WISCONSIN ALUMNUS FOOTBALL BULLETIN

Vol. 55 SEPTEMBER 11, 1953 No. 1

"Out to Maintain Victory Tradition"

To Alumni and Friends of Wisconsin:

IN MANY respects the football prospects in the University of Wisconsin for the 1953 season resemble those of 1949 when my staff and I made our coaching debut here in Madison.

As you recall, at that time we were confronted with several problems, most of which centered about the introduction of a new offensive and defensive style of play, the development of a number of untried players into capable reserves, and a cautious approach to a schedule which loomed as formidable.

This year, because of the change in rules involving substitution of players, my staff is faced with a change in coaching methods—to say nothing of adapting players to all-purpose performance after some seasons of performing specialties. In addition, graduation losses have taken 18 letter winners, while ineligibility has claimed another regular. Of other 1952 letter winners who were outstanding, several have been definitely sidelined because of troublesome injuries.

Consequently, we are faced with the biggest challenge in our coaching career. I can not say with confidence that this season we can pick up where we left off because, in many respects, we are starting all over again. It may take time for us to get up the proper momentum resembling in any proportion that of the past three years.

Quite naturally we're going to miss Jim Haluska, the young boy that virtually came out of nowhere just before the start of the 1951 season to take over quarterback position and, in effect, lead us to the share of the Big Ten championship and the Rose Bowl game. With a healthy Haluska and Don Voss, our outlook would be much more cheerful than it is right now. We will have to work hard and fast. We will need all the cooperation of the fine young men on our squad if we are to overcome the problems confronting us.

Elsewhere in this bulletin Art Lentz reports on the details of our prospects but I wish to add a word of promise. You can still expect to see a hustling and representative Badger football team whose play will be encouraging to all of our followers. The young men reporting for football now have a fine victory tradition to maintain. When you have that and fine spirit, these attitudes become big factors in making other teams regard us with respect and caution.

Sincerely,

Ivan B. Williamson

THEY'LL GUIDE THE BADGERS AGAIN IN '53

SITUATION UNCERTAIN injuries, "single-platoon" pose problems

IF THE two-platoon system still were in effect, Coach Ivy Williamson's football program at the University of Wisconsin simply would be one of replacement for the 1953 season.

His job then would be to replace six out of seven starters in the offensive line, plus one key man in the backfield. Defensively, he would have to fill gaps at two tackles, center guard, right side linebacker, a defensive halfback, and a safetyman.

And by-and-large, Ivy could muster replacements who by mid-season, could approximate the level of efficiency attained in 1952.

But the new rules which virtually erase the two-platoon method of grid-iron operation propose the difficult change-over to a "double duty" unit within a very much limited (by comparison) time period of preparation.

back, could have formed a veteran and intact backfield.

Back from the defensive line are the fine ends, Don Voss (Football Writers Association all-American selection) and Jerry Wuhrman (co-captain). From the linebacker trio, two return, Co-Captain Roger Dornburg and John Dixon. There are no holdovers from last year's deep secondary.

At least that's what a perusal of the listed assets on the football ledger led one to believe a few weeks ago.

However, a physical inventory raises some serious doubts and it appears that graduation losses aren't the only setbacks to Ivy's 1953 plans.

The old bugaboo—football knee—has been especially hard on ends Voss and Wuhrman, and of halfback Carl. Haluska broke his leg in a summer baseball game while Paul Shwaiko was lost through ineligibility.

Voss did not report to spring practice because of an impending operation on the knee he injured in the Rose Bowl game. The operation, however, was postponed.

Then, after the first day of fall practice, UW doctors advised immediate surgery. So Voss will play no football this year.

Carl and Wuhrman sustained injuries in the spring drills. Carl, whose career has been studded with "hard luck" injuries, twisted his knee the first day of spring practice, returned a few weeks later only to re-injure the knee. Wuhrman sustained a knee injury late in the spring drills and recently underwent an operation for the member.

As for Haluska, the "spiral" fracture he sustained definitely puts him on the sidelines for the coming season. He won't enroll this fall.

Defense looks fairly strong;

offense needs considerable work

*—Played on Friday night

All told, Ivy has 16 major lettermen left from last year's Co-championship Big Ten team. To this, he can add 28 winners of junior "W" awards with about 10 or 12 freshmen numeral winners who, in Ivy's opinion, can be classed with the varsity squad. Other candidates, until proven, will be with the junior varsity squad.

Nine of the major lettermen already have been mentioned. The others available include Tom Canny, hard running halfback; Norb Esser and James Temp, ends; Wendell Gulseth, tackle and regular punter; Mark Hoegh, tackle; Ronnie Locklin, defensive halfback; and Don Ursin, tackle. All of these saw considerable duty in the latter part of the season and especially in the Rose Bowl.

Of the junior "W" men returning, Gary Messner, center, Ronald Roberts, guard, and Gust Vergetis, quarterback, are dead certain to be among the first 22 on the firing line this fall.

Highly regarded recruits from the frosh ranks are: Charles Thomas, fullback; Jim Miller and Jack Stellick, quarterbacks; Dick Kolian, halfback; Bob Konovsky, end; and Andy Poese (pronounced Poach), tackle.

SPRING DRILLS brought much more satisfaction than was expected, especially in the limited time available to "change over" specialists into two-way workmen. Most notable of the shifts found Linebacker John Dixon shifted to left guard, Guard Clary Stensby to left tackle, and Linebacker Roger Dornburg to a left halfback spot, although the latter had performed at that post several times during the 1952 season and for several plays in the Rose Bowl.

If Ivy were to name a starting lineup, with first-call reserves, at this moment, the Wisconsin team probably would line up like this:

Left end—Norb Esser, Madison senior and letterman, who played quite a bit in the Rose Bowl game and is especially well adapted to offense and defense chores. Co-Captain Jerry Wuhrman, Milwaukee senior, ignoring his doubtful knee, and Freshman Bob Konovsky from Chicago, Ill., are the other best bets at this spot.

Left tackle—Stensby, Chicago junior and twice a letterman, has made the shift from guard without any trouble and this rugged competitor should be even better this year. Bill Miller, White-water senior and a junior "W" man from the 1951 squad, and Wells Gray, second semester sophomore from Loraine, Ohio, who was on the Rose Bowl squad, are the replacements.

Left guard—Dixon, Wisconsin Dells senior whose linebacking ability was proven last year as a regular, has performed well at this spot, even though his previous offensive experience was reserve fullback. Bill Brandt, Appleton junior and a junior "W" man, is first replacement, the other is John F. Ditt-rich, a sophomore from Cudahy.

Center—Gary Messner, Madison junior and major letterman, has this job cinched so far and his spring final game performance was outstanding. He was a reserve linebacker last year. First replacement is Mike Cwayna, Sheboygan senior and twice a junior "W" winner, while two freshmen, David P. Dye of Toledo, Ohio, and William McNamara of Rockford, Ill. have the next call.

WITT

Right guard—Ron Roberts, rugged Chicago senior, whose determination and drive late last fall and this spring brought him to the top twice has been a junior "W" winner and now he has arrived. Back of him are two more junior "W" men, Norm Amundsen, Chicago junior, and Don Pierce, Stillwater, Minn., junior.

Right tackle—Mark Hoegh, major letterman and senior from Kaukauna, holds the edge over another major letterman, Wendell Gulseth, Madison senior, mainly because of his aggressiveness and speed. Gulseth was a reserve tackle and linebacker last year and handled most of the punting. A replacement is Don Ursin, Chicago junior and major letterman.

Right end—Ronnie Locklin, major letterman and junior from Appleton, has this position unless James Temp, another letterman and junior from La Crosse can wrest it away from him. Both have height, speed, and good hands. The loss of Voss will certainly hurt.

Quarterback—Jim Haluska, who came out of relative obscurity last fall as a sophomore to take over the quarterbacking spot, would be the top-dog here if it were not for his unfortunate injury. The Racine junior and major letterman, who set many school passing records, demonstrated ability on defense as a safety man, intercepting two passes in the spring game and running one of them back 58 yards to a touchdown. On offense, he was right up to par, completing 12 of 20 passes for 159 yards and one touchdown. Gust Vergetis, junior "W" man and Milwaukee senior, rates next, mainly because of his understudying experience. Two sophomores, Jim Miller of Eau Claire and Jack Stellick, La Crosse, are pretty good bets to give Vergetis a battle, as well as Glen Wilson, Milwaukee senior and twice a junior "W" winner.

Left halfback—Roger Dornburg, Naperville, Ill. senior, twice a major letterman and co-captain, has the job right now. A regular linebacker on defense the past two years, his defensive work now is that of a halfback. While not speedy or tricky, he has tremendous power and is a good blocker. Ivy terms him a "football player, period!" . . . a real tribute. Harland Carl, the Greenwood senior and twice a major letterman, will figure in here if his injured knee stays okay, while a sophomore Dick Kolian, Oak Park, Ill., has a good chance, since he can punt with the best of them.

Right halfback—Jerry Witt, twice a major letterman and a Marshfield senior, is the best bet for this spot. Witt has led the Badgers in scoring for two years and is the fastest runner. His defensive ability remains to be proven. Another strong challenger who might horn in on the job is Tom Canny, Chicago senior and major letterman. Still another prospect is Bob Gingrass, junior from Iron Mountain, Mich.

Fullback—Alan Ameche, Kenosha junior, twice a letterman, and performer of record breaking ground-gaining feats for the Badgers, has the job but he's being pressed by a freshman from

Evanston, Ill., one Charles Thomas, whose play in the spring game brought comments describing him as a junior edition of the Cleveland Brown's Marion Motley. Ameche, one of the hardest workers in the spring drills, was down to his playing weight of 205

On the Air

A GAIN this fall, no section of Wisconsin will be without access to Badger grid broadcasts. Five originating stations will transmit play-by-play action for broadcasting from 57 other stations.

Originating broadcasts at Camp Randall will be WTMJ, Milwaukee; WIBA and WKOW, both of Madison; WHA-FM, which will feed broadcasts to the state FM network as well as to 30 private Wisconsin stations, to KAAA in Red Wing, Minn., and to WEAW in Evanston, Ill.; and WFHR, Wisconsin Rapids, which will be reporting for 17 other stations in principal Wisconsin cities.

pounds and was dead serious in learning defensive chores as a linebacker. The big "Horse" looks set for another great year and the Badgers know they can rest him with a capable replacement. Another frosh, John Slauson from Braintree, Mass. and a Geneva, Ill., senior, Bob Lamphere (twice a junior "W" winner) are the other challengers.

Judging from the spring game, most writers concluded that Wisconsin appears to have a squad that will play hard, smart defensive football and one that would be pretty hard to handle on offense if Jim Haluska were healthy. It was doubted that any team could give Wisconsin a "plastering" for the Badgers seemed to have the confidence, poise, and know-how that are essential components for sound defensive play.

It looks like another interesting year out at Camp Randall stadium.

1953 Grid Roster

Popularity Poses Ticket Problems

WITH question marks surrounding Wisconsin's 1953 grid prospects, there's one branch of Badger football about which there's no question.

In the ticket department, business manager Bill Aspinwall and his crew have been filling orders for football game seats like never before.

Before any single-game tickets were allotted on Sept. 1, there had already been issued more than 38,000 season tickets. That total includes students, faculty, and other special groups.

The capacity of Camp Randall Stadium is still 52,000 spectators. And only 18,000 of those seats are situated between the goal lines. Since it is athletic department policy to give "preferential" seating to season ticket holders, it follows that the 14,000 or so tickets available for each game singly are pretty certain to be in end-zone areas.

Even so, demand for single game tickets has been almost overwhelming. That has also held true for season ticket requests. There have been more season tickets sold this year than ever before in Badger history.

Best chance for better-than-average single game tickets lies in the possibility that a visiting team will relinquish some of the seats reserved for its supporters. This sometimes happens as a particular game approaches.

As has been customary in making ticket allotments, persons who have been ordering season tickets without interruption over the years were given top "priority" this year. New season ticket applications were then processed, with Alumni Association members getting first call. Then, with all season tickets assigned, individual tickets were allotted, WAA members again getting "first choice." But by that time, as some members have found, the "best was none too good."

"ON THE BALL"

Coach Johnstone picks his WAA first team

TEMPORARILY, at least, President R. T. Johnstone is one step ahead of Ivy Williamson.

As this first FOOTBALL BULLETIN of the 1953 series goes to the printer, Ivy is still wondering about his starting line-up against Penn State on September 26. R. T., however, is all set with his starting line-up of eleven committee chairmen for the Wisconsin Alumni Association's 92nd fiscal year which started September first.

As "head coach" of the Association, R. T. automatically serves as chairman of the executive committee which consists of WAA officers, plus two directors appointed by the president. Here are the eleven committee chairmen appointed by President Johnstone for the current fiscal year, every one an all-American:

Alumni Awards Committee: Maxine Plate, 940 Glenview Avenue, Wauwatosa

Life Membership Fund Committee: L. J. Fitzpatrick, 3230 University Ave., Madison

Magazine Committee: Myron T. Harshaw, 831 S. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

Resolutions Committee: Mrs. Walter Craig, 117 S. Division St., Janesville

Membership Committee: Gordon R. Walker, 2000 17th Street, Racine

Scholarship Committee: Walter Keyes, 123 N. Third Street, Sturgeon Bay

Constitution Committee: John S. Lord, 135 S. La Salle Street, Chicago

State Relations Committee: Willard G. Aschenbrenner, American Bank & Trust Co., Racine

Athletic Committee: Charles L. Byron, 38 S. Dearborn Street, Chicago

Students Award Committee: Dean Conrad A. Elvehjem, 23 Bascom Hall, Madison 6

Integration Committee: Howard T. Greene, Genesee Depot, Wisconsin

Just a glance at this list shows that coach Johnstone has done a good job in picking his starting line-up for 1953. Every member is definitely varsity calibre - - well qualified for his or her particular assignment.

Each committee is important because much of the work of your Association is done by these committees. With members of the board of directors scattered from New York to Los Angeles, it isn't practical to have frequent meetings of the board. Usually, two regular meetings are held annually - - one at Homecoming in the fall and the other at reunion time in June. Special meetings may be called at any time by the president. Last May, for example, President Warren Knowles called a special meeting of the board for consideration of the integration bill then pending in the legislature.

Coach Johnstone has asked all committee chairmen to make complete reports on plans and activities by October 10th so that a consolidated report of committee work will be available at the Director's Meeting at Homecoming on October 31.

COMMITTEE chairmen are always glad to get suggestions. So - - if you have some special ideas up your sleeve which would help to make WAA increasingly helpful to the University of Wisconsin, please send them to the appropriate committee chairman.

By the time this LETTER reaches you, your Association will be well under way with a complete program of activities for its 92nd fiscal year. WAA was founded on June 26, 1861 with this primary objective:

To promote, by organized effort, the best interests of the University of Wisconsin.

This still is the Association's primary objective. During this 92nd year we hope to make the Wisconsin Alumni Association increasingly effective as the strong right arm of the University of Wisconsin. We hope every Association member will help to accomplish this objective.—John Berge

Here's a Solution to Double Problem

The Memorial Union's Breese Terrace Cafeteria—this convenient dining room will again be available this year for football fans at all home games. Take advantage of this service and you'll simplify your parking problems by getting to the stadium area before the big rush. The cafeteria, on the corner of University Avenue and Breese Terrace, one block from Camp Randall Stadium, will open every football Saturday at 11:30 a.m. and remain open until 1 p.m. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Always wonderful weather indoors!
