Survey Showed Many Defects In Schools

Postpone Problem of City Garbage Disposal

Recommending that the city defer the collection and disposal of garbage in any form until such time as it is in better financial condition, and also recommending the enforcement of an existing ordinance regulating the collection of garbage, the committee of six, appointed by Mayor Goodland two weeks ago to study disposal of garbage by methods other than incineration made its report to the common council Wednesday evening. The council was tied on the acceptance or rejection of the report, and Mayor Goodland cast the vote which settled for the time being at least, the garbage disposal question which has been before the council five months. Aldermen Earle, Groth, Kittner, McGillan, Richards, and Vanderheyden voted in favor of the report, while Gmeiner, Packard, Steinhauer, Thompson, Vogt, and Wassenberg voted against it.

The report follows:

"1. Owing to the financial condition of the city at this time we believe it would be good, sound business principles to defer the collection and disposal of garbage by the city in any form until such time as the city is in better financial condition.

"2. That the $65,000 placed in the budget for the building of an incinerator and collection of garbage, be allowed to apply on our bank loans, in this way reducing the indebtedness of the city.

"3. That we enforce our present ordinance regulating the collection of garbage which provides for licensing collectors, compelling the use of sanitary collection boxes, garbage cans and other regulations.

"4. That the city, by its street department, collect all cans, bottles and rubbish, four or six times a year, or monthly, if necessary and haul it to the nearest dumping grounds or place to be selected for that purpose where it can be burned.

"5. That the present garbage ordinance be amended to include the maximum amount that may be charged by the collectors at 50 cents per month for ground collection and that all garbage collectors agree to collect garbage twice a week during the months of April, May, June, July, August, September and October and once each week for the balance of the year."

A lengthy and bitter argument followed presentation of the report. Proponents of both the incineration and hog feeding methods vigorously upheld their positions. Alderman Packard of the First Ward who is a staunch advocate of garbage incineration sought rejection of the report on a technical point, asserting that the resolution providing for establishment of an investigating committee specifically provided for a committee to study methods of garbage disposal by means other than incineration, and did not carry provisions for "suggestions". He contended also that the committee was not a fair one since every member excepting himself had previously voted against the incinerator. By resolution of Alderman Vanderheyden the word "suggestion" in the committee's report was changed to "recommendation."

Charges of the city's taking a backward step were rampant during the argument of those in favor of the incinerator, while the opposition steadfastly extolled the need of reducing the city's indebtedness and considering a more elaborate disposal system when finances warrant it. Only five aldermen failed to participate in the verbal battle that preceded the vote. They were Earle of the Second ward, Gmeiner and Richards of the Third ward, Groth of the Fifth ward, and Kittner of the Sixth ward.

The question of widening Appleton street by cutting off 2½ feet from the sidewalk on each side of the street was brought before the council through the report of the street and bridge committee. Considerable discussion followed. Alderman Steinhauer urged establishment of set back lines on both N. Appleton and N. Superior Streets instead of the widening program. This matter was deferred until an opinion is received concerning set back lines. Later in the evening the city engineer was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for widening the street. The vote was a tie, Earle, Gmeiner, Kittner, Richards, Vogt, Wassenberg voting for and Groth, McGillan, Packard, Steinhauer, Thompson, and Vanderheyden voting against the preparation of plans and specifications. The mayor cast the vote which sustained the resolution.

Plans and specifications were ordered prepared in the matter of paving River drive, and portions of Verbrick, S. River, W. Summer and Ida streets.

The report of the planning commission to include property occupied by the Consolidated Paper and Pulp company in the industrial district was adopted, and the city attorney instructed to prepare an ordinance establishing the district. The salary ordinance was passed with only slight discussion concerning employment of additional help at the City Home.

The council went on record as against appealing the case of the Catholic Home association against the city for refund of 1929 taxes and exemption from taxation in the future. The city attorney will investigate the case.

Alderman Steinhauer suggested that the Fourth ward aldermen make inquiry from the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company regarding a plot of ground in the lower Fourth ward for park purposes. He expressed the belief that an option could be secured if there was interest in the land for such purposes.

Several minor items were presented and referred to committees.

Alterations Necessary in All Grade School Buildings to Fit Them For Further Use

Appleton has not had a new grade school building since 1907. This was the year the Franklin school was built. Previous to that time there had been a new building put up every few years. Suppose a boy, a very young lad, was provided with several suits of clothes, about four or five all at one time. Then a great many years went by before he ever got any additional articles of wearing apparel. What would happen? Three things. First of all the boy would have outgrown all of the four or five suits he got at one time; second, the suits would be pretty badly worn and would look extremely shabby; and third, every one of the suits would be ridiculously out of style.

This is, or was, exactly the situation with Appleton's grade school buildings. We do not think we are drawing a very far fetched comparison in saying that the eight elementary school plants can be likened to the small boy's suits purchased many years ago. In the year of 1922 fifteen years had elapsed since there had been any additional buildings and the ones we had were outgrown by the increasing school population and jammed to capacity. They were also pretty badly shop-worn and shabby in their general appearance. Last of all they were in no sense modern and were not equipped with the latest or even recent conveniences in school building and class room construction—those things which insure a more sanitary, safer, lighter and pleasanter environment for children and teacher to work in.

The school boards of the various districts realized all these shortcomings and in 1922 took steps to have a thorough investigation conducted in the Appleton schools—a survey which would give the people of Appleton some definite facts about how their schools stood in comparison to others and how they measured up to the standards set for model school buildings of that time.

The Strayer and Engelhardt system of scoring was used in this thorough 1922 survey. This system of scoring was based on an exhaustive study of school buildings throughout the United States and was generally accepted as the best. The scoring on the various buildings in Appleton was done by four observers acting entirely independently of one another. As it turned out there was not more of a variance than 4 points out of a possible thousand when the scoring was finished.

Appleton's average was fairly favorable as compared to many cities where the survey had been taken but the detailed results of the survey showed that this city had much to accomplish before it could hope to have anything which approached a truly modern and up-to-the-minute group of school buildings. This city scored 713 out of a possible 1,000 points. The score in St.

Paul, Minn., was only 567 out of 1,000 for 49 schools in that city and in Omaha, Neb., it was still lower, being only 560.

Local schools received a low score on special rooms such as gymnasiums, laboratories, and shops. The average score was 54 per cent for these things. Only one or two of the buildings were equipped with gymnasiums and these were only make-shift affairs. They had been fashioned from two or three classrooms thrown together with some meager equipment added.

Heating and ventilating systems, toilet facilities and fire protection averaged 66 per cent up to standard. In the Washington and Jefferson buildings the toilets measured up to only about 50 per cent of the standard. Seclusion of boys' and girls' toilets in different sections of the buildings was found to be fairly good, except for the Fourth district or McKinley building.

Only two schools had been provided with humidifiers up to 1922. In some instances the so-called fresh air rooms in the basements were adjacent to the coal bins, thus allowing coal dust and soot to be carried throughout the entire building in the circulation of the fresh or outside air.

It was found that most buildings were not properly arranged and that additions had been poorly placed with reference to the original structure. This was especially true in the cases of the McKinley school and the First ward school.

Class room scores were significantly low because of the poor arrangement of these rooms, improper and inadequate illumination. The senior high school building also received a low score on its classrooms. The interior finish of most classrooms was found to be very unsatisfactory, being of such a dark hue that it absorbed a great portion of the necessary light. In almost every instance the artificial lighting was terrible and in no building was a uniform system of artificial lighting installed. The fixtures were for the most part inadequate and the shading of lamps and gloves was not properly carried out.

This question of lighting and a dark and usually ugly interior finish in classrooms applied almost universally to every building in the city.

For the most part the survey showed the basements to be in pretty good condition. A notable exception, however, was the Jefferson building, where some of the rooms were used as store-rooms.

The city, of course, boasted of no fireproof grade school buildings, nor any that even approached fireproof conditions. The survey recommended that stairways in all of the schools should be made safe by being enclosed in fireproof walls, and stated further that corridors should be of fireproof construction. Fire gongs were improperly installed in numerous instances.

Another important thing in which Appleton school buildings drew a rather low score was the matter of blackboards. In numerous cases it was found that the boards were not placed at the proper height from the floor and that the light on them was either glaring or inadequate.

These were the principal defects as revealed by the 1922 survey which faced the school boards of the four districts. Three years later when the union system came into being most of the defects were still in evidence. The district board members can hardly be blamed for not launching out on a vast improvement program in the various buildings, knowing as they did, that it would only be a matter of a year or two when the union system would be adopted and functioning in the city. They were not anxious to make extensive repairs and alterations which might not jibe with the ideas of the new school board which would be elected with the inauguration of the union system.

It was very apparent to everyone familiar with the situation that it would be necessary to spend large sums of money to get some of these old buildings into proper condition, to make extensive alterations not only to conform to the new standards in sanitation and safety but to prolong the life of the buildings themselves. Almost all of the grade schools in town were built back in the last century and since that time the school population has increased by several hundred per cent. The junior high schools have been built but this does not alter the fact that several thousand children from kindergarten through sixth grade must still be provided for in eight buildings not built in accordance with the standards of the last five or even ten years. The only thing to do was to make extensive changes and alterations with the buildings available and this is what was done and is being done today under the union system.

The next article of this series will begin the account of what has been done in the various schools of the city in the last five years.

(This is the second of a series of articles appearing in the Review concerning the increase in cost of school administration in Appleton. The third will appear in Tuesday's issue.—The Editor.)

Downer Soda Fountain One of Largest in State

One of the most complete and up-to-date soda fountains in this part of the country is the "Fountainette", opened for business today in Downer's Pharmacy in the new Irving Zuelke building. The entire job was planned with the idea of rapid service and is so arranged that, when necessary, three soda dispensers and seven assistants can wait on the public. The dry expansion refrigeration system, which requires no brine, is used giving an almost absolute control of temperature of which no less than fifteen different degrees can be maintained for various compartments. The advantage of this is the subjecting of different food products to the exact temperature best suited, a variation of three degrees being the maximum, once the regulator is adjusted.

All the hot compartments and steam table are heated electrically and all dishes sterilized before using. For better sanitation the different compartments are made of Allegheny metal which requires no polishing to retain its bright and glossy finish.

To insure absolute uniformity in the drinks dispensed, precision pumps are used, so that the amount of syrup never varies. Another feature will be the fact that the ice cream used will be manufactured on the premises, thus guaranteeing absolutely the highest quality. Storage is provided for 160 gallons and five different flavors of ice cream and five of sherbets will be carried, giving a range of sundaes and sodas to be found nowhere except in the larger cities.

The equipment is especially arranged to specialize on coffee and malted milk, the installation having cost probably twice as much as is customarily expended on these departments of fountains. The coffee is manufactured in individual cups by the Silex method, again assuring absolute uniformity.

Although no expense has been spared in building the "Fountainette" everything is planned to serve the public quickly and cheaply. Earl Boulden, the manager, has spent most of his time for several months travelling about the country and inspecting similar establishments, so that all the best features have been incorporated. With the kitchen in the basement, where all the cooking will be done except the pies and bread, the management will have control of the food furnished at all times and is planning to establish a caterer's service in connection. For this purpose a complete line of party moulds and season specialties for ice creams will be carried so that complete service and prompt delivery can be furnished on short notice.

The merchant group consists of John Neller, Roscoe Gage, J. R. Whitman and Herbert Satterstrom.

Goeres Is New President of Walton League

Dr. Max Goeres was elected 1931 president of the Appleton chapter of the Izaak Walton league at a meeting Thursday evening in the E. W. Shannon store, 300 E. College Ave. Dr. Goeres succeeds E. W. Shannon as head of the league in Appleton. Max Koletzke was chosen vice president and Harvey Romberg of Greenville was elected a director. The secretary for the coming year will be chosen at a later date by the officers.

Matters pertaining to the propagation of pheasants in Outagamie county and the establishment of fish breeding ponds were discussed by the Waltonians.

Drunken Driver Smashes Into Menasha Car

Peter Powless, route 2, Oneida, driving north on Memorial Drive Thursday crashed into a car driven by Mrs. John Wilterding, Menasha, as Mrs. Wilterding started to turn west on W. Prospect St. She also had been going north on Memorial Drive. Investigation soon disclosed that Powless was drunk. He was arrested by Officers Duval and Radtke.

This morning in municipal court he was given the option of a fine amounting to $50 and costs or 60 days in jail. He will lose his driver's license for the customary period of six months. Up to a late hour this morning Powless had not paid the fine. The front of his car was badly damaged in the accident.

William Young, route 2, Appleton, was arrested Thursday by Officer Radtke on a charge of drunkenness. He was assessed a fine of $25 and costs which had not been paid at a late hour this morning. In the event the fine is not paid Young will spend 30 days in the county jail.

Fifth Ward Voters Meet Monday Evening

MELLON'S CRY OF "WOLF"

Congress has a pretty substantial football to kick around in the proposal to pay in full the adjusted compensation certificates held by more than three million veterans of the World war. Although the powerful opposition to this movement may result in defeat of full payment, yet it will be almost impossible from the standpoint of humane consideration as well as political expediency to drop the matter without giving relief where it is due.

What Andrew Mellon, secretary of the treasury, has to say about the demoralization of the country's financial structure if a bond issue of more than three billion dollars is launched, carries little weight with the veterans of the World war. Every time a bill has come up in congress giving something to the soldier, sailor and marine, he has predicted vast deficits. Each time the fiscal year ended with a vast surplus, to be applied against war debts. He therefore has lost the confidence of those who might otherwise respect his judgment, and his present opposition is termed another "wolf" cry.

It is rather generally known that Wall street bankers wanted the bonus paid, not the veterans. A government bond issue would give them a place to employ idle millions at interest. The release of millions into the channels of trade by the re-imbursed veterans would stimulate revival. Of course after the idea became prevalent, the veterans themselves saw in this an opportunity to save homes or farms slipping away from them and to provide for their families until jobs came back. Now the momentum cannot be stopped. The American Legion, reflecting an overwhelming sentiment among its members, has declared for full cash payment, "on application," with the reservation that the needs of the disabled must come first.

The heartrending reports from Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and other drought stricken areas are the basis of the appeal, not so much localities like Wisconsin. Even in the industrial cities here, however, veterans in the early years of married life are finding it impossible to keep up payments on homes, or keep body and soul together until employment improves. Col. Roy F. Farrand, state commander of The American Legion, in his recent address here said, "It were better that there be a thousand goldbrickers than that one veteran in dire want be made to suffer."

We would not want to see business further demoralized by any move affecting our basis financial structure. Neither would we want mushroom prosperity, with another recession. Yet the government should find a way now to take care of veterans actually needing help. This nation cancelled large portions of Allied debts; settled liberally with railroads and large corporations for broken war contracts. Now it can do what is right for the men who were willing to die, as thousands did, to save their country. Let the settlements from the Allied nations pay the bond issue. They have paid more already than the issue would require and it is safe to assume they will continue to do so.

Let us at least save from misery those whose economic salvation would be accomplished by payment of the bonus.

24 NOTCHES ON THE COUNTY'S GUN

If some slayer were at large in Outagamie county and killed one person each two weeks regularly throughout the year, we would call out the Wisconsin National Guard if necessary to put an end to such carnage. Every man would be in fear of his life and pandemonium would reign.

Just a few days ago the State of Wisconsin reported 24 deaths from automobile accidents in Outagamie county during 1930. That was an average of about one every two weeks. How much a matter of course such a situation has become! We kill our citizens, follow the cortege solemnly to the cemetery, shed a tear or two and go about our business. Occasionally there is a ripple of protest. Soon we slump back to the same old indifference.

What will 1931 bring? Will it be our home that bears the crepe next, and with it the impassioned sorrow of a sudden passing of a loved one?

How much are lives worth in this county? About the paltry sum of a year's pay and maintenance for two motorcycle officers. That is about all we pay for safety. We expect two men to keep automobile drivers within bounds and make them drive carefully. They cannot do much, especially when they are called hither and yon for other duties than highway patrolling.

Just to show where some of the responsibility for these deaths lies, let us cite the example of Leppla's Corners, a known death trap west of Appleton. We pleaded in these columns for an effective control system at that point. Something was said about putting up luminous danger signs, but even this was not done.

Stationing a policeman at this corner for a day now and then to make arrests is only a gesture. Drivers do not heed country arterial signs as they should, and it is always the stranger, insensible to the danger of this corner, who speeds through. The home drivers know the situation. Some system that permanently corrects the danger is needed, such as "stop and go" lights. No doubt the county officials will wait until two or three more have been killed and they will then begin to talk about doing something.

What we need is a capable commission to make a thorough study of traffic safety. This body of men ought to gather the facts concerning all of the 24 deaths of the last year. The cause of each should be determined. A study should also be made of the movement of traffic in every section of the county. Each danger point should be charted and proper protection ordered. There should be recommendations as to protection of intersections. The commission should determine whether frequent patrolling of all main highways would be the answer to the present condition. If it meant a dozen motorcycle officers instead of two, even that expenditure would be a cheap price for the lives we now sacrifice.

Accidents are inevitable. We cannot remove them entirely. It would be the biggest achievement of 1931 if officials throughout the county could reduce automobile deaths by one-half this year. If they continue to sit idly by, judgment will surely be on their heads for being a party to this wanton killing.

A CHALLENGE TO ANY LAD

February stands out among all the months of the year as an inspirational one. It is the occasion for celebrating the birthday anniversaries of two of our great Americans, Washington and Lincoln. These men stand out not only as famous characters of the United States, but they rank with the great men of the world.

There is value in the appeal to patriotism made possible by teaching the younger generation about their lives. There is a greater value, however, in quoting these men as examples of opportunity. They were not the descendants of crowned heads or money kings who reached their pinnacle through inheritance. They were the plain, rugged stock of which typical Americans are made.

In a motion picture at a local theater depicting the life of Abraham Lincoln, there was a sublime inspiration as the humble log cabin of his birth faded into a gleaming picture of the White House at Washington. That is enough of an incentive for any lad with ambition.

It would be a happy situation for our city officials if the remainder of the winter were like the past months. Money budgeted for snow removal, if not used, would come in handy to help retire other obligations.

Seems that one of the new duties of bank officials is to lie on the floor while the bandits are in conference.

NEWS REVIEW

A Digest of Events and Trends for Busy People

C. J. Chapman, an expert on soils, will spend four days in Outagamie county during March. Mr. Gus Sell, county agricultural agent, will arrange a series of soil testing clinics, to which farmers may bring soil samples for testing.

Roberts Filter Manufacturing company of Darby, Pa., was awarded the contract to furnish pipe and equipment for the new outdoor aerator at the city pumping station. The firm's bid was $3,845.

Federal Meter company of East Orange, N. J., received the contract for 300 new water meters, to be furnished at $7.20 each.

Louis Waltman, Robert Schultz, Louis Stammer, Henry Hegner, Henry Sprister, and Henry Lauer were elected delegates to the Master Builders convention to be held at Kenosha, February 11, 12, and 13. John Weiland, city building inspector, was invited to attend the convention as a guest of the local convention.

The largest number of marriage licenses issued during the month of January in recent years was issued by County Clerk John E. Hantschel in January, 1931. There were 31 licenses granted, as compared to eleven in 1930 and seventeen in 1929.

Alex Roggenbauer, 17, Neosho, who was arrested in Appleton last Sunday by Officer Hersekorn, who observed that the license on a car he was driving did not correspond with the make of the car, was sentenced in court at West Bend to two to five years in the state reformatory at Green Bay.

Catholic Home association filed a friendly suit against the city of Appleton to recover taxes paid by it in 1929 and restraining the city from collecting taxes in the future so long as the home is used for charitable purposes. Judge Edgar V. Werner filed an opinion with Sydney Shannon, clerk of the courts, declaring that the home should be exempt from taxation and that it is entitled to a refund of $253.60, taxes paid in 1929. The taxing of this building has been protested since 1924, when it was known as the Forester Home. The Foresters started action against the city, but dropped the suit later without arriving at a settlement. The common council on Wednesday evening decided not to appeal the case.

Junior class of the Appleton high school has started rehearsals on its play "Under Twenty" to be presented at Lawrence Memorial chapel March 2. Class play managers are Jacob Schilerat, Charles Herzog, Howard Bowlby, Byron Frogner, Marjorie Jacobson, and Betty Elias, who will attend to financial, business, advertising, stage and property matters. The cast includes Alice Doerfler, Veronica Robedeau, Delores Tustison, Marcella Haberman, Ruth Weinkauf, Cyrus Trettin, Robert Sellers, Harvey Wolfgram, William Zuehlke, Jr., and an ensemble consisting of June Kaufman, Margaret Lappen, Inez Wurl, Margaret Plank, William Wilson, Merrill Mohr, John Rechner, and Frank Dean.

The suit for $10,000 damages brought by William D. Schultz, Greenville, administrator of the estate of Charles W. Schultz, deceased, against David Bilsker, Chicago, was settled out of court. The suit was the result of an automobile accident last August in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz were killed.

Outagamie county received $5,185.87 interest on deposits in county banks for the year ending September 30, 1930. County funds are distributed among all banks in the county, the Citizen's National Bank being the active depository. The active fund draws interest at the rate of 1½ per cent while other deposits draw 2 per cent.

Receipts at the Appleton postoffice during January 1931 were $165.10 greater than in January 1930, according to the monthly report of William H. Zuehlke, acting postmaster. This year's receipts during January were $15,146.08 compared to $14,980.98 for January 1930. Sale of stamps produced $13,798.29; second class postage, $384.52; permit material $551.02 and box rents $412.25.

Sherman Streeter, Appleton, was remanded to the county jail for twenty days by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Wednesday following his arrest on a charge of drunkenness. Streeter was unable to pay a fine of $20.

Children attending the Appleton Orphedpic school attended the presentation of Abraham Lincoln at the Appleton theatre Thursday afternoon. Miss Jane Holt, physiotherapist, Mrs. Jessie Collins, principal, and Mrs. F. B. Stevens, matron, accompanied the children.

Appleton's bank loans were wiped out when City Treasurer F. E. Bachman Wednesday issued a check for $101,000 to pay off the remaining portion of the debt. During the month of January $119,000 was paid. The generous response of taxpayers to pay their taxes early was lauded by Mayor Goodland, who stated that through this cooperation the city saved about $1,000 in interest.

Everett Granger, Appleton, was bound over for trial February 24 on a charge of failure to support his wife. He was released on bonds of $500 when he appeared for preliminary hearing in municipal court Tuesday.

Albert Polzin and Libby Smith, town of Oneida, were scheduled for appearance in municipal court this afternoon to answer charges of lewd and lascivious conduct. They were arrested Tuesday by Sheriff John Lappen.

Miss Ethel M. Hillburg, deputy collector of internal revenue, will be in the city hall during February to make income tax investigations. Office space has been provided for her in the city hall. A deputy will be in the city from March 9 to 16 to assist taxpayers in filing income tax returns.

Mike McHugh, route 1, Shiocton, presented a claim for $5 bounty on a bobcat which he killed in the vicinity of Mountain. The animal measured about three feet in length. The bounties are paid by the state, so that claims may be filed in any county regardless of where the animal was killed. McHugh's claim was the first one to be received this year.

A. H. Krugmeier, Appleton; F. J. Sensenbrenner, Neenah; W. H. Miner, Menasha; D. P. Steinberg, and Seymour Gmeiner, Appleton, will serve as directors of the Winnebago Land company for a period of one year. Directors of the Butte des Morts golf club, elected for a three year term, are Ernst Mahler, Neenah; Mowry Smith, Menasha; R. H. Marston, Dr. W. E. O'Keefe, and J. L. Jacquot of Appleton. George K. Vitense will again be the club professional, starting full time duties on June 1.

February 24 has been set as the date for a public hearing on the level of Lake Winnebago at the crest of the Menasha dam, according to word received from the war department. The hearing will be held at the city hall in Menasha. Major H. M. Trippe, of the war department engineers at Milwaukee, will conduct the hearing. The meeting was called at the request of the cities of Oshkosh and Fond du Lac and the Association for the Relief of High Waters. This group objects to raising the level from the 15 inch limit to 21½ inches, claiming that damage would result both to the cities and riparians in their neighborhoods. Oral statements will be heard, though it has been suggested that important arguments be submitted in writing, as records of the meeting are forwarded to the war department.

City and county officials below Oshkosh have been fighting to bring about the order raising the water level. They charge that the lower level does not permit of proper flushing of the river, that foul stenches arise during the hot summer months, and that loss of fish life has been inestimable due to the condition of the river.

Outagamie county has collected only about $250 of the $1,000 assigned as this county's quota in the Red Cross drive for funds to alleviate suffering in the drouth stricken areas of the south. There has been no concentrated drive to secure the amount, Red Cross officials having announced the assessment of the county chapter and appealed for cooperation. P. M. Conkey and A. P. Jensen are receiving the contributions.

Four new mothers' pensions were granted by the poor relief committee of the county board Wednesday afternoon. Application in two cases was denied, three were held for further investigation, and 12 were granted.

Martin Gauerke, Grand Chute, who was recently fined $25 and costs for shooting two dogs which he charged were molesting his rabbits, has filed notice of an appeal to circuit court. The dogs

Youngsters at Orthopedic School Have Great Sport With New Scooters

Two hundred scooters have been made by boys in the workshops at the Appleton Vocational school, but it is doubtful if any of them brought more pleasure and genuine joy to youngsters anywhere than did nine which the Vocational school recently presented to the Appleton Orthopedic school. The scooters are the first active play equipment that the orthopedic school has received, and the interest and enthusiasm of the children who come here both for physiotherapy treatment and academic instruction, are indescribable.

Though handicapped by maimed legs and arms, these youngsters make the best of their predicament and enter into the fun of scooting in the same rollicking spirit that physically normal children do. Only one of the twenty-three children registered at the school is unable to manipulate the plaything; the others apply themselves to the game of scooting with a fortitude that strikingly exemplifies the spirit of the school, to make the body a fit home for the soul.

The eight girls and fifteen boys at the orthopedic school attend classes part of the day and receive treatment which it is hoped will strengthen their disease-weary limbs. They are encouraged to use the weak limbs whenever possible, and due to the fact that even exercise they obtain through playing may be harmful instead of beneficial, their play is supervised. Youngsters who are re-educating dormant muscles to perform their normal functions are urged to use the weak limb to propel the scooters and let the strong limb ride.

The scooters were given to the school during the period of too heavy snow to permit their use outside, but the enthusiasm at being able to do things that physically perfect children do ran to such a pitch that Mrs. Jessie Collins and Miss Jane Holt, principal and physiotherapist, respectively, permitted one of the bright red toys to be brought into the building, and each child was permitted to "take his turn."

The children play in pairs, and each group of two takes a turn at a scooter. They share the toys cheerfully, and though they have not had an opportunity to use them out of doors long enough to derive any great benefit, the instructors at the school have already noticed that the youngsters who are suffering the most serious handicaps are already improving in applying themselves to get the most possible fun from the speeders. One child who is unable to move about without the use of a pair of crutches, displays an unusual determination to enjoy this new equipment, and manages to have a pretty good time with a scooter even though one crutch must be carried. Braces seem to be no handicap, whatever, for the youngsters who must wear them as part of the treatment to bring back legs that have been ravished by disease, scamper along, smiling and happy. "The scooters have been a God send," emphatically declared the instructors.

However, it should not be understood that the children at the orthopedic school have been without entertainment. Many gifts of books, play houses, and other similar articles have been received, but there may have been some hesitancy about offering things that seemed so definitely for thoroughly sound youngsters. These little people at the orthopedic school are not sick children, they are the same noisy, mischievous youngsters there will be found in any school. They have the same textbooks and lessons that are given in the city public schools, though here promotion is by subject rather than grade. This is necessary because the children come from various schools in the vicinity where various methods and subjects are taught. Though handicapped by physical ills, these youngsters are keen and venturesome, and undoubtedly would get as much enjoyment out of carts, slides, sleds, basketball equipment, balls of all kinds, roller skates, and a "Jumble Gym" if they were available. The scooters have proved that, assert those in charge of the school.

Scooters have been a project of the Appleton Vocational school for the past ten years. W. R. Challoner, of the machine shop, designed them, and each boy is expected to build one scooter as part of his course. From 25 to 30 hours are required for the construction of each toy, all parts being made at the Vocational school excepting the wheels. When assembled, the scooters are painted a brilliant red, and then offered for sale at cost. Approximately 200 have been made since the project was adopted. Recently Mr. Challoner revised the plan and the scooters are now being made entirely of metal. At the suggestion of Mr. Herbert Heilig, principal, the nine "old type" scooters were given to the orthopedic school, where they are playing a prominent part in entertaining the children and coaxing weary muscles to function properly.

The Appleton Orthopedic school was established last June, and has the highest enrollment now since its organization. Attendance is almost perfect. The youngsters remain at the school for lunch, which is carefully planned for nutritional correctness. Children are enrolled from Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Hortonville, Bear Creek, and Appleton. Three of them are boarding in the city; the others go home nights. There is no dormitory in connection with the school. Towns from which children outside of Appleton come, pay tuition of $70 per year.

There are now eight orthopedic schools in the state, the latest acquisition having been made at Eau Claire recently. The nearest school to Appleton is located at Sheboygan. The benefit derived from these schools is demonstrated in the case of a Menasha girl, who is receiving treatment at the local school, and who has recovered strength to such an extent that she now plays on the Menasha high school girls' basketball squad.

"Physiotherapy treatments alone cannot accomplish what continued effort on the part of the individual will do," said Miss Holt, "but play, when supervised to prevent any adverse tendencies, will do much to encourage the children to use their afflicted limbs and do things that physically perfect children do. Play, unconsciously, becomes a sort of treatment, and the scooters do just this."

Knowing Our Children Better

By

Edith D. Dixon

The Bored Child

"How may I interest a 9½-year-old boy in school work? He is capable enough to rank first in his class, but he seems to think of nothing but play."

The first question that comes to mind is whether too much is being expected of this boy. On what ground is the parent basing the statement that he is capable of being at the head of his class? Is it because other children in the family have made high records? All children in the same family are not equally equipped scholastically. This child's ability may lie in some other direction.

Is it because the teacher says he is capable of standing at the head of the class? Teachers are often mistaken. They have been known to brand average children as superior and superior children as dullards.

Perhaps this child does not have enough to do in school. Some children of superior intelligence form bad work habits because there is nothing to challenge their powers in the schoolroom. A plan for such a child calls for co-operation between parent and teacher in order that special work such as outside reading, or handwork to supplement the lesson, may be done in the idle time. Many children have found an incentive for school work in making a personal contribution to the lesson.

Perhaps this child has not enough opportunity to play, and so uses his school time for it. Do the children really play during the recess period? I visited a school in one of our prosperous urban centers recently and found the children's recess period being used for calisthenics. Though adequate playground equipment was available, the children were not permitted to use it until after 4:30 in the afternoon.

The habit of looking at each child as an individual with specific needs is the only way of solving children's behavior and arriving at the understanding necessary in their successful training.

The Plains of Abraham

A Masterpiece of Fiction by James Oliver Curwood

INSTALLMENT XV

But he came, following closely the months of starvation. He was a gaunt, death-faced man, on his way to take the place of a brother who had died among the Indians of the Ohio. That was what he said. History was to relate otherwise, for a year later he was the force behind the Abenakis in their slaughter of the English at Fort William Henry. His name was Father Pierre Roubaud. He was a cold, terrible man of God. Yet he was the Church. He would have died a thousand deaths for the Cause of which he was the spiritual if not the moral representative. He would have eaten human flesh in defense of it. He did see such flesh eaten by his savage disciples at Fort William Henry. He remained in Chenufsio two days. On the second of these days he married Jeems and Toinette according to the ritual of the Catholic church.

The gloom he brought with him was dissipated by this event. Chenufsio gave itself up to a few hours of rejoicing in honor of Tiaoga's daughter and the son of Wuskoo.

But this happier spirit could not endure long with the people. Death had settled on them heavily. No word had come from Tiaoga and his warriors. There were whisperings that they had been annihilated in battle and would never return. Anxiety grew into fear, fear into certainty. The grimness of a tragedy darker than the sable robes of the priest hovered over Chenufsio.

In their happiness, Jeems and Toinette did not feel the undercurrent of change about them. Their abiding place became a home whose roots spread so securely that death could not have torn them up. The cloud of the tragedy through which they had passed was a curtain vaguely soft and distant behind them; they thought of it, they talked of it, and dreams sometimes awakened Toinette to find comfort in Jeems' arms. But its memories did not wound so deeply. The spirits of Tonteur and of Jeems' mother drew nearer to them each day, strengthening with invisible chains the love which bound them. It was the Thrush who first made them see what was happening about them. As days and weeks passed without word from Tiaoga, the fear that Shindas was dead clutched her with an evil hand. She began to avoid Toinette and kept to herself. The hardness which had settled in the faces about her came into her own. She was a changed Mary Daghlen. She was Opitchi the Seneca.

It was this change in the one she had come to regard as a sister which startled Toinette into a realization of the situation which was gathering about her and Jeems, and she was now destined to witness in all of its savagery that streak in Indian character which arouses hate and the desire for vengeance in the face of adversity at the hands of human enemies. Jeems marked its rising symptoms. He was no longer greeted with friendliness. Men were sullen and aloof, and women toiled without their usual chatter. Death and misfortune had ridden too hard, and human nerves were at the breaking point. Chenufsio was like a handful of powder ready for the touch of fire.

Then came the lightning flash.

It was an afternoon late in May when Shindas appeared in Chenufsio. He was alone. His arms and shoulders were hacked and cut and some of the wounds were scarcely healed. A scar lay across his cheek. His moccasins were in tatters, and his eyes held the ferocious light of a wolf that had been hunted. He made no effort to soften the news of which he was the bearer. He had come from the border of the Cayugo country as a messenger from Tiaoga and was many hours ahead of his comrades. Tiaoga was returning with nine of his thirty warriors. The others were dead.

This tragedy was a cataclysmic one even for a tribe of the most warlike of the Six Nations. Nothing had equaled it in Seneca history for generations. Twenty were dead out of thirty—the flower of Chenufsio—the very sinew of Tiaoga's people!

Shindas waited until his words sunk like barbs of iron into the hearts of the men and women about him. He waited until there seemed no relief from the despair which settled over them, and then slowly gave the names of those who had been slain by their enemies. A white man had killed three of the twenty warriors. He was a prisoner now—with Tiaoga. They had put out his eyes so that he could not see. They had built a fire around him in which it had been their intention to see him die. But in the last moment when the flames were scorching him Tiaoga had pulled the blazing fuel away with his own hands in order that the people of Chenufsio could witness his writhings at the fire stake.

After this one might have thought that mad men and women and not a grief-stricken people filled Chenufsio. For hours the lament of the women did not die out. Still Toinette saw no tears. Her horror increased as she observed the preparations for vengeance; the digging of a hole and the setting in it of a tall stake, all by women's hands; the gathering of pitchy fuel by little children and their mothers; the transformation of friends she had known into fiends whose eyes filled with hatred when they looked at her. She tried to hide from these things in their home and to keep Jeems with her. Shindas came to them. He had a command from Tiaoga for Jeems. It was that Jeems should go to the village of Kanestio seventy miles distant and bear news of a war party from that town. Shindas gave him the message and saw that he departed with it. He was no longer a brother. He disclosed no sign of pleasure when he learned that Toinette was Jeems' wife. Mary Daghlen found him so grimly changed that he frightened her.

Toinette remained alone. No one came to see her except Wood Pigeon, and the afternoon following the day of Shindas' arrival the child ran in with wide eyes to tell her that Tiaoga was approaching. They were standing at the head of the waiting lines when Tiaoga and the remnant of his band came over the hill and across the fields. Shindas had said there was to be no physical demonstration against the prisoner, who was to be kept strong for torture at the stake. Toinette shivered. It was a different homecoming this time. The people were like tigers holding their passions in leash. There was something demoniac in the faces of the children. Even the eyes of those whose loved ones had escaped death held only the deep-seated fire of hatred. Tiaoga came. His face was like a mask of rock as he passed so near that Toinette might have touched him. The prisoner followed. His clothes were torn from the upper part of his body. He was a powerfully built man with great hands and wide shoulders. On each side of him walked a warrior, for he was blind and needed guidance. His empty eye sockets, hidden by drooping lids, gave to his round red face the appearance of one walking in a ghastly sleep. Yet he was not overcome by the enormity of the catastrophe which had befallen him, nor did he betray fear of what lay ahead.

He sensed the presence of the people and held his head high as if trying to see them. It was a bald head.

Toinette swayed backward and struggled in a moment of darkness to keep herself from falling.

The prisoner was Hepsibah Adams.

No one but Wood Pigeon observed the faintness which came over Toinette. Some force had drawn a smothering curtain about her making it difficult to see or breathe. When the shock passed, they were standing alone with the mob closing in behind Tiaoga and his single captive. Its pent-up emotion burst loose in a pandemonium, and amid the excitement Toinette went back to the cabin which Jeems had built near Tiaoga's tepee.

At first she had regretted the absence of Jeems, but now she was glad he was gone, for the increasing tumult in the village, the chanting of death songs by the women, the screaming of children, and the yelling of savages who were working themselves into a frenzy of rage about the fire which would soon receive its victim terrified her with the growing conviction that nothing could save his uncle. If Jeems had been there, she knew he would not have seen Hepsibah Adams put to death without a struggle fatal to himself. This thought, together with the reflection that it was a fortunate chance which had sent him away, strengthened her determination to help Hepsibah, and she watched with Wood Pigeon until she saw the chief enter his tepee. Then she hurried to him, with Wood Pigeon and Odd following her.

Tiaoga's greeting held no promise. The Seneca folded his arms across his breast and regarded her calmly, revealing no gentle aspect as he spoke a few words in acknowledgment of her visit. That his prisoner bore the same relationship to Jeems which he bore to Shindas and that the man about to die was loved by Silver Heels brought no surprise or hesitation to his face. He waited patiently for her to finish, then shook his head and pointed through the door to the shadows gathering in the path of the setting sun. He stated coldly that the prisoner must die. His people demanded that the spirit of the white man who had slain three of his warriors be destroyed in flames. They would wait until it was dark, which was the tribal custom. Then the prisoner would be brought from the tepee in which he was lying bound, and the fire would be lighted.

If it were her desire, she might talk with Jeems' uncle, Tiaoga said. He was looking into the twilight when he made this concession. The Indian women at the farther end of the village were chanting more loudly as darkness came on.

Tiaoga spoke again.

She must hurry. It was growing late. The captive was in Ah De Bah's tepee, near the river, and the Tall Man and Shindas were guarding him.

He watched her depart with Wood Pigeon and Odd. Then she might have seen a change in him, a change which came when he knew he was alone.

Toinette was breathless when she came to Ah De Bah's home, which the hunter had set apart from the others. The Tall Man stood motionless before the door with a rifle in the crook of his arm, and Shindas sat on the ground near him. Both saw her coming. She paused a few paces from them with her mind struggling against a chaos of uncertainty and dread. What could she say to Hepsibah Adams? How could she help him when Tiaoga and Shindas and Ah De Bah were eager for his death?

Shindas spoke a word to the Tall Man and advanced toward her. He seemed to have expected her. He pointed to the tepee. Ah De Bah did not look at her as she entered. Neither appeared to notice Wood Pigeon or the dog.

She found Hepsibah stretched out like a dead man, and knelt on the earth at his side. He was scarcely conscious of her presence until she touched him. She felt the buckskin cords at his wrists; then her hand found his sightless face.

John Tracy Completes 34 Years of Service as County Board Member

Seventeen of the county board's personnel of forty-one members have served on the county governing body for more than five years; eleven of them have given ten or more years of service; five of them have been on the board fifteen or more years, but the record of John Tracy tops them all. When the board convenes Tuesday, February 17, Mr. Tracy will attend the one hundred and second session of the board as the supervisor from the Fourth ward, city of Appleton. He will, at the adjournment of the four-day session this month, complete his thirty-fourth year as a member of the Outagamie county board. He has attended every session, and has served on many committees. He is the oldest member on the board, both in number of years as a member and in point of age. Mr. Tracy will observe his seventy-ninth birthday anniversary in April.

Elected as a representative from the Fourth ward in 1896, Mr. Tracy served on various committees, chief of which were the grounds and buildings, equalization, and salary committees, until 1906, when he was elected chairman. He held that position until 1916, inclusive, when he was succeeded by Douglas Hodgins, son of David Hodgins who was chairman of the county board some years prior to Mr. Tracy. Mr. Hodgins is no longer a member of the county board. He is now postmaster at Hortonville. George Fiedler, Seymour; Dan Ryan, deceased, Buchanan; and Mike Mack, incumbent chairman, have succeeded Mr. Tracy.

There has been almost no change in the procedure of the sessions, according to Mr. Tracy. Routine business is transacted in practically the same manner that it was 34 years ago, though the work handled in this department of the county has trebled. This, Mr. Tracy believes, is due to the extensive road work that has been done in the last ten or fifteen years.

Some of the larger localities have been divided, Combined Locks having been set off from Buchanan and Vandenberg set off from Kaukauna.

Sessions that extended over the longest period during Mr. Tracy's connection with the board consumed twelve days, while the shortest session was three days.

When this veteran of the county board was elected in 1896, Peter Tubbs of Seymour was chairman. Mr. Tubbs, now deceased, was a prominent figure in the county political life in the early days. John Brill, David Hodgins, Adolph Locksmith, and Louis Wurl served successive terms.

No member on the board has served for as long a period as Mr. Tracy. During his term of service he has seen the development of the county road program, both in respect to construction and upkeep. Back in the days of the late 90's and the early 1900's, impassable roads during the winters were taken for granted. An open winter was a blessing so far as travel in the rural communities was concerned; now a closed road is the exception rather than the rule during even the periods of heaviest snowfall, for the county has inaugurated a program of opening roads which makes practically all parts of the county accessible throughout the winter.

The greatest achievement in Mr. Tracy's opinion, during his connection with the county board, was the construction of the Riverview Tuberculosis Sanatorium. Mr. Tracy worked untiringly for this project, and when it was assured, he was made chairman of the building committee. He was also chairman of the committee which supervised the construction of a $170,000 addition to that institution recently.

Efficiency of the county board is undoubtedly due to the intimate knowledge its members have of county affairs, acquired through their long terms of service as official representatives from their communities. Members who have served more than five years are Frank J. Schroeder, Center; John Grafmeier, Buchanan; Louis E. Nichols, Ellington; John Knapstein, Greenville; John Sawall, Liberty; Arnold Krueger, Maple Creek; Alfred Mueller, Seymour; John Diedrick, Vandenberg; P. H. Ryan, Appleton; John Tracy, Appleton; Peter Rademacher, Appleton; Malachi Ryan, Combined Locks; John H. Nielsen, Kaukauna city; Fred Reichel, Kaukauna city; Anton Jansen, Little Chute; William Beck, Seymour city; and Mike Mack, Shiocton village. Supervisors Nichols, Knapstein, Sawall, Krueger, Diedrick, Tracy, Malachi Ryan, Reichel, Jansen, Beck and Mack have served ten years or more, and of this group of veterans, Diedrick, Tracy, Reichel, Jansen, and Mack have been on the county board fifteen or more years. Fred Reichel of the Fifth ward of Kaukauna, holds the next highest service record to John Tracy. Mr. Reichel has been a county solon for twenty years, and Mike Mack, Shiocton, chairman, of the board, has been in county service as a board member for about eighteen years.

Mr. Tracy, who holds the highest record with 34 years to his credit, will retire at the adjournment of the February session.

Local Bowling Enthusiasts Are Keeping Alleys Hot

Crash, smash, set 'em up in the other alley! Be sure you hit the head pin but don't bang into it too squarely or you'll only have a split for your trouble and not a strike. Almost 1,000 people in the city of Appleton are getting their winter exercise by knocking over the maple sticks in the various bowling alleys of the community.

Bowling is a sport which is being enjoyed by a greater number of people here each year. There certainly are a much larger number of women frequenting the bowling alleys now than there were three or four years ago and when we go back as far as fifteen years—well, bowling was one thing that just wasn't indulged in by the fair sex. But that was before the Nineteenth amendment was inserted into the constitution giving women equal rights with men.

A survey of the principal bowling haunts in Appleton shows that there are approximately 675 people, men and women, who roll in regular league games once a week and it is reasonable to assume that the other individual keggers brings the number almost to the 1,000 mark. The sport almost rivals golf in popularity.

There are three women's leagues of importance, the Women's City Bowling league which consists of eight teams and gets into action every Thursday evening on the Arcade alleys, the Elks Ladies' league and the Traction Ladies' league, both of which do their pin crashing on the Elk alleys. The largest league in the city is the Knights of Columbus circuit consisting of sixteen teams. There are two Elks leagues, called the American league and the National league.

The Elks Ladies' league consists of ten teams and the Traction Ladies' league has four teams. The traction company men's league consists of six teams and bowls every Friday evening at the Arcade alleys. Meat market men have gone in for kegling in a large way and have formed a four team league which shows its wares at the Eagle alleys. The Eagles league has eight teams.

Several industrial establishments have formed leagues, among them the Interlake league with six teams and the Appleton Engraving company with four. These teams bowl on the Elks alleys as do the teams of the Catholic Order of Foresters circuit with eight teams. The junior chamber of commerce has a four team league.

At the alleys in the Insurance building there are two leagues, one the men's A. A. L. league having twelve teams and the other, the A. A. L. Ladies' league having four teams.

The absence of Old Man Winter and the presence of this era of business depression has caused somewhat of a slump in bowling activities this winter as compared with last year, according to two authorities in charge of local alleys. On days such as we have experienced the last week many folks who would ordinarily be rolling the balls down the wooden paths or off into the gutters are out in their cars making business more profitable for the oil and gas vendors and enjoying a combination of Florida and California sunshine.

Some of Appleton's bowling devotees have been upsetting the pins in truly sensational fashion since the beginning of the current season. A short while ago Herman Berge bumped off a score of 278 on the Elks alleys. Dan Steinberg almost caught up with him, but couldn't quite make it. His big game was 277. At the A. A. L. alleys H. Wichman got 277 to tie Mr. Steinberg's record. The women are not very far behind and some of them can roll a game which would make many men bowlers envious. For instance Miss Bertha Kolitsch rolled up the big sum of 228 just a few days ago and Miss H. Matthe nicked the pins for a count of 218. Over at the Arcade alleys Miss L. Lueders chalked up the impressive count of 234 and Miss G. Koerner scored 215. Who will be the woman to beat such records? It's going to be a big job for someone.

“and then we have

That remark gives zest to the entire meal and makes you look forward to this healthy, delicious ice cream—so different from the others.

Items of Interest

The committee for the old age pension will meet at the court house Wednesday, February 11, at 1:30 o'clock. Three applications for assistance will be considered.

About 25 children from city public schools left for Chicago this morning where they will submit to music tests in connection with research work in music to ascertain adaptability of various grades of music to children of various ages. Dr. E. F. Baker, Mrs. Helena Hettinger, and parents of the children made the trip to Chicago in a special coach on the 7 o'clock train this morning. They will be entertained at lunch at the Hays hotel, after which they will be transported to Blaine hall, University of Chicago, where the tests will be conducted. Most of the group will return Saturday afternoon.

A meeting of the mayors and other city officials of the lower Fox River valley which was scheduled last night at the home of Mayor B. W. Fargo has been postponed until the evening of February 9. Inability of several of the mayors to be present last evening was given as the reason for the postponement.

At a meeting of the city board of health Thursday Mayor John Goodland, Jr., was instructed to advise Chief of Police George T. Prim to warn people against spitting on the sidewalks. The board of health members feel that an aggressive campaign against this unhealthful and insanitary practice should be carried on in this city.

Cars parked in the boulevard on Soldiers Square will be checked and tagged by police officers, according to an announcement made by Mayor John Goodland, Jr., Friday morning. People have been in the habit lately of parking their cars in the boulevard on the center of the square. Due to the warm weather the ground has become soft and the turf will be badly mutilated if the practice is continued.

The grounds and buildings committee of the county board met at the court house Thursday. Routine business was transacted, and bills were approved.

Glass supports under the legs of the stove or kitchen cabinet will keep them from cutting the linoleum.

Eggs that are stored in water glass need not be put down all at one time; they may be added as convenient.

Chicago Boxers Will Meet Local Talent

Six bouts featuring Chicago amateur boxers pitted against some of the best known and liked amateur leather pushers of the Fox River Valley and vicinity will feature the exceptionally attractive card arranged by Oney Johnston Post of the American Legion next Thursday evening at Armory G. Jabber Young, well known to all ring fans in this vicinity, and who now lives in Chicago, will bring his famous boxing team to Appleton. This sextette of fighters was entered by Jabber in the national Golden Glove contest this year.

The headliner will be a match between Hans Ahl of Oshkosh and Tony Delesio of the Chicago group. Ahl is one of the best known and most popular boys in the valley and Delesio has made quite a name for himself in the Illinois city. Ahl has appeared here before in Legion programs and has always been a fine drawing card.

Hans Ahl

Herbie Thompson of New London, well known in Appleton fistic circles, will match punches with Tony Pernice of the Chicago team. Zep Truaig of Manitowoc will be stacked up against Clarence Miller of the invading team and Norman LeFebre of Green Bay will take on Ted Barry, Chicago. Another New London fighter, Claude Sackett, will appear on the program. His Chicago opponent will be Walter Blaino. The only Appleton lad on the card is Ray Murphy, and he is matched with Bob Grosbek of Chicago.

Reserved seats are on sale at Phil Miller's, Dick's Place, Roach Sport Shop and Jones Hotel in Appleton, and at the Club in New London.

Campus Comment

The basketball team lost a close game to Marquette last Saturday, the score being 18-14. The Milwaukee boys led throughout most of the game but the Vikes never stopped fighting and even though they were on the short end of the score they put up a fight worthy of a Lawrence team. The second game of the series will take place in Milwaukee the latter part of this month.

Miss Olga Achtenhagen, of the English department, gave an account of her vacation trip to Europe for the student body in chapel Wednesday. Miss Achtenhagen's talk was very interesting because of the many character sketches she presented.

The Lawrentian, which was discontinued during the exam period, is scheduled to make its first appearance of the new semester today.

The basketball team will play Monmouth college tonight and Knox college tomorrow evening in Midwest Conference games. Both contests will be played on the Illinois schools' courts.

Hopeful Lawrentians are awaiting the announcements of house parties, formals, and other social functions.

Two Appleton members of the Tuscania Survivors' association, Eric Galpin and McKinley Robinson, attended the reunion and memorial services at Milwaukee. Memorial services were held on the boardwalk near Gimble's store.

Miss Alma Ruth of Clintonville spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. Carl Krieser.

Mrs. Harold Fird attended the Visiting Day meeting of the Appleton Eagles Auxiliary Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Nelson, Jr., are spending a week with Mrs. Nelson's parents at Neenah.

Howard Huntington was called to Green Bay Wednesday on account of the illness of his father.

How Do You Advertise?

Some business people plan and check their advertising. They carefully choose copy, media, time, and lists to which the advertising is directed, to fit into their general merchandising or marketing plan.

Some just advertise, without a definite plan, spasmodically. They cannot possibly judge results accurately and fairly.

And then there is the haphazard person who does not know just where and when and how he advertises. We met him the other day. We solicited him.

"I ran a lot of big ads with you last fall and got no returns", said he. We had to remind him that when he was solicited "last fall" he told us that he had spent all his money for advertising in the daily newspaper. He has never had a line with us, yet he told us he got no results from his advertising in our newsmagazine.

Some people think they advertise. Plan your advertising campaign carefully. Consider well your ways and means — where, when and how. Look over the field to find your logical market.

REVIEW opens the door to that. If the truth about your merchandise will sell it, if it is something the people of the Appleton area can use, here is the place to tell your story, and the time to tell it certainly is NOW.
