UPTOWN BLAZE UNCHECKED IN 10 HOUR FIGHT

Firemen Overcome in Kornhauser Disaster; 3 Students Escape Unhurt; Estimate $275,000 Loss

After raging for 10 hours, the Alexander Kornhauser company fire was not under control at 11 o'clock last night. The Parkway theater and nearby buildings, which earlier in the day were seriously endangered, had been protected from the possibility of conflagration late last night.

Eight Firemen Injured

Eight firemen were overcome in fighting the blaze, though none of them were in a serious condition as far as could be ascertained last night. Loss estimated in the afternoon at $275,000 probably had increased with the continuance of the fire. All office records were saved though no merchandise was removed.

Inability to discover where the fire started was given as one of the reasons for the difficulty in checking its advance.

Students in Building

Three students, Dorothy Adams '25, Lorraine Dunn '23, and Vivian Cheatham '23 were in the store at the time that shoppers, intent on dollar day bargains, were hurried out with fire warning. Miss Adams declared that they were not frightened, though at first there seemed no way to escape as the stairway was filled with smoke. The fire had not gained much headway, however, and they were able to leave the store by the ordinary route.

Parkway in Danger

The firemen were unable to combat the flames from the entrance on the capital square, though chemicals were rushed into the buildings from the front on the arrival of the central company. Three leads of hose were run into the back windows from the alley, but iron bars on the windows prevented any systematic fire-fighting.

The new Parkway theater and Fischer's billiard parlor, on either side of the burning building were in danger of being destroyed for

Second Vocational Meet Hears Y. W. Secretary Today

Miss Eliza Butler, national personnel secretary of the Y. W. C. A., will speak this afternoon at the second meeting of the woman's vocational conference at 4:30 in Lathrop parlors.

Miss Butler, who is the sister of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university said when interviewed yesterday, "We take into our leadership only girls who are college graduates. The Y. W. C. A. is well established as a profession and offers many opportunities, and it has many specialized departments which are requiring very specially prepared people."

Home economics students for cafeteria work, physical education girls for gymnasiums, and economics students for more advanced work in industrial and economic problems, are some of the positions in the Y. W. C. A. which require the special training mentioned by Miss Butler.

Call More Men to Haresfoot Tryouts

To give every man an opportunity to try out for the 1922 Haresfoot show, students who did not appear at the general tryouts on Wednesday night, may report at Lathrop concert room on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock as well as those who appeared for the first tryouts.

"Every man in the university who has any sort of dramatic ability may try out for this year's show," said William H. Purnell '22 president of the club. "The cast and chorus of the show this year is larger than it has ever been before, and we need the help of every man who has any sort of dramatic, musical, or dancing ability."

The chorus has been augmented to 24 this year, including 16 girls. Tryouts for the production and publicity staffs may be made at the Haresfoot loft in the Union building any afternoon this week or next.

PLAY CAST OFF FOR ROCKFORD

"On the Hiring Line" Presented Tonight; Returns Here Tomorrow

Fifteen people, members of the cast and production staff of "On the Hiring Line," Pre-Prom play and joint production of the three dramatic societies, Edwin Booth Twelfth Night, and Red Domino leave today for Rockford, Ill., where they will appear in the second presentation of the play tonight. The company returns to Madison Saturday for a performance at the Parkway theater Saturday night.

Those who comprise the cast and staff are: Roy French, Beatrice Huniston, Merle Shaw, Keith Davis, Roberta Louden, Arthur McCaffery, Dixie Davis, Henry Rube, and William Tannevitz, acting in the play, and Ralph Scheinpflug, Miriam Doan, Larry Hasting, and two professional stage hands.

The play will be presented in Rockford under the auspices of Rockford college as a benefit for the Rockford Foundation. Miss Gladys Borchers '21, head of the department of speech at Rockford college, was instrumental in bringing the production there. Miss Johnson will go with the company to supervise the presentation and also act as chaperon. She has consented to address the college Friday afternoon.

Council's Powers Given to Keystone

According to by-laws voted last night at the S. G. A. meeting Keystone becomes Keystone council with all the power of the former S. G. A. council. This change was formally adopted last night at a Keystone meeting.

Crucible and Mu Alpha were given membership in Keystone. The new status of Keystone in S. G. A. will take effect after the spring elections.

700 TO ATTEND AG HALL "PUNKIN HOLLER MEETIN'"

Small Town Holiday Colors Flourish For Program Tonight

Seven hundred university students, faculty members, and farmers will gather in Agricultural auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight to attend the second annual "Punkin Holler Community Meetin'" given under the auspices of the Agric Triangle and the Euthenics club.

The meeting will be opened by the "Punkin Holler" town chairman. Following the chairman's remarks, the school ma'am of "Punkin Holler" will lead community singing and conduct a spelling class of the "Punkin Holler" star pupils. Spelling down contests have been held at frequent intervals so that the pupils are trained for the exhibition.

Many other rural community characters will participate in the program. The acts will be interspersed with music so that a well balanced program is assured. Refreshments will be served during the meeting. Those who attend the entertainment are expected to dress just as they would if they were at a rural community program.

Agricultural auditorium will be "Punkin Holler" town hall today. Pictures of national heroes and American flags will lend a holiday effect to the decorations. Japanese lanterns, paper chains, and other decorations have been made by the pupils of the "Punkin Holler" school to convert the room into a typical community building.

No "Happy Ending" In Drama Action Of Pyre's Reading

With great force and dramatic vividness, Walton Pyre presented "Francesca De Rimini" in Music hall last night, under the auspices of the Forensic board. The play was written by George Boker, Princeton graduate, and is considered by many the best American drama.

Mr. Pyre said in introduction that because of the demand for the "happy ending" in this country there are few American plays which have logical conclusions. "Francesca De Rimini," however, is one which ends in inevitable tragedy. The play abounds in dramatic action, and those scenes were chosen for presentation which bear most directly on the development of the plot.

The love struggle between Launcelato the hunch-back and Paulo his brother, the betrayal of the cripple and the death of the two together with the beautiful Francesca were portrayed with gripping intensity. Especially effective were the scenes where the neglected Launcelato pours forth his great love for the woman he was to marry, and later where the jester vents the hatred he cherishes for both brothers.

"Expression is as valuable an asset for every day existence as for a special trade like acting," said Mr. Pyre when interviewed by a representative of the Cardinal yesterday afternoon. "I believe that expressional training should be the birthright of every child."

DENY DROPPING BADGER STARS ON PRO CHARGE

Jones Brands as Lies News Stories of Suspension of Gill and Brumm

Ralph Gill and Roman "Kibo" Brumm have not been suspended from Wisconsin athletics because of alleged playing with the Janesville Lakota Cardinals, a semi-professional basketball team, contrary to news stories which appeared in Milwaukee papers yesterday. The stories, which reported that the two Badgers had been found guilty of accepting money for their services, were characterized as "lies" by Thomas E. Jones, head of the athletic department, yesterday. The cases of Brumm and Gill are still the subject of an investigation by the Athletic council, but no definite action has been taken regarding them, according to Coach Jones.

Brumm Out of School

Brumm left school at the beginning of the present semester, but will return next fall and play football if allegations that he has played professional ball are unfounded.

Members of Gill's family asserted last night that he had not been expelled from school as was reported in a local paper yesterday.

"The story published in a Milwaukee paper announcing that Brumm and Gill were suspended is absolutely false," said Coach Jones. "We are looking into the facts about these men, but because they will not play again until next fall, we are going to make it thorough and not pass hastily on the cases."

To Make Thorough Quiz

Letters have been sent to persons in Janesville, inquiring into the status of the basketball team on which Brumm and Gill are said to have played. The council will pass on the cases of the men in question when answers have been received, either substantiating the charges or dismissing them as false.

Inter-frat Council Would Let Co-eds Solicit For Mags

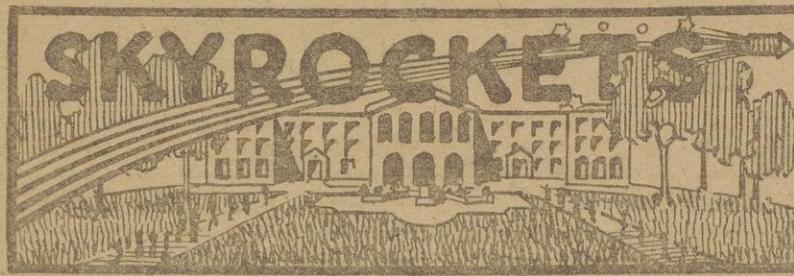

That the ruling prohibiting women from soliciting for any campus organization or fund should be modified in so far as it pertained to campus publications was the substance of a resolution passed at the interfraternity council meeting last night.

The resolution was passed following a discussion of the difficulties which the campus publications would face next fall if women were not allowed to solicit subscriptions. The conference believed that the rule of the Student Life and Interest committee should be upheld in all other respects but decided that it worked a hardship when applied to publications. The resolution, if acted upon, would affect the Badger, Daily Cardinal, Wisconsin Engineer, Octopus, Literary Magazine, Commerce Magazine, and the Country Magazine.

WILL somebody page the first robin? A sign of Spring is gayly galloping across the erstwhile waves of Lake Mendota. The wind, 'tis bitter cold, but the sun, the glorious up rising sun, 'tis warm and kind,—even the moon is soft and tender. Picnic Point has been reinstated within our love and favor. Piracy is afloat on the hard, high seas. In other words, if you can't use a canoe, commandeer an ice boat,—and may the gods be with you!

THE genius of Les Gage has at last received its long deferred and just reward. THE CHI. DAILY NEWS says the ambitions of the coming generation may be summed up in this rousing, soul inspiring slogan: "From Alphabet to Alpha Delt." Now, we know Les must have spent at least one week-end in Chicago during his "light under a bushel career."

THERE'S another sign of Spring that's floating out upon the frosty breeze. Rumor says that Man and Nature classes are going to be held out in the Stock pavilion due to the unusual overflow. Active appreciations is only one of the many virtues that are successfully mastered out here.

DO you happen to know the author of those naughty, naughty booze stories in the Lit? Well, he tried to cut classes by means of the w. k. clinic gag. They sent him out to the infirmary. Open windows and fresh air was part of the treatment. The result was that he developed a full grown cold in three hours. Everything comes to him who waits upon a doctor's prescription.

THAT the university is becoming known among the taxpayers of the state is shown by a letter we received from the girl we left behind us. She has always heard more or less about Prof. A. B. Hall, she avers, but she never knew before that he had so many famous sons. Next time she comes to see us, we must be sure to introduce her to these fellows Sterling and Chadbourne and Lathrop she's been reading so much about of late.

THAT Mr. Bleyer's course in literary criticism is doing real good among the students is shown by the following:

This writing fellow, one Patronius,
Who bawled and bellowed at the mob,
With manner strained and ceremonious,
In Wednesday's skyrocket

Is bugs, and, if I'm not erroneous,
Some classic bull has tried

MORE power to the so-called elbow of Dr. Ross' course in Social Problems. We heard of one of his students today, who leaned over the counter in a laundry and shyly asked the girl waiting on him if she was a neo-Malthusian.

THE young ladies who objected to "The Beggar's Opera" on the grounds of its being immoral are the same ones who presented their landlady with a book called "The Doll's House," because she wanted something nice to read to her children.

The funniest argument we ever heard was the one in which the head of the department of Rotary Clubism tried to persuade the editors of the Commerce Mag that they had an altruistic motive in getting out their notorious Wisconsin Mirror.

"It's a long lane that has not turning," said the motorist after picking his remains out of what was once a brick wall.

Smoke worked its way through the partition into the theater, but the fireproof wall, and doors kept the most of it out. Ralph W. Jackman, of the Mifflin Realty Co., owners of the Parkway, said this afternoon that no damage had been done to the interior of the theater.

The firemen were still battling flames at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Fire Chief Charles Heyl said that the fire was under control at this time.

EVERYMAN A POET

IF the world were entirely peopled with poets there would be no strife, no hate, no senseless vaunts, no unbridled quest for hollow ambition. Everybody would be far happier, more contented, inspired to create rather than merely to emulate.

The virtue of the poet is that he sees not the moment but eternity, not the petty, but the universal. He necessarily diminishes the importance of human wrangling and babbling, human smallness and meanness. Inevitably he is an optimist confident of the possibilities for spiritual fineness and grandeur that reside, slumbering, it seems, beneath the uncouth crust of man's animal nature.

The poet is a worshipper of the beauty of the universe, of the human form and texture. He adores the loveliness of a woman's face, he rejoices at the exhibition of sympathy, he loves the unschooled and unscarred faith of children, he finds pleasure in the display of human courage and human yearning for self-perfection. However, he does not close his eyes to the brute realities of life. He faces them with calmness assured of the ultimate triumph of the better elements in the human heart.

Only the greater diffusion of the poetic impulse in men will make for more stability and greater happiness in the world. "Everyman a poet" should be the rightful goal of civilization—a poet in the sense of a creator, a lover of the finer strains in the human fabric, a believer in the forward sweep of the evolutionary process.

A MATTER OF COURTESY

ONE of our most prominent professors yesterday began his lecture with certain remarks that must strike a responsive chord in all students who believe in true sportsmanship and fair play. "The little matter of courtesy" was his subject, but when one considers the evils arising from courtesy, more serious aspects of the problem confronts us.

In any large course there will always be some unavoidable tardiness, especially when long distances must be covered between classes. Some in our faculty count tardy students absent; others lock the doors. In any civilized state some relic of barbarity will always persist. One would think that all classes were held in one building, and that a flight of stairs is all that intervenes between one class and the next. Our professor's remarks, however, concerned the end of the lecture rather than the beginning. There seems to be a growing tendency among students to begin "packing up" before the lecture has finished. Fountain pens are pocketed, papers folded, books closed, vanity cases stealthily opened, and noses not quite so stealthily powdered, coats put on, and a general movement pervades the room. This assumes a discordant note, the serious student is bothered, and the continuity of the lecturer's remarks is broken.

This is not only discourteous, but denotes a lack of interest and attention. When a professor has gauged his remarks within the allotted time, and has his watch before him, it is certainly but fair play to co-operate with him; to be courteous and attentive.

STUDENT HEALTH

University students in the rush of their scholastic duties and student activities very commonly neglect their physical development. This is specially true of upperclassmen who have so many demands upon their time that they get out of the habit of taking any regular exercise.

A man or woman who goes through college in poor physical condition can never hope to get out of these years the results which could otherwise be obtained. To do our best in any line of work we must be free from sickness and not in a run down listless condition. Many a student wonders why it is that he finds it so hard to keep alert through a day of lectures and laboratory practice, why he finds it impossible to concentrate on his studies at night. In the majority of such cases a moment's reflection will show long standing neglect of the ordinary principles of health; spending the day in stuffy classrooms, the evenings in an equally stuffy show or studying. Midnight lunches and getting half enough sleep all have their effect upon our mental capacity.

College authorities everywhere are coming to realize that college sports should be instrumental in developing the bodies and minds of the entire group, especially the less robust. Intramural sports are being introduced to accomplish this end and develop in the student a moral and physical courage. The undergraduate, however, can do much on his own initiative.

Divide the day into regular periods for study, exercise and sleep. Take a long walk into the country at least once a week. Drop down to the gymnasium and use the swimming pool, the basketball floor, and the indoor track.—Ohio Lantern.

WHY BORROW?

We are all intimately acquainted with that well-known nuisance—the borrower. We all have him spotted. We all know his habits.

Some of us are strong enough to refuse him flatly, but most of us sigh resignedly when he asks for the loan of this or that. Rather than be uncivil, we keep him in money, cigarettes, in tooth paste, or in soap. When he thanks us blithely and assures us of prompt payment, we smile acridly—and bid goodby forever to our belongings.

Thirty candidates for membership to the President's Guard were accepted as a result of the tryouts held last night in the gym annex.

The original intention had been to accept only 10 new men, but upon the advice of the staff of officers of the military department, the guard is to be increased to wartime strength, 200 men.

Only those men were tried out who were acquainted with former members of the guard. The group will begin immediately to practice for several meets which are to be held in the spring. A hike to Oconomowoc with a dual meet with the Oconomowoc company of the National guard was announced by Commandant Luening last night. The guard will also prepare a feature for the Military ball to be held in April.

Horrors! Three "Pro's" Found On Prom Play

The scandal is out. Three members of the cast of "On the Hiring Line" are professionals.

Roy L. French, Beatrice Huniston, and Arthur McCaffery admitted yesterday their professional experience on the stage. All three are playing leading parts in "On the Hiring Line."

But fortunately "pro's" are not banned from amateur dramatics as they are in athletics. Their professional experience plus the wide amateur experience of the other members of the cast give material foundation to statements on the part of critics that the play is professional in calibre.

Roy French '23, who plays the lead in "On the Hiring Line," did professional acting under Oliver Morosco in California and for a summer, in the movies at Universal City. He has also had considerable experience in directing amateur productions.

A summer spent in a stock company playing character leads has been the professional experience of Miss Beatrice Huniston who plays opposite French. Miss Huniston's work is marked by the smoothness and ease with which she plays her part and her keen sense of dramatic restraint.

Arthur McCaffery's professional experience was obtained while acting in Mrs. Coonly Ward's theater at her estate in the Genesee Valley at Wyoming, N. Y. McCaffery also took a leading part in dramatics while attending the University of Michigan.

next week or 10 days for final action on the charges against Williams.

The Badger three-sport star denies allegations that he received money for playing with the Edgerton nine last summer.

He was recently called before the council to answer charges. After an interview with Williams, Prof. F. P. A. Pyre, chairman of the athletic body, declared that he believed "Rollie" to be innocent of the charges.

"It was as near the perfection of 'cello playing as human skill and intelligence would seem able to achieve. The tone seemed something above and beyond aught that wood, string and bow could produce and the infinite variety in gradation, shading, and nuance impressed as of the spirit of music itself rather than of mere human intelligence and taste."

NEWS OF CONFERENCE SPORTS

GRAPPLERS HIT PURPLE STARS IN MEET HERE

Students to See First Home Match in
3 Years

Wrestling

Wisconsin students for the first time in three years will have a chance to see an intercollegiate wrestling match on the home floor when Coach George Hitchcock's matmen clash with Northwestern tomorrow night. A record crowd is expected because it is the first time the new team under the coaching of Hitchcock will show to the home students. The Athletic department wants it understood that the meet is open to everyone, men and women alike.

"We want every student who likes to see real speed and cleverness in the way of intercollegiate sports to be present Saturday night," says Hitchcock.

Northwestern Has "Rep"

Northwestern comes here with an enviable reputation. Among their dual meets they hold a decided victory over the powerful Nebraska team. The conference champions are counted among their men, Hathaway and Meyers, 158 and 125 pounds respectively. The rest of their men stack up with any in the conference in ability.

To meet this combination Hitchcock has selected the following team: Mercer or Phelps, 115 pounds; Woelffer, 125; Schenk, 135; Peterman, 145; Templing, 155; Heuer, 175; Gregor or Young, heavyweight.

Mercer injured his shoulder in Thursday's workout, and may be replaced by Phelps. Both men are in good shape and able to give good accounts of themselves. Woelffer takes on the Purple captain Meyers, who burned up the featherweights in the Western conference meet last year. Schenk, who lost a close match to Minnesota through a bad break in the decision, is again in trim for the light weights.

Peterman in Last Match

Cy Peterman, captain, will again be seen in action against the Purple welterweight. In his last and only match on the Wisconsin floor, he tossed the Chicago 145 pounder in 62 seconds. Last week he defeated the Gopher captain in a sensational battle.

Templing, another winner of last week, and "W" man, is going good and will take on the redoubtable Hathaway. Temp's job is perhaps the toughest of the meet, but he promises to put up a great fight. Heuer and perhaps Gregor will handle the two heavy divisions. Both are new men.

BAD SHOULDER TO KEEP GUDE FROM SKI MEET

Gophers Have Strong Team is Report; Tuckerman Leads Cheers

Because of an injury to his shoulder, Hans Gude, captain of the Badger ski team, will be unable to participate in the tournament to be held under the auspices of the club on Saturday afternoon on Muir Knoll. His shoulder was dislocated first in a ski meet with Minnesota two years ago and since that time has been thrown out fourteen times.

The injury to Captain Gude coupled with reports of a strong representation from Minnesota will undoubtedly make the competition keen for Badger jumpers.

The Minnesota riders have been practicing since Christmas and will be in better condition than the Wisconsin team. The five men on the Gopher team are: Russell Schei, Erling Larson, N. D. Keane, Sigurd Swenson, and Axel Lanseth. O. M. Vierl, from Norway, will be in charge of the team.

Six entries from Chippewa Falls yesterday brings the total number of entrants up to forty-five, a larger number than took part in the National Championship meet at Cary, Illinois, last month.

Varsity Leaves For Notre Dame Track

For their first meet of the season the Badger track team leaves this afternoon at 4:10 for Notre Dame. The team is in the best of condition.

Although the men realize the meet will be a difficult one, they are confident of starting the history of the 1922 track season with a victory over the Catholics.

Varsity Swimmers Leave for South to Meet Illini Fish

The Varsity swimming squad leaves this afternoon for Urbana, where it will meet the Illini squad in its opening conference dual meet. Coach Joe Steinauer will be accompanied by 16 men, composing, it is said, the strongest swimming team ever sent out to represent Wisconsin in a conference meet.

For the last two years Illinois has defeated Wisconsin, in closely fought meets. Both years the final score was 34-33 and in these defeats Wisconsin was represented by but six men.

Wisconsin will enter the following men in their respective events: Relay: J. J. Lamboley, F. C. Davies, L. A. Sollitt, and Johnson Bennett. Dives: William Collins, and Norman Koch. 40 yard dash: J. J. Lamboley, and B. F. Story. Breaststroke: H. E. Czerwonky, and William Collins. 220 yard swim: Johnson Bennett, and J. J. Lamboley. Plunge: B. W. Huebner, and S. R. Walker. Backstroke: H. E. Czerwonky, and H. Copeland. 100 yard swim: Johnson Bennett, and F. C. Davies.

Pick Girls' Varsity Tank Team at Meet

Girl's Varsity swimming team was announced Tuesday as follows: Lois Berry '25, Minna Margaret Lauter '25, Patsy Watson '22, Jo Snow '24, and Marjorie Boesch '23. Highest honors went to Lois Berry who won over 50 points for the freshmen class in the swimming meet.

WRESTLERS' PICTURE TODAY

All members of the Varsity wrestling team, and the second varsity, are asked to meet in the gym at 4 o'clock today for the Badger picture. Every man should wear black tights or get them from the coach. Besides the above named varsity men the list includes Catau, Pridgeaux, Doehler, Allison, Hembre, Rogers, Kiessling, and Bieberstein.

EVERY BIG TEN CAGE SQUAD IN WEEK-END TILT

Badgers Go to Ann Arbor For Decisive Scrap

For the first time this season, every basketball team in the Big Ten conference will go into action tomorrow night. While Purdue appears to have a safe lead in the race for the championship, the schedule of this week-end is so arranged that the percentage column may read much differently by the middle of next week.

Coach Meanwell and his scrapping Badgers will travel to Ann Arbor for what will undoubtedly develop into one of the hardest fought games of the week-end. Wisconsin was only able to eke out a victory from the Wolverines at Madison in an overtime period, and the team which has been able to show the greatest improvement since that time is the one which will win tomorrow night.

Maroons vs. Purdue

With two men available for use at center, it appears that the Badgers should be able to successfully cope with the Michigan offense, which is led by the elusive Ely. Both fives play a strong defensive game, insuring a close and even score throughout the battle.

The Maroons are to have the privilege of attempting to check the victory march of the Boilermakers. The Midway five whipped Illinois the same week that the latter team gave Purdue its one beating of the season, so that Chicago must be granted an outside chance to win. One time each season, an extreme upset occurs which gums things up in the conference, and Norgren's team may be slated to stage that act at Lafayette on Saturday night.

Illini in Decisive Tilt

The Wisconsin-Iowa battle indicated that the home floor does not mean much to a team any more, and so Illinois and Minnesota will take the floor at Urbana with teams that are about on a par with each other. Much of the success that will attend the Gophers is dependent upon the condition of Kearney, Minnesota captain, who, due to injuries, has been out of the game for the past week. At any rate, Minnesota will have to play an improved brand of ball in order to win, as any team that is able to beat Purdue will prove hard to overcome.
