SHOW GOOD FORM BY 53 TO 13 WIN IN FIRST PRELIM

Captain Gibson, Spooner, Varney, Feature in Scoring; Guards Work Well

By HARRY BARSANTEE
Completely lost and helpless before the furious onslaught of the Badger short-pass machine, Coach Rollie Williams' Millikin basketball team took a 53 to 13 defeat in the gym last night.

The Badgers, playing their first game of the season against an outside team, were all set to tally, and starting with the opening whistle they piled up the score. The score at the end of the first half was 29 to 7 with the Badgers in a safe lead.

In direct contrast to the way they have played against teams during the preliminary season of other years, when scores were always close, the Badgers opened up last night, scoring at will and never allowing themselves to be in danger throughout the game.

Millikin Uses Short Pass

Millikin's classy left forward is well-labeled when he is in a basketball suit, for his name is Millikin. He is a grandson, grand nephew, great grandson, or grandsomething-otherwise of the institution, according to his team mates.

Sceptical fans who have thought of the 1923-24 team only in terms of the stars lost through graduation last year were surprised and pleased at the spectacle last night, for the team looked like the old successful scoring quintet which has kept Wisconsin in the fore during the past few years.

The short pass never looked so well considering the early season, but the Millikin team is young and inexperienced and their feeble attempts to stop the system amounted to little.

Millikin, playing the short pass game for the first time this season, found the Badgers too powerful to work against. They have been working with the Meanwell system but a short time, and after playing it for a while without success they reverted to their old way of using long, high passes.

Four Guards Used

With four combinations forming the defensive part of the Badger team, the Decatur team was unable to get close enough to the basket to score regularly. Diebold remained at the back guard position throughout the entire game, but Elsom, Barwig, and Wackman worked at the other position. Not a man on the Millikin team succeeded in scoring more than one field goal during the entire fracas.

The Millikin defense, despite the stellar work of Arrington, was completely smothered every time

Poultry Club Has Choice Birds on Exhibition Today

Choice birds representing all the breeds of poultry owned by the university were on exhibit yesterday in the poultry building during the first day of the annual show conducted by the Badger Poultry club. Final fitting of the exhibits will be demonstrated by students this afternoon.

The public is invited to the exhibits this afternoon and to the judging of the birds which will take place all day Monday and conclude the show. All of the hundred birds shown will be passed upon by Professor Hapin, chairman of the poultry husbandry department and four cups and ribbons will be awarded to the winning students who have best fitted their exhibits.

H. L. Kropp, manager of the show announced that Monday's feature will be a high school judging contest. According to E. W. Kallenbach, president of the Badger Poultry club, this year's show finds more birds entered and more students taking part than ever before.

Hold Announcement of Rhodes Scholar Until Tomorrow

Announcement of the Rhodes scholarship award will not be made until tomorrow morning. The committee in charge of making the award for Wisconsin met here yesterday but all efforts to find out which of the candidates for the honor was chosen were unavailing.

The reason for this delay in making the announcement is that although the award is made in each state on the same day, there is actually several hours difference in the actual time at which the committees meet and make their decisions. Considerable time is required before all the information can be sent to the central committee and Monday will be the first opportunity for public announcement of the results.

Members of the body which selected the Rhodes scholar here are pledged not to reveal the name of the candidate selected. President Birge is chairman of the committee.

ORIENTAL BAZAAR DRAWS CROWDS

Annual Chanty Affair at Lathrop Hall is Big Success

More than 500 students, faculty, and towns folks visited the Orient yesterday, when they attended the annual Y. W. C. A. bazaar, held in Lathrop hall from 2 to 11 o'clock.

The entire first floor of Lathrop hall was converted into an atmosphere of the East. The Turkish Kiosk was the tea room where refreshments were served. By rubbing Aladdin's wonderful lamp, wishes in the form of grab bag contents descended from a harem balcony of veiled ladies.

The Oriental effect was carried out completely in the gift booth, card booth, and all other stalls erected to sell wares on a typical Oriental street. Many of the venders were appropriately costumed for the occasion.

Jean L. Palica '25 and Esther G. Fifield '25, acted as co-chairmen of the bazaar. Assistant chairmen included: Finance, Beulah Henry '26; Publicity, Helen J. Baldau '25; Ticket Sale, Lillian Twenhofel '26; Decorations, Elaine Mabley '24; Program, Eleanor Day '24; Candy Booth, Betty Mahorney '24; Dance, Clara Hertzberg '24; Flower Sale, Margaret McGovern '24; Tea Room Larch Campbell '26; Exhibit, Margaret Campbell '25; Grab Bag, Rena Grubb '25; Bake Shop, Mildred Rieck '24; Gift Shop, Margaret Patch '26; Card Booth, Ruth Lehnhouts '26; Post Office, Dorothy Simpson '24.

The committee is indebted to the following Madison merchants who contributed generous donations to the gift shop stock: Andelson, Anderson, Antique Shop, Burdick-Murray, Candy Shop, Carolyn Hat Shop, Chocolate Shop, Co-Op, Coynne Hat Shop, Danner Boot Co., Dolly Henderson Shop, Duffey Hat Shop, French Shop, Gift Shop, Har-Jensen's, Kessenich's, Kamera Kraft, Leader, Lewis Drug, Loken Bros., Maiden Beauty, Madison Leather Goods, Marinello, New York Store, Palace Drug, Photoart, Rainbow Hat Shop, Rosemary, Shadnaer's, Sporting Good Shop, Simpson's, Sunner-Crampton, University Pharmacy, Walk-Over, Ye Garment Shoppe.

KEUHL SPEAKS IN SECRETARY'S OFFICE

The secretary of state's office in the capitol has been secured for the meeting of the Young Men's Progressive association at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening when Frank Keuhl, former university student, and private secretary to the governor, will speak on the relations of the governor to the last legislature, according to William Blake, '26, secretary of the organization.

MASON WORKS ON PLANS TO AMPLIFY '25 PROM MUSIC

Advances Deflector System Idea; Physics Department May Make Amplifiers

Feeling that the music at the past Proms has not been arranged so that dancers could hear it outside of the rotunda of the capitol and that every attempt should be made to send the strains of jazz to other parts of the building as well in order to relieve the crowded condition which invariably presents itself in the rotunda during Prom, the services of Prof. Max Mason of the physics department have been secured and he has advanced two plans whereby the music can be heard to better advantage by the dancers.

Already work has started on trying to improve the matter of hearing the music in spite of the fact that the capitol has not yet been secured for the function. If the state officials do decide to grant permission to the junior class for the use of the capitol, the committee feels that it would be best to play safe and insure the best possible acoustics. In case the capitol can not be used, not too much extra effort will have been expended.

The first scheme as advanced by Professor Mason is to use a deflector system whereby vibration would be eliminated to a great extent. Deflectors work splendidly for speech, Professor Mason says, but it is a question as to whether or not they will serve as well for dance music.

Letters have been sent to two experts on the question, one at the University of Illinois and the other at Geneva.

The second plan is to use a system of amplifiers such as are used for open air speeches. Amplifiers can be placed in each of the four wings and thus the music can be transmitted throughout practically the entire building. Such a system of bulb transmission would be expensive but it is believed that enough material is now in the hands of the physics department to make a suitable set and this material will be loaned for the Prom.

That one of these two schemes will improve the Prom music immensely is the opinion of Professor Mason who has volunteered to do everything in his power to solve the situation.

GOODLAND WINS PLACE IN DEBATE TRYOUTS

In addition to the 14 names announced for the final debate tryout competition next Thursday is that of E. M. Goodland, L2.

Machine Guns Add Military Touch to Annual Cadet Hop

Couples present at the Military Hop held last night in Lathrop parlors were treated to an unusual display of colored lights upon a background of sparkling tinsel. Spotlights were in constant play, singling couples at random and lingering upon them for a few seconds.

The orchestra was seated upon a platform behind a formidable rampart consisting of two machine guns and a one pounder—while a tinsel screen behind formed a dazzling background.

The Military Hop is an annual affair, and is the chief social function of the cadet corps during the fall term.

BIG TEN EDITORS WANT ROUND ROBIN

Pass Resolution on Football Schedules; Butts is Elect- ed Secretary

Special to The Cardinal)
ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 8.—

The Western Conference Editorial Association meeting here in its third annual two day convention went on record today as favoring the principle of scheduling football contests by the round-robin method.

It was the sentiment of the Big Ten editors assembled that greater fairness in schedule making and greater unity in the western conference would be promoted by following the precedent set last year when the scheduling of basketball games was placed on a round-robin basis.

The resolution adopted by the conference editors is as follows:

Resolved—that the western conference editorial association go on record as favoring the principle of scheduling football contests by the round robin method.

Each Big Ten university was represented at the convention by the editor and business manager of its daily paper. Discussion of publication problems on Friday showed the tendency of conference papers to be toward the organization of independent publishing plants and away from faculty supervision and control.

George G. Booth, president of the Detroit News association, speaking before the editors on Friday, pointed out that newspapers had passed the era of efficiency and were entering upon the era of service. Serving mankind, he said, must be the purpose of the newspaper and the test of its value.

Willis J. Abbott, editor of The Christian Science Monitor, at the closing session of the convention today, declared the greatest hope for cleaning up newspaper sensationalism lies in the advertising department. The growing tendency of advertisers to object to the advertisements being placed next to questionable news matter will have a chastening effect on the news itself he said.

Illinois was selected as the convention place for the gathering of the editors next May. Officers of the association elected for the year are:

Torrey B. Stearns, president; Illinois service president, B. R. Gebhart, Purdue; secretary, Porter F. Butts, Wisconsin; treasurer, Raymond Bathroldi, Minnesota.

POSTPONE GREEN BUTTON ELECTIONS INDEFINITELY

The election of Green Button officers will not take place tomorrow as formerly announced, but will be postponed until next week. This step was taken because it seems advisable to wait until semester grades are in and all question of eligibility definitely settled.

North Dakota Game is Surprise; Undecided Between Ames and Coe

Wisconsin faces one of the hardest est schedules in 1924 ever confronted by a Cardinal team, according to the announcement yesterday of the 1924 football schedule by Athletic Director T. E. Jones.

Two important conference games will be played at Madison next year besides a home game with Notre Dame on November 8. Both Minnesota and Iowa journey to Madison. Minnesota kindly consented to give up the proposed game on her home grounds and agreed to come here. Wisconsin is indebted to the Gophers for this.

The 1924 Homecoming game will be with Iowa on November 15. The Notre Dame game on November 8 came as a surprise. Even the most optimistic were skeptical of securing a game with Rockne's eleven. This game in 1924 will show just what the Cardinal team can do against a team of national fame, as Rockne's teams usually are.

In their other two conference games the Badgers travel to the Michigan gridiron at Ann Arbor, and close the season at Chicago. The Chicago game will mark the ending of the present five-year contract.

A game which was carded and came as an unexpected surprise, is the game with North Dakota, the opening game of the season on September 27.

The game following that with North Dakota has not been set definitely as yet. The proposed game according to Jones is one with either Ames college or Coe college on either October 4 or October 11.

1924 FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

Sept. 27—North Dakota university at Madison.

Oct. 4 or 11—Ames or Coe at Madison.

Oct. 18—Minnesota at Madison.

Oct. 25—Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Nov. 1—Open.

Nov. 8—Notre Dame at Madison.

Nov. 15—Iowa at Madison (Homecoming).

Nov. 22—Chicago at Chicago

Festive Coverings Add to Success of Your Presents

Be it ever so humble you'll never know it, if you wrap that Christmas present attractively. About half the success of your gift lies in the way you present it, and there are so many novel ways of presenting it.

With the usual gay trimmings of reds and greens a box containing a hot water bottle to Aunt Nettie might look by its holiday dress as if it contained one of these smart new waists with real lace. Not that we wish to encourage deceiving anybody, but it all proves the point.

Besides the varied papers which alone spell cheeriness and fun in giving, are the many different kinds of ribbons which add to the attractiveness of the gift; silver and gold ribbons, and bright red ones decorated with sprays of holly and mistleto. The ribbons tied, a sprig of holly or mistleto tucked underneath the bow in the center, and what a charming decoration.

And Christmas seals must not be forgotten. There are many hundreds of them in different designs at the novelty shops; there are pictures of the Madonna on them, the wise men of the East, Christmas candles, old English lanterns, and other designs representing the Christmas spirit. A few of these pasted on your box will give an added effect.

S. G. A. DUES WITHIN $200 OF QUOTA SET

Letters Being Sent to All Who Have Not Paid Explaining Rules

S. G. A. dues are within $200 of completion with $2300 turned in to carry on the year's program. Letters are being sent to those who have not paid their dues explaining to them that they are members of the self-government organization in accordance with university requirements and requesting that they send in their dollar for the annual dues as soon as possible to avoid being called before the judiciary committee.

One of services of S. G. A. which has been taken advantage of by approximately 200 girls is the Friday night dancing class. The bridge classes are free to all girls who wish to attend. Plans are being made to add instructions in Mah Jong after the Christmas holidays.

A vocational conference for the purpose of presenting to women students various occupations and professions is maintained. About $100 of the budget goes for the support of one of the cooperative houses. A scholarship of the same amount is awarded every year to a woman student. A loan fund to woman student. A loan fund to students who need help and one to student organizations is a further financial aid given by the organization.

S. G. A. includes in its dues the payment of class dues. Officers state that in all other colleges class dues are required in an additional payment. The elections of the various class organizations are conducted by S. G. A. The amount necessary for national dues and for sending delegates to the intercollegiate W. S. G. A. are paid for by the local self-government association.

Beta Gamma Sigma Has Its Initiation For Six Thursday

The Beta Gamma Sigma, honorary commerce fraternity, held its initiation and banquet Thursday evening.

Those initiated into the fraternity are:

Arthur J. O'Hara, Edward E. Jandrey, Otis H. Reyer, George G. Mackmiller, Lawrence R. Nelson, Jerome A. Straka. All the initiates are seniors in the commerce course.

Prof. W. A. Scott, director of the course in commerce, gave the initiation address and Alfred L. Sommers '07, one of the founders of the society, talked about some of his experiences and the commerce school during his enrollment in the university.

LOUISE LOVELY TAKES PICTURES AT ORPH

Miss Louise Lovely, stage and screen star, who is appearing at the Orpheum this week is making pictures of the Madison people and is attempting to line up a few new personalities for her forthcoming productions.

On the same bill with Miss Lovely will be Walter Brower, a monologist. He comes direct from the Kentucky Glens. He explains the last raid he saw before he left his old home among the stills in old Kentucky. Indian Follies, featuring Chief Silver Tongue, will hold down an important position on the program also. The Chief and his tribe will offer a little 1923 Indian entertainment.

The Irish and the Jews furnish about half the material for the humorous anecdotes and in the majority of stories one of them is abusing the other. Jack O'Halligan and Moses Levi have signed a truce and instead of cutting each other's throats they have combined. Beatrice Sweeney does some whirling dirvish stuff suspended by her tooth in midair that is spectacular.

DOCTOR HEMER WILL SPEAK AT CHURCH

Dr. Richard Homer of the physics department will give an illustrated lecture entitled "A Trip through Space" before the Young People's association of Grace Episcopal church at 7 o'clock this evening at the Guild hall. In his talk will be included a brief discussion of the possibilities of man's ever leaving the earth for flights between the planets.

Hundred Year Cement Test Started by Professor Withey

One of the most comprehensive series of tests ever made upon concrete was started this summer in the Mechanics laboratory of the College of Engineering under the supervision of Prof. M. O. Withey. Structural engineers have long felt the dearth of data regarding the properties of concrete which has aged and with the purpose of supplying this need the present series of tests was started.

A total of 2660 cylinders and 840 briquettes were cast, some of which will not be broken for 100 years.

The tests are divided into two general groups. One group of cylinders is being subjected to weathering and will lie on the ground in a screened enclosure behind the Engineering building until broken in the tests. They are to be subjected to conditions simulating the exposure of foundations and retaining walls. The other group has been placed on a raised platform in the Mechanics laboratory under conditions similar to those in the interior of the buildings.

The materials used include four kinds of cement, gravel, granite limestone and sand.

Besides determining the effect of ageing upon the properties of concrete, it is hoped that the tests will indicate the relation between the ageing qualities of concrete and the results tests made upon cylinders which are only a few weeks old. For this purpose the cylinders are subjected to freezing, steaming, absorption and expansion tests in order to bring out the weaknesses as soon as possible.

Nardin to Address Freshman Women In Vocational Convocation

All freshmen women will be addressed by Dean F. Louise Nardin at the first vocation convocation at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the Lathrop concert room.

Miss Nardin has chosen "Personality as a Requisite in Business" as her subject, and will show how a college education as well as the college life will serve as valuable assets in the business life.

This is the first vocational meeting to be held this year for women students, although the vocational advisors in each department have already held a general meeting with the women's standing vocational committee to formulate plans for the present year.

Attendance will be carefully checked, according to Louise Tobe '24, who is in charge of the convocation.

Alberto Salvi, favorite harpist with Madison audiences, is now on a tour of the Southeast, giving a series of fifteen recitals in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

Cyrus E. Dallin, sculptor, a native of Springville, Utah, has promised to do a war memorial for his native city without charge. It will be a female figure 4 ft. 9 in. in height, representing victory.

Freshmen fencers at Harvard will be offered numerals to stimulate interest in the sport.

the Badgers started toward their basket. The short pass consistently brought the ball under the basket, and Gibson, Spooner or Varnay took turns dropping it through the hoop.

Gibson is Star
Captain Gibson, who went into a slump during last week, came completely out of it last night and garnered nine field goals and two free throws before the final whistle blew. His eye for the basket was deadly, and time after time he brought the crowd to its feet with spectacular shots.

Spooner followed Gibson closely, scoring eight field goals and a free throw. His work continued to be the feature of the Badger play, for he is fast, and consistently outwits the enemy defense. Varney, playing his first game for Wisconsin showed up well, getting four field goals and four free throws. Each time he plays he works into the play more smoothly, and looks like a comer for certain.

Defense is Strong

Diebold and Elsom, playing the greater part of the game at the guard positions, presented a formidable defense, allowing the Milliken forwards but little freedom under the basket. Both men are new at their positions, and with more practice may develop into as strong a pair as were Rollie Williams and Gus Tebell.

Milliken, speedy little Milliken forward, starred on the offense for the Decatur team. While he sunk but one field goal, he made good four free throws and time after time started his team on an offensive flash.

ON ALL-WESTERNWisconsin Gets Four Men on Three Teams; Highest in Conference

Martin P. Below, left tackle, captain of the 1923 Wisconsin football team, was chosen all-Western linesman by Walter Eckersall, football critic of the Chicago Tribune and official, well known to Wisconsin followers, in his annual selections made at the close of this season.

Adolph Bieberstein, '24, right guard, was placed at this position on the second all-Western eleven, while Merrill E. Taft, '24, full back, and Russell J. Irish '24, left end, were given places on the third team.

While Wisconsin did not place among the leaders in the percentage column of conference standings, the power of the Badger eleven is shown by the fact that four Cardinal grid men were picked out of the 33 outstanding players of the West. No other Big Ten school, including the champions, Michigan and Illinois, received as many honorary places.

Notre Dame, the Indiana school which will meet Wisconsin at Camp Randall in 1924, equalled the number of Wisconsin men on the mythical elevens by having four candidates awarded positions. Minnesota, the Wolverines, and Illini had three men each on Eckersall's teams, while Ohio State, Chicago, and Iowa were given two places.

The first All-Western team follows:

Position	First Team
Center	Blott, Michigan
Right Guard	Rohrke, Chicago
Right Tackle	Muirhead, Michigan
Right End	Dilwig, Marquette
Quarter Back	Workman, Ohio St
Right Half	Miller, Notre Dame
Full Back	Levi, Haskell

ERROR IN FROSH
AND SOPH MEET,
WILL RUN AGAINTrack Victory Will Be Decided
Wednesday; Now Stands at Tie

Victory in the annual frosh-m sophomore track meet which took place Saturday will not be claimed by either class until the half mile race, postponed because of an error in the running, is run again Wednesday at 4:30 o'clock. This meet will be won by the class whose runner gets first place.

With the freshmen and sophomores tying at 4 1/2 points, the hopes of both classes are set on winning first place in the delayed race. The winner, by bringing in more points than second and third combined, will swing the meet in favor of his class.

Error in Half Mile

In the last meet a student official who was to call off the laps of the half mile race as the runners passed him failed to do so. When the fifth lap was ended without a shot being fired to mark the beginning of the last lap, Goers, sophomore who was leading, slowed up thinking the race was over. Hardy, soph, and Aaron, frosh, who were following him, also turned out.

Some of the remaining runners, hearing the delayed shot, ran another lap. The gun was fired again, and some ran seven laps. The race was called off, and set for Wednesday, when those who ran yesterday will run again.

Expect Fast Race

"Too bad it happened," Mead Burke, track coach, said. "An annex record is likely to be set Wednesday, however, as all the runners will know that the first man to win will decide the meet."

The results of the meet are as follows:

Pole Vault—McGinnis, frosh, and Brown, soph, tied for first on 11 feet; Brown, soph, second, 10 feet, 6 inches.

440 Yard Dash—Schilke, frosh, first, 56 4-5; Gil Smith, soph, second; Frackleton, frosh, and Held, soph, tied for third.

Mile Run—Butz, soph, first, 4:59; Nast, frosh second; Gaudynski, soph third.

Shot Put—Aller, soph, first, 35 feet, 8 inches; Thompson, soph, and Schaefer, soph, tied for second.

40 Yard High Hurdles—McGinnis, frosh, first, 5 3-5; Koehler, soph, second; Zillisch, soph, third.

Two Mile Run—Kubly, soph, first, 10:41; Butz, soph, second; Dicken- son, soph, third.

45 Yard Low Hurdles—McGivern, frosh, first, 5:3; Eisele, frosh, second; Schneider, frosh, third.

Broad Jump—Zillisch, soph, first, 21 feet, 4 inches; McGivern, soph, second; Francis, frosh, third.

Relay race was won by the sophs in 2:21 2-5. The team is composed of Smith, Kerr, Zillisch and Held.

Bandit Captured In

DECATUR, Ill.—Ray Gill, 36, San Antonio, Tex., made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the State Bank of Niantic this morning. When he told Carl Pritchett, cashier, that he did not want to cause any confusion but he wanted the money, and pushed a revolver through the window, Pritchett dropped to the floor, grabbed a revolver and began firing. The bandit returned the fire three times, and then fled only to be captured in an alley.

ROLLIE LIKES HIS WORK AT MILLIKEN

Rollie Williams, Wisconsin's greatest athlete, likes his work of coaching at Milliken college.

"The first few years of coaching are the hardest," he says. "After that things are more systematized and require less work. I have been fairly successful in my first year of coaching considering the material I had and the knocks any coach will get when beginning. If everything turns out all right I will stay at Milliken next year. Prospects for good teams next year are bright as I lose only three men in football and none from the basketball team," said Rollie Williams when asked about his coaching position.

Rollie earned nine W's through hard and conscientious effort, fully deserving the name of Wisconsin's best athlete. Three of these letters were made in football, three in basketball, and three in baseball.

MOORE ARRANGES
BOXING LESSONSBlack Eyes and Cauliflower
Ears Are Not Results,
Says Coach

Because so many upper classmen and men who do not take gym are becoming interested in boxing, Coach Ray Moore has decided to give the period from 5:30 every afternoon to those who wish instruction on the side, or those who are working out for the tournament. Three periods will be given on Friday, from 3:30 to 5 o'clock.

Many students are transferring from general gym classes to boxing and most of the regular classes are filled. Several men students are not reporting for boxing, however, because of the supposition that one has to carry a black eye or a cauliflower ear before one is a first class boxer.

This impression is entirely wrong says Coach Moore, since beginners are not allowed to slug each other and, if by chance a hard bunch should be slipped in it wouldn't do much damage because of the big twelve ounce gloves which are used.

The boxing classes must not be confused in any way with mere pugilistics. All Moore is attempting to do is to instill in those students who are interested, a few of the finer points of the manly art of self defense.

Coolidge Names 3 to Railroad Labor Board

WASHINGTON—President Coolidge will send to the Senate next week appointments of three members of the railroad labor board. Governor Edwin P. Morrow, Kentucky, will be submitted as successor to R. M. Barton. E. F. Grable will be renominated and Horace Baker, who was reappointed by President Harding last Spring, will be up for confirmation.

FROG SUGGESTS NEW PHRASE TO BEARS

"Isn't that the turtle's heart beat?" is the latest thing in slang expression, resulting from an experiment recently performed in the physiology building at the University of California. Due to the shortage of frogs for the experiment, turtles have had to be substituted. A shipment of frogs is on its way from New York, but until these arrive the work must be done on the shellbacks.

TWO SWIM MEETS TO BE HELD IN
TANK THIS WEEKInter-class Contest and Second
Freshman and Varsity
Fray Scheduled

The swimming meet will be held in the tank this week. The interclass meet, will be held Tuesday night. The second will be a return meet between the freshmen and varsity swimmers and will be held Friday night.

The interclass meet is open to all swimmers in the various classes, and any man on the freshman or varsity squad may compete, except veterans who have won their letters. Class numerals will be awarded winners in this contest.

The second meet between the frosh and the varsity promises to be a real contest. The freshmen won the meet last week by the overwhelming score of 47 to 14. The freshmen are determined to show that they had a team of championship calibre.

It is possible that Bennett, Czerwonky, and Koch, varsity men who did not compete in the meet last week will be in suits and in the meet with the yearlings Friday.

In both meets all the events will be held, with the possible exception of the 220 yard free style.

Interest Growing
in Annual Greek
Cinder Path Meet

Interest in the annual interfraternity track meet to be held next Saturday has grown during the past few days with the entrance of several Greek teams in the race.

The entry list will be closed within the next two days, according to Coach Mead Burke, who is in charge of the meet, so that final arrangements may be made. Fraternities intending to enter the meet are urged to sign up at the gym tomorrow.

An array of cups has been selected for the meet. Winners will be awarded medals and cups will be given teams with the highest number of points.

This event is always cause for much interest in the winter track schedule, because of the rivalry between fraternities. Teams which have proved strong in the past few years have suffered through graduation of several men, and indications point toward a fast, closely contested meet.

He is also a professor in Chicago University and founder and head of Chicago Commons.

UNION VODVIL

After an absence of a year, Union Vodvil comes next week end once more for the approval of student patrons.

Each year Union Vodvil has brought a certain amount of criticism from one or two quarters, but this year all such has been precluded by the appointment of an outside coach, a Wisconsin graduate who has come here in the interests of the Vodvil and will undoubtedly present an attraction which is not only unobjectionable but also entertaining.

That vaudeville has a place in drama as much as any other form of the profession will always be maintained by the Cardinal. A certain amount of low comedy and "layman's humor" is always in place and has through the ages been appreciated by the greatest of men and even "highbrows."

President Wilson's favorite form of amusement when he was in office was the vaudeville. It has so much of life in it with its variety, its ups and downs, its good and bad, its breathless speed.

But as for the Union Vodvil, there is much to recommend it beside its dramatic function. In the first place it is the only dramatic activity in the university which is "All University." It bars no type of work, it restricts no group or class. It is rightly called "The only all-university show."

But perhaps the most important point in connection with the Vodvil is that it is run by the Union Board, a student's own organization, and whatever proceeds accrue are turned over to the Memorial Union.

Thus it is that in the Union Vodvil there is an opportunity for dramatic expression and student entertainment at the same time that the ever-growing Memorial Union idea is benefitted in quite a material fashion.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

Why is it that women's magazines and welfare societies today, continually write about "the modern generation's pursuit of elusive excitement"?

A moment's reflection, on the other hand, will indicate that the students of today on all sides are doing the most monotonous and prosaic of things. They are in a rut. It is not so much that the activities themselves are not good or are not exciting, but the monotonous regularity with which the younger generation pursues the same thing every day, would seem to oppose directly all of Puritan's objections.

Today if one student asks another for a date it is understood that a dance is the object. A week end spent in any other way but on a bustling crowded dance hall floor is wasted. A date for the movies, even that, would be a breach of etiquette on a Friday or Saturday evening.

A few years back fraternities used to plan mixed parties now and then with a picnic in mind—a toboggan slide, or a hike around the lake. Today the chapter house has been dedicated to Orcus.

It would seem that if students were really in pursuit of excitement they would look for "something different." A trip to a dingy movie hall in Sun Prairie where kids eat peanuts and cheer for the hero, has infinite possibilities for one Sunday afternoon.

Even going to church might form a diversion for some persons. But who ever heard of "dating" to church on a Sunday evening?

Are there ever more than a hundred or so students who take advantage of Madison's beauties and hike around the lake, picnic on the point, investigate the fish hatchery, see the sunset from Sunset Point?

Wouldn't the individual who got up at five in the morning to start a week end hike to the Kickapoo valley be considered crazy by his fraternity brothers?

And what of that other individual who last year had the nerve to get a date one spring day and then went out on the drive with a book and spent the hour reading aloud?

These things are different.

Their presence in a student's life spells variety and real enjoyment.

Rather than being "jazz hounds" and "excitement chasers" it would seem that the average students are quite the reverse in being apostles of stagnation.

THE EDITOR'S CONVENTION

In a day or two Wisconsin's representative to the Western Conference Editorial convention will have returned from Ann Arbor where the meeting is being held this week end. Undoubtedly he will be filled with ideas and suggestions garnered from the representatives of other college dailies, and undoubtedly he will have contributed to the benefit of other editors.

A convention of this sort is just another indication of the growing business of going to school. It is a healthy sign that colleges are becoming unified in all things and are realizing that they can better themselves by cooperation.

The Cardinal will better from the conference and it is certain that the conference will have bettered itself if it will have worked out some system of communication of news and opinions on matters.

The college dailies are coming to mean more and more in the college life. They should be strengthened by conferences of this sort.

Other Editors Say—

AN ART OF THOUGHT

Following a prolonged period in which all forms of art showed a marked tendency toward general deterioration and decay, largely resultant of the demoralizing influences which diluted refinement and obscured aesthetic taste during the late World War, there is a renewed movement toward the perfection of a new and lasting art. Out of the chaotic realism and futurism of the geniuses whose inspirations were revealed in the midst of wartime bombardments and sieges, a new and beautiful realism, accentuated by a touch of spiritualism, now shows itself on the horizon.

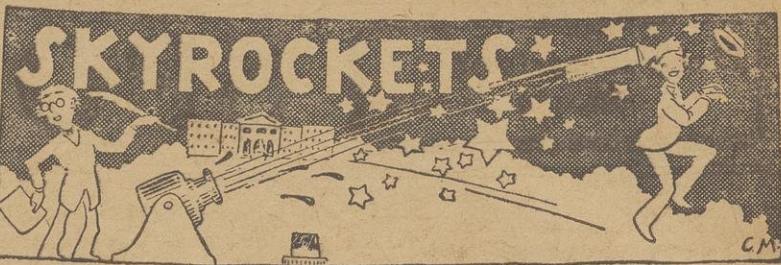

Its reception has already proven an interesting one. Those who were most receptive to the innovations of Russian futurists and their American imitators have been astonished to find the object of their admiration already out of vogue, with hardly a handful of followers. In all fields of artistry has this change of interest been manifested. The public has seen fit to recognize works that are of permanent worth, and to consider but lightly, those sensational "masterpieces" which came and went within the passing of a single day.

In the drama, which after all has been given more extensive attention during the present decade than any other of the arts, these alterations are particularly well illustrated. Action, as such, alone animated the more popular dramatic productions of the four or five years. Thought was totally "in absentia," and only now is beginning to assume its deserved position as a motivating factor in determining the public's estimate of a good play. The riotous color used in inexcusable setting of the futuristic schools has been replaced by appropriate realistic or impressionistic sets designed to fulfill a definite purpose and to convey an idea.

Stuart Walker's presentation of "The Book of Job" was but an instance of the movement in which the potential factors of modern art are working. Perfectly simple in its majestic offering of the most dramatic dialogue of all biblical writings, the play was dominated by thought, merely supplemented by the emotional action of the central character. In its staging principles of the same simplicity and discriminating choice were displayed. Every corner of the set had its contributing effect, and rounded the whole into wonderful impressiveness. Those who desired action alone, who are bored by the necessity for thought, were indeed uncomfortable. They however, will have to acclimate themselves to more involved mental processes, unless willing to relegate themselves to the sanctums of burlesque.—The Michigan Daily.

Henmon and Ross Disagree
With Rand Teacher on Badgers' Purpose

"Scott Nearing's remark is utterly foolish in its insinuation of the purpose for which the great American universities stand," says Professor Henmon, department of education, in commenting on Nearing's statement in which he is said to remark that "at Wisconsin, as well as at other universities throughout the country the students have entered to become gentlemen and ladies, while at the Rand School of Science the students have entered to receive an education." Prof. E. A. Ross does not agree completely with Nearing.

"There are no entrance requirements and those who graduate do not receive a recognized degree at Rand school where Nearing teaches," continued Professor Henmon.

"While the primary purpose of Wisconsin and similar institutions is to give its students a thorough education, the training which it gives them is more gentlemanly and womanly. The quality of gentlemanliness is decidedly worthwhile, and is to be encouraged to the utmost. The faculty here desires that the graduates acquire traits which stamp them as fine men and women," Henmon concluded.

"There is a place in this country for every nature of educational institution. There is a considerable percentage of students here who do not intend or attempt to get the most from their studies," comments Professor Ross, of the department of sociology.

"I should much rather have a boy go to an institution such as Wisconsin than to the Rand school and I should also desire him to have the qualities which typify a gentleman," concludes Ross.

HARD CANDY USED FOR XMAS PARTIES

Shoppers Prefer Chocolates and Hard Sweets to Other Xmas Candies

That people do not want pan candies on Christmas, but prefer either chocolates or hard candy, was the statement made by authorities of both the Chocolate Shop and the Candy Shop. Hard candies are used for stocking fillers and for parties, especially those before Christmas, since they seem to give the feeling of a good old fashioned Christmas, which is lacking in another candy. Almond, brazil nut and peanut brittle, however, are popular at this time also.

Although the manufacture of Christmas candy is later than usual this year, due to the late Thanksgiving, the Candy Shop has already begun its manufacture of holiday candies. Bright red and green lollipops, crimpes, rings, mottos, shavings and candy canes are now on sale. The candy canes come in all sizes from 3 inches to 4 feet. Several tons of this variety of candy is sold every year by the Candy Shop. A "Shut in Basket", an Indian basket filled with candy, fruit and nuts was the means used last year by the Candy Shop to carry the spirit of Yule-tide. This year, fancy satin lined wicker baskets in unusual shapes, filled with chocolates and bonbons, ranging in price from $4 to $21, are being featured.

Chocolate favors for everybody on Christmas morning—cigars in cases for Father, garden tools for the gardener, violins for the musician, automobiles for the tourist, animals for the children, and Santa Clauses, bells, Christmas trees, and lollipops for all, are on sale at the Chocolate Shop. They are wrapped in bright colored radio metal paper, and may be bought separately, in special Christmas boxes, or in stockings for the kiddies.

It is expected that there will be quite a demand for carmel apples during the holidays. As a rule, the fad for them dies out before now, but fad for them dies out before now, but this year they have been unusually popular, and this popularity will probably tide over Christmas.

Students Flock To Photographers As Christmas Nears

To get audience with a Madison photographer is about as possible as trying to see President Coolidge. The rage of photographs for Christmas gifts among university students along with their usual characteristic of putting off everything to the last second, has placed inestimable value on his time.

Both S. G. Liesman, of the Badger studio, and O. F. De Long found it impossible Saturday to see anyone who did not have an appointment. They worked every minute of the day, not even stopping for lunch, to fulfill their orders before Christmas. Several assistants were kept busy helping customers to select proofs, style of finishing and frames.

Approximately 70 students have had pictures taken by Hone and McKillop in the past two months, and the average order includes a dozen photographs. Of those who had pictures taken there for the Badger, 95 have had more than the one finished.

BEAUTY AIDS TO COMPLETE GIFTS

Everywoman Must Untie Her Beautifiers on December 25

"Christmas won't be Christmas without any presents," grumbled Jo in "Little Women." And Christmas never seems Christmas to any woman if she doesn't untie a supply of beautifiers on Christmas morning.

Although some prefer to choose their own special brand of powder, daintily scented, French powder is quite an acceptable gift, especially if it comes in one of those attractive beauty boxes the shops are showing. I saw a lovely "La Boheme Arly" set containing talcum powder, face powder, and perfume. It was in a satin lined box, priced $5. Pharmacies are carrying an unusually good line of beauty boxes. One for $4, contains a blue leatherette Gollewos compact, and two perfumers for the purse. The very nicest one I saw was a Karess beauty box. It was gorgeously lined with peacock satin, and the powder box had a peacock satin top. Price $6.75.

Another shop has two unique powder boxes. One is of alabaster ($3.25) decorated with a quaint French design on the top (there is a jewel box to match), and the other is an old fashioned miss whose voluminous ruffled skirts cover a powder box.

While on the subject of powder, by the looks of the shops, a shiny nose on Christmas would be mere carelessness. I have never seen so many compacts in my life. Each store has a large and entrancing supply. One shop has a stock of compacts in the shape of little bags, which are just the thing to carry to holiday parties. They are of exquisite velvets, brocades, gold lace, beadwork, and are trimmed with dainty handmade flowers. In the smaller ones, there is room for powder, and in the larger ones for rouge, lipstick and eyebrow pencil in addition. They range in price from $1.50 to $4.25. Decorated metal compacts, are thick or thin, round or square, and in all colors from delicate baby blue, to deep orange. Some are in plain colors, some trimmed with a conventional design, others burst into bloom, and still others boast of dancing Spanish señoritas, willowy Japanese maidens, or perky baby dolls. All are different, all are unique; so one might well express one's personality through one's dorine.

Others are some exquisite perfumers. The one I liked the best was of cut glass with a pale blue cloisonné stopped, $6.25, with its replica in miniature for $1. There is a cunning brown china elephant perfume container carrying a perfume spray on his back. Perfume seems to be quite the thing this year, especially perfumers to fit in handbags. These range from 40 cents to $6.00, and are of lacquer, mother-of-pearl, cut glass, and ivory. Gourds are still good, and are in more fantastic shapes than ever. A little nest of four in a satin lined box sells for $1.50. They are not merely in the shape of little bottles, as last year, but come as animals, dice, or are decorated and hung on a black ribbon for neckwear.

Ancient Chinese embroidery, carved ivory from the Ming and Ch'ing dynasties; T'ang and Ming pottery; bronzes of the Chow and Han period are among the best exhibits of the Chinese Exhibition at Newark, N. J.

Many nicknacks such as cigar Choice jewelry, in certain lines, is popular as gifts, especially rings and fine pencils. In some cases watches were purchased as presents; but it is more often that the father buys the watch for the son.

With Christmas approaching people are on the lookout for gifts to young men too.

Many articles in clothing stores have interested buying powers and in most cases exchanged places with it. Plaid and cashmere scarfs of varied design are very good sellers. Dressing gowns, handkerchiefs, shirts, sweaters, belt buckles, and even studs and cuff links seem to be the popular choices.

Sporting goods are in a great demand as gifts. Hunting outfits, including guns, suits, rackets, boots and other necessary articles for hunting expeditions are families

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE BUYERS

MANY GIFTS TO BUY FOR MOTHER

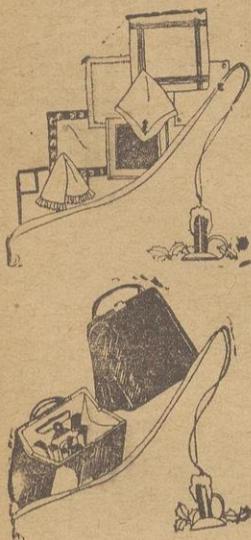

Four Corners of Earth Contribute Suggestions of Varied Nature

All the countries of the world seem to have combined to furnish beautiful presents for mother this year. There are vases from Assyria, Persian art pottery and Pompeian china ware.

The Persian is a bit more striking than the others, for the odd blue tones on the white strike a distinctly new note. Another lovely thing is the all-over cretonne pattern in bridge tea sets, which are the newest article in English imported ware.

Hearth brooms sound unattractive—but the new ones are novel. They have long curved handles and are made of Chinese colored grasses. They are priced at $1.95.

The telephone has a new accessory which mother would like to have. It is a round parchment shield that hides the ugliness of the instrument. It is on a mahogany pedestal which revolves so that the phone may be answered without removing the shield.

Stunning new candle-holders are seen in crystal. They have the pendants of cut crystal that our grandmothers cherished so. One especially beautiful set of amber with crystal pendants costs $15.50.

A new idea is the plum-pudding package. A pudding sufficient to serve four persons is packed in an attractive dish and tied in a Christmas manner.

Gloves this season make a fine present for they are unusually attractive. One of the new pairs of brown with deep tan cuffs is enticing.

There are dozens of other things too—book-ends, tea-sets, travelling bags, lingerie, manicure sets, perfume, serving plates and umbrellas. And the ever-useful handkerchief is as popular as always. It is round, with ruffly edges, or square with net points, or even the "yard-wide" affairs of chiffon that are said to be the latest thing.

Christmas Recess
Dec. 19 to Jan. 3;
Period Same as '22

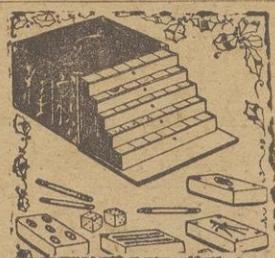

Christmas vacation this year will be no longer and no shorter than the holiday recess of last year. Classes will be discontinued at noon on December 19 and will resume on the morning of January 3, while a year ago the vacation period was from the noon of December 20 to January 4.

In 1921 school closed for only 12 days, reopening January 3. However, at Christmas time of the year before nearly three weeks vacation was given—the last classes before the holidays being held on the sixteenth. In 1919 there was a 12 day recess.

Going back ten years, we find that school closed only two days before Christmas but did not resume work until January 6. The fourteen day vacation was just one 24 hours shorter than our recess this year. In 1903 the records show that the students were permitted to stay at home for twelve days.

Play Mah Jong

Incense, curling and blue, cushions on the glossy, polished floor, heavy drapes hanging low, a lamp, perhaps, mellow and warm, pajamas of thick, black silk—and no Mah Jong? She, fanciful and esthetic, wants one so!

PACKAGES ASSUME GAY WRAPPINGS

Colored Paper and Sealing Wax Make Bundles Attractive

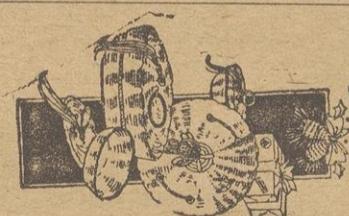

Christmas packages will be very gay this year, according to indications given in the shops and in women's magazines. There is more interest in dressing up gifts than before, and now it is almost as important to have your package wrapped prettily and appropriately, as to have the gift suitable and expressive of the donor's sentiment.

Green and red tissue paper will be used a great deal this year, according to the stores that specialize in such things, leading even the ever-present white in popularity. Metal seals will add the finishing touch and keep the corners of your wrapping from parting company. Gold and silver cord and ribbon in all shades are necessary of course, in getting one's packages ready for the Christmas tree.

The shops are showing novel folders for various purposes. Some of these with appropriate verses, are intended for holding checks, which it must be admitted make rather interesting gifts. Others are for holding gift-handkerchiefs, gloves, merchandise-certificates, and other small gifts.

A new idea in Christmas package was given in Dennison's store in Chicago, not long ago, the use of hard red sealing wax and a seal in place of the usual paper or metal sticker in the form of a seal. To make a truly effective package, heavy white paper should be used instead of tissue paper, and strong red twine, instead of ribbon or ornamental cord. This method is especially adaptable to the wrapping of large packages.

Baskets—All Sizes

Baskets are the greatest help in keeping things together and in order as well as being most ornamental—it's no wonder that they are such popular Christmas gifts. Sweetgrass baskets are still fractions of a la mode.

THIRTEEN DAYS LEFT TO SHOP

Lists Must Be Compiled and Checked Over at Once

Thirteen days of shopping—so long, so long!

Sprigs of mistle-toe and wreaths of holly, red crepe paper and green ribbon, glistening tinsel and sparkling snow. Christmas cries itself along State street and around the square.

Coeds sit down to prepare their lists—but chew their pencils. College men herd to conspire about "that Christmas gift"—their thoughts are deep, but their smoke is thicker.

And so fond sons and daughters drag themselves to bed to dream and do. They dream.

And seven more days of shopping and three more days of school.

Apple-taffys are consumed, love letters written, laundry cases mailed. Show windows along State street and around the square gleam all in vain. The days go by.

Noon whistles blow and one and all whirl away in "yellows" for holidays and home—and Christmas shopping.

But idle time, idle time!

Panic-stricken they awake on Monday morn, no packages to seal, no gifts to mail. They rush downtown, they invade the stores; they wait ten-deep in line. They push, are pushed; they choke, are choked; and curse their wasted time.

Bells and poinsettias, Christmas seals and Christmas tags, green leaves and red berries. Christmas cries itself along State street and along the square.

Price and Design in Christmas Cards Offer Great Array

Holiday greeting cards are more beautiful than ever this year. Every art shop, flower store, candy shop, and corner drug store offers a wide variety of Christmas and New Year's cards that range in price from 5 to 50 cents.

Some of the shops are offering very lovely designs for personal engraved cards. The art companies have made a specialty of these cards this season and have had some of the best artists obtainable to originate the designs. The demand for parchment cards is unusually great this year, though the 5 and 10 cents cards are still the most popular of all.

Sororities and fraternities are using both crested and engraved cards and many of the personal cards are stamped with the crest or with the Greek name.

And not only are the cards beautiful, but the traditionally plain envelope has also become gay and colorful this season. All the new envelopes are lined with the Christmas colors—red and gold and green, and everyone is using sealing wax to complete the gorgeous effect.

Dainty gift calendars are taking the place of many New Year's cards. Tiny framed picture and calendar combinations are something new and promise to be very popular. They serve as a small gift as well as a greeting card, and come in pretty gift boxes.

Make Your Gifts

With a deft needle and a bit of ribbon, sew into those gifts some Christmas cheer. Milady's slipper, garter or cap may be budded with roses, pink or blue.

SPORT TOGS MAKE ADMIRABLE GIFTS

Sweaters, Scarfs, and Knickers to Hang on the Tree

To live in a snow swept country, where only sport clothes are appropriate for a day time costume, the fortunate northern girl has at her command some of the most becoming outfits ever designed.

ed. The field of sweaters, scarfs, golf hose, and knickers offers a solution to the Christmas gift problem. Last year's outfit will never satisfy the college girl.

The sport hose is taking the place of the low oxford this winter, and with it is worn a short, weight golf hose, rolled over the top of the shoe. Another pair of longer hose is also worn with these. The shorter hose are in very brilliant colors, especially reds and blues, while the longer ones are in the more neutral shades, trimmed in colored designs to match their shorter companions.

For winter, the designers are emphasizing black and white. In one attractive costume the short hose were of black while the longer ones were of white, trimmed in a queer design of black. Black knickers and a black and white plaid flannel shirt were worn. These heavy "lumber camp" shirts in large pads are among the newest features for outdoor sports wear.

Instead of the close fitting sport hat, the up-to-date girl is wearing a heavy silk handkerchief, in colors to match her outfit tied gypsy style around her head. Of course the scarf around her neck, and the one around her waist are heavily designed, and even her gloves carry out the chosen color scheme.

PRACTICAL GIFTS SERVE ALL YEAR

Many Attractive Things For Students Are Being Shown

Practical gifts for Christmas—it sounds prosaic perhaps, but you'll change your mind when you think of the day-by-day convenience of such things, and look over the attractive displays.

Stationery—And the morning after, the postman will hand you one of these envelopes, perhaps a soft, gray Frayedge or a square one of white Japanese linen, depending upon what you select that gray, Peember afternoon back in Madison—with Her handwriting, graciously acknowledging your gift.

Frayedge in the long, unfolded sheets that all girls "just love," $1.25. Old Hampshire Vellum, a white, rich, thick paper, $3. Japanese Linen, $1.35.

Eversharp—When he swears, he always breaks a point; and when he breaks a point, he always swears. Get that pencil and be "your brother's keeper." $1.00 to $5.00.

Fountain Pens—Scratch, shake, blot! No more of that with a little gold Conklin or a sturdy, manly Parker that, like a camel in a desert, never needs filling. Parker Duofold Jr., red rubbed tipped with black, $5. Conklin gold pencil and pen in attractive boxes, $9.50.

Desk Sets—Whether it be a bronze one with an intriguing Egyptian design or one delicately enamelled in feminine pink or blue, it will be just the thing to grace that little desk where notes are written and castles wrought. The prices of these sets range from $5.50 to $22.50.

Pen Knives—Dad will love a penknife with a Wisconsin seal. With that in his hand and his college son's fat, scrawly letter in the other, he will be good natured no matter what you write. $1.

Sealing Wax Outfits—Does she make beads or does she seal letters? The ways of women are solved in these sealing wax kits which may be used for either purpose. $1.25 to $1.50.

style around her head. Of course the scarf around her neck, and the one around her waist are heavily designed, and even her gloves carry out the chosen color scheme.

Lawrence V. Dougherty, 28, Eau Claire, who officials say gave the "tip" which led to the arrest of Edward J. Sailstad at St. Helena, Calif., on Wednesday, is critically ill at a local hospital. Hospital attendants Saturday declared that his condition is serious. He underwent an operation for appendicitis on Nov. 27. His recovery is still doubtful, it was said. PLUMBERS FINISH TESTS AT CAPITOL

Statistics Show Plant Consumes 30 Tons of Coal a Day

A 28 hour test of the capital heating and power plant was completed yesterday noon by 212 senior engineers taking Steam and Gas engineering. Prof. G. L. Larson and Benjamin Spieth supervised the test which is the most complete test ever conducted by the Steam and Gas Engineering Department.

It was found that the plant consumed 30 tons of coal in a day and that 240 tons of water was converted into steam during the same time. The plant supplies all the heat and electricity used in the capitol. It pumps 500,000 gallons of water daily from Lake Monona.

The students worked in three hour shifts taking all the data themselves. The results of the test will be calculated by each student and included in a report in the same way that commercial test would be computed and reported.

Progressives Seated On Big Committees

Badgers Given Important Places In House Organization

Washington Bureau
The Capital Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Wisconsin Progressives today won another round in their tilt with the regular organization of the house when Rep. Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn was given a place on the house rivers and harbors committee and Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton went on the house postoffice committee at the opening meeting of the Republican committee on committees. Both members had applied for the committees to which they were named, which are among the ten most important in the house organization. Other members of the Wisconsin delegation retained the committee assignments which they held in the last house including James A. Frear of Hudson, Ways and Means; Edward E. Browne of Waupaca, foreign affairs; J. D. Beck, Viroqua, Labor; Florian A. Lampert, Oshkosh, chairman of patents; Henry A. Cooper, Racine, foreign affairs; Edward Voigt, Sheboygan, agriculture; J. M. Nelson, of Madison, roads.

New members of the Wisconsin delegation other than Peavy and Schneider will receive their assignments during the Saturday sessions. Rep. James A. Frear, Wisconsin member of the committee on committees failed to land in a place on the interstate and foreign commerce committee for John C. Schaefer of Wauwatosa, though this was due to lack of a vacancy than to opposition to the Progressives. No demand was made by Frear for increased Wisconsin representation on ways and means committee.

Peavy will work for greater improvement of the Milwaukee harbor as well as those at Ashland and Superior in his own district.

"Men, Maidens, and Mantillas" Gives Charm, Not Facts

"Men, Maidens and Mantillas" by Stella Burke May, The Century Co., New York, 1923, $3.50 at the Book Corner.

H. D. S.

It is one of the most difficult tasks in the world to write a pleasant review of a pleasant book. Most pleasant books have some poor points, and very few of them outstanding passages, but they all have a certain quality that pleases and makes a harsh review seem unfair and a too complimentary one too partial.

"Men, Maidens, and Mantillas" by Mrs. Burke May is one of those books. After we had read it, we wondered what we should say about it.

Many unfavorable points were in our mind that we wanted to bring out, but after thinking over the book for a little while, we decided to forget the things that we didn't like, and which were really not important enough to make a big fuss about, but to think about the charm and pleasantness of the book.

Mrs. Burke May knows how to write. There is no question about it, and we wish that she had written her book more as a novel than as a travelog, as she has done.

And then we also wish she hadn't used so many Spanish words and phrases. It is one of the characteristic of people who do not know too much Spanish to use Spanish morsels wherever they can, and it rather annoys the readers who do not know Spanish, and also those who do, because some phrases are just a little bit out of place.—But here we are knocking the book, and we wanted to make this a pleasant review.

The thing that we liked very well about the book, is that it is not a travel book describing scenery, but that it emphasizes the people, especially the women of Latin America.

The bits about the journey on the steamers are exquisitely charming, and excellently well observed and described. All of us who have taken trips on steamers have observed such types as Mrs. Burke White sets down, the vamp, the baide who is going down to meet her fiance and in the last moment changes her mind and marries the first mate, and the young, sentimental student who so lavishly gives away his fraternity pin, to receive it back the next morning, after the charm of the tropical moon has subsided and the sun has begun once more to glare down upon the ocean.

The first part of the book, especially the chapters concerning Mexico all well written. We believe that Mrs. Burke May has caught the happy-go-lucky atmosphere of the Latin-American countries, and she has been able to portray it very pleasantly. Of course, if you intend to go to Latin America some day, don't take the book as your guide. Mrs. Burke May has been able to inform herself very well during her trip, and she has used all of her information as fact in her travelog.

The book written from the point of view of a typical American club and society woman, a little over-optimistic, but very charmingly indeed. You will enjoy it.

A new piano suite by Charles Makefield Cadman, entitled "Hollywood" will soon be off the press. It consists of four parts: "June on the Hill," "Twilight at Sycamore Nook," and "Easter Dawn at Hollywood Bowl." "To a Comedian" is in the form of a burlesque on the spirit of the times and is Cadman's conception of artistic jazz.

"In Greenbrook," by Merritt P. Allen, is a story of village life in the Vermont hills in which President Coolidge was born and raised. The book is described by some publishers as a sort of "Main Street" of New England.

The Clean Books League in New York city is planning a new bill to be brought before the next session of the legislature. The League is designed to weed out those books which are a menace to our homes and firesides.

Connor's Breezy Romance Antidote For Cramming

"Oh rot, Peg," Paul cast sheepish eye round the group as he disengaged himself from the slings and arrows. "Don't be a silly. What's a fling from a horse? Lots of chaps get that."

This from the hero of "The Gaspards of Pine Croft," when he is eight years old.

Ralph Connor has again come to refresh our realism-ridden minds with an amiable novel which is saturated with invigorating mountain air and luscious romantic incidents of the Harold Bell Wright order. You recall the "all's well with the world," feeling you had when you regrettably closed the cover on "Glengarry School Days," "The Doctor," "The Sky Pilot," and "Corporal Cameron"? That was back in the days of your sentimental idealism, of course, but you will enjoy recovering that old comfortable thrill again.

Paul Gaspard is a delightful addition to our host of unblemished, unspoiled-by-the-world heroes.

Through him Mr. Connor wants to show us a tremendous struggle of a young man against the consequences of his father's folly. It would be easy to face anything if a person had any three of Paul's virtues. Both his father and mother had unusual attributes, which exactly complemented each other. Paul inherited all the good points of both and none of the handicaps. Under such a condition, what's a little thing like a twenty-five thousand dollar debt of honor?

Paul has the super-sensitive artistic temperament, and an intensely religious character. His physical strength and prowess make him the terror of evil-doers. His mental acumen is uncanny. His will-power is unfailing. As a musician he holds everyone spell-bound, makes sinners weep, and all that sort of thing. He runs off a sunset, gurg-

Talented London String Quartet Gives Second Madison Concert

The London String Quartet will return to Madison this week to give music-fans their second opportunity this year of hearing the most exquisite type of string music presented by the four skilled musicians who compose this quartet.

Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, in the auditorium of Music hall, the London String Quartet will give a program of chamber music, under the auspices of the university school of music.

The quartet met with enthusiastic approval from the Madison music public when they played in the city on the evening of March 14.

Their evident popularity with their audience brought about organization responsible for their first appearance here.

James Levey, first violin with the quartet, was ill at the time of the earlier concert, and Arthur Beckwith of the English Philharmonic quartet substituted for him. Mr. Levey is again in his position and will appear with the group in this concert.

H. Waldo Warner, player of the viola, is a composer of popular phantasies. A recent composition by this musician is "The Pixy Ring," a fantastic, melodious selection which introduces unusual and striking musical effects. This phantasy acquired instant popularity when the quartet presented it here adding to the popularity which this and other works of the composer have had wherever they have been introduced.

Thomas W. Petre second violinist and C. Warwick-Evans, cellist, are the other two members of the quartet. Each of the musicians is an artist in his own right, and together they form a finely balanced musical group which plays good music, and plays it superbly.

These players will undoubtedly receive an enthusiastic welcome from those who have heard them before, in Madison or elsewhere.

"If music like last night's is the outcome of the English invasion let them come again and come often, they will be welcome," wrote Redfern Mason in the San Francisco Examiner after the four Britons played in the Golden Gate city, and played in the Golden Gate city, and the thoughts of Madison music lovers who attended the former concert, echo his.

Japanese Vanity Cases Would Make Trunks Superfluous

The women of Japan carry more complete vanity cases than the American girls do if those displayed with innumerable other articles by Mrs. F. C. Middleton, State street, are examples.

The cases contain three combs, each for a different purpose in perfecting milady's coiffure, a toothbrush, a soap dish, a powder and paint box, and a powder puff, which greatly resembles the barber's shaving brush. The cases are covered with silk beautifully embroidered with gold and silver thread.

This is just one of the many types of articles displayed. The porcelain Japanese God of happiness with his rich robes and money bags, is surrounded by modern cigarette cases and ash trays of lacquer painted with gold and silver leaf. His smiling face looks down upon necklaces of every type: mother-of-pearl, carved bone and ivory, silver, and enamel which are displayed on tied-and-died scarfs of odd and unusual designs.

A fisherman's kimono is slung over a chair. The kimono boasts a 12 inch border of stenciled Japanese figures. Nearby cloissons vases, napkin rings, match boxes, and salt and pepper shakers vie for honors among each other in their beauty.

The scent of incense attracts attention to a table upon which rest place cards whose decorations are water color designs cut out of rice paper and pasted on a fine grade of linen.

Japanese prints and calendars, hair nets in artistically designed envelopes, tiny umbrellas and fans for favors, carved and painted ivory book marks, and lucky statuettes; even honeyed figs for the sweet tooth can be obtained.

Mrs. F. C. Middleton has been in Japan for the last three years. She was in Yokohama at the time of the earth quake. The display includes almost everything imaginable in the line of Chinese and Japanese novelties.

Perfect heroes don't take well with us moderns, as Ralph Connor knows. He always doles out one sin to every hero.

"The Gaspards of Pinecroft" is running over with humor, with human interest, and with the spirit of the great, clean outdoors. It gives clever repartee, and speeches, honey sweet, as well as some which are obviously made with desire for theatrical effect.

There is one remarkable thing about this book. You needn't worry about how things are going to turn out. If Paul is there, everything will be alright. There are lots of exciting crises in the story—hair-breadth escapes, momentous decisions, and all that.

A truly delightful book. Don't read it just now, though. Save it for the week after final exams. Let it be a salve to your painful self-renunciation. When your weary train is about to burst with cramming, let Ralph Connor lead you into the cool, breezy heights of the Canadian Rockies; and let Paul's smooth philosophy sooth the aches and pains of this dreary world. For complete mental relaxation—read "The Gaspards of Pinecroft."

The Musee of Rouen has added to its wealth of famous collections a whole room of portraits by Jacques Emile Blanche, who has done nothing but portraits of his friends.

Painters and print makers of Great Britain and France are reviving past honors in America. Marshall Field and Company, Ackermanns and the Art Institute are displaying their exhibits.

Joseph Conrad, novelist, wrote the foreword to Mr. Thomas Beer's biography of Stephen Crane. In it he describes his short acquaintance with Crane, which quickly ripened into full friendship because the men were tuned in exactly the same key.

Books and Things—Cabbages—Kings—as pencil by Ever Sharp

Sinclair Lewis left his "Main Street" some time ago for the other side of the Atlantic, and now word comes from London that he has prepared the first draft of a new novel which will be out in 1925. It's quite a time for Lewis enthusiasts to wait for the next work. The author expects to have the final draft off within the next six months why he does not expect to let out the publication until 1925 is a question.

Lewis has taken an apartment in Kensington and seems to be enjoying the English Metropolis immensely. Perhaps he may come out sometime with a satire on our cousins across the sea. What the theme of his new novel is remains a secret.

For several months he has been journeying on the continent, spending much of his time in Paris and Italy.

Have you ever read Sir James Barrie's rectorial address called "Courage"? If you haven't you should. It's on sale now at the Book Corner in convenient booklet form, nicely bound.

The Glasgow rectorial address was made this year by John Galsworthy and appeared in the Living Age a couple of weeks ago. Both addresses are splendid pieces of work, the former perhaps more scholarly than the latter, in spite of the mixed metaphors and slight grammatical absurdities which appeared in it. But a youngster, they say, should not harp on the mistakes of his elders so—sh-h-h.

"Courage" especially is a fine challenge to our generation, sympathetic, humorous, straight from the shoulder. Better read it.

Have you noticed that Conrad's "The Rover" now heads the list of best-sellers? Verily we are a Conrad loving people. Verily also, Conrad knows how to write. Of course, it doesn't always mean everything because a book tops the best-sellers list. "Main Street" did that much longer than "Babbitt" and consider how much finer a book the latter is than the former.

Just been reading "Maria Cheddaile." Perhaps you gasp thinking that surely one who professes to be a book columnist should have read that long ago. Well, you're right in your conclusion but wrong in your premise. Anyhow, it's surprising that this story received such hearty applause on its advent because it doesn't seem like a novel that would be popular in America.

It's—well, the only thing I can think of in justifying the above statement is that the novel wouldn't make much of a movie and any novel that won't make into a good movie wouldn't be the kind that the majority of Americans would like, I should think.

It does make into a good novel, though, as far as being a vivid picture. In fact it is probably one of the most vivid pictures that ever came out of the novel.

It's hard to imagine any American author writing anything like it, don't you think?

The Chinese editor's letter turning down a manuscript didn't materialize this week. I'll confess, it's my fault that you can't read it today. But it'll keep.

It's amazing, the number of book columns that are being run in newspapers these days. Practically every sheet from the Podunk Times to the Tokio Gazette is printing a daily or weekly line on books—mostly a weekly line of bunk, perhaps. Anyway, such columns are becoming quite the thing and simply because conventionalism is more or less blameworthy this column may be discontinued. It's being considered seriously for more than that one reason.

"The Eighth Wonder and Other Stories," by A. S. M. Hutchinson, author of "This Freedom" and "If Winter Comes", has recently appeared in book form. All of the stories included in it have appeared in various periodicals.

Cake molds which were used in all Germanic countries during the seventeenth century are being shown at the Art Institute of Chicago. The artistic designs and great skill with which they are executed lend interest to the collector.
