Country Magazine Hits Snob Students

Defends Agricultural Activities; Denies Farm Students Different

Expressing doubt as to whether or not any such thing as an inferiority complex exists among students in the College of Agriculture, an editorial in the November issue of the Wisconsin Country Magazine asserts that "whatever difference there may be in the intellectual and social status of agricultural and home economics students as distinguished from that of other students in this university is the creation of smart, young instructors in certain departments and those 'hill' students who have acquired the external trimmings of sophistication.

"Their idea of the farmer is the be-whiskered stereotype portrayed by the newspaper cartoonist," the editorial continues. "It is unfortunate, of course, that a university should develop snobs."

The writer of the editorial defended the extra-curricular activities which pertain especially to the College of Agriculture and declared that "it would be folly for agricultural and home economics students to take on more activities without first properly caring for those which already exist."

He professed his inability to see a connection between Dean Russell's protest that the College of Agriculture is losing its research lands and the student activity situation on which The Daily Cardinal recently took occasion to comment editorially.

Barnard, Law Student Here, Is Legislator

Charles A. Barnard, 21, a sophomore in the University Law school, was accorded the unique distinction of becoming the youngest legislator in the state of Wisconsin by being elected assemblyman from Calumet county. His victory was achieved by a majority of more than 1,000 votes over his Democratic opponent.

His experience in politics extends far in advance of his years, as he has been partaking in election campaigns since he was 14 years of age. In Brillion, his home town, his exceeding popularity is evidenced by the cognomen of the "baby assemblyman" given him by the townspeople.

Since he left grade school, Barnard has earned his own way through high school and college doing different jobs. Among the tasks in which he has been engaged in order to gain his education are ditch digging, road construction, and canning in a factory.

Rotarians Fete Grid Squad at Noon Luncheon

Capt. Rube Wagner was the brunt of a comedy skit given by Al Jackson and one of his players at the eighth annual Rotary luncheon in honor of the Wisconsin football squad yesterday noon at the Loraine hotel.

In a brief talk, Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite thanked the Rotary Club for the invitation tendered the squad but threatened to forego the luncheon next year unless the Badgers performed better than in 1927 against the Maroons.

In predicting victory for his team Saturday, Captain Wagner said in his speech that the Cardinal squad would win "if the boys give all they have." Other speakers were Jerry Riordan, who played in 1895-'96-'97 and 1900; Paul Hunter, of the Hunter Press bureau; and Herman Egstad, secretary of the Wisconsin Alumni association.

Memorial Union Plans Greeting for Homecomers

Music, Refreshments, Dance Feature Open House for Returning Alumni

Alumni and their guests, parents of students, and visiting Chicago rooters are invited to make their headquarters for the week-end at the new Memorial Union, Ted Thelander '29 chairman of the house committee, announced yesterday.

From 6 p. m. to 1:30 a. m. on Friday, and immediately after the game and until 12:30 a. m. on Saturday,

A few places in the Memorial Union dormitory are still available to men who are Union members and their guests for Friday and Saturday nights, according to Ted Thelander '29, chairman of the Union house committee. Reservations may be made at the central desk of the building, or by calling F. 6300.

the Union will hold open house to all visitors, and the entire building will be open to inspection.

An orchestra will play in the Rathskellar and dining rooms from 5 to 8 o'clock and coffee and sandwiches and other refreshments will be served. (Continued on Page 2)

Regents Prepare 1929 Budget for University Today

The financial requests of the university for the biennium beginning in September, 1929, which will be asked of the 1929 legislature, will be formulated here today and tomorrow by the Board of Regents who are meeting in a special session.

Building programs for the next two years and increased expenditures to accommodate expected growth are to be included in the final figure, to be compiled out of reports formulated here last week-end by the finance committee of the Regents.

Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman, who had promised to appoint a successor to Robert B. Wild to the Board of Regents, had not taken any action yesterday, it was said in his office.

Huge Massmeeting to Open Celebration; Fish Heads Gala Program

Miller in Doubt About Weather for Homecoming

Whether Madison homecomers are to be greeted with snappy football weather, drizzly rains, or below zero blasts is as yet uncertain, according to Eric Miller, government meteorologist here. Today, however, is promised as fair with little change in temperature and light winds, the weatherman declared Thursday. Two "low" areas appearing on the weather map, make definite forecasting impossible, he said.

Burleigh Wins Honor in First Faculty Recital

By JOHN B. MILLER

Before an appreciative audience which filled Music hall auditorium to its capacity long before the scheduled time, Prof. Burleigh of the University School of Music played a delightful program of violin music, last night. He was ably assisted at the piano by Prof. Leon L. Itis, also of the School of Music. The recital was the first of the faculty recitals arranged by the School of Music.

The new Third Concerto in C Minor by Mr. Burleigh, which was played for the first time in public by the composer himself, was most enthusiastically received by the audience. It was both heroic and spirited in interpretation, and was long applauded.

Two short compositions also by Mr. Burleigh, "An Indian Village," and "Snake Dance," brought forth much applause as well. The first number combined strength and virility; and the latter, which was marked by weird, repeated staccato beats, had to be repeated at the insistence of the audience.

Schumann's famous "Sonata in A Minor" was the opening number of Mr. Burleigh's program. It was vigorously presented. The animato movement especially displayed a perfect ensemble of piano and violin.

Bonfire, Dance, Decorations Judging to Usher in Colorful Event

A huge pep rally, representative of Wisconsin spirit and tradition, will open the 1928 Homecoming celebration at 7:30 p. m. in the gymnasium tonight. The usual bonfire, judging of fraternity and sorority house decorations, and the first Homecoming dance to be held in the new Union will be the features of the evening.

Carl Russel Fish, the inimitable professor of history, will be on hand to lend his support and wit in making the mass-meeting a success. The university band will play "On Wisconsin," and Ted Frost '29, varsity cheerleader, will coax yells from the Cardinal supporters.

A. J. Bieberstein, candidate for district attorney in the recent elections, is also included on the William Ramsey list of speakers, according to William Ramsey '30, chairman of the mass-meeting committee.

The gigantic pile of boxes on the lower campus will be lit at 8:15 p. m. Judging of the decorations will continue from 8:30 until 9, at which time the celebrants will adjourn to the dance to be held in the Great hall of the Union. This is to be a 1 o'clock informal party under the di-

Eastman, Writer, to Speak Here

Journalists Bring Famed Author to Wisconsin on Nov. 22

Max Eastman, American novelist, poet, and psychologist, will speak at Music hall on Nov. 22 at 8 p. m. under the auspices of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalistic sorority. His subject will be "The Unintelligibles," recent men in literature.

Mr. Eastman is that rare combination—a man of action and a scholar. His poetry is found in every anthology of American poetry today, and his recent novel, "Venture," is attracting wide notice and has already been translated into the German.

As a journalist and editor of the "Masses" before the war, Mr. Eastman was early recognized as one of the foremost prophets of the modern literary movement. As a speaker, the late President Wilson has referred to his talks as "among the most delightful combinations of thought and humor I have ever listened to."

A man of travel and of wide experience, Mr. Eastman names Russia as one of the most interesting countries he has visited. He spent some time there after the war, and learned to speak Russian so that he might study the Communist movement at first hand. His latest book on Russia made a sensation among European social philosophers. His contributions to scientific thinking are recognized by psychologists as widely scattered as Pavlov, Freud, Dewey, Leuba, and G. Stanley Hall.

Latest Issues of Country, Alumni, and Literary Magazines Out Today

Godley Praises Typography, Poetry of Literary Magazine

By BOB GODLEY

The new Wisconsin Literary Magazine tries very hard to get down to the level of the students as a whole. It can never do that . . . thank heaven. It remains a literary magazine, but is much brighter, more human and more interesting than ever before.

Typographically it is a masterpiece . . . it is dressy, conservative and easy to read . . . applause for the editors who dressed their book.

Naomi Rabe writes of Aldous Huxley. She does it ably and well . . . bringing out her subject without the elephantine ponderosity which usually characterizes young folks' writings on serious subjects.

There is a good selection of poetry. Carroll Blair and Emily Powers Inglehart appeal to us. The former has a sharp and facile pen which draws very clear pictures . . . His campus sketches are good . . . very good.

Miss Inglehart has contributed to Poetry magazine. Her work has the earmarks of a professional . . . or we should say experienced, writer.

Alumni Magazine Features Homecoming, Wagner, and Fish

By HERBERT TSCHUDY

Rube Wagner, dependable football captain, and Homecoming divide the interest in the new issue of the Alumni magazine for November, which is out today. Athletic interest is satisfied by a story describing the new projected field house and a quantity of material telling of Wisconsin football.

Prof. Carl Russel Fish heads the list of authors contributing to the magazine. This, his second work on "Representative Americans," deals with Cotton Mather, one of the most colorful and outstanding characters in colonial America.

The Homecoming story is written by Hampton Randolph '29. Two other university features are the stories devoted to the Varsity Welcome and to a brief review of the dedication of the Union. Lauriston Sharp '29, one of the party of five Wisconsin students who spent the summer exploring in the Southwest, recounts his adventures.

Prof. Ricardo Quintana takes over the work formerly done by Prof. Finley Foster and selects the books for the book review department. Faculty members particularly suited for each (Continued on Page 12)

Wisconsin Country Publication Presents News and Feature Articles

By LEONARD SCHUBERT

One of the newest issues of the Wisconsin Country magazine ever put out is on sale today from 9 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. at Agricultural hall and the Home Economics building. On the cover page is an interesting drawing of Wisconsin's new Memorial Union done by L. R. Pescheret, the decorator of the Union.

Besides an abundance of interesting news, there are several feature articles by members of the magazine staff, and by alumni and faculty members of the College of Agriculture.

In an article entitled "Goode Olde 17th Century Cookery" Jeanette Stewart '30 tells of some of the recipes prepared for English housewives by Sir Kenelm Digbie, whom she characterizes as one of the most romantic characters of that period of English history, a philosopher, traveler, conversationalist, politician and scientist.

Louise Thomsen '29 presents a critical article on Wisconsin's Memorial Union in which she comments on the architectural appropriateness (Continued on Page 12)

Favorite Actress Gets Shaw Lead

Ramona Dahlenberg Plays
Main Role in "Devil's Disciple"

Ramona Dahlenberg '29, star of "He Who Gets Slapped" and "Mary Rose," will play the leading feminine role of the George Bernard Shaw play, "The Devil's Disciple," to be produced by Wisconsin Players at Bascom hall Nov. 16, 17, 23, and 24. Miss Dahlenberg's role in the forthcoming production is one of exceeding difficulty, but early rehearsals point to her ability to fill it with professional ease.

She plays the part of Judith Anderson, the wife of an aged minister, who is loved by the "devil's disciple," and on her success in filling this role depends much of the success of the show.

In addition to her membership in Wisconsin Players, Miss Dahlenberg holds a membership in the National Collegiate Players and Phi Beta, national honorary speech organization. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

A bowl of free pretzels will supply the familiar atmosphere to the famous Hausmann bar, now installed amid congenial German surroundings in the Rathskellar.

The Homecoming dance in the Great hall on Saturday will bring a climax to the celebration of the week-end. A special 10-piece band, Railroad Jack, the genial memory expert, and "southern entertainment," as the committee describes it, will keep guests busy from 9 until after midnight.

Ticket Sale Limited

Refreshments will be available in the Tea room and Rathskellar. Guests will also be provided with cards and radio concerts in the lounges. The ticket sale for the dance will be limited to avoid over-crowding. Tickets will be on sale at the door at $1.50.

All dining rooms of the house will be open to men and women on Friday night, Saturday, and Sunday noon. They have a combined capacity of 2,000 at meal time. All Homecoming visitors are welcome. Sunday evening in Tripp Commons will be devoted as usual to the interfraternity-dormitory supper.

Pipe Convert Ends Agonizing Tobacco Hunt

New York, N. Y.
June 30, 1926

Larus & Bro. Co.
Richmond, Va.
Gentlemen:

I started smoking on cigarettes, but after meeting a young lady for whom men who smoked pipes had a greater charm, I promptly switched to one.

Then my agony began. I tried one brand of tobacco after another, always working on the theory that the more you paid for tobacco, the better it would be.

I tried imported special mixtures. I paid as much as fifty cents an ounce. All to no avail.

Then came the day I tried Edgeworth. It was at a ball game. I had run short of the certain brand I was smoking, and a casual acquaintance offered me a pipeful from his pouch.

Imagine my delight when after the first few puffs I did not feel the old familiar bite. I puffed on, inhaling the delightful aroma, and oh, boy! It was sweet right down to the bottom.

Nothing has separated me from my pipe, or my pipe from Edgeworth, since then.

Yours very truly,

"B" Team Meets Illinois Reserves

4 Maroon Stars Injured on Eve of Badger Tilt

Small, Cushman, Spence and Raysson Unlikely to Play Here Saturday

Chicago, Nov. 8—Chicago's chances of winning that game the Maroons have been shooting at all season were dimmed yesterday when a survey of the casualties disclosed that Ken Small, center; Clarence Cushman, tackle; Bob Spence, end; and Anatol Raysson all were unlikely to participate in the Wisconsin game at Madison Saturday. Small's injury, it was found at the hospital, is more than likely to keep him out of the Illinois game also. Stagg is now left with only one center, Bob Straus, and what the Old Man will do if anything happens to Straus is a puzzle.

Weaver Gets Tryout

He is scouting around for some one who can be called upon in an emergency, and "Buck" Weaver is being tried out. Cushman has a bad leg that did not appear to be serious until last night, when no progress was noticeable.

With Small and Cushman out, the old problem of tackle bobs up to perplex the Maroon coaching staff. The Maroons had managed fairly well on one side of the line by using Straus at offensive tackle and Cushman at offensive guard, and switching the two on defense.

Plenty of Substitutes

Froberg, Garen, and Sonderby are possible substitutes, but none of the three is first rate. Spence is a good defensive end, but his loss is not so serious, for there are plenty of ends ready to play.

Little attention is being paid to attack by Stagg this week, for his offensive is good enough, provided the defense can stop Wisconsin's passes. Unless the backs can break up the Badger passes, Stagg fears the game will be a rout. Raysson would be a big help, but his neck is still troubling him.

Use "Flanker" Play

The Maroons will rely largely on their celebrated "flanker" play in their offensive efforts against Wisconsin. This play had the Badgers completely baffled last year, when the Maroons upset Thistlethwaite's team by a 12 to 0 score.

Stagg intends to take his men up to Madison Friday evening, and perhaps will hold a short drill on Camp Randall Saturday morning for the purpose of showing the players the field, on which they have never played.

About 4,100 Chicago supporters will go to Madison for the game. About 150 of them will fly up, and the rest will go on special trains.

Tripp Defeats Adams in Race

Wolgemuth Continues Fine Record by Winning Cross Country Run

Tripp Hall was the victor over Adams in their annual inter-quadrangle cross country race Thursday. John Wolgemuth '30 was the individual winner in the fast time of 11:06.

Tripp runners finished 1, 2, 4, and 6 to win 13-23. Only 13 men entered the race, and 10 finished. The distance was 2 3/8 miles.

Daniel Ross was second, closely followed by James Parker, who was the first Adams man to finish. Ross' time was 11:30. Others to place were: Bob Bassett, Max Simon, Wilbur Wendt, D. Gordon, and R. Kelly. Wolgemuth now has an excellent record, having won the inter-class, inter-sectional, and inter-quadrangle races this fall as well as being the victor in the two-mile race at the fall track meet. He is ineligible for varsity competition.

Freshman smoking is against the traditions of Oregon university, but is permitted on the cross-campus paths, according to the traditions committee of the student council.

Hornsby Sold Again; Cubs Get Famed "Rajah"

Rogers Hornsby, not infrequently called "Rajah", is getting his fill of trades, etc. Hornsby is beginning to rival our own Col. Lindbergh in popularity because for the past three years he has been the idol of fans in three different large cities. Now it is Chicago.

HORNSBY

After finishing the season as the leading batter in the National league and the manager and second baseman of the Braves, "Rajah" now finds himself traded to the Chicago Cubs for the mere sum of $150,000 and five players. No sooner does Hornsby become settled and about to take the upper hand in the situation than he is traded off like a hot penny. Without a doubt Hornsby is the leading second baseman in the history of baseball, but his personality is just too dominating.

That must be it. But he is a ball player, is he not?

3 Frosh Teams to Inaugurate League Season

Offense of "A" Team Composed of Hawkeye Plays

By H. Belzer

To inaugurate the pre-varsity league season, three strong freshman teams and the fighting intramural team will see action this afternoon at 4 p. m. at intramural field.

It was at first planned to have the All-Americans meet the intramural eleven, but as they will scrimmage against the varsity again, a postponement was necessary. The intramural eleven will play one of the frosh teams, possibly the frosh "B" squad.

Three Teams

Coach Holmes has divided his squad into three teams, calling them the "A", "B", and "C" teams. The "A" team lineup for today's game is as follows:

Shorthouse, L. E.; Smith, L. T.; Baer, L. G.; Krueger, C.; Meagle, R. G.; Tobias, R. T.; Jensen, R. E.; Pacetti, L. H.; Rehholz, R. H.; Herber, C.; and Grabnah, F.

On the "B" team, which is almost on a par with the "A" squad, the ends are Catlin and Lubratovich; at tackles are Minahan and Kiesling; guards are Hamm and Paris; Leithen is at center; the halfback positions are taken care of by Exun and Miller; Graebner is quarterback; and Holmes is at fullback.

"C" Squad Lineup

The "C" squad has Singer and Roth at ends; Orth and King at tackles; Hardt and Johnston at guards; Simmons at center; Masden and Kelly at the half; Murray at quarterback; and Crowden at fullback.

Coach George E. Little, director of athletics, who is in charge of the intramural squad, has picked his first team from among 65 candidates. Following are the men who will see (Continued on Page 11)

HERE'S the DOPE

By HAROLD DUBINSKY

Tomorrow is the day. More than 46,000 people are eagerly awaiting the homecoming battle with Chicago. And why not, it will be a battle from start to finish. All Chicago-Wisconsin games are that.

Rally

Tonight at 7:30 p. m. a pep rally will be held in the gymnasium. Following this rally the crowd will move over to the lower campus where a huge bonfire will be in order. All this preparation should be enough to raise the enthusiasm to white heat.

Spirit Necessary

The old spirit will be necessary for this game especially. All the returning grads will be anxious to determine the state of enthusiasm at Wisconsin. They will be watching the reactions of the student body with more than a curious interest.

By The Way

When the writer was at Michigan for the game he happened to go into a tailor shop in the university district to have a suit pressed. The tailor there soon disclosed that he was an ardent admirer of Director George Little. When Mr. Little was a coach at Michigan it seems that he lived near that tailor. The gentleman boosted our director to the sky, and secretly told us that he kept a large autographed picture of Mr. Little in his house.

Cross Country

Carroll Blair, that little dormitory poet, has finally made the varsity hill and dale team. He will run with Wisconsin against Chicago and Minnesota Saturday. Blair was a star on the freshman track team and after a late start came out for cross country. It seems that he excels in the five mile distance. He should be a great asset in the conference run.

Meanwell Honored by Madison Club

Prof. W. E. Meanwell, coach of the Wisconsin basketball team, was elected a member of the board of directors of the Madison club last week in the recent election of officers of the organization. G. F. Kull, A. H. Kramer, and C. L. McMullen were chosen to fill the three chief offices. The new leaders will announce their program for the coming year within two weeks.

Badgers Certain of Win Today in Champaign Tilt

Oberndorfer Adds Offensive Strength; Two Teams Make Trip

By E. G.

Wisconsin's "B" aggregation will make a pilgrimage to Champaign today to match its widely heralded football ability against that of the Illinois reserves. A victory over their hosts this afternoon will leave the Cardinal players undefeated and rated as the best reserve team in the Big Ten.

Coach Uteritz has been pointing his proteges for this tussle and has strengthened both his forward wall and backfield accordingly during the past week. The opening whistle will bring Bobby Oberndorfer, Frisch, and Englehard on the gridiron for the "B's" for the first time this season.

Certain of Victory

Prospects for a victory over their opponents this afternoon are bright for the Wisconsin warriors. The work of Ahlberg, McKaskle, Cooksey, Mansfield, Oman, Roberts, Dunaway, and Elliott during the last few tussles with the All-American squad has highly satisfied their mentor.

It seems that Bobby Oberndorfer's advent into the ball carrying quartet of the reserves was a signal for a more efficient overhead attack, since the diminutive quarterback's ability as a forward passer has been much heralded all season. This additional scoring weapon, with "Dynie" Mansfield's devastating end running, Roberts' powerful line plunging, and Roberts' skillfulness as a blocking halfback should prove the Waterloo of the Illini "B's".

Two Full Teams

Two full teams will travel southward today. They are:

B. Lutz, Ziese	L. E.	Cooksey
McKaskle	L. T. Williams	Englehard
Ritter	L. G.	Kowalsky
Ahlberg	C.	Slavens
Hulteen	R. G.	Forster
De Haven	R. T.	Rottman
Nelson	R. E.	Tank
Elliott	L. H. B.	Roberts
Czerwinski	R. H. B.	Dunaway
F. Lutz	F. B.	Mansfield
Sheehan, Oberndorfer	Q. B.	Pinegar

Dorm Football Nearing Finals

LaFollette and Botkin Look Best in Tripp-Adams League

By R. M.

Playing on wet, pool studded fields, dormitory football teams moved one round nearer the finals yesterday. The dormitory race, which began with no team as favorite, has now resolved itself around one squad in each hall. LaFollette house in Adams, as scores of 36-0 and 47-0 should indicate, has been winning as it pleased. Botkin house in Tripp has so far been able to maintain the leadership of its hall by a slim margin.

The two teams will meet on the gridiron Friday afternoon, in what should be the best battle of the schedule. Yesterday's results follow:

LaFollette 47, Fallows house 0
LaFollette continued its unbroken winning streak by trampling over Fallows for seven touchdowns, two of which were made by Schaeffer, three by Meiklejohn, one by Reeve, and one by Moore. The lineups:

LaFollette—Butts, Reeve, Moore, Boesel, Schaeffer, Davies, Meiklejohn.
Fallows—Opper, Leemkuhl, Buell, Francine, Kuelthau, Muhlburger, Stevenson.

Botkin 2, Siebecker 0.
The Botkin team put over a narrow win from Siebecker in the Wednesday round of the football schedule. D. Meiklejohn fumbled a pass from center, and Hippenmeyer of Botkin fell on the ball for the winning safety in the feature play of the game. The lineups:

Botkin—Schiffin, Hippenmeyer, Abrahamson, Meyer, Ramien, Langlykke, Patterson.
Siebecker—Beck, Helihaan, Frank, D. Meiklejohn, Weyenburg, Galineau.

Chi Belittled Badgers in '89; What Now?

By BOB DE HAVEN

Your correspondent again lost his identity yesterday afternoon among the library stacks in order to procure the vital facts of the Wisconsin-Chicago football rivalry, a new chapter of which is imminent at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Amid loud boos and a general atmosphere of scorn for appearing in the library without a girl, I searched out numerous old Badgers and other publications and animals in order to investigate the history of this mutual nose thumbing. Temptation of looking at the ancient Kappas was indeed great, but I persisted and discovered this paramount fact.

Always Fightin'

Chicago and Wisconsin are old, bitter rivals.

It has been going on for a long time. In '89 the University Bicycle club invited Chicago to a race, and the Maroons ran in a couple of ringers and ball bearinged wheels and won the invitational derby. I don't think that was nice of Chicago. From there the fireworks date.

Willie Was Good

In 1909 Mr. John Willie was captain of our football team. Where have you heard that name before? He is now playing with the tempers of Ohio State alumni by turning out for said institution alternately terrible and wonderful teams.

This is his "on" year; so we dare mention his name. In that season, my memory of it is a bit rusty, Minnesota must have known our signals; they beat us 34-6. Willie wrote, "Minnesota beat us bad, but we came back and beat Chicago—WOW!" That's how much he thought of a victory over Chicago 19 years ago.

Beat Chicago, Anyway

The year 1910 was practically successful in football for Wisconsin. List. "The showing of the year was as expected. We won one game. We beat Chicago." It must have been a habit in those days.

In 1911 we lost 5-0, but returned and won 30-12 the following fall. Skipping ten years which indicates your correspondent's fatigue rather than inadequate statistics, we notice that in 1922 Wisconsin fully intended to whip its ancient rivals as they had been whipped the two previous years. But Stagmen pulled a modern Michigan and won 3-0.

Rough Party in '23

The usual boyish enthusiasm did not suffer a change in the years. In '23 Chicago won two touchdowns to one, and this was written, "The game was marked by fierce fighting." I trust that statement does not apply only to spectators.

The season of 1924 brought the thrill best known to recent graduates. Wisconsin had stumbled through a miserable season hampered by poor material and internal disorder of the morale, and Chicago was sailing along as we are now. We weren't supposed to win; we didn't. We weren't supposed to tie; we did 0-0.

Badgers Pull Surprise

Jack Harris, Cardinal captain, who had played 11 positions at one time or other during the season, smashed to everlasting glory that afternoon from the half back position. It is the greatest moral victory of any team with all respect to Purdue university which chooses to nominate each year three or four games for that questionable honor.

In 1925 we won 19-7. In 1926 we won 14-7. Last year we lost 12-0. Now what?

Traditionally the game has been the last on both schedules and played in the Windy City (west of South Bend). This year we'll try to turn the trick in our own camp at the season's height. We hope there will be "fierce fighting by both teams" and that the season turns out as usual by our beating Chicago.

To Prof. Julius Olson

We Extend Sincerest Congratulations on His 70th Anniversary

TODAY the oldest member of the faculty, Prof. Julius E. Olson, chairman of the Scandinavian language department, is celebrating his 70th birthday. He has been with this university for 44 years, longer than any other man or woman.

Prof. Olson has watched Wisconsin grow from a school consisting of a mere handful of students to a great university of more than 9,000 men and women. And he has had an active part in that development.

If anyone has ever wondered where many Badger traditions originated, he need only ask Prof. Olson. For he himself originated many of them, including Varsity Welcome and class day exercises. In 1913, the first Varsity Welcome was held in the men's gymnasium. From that time on Prof. Olson has been chairman of the committee on public functions. The office originated with him, and has been occupied successfully by him ever since.

Under his able leadership programs have been planned every year for Memorial day, commencement exercises, all dedications, and Varsity Welcome. At first he also had charge of all public lectures, being again the one who originated the practice of bringing well-known men here to address the student body.

Prof. Olson is well-known and beloved by all students who have had occasion to apply for loans or scholarships, for he is chairman of the loan and scholarship committee. His kind heart and jovial nature make him an ideal man for this position. With fairness and wisdom he judges the ability and earnestness of students and their consequent right to a scholarship.

Not only is Prof. Olson loved by this university, but he is a friend of all Norwegians and of Norway. For his services in Norwegian activities, he received one of the greatest honors one may get, when he was made a member of the Norwegian Order of St. Olaf by the King of Norway.

We extend to this veteran and beloved friend of The University of Wisconsin sincerest wishes on this, his 70th anniversary.

That Ticket Squabble

A Letter of Explanation Ought to Quell the Perennial Flame

THE ancient and annual student squabble over football tickets has started again. In three letters to The Daily Cardinal, and through general comment one hears on the campus, it is evident that the usual number of students object seriously to the "treatment given them" by the tickets sales office. In general, the complaints are specifically lodged against the practice that forces students to accept seats behind the goal line, after their application has been in the hands of the ticket office for a month or more.

In three years that the writer can immediately recall, nothing said about the matter has ever satisfied the students. Probably nothing ever will, for no matter how successfully or unsuccessfully the ticket department handles its sales, students will continue to rant about its evils. Yet, if they sincerely believe their complaints are well founded, they rightfully enjoy the privilege of publishing their opinions in the Readers' Say So columns. The Daily Cardinal welcomes letters and will continue its policy of presenting the students' case.

The athletic department has its side of the question. It will have facts to uphold its practice, and it can undoubtedly explain its system of ticket distribution to any student who so desires information. However, few undergraduates have ever taken the time to inquire or to lodge their complaints with the director of ticket sales. And so the fight continually goes on.

But it is essential that students know precisely how and why they get the seats they do. Probably such an understanding would correct much of the criticism that flames up every fall. We do not have to wait for students to yell. They all do when they are placed in section "L", "M", "Y", or "Z."

A detailed letter of explanation from the ticket sales department, published prominently in the editorial columns, might help a little to silence the howlers. We would welcome an opportunity to publish a reply from Mr. Levis, after the present Homecoming ticket rush has passed. Certainly, it ought to help extinguish this perennial flame that bursts forth each year.

This Attendance Problem

Taking Roll Is Like the Relics of High School Methods

MUCH concern is expressed at the present time because of the prevalence of "cutting" among the students, particularly among upper classmen. The football season and its attendant disorders receive a large share of the blame for this laxness of scholarly interest, and there are many in the various centers of learning who regard the problem as very grave.

This present discussion of class cutting as an evil brings to the fore a problem which really has two sides.

The University of Wisconsin, and nearly all other universities as well, exerts tremendous effort to check daily attendance in its classes. In the large lecture groups great pains are taken to check the roll at every meeting. Instructors in most courses are burdened down with a system of checking and counter-checking in an effort to insure the presence of each student regularly, and to properly punish those who are not present.

No doubt, in the freshman courses, there is good reason for this endless amount of intricate record. Such a system presupposes that the students enrolled in the course have but little interest in the work, and will not attend the meetings of the class unless they are forced to do so.

Such a condition may exist in some of the introductory courses in the major universities of the country. It is true that even in the more advanced stages of the work there are certain students who show little interest other than that necessary to meet certain numerical standards.

It does seem illogical, however, to assume that the majority of students in their advanced work have no interest beyond that which they are forced to show because of certain mechanical specifications which they must meet.

On the whole, we feel that the overwhelming majority of students, as they progress with their university work, become definitely conscious of those things in which they are most interested. They become sure of the fields in which they wish to study, and their interest is not regulated by mechanical specifications of study, whatever they may be.

This fact has become so obvious that many individual professors have entirely abandoned the tediousness of roll taking. It is tiring to student and teacher alike, and occupies class time and class effort that could better be devoted to discussion of the subject itself.

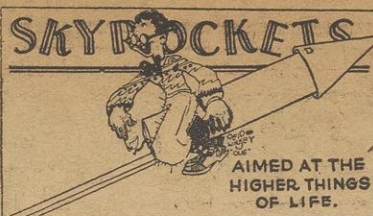

If a student does not attend his class, he himself is the loser. If he is interested in the work, he will attend as regularly as is physically possible. Absence hinders not at all the work of other members of the class. In view of these facts, endless energy to "take roll" seems like wasted effort, and "no cut" rules seem like relics of high school methods.

"Rastus, your dog seems to be in pain."

"No, suh, he ain't in pain—he's just lazy."

"But surely he must be suffering, or he wouldn't howl like that."

"Jes' plumb laziness, jes' laziness; he's sittin' on a thistle!"—Everybody's Magazine

By XANTIPPE

We guess the Ag School must have moved down there by the Chemistry Building—they seem to be doing their fall plowing with great diligence.

We read to our friend Sandy the item in the Deet that said that in Glasgow you can ride for twenty-three miles on the street cars for two cents. We thought the laddies must be quite rejoiced over there about the economy of it—but Sandy said most of them were grumbling because they hadn't made it an even twenty-five.

Something ought to be done about this incessant misrepresentation of statements made by professors on the hill. On the front page of a single issue of the Deet appear two different stories of distortion and garbling of lecturers' statements by the State Journal—distortion that made the statements seem lurid and violent. The reason, of course, is that a great part of our worthy townspeople like to believe that the university is a hot-bed of radicalism, atheism, immorality, and what-not. It is one of their pet prejudices, and naturally the press is inclined to pet it for them a bit.

It's something of a farce, isn't it, this holding of Scholarship Banquets at which speakers talk to the brilliant ones in our midst about the glories of learning. There might be some point in holding a banquet for those in imminent danger of flunking out, and then telling them all about scholarship and the means of attaining it. But to spend some half hour every once in a while telling good students, "You have behaved very nicely, and Mama University is proud of you. You are very good children"—stuffing compliments down their throats like sugarplums—it's a strange proceeding.

Three days before Homecoming the winners of the poster contest are announced. After that copies and reprints of the posters have to be made and then placed around in the store windows. Of course we were probably mistaken and had the wrong idea, but we did have some notion that these posters were to be used as advertising for Homecoming. Or are they going to have them up just the afternoon of the game, as a sort of decoration only, so to speak?

Now cometh the day when the fraternities and sororities invest in hundreds of yards of muslin, and take a whole day off to paint it, even the actives,—all to make decorations for the houses for one week-end. And then it will probably rain.

Well, we have secured our dummy seats for the game, and some time later today we shall wander over to the Ticket Office and exchange them for regular seats. If you ask us, the athletic department deserves a vote of thanks for going to the extra bother and expense to get seats for those of us who put everything off till the last minute, even Homecoming.

Persons we should like to meet some night in a dark and secluded alley, with a gun in our right hand: the person that sells Athletic Reviews at the games, pronouncing it always distinctly, "athletic review."

Bob Laughlot and his political machine, which replaces the one his old man busted up, won't be so leffing now. It's Blaine's fault, because he either is a poor guesser or guessed too soon. If he had stayed on the fence a couple weeks longer he could have guessed better which way the election was going to go, and could have gotten on the right bandwagon.

Pat Hyland said the other day that Roundy's success can be attributed largely to the fact that instead of trying to act like some one else, Roundy acts natural. I hope that Pat is wrong. I don't think a human could act like Roundy and be natural.

Remember that—I'll call it a car so you'll know what I mean—that was lying in a flower bed back of Bascom last week with its wheels in the air? Well Bob Kibasta thinks it's a prof's car because students aren't allowed to drive on the campus.

I wonder if the poor hay agrioolas think somebody is going to come to them with a formal invite to join the game called extercikler activities.

READER COMPLAINS OF NOT RECEIVING A 20 YARD LINE TICKET IN THREE GAMES

Editor, The Daily Cardinal:

This fall I ordered all my football tickets for the season as soon as I had obtained my fee card, which was Sept. 26. When the tickets came it appeared to me that the student who ordered his tickets first got the poorest seats.

For the Notre Dame game I was located in Section I, behind the goal line. At the Alabama game I had to sit in Section V, about as far from the so-called "student section" as I could get.

For the Chicago game I ordered the extra ticket which I am allowed, intending to invite a friend from a quite distant city to see our big red team in action. The seats I received are in Section K, row 1. Imagine how much of the game my guest and I will be able to see from that position. What will he think of my school for giving me seats like that.

I don't see why the ticket office recommends us to order our tickets early if they continually give us deals like that. I say "continually" because I am a senior, and haven't received a seat within the 20 yard line yet.

With a stadium having a seating capacity of 40,000, and the student enrollment equal to 9000, it looks mighty strange to me that the students can not be placed between the 20 yard lines.

GOOD WISHES FOR THE UNION FROM AN ALUMNA

TO the Wisconsin Union: (Released to The Daily Cardinal.)

As I still owe $20 on my Memorial pledge, I want to pay it up all at once so am enclosing a check for the full balance due—$20—instead of $10 as requested in the statement sent to me a few days ago.

I am happy to pay off the pledge at this time, and only hope that sometime in years to come I may add a generous check to the small amount I am now giving. However, this amount, at least, will clear up my promise to pay and wipe the slate clean!

This week-end while in Madison, I hope to go through the Memorial Union and see for myself how very fine it really is and I feel confident that my husband from the University of Nebraska will have to admit that we do things up right!

The stadium at his university is about the only thing one could rave about, for our campus is far superior in every way. After living in Madison, I'd have to carry my own tree around with me if I attempted to go to school at Lincoln! But their fraternities, at least, have fine houses, also.

Book Notes

ALL KNEELING, By Anne Parrish, Harpers; $2.50.

We remember Anne Parrish as author of "The Perennial Bachelor," which won the Harpers Prize contest in 1925. All Kneeling, modern and much lighter reading, is an amusing satire on a girl who from childhood had been the center of interest of those about her. To them all, the aristocratic, stuffy old aunts and the aesthetic young artists, she was a saint granting them audience to her loveliness of beauty and soul.

They knelt at the altar before her granting her every wish. It never occurred to them that this sweet innocence was deliberate strategy on Christabel's part to gain her way. Her conceit and something of the way she camouflaged it to herself and others is seen in this bit from her amusing journal:

"It isn't Outer Beauty that I want, and yet I must be grateful for this gift that makes me able to give pleasure to so many. And I can't help knowing that some kind people think I'm lovely-looking. I can't put my fingers in my ears and shut my eyes all the time."

Everyone was taken in by her pose of innocent, madonna-like perfection except Uncle Johnnie who, Christabel explains, is really quite cynical since he was jilted years ago. And Uncle Johnnie dissects his inimitable niece thus to a puzzled young thing whose lover Christabel coveted and won:

"She is a sea-Anemone. She takes the things that feed her; she ejects everything else. A sea-anemone looks like a delicate flower, pink or cream or lilac, with its tentacles moving as gently as petals in a breeze, but it can send out a shower of stinging tiny darts, and it can grasp what it wants."

And this smart and clever novel leaves with us the thought—Have we ever been taken in by a Christabel Craine.

What should one really talk about? If you talk about yourself you're conceited. If you talk about business you're a "shop talker." If you talk too much you're a bore. If you haven't anything to talk about you're uninteresting. If you talk about your baby or your club affiliations you're a Babbitt. If you talk sweetly about a friend you're a log-roller. If you talk about art you're a high-brow, and if you don't talk at all you're a high hat!

Cellulose Acetate Helpful Chemical

Takes Place of Silk Worm;
Removes Movie Film
Fire Hazard

By J. H. MATHEWS

Director, Course in Chemistry

Silk stockings which never had a silk worm for a parent; movie film that will not burn; tough, transparent wrappings for bakery bread—for these items of our daily lives we are indebted to cellulose acetate.

Movie film formerly was made altogether of nitrated cellulose and camphor (celluloid), but unfortunately this material is so inflammable that films burn with almost explosive violence when ignited. Although the explosive element has not wholly been removed from the cinema, the modern non-inflammable film made of cellulose acetate has removed a dangerous fire hazard from the movie projection room.

Good for Wrapping

Doubtless many persons have been astonished at the toughness and strength of the extremely thin transparent wrappings which have been of late used on packages of food products, candies, cigarettes, and other life "necessities." This toughness is one of the important characteristics of cellulose acetate. These wrappings can be sealed hermetically by cellulose acetate varnish, affording us a package which is moisture-proof and protected from contamination by dirt or disease germs.

But probably the major role of cellulose acetate is in the manufacture of that modern essential—the silk stocking, so much in evidence now-a-days. Although there are three other kinds of artificial silk in commercial production, cellulose acetate is being used to a considerable extent.

Artificial Silk

The artificial silk made from this material differs from other products in that it resists dyes that others will take. In this way a combination of Canadian college girls use more rouge than the British girls, according to a group of women students who visited the University of Toronto. One of the visitors suggested that the situation was a result of American influence.

Two artificial silks in the same fabric may be used for the production of two-color effects. While these artificial silks are in some ways inferior to natural silk, they have a higher luster and are far cheaper. A reasonable amount of artificial silk can be added to cotton, producing a very strong and a very lustrous fabric.

The manufacture of cellulose acetate is an art in itself, although the process sounds simple. Cotton is treated with acetic anhydride and acetic acid, and the product is dissolved. But unless this treatment and the subsequent aging are carried out under very careful chemical control, particularly as regards temperature, the resulting product is insoluble and useless.

Blue Shield to Fete Its Alumni

Country Life Club to Hold Homecoming Breakfast Tomorrow

The Blue Shield Country Life club announces a Homecoming breakfast to be held Saturday at 8 a. m. at the Wesley foundation. All students interested in Blue Shield activities and all alumni who were formerly members of the club or of the Agricultural Triangle club which has been superseded by Blue Shield, are cordially invited to attend.

The Country Life club has been re-organized this year and is now operating under a new type of program. One of the changes it has made in its programs has involved a shift from the series of novelty numbers which formerly characterized its entertainments to a one-act play which serves as a nucleus around which the other features of the program are built.

The committee in charge of the Homecoming breakfast includes the following students:

Wayne Gray, grad., chairman of the program committee; Marianna Dickie '29, chairman of the refreshment committee; Esther Deppe '29, chairman of the invitation committee and Lawrence Clay '32, chairman of the decorations committee. Assistants on the committees have not been announced.

Dr. Charles Barden, dean of the medical school, in commenting on the lecturer, said, "Colonel Garrison is one of the most distinguished librarians and medical historians in the country."

Claim Minnesota Held Illegal Vote

Charging that ballot stuffing and violation of the voting rules occurred in at least two elections, several students of the University of Minnesota will appear before the university council.

Electioneering with 50 feet of the ballot and irregularities in voting by proxy were among the violations reported.

John Riordan, a student, further stated that he believed the university council to be biased in regard to decisions it had made on the legality of certain votes.

Famed Alumni Averaged 88.4

Survey Shows Good School Work Means Success in Life

Men and women who have achieved success in their after-college careers were those who generally attained scholarship records far above the average, according to a study made by the Bureau of Graduate Records and Reference.

This survey was conducted by the bureau in co-operation with Albert Kraeger, a senior in the course in statistics. The aim was to determine what degree of correlation existed between high grades and successful achievement after college days ended.

Incomes Disregarded
Money incomes were disregarded. The survey based its study on achievement that corresponds with the purposes of the university, and the ideals of service to the community.

Judges of candidates for this Badger "Hall of Fame" represent the faculty, students, and alumni. In their selection they ignored grades as a starting point.

All Professions Represented
This group of 100 men and women graduates were chosen from a list of 230 people who have appeared in the alumni section of the Badger in the years 1924-1927. They represent people from all professions from agriculturists to governors.

The scholastic average of all the 100 was 88.4, which is a high average for a four-year course. In contrast to this, the all-university scholastic average for the past four years has been between 79 and 80, according to files in the registrar's office.

Average Barber's Wages Are Only $25 Every Week

Do barbers earn such fabulous wages each week that they are able to ride around in luxurious limousines? And do they, according to Dame Rumor, earn so very much more since they have raised their prices? Facts and figures seem to disprove these statements—in fact, they actually deny them for the average wages of the tonorial artists is only $25 a week, and

Barnard's Band Ignores Hot Jazz for Old Classics

Despite the fact that the twentieth century is considered the jazz-age, 14 Barnard girls have organized a purely classical orchestra.

For the last three years, Barnard orchestras have made whoopee for the 10:30 party occasions when the girls assembled after curfew. But this year's model has decided that the orthophonic is sufficient for that purpose, and the home orchestral entertainment presented at Barnard programs will be distinctly classical.

The organization of the orchestra was suggested by Dean Nardin. Margaret Twelvig, a senior in the School of Music, is director; and Gertrude Buss '31 is chairman. Material to work on was provided by Professor Morgan, of the School of Music.

Five violins, two pianos, a saxophone, viola, flute, clarinet, and cornet make up the organization.

Dean Nardin to Deliver Speeches

Dean F. Louise Nardin, who has been attending the teacher's convention in Milwaukee, speaks at a breakfast at the Schroeder hotel this morning before Pi Lambda Theta, national educational fraternity for women, of which Miss Nardin is one of the most ting 65 per cent on every job that they do.

So, even though Prof. C. F. Gillen would say "It's more profitable to be a bricklayer than a professor," still the barbers do not seem to gather so much of the worldly goods as they are given credit for getting.

Women Ask Aid of Iowa Officials

Attack Aimed at Riotous
Celebrations After Football Games

IOWA CITY, Ia. — The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has asked the aid of University and Iowa City officials in an attempt to stop riotous celebrations after football games. These officials have expressed themselves anxious to help, in every way, to abolish bootleggers and drinking. A new light was thrown on the situation by one of the university professors, who said that drinking was not carried on by the students, but by adults and outsiders.

A great deal of damage has been caused by unruly crowds, celebrating the outcome of the games, according to University authorities.

"We need public help and cooperation instead of criticism," Chief of Police Benda stated. "No one can control a situation where persons are drinking in their residences and places of business."

Colbert Cites Statistics to Milwaukee Group

Current church statistics were cited by Prof. R. J. Colbert of the University extension in a talk before the Federation of Church Women's club of Milwaukee Wednesday afternoon. Full Time for MacGregor Here

To Devote Himself Exclusively to University Extension Department

Because the office of executive secretary of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities has been taking too much of his time, Prof. Ford H. Mac-

Gregor of the university extension has resigned from that post. In his letter of withdrawal he requested that the resignation become effective not later than Dec. 31.

In giving his reasons for leaving the position which he has held for 17 years, Professor MacGregor declared that the manifold duties of the office have been increasing to such an extent that it is necessary to employ a full-time secretary. This is due to the necessity of watching the records of all bills introduced before the legislature.

Professor MacGregor was the third man to occupy the office. The first secretary of the league was former Prof. Samuel Spaulding. The holder of the position is allowed $1,200 a year, but this amount includes compensation for all extra help that the secretary is required to employ.

Predicts End of Democrat Party

Bi-Party System Is Only a Theory, According to Harris

The gradual decline of the Democratic party until it entirely disappears from the horizon of national politics is seen by Prof. J. P. Harris of the political science department who reviewed the presidential election returns before the meeting of the League of Women Voters Wednesday night.

In summarizing the situation he told the assemblage that the bi-party system is only a theory as far as the present is concerned, the Republican party being the only political power in the country.

Emphasizing his point, he showed that the "Solid South" is no more, that the personality of Al Smith only temporarily revived the Democratic party, and that it will lack a leader to set forth in 1932 for the presidency.

In closing he regretted that religion had played so great a part in the election, saying that the reason why Smith had failed to carry all the southern states and the reason he had carried Rhode Island and Massachusetts was prejudice as to his beliefs. He said that the New Yorker's outspoken stands on the important issues of the campaign had cost him many votes.

The meeting of Alpha Kappa Delta, honorary sociology fraternity, which was originally scheduled for tonight, has been indefinitely postponed, it was announced Thursday.

The freshman "A" team will use an offense make up of Iowa plays, the same formation which they will use against the varsity in preparation for the Iowa game. The intramural team has been drilling hard, and expects to make a creditable showing against any frosh team which will be pitted against them.

These games will be the first to be played this year on the Wisconsin league schedule. The gridirons are in good condition, and a large crowd of spectators is expected to see the opening games.

Honor Frost at Banquet in Union

Prof. William Dodge Frost, professor of agricultural bacteriology, will be the guest of honor at a dinner given for him by his present and former students in the Memorial Union at 11 a. m. Saturday, Nov. 10. Benjamin O. D. Eggleston, distinguished artist of Brooklyn, N. Y. and life-long friend of Professor Frost, will present the latter with a painting of himself.

Thirty-three years ago, Professor Frost first came to the University of Wisconsin. He had graduated from the University of Minnesota in 1893 with a B. S. degree. The year 1893-94 was spent in graduate work and as a scholar in botany at the University of Minnesota, and there he received the degree of M. S. in 1894. In the fall of 1894 he started work with the Minnesota State Board of Health as assistant in biology, and gave instruction in bacteriology in the department of public health at the University of Minnesota. In 1895 he joined the University of Wisconsin faculty as an instructor in bacteriology.

Professor Frost is a member of the Minnesota Academy of Science and of the Wisconsin Academy of Science, Arts, and Letters.
