Thirty-sixth was found in the advance, leading the brigade. During the advance, Colonel McKean, commanding the brigade, was killed, when the command devolved upon Colonel Haskell. After a moment's rest, Colonel Haskell, by command of General Gibbon, ordered the brigade forward. The men rose to obey, and were met by a shower of bullets, when the other parts of the line halted. Colonel Haskell surveyed the situation for a moment, as if irresolute; he finally gave the order, "Lie down, men," which was at once obeyed. An instant afterwards, he was struck in the head by a rebel bullet, and instantly killed.

Thus fell one of Wisconsin's most gallant soldiers, a thorough disciplinarian, and an accomplished scholar. Adjutant Atwell was severely wounded, and Lieutenant Lamberton was killed, while assisting the men of company E, which he temporarily commanded, in constructing a slight work for protection.

The regiment, whose loss during the day was three officers and seventy men, killed and wounded, remained on the field until dark, the command devolving upon Lieutenant Colonel Savage. At nine in the evening, they moved to the left and took position about forty rods from the rebel lines, and the four days following were occupied in strengthening the works; firing by sharpshooters continuing all the time. On the 8th of June, firing was suspended and parties were sent between the lines to bury the dead, of whom four hundred were buried in the immediate front of the Thirty-sixth.

The regiment remained at this place, until the evening of the 12th of June, when it was moved out and marched down the bank of the Chickahominy River, crossing that stream next day and moving across the peninsula to Charles City Court House, on the James River, which was crossed on the 14th, on transports. The command waited here twenty-four hours for rations, and on the 15th marched eighteen miles to near Petersburg, where the enemy was found entrenched; the delay while awaiting rations alone preventing our occupying the place first. On the 16th of June, the regiment lay behind the first line of the enemy's works which had been captured by our forces, and was subjected to a heavy shelling from the enemy. Next day, the Second corps acted as reserve, while the colored troops and the Ninth corps made a charge, which was only partially successful.

Forming in line of battle at four in the morning of the 18th of June, they advanced, driving the rebel skirmish line from heavy works, and followed them about a mile through a dense wood, in front of which, across an open field, lay the main rebel line, strongly entrenched. While advancing through the woods, Lieutenant Galloway of company K, fell mortally wounded. At two in the afternoon a general advance was ordered. Colonel Savage, who commanded the regiment, stepped in front of the colors, shouting: "Three cheers for the honor of Wisconsin; forward my brave men:" at the same time springing over the slight works behind which the regiment was lying. The regiment advanced, but the effort was vain. Within two minutes Colonel Savage fell mortally wounded; Major Brown received two severe wounds; Lieutenants Morris and Harris were severely wounded, and nearly one-third of the men fell, killed or wounded. The regiment halted, looked to the right and left and found it was the only one which had advanced over the works. It was certain death to advance, and scarcely less dangerous to attempt to retreat. The soil was light and sandy, and the men lay down, and commenced burrowing with their cups and plates, in the soft ground, where they were forced to remain until darkness enabled them to retire.

This charge is known in the regiment as the "charge over the melon patch." Captain Fisk was the last man to leave the field, bringing with him all the dead and wounded. The loss during the day was five officers and one hundred and eleven men, killed and wounded. The command of the regiment devolved on Captain Warner, and the night was spent in burying the dead and caring for the wounded.

The regiment remained in the works until the 21st of June, when they moved about seven miles around to the left of Petersburg. During the night, the regiment was advanced along the Jerusalem plank road, to a point within twenty rods of the rebel line, where, under a sharp musketry fire, they threw up works. Next morning sharp skirmishing commenced all along the line, and during the day, the First brigade was flanked on the left, and the enemy, filing in the rear, captured one half of the brigade. The Thirty-sixth, changing direction by the left flank, and presenting a front to the enemy, were none of them captured, but sustained a loss of a few men, killed and wounded. On the 24th of June, the regiment was relieved, marched about two miles to the rear and went into camp, where, for the first time in four weeks, the men had a good night's rest.

From this date until the 25th of July, the regiment was in camp in various places near Petersburg; the time being occupied in picket and fatigue duty, building roads and fortifications. In the afternoon of the 26th of July, the Thirty-sixth broke camp and marched all night, passing the rear of Petersburg, and crossing the Appomattox River on a pontoon bridge at Point of Rocks, moved across the peninsula and next morning crossed the James River just above and near Malvern Hills, where the enemy, with four field pieces, was discovered in position. Line of battle was immediately formed and skirmishers thrown out, who captured the guns. This day and the two following were occupied in demonstrating and slight skirmishing; the movement of General Hancock's corps to the north side of the James being a feint to draw in that direction, a portion of the rebel army, while the mine was sprung, and the attempt made on Petersburg. This having been accomplished; the corps, on the evening of the 29th of July, silently recrossed the James River, and made a forced march for Petersburg, arriving there at four o'clock next morning, in time to witness the terrific cannonading of the place, and the explosion of the mine. This effort to capture Petersburg was unsuccessful, but not because of any failure on the part of the Second corps, to perform its appointed part in the programme.

The Thirty-sixth returned to its old camping ground, south of Petersburg, and there remained, performing light duty, until the 12th of August, when they broke camp and marched to City Point, where the Second corps next day took transports and started down the James River. After dark, orders were passed along, when the whole fleet of fourteen transports, turned and moved up the James River to Deep Bottom, very near the place where the corps skirmished on the 28th of July. The troops were landed on the north bank of the river at six o'clock, on the morning of the 14th of August, immediately formed line of battle and advanced along the New Market road towards Richmond. The enemy was soon found, and after some manœuvring for position, a sharp engagement ensued, in which charges and countercharges were made with varying success, until about four o'clock, when the First brigade made a charge upon the rebel works. The brigade formed for the charge, under a severe fire of musketry, during which Major Hamilton was severely wounded in the face, and carried from the field. While advancing upon the enemy's line, Colonel Warner received a shot which shattered his left arm, rendering amputation necessary. Captain Lindley received four wounds, two of which were mortal. Our loss was three officers and twenty-eight men, killed and wounded. The command of the regiment devolved upon Captain Cannon, of company H.

This movement of the Second corps was intended as a diversion in favor of the Fifth corps, and was entirely successful. For, while the enemy was engaged at this point, on the north side of he James, the Fifth corps advanced upon and captured the Weldon railroad, one of the main sources of supply for the rebel army, in and around Petersburg; the repeated efforts of the rebels to retake which attested their estimate of its real value and necessity to them.

The regiment remained on the north bank of the James until the 20th of August, when they moved out of the works, under cover of the night, recrossed the James, and marching all night, arrived on the morning of the 22d at the old camp south of Petersburg, where they rested two hours, after which they moved to the left with the First and Second divisions of the Second corps, and marching until ten in the evening of the 23d, arrived at the Weldon railroad. Moving forward at three next morning, they reached Reams' Station at seven o'clock. The brigade moving to the right, commenced the destruction of the railroad, and at dark moved across the road to breastworks, which had been hastily constructed.

On the morning of the 25th of August, the division was massed about sixty rods in the rear of the works. At ten o'clock sharp skirmishing commenced, and the pickets were driven in. Skirmishing continued all the forenoon. The Thirty-sixth moved into a deep railroad cut and acted as a reserve to the line in front, which three times repulsed the assault of the enemy with great slaughter. By this time, the rebels had placed cannon in position, which enabled them to rake our line with an enfilading fire when they again charged with overwhelming force and swept over the works. As they advanced, they were received by the reserve line with a sharp fire, and for a moment seemed to waver; but just at this time they had broken our line at the right, and were rapidly filing into the rear of the regiment, which in five minutes they had completely surrounded, its peculiar position in the railroad cut preventing a general movement in either direction. A few men cut their way out at great risk, and in making this attempt Lieutenant Ginty, of company E, was instantly killed. The few of the brigade who had escaped, were reformed, and being led by Major General Hancock in person, made a charge, re-capturing several guns. During this charge, Captain Russell, of company F, received a severe wound in the right shoulder, which has rendered his arm nearly useless.

About eleven officers and one hundred and seventy-five men went into the fight at Reams' Station, and the morning report of the next day shows three officers and forty-five men. Of these, Captain Graves, of company K, a noble man and faithful officer, died within two days, from over exertion on this occasion. Captain Griffin, Lieutenants Atwell, Sholes, Bullard, Albee, Matthews and Parker, with about one hundred and thirty men, were captured. Surgeons Miller and Woodward were sent into the rebel lines to care for the wounded. They were taken to Libby Prison, where the exposure incident to his imprisonment caused the death of Surgeon Miller. Of one hundred and twenty-eight of these men, sent to Salisbury, N. C., less than six returned to the regiment, and very few of them ever left the prison at that place.

By misapprehension, (to use the mildest term), on the part of Major General Gibbon, several regiments were, by his orders, deprived of the privilege of carrying national colors. Among these regiments was the Thirty-sixth; but upon a full investigation of the matter, General Gibbon was subsequently ordered to present in person to the regiment a new set of colors, which he did about the 1st of November. On the 3d of September, Lieutenant Baldwin of company D, one of the best officers of the regiment, died of disease in hospital.

After the engagement at Reams' Station, the Thirty-sixth moved back to the Williams' House, and thence to Fort Bross, where they remained, engaged in general duty, until the 25th of September, when they moved into the front line of works, between Forts Steadman and Haskell. Captain Fisk having returned, here resumed command of the regiment. On the night of the 30th of September, severe shelling and musketry fire were kept up along the lines, which at this point were about fifteen rods apart. Mortar shells were constantly dropping over the work, Oscar Reynolds, of company I, being literally torn to pieces by the explosion of one.

On the 4th of October, the regiment moved into Fort Rice. They were stationed here but a couple of days, when the regiment again took position in the works, where they remained until the 22d, employed, under a heavy fire, in the performance of picket and guard duty.

On the night of the 24th of October, the regiment left the front line before Petersburg and moved to the rear. Next day, they marched to the left, and at six on the morning of the 27th arrived within a short distance of the rebel line, near Hatcher's Run, where Lieutenant Ripley, with company A, was ordered forward to develop the enemy. Deploying the company in front of the brigade, he drove in the rebel picket line, and captured their rifle-pits. Heavy skirmishing continued until noon, when the enemy's main line was struck. The Thirty-sixth was formed in line of battle, with the Second and Third brigades on the right, and the Third division in the rear. At three o'clock, the enemy in heavy force charged the Third division, causing it to break, thus cutting off all communication with the rear. Seeing the perilous condition, Captain Fisk ordered the regiment to face by the rear rank, fix bayonets and charge, which was handsomely executed, striking the rebels on the flank, doubling up their line, causing them to break and run, and capturing a large number of prisoners, with one stand of colors. In this engagement, the casualties of the regiment were fifteen wounded and missing. Brigadier General Egan, commanding the Second division, in his official report speaks of the regiment in the highest terms, saying that "it captured a larger number of prisoners than it had men engaged," and refers especially to the gallant conduct and cool daring of Captain Fisk, commanding the regiment.*

*The following letter to the Governor, is submitted in this connection:

"HEADQUARTERS SECOND DIVISION, SECOND ARMY CORPS,

"YOUR EXCELLENCY—At this first opportunity since the recent reconnoissance in force, I address you in approval of the performance of the Thirty-sixth Wisconsin Volunteers, during that movement; they being commanded through all by Captain George A Fisk.

"As your excellency knows, this regiment came here new. They were rushed into the breach untried, in a campaign which has been fiercer and more bloody than Napoleon's. The Thirty-sixth made its debut in a battle, of which the 'London Times' says that England could not levy or lose one-tenth of the number placed hors du combat. It was a contest of veteran Americans, and the comparison with them of inexperienced Americans is most unequal. * * * * * *

"On reaching the field, the Thirty-sixth took up their position as firmly and steadily as the oldest. In all operations in mass, they were undistinguishable, for compactness and celerity, from the best, but soon they were given an opportunity for individual action.

"After several charges and counter charges, in which the advantage remained with us, I determined to take the enemy's position across Hatcher's Run. The order to charge had just been given, when the enemy

After the battle of Hatcher's Run, the regiment returned to the vicinity of the old camp, where they continued during the months of November, December and January, performing the usual amount of picket duty, drilling, and labor on roads and fortifications. In December, Lieutenant Colonel Warner, Major Hamilton, Captain Russell and Lieutenant Morris, having partially recovered from their wounds, returned to the regiment; and Adjutant Atwell, on being released from Libby Prison, also rejoined the command.

On the 5th of February, 1865, the Second and Fifth corps moved to the left flank, about three miles, and engaged the enemy, the left of the Second corps resting on Hatcher's Run, where the Thirty-sixth was subjected a very severe artillery fire. The rebel charge on our line to the right of the regiment, was repulsed with severe loss. During the night, our picket line was broken by the rebels, and two men of the regiment captured and three wounded. By this movement, our lines were advanced about three miles, and extended six miles. Having spent a very unpleasant day on the 7th, exposed to a cold wintry rain, the regiment next morning again commenced building winter quarters, being the fifth they had constructed during the winter.

Here the regiment remained until the 25th of March, at which date, Fort Steadman having been captured by the enemy and retaken by our forces, a strong demonstration was made along the line in front of the Second corps. The regiment participated in this engagement without loss, and returned on the 27th to camp.

They again broke camp on the 29th of March, crossed Hatcher's Run, and advancing in line, occupied the first line of rebel works. That night the regiment bivouacked in a drenching rain, and on the following day advanced to and occupied the enemy's second opened heavily upon my right and rear, and advanced upon my main line in heavy masses. His forces enclosed three sides, and with worse troops, the situation would have been menacing. To crown all, a heavy body of rebels was thrown upon my rear, (the fourth side), and occupied the Boydton road, making a complete surround. A swift face by the rear rank and wheeling charge, by the New Jersey brigade, cleared my right flank, but from the threatening body in my rear, it remained with the Thirty-sixth Wisconsin to relieve me.

"Captain Fisk threw them into line, and dashed at the enemy. It was a short fight; that rebel brigade was instantaneously crumbled and destroyed, being mostly captured, with arms, colors and officers, to a total number three times greater than the Thirty-sixth.

"Having cleared my rear, the regiment returned to its place in line, and behaved equally well until it returned to camp.

"If Napoleon's regiments faltered once, so did they conquer themselves, and take place with his bravest, and so in this more bitter contest, if the Thirty-sixth had anything to redeem, do I now depend upon them with my veterans.

"It will be a pleasurable duty to have their colors publicly restored. Tell their people in Wisconsin that the Thirty-sixth is still a regiment.

"I am, your excellency's obedient servant,

"Brigadier General Commanding Division."

line of works. About a mile in advance, was the main rebel line, with forts mounting guns, and commanding not only the approaches, but so arranged as to enfilade their own lines. The two following days were spent in manœuvring along the line, endeavoring to feel the enemy's position. On the 1st of April, the right wing of the regiment, under command of Major Hamilton, was thrown forward, advancing the picket line within sixty rods of the forts; the left wing advancing as support to the skirmish line, subjected meanwhile to a severe shelling, by which three men were wounded. At four next morning the left wing of the regiment, under command of Captain Cannon, was advanced, with the Nineteenth Massachusetts, to charge the enemy's line at this point, consisting of a redoubt or fort mounting three guns, which was connected with others by strong breast works, and protected by a strong abatis of heavy timber. The attacking party was advanced as near as possible to the fort, under cover of a ravine, and placed in position by Colonel Warner, then division officer of the day.

The order was given to advance, and with a cheer was promptly obeyed, the men moving forward and through the abatis with great activity. The enemy fired a few volleys, but seeing that the work would be warm, swung out the white flag, and in two minutes, the men were swarming over the works. About one hundred and fifty prisoners and three guns were captured. The regiment immediately advanced, securing stragglers, and soon learned that the entire rebel line had given way.

Continuing the pursuit of General Lee's forces on the 3d of April, they crossed the Danville railroad on the 5th and the Appomattox River on the 7th, at High Bridge, where the regiment participated in a severe skirmish; a company of sharpshooters passing out on the burning bridge and engaging a line of rebel skirmishers, who were disputing the passage of the troops below. At Farmville, on the same evening, they participated in another engagement, in which two men were wounded. From this point, the regiment continued the pursuit of General Lee, being frequently in sight of his retreating columns, and finding the roads completely strewn with the debris of the flying army. The Second division in pursuit was on the extreme right of the corps.

On the 8th of April, Lee's army was once more brought to a stand, and on the 9th, the regiment had the proud satisfaction of being present at the surrender of General Lee, with his entire army, near Appomattox Court House. During this march, the regiment was very short for rations, subsisting part of the time on corn in the ear, and on such provisions as could be found.

On the 12th of April, the Thirty-sixth set out on the return to Burkesville, at which place, on the 14th, they went into camp. While here, Captain Griffin, Lieutenants Matthews, Parker and Sholes, paroled prisoners, returned to the regiment. On the 2d of May, they set out for Washington; marched through Richmond on the 5th, passing Libby Prison and Castle Thunder, and arrived in sight of the national capital on the 14th, just a year after the regiment passed through the city on its way to the front. They lay in camp near Bailey's Cross Roads until the 23d of May, when the regiment participated in the grand review of the army of the Potomac.

Having been assigned to the Provisional division of the army of the Tennessee, under command of General Morrow, composed of western troops from the army of the Potomac; the Thirty-sixth left Washington on the 17th of June, and proceeded by rail to Parkersburg, Va., where they embarked, and descending the Ohio River, arrived on the 21st of June at Louisville, Ky. They went into camp on the north bank of the river at Jeffersonville, Ind., where the regiment was mustered out of service, and set out for home on the 12th of July.

They arrived on the 14th, at Madison, Wis., where the regiment received final payment, and was disbanded on the 24th of July, 1865.*

THIRTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT.

The Thirty-seventh Wisconsin, as part of the First brigade, First division of the Ninth army corps, on the 2d of October, 1864, advanced in line of battle through the woods, in their front, for the purpose of reconnoitring the enemy's position, and finding his works too strong for assault, returned in the afternoon within the lines on Pegram's farm, where they threw up works and encamped. The regiment lay in camp in this vicinity, with slight changes of position, and occupied in picket and fatigue duty, until the 29th of October, at which date they marched out, accompanying the brigade in the reconnoissance in force towards Hatcher's Run. Moving out before daybreak to connect with the Fifth corps on the left, the skirmish line on encountering the rebel skirmishers, became quite hotly engaged, but the action in front did not become general, "our object being merely to preserve the connection with the Fifth corps," and having effected the object of the reconnoissance, the regiment next day returned to camp, having sustained but slight loss.

The Ninth corps having been relieved on the 29th of November, by the Second corps, the Thirty-seventh accompanied its movement a distance of nine miles, from the extreme left to the extreme right, of the army of the Potomac; the left of the corps resting on the Weldon railroad and its right on the Appomattox River. That night the regiment lay in the rear of the works they had so long occupied in the preceding summer, in front of the 'crater.' On the morning of the 30th of November, they took position in the second line of works, but in the afternoon, moved to the woods in the rear of the line, where the Thirty-seventh Wisconsin, with a New York regiment, was held in reserve. In this position, more or less exposed, day and night, to the enemy's fire, their time was occupied in building houses for the winter, and in the performance of picket, guard and fatigue duty.

On the evening of the 8th of December, the regiment moved to the rear, by order of Brevet Colonel Robinson, who was placed in command of a provisional brigade, composed of the reserve regiments of the division. Here they lay in the open field, exposed on a very cold night, without shelter or fire, to "a cutting northeast wind, sweeping over the bare surface of the country, with a chill that went to the marrow." Next day, they moved a few rods to a ravine, where they were somewhat sheltered from the keen wind. Towards evening, a cold rain set in, which, freezing as it fell, covered everything with a sheet of ice. At length, on the afternoon of the 10th of December, the third day of this apparently needless exposure, came the orders to march. Marching down on the Jerusalem plank road, almost knee deep in half frozen mud and sleet, they advanced during the night a distance of twenty-five miles. in a southwesterly direction, arriving about daylight next morning at Hawkins' Tavern, on the Nottoway River.

The object of this movement was to reinforce, and also to protect the rear, on the return march of the Second and Fifth corps, which had previously been dispatched on a raid along the line of the Weldon railroad. This force had struck the railroad at Jarratt's Station, thirty miles from Petersburg, and had torn up the track from that point to the North Carolina line, burning the bridge across the Meherin River. At three in the afternoon, the Second corps passed through the camp of the provisional brigade, which was at once put in motion on the return to camp, and marching the distance of upwards of twenty five miles without rest, arrived in camp about two in the morning of the 11th of December.

"The men, overcome by the exposure, suffering and want of sleep for the three nights previous, were almost completely exhausted; many fell out on the march, utterly unable to proceed farther, and only succeeded in reaching camp on the evening of the following day. All day the men came straggling in, and towards night, orders were received to move out again to the open field. Many, unable to get their feet into their shoes, bound them to the soles of their feet to protect them from the frozen ground; and in this manner the regiment marched nearly two miles to a piece of timber, in the rear of the Jones House, where we bivouacked for the night. The regiment lay here two nights and a day, returning on the 13th of December, to the old camp"* on the Baxter road, where the regiment lay in winter quarters, until the opening of the spring campaign.

On the 25th of March, 1865, during the action of Fort Steadman, the regiment was under arms, covering the right flank and rear of the First brigade, but took no active part in the engagement, and, although exposed to the enemy's artillery, sustained no loss.

In the grand series of operations, which culminated in the surrender of the rebel army of Northern Virginia, the Thirty-seventh "took no active part up to the 30th of March. During the night of the 30th, the regiment was under very heavy artillery fire, on the left of Fort Haskell, and escaped without loss, except some, slightly wounded. At eight o'clock on the night of the 1st of April, the command was ordered to support the brigade picket line, for the purpose of driving the enemy from Fort Mahone, located one mile to the left of the First brigade line. After making a feint of attack, we marched immediately to Fort Sedgwick, when the First brigade, together with one brigade of the Third division, carried Fort Mahone, and the works, with all its artillery, by assault. Three companies of my regiment were the first to enter the rebel work and stronghold Mahone, the right occupying the rifle pits adjacent to the fort."

*Official report of Lieutenant Colonel Green.

"As the Thirty-seventh has no colors, the Twenty-seventh Michigan raised the flag over the captured work. I am happy to inform you that the officers and men of the Thirty-seventh discharged their duties nobly; not one faltered; they all rushed forward with a cheer, and well may the people of our noble state be proud of her brave sons. During the day [April 2d], the enemy made several ineffectual attempts to retake the fort, but it was held by the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Wisconsin, and Twenty-seventh Michigan Volunteers. At midnight, it was found that General Lee had profited by the dreadful lesson of the previous day and evacuated the city; and early on the morning of the 3d of April, we marched into the city victorious."

"After having occupied the works around Petersburg until the afternoon of the 4th, we were ordered to guard duty on the South Side railroad, and arrived on the 6th at Wellsville, thirty-one miles from Petersburg."*

The regiment remained on the South Side railroad, in the vicinity of Wellsville and Blacks and Whites, until after the surrender of the rebel army under General Lee, and on the 20th of April set out for City Point, where they arrived on the morning of the 22d, and immediately embarked, proceeding down the James River in the afternoon. In the absence of an experienced pilot, they were compelled to anchor shortly after dark, resting on the Weldon railroad and its right on the Appomattox River. That night the regiment lay in the rear of the works they had so long occupied in the preceding summer, in front of the 'crater.' On the morning of the 30th of November, they took position in the second line of works, but in the afternoon, moved to the woods in the rear of the line, where the Thirty-seventh Wisconsin, with a New York regiment, was held in reserve. After two days' stay in camp near the city, on the line of the Orange and Alexaneria railroad, they marched to Washington, and on the evening of the 26th, encamped near Tenallytown, between Forts Gaines and Simmons, near the Chain Bridge.

The Thirty-seventh participated on the 23d of May, in the grand review of the army of the Potomac at the national capital, after which they remained in camp at Tenallytown, until the 26th of July, when they were mustered out of service and left Washington on their return to Wisconsin. Proceeding by way of Pittsburg, Cleveland, Detroit and Milwaukee, they arrived on the 31st of July, 1865, at Madison, Wis., where they were shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.*

THIRTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT.

Companies F, G, H, I and K, joined the other companies of the Thirty-eighth, in their position near Peebles' farm, in the trenches before Petersburg, on the 1st of October, 1864, when Colonel Bintliff assumed command of the regiment, which was then attached to the First brigade, First division of the Ninth army corps.

The regiment was employed at this place, in picket and fatigue duty, without material change of position, until the morning of the 27th of October, at which date, accompanying a reconnoissance in force, they moved towards Hatcher's Run, near which at noon, the pickets became engaged with the enemy. In this movement, although under fire during nearly twenty-two hours, they sustained but little loss, and returned on the 28th to camp. Accompanying the march of the Ninth corps in its movement from the extreme left to the extreme right of the line before Petersburg, they marched nine miles to the right, and occupied position in the front line of works, opposite the 'crater,' which position they retained during the winter, and until the opening of the spring campaign.

On the 24th of March, 1865, Lieutenant Colonel Pier was detached from the regiment by order of Major General Wilcox, and placed in command of the One Hundred and Ninth New York, which he retained during the subsequent campaign, and until the army reached Washington. Shortly after dark on the 1st of April, the regiment made a demonstration against the enemy's lines, about a mile from Fort Sedgwick, and at daylight next morning, the Thirty eighth, commanded by Major Roberts, led the right wing of the assaulting column, which, under the command of Colonel Bintliff, stormed and carried the rebel Fort Mahone, with its guns and garrison; the regiment sustaining a loss of ten killed and twenty-three wounded, which was more than half the loss in the entire brigade.

Having successfully resisted the enemy's repeated attempts to recapture the fort, they entered Petersburg on the 3d of April, and next day marched in pursuit of the retreating enemy, going into camp on the South Side railroad, thirty miles from Petersburg, near Wellsville, where they remained until the 20th of April, at which date they set out for Washington. Marching by way of Petersburg, they embarked on the 22d at City Point, and on the 24th, landed at Alexandria, Va., one mile from which place they went into camp. On the 26th of April, they marched to Washington, and encamped near Tenallytown.

Subsequent to this date, they were employed in siege and fatigue duty, on the left wing of the army before Petersburg, until its termination by the capture of the city.

The regiment, on the 23d of May, participated in the grand review of the army of the Potomac at Washington, and subsequently remained in camp, in the vicinity of Tenallytown, until the 2d of June, when the one year's men of the regiment were mustered out of service and set out on the 6th, for home, arriving at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 10th of June.

The remaining companies were mustered out on the 26th of July, and arrived on the 31st at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were paid and disbanded on the 11th of August, 1865.

"ONE HUNDRED DAYS' TROOPS."

THIRTY-NINTH, FORTIETH AND FORTY-FIRST REGIMENTS.

The Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Forty-first regiments of infantry; comprising Wisconsin's contribution to the "Hundred days" service, were recruited principally in the latter part of May and beginning of June, 1864, and organized under the supervision of Colonel Edwin L. Buttrick, of Milwaukee, Colonel W. Augustus Ray, of Delavan, and Lieutenant Colonel George B. Goodwin, of Menasha, respectively.

The Thirty-ninth left Camp Washburn, at Milwaukee, on the 13th of June, and was followed on the 15th by the Forty-first. Proceeding by way of Cairo, Ill., they arrived on the 17th, at Memphis, Tenn., where both regiments were assigned to the Third brigade, which was placed under command of Colonel Buttrick.

The Fortieth left Camp Randall on the 14th of June, and moving by rail to Alton, Ill., proceeded thence by steamer, down the Mississippi, landing on the 19th, at Memphis, Tenn., where they were assigned to the Second brigade, District of Memphis.

The regiments were placed in camp within the fortifications, and employed principally in garrison, picket and railroad guard duty, participating in occasional skirmishes on the picket line. On the morning of the 21st of August, the rebel General Forrest, with a force of about five thousand cavalry, made a dash upon the city at daylight, and succeeded at one point in passing through the lines. Our regiments were promptly hurried to the front, and in the action which ensued, behaved with gallantry, sustaining slight loss. The rebels soon retired, with a few prisoners whom they had captured, and after a march of two miles, our troops returned in the afternoon to camp.

The term of service of these troops having expired in the beginning of September, they were ordered to return to Wisconsin for muster-out of service. The Thirty-ninth and Forty-first were discharged at Camp Washburn; and the Fortieth, which arrived on the 14th of September, was soon afterwards mustered out at Camp Randall.

With the exception of the Fortieth, no reports were received from these regiments.

FORTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

The Forty-second regiment, organized under the superintendence of Colonel Ezra T. Sprague, formerly adjutant of the Eighth infantry, under the call of July 18th, 1864, was finally mustered into the United States' service on the 7th of September, 1864.

From Camp Randall they proceeded by rail to Cairo, Ill., at which place they arrived on the 22d of September, and were stationed in the discharge of post and garrison duty. From the 24th, when Colonel Sprague was assigned to the command of the post, the regiment was commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Botkin.

On the 25th of October, 1864, companies B, E, G, H and K, of the Forty-second Wisconsin, under command of Major Blake, were ordered from Cairo to Springfield, Ill., for provost duty. From Springfield, companies were from time to time detached to other points in the state, for various duties.

By the month of April, 1865, these companies had all rejoined the regiment at Cairo, with the exception of company B, which remained at Springfield, until the regiment was ordered to return to Wisconsin, for the purpose of being mustered out.

The Forty-second arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 20th of June, 1865, and was shortly afterwards mustered out, paid and disbanded.

The rolls and reports of this regiment, contain but little information as to its military history.

FORTY-THIRD REGIMENT.

The Forty-third infantry, recruited and organized under the direction of Colonel Amasa Cobb, formerly of the Fifth Wisconsin, left Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, for the field, on the 9th of October, 1864, under orders to report at Nashville, Tenn., to Major General Sherman. From Nashville, they moved by rail, and encamped on the 15th of October, at Johnsonville, the terminus of the military railroad connecting with Nashville, and situated one hundred and ten miles from Paducah, on the Tennessee River.

Here Colonel Cobb was appointed post-commandant, and Lieutenant Colonel Paine assumed command of the regiment. This important post, at which were collected immense quantities of stores, was then menaced by the approach of the rebel forces under General Hood, and from the 4th to the 6th of November, the regiment was exposed to the fire of the rebel guns, planted on the opposite bank of the Tennessee, losing one man killed and one wounded.

The Forty-third left Johnsonville on the morning of the 30th of November, and marching by way of Waverly, through an almost unbroken wilderness, they arrived on the 4th of December at Clarksville, on the Cumberland River. Embarking at Clarksville, on the 28th, they reached Nashville at ten in the evening. They landed next morning and remained in the city awaiting transportation, until the evening of the 1st of January, 1865, when they left Nashville by rail, and arrived next morning at Decherd, Tenn., where six companies of the regiment went into camp, four companies, under command of Major Brightman, being detached to guard Elk River bridge.

The regiment was employed at these stations in provost and guard duty, on the line of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, until the beginning of June, when they moved to Nashville, at which place the Forty-third was mustered out of service on the 24th of June, 1865.

They shortly afterwards arrived at Milwaukee, when they were paid and disbanded.

FORTY-FOURTH REGIMENT.

The Forty-fourth infantry, which at the date of the last report from this office, was in process of organization, under the superintendence of Colonel Symes, was sent forward as organized, by companies, to Nashville, Tenn.

Company A left Camp Randall on the 10th of October, and arrived on the 13th at Nashville. Company B left Madison on the 19th, arriving on the 25th. Company F went forward on the 26th, arriving on the 1st of November. Company D left Madison on the 4th of November, arriving on the 8th. Company C left Madison on the 22d and arrived at Nashville on the 30th of November.

In the battles before Nashville, on the 16th and 17th of December, this battalion of five companies, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Bissell, occupied the trenches, between Fort Negley and the Franklin pike, a part of their number being detailed to guard prisoners, and was subsequently employed in picket and guard duty until the month of February, 1865, when the remaining companies joined the battalion, and Colonel Symes assumed command of the regiment.

Company G reported for duty at Nashville on the 19th, company H on the 24th, and companies I and K on the 26th of February.

The regiment was employed in post and guard duty at Nashville, until the 9th of March, when they left the city for Eastport, Miss., under orders from Major General Thomas, to escort prisoners from that place. The prisoners not having arrived, they returned to Nashville, embarked at that place on the 3d of April, and proceeding to Paducah, Ky., were employed in picket duty at that post until the 28th of August, when the Forty-fourth was mustered out of service.

On their return to the state, they left Paducah on the 30th of August, and arrived on the 2d of September, 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were paid and discharged.

FORTY-FIFTH REGIMENT.

This regiment, recruited and organized under the supervision of Colonel Henry F. Belitz, of Manitowoc, was like the Forty-fourth, sent forward by companies, in the latter part of 1864, and the beginning of the present year, to Nashville, Tenn., where the regiment was stationed until the 17th of July, 1865; when they were mustered out at that place and set out for home.

The Forty-fifth arrived on the 23d of July at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

The reports of this regiment, with the exception of those relating to company H, furnish few memoranda, from which to compile its military history.

FORTY-SIXTH REGIMENT.

The Forty-sixth regiment, recruited and organized under the supervision of Colonel Frederick S. Lovell, of Kenosha, previously Lieutenant Colonel of the Thirty-third Wisconsin, was fully organized by the 1st of March, 1865, and on the 5th of March, left Camp Randall, Madison, under orders to report at Louisville, Ky.

They reached Chicago, Ill., the same evening, but owing to some difficulty in obtaining transportation, were detained at that place, until the morning of the 8th, when they resumed the journey, arriving on the 10th of March, at Louisville, Ky. Leaving Louisville on the following day, they arrived on the 14th of March at Athens, Ala., on the Nashville and Decatur railroad, about one hundred miles from the former place.

On the 24th of April, Colonel Lovell was placed in command of the post of Athens and the railroad defences to Decatur, when Lieutenant Colonel Smedley assumed command of the regiment, detachments of which were stationed at various points along the line of the Nashville and Decatur railroad. They were engaged in this duty until the latter part of September, when they moved to Nashville, Tenn., at which place, the regiment was mustered out and set out for home, on the 27th of September, 1865.

They arrived on the 2d of October at Madison, Wisconsin where they were shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

FORTY-SEVENTH REGIMENT.

The Forty-seventh regiment, recruited and organized under the superintendence of Colonel George C. Ginty, of Oconto, left Camp Randall, Madison, on the 27th of February, 1865, under orders to report at Louisville, Ky., where they arrived on the 28th.

Early in March, they proceeded by rail from Louisville to Nashville, and thence to Tullahoma, Tenn., at the junction of the McMinnville and Manchester, with the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad. Here the regiment was employed in guard duty, until the latter part of August, when they returned to Nashville, at which place the Forty-seventh was mustered out, on the 4th of September.

They arrived on the 8th of September 1865, at Madison, Wis., where they were paid and disbanded.

FORTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT.

The Forty-eighth regiment was organized at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, during the months of February and March, 1865, under the superintendence of Lieutenant Colonel Henry B. Shears, in the absence of Colonel Pearsall; who, at the time of his appointment, was serving as lieutenant colonel of a regiment of colored troops.

Eight companies of the regiment, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Shears, left Milwaukee on the 22d of March, under orders to report at Benton Barracks, Mo., at which place, orders were received on the 28th, to proceed to Paola, Ks. These companies left Benton Barracks by rail on the 29th of March, arriving next day at Sedalia, then the terminus of the Pacific railroad. Marching thence on the 1st of April, during very stormy weather and over miry roads, they reached Warrensburg, Mo., thirty-five miles distant, on the 4th, and after a delay of four days at this point, they resumed the march on the 8th, arriving on the 13th at Paola, Ks. The march over this distance of sixty-eight miles was much impeded by bad roads and high streams, the battalion having been delayed one day in order to build a bridge across Big Bear Creek.

At Paola, they were assigned to duty in detachments, as follows: company C was ordered to Lawrence, Ks.; company H to Olathe; companies F and G were retained at Paola. Under orders to report at Fort Scott, companies A, B, D and E left Paola, at noon on the 14th of April, and marched eight miles to Marais des Cygnes River, which was found to be unfordable. Having spent the following day in effecting a passage across the stream, they arrived on the 18th at Fort Scott.

Companies I and K left camp of rendezvous at Milwaukee on the 28th of March, arriving on the 1st of April, at St. Louis, Mo., where Colonel Pearsall joined and was mustered. These companies left St. Louis on the 18th of April, by rail, en route for Fort Scott, and reached Warrensburg, Mo., on the morning of the 18th. Marching thence on the 19th, they arrived on the 28th at Fort Scott, where Colonel Pearsall took command of the regiment. On the 5th of May, Colonel Pearsall was ordered to the command of Fort Scott, when Lieutenant Colonel Shears again assumed command of the regiment, and on the 12th, Major Butt was ordered to duty at Paola, and placed in command of all the troops in Miami and Johnson counties, Ks.

Lieutenant Davis, with twenty men, was detached on the 11th of May to Drywood, under orders to cut timber and prepare lumber for new fortifications at Fort Scott.

Company K, under command of Captain Lewis, on the 18th of May, was ordered to Mine Creek, or Lamb Settlement, twenty-four miles distant, to protect the border against guerillas, and returned to Fort Scott on the 4th of June.

On the 6th of June, three squads of twenty men each, under command of Lieutenants Winchell, Rogers and Carver, were detached to construct bridges between Fort Scott and Fort Leavenworth; on the 12th, company I, Captain Andrews, was ordered to Marmaton, eight miles distant, and on the 13th, company B, under command of Captain Vosburg, was detailed to erect new buildings at Fort Scott. Captain Andrews' command was relieved on the 14th of July, and rejoined the regiment next day, and company B was relieved on the 15th of August.

On the 19th of July, Colonel Pearsall was assigned to the command of all the troops in and west of Neosho Valley, Ks., including the station of Osage Mission, with headquarters at Humboldt, Ks., to which point, forty-five miles from Fort Scott, companies D and I were ordered for duty. At the same time, Lieutenant Colonel Shears took command of Fort Scott, to which place Lieutenant Davis' command, previously stationed at Drywood, returned on the 20th of July. On the 22d, Captain Felker assumed command of the regiment.

Orders were received on the 10th of August, directing the Forty eighth Wisconsin to proceed to Lawrence, but in consequence of heavy rains, which rendered the streams impassable, the march was delayed until the 19th, when companies A, B, E and K were put in motion, and arrived next day at Mound City, where they were joined by companies D and I, which had marched from Humboldt, and by company G, stationed at that place. On the 25th of August, the regiment arrived at Lawrence, Ks., where they received their first payment, on the 5th of September.

On the march from Fort Scott to Lawrence, the impression obtained extensively among the enlisted men that upon their arrival at the latter place, the regiment would be discharged from service. It is much to the credit of the officers and men of the Forty eighth Wisconsin, that they promptly obeyed the subsequent order to move westward on "the plains," notwithstanding their natural disappointment in this matter, and uninfluenced by the example of certain other regiments in their vicinity, who refused to obey similar orders, in some instances breaking out into open mutiny.

The Forty-eighth left Lawrence on the 6th of September, arriving on the 26th at Fort Zarah, Ks., two hundred and fifty miles west of Lawrence Leaving companies E and G, under command of Captain Hutchinson, at Fort Zarah, the remaining eight companies moved thirty five miles farther west, arriving on the 29th at Fort Larned, where companies A and H were stationed and the regimental headquarters established.

On the 1st of October, companies B and I, under command of Major Butt, were ordered to Fort Dodge Ks; companies D and F, under Captain Wittman, to Fort Aubrey, Ks., and companies C and K, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Shears, to Fort Lyon, Colorado Territory. These posts are situated on the Arkansas River, distant from Fort Larned, as follows: Fort Dodge, sixty miles; Fort Aubrey, one hundred and sixty miles; Fort Lyon, two hundred and ten miles. Their duties were escorting mail and government trains, as protection against roving bands of Indians, garrison and fatigue duty.

In pursuance of orders from the general commanding the District of Kansas, companies A and H, with the regimental headquarters, left Fort Larned on the 7th of December, en route to Fort Leavenworth, arriving on the following day at Fort Zarah. Here they were joined by companies E and G, previously stationed at that place, and resuming the march from Fort Zarah on the 9th; these four companies arrived at noon on the 25th at Leavenworth, where they were mustered out of service on the 30th of December. On the same day, they marched four mile to Weston, Mo., and next day proceeded thence by rail, arriving at St. Joseph on the 1st of January. After a short delay at this place, they resumed the journey in the evening via the Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad, and proceeding by way of Quincy and Chicago, Ill., arrived on the 3d of January, 8166, at Madison, where they were paid and disbanded.

Companies B, D, F and I were mustered out at Leavenworth on the 19th of February, 1866, and reached Madison on the 23d.

The balance of the regiment, companies C and K were mustered out at Leavenworth, on the 24th of March and arrived on the 28th at Madison, Wis., where they were paid and disbanded.

FORTY-NINTH REGIMENT.

The Forty-ninth regiment, recruited and organized under the direction of Colonel Samuel Fallows, left Camp Randall, Madison, on the 8th of March, 1865, arriving on the same night at Chicago, Ill. Leaving Chicago at daylight on the 9th, they reached Bloomington in the evening. Half the regiment having been compelled to ride without fire, on platform cars, they remained during the night at Bloomington, to allow the men to get warm, and resuming their journey next morning, they reached St. Louis, Mo., late in the evening, and were assigned to quarters in Benton Barracks, near the city.

The regiment left Benton Barracks on the morning of the 13th of March, and proceeding by way of the Southern Pacific railroad, reached Rolla, Mo., late in the evening, and encamped half a mile from the town. Next day, company B was ordered to St. James, ten miles east on the railroad, and company K moved to Fort Wyman, an earthwork, one mile south of the town. The remainder of the regiment was engaged in general duty at Rolla, and in escorting trains from that post to Springfield, Mo.

They remained in this vicinity until the 17th of August, when orders were received to proceed to St. Louis, where they encamped on the 19th. Here companies B, C and D, were mustered out on the 1st of November, and arrived on the 3d at Madison. The balance of the regiment was mustered out at St. Louis on the 8th, and arrived at Madison on the 10th of November, 1865.

At Madison, the regiment was shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

FIFTIETH REGIMENT.

The Fiftieth Wisconsin, recruited and organized under the supervision of Colonel John G. Clark, of Lancaster, left Madison by companies in the latter part of March and beginning of April, 1865, and on arriving at St. Louis, Mo., the companies were assigned to quarters in Benton Barracks.

They subsequently moved to Fort Leavenworth, Ks., whence the regiment was ordered to Fort Rice, in Dakota Territory, where they arrived on the 10th of October. Next day Colonel Clark assumed command of the post, where the regiment was stationed until the expiration of its term of service.

Company E on being ordered home for discharge from the service, reported at Madison, Wisconsin, where it was mustered out and discharged on the 19th of April, 1866.

The balance of the regiment remained in garrison at Fort Rice, until the 31st of May, 1866, when companies A, B, C and D, under command of Lieutenant Colonel McDermott, set out for home, under orders to report at Madison, for discharge from service. Descending the Missouri River on transports, they landed on the 9th of June at St. Joseph, Mo., and moving thence by rail, arrived at Quincy Ill., on the 10th and reached Madison, Wisconsin, on the 12th.

Companies F, G, H, I and K, under command of Colonel Clark, left Fort Rice on the 3d of June, arrived at St. Joseph, Mo., on the 11th, and proceeding thence by rail on the following day, reached Quincy, Ill., on the 13th, and Madison, Wisconsin, on the the 14th of June. Here the whole regiment was immediately mustered out, paid and disbanded.

The returns of this regiment filed in this office, furnish few data from which to compile its military history.

FIFTY-FIRST REGIMENT.

Six companies of the Fifty-first regiment, recruited under the superintendence of Colonel Leonard Martin, were organized at Camp Washburn, during the months of February, March, April and May, 1865, and forwarded after organization, to Benton Barracks, Mo., the regimental rendezvous; the last company of the regiment being organized on the 29th of April.

The four junior companies, not having left the state, were mustered out and discharged at Milwaukee on the 6th of May, under General Orders of the War Department, for the reduction of the army.

On the 7th of April, company B was placed on temporary duty at St. Louis, and on the 8th of May companies A, C, D, E and F were ordered to Warrensburg, Mo, where they arrived on the following day. These companies were then stationed along the line of the Pacific railroad, and occupied in guarding the construction of the railroad and the Pacific route from Holden to Pleasant Hill. Company B rejoined the regiment on the 21st of June.

In the latter part of June, companies B, C, D, E and F were concentrated at Pleasant Hill, Mo., company A being stationed at Crawford's Run, seven miles east. They were afterwards stationed as follows: company B at Carondelet; companies C and D at Kingsville, and companies E and F at Pleasant Hill.

In accordance with Special Orders from the War Department, dated June 10th, 1865, the Fifty-third Wisconsin, [four companies], was consolidated with the Fifty-first.

The regiment arrived on the 5th of August at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were mustered out by companies, as follows: company H, on the 16th; company G, on the 18th; company C, on the 19th; companies E and K, on the 21st; company F, on the 22d; field and staff, on the 26th; companies B and D, on the 29th and company I on the 30th of August, 1865.

The returns of this regiment, furnish no memoranda, from which to compile its record since the 30th of June, 1865.

FIFTY-SECOND REGIMENT.

The Fifty-second Wisconsin, five companies, recruited under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Hiram J. Lewis, was sent forward, by companies in the month of April 1865, to St. Louis, Mo.

They left St. Louis on the 8th of May, under orders to report at Warrensburg, Mo., two hundred and thirty miles distant. From Warrensburg, they marched eighteen miles to Holden, where they were employed in guarding the workmen of the Pacific railroad, and frequently furnished scouting parties to protect the inhabitants from the depredations of lawless bands of guerillas, which infested the surrounding country. They were engaged in this duty until the 21st of June, when they set out for Fort Leavenworth, Ks., where they arrived and were assigned to duty on the 28th.

They were mustered out at Fort Leavenworth on the 28th of July, and arrived on the 2d of August 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were paid and disbanded.

CAVALRY.

FIRST REGIMENT.

The First Wisconsin cavalry left Cartersville, Ga., on the 17th of October, 1864, and marching northward, encamped on the 19th at Calhoun, sixty miles from Chattanooga, on the Western and Atlantic railroad. The rebel General Hood's plan of campaign having by this time been developed, the regiment left Calhoun by rail on the 4th of November and arrived on the 9th at Louisville, Ky., to which point they had been ordered for the purpose of being remounted.

The regiment, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Harnden, and at that time attached to the Second brigade, commanded by Colonel LaGrange, of the First division, cavalry corps, left Louisville on the 4th of December, en route for Nashville, Tenn. On arriving at Bowling Green, Ky., [December 12th], the regiment, with the Second and Third brigades of the division, was ordered to proceed by forced marches to Hopkinsville, Ky., where a body of the enemy, consisting of cavalry and artillery, two thousand strong, was reported under the command of General Lyon. They set out on the 13th of December, and marching rapidly westward by way of Russelville, arrived on the evening of the 15th, in front of the enemy at Hopkinsville. Our forces advanced next morning, and after a severe engagement, drove the enemy from the town, capturing two pieces of artillery and fifteen prisoners; and sustaining a loss of five men of the regiment wounded. Marching thence in pursuit, by way of Hartford and Litchfield, they arrived on the 24th of December, at Elizabethtown, Ky., forty-two miles from Louisville, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, overtaking at that place a body of General Lyon's force, about four hundred strong. Colonel La Grange, with twenty men of the First Wisconsin, immediately charged the enemy, capturing eleven prisoners.

The pursuit was abandoned at Elizabethtown, and resuming the march to Nashville from that place, the regiment, on the 29th of December, reached and encamped at Bowling Green, Ky., seventy-four miles from Nashville. They left Bowling Green on the 2d of January, 1865, and marching by way of Franklin, Ky., and Willisville, Tenn., arrived on the 5th at Nashville, Tenn. They were again put in motion on the 9th of January, and marching in a southerly direction a distance of forty-seven miles, encamped on the 11th at Columbia, Tenn., the junction of the Mount Pleasant branch with the Nashville and Decatur railroad. Having been delayed a short time at this place by the destruction of the bridge across Duck River, they resumed the march on the 16th of January, and proceeding in a southwesterly direction by way of Mount Pleasant, Waynesboro and Gravelly Springs, they arrived on the 24th at Waterloo, Ala., near the Tennessee River, in the northwest corner of the state.

The regiment remained in camp at Waterloo, until the 10th of March, when they crossed the Tennessee River to Chickasaw, where they lay in camp until the 22d. Marching at this date, in a southerly direction through the interior of Alabama, they reached Jasper, one hundred miles distant, on the 27th, and fording the Black Warrior River near this place on the following day, pressed forward by way of Clayton, a distance of sixty miles to Montevallo, which they reached on the 31st of March.

On the 1st of April, the Second brigade of the First division, to which the regiment was attached, was here detached from the main column, and moved to the right. One battalion of the regiment, under command of Major Shipman, was ordered in advance to Centreville, where they routed a small force of the enemy, capturing fifteen prisoners. After the balance of the brigade came up, they crossed the Cahawba River near Centreville, and marched upon the Tuscaloosa road to Scottsville, where they bivouacked for the night, having marched forty miles during the day. Early on the morning of the 2d of April, the brigade encountered Jackson's division, and in an engagement of an hour's duration, which ensued, our regiment sustained a loss of three killed and two captured. After the engagement, the brigade fell back towards Selma. Marching on the 3d of April, twenty-five miles to the southward, the regiment moved next day as guard to the train, thirty miles towards Randolph, and having marched a distance of one hundred and ninety miles in various directions since leaving Montevallo, the brigade, on the 6th of April, arrived at Selma, Ala., the terminus of the Alabama and Tennessee Rivers railroad, at which place they rejoined the main column.

Crossing the Alabama River at Selma, on the 9th of April, they moved to the eastward, and next morning, when about five miles from the river, the First brigade, which led the column, encountered the enemy, and forcing him back rapidly, the First Wisconsin, in the advance, entered Lowndesburg at dusk; having marched thirty miles and skirmished a distance of twenty-five. They left Lowndesburg on the 11th, and pressing forward a distance of thirty-five miles, entered Montgomery, which surrendered to the brigade at nine on the morning of the 12th of April. Marching thence on the following day, our regiment the second in the column, they had advanced but about two miles from the capitol, when they were fired upon by the enemy. The Seventh Kentucky and First Wisconsin were then detached from the brigade and had a running fight of ten miles, at every two miles of which the enemy had barricaded the road. Having advanced twenty-five miles, they lay in camp two days, and on the 14th of April, rejoined the brigade and encountered the enemy at daylight on the Columbus road near Tuskegee.

The First Wisconsin was ordered to advance, and kept up a running fight through almost impassable swamps, and over breastworks and barricades, which had been erected in the road, at distances of two and three miles apart, capturing one hundred prisoners, and sustaining a loss of one killed and five wounded. At noon, they left the Columbus road, and passing through Tuskegee and Auburn, they arrived at noon on the 16th at West Point, where the brigade captured Fort Tyler, with two hundred prisoners. The First Wisconsin, dismounted, carried one side of the fort, and two regiments of the brigade, the other. Our regiment was the first to cross the ditch, and for twenty minutes lay upon the embankment, awaiting the signal that the other regiments ordered to the attack, had attained position. At the order they sprang up, when the garrison almost immediately displayed the white flag and surrendered the fort. In this affair, our regiment lost seven killed and fourteen wounded.

They crossed the Chattahoochee River at West Point, on the 19th, and on the 21st of April, arrived at Macon, Ga., the junction of the Macon and Western with the Georgia Central and the Southwestern railroads. Here the regiment remained in camp until the 6th of May, when a detachment of the First Wisconsin set out from camp for the purpose of intercepting the flight of Jefferson Davis, President of the so-called Southern Confederacy. The movements during the march will be best presented in the words of Lieutenant Colonel Harnden, and I therefore insert without change his official report:

"Headquarters First Wisconsin Cavalry,
"Near Macon, Ga., May 13th, 1865.

"General—I have the honor to report that in compliance with your orders of the 6th inst., I marched from Macon at six o'clock on the evening of that day, with one hundred and fifty men of the First Wisconsin cavalry, and proceeded to Jeffersonville, Twiggs County, leaving Lieutenant Hewitt with thirty men to watch the cross-roads at that place.

"I continued the march on to Thomas' Cross-roads, Wilkinson County, where I learned that a large party of paroled men from General Johnston's army had just passed that point on their way home; some were armed and others were not, but all were mounted. After feeding our animals, I continued on to Dublin, Lawrence County, which point I was ordered to reach as soon as possible, arriving there about five o'clock P. M. on the 7th of May, and encamping near the ferry across the Oconee River, having marched a distance of fifty-five miles. At Dublin, I learned from some negroes that a train of light wagons and ambulances had crossed the ferry during the day, going on the Jackson road, attended by an escort and having some led horses. Later in the night, I also learned from another negro, that Jeff. Davis and wife were with the train. Here I left Lieutenant Lane and forty-five men to guard the ferry and patrol the roads and with the balance of my command started at daylight in pursuit, on the Jacksonville river road.

"At the Turkey Creek bridge, I learned that the train had taken the Telfair road, and from a woman I got the description of a man I thought must be Jeff. Davis. From this place I sent the dispatch to you, but I have since learned that the courier was captured by the rebels, taken thirty miles down into the pine woods, robbed of his horse and equipments and then released. I found the trail of the wagons very indistinct, as the country was pine woods, poor and barren, and almost uninhabited. Here I impressed a guide, who had heard of the wagons the evening before, and who led us away from the main road some eleven miles to the place where the train had encamped during the previous night, between the forks of Alligator Creek. After having fed the horses and taken a new guide, we again started in pursuit. At this point we were four hours behind them. Our way now led across the main Alligator Creek and through the swamp, to the ford of Gum Swamp Creek, Pulaski County, where I encamped; it then being after dark, and the trail too indistinct to follow; distance marched this day, forty miles.

"On the 9th of May, we started at 3 o'clock A. M., marched to Sugar Creek, thence to Cypress Creek, thence to Ocmulgee River, which we followed down a few miles in the dense swamp, to Brown's Ferry. In crossing my command, an accident happened to the ferry boat, causing a delay of two hours. At this place I learned positively that Mr. Davis and family were the occupants of one of the ambulances in the train which we were following. Proceeding to Abbeville, in Wilcox County, I fed the horses, and learning that the train had left that place at ten o'clock A. M., May 9th, in the direction of Irwinville, Irwin County, I sent forward my command in that direction, going myself to meet Colonel Pritchard, who I learned was advancing with the Fourth Michigan cavalry.

"I informed the colonel of the train, which I had been so long pursuing; that Mrs. Davis and family were with it, and that Jeff. Davis himself was undoubtedly accompanying them, or not far distant; also, that my command had gone on towards Irwinville in pursuit. Colonel Pritchard then informed me that he was ordered to Abbeville, with his regiment, to watch for Jeff. Davis; at the same time tendering me some of his men, which I declined, as my force was sufficiently large and I found it very difficult to obtain forage for the horses and subsistence for the men.

"Parting with Colonel Pritchard near Abbeville, I soon overtook my command, and after marching some ten miles from the last named town, we discovered the camping ground of the train, so recently left that the fires had not yet gone out. I continued on in the direction of Irwinville, through the pine woods, until about nine o'clock P. M., when I halted and grazed the horses, having no grain for them, with orders for the men to be ready for an early start.

"At this time, I felt certain the train was near at hand, but fearing that if we came upon them in the darkness, Davis and others might escape under cover of the night, I waited until three A. M. [May 10th], when I again started. After marching one mile, possibly more, our advance guard, commanded by Sergeant Hussey, was halted by a party of men, partly concealed behind trees. Supposing of course, that we had run upon the rebel pickets, the sergeant endeavored to retreat, when a heavy volley was fired upon the party, wounding three out of his seven men. Knowing that we were in the immediate vicinity of the rebels, and having no intimation of the presence of Union troops, (I understood Colonel Pritchard that he was going into camp at Abbeville, which was over twenty miles in our rear), I immediately prepared to drive them back upon the train and capture the whole train, if possible. Advancing with ten men to ascertain the position of the force opposing our farther progress, we were again met with another heavy volley from the same unseen force. I then deployed my small force, and advanced rapidly, forcing back the opposing force, when we captured a prisoner, who proved to be a member of the Fourth Michigan cavalry, Colonel Pritchard commanding.

"All firing immediately ceased, when an explanation showed that after parting with Colonel Pritchard at Abbeville, he selected a portion of his best-mounted men and pushed rapidly forward on the river road; thence by way of House Creek back to Irwinville, arriving there before the train, then came out to where it was encamped, one mile from town, and about two miles from our encampment. He [Colonel P.], had sent a small force dismounted, around the rear of the train, and as his force moved upon the train from the Irwinville side, we encountered his dismounted men, within a short distance, only a few hundred yards, of the rebel camp. While the fight was going on, between my command and Colonel Pritchard's, a portion of his force captured the train, Jeff. Davis and family. The casualties in my command were three men severely wounded, several slightly wounded, and two horses killed.

"I regret to learn that the Fourth Michigan had two men killed, and one officer severely wounded. I sincerely regret the unfortunate collision, resulting in the death of two brave and noble soldiers, and the maiming of several more; but of the degree of culpability which attaches to my conduct in this matter, others must decide.

"After attending to the wounded as well as possible, transportation having been kindly furnished by Colonel Pritchard in captured ambulances, I returned to Macon, as rapidly as the condition of my horses would permit, where I arrived in the forenoon of the 13th of May, 1865."

I am, General,
Your obedient servant,
(Signed.) HENRY HARNDEN, Lt. Col.
Comdg. First Wis. Cavalry."

"Brig. General CRAXTON,
Comdg. First division, M. D. M.

"HEADQUARTERS, SECOND BRIG. CAV. DIV. M. D. M.
Macon, Ga., 14th May, 1865.

"Respectfully forwarded.

"From this report it appears that Lieutenant Colonel Harnden faithfully discharged his duty, and no blame can attach to him in relation to the unfortunate collision between his detachment and Colonel Pritchard's, which he had every reason to believe remained at Abbeville

"It is, however, a source of painful regret, that the satisfaction experienced in this consummation is clouded by the knowledge that an act, having every appearance of unsoldierly selfishness, in appropriating by deception the fruits of another's labor, and thus attaining unearned success, resulted in unnecessary bloodshed, and a sacrifice of lives, for which no atonement can be made. What may have been intended merely as an act of bad faith towards a fellow soldier resulted in a crime; and for this closing scene of the rebellion, inglorious in itself, but historic by circumstance, it is difficult to repress a wish that accident had not afforded the Government a representative above suspicion."

(Signed.) O. H. LA GRANGE,
Colonel Commanding."

The regiment remained at Macon, Ga., until the 24th of May, when they set out to the northward, and marching by way of Forsyth, Dalton and Ringgold, arrived on the 2d of June at Chattanooga, Tenn. Resuming the march on the 7th of June, via Stevenson, Tullahoma and Murfreesboro, they reached the vicinity of Nashville on the 14th, and passing through the city on the following day, crossed the Cumberland River, and went into camp at Edgefield.

Here the First Wisconsin cavalry was mustered out on the 19th of July, 1865, and shortly afterwards paid and disbanded.

SECOND REGIMENT.

The Second Wisconsin cavalry remained at Vicksburg, Miss., performing picket duty, until the 6th of November, 1864, when they joined an expedition to Gaines' Landing, Ark., from which they returned to camp on the 10th, having traveled about one hundred and sixty miles.

Accompanying the cavalry expedition, under command of Colonel E. D. Osband, of the Third U. S. colored cavalry, for the purpose of destroying the Mississippi Central railroad, the regiment on the 23d of November, left Vicksburg, and marching through Mechanicsburg and Benton, burned the large bridge across the Big Black River, destroyed thirty miles of railroad track, and burned the railroad buildings at Vaughan's, Pickens' and Goodman's stations, with a large quantity of Confederate cotton and supplies. Returning by way of Benton, they arrived on the 1st of December at Yazoo City, from which point a detachment of two hundred and eighty men of the regiment, under command of Lieutenant Colonel Dale, was ordered to reconnoitre the enemy. Twelve miles from the city, they encountered the rebels in considerable force, and in the engagement which ensued, lasting half an hour, sustained a loss of five killed, nine wounded and twenty-five missing. From Yazoo City the expedition marched down the west bank of the Yazoo River to Little Sunflower, from which place they proceeded on transports to Haines' Bluff, and marching thence to Vicksburg, re-entered camp at that city on the 5th of December, having marched, during the expedition, about three hundred miles.

Embarking at Vicksburg on the 8th of December, they proceeded up the Mississippi River to Memphis, Tenn., where the regiment landed on the 10th and went into camp. Participating in an expedition under command of General Grierson, they left Memphis on the 21st of December as part of the Third brigade, cavalry division, and marched in a southeasterly direction through Ripley, Miss., to Verona, on the Mobile and Ohio railroad. Marching thence to the southward, destroying the railroad as they advanced, and burning bridges, cars and immense quantities of stores, they arrived on the 28th of December at Egypt Station. Here a short but very severe action took place, which resulted in the defeat of the rebels and the capture of a large number of prisoners. The Second Wisconsin was then assigned to the duty of provost guard of the division, and took charge of the prisoners, numbering upwards of five hundred. The whole force left the Mobile and Ohio railroad at this point, and returning by way of Winona, on the Mississippi Central railroad, where a number of locomotives and other railroad property were captured and destroyed, they passed through Lexington and Benton, arriving at Vicksburg, Miss., on the 5th of January, 1865.

During this expedition to destroy the rebel lines of communication, they had marched, in a broken and swampy country, a distance of upwards of four hundred miles.

Embarking at Vicksburg on the 13th of January, they arrived next day at Memphis, Tenn., where they landed and went into camp. They again embarked at Memphis on the 26th, and accompanying the movements of the division, under command of Colonel Osband, descended the Mississippi to Gaines' Landing, Ark., where they disembarked on the same day. They marched thence in a southwesterly direction to Bastrop, La., and from that place across Bayou Bartholomew to Hamburg, Ark., and returning thence reached Gaines' Landing on the 11th of February, having marched in fifteen days a distance of two hundred and seventy-six miles, through a very swampy and difficult country. Reembarking on the 15th, they arrived on the 17th at Memphis, Tenn.

On the 3d of March, the regiment again set out from Memphis on an expedition into northern Mississippi, and arrived on the 6th at Ripley, Miss., where they remained three days, and marching in return on the 9th, they arrived on the 11th at Memphis. Here they were employed in guarding railroads, performing patrol and picket duty, until the 9th of May, when three hundred and thirty men of the regiment, under command of Major De Forest, set out for Grenada, Miss., one hundred and thirty miles distant, where they arrived on the 14th, and were stationed as garrison.

The other portion of the regiment remained at Memphis until the 15th of June, when they embarked, and proceeding via the Mississippi and Red rivers, landed on the 18th at Alexandria, La.

Major DeForest's command left Grenada, Miss., on the 24th of June, and marching thence to Memphis, embarked at that place on the 28th, rejoining the regiment on the 6th of July, at Alexandria, La. Here they were assigned to the Second brigade, Second (cavalry) division, Military Division of the Gulf.

The regiment left Alexandria on the 8th of August, crossed the Sabine River, the dividing line between Texas and Louisiana, at Burr's Ferry, passed through Jasper, crossed the Angelina River at Lewis' and the Neches River at Jordan Ferry, about ten miles above the confluence of these streams; thence by way of Livingston, to Swartwout, where they forded the Trinity River; through Danville, Montgomery and Cypress, to Hempstead, Texas, where they arrived on the 26th, having in nineteen days accomplished a march of three hundred and ten miles. The route lay through a poor country, mostly covered with pine timber, and men and animals suffered from scarcity of proper rations and forage. While stationed at Hempstead, the regiment was employed in drilling and camp duty, and on the 30th of October, set out for Austin, passing through Round Top on the following day, and arriving at Austin on the 4th of November.

The Second cavalry was mustered out at Austin on the 15th of November, and on the 17th, set out for home. Having turned over their horses for mounting other regiments, the first one hundred miles of the journey was accomplished on foot to Brenham, from which point they proceeded by rail and steamer, arriving on the 11th of December, 1865, at Madison, Wis., where on the 14th, the regiment was paid and disbanded.

THIRD REGIMENT.

Major Derry's detachment returned from Fort Smith, Ark., and rejoined the regiment at Little Rock, Ark, on the 13th of October, 1864, having marched about four hundred miles. The principal portion of the regiment, consisting of companies B, E, G, H, I, K, and L, was stationed in the vicinity of Little Rock, during the autumn and winter; detachments of the command, being constantly employed as scouting parties, guarding trains, patrolling the roads through the surrounding country, and participating in frequent skirmishes, with small bands of guerillas and bushwhackers.

On the expiration of the term of service of the original organization, the regiment on the 19th of April, 1865, was reorganized, by order of the general commanding the department. That part of the regiment stationed at Little Rock, was consolidated into five companies, A, B, C, D and E, under command of Major Derry. In the new assignment of companies, under this order, company F, stationed at Fort Insley, Mo., retained its old designation; company M, at Pawnee, Ks., became company G; company C, at Fort McKean, Mo., became company H; company D, at Fort Hamer, Mo., became company I; and company A, which had been stationed since the previous December at Fort Curtis, Mo., became company K.

That portion of the regiment, which had been stationed at Little Rock, left that city on the 21st of April, arriving next day at Duval's Bluff, where the cavalry depot of the department had been established. Here they remained until the 3d of June, when they embarked, and descending the White River to the Mississippi, proceeded to St. Louis, Mo., arriving on the 12th at that city. They left St. Louis on the 22d of June, and proceeding thence by rail to Rolla, arrived on the 1st of July at Springfield, Mo. Here they were employed in post duty until the 18th of July, when they were again put in motion, and marching across the country reached Fort Leavenworth, Ks., on the 2d of August. This battalion, with the field and staff officers, was mustered out on the 8th of September, 1865, at Fort Leavenworth, and arrived on the 14th at Madison, Wisconsin, where the men were paid and discharged.

From the imperfect data furnished by their reports on file, I am unable to give the movements of the other companies of this regiment, who were called upon for much service at various places on "the plains." Companies F, H, I and K were mustered out on the 29th of September, at Fort Leavenworth, and arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 2d of October. Companies G and L, were mustered out at Fort Leavenworth on the 27th and 23d of October, respectively; the former arriving at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 1st of November, 1865.

FOURTH REGIMENT.

The Fourth cavalry, accompanying General Lee's command, which consisted of the Eleventh New York, Second Illinois, Sixth Missouri and Fourth Wisconsin, cavalry, and the First Wisconsin battery, marched on the 6th of October, 1864, from Baton Rouge to Clinton, La., accomplishing the distance of forty miles within six hours. On arriving in the vicinity of the place, Major Craigue, with fifty men of the Fourth, and the same number from other regiments, dashed into the town, in advance of the main column, and captured a colonel, several line officers and twenty-eight enlisted men; the rebel commander, General Hodge, narrowly escaping. Next day, the expedition marched thirty miles to Greensburg, La., and returning on the 8th, Major Craigue's command of one hundred men was "bushwhacked" on the Amite River, sustaining a loss of Lieutenant Chase, badly, and Sergeant Pygall of company B, mortally, wounded. They encamped for the night six miles from Greenwell Springs, and on the 9th, reached Baton Rouge, where they remained until the 7th of November, at which date, companies D and F, under command of Major Craigue, were detached from the regiment, under orders to re establish a post at Highland Stockade.

As a portion of an expedition to Liberty and Brookhaven, Miss, under the command of General A. L. Lee, the regiment, accompanying the Second cavalry brigade, left Baton Rouge on the evening of the 14th of November, and bivouacked in the woods near Port Hudson, from midnight of the 14th until daylight on the morning of the 16th, when they made a forced march towards Liberty. At Camp Beauregard, twenty-six miles from Liberty, on the Comite River, the Fourth Wisconsin in advance, surprised about four hundred rebels and captured nearly all their arms, camp equipage and stores, with fifty prisoners and twenty horses. Lieutenant Flint, of company G, by a gallant charge on that occasion, captured the pickets of the enemy, without alarming the camp. On the 17th, they reached Liberty, Miss., seventy miles from Baton Rouge, and next day, four hundred men of the regiment, under command of Major Craigue, effected a forced march of fifty miles to Brookhaven, Miss., where the enemy was surprised, and ten officers and fifty nine men were captured, together with a steam engine and large quantities of subsistence stores. They also burned several confederate store-houses at this place, and rejoined the main column at Liberty on the 19th. On this day, a body of the enemy, four hundred strong, attacked the detachment remaining at Liberty, and having fought with great resolution for nearly three hours, was finally driven off. Our loss in this affair was eight wounded. The expedition commenced the return march on the 20th, and re entered camp at Baton Rouge on the following day.

On the 27th of November, the regiment left Baton Rouge as a portion of the Pascagoula expedition, under command of General Davidson, and accompanying the Second brigade of the cavalry division, set out for the purpose of making a feint on the Mobile and Ohio railroad, with the object of preventing the rebel forces, then in the vicinity of Mobile, from moving to the assistance of General Hood.

Marching by way of Greensburg, they passed through Tangipaho, La., seventy miles from Baton Rouge, on the 30th, and encamped six miles beyond. A detachment of our regiment under Major Craigue, was the first to enter Tangipaho, where they captured several prisoners, and a considerable quantity of subsistence stores. On the 1st of December, they advanced twenty-eight miles to Franklinton, La., and moving forward with great difficulty from this place, through swamps where progress was almost impossible, they crossed Pearl River on pontpons, on the afternoon of the 4th. Marching thence by way of Columbia, Miss., and crossing the Black and Pascagoula Rivers, they arrived on the the 13th of December at West Pascagoula, Miss., on the Gulf of Mexico, about one hundred and forty miles from New Orleans, having marched three hundred miles from Baton Rouge.

While awaiting transportation, they were detained at Pascagoula until the 1st of January, 1865, when the first detachment was embarked on transports, for Lakeport, La. The last detachment reached this point on the 3d, when the regiment encamped at Carrollton. Next day they embarked at this place, and ascending the Mississippi River, landed on the evening of the 5th at Baton Rouge. On the 7th, companies D, E, F and G were detached from the regiment, and commenced the erection of a strong earthwork, seven miles from Baton Rouge, near Highland Stockade.

On the 1st of March, the regiment moved out with a cavalry expedition to Clinton, and on the following day, a detachment of the regiment was engaged with the enemy, near Olive Branch, sustaining a loss of three men killed, and Lieutenant Gleason and Sergeant Martin mortally wounded. They subsequently accompanied the expedition to Clinton, and on the 10th, returned to Baton Rouge.

On the 30th of March, they embarked at Baton Rouge, and landed next day at Carrollton, where the regiment was assigned to the First brigade, Seventh division of the cavalry corps. On the 4th, 5th and 6th of April, detachments of the regiment embarked at Lakeport, for Mobile Bay; the last detachment arriving on the 8th, at Starks' Landing, where the regiment was reunited. They moved on the 9th to Holyoke plantation, near Blakely, Ala., in which vicinity they remained, guarding the rear and the communications until the surrender of the fortifications defending Mobile. Early on the morning of the 18th of April, accompanying the northward movement of the cavalry corps, they left camp near Blakely, and crossing Escambia River on the following day, arrived on the 22d at Greenville, Ala. Resuming the march from this place on the 24th, they passed through Troy on the 26th, and Louisville on the following day; and crossing the Chattahoochee River on the 28th, encamped on the 30th at Georgetown, Ga., at which point the farther advance of the expedition was abandoned.

They left Georgetown on the 3d of May, and marching westward, arrived on the 8th at Montgomery, Ala. Resuming the movement on the 11th towards the Mississippi River, and marching by way of Kingston and Perryville, they encamped on the 14th near Centrevil e. They left Centreville on the 15th, and passing through Greenborough and Eutaw, crossed the Black Warrior River on the 17th; and marching by way of Pickensville, Ala., and Columbus, Miss., crossed the Tombigbee on the evening of the 20th of May. They remained in camp on the right bank of the Tombigbee until the 26th, when they were ordered to West Point, Miss., for the purpose of securing confederate cotton and stores. Detachments of the regiment were sent to Aberdeen, Okolona, and other points on and near the Mobile and Ohio railroad, but these were recalled on the 27th, in compliance with the orders of General Grierson, directing the regiment to start at once for Vicksburg. Marching on the following day, they proceeded by way of Kosciusko and Clear Creek, arriving at Vicksburg on the 5th of June.

They remained at Vicksburg, until the 26th of June, at which date, in obedience to orders to proceed to Texas, companies A, B, C and F embarked on transports, en route for Shreveport, La., The balance of the regiment embarked at Vicksburg on the 26th, and descending the Mississippi to Red River, ascended the latter stream to Shreveport, where they landed on the 2d of July, and encamped two and a half miles from the town, at Natt's Springs. On the 9th of July, the cavalry force, to which the Fourth Wisconsin was attached, left Shreveport, under command of General Merritt, and marching by way of Marshall, Austin and New Braunfels, arrived on the 2d of August, at San Antonio, Texas. Here the headquarters of the regiment remained until the 11th of October, when they marched westward, under orders to report to Major General Steele, for duty on the Rio Grande. Marching by way of Fort Ewell on the Neuces, and Fort McIntosh at Laredo, they arrived on the 2d of November at Ringgold Barracks, at which place they were assigned to the Second division of the Twenty-fifth army corps, General Jackson commanding.

While stationed at San Antonio, two expeditions, each under command of Lieutenant Colonel Craigue, were sent out into the country northwest of San Antonio, and were the first Union troops to penetrate west of that place. The first was ordered to Fort Inge, one hundred miles distant, to examine into its condition, and to confer with the Kickapoo and other Indian chiefs in the vicinity. The second advanced to Forts Ewell and Duncan, and Eagle Pass, two hundred miles from San Antonio. In this expedition, Captain Ramsay commanded a detachment, which scouted the country for a distance of fifty miles up the Neuces River.

On the Rio Grande, detachments of the regiment were stationed as follows: company C, under command of Captain Brooks, at Brownsville, on duty at General Weitzel's headquarters; company B, under command of Captain Baker, at Santa Maria, thirty-five miles; company F, under command of Captain Mower, at Los Guavas, one hundred miles; companies G and H, with headquarters of the regiment, Lieutenant-Colonel Craigue commanding, at Ringgold Barracks, one hundred and twenty miles; companies A and D, at Redmond's Ranche, one hundred and eighty miles, and company E, under command of Lieutenant Pixley, at Laredo, two hundred and forty miles from Brownsville. Courier stations were established at intervals of twenty miles, from Brownsville to Laredo, through which semi-weekly mails were transmitted. Besides these duties, the regiment was employed in the enforcement of the revenue laws, with frequent scouting expeditions against Indians and other marauders.

On the 4th of December, a detachment from the troops stationed at Redmond's Ranche and Laredo, under command of Captain Farnsworth, set out from Laredo, and having advanced to Eagle Pass, returned on the 21st to camp. Captain Hall, with his company, on the 10th of May, 1866, moved rapidly northward from Laredo, a distance of forty miles, in pursuit of a party of Indians, who had committed horrible murders and outrages upon the white settlers. Captain Hall failed to overtake the Indians who had escaped across the Rio Grande into Mexico. In the beginning of May, a detachment of the regiment, under Captain Ramsay, then stationed at Half-way House, fifteen miles from Brownsville, encountered a party of Imperial soldiers, called contra-guerillas, who were in the act of crossing the river for the purpose of murder and theft. Upon their refusing to obey Captain Ramsay's orders to halt, they were fired upon, six of their number killed, and all their horses and equipments captured.

On the 3d of May, orders were received, directing the muster-out of the regiment, on account of its services being no longer required. The scattered detachments were at once ordered in, and on the 20th, by the arrival of the force from Laredo, the regiment was re-united at Brownsville.

The regiment was mustered out of service on the 28th of May, and on the 2d of June left Brownsville, en route for home. They embarked at Brazos Santiago on the 3d, touched at Galveston on the following day, and on the 7th reached New Orleans, La. Here they re-embarked next day, and ascending the Mississippi, arrived on the 14th at Cairo, Ill.

On the 16th of June, 1866, the Fourth veteran cavalry reached Madison, Wisconsin, where the regiment was shortly afterwards paid and formally disbanded.

LIGHT ARTILLERY.

FIRST BATTERY.

During the past year, the First battery was stationed principally at Baton Rouge, La. On the 15th of November, 1864, the right section, under Lieutenant Nutting, accompanied an expedition to Liberty, where they participated in a skirmish with the rebels, returning on the 22d to camp. On the 26th, the battery left Baton Rouge with the cavalry expedition, under command of General Davidson, marching by way of Greensburg, La., Columbia and Augusta, Miss., to West Pascagoula, Miss., a distance of three hundred miles, which they accomplished in sixteen days.

Embarking on the 27th of December, they reached New Orleans on the 30th, and marching thence on the 3d of January, 1865, arrived next day at Baton Rouge. Here they were stationed, until ordered to Wisconsin for discharge.

The battery was mustered out of service on the 18th of July, 1865, at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee.

THIRD BATTERY.

The Third battery remained at Chattanooga, Tenn., until the spring of the present year, when they moved to Murfreesboro, Tenn., at which place they were stationed until ordered to Wisconsin, to be discharged.

The battery arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 3d of July, 1865, and on the 20th, was mustered out and disbanded.

The returns from this battery are imperfect, so far as relates to its military history.

FIFTH BATTERY.

On the afternoon of the 3d of October, 1864, the Fifth battery left Atlanta, Ga., and marching with the Fourteenth corps, accompanied the northward movement of General Sherman's forces, to repel the threatened attack of General Hood, upon the railroad communications with Chattanooga.

In this campaign, they marched about one hundred and sixty miles, and returning, bivouacked near Rome, Ga., where they received new clothing and were fitted out for the long march which followed. On the 12th of November, they moved southward, and arrived on the 15th at Atlanta, whence on the following day, they commenced the march to Savannah, reaching Milledgeville on the 23d. From this date, they advanced with the corps, a section of the battery being occasionally placed in position to disperse the rebel cavalry, and on the 13th of December, took position in our lines opposite Savannah. Upon the evacuation of the city by its rebel garrison, the battery encamped within a mile of the city.

On the 20th of January, 1865, they marched to the northwest, arriving on the 27th at Springfield, Ga. Moving thence on the following day, they encamped near Sisters' Ferry, where they crossed the Savannah River on the 5th of February, and moved to Upper Landing, at which point the battery was next day placed in position to prevent the passage of a rebel gunboat. Resuming the march northward through South Carolina on the 7th of February, they passed through Brighton on that day, and proceeding by way of Barnwell, they struck the Charleston and Augusta railroad on the 12th, which with the following day, was occupied in destroying the track. The battery crossed the Edisto River on the 14th, reached Lexington on the 16th, crossed the Saluda River on the 17th, Broad River on the 19th, and the Catawba at midnight on the 27th, arriving on the 5th of March at Cheraw, the terminus of the Cheraw and Darlington railroad.

Crossing the Great Pedee River at this place on the 7th of March, and the Little Pedee on the 9th, they arrived on the 11th of March at Fayetteville, N. C., where they remained until the 15th, when they crossed the Cape Fear River, the battery being placed in position to cover the passage and acting as rear guard to the army of Georgia. On the 20th the Fifth battery participated in the battle of Bentonville, and on the 23d, crossed the Neuse River to Goldsboro, going into camp at that place.

Resuming the march from Goldsboro on the 10th of April, they passed through Smithfield on the 11th, and Clayton on the following day, arriving on the 13th at Raleigh, the capital of North Carolina. They left Raleigh on the 14th, and marching in a southwesterly direction, encamped next day at Holly Springs, where they remained until the 29th of April, when they moved to Page's Station, eight miles from Raleigh, from which point they next day set out on the homeward march to Washington, D. C. During this march they accompanied the movement of the Fourteenth corps, and took part in the review of the 24th of May, at Washington, near which they remained in camp until ordered to Wisconsin to be discharged from service.

The Fifth battery arrived at Madison, Wisconsin, on the 6th of June, 1865, and was mustered out of service on the 14th, to date from the day of their arrival.

SIXTH BATTERY.

The Sixth battery, at that time attached to the Third division of the Fifteenth army corps, was stationed on the 1st of October, 1864, in Fort Etowah, a strong earthwork, situated on an eminence commanding the bridge across the Etowah River, near Cartersville, Ga.

On the expiration of the original term of service of the battery, the command devolved upon Lieutenant Simpson, the senior officers, together with sixty-six men, having been discharged from service. The Sixth battery then comprised an aggregate of two officers and ninety-six enlisted men, of whom forty were veterans. As they had but few horses, a supply of which could not be obtained, the battery was unprepared for field service, but in other respects was well equipped.

Upon the approach of the rebel forces under General Hood, the fortifications were strengthened, in anticipation of an attack, but owing to the failure of the enemy's assault upon Allatoona, six miles distant, on the 5th of October, Fort Etowah was not attacked. On the 1st of November, twenty-three horses of the battery were transferred to the Twelfth Wisconsin battery, with which on the 9th, the Sixth battery was ordered to exchange guns, receiving Rodman rifles for Napoleon guns. The battery broke camp at Fort Etowah on the 10th of November, and moved to Cartersville, whence they proceeded by rail, arriving next day at Chattanooga, Tenn. Here they turned over to the quartermaster's department the remainder of the horses and transportation, and resuming the journey on the 13th, they arrived on the 16th at Nashville. They joined the reserve artillery on the 17th at Camp Barry, where Captain Hood assumed command of the battery, on the 29th of November.

In anticipation of an attack from General Hood's forces, which had appoached to within a short distance of the city, Camp Barry was broken up on the same day, and the artillery assigned to different positions in the defences of Nashville, the Sixth battery occupying Fort Gillem. Early in December, the battery was supplied with horses, mules and wagons, and remained in Fort Gillem, without participating in the battles around the city, until the 29th of December, when they returned to Camp Barry.

On the 7th of January, 1865, the Sixth battery, with the artillery of the army of the Tennessee, was transferred to the Reserve garrison artillery of the department of the Cumberland, and on the 12th the horses of the battery were again turned over to the quartermaster's department. In accordance with orders to that effect, the men, on the 16th of January, were armed with muskets, and subsequently, in addition to manning the guns of the battery, furnished details, for duty as provost guard in the city. They left Nashville by rail on the 17th of February, arriving next day at Chattanooga, where the battery was placed in permanent camp.

They remained at Chattanooga, until ordered to proceed to Wisconsin, for discharge from service. They arrived on the 3d of July, 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where the Sixth battery was mustered out on the 18th, to take effect from the 3d, the date of their arrival in the state.

NINTH BATTERY.

On the 14th of October, 1864, two sections of the Ninth battery, including those previously stationed at Salina, left Fort Riley, Ks., leaving a detachment of twenty-six men at that place, under Lieutenant Edington, and proceeding by forced marches, a distance of one hundred and forty-five miles, arrived on the 18th at Shawneetown, joining Colonel Moonlight's brigade, General Blunt's division, of the army of the Border, then in pursuit of the rebel General Price's retreating forces.

They left Shawneetown on the 21st of October, arriving next day at Kansas City, and on the 23d were engaged in the battle at Westport, Mo., and encamped at Little Santa Fe, having marched twenty-eight miles during the day. Continuing the pursuit on the 24th, they arrived next day at Fort Scott, Ks. They left Fort Scott on the 26th, and having marched one hundred and forty-two miles, arrived on the 30th at Keittsville, Mo. Resuming the march on the 1st of November, they arrived on the 4th at Fayetteville, Ark., where they were allowed to rest, the rebel forces having been driven across the Arkansas River. They left Fayetteville on the 15th of November, and moved to Paola, Ks., where they encamped.

In December these two sections moved to Fort Leavenworth, where they were joined in January, 1865, by Lieutenant Crocker's command from Fort Larned. On the 26th of January, two commissioned officers, and fifty-nine enlisted men were mustered out by reason of the expiration of their term of service, when Lieutenant Crocker assumed command of the battery. Early in February the detachment under Lieutenant Edington rejoined the battery at Fort Leavenworth. The headquarters of the battery were subsequently moved to Fort Riley.

The Ninth battery was mustered out on the 30th of September at Fort Leavenworth, Ks., and arrived on the 4th of October, 1865, at Madison, Wisconsin, where the men received their pay and final discharge.

TENTH BATTERY.

The Tenth battery, accompanying the movement of the cavalry corps of General Sherman's army, broke camp between Sandtown and Atlanta, Ga., on the 1st of October, 1864. Marching twelve miles on the bank of the Sweetwater River, to Salt Springs, they participated on this and the following day in an action near this place, and on the 3d took part in the engagement at Moses' Creek, near Powder Springs. They marched on the 4th of October, fifteen miles to Kenesaw Mountain, and next day moved forward twelve miles to Culp's farm on Moses' Creek, where they encamped until the 9th, when the movement northward was resumed, and passing next day through Van Wirt, at which place they participated in an action lasting two hours, arrived on the 13th at Rome. In the afternoon of the 13th, the battery marched on a reconnoissance, eight miles on the bank of the Coosa River, returning in the evening to Rome.

They left Rome on the 14th of October, marching twenty miles to a point near Stilesboro, whence they marched on the 16th to Burnt Hickory, returning next day to camp near Stilesboro. On the 20th, they moved twenty-two miles to Pumpkin Vine, and returning on the 22d, remained in camp on Davis' plantation, a short distance from Stilesboro, until the 27th of October, when they were again put in motion, arriving next day at Marietta, where they went into camp, having marched during the month a distance of two hundred and thirty miles.

In the movement of General Sherman's army to Savannah, they marched on the 14th of November to East Point, and advancing next day from this place to Marengo, were engaged on the 16th at Lovejoy Station and Bear Creek, capturing two guns. On the 18th, they reached Planter's Factory, where they crossed the Ocmulgee River on the following day, and advancing by way of Clinton, arrived on the 20th, at Macon, the junction of the Southwestern, Macon and Western, and Georgia Central railroads.

They moved on the 21st of November, five miles east of Macon, and lay in line of battle until next day, when the march was resumed, the battery arriving at Gordon on the 23d and passing through Milledgeville on the following day. In the action at Waynesboro on the 27th, one piece of the battery was engaged and assisted in the repulse of the rebel attack upon the rear guard. The battery also participated on the 28th, in the engagements at Buckhead Church and Jones' plantation, arriving on the 29th at Louisville, having marched during the month, three hundred and thirty-seven miles.

Continuing the march from Louisville on the 1st of December, they arrived on the 3d at Thomas' Station, and next day participated in the action at Waynesboro, on the Augusta and Savannah railroad. On the 11th, the battery encamped within five miles of Savannah on the Georgia Central railroad, and on the 13th set out for Midway Church, thirty miles distant, arriving next day. Returning on the 16th, they went into camp at King's Bridge, near Savannah, where they remained until the commencement of the campaign through the Carolinas.

Marching from King's Bridge on the 28th of January, 1865, they passed through Springfield, Ga., on the 30th to Sister's Ferry, at which point they crossed the Savannah River on the 3d of February, and moved forward six miles to Robertsville, S. C. Marching next day, they arrived on the 6th at Barnwell, having participated in the action at the Salkehatchie River, near that place. They advanced on the 7th of February to Blackville, and arriving on the 11th at Aiken, seventeen miles from Augusta, on the Charleston and Augusta railroad, participated in the attempt by our cavalry to carry the town by storm. The attack having been repulsed by the rebel garrison, they retired six miles to Johnson's Station, during which movement the battery formed part of the rear guard.

On the 13th of February, they crossed the South Edisto River at Gainard's Bridge, and next day arrived at Gunter's Bridge, on the North Edisto, where they participated in an engagement with a force of the enemy, posted to prevent the crossing of the river. They reached Lexington on the 16th, and crossing the Saluda River at Mount Zion on the 17th, passed through Alston next day, crossed Broad River on the 19th, arriving on the 22d at Blackstock Station, on the Charlotte and South Carolina railroad. They arrived on the 25th at Lancaster, and resuming the march to the northeast on the 28th, they took part, on the 3d of March, in an engagement near Hornsboro, in Anson County, N. C. Next day the rebel attack was again repulsed, and on the 5th they reached Sneedsboro, at which place they were delayed one day awaiting the arrival of pontoons, and crossing the Great Pedee River on the evening of the 6th, they arrived next day at Rockingham, in the action at which place one section of the battery was engaged.

On the 9th of March, the Tenth battery reached Monroe's Cross Roads, where the camp was attacked at daylight next morning by General Hampton's forces, our battery losing ten prisoners, thirty horses killed and captured, and one gun disabled in the engagement which resulted. They marched on the 11th, twenty-one miles to Fayetteville, where they crossed Cape Fear River on the 15th, and skirmishing with the enemy as they advanced, pressed forward twenty-three miles to Smith's plantation, near Averysboro, where they took part next day in the general engagement of the cavalry and the Twentieth corps, with General Johnston's forces. The battery on the 24th of March, arrived at Mount Olive, fourteen miles south of Goldsboro, on the Wilmington and Weldon railroad.

On their arrival at Goldsboro, N. C., the non-veterans of the battery who were entitled to discharge were ordered to Wisconsin for muster-out of service, and arrived at Madison on the 20th of April, 1865, where they were mustered out on the 26th, to take effect from the date of arrival.

The balance of the battery was temporarily attached to the Twelfth Wisconsin battery, with which they served until discharged from service.

ELEVENTH BATTERY.

On the 1st of October, 1864, the Eleventh battery was stationed in West Virginia, as follows; the centre section, under command of First Lieutenant McAfee, at Grafton; the right section, First Lieutenant Charles Bagley, at Clarksburg, and the left section, Second Lieutenant McKenzie, at New Creek.

Lieutenant McAfee, with eighteen men and one gun of the battery, left Grafton on the 26th of November, with an expedition under command of Lieutenant Colonel Fleming, of the Sixth West Virginia cavalry, and having marched about forty miles towards Moorfield, encountered a superior force of the enemy, and was driven back to New Creek, with the loss of six men, eleven horses and one piece of artillery, captured by the rebels. On the 28th of November, the enemy attacked the post of New Creek, and captured forty-nine men, including one commissioned officer of the battery, with sixty-eight horses and three pieces of artillery. Lieutenant Bagley then assumed command of the battery; Lieutenant Cunningham taking charge of the detachment at Clarksburg.

On the 21st of January, 1865, the Eleventh battery was ordered to Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and arrived at that place on the evening of the 22d, reporting to General Stevenson, in command of that post. The battery remained at Harper's Ferry, until ordered to be discharged from service.

The muster-out rolls of this organization have not been received at this office.

TWELFTH BATTERY.

The Twelfth battery, on the 5th of October, 1864, participated in the celebrated defence of Allatoona, against the attack of the rebel forces under Major General French.

The first intimation of the enemy's presence was given before daylight by the report of musketry on the south side of the town. At this juncture a train arrived, bringing General Corse with a reinforcement of eight hundred men to the garrison. The train immediately started back for farther reinforcements, but was subsequently intercepted and did not return. At daylight, the enemy was discovered, planting a battery and constructing temporary works on an eminence about a mile from the fort, when one gun of the Twelfth battery was ordered outside the works to open fire. Five shots were fired from this gun, when the enemy opened with six pieces, but with the aid of the rest of the battery, which now opened fire, the gun was retained in this position for two hours, when the enemy ceased firing. Up to this time, the artillery alone had been engaged. At nine in the morning, a flag of truce was received, bearing the statement of the rebel commander that his forces had surrounded the position, and demanding the unconditional surrender of the garrison, which was of course refused.

On the return of the messenger, the rebel force, six thousand strong, immediately formed and advanced to the attack on the west and north, their battery being posted on the south, in front of our works. For three hours, a most sanguinary engagement was continued between the fort and its outer works, until the garrison had been forced back into the fort and the works contiguous. In this position the engagement was continued with great gallantry on both sides, until the ammunition of the garrison was nearly exhausted, but three rounds of canister for each gun remaining. These were reserved until "the rebels could almost be touched through the embrasures," when a terrible volley was delivered into the crowded ranks of the enemy. From this moment the attacking force wavered, and after a short struggle, broke and retreated. In this engagement, which lasted six hours, our battery lost six men killed and fifteen wounded.

The battery subsequently remained at Allatoona, until the 12th of November, when they marched forty miles to Atlanta, whence on the 15th, they set out on the march to Savannah. Accompanying the movement of the First division, Fifteenth corps, to which they were attached, they arrived on the 10th of December, at the outer defences of Savannah. On the 12th, one section of the battery was placed in position, twelve hundred yards from the rebel works, and next day, another section at six hundred yards, both sections being heavily engaged during the day. On the 14th, the first section was advanced to the position of the second, which they retained, under heavy fire from the rebel works, until the 21st of December, at which date they entered the city, which the enemy had evacuated during the preceding night.

They broke camp at Savannah on the 14th of January, 1865, and embarking at Fort Thunderbolt, arrived on the 16th at Beaufort, on Port Royal Island, S. C. From Beaufort, they marched in a northwesterly direction, crossing the Savannah and Charleston railroad at Pocotaligo, and arriving on the 29th of January at McPhersonville. Resuming the march on the 1st of February, they arrived on the 16th at Columbia, which was next day occupied by our forces. They crossed the Wateree River on the 20th of February, passed through Liberty on the following day, and reached Goldsboro, N. C., on the 24th of March.

They broke camp at Goldsboro on the 10th of April, and having met but little opposition during the advance, entered Raleigh at noon on he 14th. The battery lay in camp four miles west of the city, on Beaver Dam Creek, until the 29th of April, when they commenced the march for Washington, at which place they participated in the review of the 24th of May.

On the 7th of June, 1865, the Twelfth battery arrived at Madison, Wis., where they were mustered out on the 26th, to take effect from the date of their arrival in the state.

HEAVY ARTILLERY.

FIRST REGIMENT.

The record of battery A, First battalion Wisconsin heavy artillery, is identical with that of the Second infantry, from its organization down to the 25th of July, 1861.

At this date, three days after the celebrated battle of Bull Run, company K of the regiment, under command of Captain Langworthy, was detached to form part of the garrison of Fort Corcoran, on the heights near Washington. They remained in this post until the 28th of August, when they moved to Fort Marcy, near the chain bridge, and occupied the fort as garrison. Thence one-half of the company was ordered on the 12th of September, to the performance of garrison duty in Fort Ethan Allen, and also to instruct a regiment of infantry, then stationed there, in heavy artillery drill.

On the 10th of October, company K, in obedience to orders, rejoined the regiment, with which it was connected until the 9th of December, when, by order of the War Department, the company was permanently detached from the regiment, and organized as an artillery company, under the name of the First battery Wisconsin heavy artillery. By the same order they were placed in garrison at Fort Cass. While here, the battery was filled to the maximum by recruits, sent forward from Wisconsin, and the additional officers received their commissions.

During the retreat of the army of Virginia, under General Pope, a detachment of forty men from the battery was sent on the 28th of August, 1862, with three pieces of artillery, to garrison Fort Buffalo, an advanced post, where they were attacked by the enemy, who finding his attempts to shell them out ineffectual, soon withdrew. Immediate danger to the capital having passed, the detachment returned to Fort Cass on the 7th of September. They moved on the 27th of November, to Fort Ellsworth, and on the 12th of May, 1863, were transferred to Fort Worth. As to their efficiency in this branch of service, the following, which finds an appropriate place in their record, sufficiently speaks :

HEADQUARTERS INSPECTOR OF ARTILLERY, U. S. A.
Washington, May 27th, 1863.

Captain Meservey is an excellent artillery officer, and has now one of the best companies of foot artillery I have ever seen.

(Signed) WILLIAM F. BARRY,
Brig. General, Inspector of Artillery, U. S. A.

On the 8th of June, 1863, Captain Meservey was authorized by the Secretary of War, " to recruit a battalion, four batteries, of heavy artillery, using the First battery as a basis for that purpose." The required batteries were soon enrolled and mustered into service, the First taking position as battery A, First battalion of Wisconsin heavy artillery.

Immediately upon the receipt of the order of June 8th, 1863, from the War Department, authorizing Captain Meservey to recruit his command to a battalion, recruiting appointments were issued and volunteers were rapidly enrolled for this favorite branch of the service. On the 22d of August, a portion of battery B, under a first lieutenant, was mustered into United States' service, and on the 9th of September, the battery being meanwhile recruited to the maximum and fully organized, the muster into United States' service was completed.

Battery A moved in October, 1863, from Fort Worth, to Battery Rodgers, where they remained until May, 1864, during which month they were transferred to Fort Willard. They subsequently returned in August to Battery Rodgers, Va.

Battery B, which had been previously organized, left Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, in October, 1863, and was assigned to duty at Fort Terrell, Munfordsville, Ky. Here they remained until the 4th of January, 1864, at which date they moved to Lexington, Ky., taking position as garrison of Fort Clay.

Battery C was mustered into United States service on the 1st of October, 1863, left Camp Washburn for active service on the 30th, and proceeding by way of Indianapolis, was assigned position in Fort Wood, Chattanooga, Tenn. They moved in January, 1864, to Fort Creighton, and subsequently, in May, to Fort Sherman, Chattanooga.

Battery D was mustered into service on the 7th of November, 1863, and left Camp Washburn on the 1st of February, 1864, under orders to report at New Orleans, La., where they arrived on the 9th. Re-embarking on the 18th, they proceeded down the Mississippi to Fort Jackson, where they landed on the following day and took position as garrison of the post. They left Fort Jackson on the 23d of July, 1864, and on the 26th were assigned position in Fort Berwick, near Brashear City, La.

In pursuance of General Orders No. 21, from this office, dated September 14th, 1864, the work of recruiting eight companies, the number necessary to complete the regimental organization, was at once commenced, and batteries L and M left Camp Randall for active service on the 30th of September.

Companies E and F, of the First heavy artillery, left Camp Randall on the 3d of October, 1864; company H, on the 7th of October, company K, on the 17th of October, and companies G and I, on the 12th of November. These batteries reported at the headquarters of the regiment and were assigned to duty in the defences of Washington, as a part of the Fourth brigade, De Russey's division, of the Twenty-second army corps.

Battery B remained at Lexington, Ky, until the 30th of August 1865, at which date the company was mustered out and discharged from service.

Battery C occupied Fort Sherman, Chattanooga, Tenn., until the 29th of March, 1865, when they moved by rail to Athens, Tenn, fifty-nine miles from Chattanooga, on the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad. On the 5th of April they marched six miles to Mouse Creek, at which point the battery was stationed* until the 3d of July, when they left Mouse Creek by rail, arriving next day at Strawberry Plains, Tenn. Battery C was mustered out at Nashville, Tenn., on the 21st of September, 1865, and arrived on the 25th at Madison, Wisconsin, where they were paid and disbanded.

Battery D was occupied in garrison duty at Brashear City, La., until the month of June, 1865, when they were ordered to Washington.

The remaining nine companies of this regiment were engaged in garrison duty in the defences of Washington, until the 26th of June, 1865, when those members of the regiment, whose term of service would expire prior to the 1st of October, comprising the companies from E to M, inclusive, were mustered out of service. These companies reached Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on the 1st of July, and were soon afterwards paid and disbanded.

Companies A and D, were mustered out at Washington on the 18th of August, 1865. The date of their arrival in the state has not been reported to this office.

*The following official recognition of the character of this company requires no comment:

"HD. QRS. 2D BRIGADE, 4TH DIV. D. C.
Knoxville, Tenn., June 3, 1865.

CAPTAIN:—The colonel commanding takes pleasure in inviting your attention to the following extract from the report of the A. A. Inspector-General of the brigade:

'Company C, 1st Wisconsin Heavy Art'y is in splendid condition. Captain Davies is a very energetic and efficient officer. This is clearly indicated by the condition of his command.'

Very respectfully
Your obedient servant,
(Signed) W. S. BRADFORD, A. A. A. G."

MONTHLY RETURNS, BI-MONTHLY MUSTER, AND MUSTER-OUT ROLLS.

Among the various measures taken to secure regimental information prior to the present year, none have proved so effective and generally useful as the monthly return, to which allusion has been made in my former reports, and of which there has been with but little exception, a systematic and regular receipt from the various organizations, since the spring of 1862. There was however much needed information which did not properly appear upon these returns, and deeming it not only desirable but proper that the state should be possessed of any and all public information pertaining to the interests and welfare of her soldiers, I addressed a letter to the Secretary of War requesting that copies of the bi-monthly muster rolls might be furnished this office, and that on the muster-out of the regiments a copy of those rolls might also be deposited there. To this request, reply was made that it was "not deemed desirable." Deeming the matter of such importance as to require further action, I addressed the second and following letter to the department:

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, September 5, 1864.

MAJOR:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th ult., in which, in reply to my request of the 15th ult., that provision be made for filing a copy of the Muster-out rolls of each Wisconsin organization in this office, it is stated "that it is not deemed desirable that any more muster rolls be made than is required by the Army Regulations." And further, that "the retained copies held by company commanders, should be obtained for the use of your (my) office."

Permit me, Major, to state as briefly as possible, a few reasons which appear to me of sufficient weight to render proper a more thorough revision of the matter before adopting as final the decision indicated.

The continuance of the war has shown the propriety, if not necessity, of filing in the archives of the state, complete record of the prominent facts in the military history of each volunteer furnished by her for the service of the United States.

In recognition of this necessity, the War Department, within a comparatively short time, has directed that muster-in rolls of all officers and enlisted men mustered into United States service, be filed in the office of the Adjutant General of the state, furnishing the organization to which they are attached. For the same reason all transfers or promotions of volunteers are officially reported to the same officer in his capacity of custodian of the military records of the state.

This necessity has therefore already been recognized in the official proceedings of the War Department.

If then it has appeared just that the state should be informed of the muster-into service of the volunteer whom she has furnished under the call of the General Government, it would seem proper that information should also be furnished of the completion of his term of service, and that among the permanent records of the state, it should appear whether he has died, deserted or been honorably discharged from the service.

With reference to the retained copies held by company commanders, it should be observed that the state has no authority over the officers in question which would enable her to demand such copies. In the volunteer service the company commander is generally mustered out with his company, and the rolls never come within reach of state authority. Besides, it may be asked, if these rolls are of no importance to the officer, why should they be furnished him, while the request of the state is refused? If they are necessary for his use, it would, of course, be improper for the State to demand them from him.

The provisions of the Army Regulations referred to appear to have been prepared with reference to the needs of the Regular Service, in which it is not contemplated that an entire company, with its officers, will be mustered out of service at the same time, and the reserved copy of the company commander becomes a portion of the company records.

Without attempting to enlarge upon any right which the state may possess, entitling her to a record of her citizens in the service of the United States, it is respectfully requested that the matter may be reconsidered; and that, if no objection exists, Mustering Officers be directed to send to this office direct, the muster-out rolls, heretofore furnished the company commanders.

I am, Major, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

Major SAMUEL BREEK, A. A. G.,
War Department.

To which communication the following reply was received:

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., Oct., 26, 1864.

SIR—I have the honor to inform you, that in order to facilitate the settlement of claims against the states, the commanding officers of regiments and independent organizations will be directed to furnish the following additional rolls and information to the Adjutant General of the state under the circumstances as explained, upon their application through this office.

1ST. Where the state authorities pay a regular monthly pay to soldiers or their families, one copy of the bi-monthly muster and pay roll.

2D. Where the state authorities pay a bounty, &c., to discharged soldiers, one copy of the muster-out roll.

3D. In all cases of death, information thereof, if desired for the settlement of claims against the state, and for no other purpose.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
SAMUEL BRECK.
Assistant Adjutant General.

Brig. General A. GAYLORD,
Adjt. Gen. State of Wis.

The position of the state brought it within the provisions of the regulations adopted, and announced in the foregoing letter. Application was made, and orders were issued by the War Department to commanding officers of our regiments, directing that this office be furnished in the future with the rolls referred to.

Aside from the information necessary to the Secretary of State in the issue of warrants and protection of the treasury in the payment of extra pay, the above named rolls now secured to the state, are together invaluable in the present and future in settlement of soldier's claims, and constitute in themselves a valuable history of the part borne by Wisconsin in this war.

The rolls are now all deemed secure against loss by fire, being filed in what is constructed for a fire-proof vault, connected with this office.

MILITARY HISTORY.

Pursuant to the instructions of the last Legislature, directing measures to correct and complete the records of this office, I immediately caused proper blanks to be prepared, and forwarded to the several organizations, with the following letter addressed to each regimental and company commander:

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, May 15th, 1865.

To the Officer commanding,.....Reg't Wis. Vols:

DEAR SIR:—The legislature of Wisconsin at its last session, passed an act authorizing and instructing the Adjutant General of the state "to take such measures as shall in his judgment be deemed necessary to correct and complete the records of his office, to the end that there shall be complete muster and descriptive rolls, with all subsequent information attainable, pertaining to the military history of each individual member of the several military organizations from this state, * * * in the service of the Government during the present rebellion."

Of course the intent of, and my ability to comply with the above requirement, looks to and is dependent largely upon the assistance which I may receive from the officers in command, in furnishing the information from the regimental and company records.

To facilitate the labor necessary, I have caused to be prepared and forwarded to each regiment, blanks in the form of Company Books, which give space and opportunity to fill out not only the ordinary muster and descriptive roll, but also the military history of each individual, and in which should be recorded the name of every man who has been a member of the company from the original organization to the present time, with as full and complete a military history of each as your records will enable you to furnish. The names of such men as were recruited and who were subsequently discharged, or who deserted, or died before muster, should also appear, with appropriate remarks.

I have no doubt that you already recognize the desirability of a record which shall, as far as possible, set forth in detail the part borne by each and every volunteer from our state, and which, deposited in the archives of the capitol, shall afford useful and ofttimes necessary information, in our own time, in facilitating the payment of claims, and securing pensions to the families of those who have fallen in the service, and which shall also remain a monument of the patriotic endurance of Wisconsin soldiers, which—more and more effulgent through coming years—shall reflect their confidence in the worth and stability of this Government, and the character and conduct of those whose lives were freely offered in the contest for its life and perpetuity.

Aside from the difficulty of procuring copies of your regimental and company records after the disbandment of the armies, what is scarcely of less importance to the record contemplated, the opportunity to gather facts and incidents from personal observation relative to many, will in the dispersal of the organizations have also passed out of reach and beyond recall.

I therefore earnestly urge that you will cause this matter to receive immediate attention, in order that the books may be completed, properly certified, and mailed or expressed to this office at the expense of the state.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

The gathering of so large a number of our regiments, preparatory to the grand review at Washington in May last, afforded an excellent opportunity to visit the regiments and to urge the importance of completing the records while the officers were comparatively at leisure. Much of the success there resulting is due to the labors of your Excellency and General Lucius Fairchild, which in connection with my own, were active and constant to secure the result sought. Of the entire number due, something more than one-half have at this date been received, and many are yet in the hands of officers mustered out, for completion, and from whom they will in most instances be received. An expression of interest in the success of the project was evidenced almost uniformly by officers of our regiments, and prompt measures taken to secure its fulfillment. The information from some few of the regiments mustered out before this record was proposed, and such other as fail entirely to respond, will necessarily be procured in part from the records at Washington. This will, however, be but a small portion of the total. I was prosecuting, and had hoped to complete this labor through the use of the regimental records turned over to the chief mustering officer by our returned regiments at muster-out. It was closed in November last, by an order upon Colonel Giddings to forward the records immediately to Washington, prior to which, request had been made that they might be temporarily turned over to this office for the purpose indicated.

Most, if not all of the Adjutants General of northern states have already issued, or are now preparing to issue, a list or catalogue of members of the regiments of their respective states. I have postponed any publication of this character, deeming that a completed work would be better than a partial one, which would necessitate additional publications of a like character.

The material collected in the descriptive books before mentioned, will afford an excellent opportunity to give not only the list of names, but also a brief record of individual service. Such a record will constitute a book of fifteen hundred or two thousand pages, and as it does not come directly within the province of a report, I respectfully suggest a resolution directing its publication, if deemed desirable.

STATE AGENTS.

The location of State Agents during the time they were engaged as such the past year, was as follows. Mrs. C. A. P. Harvey's labors were confined to the hospitals of the lower Mississippi, from Memphis to New Orleans. Mr. George W. Sturges, principally at St. Louis and surrounding hospitals.

Mr. W. Y. Selleck, assisted during the early part of the year by Mr. Ostrander, was engaged in the many hospitals at and around Washington, and Mr. E. L. Jones at Nashville, Tenn.

The labors of these agents being no longer required, they have been relieved from the different posts as their services became unnecessary. Their reports having been during the year, as heretofore, made to the state executive, and in most instances published, no mention is perhaps necessary from me in this report. Much credit is due for the devotion manifested, and the energy with which they have pursued their labors, the arduous character of which can be little known or appreciated by those unfamiliar with them. The benison of many a dying soldier rests upon them as their richest reward.

HOSPITALS.

Aside from the changes incident to the muster-out of regiments, the necessity for hospital accommodations was materially lessened by orders from the War Department, May 4, 1865, directing that "all soldiers, patients in hospitals, (except veteran volunteers, veterans of the First army corps and soldiers of the regular army,) will as soon as they shall cease to require medical treatment, be at once mustered out of service in the usual manner."

Under subsequent orders from the War Department, the main hospital in this state, known as the Harvey U. S. A. General Hospital, was discontinued in August, and the inmates still requiring treatment, transferred to the branch hospital at Camp Randall, Surgeon Howard Culbertson, U. S. Vols., remaining in charge until the 15th of October, when the patients were all transferred to the Post Hospital at the same place and Colonel Culbertson mustered out.

Among the many courtesies for which this office is indebted to that gentleman, is the following tabular statement of the admission and dismissal of patients at Harvey Hospital, from the date of its opening until its close:

Report of changes at Harvey General Hospital, from October 27, 1863, to October 15, 1865, when it was closed, under charge of Surgeon Howard Culbertson, U. S. Vols.

No. of patients admitted.	No. of patients returned to duty.	Transferred to other Hospitals.	Transferred to Veteran Reserve Corps.	Patients discharged.	Patients deserted.	Patients deceased.	Patients on furlough.
4058	1372	597	173	1613	129	92	82

Respectfully furnished for the information of General Gaylord by

HOWARD CULBERTSON,

Late Surgeon U. S Vols., in charge.

The exceedingly small per centage of deaths is a noticeable feature in the above exhibit, which speaks favorably for the professional skill of Colonel Culbertson.

The Swift General Hospital at Prairie du Chien, under the superintendence of A. A. Surgeon F. W. Kelly, U. S. A., was closed in the latter part of August, and that in Milwaukee, in charge of A. A. Surgeon A. Kelly, U. S. A., in the early part of September. Statistical items from these Hospitals, which I had contemplated giving in this report, are not in my possession.

TROPHIES.

The proper exhibition of the returned state and national colors of our regiments is a subject so fully presented by the Quartermaster general in his report for the current year, that officer being the custodian, as to need no mention from me. I cannot refrain, however, from urging his suggestions upon the consideration of the legislature.

These tattered flags are the occasion of many a visit to the state capitol from those who for years marched under their folds, defending them with patriotic care through strife and thick dangers, and which they now greet as a familiar friend; and from parents whose sons went down to death beneath their stars, that with "not one erased" and unpolluted by traitor hands, it might forever float the flag of the free.

Not only their careful preservation, but their proper exhibition is a duty which we owe alike to the gratification of the living and the memory of the dead.

In the completion of the rotunda of the capitol, an excellent opportunity will be afforded for a proper display of these trophies, and it is respectfully urged that it or some other place be designated and prepared for this purpose.

THE RECORDS OF ANDERSONVILLE,

Whose infamous page is made more hideous by the light of the illustrious names, and whose once foul domain is now consecrated by patriot dust, bears on its list and beneath its sod, thank God, but few, but all too many, of the sons of Wisconsin. It has been most truly said of the sufferings of Union prisoners in rebel hands, that "no explanation can relieve, and no apology tone down its hideous picture."

"As we go away from it down the years of history, it will neither lose ruggedness nor gain softer tints; but like a mountain which cannot be seen from its near base, but seems to spread out as you recede; so this vast atrocity will spread black against the sky down to the end of time."

Across that blackness shall ever shine in letters of light the names of the suffering patriot and the martyred dead.

From one, himself a sufferer at Andersonville,* I have received a carefully prepared list of those from our state who died at that place; complete so far as he could ascertain, and which is appended to this report in paper "D." It affords not only a melancholy relief by the removal of uncertainty as to the fate, but by the designation of burial place will enable some to visit the graves of friends.

To these and all others from our state whose lives have been given to this great struggle, we owe some fitting memorial. Here at the capital, where they received and from which they bore the flag they were to defend and sustain; the place from which, with stout hearts, strong arms and buoyant step, they went to battle for the nation's life; here let a fitting memorial proclaim their deeds of heroism, and evince a people's gratitude and love.

I respectfully urge upon the legislature an early consideration of this subject.

STATE MILITIA.

The militia system of the state is an utter failure. While I respectfully urge that this state of affairs should no longer exist, I have no additional suggestions to make respecting the present law beyond those already presented in the last two annual reports. In my opinion, no time can be more propitious than the coming season for a reorganization of the state militia.

Give it a new name, the "National Guard," or any other distinctive name, and a new law, in which our experience and that of all other states indicates there should be two clearly defined provisions; first, compelling service from the whole arms-bearing population, and, secondly, the encouragement of Independent organizations by assistance in the purchase of uniforms, and a per diem for specified service in drill and parade. In my opinion, a fund can be created by a light exemption or commutation tax, which will, at least after the first year, much more than sustain one regiment in each congressional district, or six throughout the state.

No enrollment was made the present year, it being deemed discretionary with the Governor, and the results obtained last year, not warranting the expense.

OFFICE MATTERS.

The clerical force of the office is now mainly occupied in furnishing certificates of service, information of death necessary in procuring back pay, bounties and pensions, with other varied duties consequent upon the closing of the war, and especially in the completion of the records accumulated in the more pressing months of labor, which not then absolutely necessary, can now be more correctly and economically closed. The number of clerks has been lately reduced by the discharge of two, and in the contemplated changes, will leave but five besides the Adjutant General, engaged in the labors of the office. So fast as they can be relieved from other more urgent labors, these will be engaged in the completion of the military history directed by the last legislature, in which the employment of those familiar with the records will be a true economy.

To reduce the number immediately beyond that now employed, would do violence to the interests of both the state and the soldiers. After the completion of the record before mentioned, the force can undoubtedly be further reduced, until the duties will require one or two persons. The office must necessarily be kept open and an active one at least so long as the requirements for information from its records are necessary for the welfare of those whose interests it is intended to subserve.

Some idea of the labors of the office during the past four year may be formed from the following data: There have been eighteen thousand three hundred and six letters written between April, 1861, and the present date, and during the same time twenty thousand two hundred and nineteen certificates, of one character and another, made from its records. The total number of commissions issued during the war is eight thousand three hundred and twenty-five, all of which, with subsequent changes, were duly recorded. A large amount of labor was involved in the keeping of a book of credits to sub-districts, in which the name of each individual recruited or drafted subsequent to October 12, 1863, has been entered, with the date of muster into the service, to the proper locality. As the records of the Assistant Provost Marshal General gave only the numerical data, the information afforded by these records was invaluable to parties from the several towns seeking to regulate or correct their account for troops furnished.

I have appended in paper B a statement showing the whole quota of the several sub-districts in the state, under the calls of February first, March fourteenth, July eighteenth and December nineteenth, 1864, and also the quota of the several congressional districts under calls prior to October 12, 1863; with the total credit to each as appears by the book of credits above mentioned.

Copies of the "monthly reports" and such other information as is required by the Secretary of State in the payment of state aid, have been promptly made to that office, requiring the labor of one and sometimes two clerks for that business alone.

To the gentlemen composing the clerical force of the office, much credit is due for the zealous and faithful performance of the labors devolving upon them. Courteous and attentive to the inquiries for information from soldiers or citizens, I believe that all will bear witness to their gentlemanly conduct and efficient labors for the state.

To them I extend my warmest thanks for the personal interest evinced, and their active co-operation in the labors of the office.

REVIEW.

In the preparation of this report, it occurs to me that a review of the main points of interest, of state action connected with the raising of troops during the war, may properly be given in this, the closing year of the rebellion, and I therefore submit the main items which present themselves to my mind, without attempt at elaborate detail, and giving them prominence as they transpired in the several years, rather than in a connected treatment of any one subject through the entire period.

The character and cause of the rebellion are not subjects within the scope of this proposed review, and are left to the exposition of others. The fact existed. Rebellion had fired its first gun. The question was no longer one of party strife or sectional difference; the life of the nation was sought and endangered, and through every hamlet of the north the patriot people felt the shock and sprang to its defence. Wisconsin, yet among the younger of her sister states, always at peace within her borders, and absorbed through varied industry in the higher development of her latent wealth, threw aside the implements of labor, joining with the common impulse in the one purpose of maintaining the supremacy and integrity of the national government.

Our state was fortunate in having for her Governor at this juncture a man not only devotedly attached to her interests and the national welfare, but far-seeing, sagacious and self-reliant.

The legislature had, just at the close of its annual session the present year, passed an act authorizing the Governor to take such measures as should enable him to respond in the most efficient and speedy manner to the calls of the General Government, and the first call for troops pursuant to the proclamation of the President of the United States, and directing the organization of one regiment, (the number required from this state), was answered by the people within ten days with the number requisite for five regiments. So great was the enthusiasm, that strife was engendered between companies in their endeavor to secure positions in the service.

Sharing in the not uncommon belief that the Government would have need of a larger body of troops than indicated in the proclamation of the President, Governor Randall directed the organization of five additional regiments, which he immediately proceeded to uniform and equip. In the subsequent change of term of service from three months to three years, but one company withdrew, its members quite generally joining other companies.

The legislature at its extra session in May of this year, authorized the Governor "to raise, organize and receive into the service of the state two additional, (to six already organized), regiments of infantry, to be held as a reserve force, subject to be mustered into the service of the United States, and as often as any call shall be made by the General Government, and the forces then enrolled shall be mustered into the service of the United States it shall be lawful for the Governor to accept the services of so many additional volunteers as shall be constantly equal to two regiments of reserve force enrolled in advance of any requisition made upon this state."

Under the provisions of this act, the Seventh and Eighth regiments were recruited, organized and accepted by the General Government. On the 20th of August, request was made by the Secretary of War for five additional regiments, and under this and subsequent calls during the year, the Governor directed the organization of twenty regiments, and one company (sharpshooters) of infantry, including the old First "three months" reorganized; and one company of cavalry from Milwaukee, which joined the Fourth regiment of Missouri cavalry.

These were all officered under Governor Randall's adminstration, and all with the exception of the Nineteenth were fully equipped by the state with the exception of arms. The Nineteenth was armed and equipped by the General Government, through its commanding officer. A regiment of artillery, authorized and subsequently assigned to duty by companies, and its regimental organization destroyed, was also uniformed and equipped by the War Department, ordnance being furnished at the front. Three regiments of cavalry, raised under special permission given by the War Department to individuals, were also armed and fully equipped by the General Government. It is unnecessary to report details respecting the command or numerical strength, which have before been given, and may again be found in the tables appended to this report. The total number of troops recruited during this year, as approximated in the report of my predecessor, was twenty-three thousand, two hundred and thirty-two, (23,232.) Camps of rendezvous were necessarily established at different points in the state, and were located at Madison, Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha, Janesville, Fond du Lac, and temporarily at Oshkosh and Ripon. In the performance of these labors, Governor Randall was assisted by the following military staff, in which work, new to Wisconsin, and without the advantages of precedents or experience, each exhibited an ability and fidelity in the performance of his arduous duties, which contributed largely to the efficiency and fame of Wisconsin soldiers:

Louis P. Harvey having been elected governor of the state the preceding autumn, assumed the executive position on the 6th of January. His military staff was announced as follows:

AUGUSTUS GAYLORD,..... Adjutant General.
E. H. BRODHEAD..... Quartermaster General.
EDWIN R. WADSWORTH,..... Commissary General.
SIMEON MILLS,..... Paymaster General.
E. B. WOLCOTT,..... Surgeon General.
W. H. WATSON,..... Military Secretary.

The following extract from my report for 1862, will give as succinctly as I should now be able, the position of the military affairs of the state at the opening of the year:

"At the commencement of the present year, there had been organized, equipped and sent from the state ten regiments of infantry, one company of cavalry, and one company of Sharpshooters, exclusive of the three months regiment. There were, at that date, remaining in the state, either already organized or in process of formation, the Ninth, and from the Twelfth to the Nineteenth inclusive, of infantry; three regiments of cavalry and ten batteries of artillery. Of these, the Ninth, or German regiment—recruited mostly from Milwaukee and the Lake Shore—was completed. The Twelfth, stationed at Camp Randall, was in readiness and awaiting orders. The Thirteenth, encamped at Janesville, also in readiness, and the first to receive marching orders, left the state on the ninth of January for Fort Leavenworth. The Fourteenth—rendezvoused at Fond du Lac—was yet engaged in recruiting companies to the maximum. The Fifteenth, recruited under the auspices of Colonel Hans C. Heg, late State Prison Commissioner, and composed mainly of Scandinavians, was engaged in recruiting and was mustered at Camp Randall on the 13th of February. The Sixteenth, already above the minimum, was still adding to its numbers, while awaiting orders. The Seventeenth, being recruited under the immediate auspices of Colonel J. L. Doran, and made up almost entirely of persons of Irish birth, was mustered at Madison, on the 18th day of March. The Eighteenth, yet organizing and mustering companies, was ordered into camp at Milwaukee on the 16th day of January. Colonel H. T. Sanders—having just at the close of the preceding year, been commissioned, with special permission from the War Department, to raise the Nineteenth regiment as an "Independent acceptance"—entered immediately upon the work, and having met with signal success, encamped at Racine in the month of March. The three regiments of cavalry, and seven batteries of artillery, were already in camp completing their organization, the regiments of cavalry being located respectively at Kenosha, Milwaukee and Janesville, and the artillery at Racine. The Eighth and Tenth batteries were soon added at Racine; the Ninth being at Burlington."

The labors in this department during the first months of the year were chiefly in the completion of the above named regiments.

In the organization of the deparment of the Mississippi, under Major General H. W. Halleck, nearly all of these troops were ordered to report at St. Louis, and left the state before the first of April.

The General Government having assumed the subsistence, equipment and payment of all troops, steps were taken to close the accounts and active duties of the state Quartermaster, Commissary and Paymaster Generals' bureaus. General Brodhead having declined the position of Quartermaster General, tendered by Governor Harvey, General W. W. Tredway was continued in position for the purpose above indicated.

Meantime the Union forces were being reorganized for the spring campaign, which opened in the Western department in the battle of Shiloh, on the 6th and 7th of April, and in which Wisconsin was represented by the Fourteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteenth regiments, all of which suffered severely in this, their first engagement.

On receipt of the news of this battle, Governor Harvey, accompanied by Surgeon General Wolcott and a staff of nurses and assistants, left immediately for the front, to render such assistance in the care and removal of the wounded as should be deemed practicable. After days and nights of personal labor, the results he sought were, so far as within human exertion, accomplished. The last boat-load of sufferers had been sent to more comfortable surroundings; and rejoicing in the success of his labors, the Governor was himself about to embark for home, when the fatal step was taken, and the waters of the Tennessee became his grave.

Upon the death of Governor Harvey, the position of Chief Executive devolved upon Lieutenant Governor Edward Salomon, who immediately assumed the duties.

On the 12th of April, a telegram was received from Brigadier General W. K. Strong, commanding at Cairo, Ill., stating that six hundred and ninety-five rebel prisoners had that day been forwarded by steamboat to Prairie du Chien, for safe keeping within this state. Camp Randall, at Madison, afforded the best facilities for this purpose, to which the prisoners were assigned under guard of the Nineteenth Wisconsin, the only regiment remaining in the state. The number of prisoners was subsequently increased by two hundred and fifty from the same source, and some four hundred from Chicago, making a total of nearly fourteen hundred, the most at one time in camp. They were mainly from Alabama and Tennessee regiments, captured at Island 10 and Shiloh, and included the inmates of a rebel hospital, among whom the deaths principally occurred

Under the immediate direction of Captain N. B. Van Slyke, Assistant Quartermaster at this post, these prisoners received the same subsistence and medical care as our own troops. They were assigned to barracks which our regiments left for the front; the sick were permitted the attendance of rebel (prisoner) surgeons from Chicago, in addition to our post surgeons, and were supplied with all needed medicines and sanitary stores. Their dead were decently interred adjoining our own "Soldiers' Rest," a headboard indicating the name, company and regiment and the date of death of each individual.

By subsequent orders from the War Department, the prisoners were all transferred to Camp Douglas in Chicago, early in June.

Very many of these prisoners were mere boys, and it was a most gratifying evidence of the spirit which animated the loyal people in this contest, that the women of this city, and having relatives in the Union ranks, were most active and solicitous for the comfort of the sick of these rebels, in common with our own.

While our hearts chill in the remembrance of the atrocities of Andersonville, they rejoice in these evidences of a true humanity.

Under the call of the President in May, 1862, for seventy-five thousand additional troops, requisition was again made upon this state for but one regiment, and measures were immediately adopted for its organization. The order of the War Department, April third, directing the suspension of the recruiting service, had changed the current of popular feeling as to the needs of the Government, and those who two months previous would have been quick to respond, had now sought other avocations, and for the first time recruiting became real labor. The subsequent call of July second for three hundred thousand (300,000) volunteers, however, awakened the latent patriotism of the people.

New regiments were ordered, and recruiting was carried forward with rapidity to an extent before unequaled. So rapid was the enlistment of recruits in this and other states under this call that the War Department acknowledged its inability to furnish immediate supplies for so large an influx of men, and the people of this state were by general order requested to furnish blankets for the comfort of volunteers in their several localities. These volunteers constituted twelve complete regiments, and two (the Twenty-seventh and Thirty-first) of about one-half regiment each.

It subsequently appeared that in a general settlement with all the states for troops furnished in 1861 and to the present date (1862), the state was yet deficient in numbers, and under the provisions of the call of the President, dated August 4th, 1862, draft was ordered to complete the quota. Under this act, the direction and control of the draft whenever necessary, was vested in the governors of the several states, and measures were accordingly adopted for its accomplishment in this state. A thorough enrollment was necessary of all persons liable to military duty, and the sheriffs of the several counties were directed to employ such assistance as was necessary for its immediate completion.

This labor developed for the first any latent opposition to the service, or governmental authority, and in but a limited portion of the state, occasioned only some little trouble and delay in enrollment, and the lists after correction by the commissioners, were received at this office. The assignment of quotas, credit for former enlistments, and all statistical matter connected with the draft devolved upon this office, which being completed, draft was made on the 10th of November, and at subsequent dates in all counties deficient. In but two counties, Ozaukee and Washington, was there any violent opposition. In the former an organized opposition was scattered by a battalion of the Twenty-eighth regiment sent from Milwaukee, and one hundred and twenty of the leaders arrested and held in confinement at Madison until turned over to and released by the United States authorities. This prompt and decisive action on the part of Governor Salomon was most salutary in its effect and settled the question of any further opposition. The latter half of the year was marked by excessive labor. The number of persons recruited for the service during the year was fifteen thousand and forty-two (15,042).

The labors of the early part of this year were principally in the organization of the Thirty-fourth (nine months' conscript) regiment, and recruiting of four companies of artillery, three of which, with the original company A, constituted a battalion of heavy artillery, and the fourth company was organized as the Thirteenth battery of light artillery. The Twenty-seventh and Thirty-first infantry were also completed and sent to the front.

Steps were now being taken by the General Government for a draft in all the states, under the provisions of the act of Congress, approved March 3d, 1863; which provided for a draft of one-fifth of the first class enrolled, of designated ages; and contained also what is known as the commutation clause. The Provost Marshal General's bureau was established at Washington with assistants and District Marshals in each state, and a new enrollment of persons liable to service ordered through special deputies. Announcement was made of the total quota of this state, and also the quota of congressional districts, but no public indication was given as to what would constitute the sub-districts of the state, nor was any defined method of procedure determined upon by the Assistant Provost Marshal General of this state. Up to this date, no definite settlement had been obtained with the General Government for troops heretofore furnished. Through correspondence and the personal visit of Governor Salomon to Washington, it was finally effected and a new account opened on the 12th of October, with a credit to the state of four thousand three hundred and fifty-two (4,352), as an excess over all calls, to apply on the then pending draft.

On the 17th of October, another call was issued by the President, for three hundred thousand (300,000) volunteers, and that the people of sub-districts might have at least an approximate knowledge of what was required of them, application was made to the Assistant Provost Marshal General for copies of the United States enrollment, already in his hands, and upon this basis an assignment of the quota of each congressional district was made to the towns and wards of the state, designating each as a sub-district. This assignment was given to the public in General Orders No. 21, series of 1863, from this office, and the people urged to active exertions in raising their quotas by volunteering. The War Department subsequently adopted the sub-divisions of the state, and the assignment of the quota, as promulgated in General Orders No. 21. There were active labors in some localities to secure volunteers, but no general enthusiasm was elicited.

A draft followed in November of this year for fourteen thousand nine hundred and thirty-five (14,935) men. The results obtained by the General Government were eight hundred and eighty (880) drafted men and substitutes, and one million five hundred and twenty-four thousand and three hundred ($1,524,300) dollars from five thousand and eighty-one persons, who paid commutation.

Orders were also issued from the War Department on the 23d of June, for the re-enlistment of soldiers from old organizations, who were to be designated as "Veterans."

The date of original service did not bring many of our regiments within the scope of this order, until late in the year, and but little was done in this direction until December and January of the succeeding year, under which date further mention is made.

The two years (this and the preceding) now closing, constituted a most laborious term to both the Executive and this office.

The first draft in the state was during this period enforced. A false view of this service was in some degree apparent; the name of conscript was an assumed opprobrium by many, and a prejudice existed, not so much against the service, as the manner of entering it. Individual restraint could not be readily endured, and the idea of being compelled to any service without a self-election was galling to the vanity of a people vaunting their perfect freedom. This rendered the enforcement of the first draft a peculiarly delicate and laborious procedure.

The gradual transfer of control in the organization of troops, from the state to the General Government occasioned also frequent and perplexing questions in the recruiting service. These and other difficulties surrounding his position, were met and surmounted by Governor Salomon with firmness, wisdom and marked ability.

AUGUSTUS GAYLORD..... Adjutant General and Chief of Staff.
NATHANIEL F. LUND,.....Quartermaster and Commissary General.
E. B. WOLCOTT, M. D.,.....Surgeon General.
S. NYE GIBBS,.....Assistant Adjutant General.
FRANK H. FIRMIN,.....Military Secretary.

The opening year did not present a flattering prospect to the volunteering service. The draft under the call of 1863 was not yet completed, and for the time there was a disposition to abide its results exclusively in determining who should serve, a feeling which had been engendered among the people by the action of the War Department in the disposition of credits prior to October 12, 1863. Under the modification of the draft act by Congress now in session, the number required under the calls of 1863 was merged in a new call by the President, on the first of February, 1864, for five hundred thousand (500,000) volunteers, and it was ordered that a new assignment of quotas be made, and that each sub-district be credited upon the new call with the number of men obtained by the foregoing draft, a total of five thousand eight hundred and seven (5,807). This and the subsequent call of March 14th, for two hundred thousand (200,000) additional troops, awoke new life and active exertion in volunteering. The Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh and Thirty eighth regiments were organized, and a large number of recruits secured to regiments in the field.

The re-enlisted veterans before alluded to numbered five thousand seven hundred and eighty-two (5,782), which were credited under the call of February 1st to the several sub-districts entitled. These, with the exertions made throughout the state, secured the complement of volunteers, and the quota under the call was announced full by the War Department. The veteran organizations generally came home during the early months of this year, under the permission given for one month's furlough to veteran regiments.

On the 21st of April, the Governors of the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin, then present at Washington, tendered to the President an extra service of troops from the states thus represented for the term of one hundred days,

The limited time allowed for organization did not permit the full results contemplated in this state. Three regiments were however forwarded, uniting their energies with those already in the field, and were thus permitted to share in the glory of a successful campaign.

Under the act of Congress approved July 4th, 1864, President Lincoln issued the call of July 18th, for five hundred thousand (500,000) volunteers, for one, two or three years' service; with order that after fifty days from the date of said call, a draft of troops for one year's service should be made to fill the quota of any sub-district, then deficient in volunteers. The quota assigned to Wisconsin was nineteen thousand and thirty-two (19,032.) It was manifest that if the figures were correct the basis of the calculation was wrong, and active steps were taken to discover wherein. Through correspondence and personal visitation at Washington, the error was found to exist in an incorrect enrollment, and failure to properly credit the state with troops before furnished. Correction was made, reducing the quota of the state to fifteen thousand three hundred and forty-one (15,341) and giving further credits to apply, of four thousand six hundred and fifty-eight (4,658.)

Under this call the Forty-second, Forty-third, Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth regiments were recruited, the Fifth reorganized and the battalion (four companies) of heavy artillery increased to a full regiment.

Drafting was commenced under this call on the ninth of November, and continued in different portions of the state until the early part of 1865. The results to the General Government from a draft of seventeen thousand five hundred and thirty-four (17,534) wree three thousand four hundred and thirty-nine (3,439) drafted men and substitutes; four non-combatants paying a commutation of twelve hundred dollars ($1,200.) The total of recruits during the year for old and new organizations numbered twenty-seven thousand two hundred and sixty-two (27,262) men and the grand total furnished the General Government up to the end of this year, seventy-seven thousand four hundred and twenty-one (77,421.)

The labors of both the executive and this office during the year were rendered more difficult and arduous owing to the fact that while the General Government appealed to and relied upon the state authorities for assistance and success in their labors—the machinery by which it was to be accomplished had been placed by the War Department mainly in the hands of United States officers over whom the state had no control, and to whom orders for the advancement of the service in any new direction must emanate from the War Department. Delay was thus sometimes occasioned while the desirability for specific action should be made apparent to the Department at Washington.

The record of state action in 1865 is so fully set forth in detail in the accompanying report, that a repetition of any portion of it in this connection is deemed unnecessary.

The following recapitulation of the statements and schedules to which reference is made therein, is respectfully submitted.

A—General orders.
B—Schedule showing the whole quota of the several sub-districts in the state, under the calls of February 1st, March 14th, July 18th and December 19th, 1864; also the quota of the several congressional districts under calls prior to October 12th, 1863, with the total credit to each, as compiled from the records of this office
C—Exhibit, showing arm and term of service; date and place of muster-in; date of departure from the state; aggregate of each organization; first commanding officer, and date of muster-out of each organization.
D—List of Wisconsin dead at Andersonville, Ga.
E—Regimental roster, with casualties in each regiment appended.
F—Alphabetical list and index of officers.

IN CONCLUSION:

While with welcoming plaudits we receive our returning heroes, who once more mingle with us, and, forgetful of war's alarms, tread again the paths of peaceful industry; let us remember that to achieve these glorious triumphs, thousands have sealed the priceless legacy with their lives. While we hallow their memories, thankful that the sacrifice was not in vain, let us gratefully accept the duty laid upon us, to properly protect, maintain and educate the helpless ones and orphans of those through whose sacrifice we are secured in the enjoyment of national unity and peace.

And while we rejoice over a rebellion conquered, the curse of human slavery removed, and our national integrity preserved, with the starry emblem of our nation's love restored and floating over every state from the Lakes to the Gulf; let us, with devout gratitude to the Almighty for deliverance from the further evils of war, and fervent charity for our misguided countrymen; with nobler conceptions of individual duty and national destiny, seek by our common efforts to secure in the future, that which has been our boast in the past: LIBERTY AND UNION: NOW AND FOREVER; ONE AND INSEPARABLE!

Thanking your Excellency for the uniform courtesy and kindness shown to me in my endeavors to assist in the arduous labors of your administration.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

SCHEDULE "A."

HEADQUARTERS STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, January 3, 1863.

General Orders, }
No. 1. }

Under the call of the President of the United States, dated December 19, 1864, for 300,000 volunteers, the quota assigned to Wisconsin is seventeen thousand eight hundred and five (17,805). The number may be raised by voluntary enlistment in any of the old regiments or batteries now in service, or in the Forty-sixth regiment of infantry, herein authorized, for terms of service of one, two or three years. If the quota is not filled by voluntary enlistment by the fifteenth of February prox., draft will be made by the General Government to supply the deficiency then existing in sub-districts. The quotas of the several towns and wards in the state under this call, will be assigned by the District Provost Marshals of the respective districts, and will be announced as soon as completed.

Authority having been given by the War Department for the organization of new regiments of infantry from this state, the Governor directs:

I.—The immediate organization of the Forty-sixth infantry, to serve for one year, unless sooner discharged, the company and regimental organizations to conform to the existing regulations of the War Department.

II.—A second lieutenant will be immediately commissioned, and conditionally mustered for each company, under the provisions of General Orders No. 131, current series, for the recruitment of the company, under letters of instructions issued by the superintendent of the recruiting service. Under present orders from the War Department, all other recruiting appointments are prohibited.

III.—Volunteers under this call will receive the bounty one, two and three hundred dollars, for the respective terms of service of one, two and three years, as provided by the General Government, one-third of which will be paid by the mustering and disbursing officer, when the company is completed, and those having families dependent will receive the benefits provided by the state from the war fund.

IV.—All incomplete companies and squads existing on the 7th of February prox., will be consolidated so as to form and be mustered in with complete regimental organizations.

V.—Volunteers in old or new organizations will be credited to the various sub-districts of the state which they may give as a residence at the time of enlistment.

VI.—The camp of rendezvous is hereby designated at Camp Randall, in Madison.

VII. Under existing orders from the War Department, all recruiting appointments heretofore issued by the Governor, excepting only those issued for recruiting in rebel states, are hereby revoked.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS STATE OF WISCONSIN,

General Orders,
No. 8.

The attention of veterans and citizens generally throughout the state, is called to the organization known as "Hancock's Veteran Corps," now recruiting, and for which offices have been established in this state for the purpose of promoting enlistments.

The inducements for service in this organization are presented in the following extracts from official circulars and communications of the War Department:

Circular, No. 3.

HEADQUARTERS, FIRST ARMY CORPS.

"1. Any veteran who has served two years, has been honorably discharged, and is physically qualified, may enlist in the corps for one, two and three years. * * *

"3. Those enlisting will receive from the Government a bounty of $300 as soon as they are mustered, and, in addition, the regular installments from the Government in proportion to the period of enlistment, as follows:

$200 for two years' service, one-third on enlistmant.
$300 for three years' service, one-third on enlistment. * * *

"7. The best arms in the possession of the government will be furnished these troops, and they will be allowed to retain their arms when honorably discharged.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., Jan., 6, 1865.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL CHARLES S. LOVELL,
A. A. Provost Marshal General, Madison, Wis:

"COLONEL: Instead of forwarding recruits for General Hancock's corps individually and before enlistment to Washington, you are directed to authorize your Provost Marshals to receive and enlist such recruits and forward them to the general rendezvous. After they arrive there, and enough men have been enlisted to form a company of legal strength, you will organize them into companies, muster them into United States' service, and send each company as soon as mustered to Washington. They will not receive the government bounty until they arrive here, but local bounties may be paid them before they leave the state.

"The officers of the First Corps, detailed on recruiting service in your state, will report to you, and conduct themselves in the procuration of recruits under your direction.

"The time for organizing the First Corps has been extended to a time not yet fixed.

Very respectfully, &c.,
Provost Marshal General.

By the above extracts it will be seen that persons enlisting in this corps may be credited at the time of muster by district provost marshals, to the place of actual residence in the state, in the same manner as in enlistments for all other organizations.

Any miasprehension upon this subject should be removed.

There were, on the first of January, estimated to be three thousand discharged veterans in this state, from whom this corps may receive large additions. The organization is one peculiarly attractive to this class of persons, and under the leadership of its renowned commander, Major General Hancock, will constitute a force invincible, and immortal in the history of the war.

Further information relative to this organization may be obtained of Lieutenant Colonel Charles S. Lovell, U. S. A., Superintendent of recruiting service, Major George H. Otis, or the district provost marshals of the several congressional districts.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD.
Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, March 25, 1865,

General Orders,
No. 9.

I. Attention of the commanding officers of the organized militia companies of the state is here by directed to the following section of the present militia law, to wit:

"Section 24. It shall be the duty of each and every commanding officer of any organized company in this state, on or before the last Mondays of April and September of each year, to muster his company, and to make out in triplicate, muster rolls, setting forth the names and number of the members of his company, the officers in the order of their rank, and the privates in alphabetical order, one of which muster rolls, duly certified, he shall transmit through his commanding officer, to the Adjutant General of the state. He shall file one in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of his county, and he shall keep the other as a voucher for himself. If such company shall form a part of any organized battalion or regiment, the commanding officer thereof shall transmit the same, with a muster roll of the field and staff officers of his battalion or regiment, to the Adjutant General of the state. It shall also be the duty of every such commanding officer of a company, at the time of making said muster roll, to make duplicate lists of all arms, accoutrements, ordnance and ordnance stores, and other property belonging to the state, in his possession, one of which lists, duly certified, he shall transmit through his commanding officer, to the Quartermaster General, and he shall keep the other as a voucher for himself. If such company shall form a part of an organized battalion or regiment, the commanding officer of the regiment shall transmit the same, with a list of all the military property of the state in his possession, to the Quartermaster General."

II. Commandants of companies will transmit the copy of muster roll designed for this office, to the Adjutant General direct, and the list of arms, ordnance, ordnance stores and accoutrements, designed for the Quartermaster General, to that officer direct, at Madison,

III. Blank rolls are herewith enclosed, and officers in charge will report in obedience to the above requirement without delay, giving the actual condition of each company at the date of muster.

IV. In the absence of commissioned officers, the senior non-commissioned officer will be held to the performance of this duty.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS STATE OF WISCONSIN,

General Orders,
No. 10.

The annual enrollment of the state militia, under the provisions of section 8, chapter 242, militia law of 1863, being discretionary with the Governor, notice is hereby given that the services of the assessors in the towns and cities of the state will not be required in making the militia enrollment the present year.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

General Orders, }
No. 11. }

It being evident from frequent inquiries that a misapprehension still exists in some localities of the state relative to the credits of recruits under the present call, attention is hereby directed to the following section of the act of congress, approved March 3d, 1865, regulating such credits:

"Section 14. And be it further enacted, That hereafter all persons mustered into the military or naval service, whether as volunteers, substitutes, representatives or otherwise, shall be credited to the state, and to the ward, township, precinct or other enrollment sub-district, where such persons belong by actual residence, (if such persons have an actual residence within the United States), and where such persons were or shall be enrolled, (if liable to enrollment), and it is hereby made the duty of the Provost Marshal General to make such rules and give such instructions to the several provost marshals, boards of enrollment and mustering officers as shall be necessary for the faithful enforcement of the provisions of this section, to the end that fair and just credit shall be given to every section of the country: Provided, That in any call for troops hereafter, no county, town, township, ward, precinct or election district, shall have credit except for men actually furnished on said call, or the preceding call, by said county, town, township, ward, precinct or election district, and mustered into the military or naval service on the quota thereof."

From the provisions of the foregoing section, it is evident that the purchase of recruits from any sub-district, to secure credit therefor in any other than that which is their actual residence, will result only in the loss of credit of such recruits.

That these difficulties may be obviated, the public are again notified, and that all credits thus secured since the 13th instant must conform to the provisions of the act before mentioned.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLOBD,
Adjutant General.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, August 23, 1865.

General Orders,
No. 12.

The following communication from Major General G. A. Custer is published for the information of all concerned, and attention invited to the provisions of the act of Congress to which reference is made, to wit:

"Section 21. And be it further enacted, That in addition to the other lawful penalties of the crime of desertion from the military or naval service, all persons who have deserted the military or naval service of the United States, who shall not return to said service, or report themselves to a provost marshal within sixty days after the proclamation hereinafter mentioned, shall be deemed and taken to have voluntarily relinquished and forfeited their rights of citizenship and their rights to become citizens; and such deserters shall be forever incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States, or of exercising any of the rights of citizens thereof; and all persons who shall hereafter desert the military or naval service, and all persons who being duly enrolled shall depart the jurisdiction of the district in which he is enrolled, or go beyond the limits of the United States, with intent to avoid any draft into the military or naval service, duly ordered, shall be liable to the penalties of this section.

"And the President is hereby authorized and required forthwith, on the passage of this act, to issue his proclamation, setting forth the provisions of this section, in which proclamation the President is requested to notify all deserters returning within sixty days, as aforesaid, that they shall be pardoned on condition of returning to their regiments and companies, or to such other organizations as they may be assigned to, until they shall have served for a period of time equal to their original term of enlistment."

HEADQUARTERS CAVALRY,

Brig. Gen. Aug. Gaylord, Adjutant General State of Wisconsin:

GENERAL:—I have the honor to forward to you the following names of deserters from the Second regiment Wisconsin cavalry, now in my command, and to request that their names may be published as deserters in the public journals nearest their several places of residence.

I respectfully invite your attention to the twenty-first section of the act of Dongress, approved March 3d, 1865, and contained in General Orders No. 35, W. D., A. G. O., March 11, 1865.

No. 13. }

To discharged Wisconsin soldiers:

It having become evident that there are persons in this state seeking to take advantage of ignorant or thoughtless soldiers in the purchase of discharge papers, this is to caution all soldiers against parting with their discharge papers under any consideration whatever.

It is not at all improbable that Congress will at an early day recognize the services, at least of those who, enlisting in the first years of the rebellion, did not receive the large bounties of the latter years,—and perhaps all others—by a grant of Government lands.

Such grants, or any subsequent bounties, can be claimed only upon proper proof, in which your discharge paper will be required, and the soldier who sells his, puts his title to any such benefits entirely beyond recovery, excepting in the purchase back again of the discharge at such an extravagant rate as the speculator may impose.

Aside from the money value which may be attached to an honorable discharge from the service, in the future, it will have to those who shall come after you, if not now to yourselves, a value beyond that of money.

It will be treasured among the sacred mementos of the past, and your name therein recognized as among the patriot heroes who left home and the pleasant paths of peace, to risk all for the laws and liberties of the Commonwealth, and whose valor has stricken down forever the envenomed foes of the Republic.

In any view of the matter, your discharge paper is worth more to you than to any one else. The person who seeks to purchase it of you has no good object in view. Do not part with it.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

General Orders, }
No. 14. }

To Wisconsin Soldiers remaining in Service:

The Governor is in frequent receipt of letters from members of regiments remaining in the service, complaining of their detention, charging the delay in muster-out to the desire of their commanding officer to remain in the service, and asking the Governor to make application to the War Department for their discharge. While it is believed that these statements and requests are dictated by a laudable desire to return to their homes and civil life, it is also believed that they are often based upon a misunderstanding of the real facts in the case.

The General Government is not dependent upon the regimental officers for its information as to the needs of the service, much less does it consult their wishes for detention or discharge. Their anxiety to leave the service is in many cases likely to be quite as great as is your own.

They, like yourselves, are retained in the service because those in authority, whose advantages are best for judging of the necessities of the case, deem your presence in the service still desirable; and while it might be agreeable to know the exact reason of your detention, the good soldier is not likely to seriously question the fact.

Of the fifty Wisconsin regiments in the field on the first day of June last, but ten remain at this date, which are not under orders for muster-out and return home, and the number is constantly decreasing. If the regiments of other states have been reduced correspondingly, there should readily be found a reason for your detention in the service, in the inability of the government to perform the necessary labor of disbanding the whole Union army in four months, even were it deemed desirable.

No authority other than that of the War Department can direct your discharge. The Governor has made, and will continue to make every proper effort with the War Department to secure the earliest discharge of all Wisconsin organizations. This has been done by request in person at the department, in June last, and subsequently by letters setting forth the agricultural needs of the state, with other reasons. The reply has uniformly been that our regiments will be discharged just as fast as the needs of the service will permit, and there is evidence that this is being done. All cannot be first, and if you chance to be among the later ones, it is hoped, in view of the prospect of your speedy return, that somewhat of that patience which has characterized your service under greater discomforts and trials, may be manifested in this detention; that no insubordination, much less that any mutinous spirit shall be displayed beclouding, or in any degree causing the fair fame of Wisconsin to suffer through any mistaken action on your part. You are earnestly advised to await patiently the orders of the commanding general of the army, whose valor and fidelity you have so often applauded, and whose judgment of the necessities in the case you should now accept with confidence.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF WISCONSIN,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, December 9, 1865.

General Orders,
No. 15.

In view of the present and prospective demand upon this office for certificates to facilitate the collection of bounty, back pay or pensions due to soldiers, or to the families of soldiers, formerly in the United States service from this state; and in order that the parties interested may be protected against loss through the action of unauthorized and unprincipled agents, the following regulations are announced, and will hereafter govern in the issue of certificates from this office:

First—All claim agents asking for information, are required to file in this office evidence that they have taken out a license to act as such, under the existing laws of Congress, authorizing such action.

Secondly—All claim agents asking for certificates or information from the records of this office, must furnish evidence from the proper claimant that such agent is duly authorized to act for and in his or her behalf, either by power of attorney or legal certificate, to be filed with the application.

These rules are not intended, and will in no way interfere with, the giving of information to the families of soldiers, relative to the service or death of those in whom they are interested. Such information will be given upon application by relatives, but certificates upon which to base a claim for local bounty, state aid, or against the General Government, will be issued only upon proper evidence that the party making application is the rightful claimant or a legally authorized attorney.

Soldiers, and relatives of deceased soldiers are advised to exceeding caution in the selection of agents for the transaction of this business, that it may fall into the hands of only responsible and honest men.

By order of the Governor:

AUG. GAYLORD,
Adjutant General.

ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL

OF THE

STATE OF WISCONSIN.

FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING SEPTEMBER 30, 1865.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madison, October 1st, 1865.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit, for the information of your Excellency, the following report of the transactions of this department, during the fiscal year terminating on the 30th of September, 1865.

Retaining the classification adopted by my predecessor, the business connected with the

Under the provisions of chapter 248 of the laws of 1864, flags have been purchased and forwarded to the following named volunteer organizations, viz.:

Third Veteran Infantry, one National Flag.
Sixth Veteran Infantry, one National Flag.
Ninth Veteran Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Fourteenth Veteran Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Fifteenth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Nineteenth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Twenty-third Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Twenty-fourth Infantry, one National Flag.
Thirty-sixth Infantry, one Regimental Flag.
Thirty-seventh Infantry, one National Flag.

These flags have been issued to the regiments indicated, in compliance with your orders, to replace those "worn and damaged by service," and the accounts therefor have been certified from this office to the Secretary of State, for audit, as directed by the statute, under which the flags were purchased.

During the year, the colors of the regiments, which these flags were issued to replace, were forwarded to this office, and having been thoroughly repaired, are now stored in the capitol.

Upon the return to the state of the various volunteer organizations, subsequent to their muster out of service, the regimental colors, except in a few instances, were placed, by orders of the War Department, in the hands of the chief mustering officer of Wisconsin, to be forwarded to Washington. Under the modification of these orders, procured by your Excellency, these flags have since been received from the chief mustering officer and are now in my possession.

The following statement exhibits in detail, the number of these relics received from all sources during the year, viz:

Third Infantry, two National and one Regimental Flag.
Fifth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Sixth Infantry, two National and one Regimental Flag.
Seventh Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Eighth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Ninth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Tenth Infantry, one National Flag.
Eleventh Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Twelfth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Fourteenth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Fifteenth Infantry, two National and two Regimental Flags.
Sixteenth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Seventeenth Infantry, one Regimental Flag, (green.)
Eighteenth Infantry, one National and one Regimental Flag.
Nineteenth Infantry, three National, two Regimental Flags and three Guidons.

At the date of the last Annual Report, there had been received the following described rebel trophies, captured by Wisconsin troops, and forwarded from the field to the Executive Office:

One Six-pounder, S. B. Bronze Field Gun, with Carriage, captured by the Fourteenth Infantry at the battle of Shiloh.

Two Regimental Flags with Staffs, complete, captured by the Fifteenth Infantry at Island No. 10.

One Cavalry Guidon, with Staff, captured by the Fifteenth Infantry at Union City, Ky.

One Battle Flag, captured by Private Rice, of company H, First Infantry, at the battle of Chaplin Hills, Ky.

One Battle Flag, captured by Private R. M. Clark, of company F, Eleventh Infantry, at Big Black River Bridge.

One Storm Flag, captured by the Seventeenth Infantry at Fort Beauregard, La.

One Regimental and one Battle Flag, captured by the Twenty-ninth Infantry in the rear of Vicksburg, during the siege of that city.

One Lance and one Pike, captured by the Twenty-seventh Infantry at Little Rock, Ark.

One Battle Flag, captured by Wagoner John Wolhaupt and Private William Ohler, of company B, Ninth Infantry, at the battle of Jenkins' Ferry, Ark.

One Flagstaff, captured by the Seventh Infantry on the Weldon Railroad, Va.

These trophies are now in my possession, with the exception of one flag above described as "one Regimental Flag, captured by the Twenty-ninth Infantry, in the rear of Vicksburg," which was lost under the following circumstances. By direction of your Excellency, the entire collection of Wisconsin flags and trophies was forwarded by me to Chicago in the latter part of May last, for the purpose of exhibition at the fair held in that city, by the Northwestern Sanitary Commission, in aid of the "Soldiers' Home," with the condition prescribed by your Excellency that they should be returned in time to permit of their being sent to Milwaukee, for a similar purpose.

At the termination of the fair in Chicago, the flag could not be found, and after diligent search the president of the department, to whose custody these articles were confided, addressed to me the following letter, which is respectfully submitted as the only explanation of the loss, which can be offered:

COPY.

CHICAGO, July 1st, 1865.

J. M. LYNCH, Quartermaster General of Wisconsin:

DEAR SIR:—I regret to inform you that one of the rebel flags, loaned by you for the use of the late Sanitary Fair at Chicago, cannot be found.

Respectfully yours, &c.,

(Signed) JAMES B. BRADWELL,*

Ch'n of Arms and Trophy Department of late Fair.

It is proper to add that in accordance with your Excellency's instructions, these arms and trophies were forwarded, on the 22d of June to Milwaukee, and upon the conclusion of the fair at that place, were promptly returned in good order, to this office.

"Old Abe," the live eagle of the Eighth Wisconsin Infantry, has been properly cared for during the year.

On the return of the several volunteer organizations to this city, for the purpose of final payment and discharge, the troops have been—under your Excellency's directions—furnished with meals at the Railway Hotel, and the accounts for these expenditures, with those incurred for the public reception of such troops, have been examined and certified from this department to the Secretary of State, for audit.

So far as my observation has extended, these entertainments have been highly satisfactory to the soldiers, who were thus greeted upon their arrival in the state, with an earnest of the heartfelt welcome, which they were entitled to expect at the homes, they had sacrificed so much to defend.

The following described articles of equipage, originally purchased for the outfit of Wisconsin Volunteers, remain on hand:

	ARTICLES.	CONDITION
1	Band Instruments, set, from 13th Infantry	Unserviceable
23	Bayonet Scabbards	New

161	Stevens' Sword Exercise, copies	New
2	Tents, wall, with poles	Unserviceable
20	Tents, wedge, with poles	Unserviceable
50	Waist belts	New

*In another note, Judge Bradwell added that it was his intention to pursue further inquiry for the missing trophy, which was perhaps packed by mistake with collections from other states, or from the War Department, so that the flag may ultimately be recovered.

A number of boxes of property, which had been forwarded some time previously from the Third Wisconsin Infantry, were placed in my possession, upon the payment of certain charges for transportation by special act of the legislature.

The property was accompanied by no invoice or other paper to show its character, and upon examination was found to consist of the following articles, which have been cared for as well as the means at my disposal would permit.

Three Camp Chests, and a number of regimental papers, which have been deposited in the office of the Adjutant General.

STATE MILITIA.

In connection with the State Militia, the business of this office has been limited to the Ordnance Department, of which transactions the statements and accounts submitted herewith exhibit a detailed statement.

Schedule "A," exhibits in detail, the property received during the year, including ordnance and stores returned by the State Militia to the State, with property received from the United States, upon the quota of arms due to Wisconsin, under the act of Congress of 1808.

Schedule "B," exhibits the property issued during the year, in compliance with the order of your excellency. In this case, but one receipt was forwarded to this office, and my application to the company commander for the duplicate receipt having failed, I have filed with the Secretary of State an attested copy of the receipt forwarded.

Schedule "C," Property account; exhibiting in detail the number of each article of property on hand and received during the year, the number of each issued and expended for the same time, together with the balance now remaining in my possession.

Schedule "D," exhibits the condition of the property now on hand.

Schedule "E," exhibits the condition of the property issued, so far as the same has been reported to this office.

Schedule "F," exhibits in a condensed form, the number of each article comprising the military property of the State, including that issued to companies and individuals, with the amount of each remaining on hand at this date.

Schedule "G," Armory account; showing in detail the tools and materials purchased and expended during the year, and the amount on hand at present.

The total amount of expenses incurred during the year under the direction of this department, the accounts for which have been duly examined and certified for audit to the Secretary of State, may be ascertained from the following brief synopsis:

Purchase of Flags	$2,151 75
Transportation of Flags	54 65
		$2 206 40
Transportation of State Arms, &c		53 39
Reception of Troops, meals	$7,390 40
Reception of Troops, salutes, &c	222 29
		*7,612 69
Armory account; Tools and Materials purchased		26 11
Eagle Account		51 82
National Salutes, (contingent fund)		303 70
Salaries		1,621 31
		$11,875 42

In the early part of the year, a gunsmith was employed at the armory to assist in cleaning and repairing arms, but since the 19th of July the State Armorer, Mr. J. H. McFarland, has alone been engaged. His faithfulness and integrity in the discharge of his various duties, are worthy of the highest commendation.

During the year, the state has been indebted to the continued courtesy of Captain N. B. Van Slyke and Captain John H. Brown, Assistant Quartermasters U. S. Army at this post, for the use of a building at Camp Randall, for the storage of the fixed ammunition belonging to the State.

It is respectfully submitted for the consideration of your excellency, that proper provisions for the permanent safety and display of the flags of our returned Wisconsin Volunteers, should receive the early attention of the legislature.

These battle scarred evidences of devotion to the cause of National integrity, consecrated by the sacred memories, which the valor of Wisconsin soldiers has twined around them, require no feeble words of mine to appreciate their value. Their language of patriotism needs no interpreter, and it would seem eminently proper that, in the completion of our State Capitol, an appropriate place should be specially reserved for their permanent display and preservation.

Regarding the desirableness of a thoroughly digested Militia Law, much has been already said, and the subject will doubtless receive the attention of the Legislature. It becomes my duty, however, to submit for your excellency's consideration, a suggestion regarding the present law; so far as it affects the operations of this office.

Under its provisions, property of great value is issued to the militia, by order of the executive, and it farther provides that semi-annual reports of the condition of such property, be forwarded to this office, but in the event of failure to comply with this provision, no penalty is specified for such neglect of duty.

During the past year, comparatively few of those to whom arms and accoutrements had been issued, have seen fit to comply with the requirements of the law in this respect, in consequence of which I am unable in several instances, to report the present condition of the property.

It is quite possible that an explanation of the failure in this regard, may be found in the fact that under the frequent calls for volunteers by the General Government during the first half of the year, the State Militia was necessarily disorganized by the enlistment of the men whose names were borne upon the rolls; so that, in a great majority of instances, the company for a long time had only a nominal existence.

The manner of transferring the accountability for military property, upon the promotion or resignation of the officer to whom it was originally issued, would seem to be also a proper subject for legislative action.

Upon the promotion, resignation or decease of an officer accountable for State property, it would seem proper that the officer next in rank should, by specific provision of law, be held responsible for the safety of the company (or State) property, and that it should be his duty to immediately take an inventory of property thus coming into his possession. Of this inventory or receipt, showing the extent of his liability, a duplicate should in every instance, be promptly forwarded to this office. The duty of the Quartermaster General, in relation to articles found to be missing, on the return of property from militia companies, should also be specified.

I can add nothing to the remarks contained in former reports from this office relative to the great necessity existing for a State Arsenal and proper magazine building, without which it is impossible to take proper care of the arms and other military property of the State.

With much pleasure I acknowledge my indebtedness to General N. F. Lund, for his courtesy and valuable suggestions as to the manner of conducting the business of the office.

I am, Governor, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant.

J. M. LYNCH,
Quartermaster General.

STATEMENT:—Showing the condition of the Ordnance, Arms and Military Property, remaining on hand at the Armory, October 2d, 1865.

Schedule "D," property account, exhibits in detail the number of each article of property remaining on hand at the armory, classified as serviceable and unserviceable.

The ordnance and ordnance stores for artillery, with the equipments and appendages for infantry and riflemen, are in good condition and ready for issue, with the exception of such as are classed as "unserviceable," much of the property being new.

Of the small arms, classed as serviceable, a portion require to be thoroughly cleaned, and a small number need slight repairs.

The small arms classed as "unserviceable," are in the worst possible condition, being broken and damaged in every manner, and are worth little, if anything, more than the value of the raw materials composing them.

The following exhibits the present condition of those now on and:

MUSKETS, RIFLED MUSKETS AND RIFLES.	Number.	Total.
In good condition, ready for issue,	1,365
To be cleaned and repaired,	763
Unserviceable,	566

ANNUAL REPORT

OE THE

Surgeon General of the State of Wisconsin,

FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING SEPTEMBER 30, 1865.

SURGEON GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Milwaukee, December 31st, 1865.

To his Excellency JAMES T. LEWIS, Governor of Wisconsin:

SIR:—In my annual report of December 31st, 1864, I ventured the prediction of a speedy and glorious termination of the great conflict then raging fearfully throughout the country; in view of which fact, I felt encouraged to go on in the discharge of the duties of my position, as best I might, until the long wished-for time should arrive. In a little over three months from that date the surrender of the rebel general Lee and his army to our forces virtually ended the war. One universal burst of thanksgiving and praise to God, the army, the navy and government, welled up from every loyal and true heart in the land; for preserving in its perfect integrity our national existence; for securing to all our citizens the full enjoyment of their inalienable rights, for the establishment of the "sacred dogma of equality," as announced in the immortal declaration of independence, and for the signal vindication of the excellence and power of our republican form of government, which will hereafter stand a monument without spot or blemish, for the admiration, instruction and protection of mankind.

Desperate and protracted as the struggle has been, it is daily becoming more evident, that all the blood, time and treasure expended, was indispensable to the final settlement of the great questions involved, and now that the conflict of arms is over, may we, in the final closing up of this eventful period, be able to show to the world that the statesmanship, wisdom and patriotism of our rulers and legislators, is equal to the task before them; that they have length, breadth and depth of comprehension sufficient to measure, weigh and adjust all issues in such manner as shall best subserve the well being of the people and the government.

Immediately after the end of hostilities began the reduction of the army, and continued with unprecedented rapidity, until now over eight hundred thousand troops have been discharged, and the department is proceeding rapidly in the work of further reduction.

Following this reduction of the army, with equal celerity were the sick and wounded in hospitals returned to their respective states, or concentrated at other points nearer and more convenient, if unable to travel far enough to reach their homes, so that general hospitals disappeared like the armies that had supplied them with inmates. In this movement, Wisconsin was second to no other state. The visit made by your excellency, whom I had the honor and pleasure to accompany, reached nearly every hospital in the country containing Wisconsin soldiers. Vested with authority to return without delay to the state, all who were able to travel, the effect can scarcely be appreciated, except by those to whom the glad tidings were brought, or such others as were present to witness it. That out of the large number who, by this prompt movement, arrived at home months sooner than they otherwise could, many lives were saved, to say nothing of the gratification of an earlier return to others, I have no doubt.

This was the last and most satisfactory trip I took part in, connected with the war—being more a looker-on than active participant in the duties connected therewith. It also extended over a wider field than any before entered upon—embracing not only the hospitals at the great centers east of the Alleghanies, but those on the Gulf, at Mobile and New Orleans, as well as those on the line of the great river west, which, as above stated, comprised nearly all containing any considerable number of Wisconsin soldiers.

The great anxiety of a vast majority of the soldiers of the volunteer army, after the end of active hostilities, was to get home. This feeling was greatly intensified by confinement in hospitals, whether from sickness or wounds; whatever, therefore, increased the prospect for an early return home, was to them the pearl of great price. Under such circumstances, the effect of a visit from the chief executive officer of the state, the object of which was to gratify that intense desire, can be much more easily imagined than described. It can very readily be seen that my occupation was gone—having only little to do except to observe the powerful influence of mind under favorable impressions, over the "ills that flesh is heir to."

The result of the trip was most satisfactory. Hundreds of the sick and wounded from the various hospitals visited, returned to their homes on the very heels of the expedition, which commenced early in May and ended the last of June.

The United States general hospitals in Wisconsin have all been closed for several months—the inmates having mostly returned to their homes.

The surgeons and assistant surgeons of the medical staff of our state, like the great body of volunteers, have quietly returned to their former professional labors—in which field, and through the whole balance of their lives, I most cordially wish them all the happiness and success due to their patriotic labors whilst serving in the army of the Union.

The subjoined table contains all appointments, promotions, resignations, discharges, dismissals and deaths that have occurred in this department to date.

About the 20th of October, I had the honor to receive through the executive office, a copy of a letter to your excellency, from Hon. William H. Seward, Secretary of State, inviting your serious attention to an accompanying letter from the acting Surgeon General, U. S., "to whom had been referred a dispatch from the U. S. minister at Constantinople, relative to the ravages of the cholera in that quarter, &c." The acting Surgeon General recommended that the attention of the governors of the states be invited to the facts contained in said dispatch, with a view to the prompt establishment of rigid quarantine regulations to prevent if possible the introduction of the cholera into this country; your excellency referring the subject to me for such suggestions and recommendations as I might think proper to make in the premises.

Feeling no apprehension that the cholera would prevail epidemically in the United States, earlier than the warm season of 1866, I deemed it appropriate and believed it would be seasonable to introduce such remarks as I had to make upon the subject in my annual report, which arrangement I trust will meet your excellency's approbation.

From the Science and Practice of Medicine, by William Aiken M. D., I quote the best definition of cholera I have seen:

"A disease essentially of a miasmatic origin, developed under certain atmospheric and terrestrial local conditions in Europe, Asia and America, and capable of being propagated or diffused, to a certain extent over the surface of the earth, through the atmosphere or in some other way, and also by means of human intercourse between the healthy and the sick. It is characterized by premonitory diarrhoea, sudden muscular debility, tremors, vertigo, occasional nausea, and spasmodic griping pains in the bowels, depression of the functions of respiration and circulation and a sense of faintness; copious purging of servous fluid, succeeded by vomiting, and burning heat in the stomach; coldness and a dampness of the whole surface of the body; coldness and blueness of the lips and tongue; cold breath; a craving thirst; a feeble, rapid pulse; difficult and oppressed respiration, with extreme restlessness; suppressed urinary secretion; blueness of the entire surface of the body; a sunken appaling countenance; a peculiarly suppressed voice; a peculiar odor from the body; partial heats of the precordia and forehead; fatal collapse, or reaction or secondary fever," and I would add, occasional prompt recovery.

No one who has carefully read the above definition of cholera need ever mistake a case, although it be the first seen, and as comparatively very few of our population have ever seen cholera, which in its epidemic form is so rapidly fatal, that unless remedial measures are resorted to with the utmost promptitude—relief is not to be expected; hence the necessity for recognizing the first symptoms of an attack, when appropriate remedies are very generally successful; but where a brief delay would render the most efficacious means ineffectual. That as many as possible may be qualified to promptly recognize an attack in either themselves or friends, is my excuse for making this rather lengthy quotation.

It is not my purpose to enter into the history of this fearful epidemic, about which, both by professional and non-professional observers, volumes have been written, that is, enough to make volumes if brought together, within the past quarter of a century. Its eastern origin, as its name implies, "Asiatic cholera," or "cholera Indica," is very generally understood, and that within the present century it has several times spread rapidly over most of the habitable globe, is but too vividly remembered by many who have witnessed at least two of its visitations to our own country; but that it has become indigenous in many parts of Europe and even in America, is not so generally understood.

That sporadic cases of cholera occasionally appear in different parts of the United States, is a fact well known to the profession, and proves the correctness of Doct. Aikens' definition, that it is "developed under certain atmospheric and terrestrial local conditions, in Europe, Asia and America." Well marked cases of Asiatic cholera have appeared in many places in the United States during the past summer, three of which have come under my own observation—one on the Mississippi River, in the month of June, and two in Milwaukee in August—one of the latter fatal. All the cases of the past year no doubt originated in "local conditions," entirely independent of epidemic influence. Now, suppose in addition to the local causes which have proved sufficient in some parts of America to develope the disease, we permit the epidemic influence which is rapidly approaching us, and will most probably, in the summer and autumn of 1866, again sweep over the United States, to be superadded, the result will be that the combined power of the two causes will sweep thousands to their graves, who, by timely attention to the "local conditions," might have escaped without an attack. It is very certain, we cannot, in any appreciable degree, control the epidemic influence, about which we know little or nothing.

The "local conditions" or causes which surround us on all hands are quite different things. With these we are acquainted; we not only know their locality and nature, but how to remove or abate them. Is it not most clearly then the dictate of common sense to free ourselves from this powerful ally of the epidemic? Without this aid, it may pass from the country almost harmless; for no fact connected with the disease, is better established than that vast numbers of persons within its epidemic influence, by a general observance of the laws of health, escape its developement. Let it be distinctly understood, that the "local conditions" so frequently alluded to, mean filth in all its various forms, whether in privies, cesspools, dry wells, damp, unventilated, unclean cellars, undrained sloughs, exposed earth on which is thrown the various slops from the kitchen, etc., etc. All such are nuisances to be abated. In many cases this can best be done during the cold season. After the removal, such disinfectants as will deodorize and thoroughly neutralize every emanation calculated to vitiate the air and load it with the germs of disease, must be freely used; in short, such rigid police should be inaugurated by every family in the land, that the local conditions shall cease to exist.

Nor is this all, the laws of health more directly connected with each individual, in the observance of cleanliness, regularity and temperance in all things, are not to be neglected. Let no one be deceived; intemperate men, whether in the use of stimulating drinks, tobacco or any other vile habit they may have, such as drugging themselves with preventives, &c., will be very apt, according to their predilections and habits, to use and advise repeated potations of brandy, constant fumigation of tobacco smoke, or this or that nostrum, all well meant, but obviously damaging, and often under epidemic influence, the immediate exciting cause of the disease. Fear, by its depressing effects, is among the most frequent causes in developing cholera, and depends for its existence, more on the common fallacy, that it is taking or contagious, than on all its other supposed or real attributes. I am aware that some of the profession entertain the opinion that it is contagious. Of such I would enquire, why, in sporadic cases, is it not communicated to physicians, nurses, attendants and others exposed? Would small pox, in the midst of an unprotected community, end with the individual attacked? All who know anything on the subject, know it would not. Instead of everybody escaping, the rule would be, nearly everybody exposed would have the disease.

It certainly is not contagious in the common acceptation of the term; that is, it is not contagious as small pox, or other forms of disease universally recognized as such, are contagious. No one can question these facts in sporadic cases, and in its epidemic form the same facts exist. In 1849, I myself attended hundreds of cases in all stages of the epidemic, many of them being rapidly fatal, exposed to emanations of every description belonging to the worst forms of the disease. If contagious, why did I not contract the disease? I speak of myself, because these are facts about which I do know. The same is equally true of the profession generally throughout the country, and I may add, the world, wherever the cholera prevailed. Does this seem like contagion? It is true, a few doctors, nurses and attendants were attacked; not more, however, than would have been had the epidemic been influenza, or any other non-contagious disease.

I know of but one way to secure that perfection of police and general sanitary condition, indispensable to the protection of any or all communities, whether in cities, towns, villages or rural districts, and that is, impressing the fact on each individual family that their immunity from the ravages of this fell disease depends almost entirely on themselves. To this end I submit the following advice and direction, addressing myself to whom it concerns, that is, to every family in the state.

Examine critically every point about your premises, privies, cesspools, dry wells, cellars, the outlet of drains, whether in street or alley, decomposed garbage, manure, or any other nuisance. When submitted to such searching and earnest inspection, but few establishments will be found above sanitary criticisms. Having in this way discovered all the "local conditions" requiring attention, the next and important thing is to apply the correctives. During the winter is the time to abate many of the worst nuisances above enumerated, privies, cesspools, dry wells, damp, foul, unventilated cellars, etc. See to it that they are not only thoroughly cleared out, but that such disinfectants as quicklime, chloride of lime, or some of the metallic salts, as sulphate of iron, chloride of zinc, etc., are freely used. In the use of sulphate of iron and chloride of zinc, a pound of either to a gallon of water is a good proportion. Take care that the sulphate of iron is completely dissolved, and that the chloride of zinc is thoroughly mixed before using. If the material to be disinfected, has an offensive smell, go on with the process till it has entirely ceased. Heaps of manure, which are not or cannot be removed, or any other filth, so situated, should be covered with fresh burnt lime, or what is better, pulverized burnt charcoal. Any exposed earth soaked with slops, containing animal or vegetable matter, or both, requires the same treatment. Drains are best treated with chloride of lime, a pound of which will disinfect a thousand gallons of ordinary sewerage. These measures should be resorted to and thoroughly applied during the present winter, and on the opening of spring and approaching summer, with the increasing heat, the ratio of vigilance should be at least commensurate therewith.

Suppose we should be so fortunate as to escape the epidemic, will all this labor be lost? By no means, it is what should at all times be observed.

It is not to be supposed that in cities, towns and villages, nor even in the country, will every family put in practice the foregoing suggestions, and if they were to do so, still nuisances and sources of pestilence will be found on a larger scale than those already alluded to, which for their abatement require organized action. A heavy responsibility is resting on all municipal authorities throughout the land. If they neglect the duty of attending seasonably to all necessary police and sanitary measures, in anticipation of the approaching epidemic, Whatever of mortality results from such neglect must rest upon them. They cannot excuse themselves on the ground that lack of time, or want of seasonable notice, prevented, such notice was served many months since, and even now abundance of time yet remains, if proper energy and attention be devoted to the subject.

As a fair representation of the class of nuisances under consideration, take, for instance, the slaughter houses and their surroundings of the city of Milwaukee—and it is presumable they represent fairly the condition of such establishments elsewhere. There is, however, one feature that may be peculiar to the slaughtering establishments of this city which deserves especial attention. They are situated on the banks of the Menomonee River, which, at this place, runs through an extensive marsh, that since their erection, until recently, owing to the high stage of water in the lake, has been covered to a greater or less depth with water. For eighteen months or two years past the lake has been falling, so that the river is now within its banks, and an extensive surface exposed, that for a series of years has been absorbing all the various animal matters connected with extensive slaughtering establishments. This surface, exposed to the heat of the coming summer, which has hitherto had the protection of a covering of water, cannot fail to be a fruitful source of disease, whether cholera prevails epidemically or not, and demands, most emphatically, the attention of the city authorities. In addition to this, in most of the low and level parts of the city, foul drains and ponding of drainage, and general neglect of scavenging call for prompt attention.

In addition to all that can be done by individuals, families and public authorities, every city and town in the state should be divided into districts of suitable size. In each district a board of health should be organized, one of whose members should be a physician. The duties of this board should be to examine into the sanitary condition of the district; looking carefully to the condition of the poor; advising them in all matters connected with their health; ascertaining whether any premonitions of cholera exists among them, and advising and furnishing such remedies as are necessary to check the disease in season. At short stated periods these boards should report to the authorities, or a central board, during the continuance of the epidemic. Such proceedings will be attended by some expense, but they will prove a large economy in the end, should epidemic cholera call for them.

On the subject of quarantine and other regulations predicated on the contagious character of cholera, I have but little to say. Not believing it contagious, I, therefore, do not believe in the efficacy of such measures to prevent its introduction. Knowing nothing of the epidemic influence, nor of the means by which it spreads over continents and oceans—doubting even the idea that it is conveyed along the ordinary channels of travel either by land or water, with any more facility than in directions where such channels of intercourse do not exist. The reason why it appears under such circumstances, being the great numbers present, offering more channels for its developement and probably more "local conditions" favoring it. Entertaining such opinions, it would be great folly for me to offer any suggestions on the subject of preventing the introduction of the epidemic influence.

Here I intended to have closed my remarks on this important subject, but having just received through the post office a copy of a report by the "council of hygiene and public health of the citizens' association of New York, upon epidemic cholera and preventive measures," I am induced from the exalted professional standing of the committee, as well as from the excellence of the maxims appended to the report, which are as appropriate and valuable here as there, to make them also an appendix to the foregoing, believing they will greatly add to its value.

PRECAUTIONARY RULES AND DUTIES.

1. Avoid all causes of excessive nervous exhaustion; avoid intemperance in eating and drinking; live upon a nourishing diet, and keep the digestive functions in a healthful condition.

2. Avoid and discourage panic and needless anxiety where the epidemic is announced, remembering that in its premonitory stage cholera is generally curable, and that all the exciting causes of the malady can be avoided.

3. Promptly second the efforts of the public authorities in all enlightened plans for protecting the public health, especially in all that relates to civic cleanliness, the abatement of nuisances, and the proper care and feeding the poor.

4. If in business, or charged with any public or philanthropic duty, do not forsake your posts of personal or official labor, except when suffering from premonitory symptoms of cholera or other sickness.

5. Aid and encourage the removal and prevention of the localizing and exciting causes of cholera throughout the district in which you reside.

6. Give particular attention to the drainage, dryness and cleanliness of your premises and the neighborhood, and see to it that the water supply is both pure and sufficient.

7. Inculcate habits of personal neatness.

8. Avoid the employment of purgative drugs, except when prescribed by your physician.

9. Avoid and prevent effluvia from excrementitious matter, sewers, privies, or chamber vessels; frequently and thoroughly disinfect these sources from fever poison.

10. Insist upon the utmost cleanliness and purity of every portion of your apartments, furniture and domicile.

11. Thoroughly and frequently ventilate every apartment in the dwelling. even to the cellars, closets and vaults. This should be aided by fires in open fire-places, wherever available.

12. Carefully protect the body from sudden alteration of temperature. Wear flannel, and when exposed to changeable temperature, or suffering any disorder of the bowels, wear a broad flannel band, extending from the top of the hips to the middle of the body.

13. Be prudent in the use of food and beverages, being particularly attentive to the quality and digestibility.

14. Bear in mind the fact, that a painless diarrhoea is the most invariable precursor of cholera, and if not immediately and properly treated, it will more probably terminate fatally than favorably.

RULES TO BE OBSERVED IN CASE OF AN ATTACK BY CHOLERA.

1. Soon as attacked by the premonitory diarrhoea, or any symptoms of cholera, seek immediate repose in a recumbent posture, where warmth and a pure atmosphere will be enjoyed. Immediately procure competent medical attendance.

2. Let the excrementitious matters from the sick be disinfected in the vessel as soon as voided, by means of carbonate of lime, sulphate or proto-chloride of iron, coal tar, carbonic acid, or per manganate of potash; and let no person directly use the privy into which such materials are emptied, while cholera is prevailing. Whenever practicable, let the evacuated matter be deeply buried in the earth, and immediately covered with quick lime or coal tar and gravel.

3. Let all the vessels and clothing, that are used by the patients, be immediately cleansed with boiling water and soap, or alkaline chlorides or permanganates.

4. Preserve the utmost degree of personal cleanliness of the sick and their attendants.

I will end by quoting the concluding paragraph of the report:

"Every city and village in the land has a common interest with New York in the sanitary care and improvements that are now required for defence against cholera; for this metropolis is at once a chief centre of trade and of peril. In every city, town and domicile let the watchword be cleanse, cleanse, cleanse."

In submitting this, my last annual report connected with the rebellion, I cannot refrain from acknowledging my deep indebtedness to each respective state administration through the war. The kindness and courtesy uniformly extended by the chief executive and different state departments, have lightened all duties and responsibilities, and have been a constant incentive to faithfulness and perseverance to the end. Having now only to regret that more of utility does not remain behind,

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

E. B. WOLCOTT.

Surgeon General.
