BADGER SPORTS

Tom Wiesner

Henry Derleth

Derleth and Wiesner Lead Gridiron Team

Henry Derleth, letterman right end from Beaver Dam, and Tom Wiesner, letterman fullback from Neenah, are the co-captains of the 1960 Wisconsin football team.

Derleth, a junior in physical education and a member of the 1959 Big Ten All-Academic football honor team, was the leading pass catcher for the Badgers in the 1959 football season, snaring 12 for 183 yards, and in the Rose Bowl game caught three passes for 34 yards. He started every game for Wisconsin at right end last year, logging 451 minutes.

Wiesner, a hard running fullback, ranked as the Badgers third leading rusher in 1959, gaining 293 yards in 84 carries, and ranked third in scoring with 24 points in four touchdowns. He also scored Wisconsin's lone tally in the Rose Bowl game. He played 220 minutes in 1959, sharing the fullback duties with Eddie Hart. Wiesner is also majoring in physical education.

The naming of co-captains for the 1960 season marks the third consecutive year that Wisconsin's football teams will be led by co-captains; prior to the 1958 season, co-captains had been named only three times in Badger football history—1938, 1942, and 1953.

Badgers Lack Speed, Experience

Only Nine Veterans Back for '60 Squad

By PAT ZIER
Co-Sports Editor

Nine returning lettermen. That tells a big part of the story as Wisconsin's Big Ten football champs begin preparations for another conference season. The Badgers, who fought their way to the top of the heap during a rugged campaign last year, may have given fans an indication of things to come with their Rose Bowl performance January 1.

Briefly, the Badgers lack speed, depth, and experience.

Not many teams in the Big Ten can even reach the first division without speed, depth, and experience, so it's easy to see that the Badgers have plenty of work cut out for them.

WISCONSIN has two starting linemen back, co-captain Hank Derleth at end and Ron Perkins at guard. These two will anchor the line, the rest of which will be made up of an assortment of returning varsity players, lettermen, and sophomores.

By the end of the season, one of the Badger's strong points could be the ends. Derleth is big and tough and has good hands; in addition he has two years of varsity play under his belt and is a veteran of the Big Ten wars.

The other end will probably be the real problem here is who is going to spell them. The Badgers lost six tackles from last year's team, most of whom were lettermen, and this plus the unexpected loss of Fox, one of the top sophomore prospects, has created a major problem.

In spite of the loss of "Sparky" Stalcup, the guard positions are pretty well manned. Ron Perkins, who started last year, is back and he will receive help from another letterman, Don Schade.

Perkins is a steady performer who took a back seat to some of the more publicized members of the Badger line last season, but he is a fine guard in his own right.

SCHADE SHOWED flashes of brilliance at times last season and may be ready to become a top-notch Big Ten guard. If he falters, sophomore Dale Matthews, who was shifted from end during spring drills, may step in.

Another letterman, Gerry Kulcinski, and Dick Wittig make this one of the strongest spots in the Badger forward wall.

JOHN GOTTA, who lettered behind Bob Nelson at center last year, is fighting a number of candidates for Nelson's former position. Dick Baer and sophomore Ron Wildman are among those providing the competition.

The Badger backfield is in pretty much the same shape as the line, with only two returning lettermen. They are co-captain and fullback Tom Wiesner and quarterback Jim Bakken.

Bakken passed up spring drills for baseball, and as a result two new men have moved up to challenge him for the top slot at quarterback. They are Ron Carlson and John Fabry, both sophomores. Both showed well in spring drills, but by the time the season's opener rolls around Bakken will probably be the number one man again.

BAKKEN SHOWED tremendous potential as a freshman, but disappointed some last season. He can throw with the best when he wants to and is also a good runner. An improved Bakken could do much to help the Badgers this year.

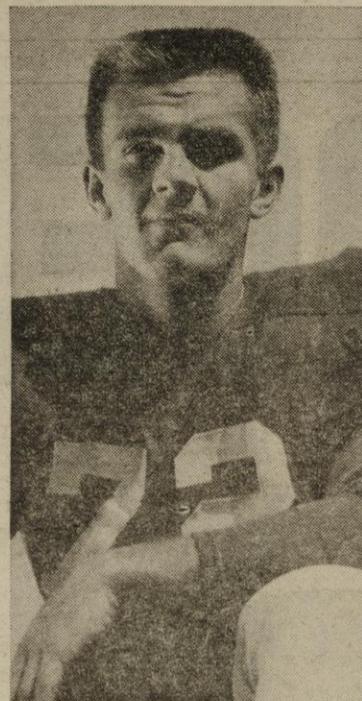

With targets like Derleth and Richter, a good passing game could open up the middle for the hard driving Wiesner and would give Wisconsin's offense a considerable boost.

A trouble spot last year and sure to be a problem again this season are the halfbacks. For the past few years, Wisconsin has never had a really outstanding breakaway runner, and this has been a considerable comfort to Big Ten rivals.

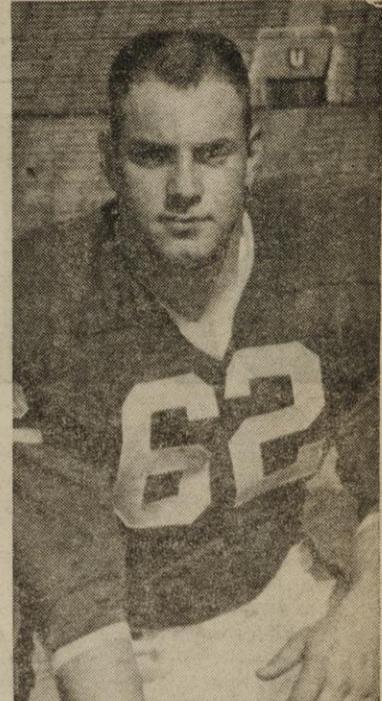

ON TOP OF THIS, the top four halfbacks of last year have departed, and this is sure to be the most inexperienced position on the team. About the only thing that can be said here is that

RON PERKINS

TERRY HUXHOLD

DON SCHADE

BRIAN MOORE

GERALD KULCINSKI

there probably will be a lot of different faces at the position.

Among the many sophomores who will probably see action at this spot are Brad Armstrong, Merritt Norvell, and Ted Rogenski. The fullback spot is in the capable hands of rugged Tom Wiesner, who could prove to be one of the Big Ten's best before he's through. A seasoned performer, Wiesner runs very hard and is tough to stop once he gets through the line.

HE ALSO has strong support in sophomore Neil Fleming, a fine prospect, and Tom Anthony, who was injured most of last season, and Tom Neumann, a reserve last year.

This is a team, which, while not a championship contender, could wind up in the first division if all the pieces fall in place. But there are many pressing problems. Will the sophomores be able to provide the necessary depth, especially at halfback and tackle slots? Can Bakken take over for the departed Dale Hackbart? Can the generally inexperienced first team compete successfully with more experienced Big Ten foes? Upon the answer to these and other questions rests Wisconsin's fate in the conference this year, and only time will tell.

'W' Club Fund Totals $3,000

Plans To Collect More Money Set

The Charles Mohr Memorial scholarship fund has a total of $3,000 collected as a tribute to the university boxer who died last spring as a result of injuries received in a boxing match.

Charlie Mohr, All-American boxer, was injured April 9 in a bout with Stu Bartell of San Jose State and died a week later. He was unconscious for the week before his death.

Several weeks later the faculty voted to discontinue boxing on an inter-collegiate level here.

THE "W" club initiated the scholarship fund to honor Charlie Mohr. According to Dick Van Eerden, president of the "W" club, the highest contributions have come from the Homecoming committee ($1,000) and the National "W" club ($500).

Van Eerden also said that plans have been made for further collections this fall. At the Oct. 1 Wisconsin-Marquette football game, "W" club day, members of the "W" club will "pass the hat" during the halftime, Van Eerden said.

The band will include a tribute to the drive in its halftime show.

UNDER provisions of the fund, as accepted by the Board of Regents, "the recipients should be students whose thoughts and actions in their daily living are motivated by those high ideals and traits of character exemplified by Charles Mohr, and who have exhibited those qualities of leadership which hold the good of all as their unwavering goal."

Recipients will be chosen by a committee composed of the president of the "W" club, the director of inter-collegiate athletics, and the director of loans and scholarships. The first winners will be announced at the "W" club athletic banquet next spring.

The awards must be a minimum of $250 annually, and shall not exceed $749, according to the provisions.

Boxing Will Be Continued In 'U' Phy. Ed. Classes

Although intercollegiate boxing has been discontinued by the university, the sport will continue here as a part of the physical education program, Vernon E. Woodward, last year's varsity boxing coach, has told the Daily Cardinal.

Training in fundamental boxing skills will be available to all interested students this year, he said. Freshmen will be able to take the sport as a quarter of their physical education program, while upperclassmen will be able to take it as an extra-curricular activity.

However, no boxing instruction will begin until Nov. 1, the usual starting time for boxing, Woodward, who will teach the sport in both programs, explained.

THE END of intercollegiate boxing at Wisconsin came last May 9, when the university faculty decided it should be dropped immediately. Less than a month before their decision university boxer Charles Mohr died of injuries received in a match April 9.

Prof. David Fellman offered the resolution which the faculty adopted with a large majority vote. It stated that "boxing is not an appropriate intercollegiate sport."

Before adopting the resolution, faculty members rejected a recommendation from the Athletic board to postpone a decision until possible rule changes in the sport were made.

WOODWARD will continue teaching boxing, but will not be coaching teams for interschool competition. "I would like to see as many boys out for the boxing instruction as possible," he said, "because not only I, but other members of the physical education and athletic departments, would like to see active interest in boxing continue here."

He mentioned the possibility that, if enough interest is shown by students, an intramural boxing program might be started. "But that wouldn't be this year," he stated.

Another possibility is to continue the all-university and contenders tournaments, he said. "But, again, nothing at all definite has been planned," he emphasized.

UNTIL BOXING instruction begins in November, Woodward will be helping out with football coaching, as he has each year since 1949.

Returning varsity boxers, with no chance for inter-collegiate competition, may decide to box as amateurs outside university jurisdiction, Woodward said. "They would be entirely on their own, and would not be representing the university," Woodward said, "so it would not violate the faculty decision."

Marty Gharritty Raises Grades, Eligible Again

Marty Gharritty, university sophomore basketball star who was dropped from school last spring because of scholastic deficiencies, has become eligible for athletic competition again by passing two summer school courses.

Success in summer courses has also made five Badger football prospects eligible for play this fall.

But John Fox, a sophomore tackle last year, got a failure during summer school while taking credits he didn't need for eligibility, and thus has been lost to the squad.

Gaining eligibility were Dick Baer, center; Gerald Nena, half-back; Neil Fleming, fullback; Jerry Westbeld, tackle; and Elmer Ezerins, end. All are sophomores this year except Fleming, a junior transfer student from Miami (Fla.) university.

Gharritty and Tom Hughbanks, another sophomore, led the Badgers' basketball scoring last year with 312 points each. Gharritty was also a member of the varsity golf team.

Among the football players mentioned, Baer and Nena are ranked on the first team in a tentative three-deep lineup. Fleming is on the second team, and Westbeld on the third team.

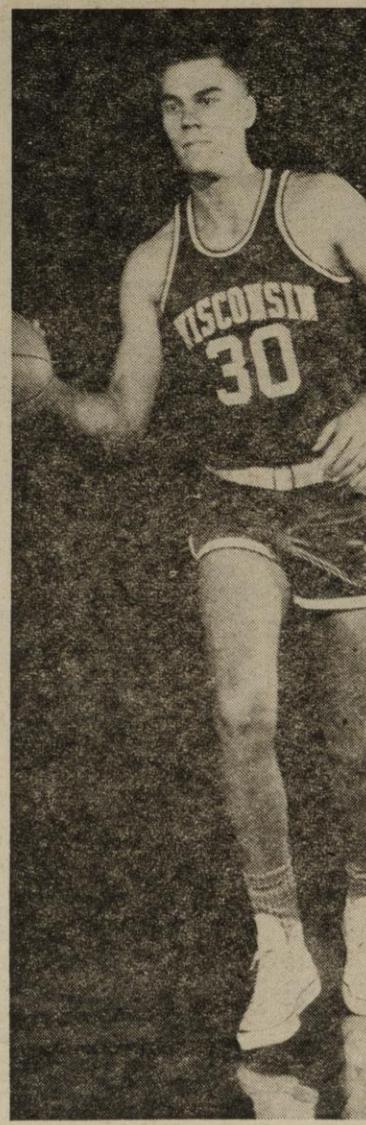

Sophomores Carry Load

By JERRY SHEA
Co-Sports editor

Milt Bruhn must depend on sophomores to carry the load in football this season and the Big Ten has never been a "sophomore" league. Only two regulars return from the 1959 champions; end Hank Derleth and guard Ron Perkins.

To make up for the lack of experience, Bruhn will use the three-platoon system that was highly successful at Michigan last year. The first team will be a two-way unit playing on both offense and defense until late in the first period. A second team of offensive specialists will then be used followed by a third team of defensive stalwarts.

Bump Eliot got the most out of mediocre talent at Michigan last fall using this system. The Wolverines didn't belong on the same field as Wisconsin last year but they almost upset the Badgers when the third or "defensive" platoon kept Wisconsin bottled up deep in its own territory throughout the last half.

BACK AGAIN—Marty Gharritty, who was declared ineligible because of grades last spring, regained his eligibility by passing two courses this summer. Gharritty is a basketball and golf star.

102 Varsity, Frosh Athletes Maintained At Least 'B' Averages Last Semester

A total of 102 university varsity and freshman athletes scored a "B" or better in their second semester classroom work last year, according to Ivan B. Williamson, athletic director. The list of athletes doing well in the classroom included seven athletes who made a straight "A" average for the semester's work, including crew Coxswain Palmer Taylor, who achieved a straight "A" for the seventh semester during his four year career at Wisconsin. Taylor is a pharmacy student.

Two varsity swimmers gained straight "A" recognition for the second semester, including the 1960 honorary swimming captain, A. David Link. Teammate Donald Pansch also had straight "A". Four freshmen athletes (now sophomores) scored straight "A", including Roger Molander, and James Nelson. Both showed promise of helping the track team, with Nelson being a 13 foot pole vaulter, and Illinois State high school champion in 1959. Molander is a hurdler.

Wrestler Peter Springberg, and fencer Forrest Nielsen, also attained a perfect record.

Varsity athletes achieving an overall average of 3.8 or better for the second semester of work include baseball pitcher Bill Lyon, football co-captain Henry Derleth, and basketball forward Tom Hughbanks. Basketball team manager, John Stack, also had a 3.8 average.

The "B" or better list of athletes includes:

Badger Pigskin History Varied

Wisconsin football got its start during the season of 1889. There are reports that a football team existed earlier, but there are no names or records to substantiate these claims.

The 1889 "11" was not successful, however, since the squad dropped the two contests it played. In the first contest, the Badgers lost to Calumet club, 27-0.

THE NEXT year, a league including Beloit, Northwestern, Lake Forest, and Wisconsin was formed. The season opened with the Badgers winning their most decisive victory in history with a 106-0 rout over Whitewater Normal.

The next time the Badger gridders cleated the gridiron it was a different story. This time another record was set—as Wisconsin suffered its most embarrassing defeat, 63-0, at the hands of Minnesota.

Phil King, Princeton's all-American quarterback for two years, arrived on the campus in 1896 to coach the Badgers. King began a new era of football that season. The material available suited his system of play, and with his ability to make the most of the players present, King built up a seven year record of 57 wins, nine losses, and one tie.

THE WESTERN conference was organized in 1896, and Wisconsin promptly walked off with the first football championship, whipping Chicago, 24-0, edging Minnesota, 6-0, and battling Northwestern to a 6-6 tie.

The Badgers won the conference crown again in 1897, and in 1901, 1906, and 1912, but then the long famine set in that was to last 40 years before another football championship would be won in 1952.

Milt Bruhn Starts 5th Year As Badger Football Coach

Wisconsin's football fortunes rest in the guidance of Milt Bruhn, starting his fifth season as head football coach at the university.

Under Bruhn the Badgers attained their first undisputed Big Ten title since 1912 in last year's rugged Big Ten race (the Badgers shared the 1952 crown with Purdue), and their sixth place ranking in the final national polls was their best since a third place rating in 1942. Coupled with a second place finish in the Big Ten in 1958, it marked the first time since the 1906-07 seasons that Wisconsin football teams had ranked that high in successive years (Badgers won the 1906 title, finished second in 1907) in Big Ten play; and the 1958 national ranking was eighth, giving Wisconsin successive years in the top 10 teams of the nation, a feat accomplished by no other Wisconsin football coach.

BRUHN IS the 21st coach to head up varsity football at Wisconsin since that sport was inaugurated in 1889 on the Madison campus. Bruhn realizes the big job that faces him in keeping the Badgers among the nation's football elite, and knows it will not be an easy task. He and his staff have again prepared for the season, and are thoroughly familiar with the abilities of the squad

Hoosiers Face Some Lost Income

In disciplinary action taken against Indiana university, the Big Ten has cut the Hoosiers off from any share of television receipts and has declared that none of the games they play will have any effect on conference standings.

The action was taken on the basis of violations of rules in recruiting football players.

Last April, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) placed Indiana on a four-year probation, making the school ineligible to enter teams or athletes in NCAA championship competition. The probation also bans the Hoosiers from participation in NCAA-controlled television programs.

THE BIG TEN action actually affects other conference teams as well. Michigan State will have only five conference games as a result, and they could miss out on the Big Ten championship even if they won all five, provided one of the other eight schools won six conference games.

Only Wisconsin will play seven conference games this fall. Playing six will be Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Northwestern, Ohio State, Purdue, and Iowa.

Wisconsin and Iowa do not have any football games scheduled with Indiana, so are not directly affected by the Big Ten ruling.

THE BIG TEN could have been more severe. The conference handbook states that in such a case as the Indiana violation the school must show cause why its conference membership should not be ended if it employs or retains an athletic staff member who has violated recruiting rules.

If this provision had been enforced, Indiana might have had to either fire football coach Phil Dickens or drop out completely from the Big Ten.

Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Western conference athletic commissioner, in explaining the leniency, stated:

"It is only because I cannot bring myself to employ circumstantial evidence in so serious a matter as one involving a person's livelihood that I do not, in the present circumstances, cite Indiana university under (this provision)."

Indiana will probably be hurt greatly financially. Besides their loss of television money, an attendance decrease at their home and away games because of their non-conference status is also expected to cut down considerably on their athletic income.

HOOSIER COACH

Indiana Coach Phil Dickens has a "wait-and-see" policy regarding possible effects of the Big Ten action which removed the Hoosiers from the conference race.

"We'll have to wait for the first game for an answer to that," he said. "We hope they'll react to play even a little harder, but, while our pre-season practice may give some indication of how it affects them, we won't really know until that first game."

Wildcats' Hopes Pinned on Sophs

EVANSTON, III. — Sophomores are a key factor in Northwestern's hopes for employing the platoon system during the 1960 football season.

Twenty-three sophomores were on the 61-man squad that opened practice at Dyche stadium Sept. 1. The balance of the squad consists of 18 lettermen, six of them starters, and 20 squadmen from last season.

The Wildcats' No. 2 team — which could include as many as seven sophomores — will have to prove itself if Coach Ara Parseghian expects to give his first stringers consistent relief during the rugged nine-game schedule.

The pre-season depth chart lists an all-letterman starting lineup. However, if any sophomore earns a first string assignment, it most likely will be at tackle, where two outstanding newcomers — Jack Cvercko and Bill Deegan — are expected to press veterans for the top positions.

Another top prospect in the interior line is the youngest player on the squad, 18-year old Burt Petkus, who has been shifted from tackle to guard. Sophomore Dick Machalski will understudy Elbert Kimbrough at right end.

Sophomores could make up three-fourths of the second team backfield. John Dickey, a 190-pound fullback, will vie with letterman Jim Knowles for first call behind veteran Mike Stock. Fighting for second team status at halfback will be two newcomers, Bob Snider and Paul Flatley.

Other promising sophomores are Ed Caplinger and Dave Cox, ends; Chuck Urbanic, guard; Dell Pendergrast and Jerry Goshgarian, centers; Larry Benz and Fred Quinn, quarterbacks; and Elliott Williams and Chuck Brainerd, halfbacks.

'60 Football Promises Color, Action

The football Badgers will play a nine game schedule this year. The opener will be against Stanford at Palo Alto, Calif., Sept. 24.

Last year the Badgers edged the Indians 16 to 14. This year Stanford has 19 lettermen returning and expects to start two sophomores, Chris Jessen and Chet Hinshaw at end positions, and sophomore C. B. Simons will make a strong bid for the right tackle position.

Quarterback Dick Norman, who led all of the nation's passers last year with 1,963 yards, and fullback Skip Face, who tallied 100 points on an assortment of touchdowns, field goals, and extra points appear to be the mainstays for the 1960 Indians, who hope to give Coach Jack Curtice his first winning season at Stanford.

In the line, left guard Ron Fernandes and center Doug Pursell are the only 1959 regulars returning, and Curtice will have to count on last year's reserves, plus newcomers for help from end to end.

THE TRADITIONAL Marquette game in Madison is set for Oct. 1. The Warriors, coached by Lisle Blackbourn, were defeated 44 to 6 by the Badgers last season. Eighteen lettermen are returning.

ON OCT. 8 Wisconsin will try to reverse last year's 21 to 0 loss to Purdue. The Boilmakers, coached by Jack Mollenkopf, lost 23 lettermen and have 19 returning.

Tackles Jerry Beabout, Dale Rems, and Pat Russ, plus guards Ron Maltony and Stan Sczourek will give the Lafayette team a good nucleus for another fine line when they meet the Badgers in Madison.

They will, however, have to develop top flight ends to replace departed starters, and must find an adequate center. Bernie Allen, at quarterback, will provide a good passing attack, while backfield speed is emphasized by the presence of Jim Tiller at left halfback. Fullback Willie Jones appears to be capable of giving Purdue a rugged, plunging fullback with power.

THE BADGERS will travel to Iowa City to face the Hawkeyes Oct. 15. Last year Iowa was on the low end of a 25 to 16 score. Coach Forest Evashevski has 15 lettermen returning and only three starters from the 1959 team—guards Mark Manders and Sherwyn Thorson, and tackle Charles Lee. Two sophomores who should make their mark in Big Ten play early are fullback Joe Williams, a ten second 100 yard dashman, and end Jim Winston, who has ability as a top notch pass receiver.

THE FOLLOWING week, Oct. 22 the Badgers will again be on the road—this time to Columbus, Ohio, to meet the Buckeyes, who lost to Wisconsin 12 to 3 last year. Coach "Woody" Hayes has 22 lettermen returning and will follow the trend to the multi-team system.

He will have a good nucleus of veteran talent, and promising sophomores available. Line standouts include end Tom Perdue, tackle Jim Tyrer, and guard Mike Ingram, the latter being a great defensive player.

In the backfield, both quarterbacks, Jerry Fields and Tom Matte, are returning, with the latter rated the better passer and runner. Fullback rates the strongest backfield position with Roger Detrick, who ended the 1959 season with some outstanding performances. The Buckeyes expect added strength from in both the line and backfield from sophomores.

THE MICHIGAN team will be in Madison Oct. 29 to meet the Badgers. Last year the Badgers won, 19 to 10.

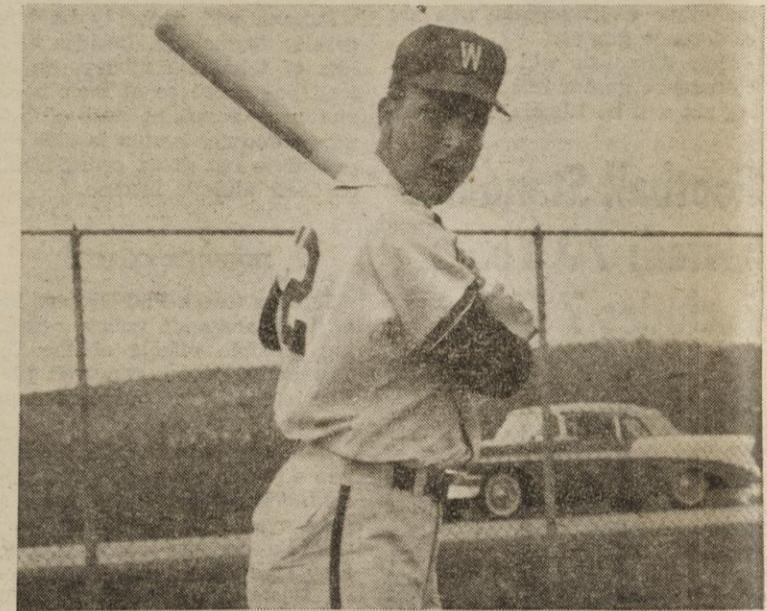

The Wolverines have the largest number of lettermen returning—31. Ends John Jalstead and Bob Johnson head the strong list of veteran flankmen. Center and captain Gerald Smith will anchor the line, and will be backed by rugged Todd Grant. Best bet for stardom is left halfback Bennie McRorie, second leading Wolverine rusher last year. The problems will be at quarterback and guard posts.

WISCONSIN'S HOMECOMING game Nov. 5 will be played against Northwestern. Last year the Badgers won, 24 to 19. Eighteen lettermen will be returning for the Wildcats, including an all-veteran backfield. Interior line starts will have to come from newcomers if Coach Ara Parseghian is to have a winning team.

After two weeks in Madison, Wisconsin will meet Illinois at Champaign Nov. 12. The Badgers will be smarting from a 9 to 6 defeat last year.

THE FIGHTING Illini have 24 lettermen returning, although the loss of both regular guards, the center, and right end will pose a problem.

THE LAST game against Minnesota will be played at Madison Nov. 19. The rival Gophers have 22 lettermen returning and appear well set at guards and center. Right end Tom Hall could win All-American recognition this year, and backfield stars of promise are Sanford Stephens at quarterback, Bill Kavanaugh and Judge Dickson at halfbacks, and Tom Robbins at fullback.

CAPTAIN—University baseball Captain for the 1961 season is Dick Van Eerden. Van Eerden played shortstop for the 1960 Badgers, batting .190, and batting across eight runs for the year, and in the field he handled 77 chances with four errors for a .948 fielding average. As a sophomore in 1959, Van Eerden batted .216, while playing third base. Van Eerden is also "W" club president and Daily Cardinal business manager.

Badgers Win Recognition

Wisconsin's 1959-60 athletic school year was highlighted by the performances of the athletes pictured on this page.

Football tackles Dan Lanphear and Karl Holzwarth played vital roles in leading the Badgers to the 1959 Big Ten championship; Lanphear's play earned him a berth on the 1959 All-American team, while Holzwarth set a new NCAA record by kicking seven field goals during the 1959 campaign. He also ranked fifth among the nation's scoring leaders by tallying 31 points for the season.

Boxers Brown McGhee, 132 pounds, and Jerry Turner, 156 pounds, won NCAA titles and brought Wisconsin's total of NCAA individual boxing titles to 38 in the 20 NCAA tournaments in which the team participated. Wrestler Fred Rittschoff, 115 pounds, won his weight division championship in the Big Ten meet in March, giving the Badgers an individual champion in the sport for the second consecutive year, and the seventh individual champion produced by Coach George Martin in his tenure. Swimmer Ron McDevitt scored all Wisconsin's points in Big Ten and NCAA competition, and his NCAA performances, though not winning times, earned him a place on the All-American swimming team.

Sports Editor Picks Illinois First, Wisconsin Last

By PAT ZIER
Co-sports editor

Another tough race that could go all the way down to the wire is in the makings for this season in the Big Ten. Like last year, several teams are title contenders and the outcome probably won't be determined until the final conference game is played.

Besides the quality of the teams, other factors will be involved in determining the new Big Ten champion. Not the least of these is the suspension of Indiana, which eliminates them from Big Ten competition and also invalidates all games with other conference opponents.

THIS HURTS several teams' chances, especially Michigan State, which now has only five conference games on its schedule. Assuming that every conference team will lose at least one game, a five game slate could prevent the Spartans from sharing or winning the championship because another contender might win one more game than the Spartans.

TAKING INTO consideration the above mentioned points, plus the schedules and the merits of the individual teams and adding a little bit of guess-work, we would pick the teams to finish in the following order: Illinois, Ohio State, Minnesota, Northwestern, Michigan State, Iowa, Michigan, Purdue, and Wisconsin.

There was little doubt at the end of last season that Illinois was one of the best, if not the best, team in the Big Ten. The Illini have 25 lettermen, including six starters, back from last year's team.

This, plus the availability of several fine sophomores, makes Illinois the team to beat. The Illini have one of the finest backfields in the conference with Johnny Easterbrook and Mel Meyers at quarter, Ethan Blackaby and Marshall Starks at half, and the Brown boys, Bill and Jim, at full.

THE LINE is headed by five rugged tackles, including Cliff Roberts and Joe Rutgens, and end Ed O'Bradovich and center John Stapleton, back after a year's lay-off.

Right behind the Illini we rate Ohio State. The Buckeyes had a rough season last year and that seldom happens twice in a row at Ohio State.

Heading up the Buckeye backfield are Bob Ferguson at full, quarterbacks Jerry Fields and Tom Matte, and Jim Herbstreit and a host of talented sophs at halfback.

The line suffered some heavy losses, but there is still plenty of material around. Tackles Jim Tyrer and Bob Vogel have size and ability, and Mike Ingram and Oscar Hauer are a pair of fine guards.

EIGHT starters lead a bevy of returning lettermen back to the football wars at Minnesota. The Gophers, who have been somewhat of a disappointment the past several years, should cause somebody some trouble this time.

Minnesota has one of the finest interior lines in the conference, headed by guard Tom Brown, center Greg Larson, and tackle Francis Brixius. Another standout is end Tom Hall.

The backfield is also potent, with a pair of line-shattering fullbacks, Roger Hagberg and Tom Robbins; halfbacks, Judge Dickson and Bill Kauth; and quarterbacks, Sandy Stephens and Bob Johnson.

A STRONG darkhorse in the championship race will be Northwestern. Dick Thornton and Albert Kimbrough are back after being hurt last year, and if they have no ill effects from their injuries Northwestern will be dangerous.

Thornton should be the best quarterback in the Big Ten this season. He can run, pass, and kick and is a terrific all-around performer. Kimbrough, a halfback, is capable of filling the shoes of Ron Burton if he is up to par. These two, plus powerful Mike Stock at fullback, give the Wildcats a very potent backfield.

The line should also be tough, with ends Elbert Kimbrough and Irv Cross, tackle Fate Echols, and guards Russ Asala and Wayne Chamberlain. Depth is the big problem, and if the sophs come through Northwestern could take it all.

MICHIGAN STATE'S big problem is to come up with a replacement for Dean Look at quarterback; if the Spartans do that they will also be very tough. Herb Adderley and Gary Ballman are two very fine half backs, and ends Fred Arbanas and Art Brandstatter are perhaps the finest in the conference.

Some of the best sophomores in the Big Ten are pushing lettermen like center Dave Manders, guard Mickey Walker, and others. Too much depends on the sophs, however, and State is probably a year away.

Iowa has too many holes to be considered a strong title contender, but no team coached by Forrest Evashevski can be rated much lower than sixth. The line will be led by tackle Charlie Lee and guards Mark Manders and Sherwyn Thorson.

OVER THE past few years, the Hawkeyes have had some of the finest quarterbacks in the conference, and this has had much to do with their success. This year should be no exception, with Wilburn Hollis inheriting Olen Treadway's old spot. Halfback Jerry Mauren is also a standout.

Michigan has a large number of lettermen returning, but they will have to show a lot of improvement to move the Wolverines much higher in the standings. Reid Bushong, a halfback, and Bob Chandler, a soph quarterback, should head up the backfield corps.

In the line, John Halstead is a good end and teams with center Jerry Smith and guard Dick Syring to form the nucleus of the Wolverine's forward wall.

A SOLID middle line and a clever quarterback carry most of Purdue's hopes for this season. Bernie Allen is a capable Big Ten quarterback and Jim Tiller can run at half, but the picture isn't so clear after that.

A pair of excellent guards, Stan

Szurek and Ron Maltony, top the line, with help from tackles Jerry Beabout and Dale Rems.

Wisconsin will be rebuilding completely after last year's championship, and not too much can be expected of the Badgers, especially early in the season. However the Big Ten is full of surprises, and the Badgers might spoil somebody's plans before the season's over.

INDIANA, whose games will not count in the conference standings this year, has a large line and will provide stiff competition for all its opponents. Top players are end Earl Faison, blocking back Will Scott, and halfback Richie Bradford.

'U' Instructor . . .

Pete Barrett Competing in '60 Olympics

Pete Barrett, a university mechanics instructor, has had the honor of competing in the 1960 Olympic games this summer.

He has been the only skipper representing the United States in the Olympic Finn monotype class sailing in Naples, Italy.

At the time of this writing, he was competing for the six best times in a series of seven heats. He had withdrawn from the first heat because of mast trouble.

Barrett won the Olympic berth in a seven-race trial series in Marblehead, Mass., in July. He was declared top point-gainer after a protest disqualified another competitor in the last race, and Barrett moved from tenth to ninth place in that race, giving him enough total points to lead the field.

THE FINN class boat which Barrett has been using is 14.9 feet long and four feet wide. Its only sail carries 114 square feet.

The skipper does not actually ride in the Finn. He has toe straps that hold his feet in the boat, but all of his body from the knees up hangs over the side of the craft, putting tremendous strain on the knees.

Hanging over the side is called "hiking," and the straps that hold the feet are "hiking straps."

BARRETT, a native of Madison, came to the university after studying at Cornell university and the Webb Institute of Naval Architecture. He got a degree in mechanical engineering, and then went into Law school. He became an instructor to help defray expenses.

After Barrett won the Olympic trials in Marblehead, he returned to Madison and trained here before going to Italy. He borrowed a Finn from the president of the Finn association, and sailed it on Lake Mendota.

Normally the smallest boats on the lake here are Cubs, which measure about 16 feet long and six feet wide, but their two sails carry a total of only 110 square feet, compared to the 114 feet of the single Finn sail.

Barrett also trained with "hiking straps" built on his back porch at 428 N. Livingston st., where he lives with his wife and their 17-month-old son.

THE UNIVERSITY instructor tried out for the 1956 Olympic races, but lost in the trials.

Olympic races are just over seven miles long over a six-leg course—three windward, one downwind, and two reaches (slightly crosswind). It usually takes around two hours to finish a race.

members they will be working with.

Bruhn's Wisconsin teams the past three years featured the "fineness" attack on offense, operating off the straight-T formation, and used a rock-ribbed defense to contain the opponents. Only twice since Bruhn became head coach has an opposing team scored more than three touchdowns against Wisconsin (Michigan State in 1956, 33-0, and Washington in the 1960 Rose Bowl game, 44-8).

COACHING HAS been Bruhn's life. As he tells it, he first became interested in coaching at Minnesota. "When I first went there I didn't have a lot of confidence in myself so far as becoming a Big Ten player. But after I learned I could play the game, I decided to stay with it. I've always liked to work with young men."

Bruhn, 1936 graduate of the University of Minnesota, was appointed head football coach at Wisconsin succeeding Ivan Williamson, when the latter moved to the position of athletic director following the death of Guy Sundt. Bruhn, however, did not assume responsibilities until Jan. 1, 1956. He had been varsity line coach at Wisconsin since 1949.

AT MINNESOTA he was left guard when they won Big Ten championships in 1934 and 1935 and had unbeaten records. Bruhn also was catcher on the baseball team which won the Big Ten championship in 1935.
