UNIVERSITY "Y" MEMBERS TO HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

Prominent Speakers on Pro- gram—300 Increase in Membership

Stitt Wilson, principal speaker for the Religious convocation to be held next week, and Howard Beaver, recently returned from Mesopotamia, where he has been for the last six years, will be the speakers at the annual membership banquet of the university Y. M. C. A. this Thursday. The subject of Mr. Wilson's address will be, "The Opportunity of the University Man for Community Service," while the address of Mr. Beaver will be on his experiences in the foreign countries.

It is planned to run the banquet in the "Y" cafeteria, with the whole basement reserved for the evening. This provides accommodations for nearly 400 men.

The University Y. M. C. A. now has a membership on the campus of over 800 men, 300 new men having joined in the last two weeks. Already several organizations associated with the "Y" have asked for blocks of reserved seats in order that they may attend in a body.

The banquet will start at 6 o'clock sharp. The price has been fixed at 75 cents per plate.

FOURTH OF JULY

Chinese Students Here Celebrate the Birth of Their Republic

Although the unusual temperature may have reminded many of the American famous holiday, few realized yesterday that a certain group of students were celebrating their "Fourth of July."

But it was a gala occasion for the Chinese students of the university, for they observed the ninth anniversary of the birth of the Chinese republic. Although many miles from their native land they celebrated the day with patriotic enthusiasm.

Among the new Chinese students who helped in the celebration were L. H. Muller Kung who is a direct descendant in the 77th generation of Confucius, the famous Chinese philosopher of 478 B. C., and Y. C. Shou who has been private secretary to Sun Wen the first president of China.

The Chinese Students' club sponsored the festivities. In the morning a group picture was taken and in the afternoon there was a motor trip around the city. The big events took place last night in the city Y. M. C. A., when a program, genuinely oriental and conducted almost wholly in Chinese, was given.

This year the Chinese Students' club has 34 members. Two years ago there were only nine members while last year there were 23. Several have come here this year from other American universities and about 15 have come directly from Chinese institutions.

DEANS TO SPEAK AT VESPERS TODAY

"Standards" is to be the subject of Dean S. H. Goodnight's address this afternoon at the Y. W. C. A. vespers in Lathrop parlors at 4:30. Dean F. Louise Nardin will also talk to "A Pioneer College Woman." A large number of girls are urged to attend these meetings.

Long Forward Passes Gain Ground for Richards' Men

Scoring one touchdown in the first quarter and three in the last, the Badgers defeated the Michigan Aggie eleven in the last preliminary game of the season yesterday afternoon at Camp Randall by a score of 27 to 0.

The Aggies put up a surprise game, especially on defense. Their tackling was unusually good and their line was solid. More than once they formed a stone wall which held the Badgers without a gain.

It was not until the latter part of the first quarter that Coach Richards' men were able to score and after that not another touchdown was made until the last period. Then the constant battering began to tell on the Michigan men and the Badgers put the ball across the line three times.

Passes Give Gains

The Wisconsin team relied to a large degree upon the use of end runs and long forward passes for most of the big gains. All the touchdowns but one were either directly or indirectly results of forward pass plays.

The first score was made by Knapp, the second by Elliott, and the last two by Holmes. Weston played a stellar game at left end, working to perfection with Barr and Davey in receiving passes and doing effective defensive playing. Elliott and Williams made more gains than any other men.

The Curious Cub

All questions asked by this Cub are designed to be of popular campus interest and will be asked of students or persons connected with student life, picked more or less at random.

QUESTION ASKED TODAY
"What do you think of the cafeteria situation at Wisconsin?"

Miss Brown, proprietor of College Refectory: We are doing all in our power to bring down prices. But while we are doing this the students must be patient. Wages are higher now, to a great extent, than ever before. Rents are enormous and gas and electricity are in the same proportion. We realize that potatoes and a few other articles have gone down, but not until there is a decrease in these larger productive costs can we see any appreciable decrease in our selling prices. We cater to the best and buy only the best, and believe the students appreciate this fact. Nevertheless, we will do all in our power toerman, head of the Classical lan to be officially announced.

Miss Esther Stovell: The cafeteria system on the campus possesses many excellent qualities and yet there is room for improvement. In the majority of places that I have visited the food has been very good, but the prices certainly warranted this. In the majority of places there should be more table room and having to stand in a line nearly a block long is unnecessary. It seems to me the system of a double line could and should be employed by all cafeterias. Cold weather will certainly not find such a line in acquiescence with the laws of health and comfort. It is for these reasons that I am in favor of a system of cafeterias run by the university strictly for its students.

Mr. Arthur Frost: Prices at university cafeterias are unreasonably high. It doesn't seem to me that there prices can be justified in any manner. Because of the scarcity of cafeterias, students are forced to attend the one nearest them and pay the price asked. I think it is

Mrs. Armstrong (frantically awakening husband)—John! there's someone in the house.

Mr. Armstrong (sleepily)—No, dear. It's the baby falling asleep.

WE anticipate with interest the arrival of the several Frosh tickets. Their deadly enthusiasm is tres interessant.

Publicity

Dear Ed—

Did you notice that the Phi Kaps had their window screens off the other day. When asked why they tried to put it off by saying they were to be painted, but in reality they were taken off to give the poor flies, which had been cooped up in the house all summer an airing.

a case of high prices because of the scarcity and necessity of the article. I see no reason why the university could not take over the entire cafeteria system and furnish students with prices that are just and fair.

Arnold Perstein—It seems to me that food prices in local cafeterias are too high. The owners can, and in fact have, given valid reasons for this abnormal condition although a close study of market conditions shows that there is still room for a big slice downward. I am glad that the whole matter has been thrown open to general discussion. It shows that students interest is running high, which simply means that no cafeteria caring at all for student trade will lose the opportunity to cut prices when conditions warrant. If they do this we ought to give more thought to the proposal relative to the university running all of them on a cost basis.

THE YEAR-BOOK WITH A MISSION

THE Year-Book with a Mission, the 1922 Badger! Surely every student has heard much of it during the past week.

The avowed mission of the Badger is to promote a perpetual understanding and friendship between the state and the university; to show the mutual benefit of harmony and co-operation between these two great institutions; to portray in its true light their interdependence; to crush forever the insidious and pernicious anti-university propaganda that has swept the state and even gone beyond its borders. The only weapon of attack used by the Badger will be a true and accurate statement of fact.

The state and the university, one and inseparable—that is the aim of the Year-Book with a Mission.

The state gives continuous being to the university, and the university, in turn, remits life to the state. The state has vast expectations of its university, and these expectations the university has met and exceeded in its various departments.

Agriculture, with its buildings clustered on the west end of the campus, determines the progressive success of state-wide farming. Scientific studies, investigations, and experiments to better agricultural conditions are constantly carried on. Trained experts are constantly endeavoring to solve the farmers' problems.

From the courses in commerce and in economics go forth men and women who will shape the future policies of trade and industry in Wisconsin.

The Law school furnishes the state with administrators of justice and with men who formulate the will of the people into laws.

The Course in Journalism sends forth each year men and women destined to play an important role in the moulding of public opinion and in the securing of an enlightened public mind.

The College of Engineering and the various courses in chemistry, physics, geology, and the other sciences supply men who are to better the material structure of the state—men who build our railroads, supply processes to our factories, and search the very heart of the earth for means of helping our citizens.

The new four-year medical course will, before a great while, give back to the state persons who will safeguard the public health and who will lessen human ills.

Thus, one might go through the entire list of all the colleges and departments.

Wisconsin may be likened to a great triumphal arch formed by two curves: one representing the state; the other its progress through education. The whole structure would crumble were these parts not cemented to support one another by a key-stone of co-operative understanding and appreciation.

The 1922 Badger has recognized this interdependence of state and university and has appreciated the value of understanding and co-operation. To the attainment of such good will, it has dedicated its efforts. To refute, with truth and unbiased fact, those who malign our university, the 1922 Book has been conceived in its present form.

It is truly a Year-Book with a Mission.

THE CAMPUS ROMEOS

IT too often happens in the ordinary run of college life that students really want to study but find themselves unable to do so. Sometimes a book is missing, on other occasions the "lible" is closed, and on still other choice times a pen goes dry. Yet, even on some quiet evenings when the elements and the stress of class work bring us to our sanctums filled with an earnest desire to get down to business the latest addition to the role of campus pests inadvertently makes his appearance.

Everybody on the hill knows the campus Romeo. He is the boy who is so wrapped up in musical appreciation that he has to let the rest of the world know about it. He delights in gathering his cohorts and picking only those hours most conducive to study to peddle his wares. At times some socially engrossed co-ed applauds. Friend Romeo takes this as his key to continue much to the disgust of the majority of students and townspeople within hearing distance.

A little serenading goes very well at times. But evidently Romeo, or better still, "Rummeo," evidently knows not the meaning of little. He hammers away on his banjo, puffs voluminously on his saxaphone, or abuses his violin until he becomes so tired that continuing would be nothing short of self punishment. That certainly is a long time, as thousands of victims can doubtless testify.

Added to that, he usually brings a vocal "celebrity" along. It might perhaps not be such a grave offense if the majority of them could sing or play. To bring a bunch of barkers and warblers along accomplishes its purpose in administering maximum punishment. Why do they do it? If they think they are making a hit by carrying the matters to extremes—they must or they wouldn't continue—this editorial will have accomplished its end if it succeeds in impressing upon them the opposite view. Numberless complaints have come to the Cardinal office asking that something be done about the matter.

It is well nigh time to call the halt. If they must continue their tactics, why not try the woods or the lake? The trees and the water have had many unpleasant receptions before, but they continue to live and be happy despite them. Romeo take heed.

SECOND CALL FOR VARSITY CREW ISSUED

Coach "Dad" Vail Asks All Candidates to Report Immediately

Only 16 candidates reported to Coach "Dad" Vail for crew practice on Lake Mendota last night and a second call has been sent out for more material. The Badger rowing coach is desirous of having every man in the university who is physically fit report for practice, regardless of his weight or previous crew experience.

With the approval of the faculty, inter-collegiate rowing will regain its former position in Badger athletics along with football, basketball, baseball and track, and with the definite knowledge that a Wisconsin shell will be in the race on the Hudson next June, rowing enthusiasts are conducting a vigorous campaign on the campus to get crew candidates out for fall practice.

Coach Vail is willing to take the greenest material under his direction on the machines during the winter, and he has announced that the best of these rowers will make up the varsity squadron which will represent the university at Poughkeepsie.

Practice will be held at 4:30 instead of 5 o'clock, so that the oarsmen will be given a longer work-out in the shells and barges while the favorable weather continues.

FEW CHANGES IN STUDENT ADVISOR SYSTEM THIS YEAR

Freshmen Asked to Consult Their Advisors in Regard to Work

The only change in the system of assigning student advisers this year is that freshmen in the Commerce course will continue with the same advisers in their sophomore year. This is the same method now in use in the College of Letters and Science, where students have the same adviser until they are ready to major.

All sophomores, juniors, and seniors who transfer from one course to another, or who entered from a state Normal school, or some other university since this fall will have F. H. Elwell, professor of accounting in the Commerce course as their adviser. The year after the transfer such students will be assigned to a special adviser, depending upon what work he or she intends to major in.

All freshmen should consult their advisers after three weeks of school work, in order to report upon the condition of their work.

PROMINENT MEN TO BE SECURED FOR VESPERS SPEAKERS

Stitt Wilson, Ex-Mayor of Berkeley, First Speaker at Joint Services

Plans were made for holding four vesper services open to both men and women during the year, at a meeting of the joint vesper service committee Friday afternoon. The help of the various churches is to be enlisted in supporting the meetings through the publicity given in the churches by the representatives. While these services will be primarily for the students, the people of Madison will also be welcome.

The object of the committee is to obtain the best speakers from all over the country for these meetings. The Choral Union will act as the choir. The aim is not to interfere with the regular services, but rather to supplement them.

The first of these services is to be held Sunday, October 17, in Music hall. Stitt Wilson, ex-mayor of Berkeley, Cal., will be the speaker.

Communication

SHOULD ROOTERS SMOKE?
Editor Daily Cardinal:

When you watched "Mike" Knapp make that first touch-down today, you were together in your enthusiasm for and appreciation of the team. There was no question of your stand on fair play and good sportsmanship. You will agree that there should be the same admirable good sportsmanship in the bleachers as there is on the gridiron. Is it good sportsmanship for a certain per cent of you to envelop an entire stand with a haze of choking tobacco smoke?

As I sat in the bleachers during the game I was surrounded on all sides by a friendly circle of smokers. My first move was to change my seat; my second, to request a certain individual to have the kindness to blow his smoke up into the heavens instead of into my face. However, since I had not the winds at my command, I could not escape the smoke from the other three sides.

We have heard much about the lack of proper enthusiasm among our football rooters, and we all wish to do all that we can to improve the cheering. There is a large percentage of non-smokers in the grandstands, and it deadens their enthusiasm, to say the least, to force them to inhale quantities of objectionable stale smoke from others.

This communication is meant, not as a personal, hostile attack, but as an attempt to place this matter before the students for discussion. Should smoking in the bleachers be permitted?

HOW TO ADVANCE

Will power is one of the first essentials to success but not the all important one.

Nature and revelation alike testify of God's love. Our Father in Heaven is the source of love, of wisdom, and of joy; which things give success. A natural conclusion is that FAITH in that source means success.

The question that many are asking today, is the question modern pulpits do not answer. The real answer is too old fashion for twenty century learning. The question is: Where is, and what is faith? Mr. Hayward answers this and others like it in his theme Sunday night, "How to Come to Christ." Pleasing, and soul satisfying, simple and old fashioned.
