. . . In just dealing and fair play, in impartiality and honesty, in the give and take and the square deal, in seeing both sides of the question, in the "all men are created equal" idea, in integrity of action and conformance to the truth.

We of Wisconsin, heirs to a long liberal tradition and steeped in the equality that embodies the very concepts of justice, are fighting here to maintain that equality on this campus; Wisconsin men are fighting to push justice over the lines of battle on the war fronts of the world; and there are those, beyond those battle fronts, waiting to receive the seed of justice, to sow it, to nurture it, to watch it grow and spread, and to reap its harvest.

To every man, then, his chance, and to every man the knowledge that, when balancing value against value, the scales will weigh even . . . that is the promise of justice and the strength of democracy.

L'TRE 1944'S,
BADGER

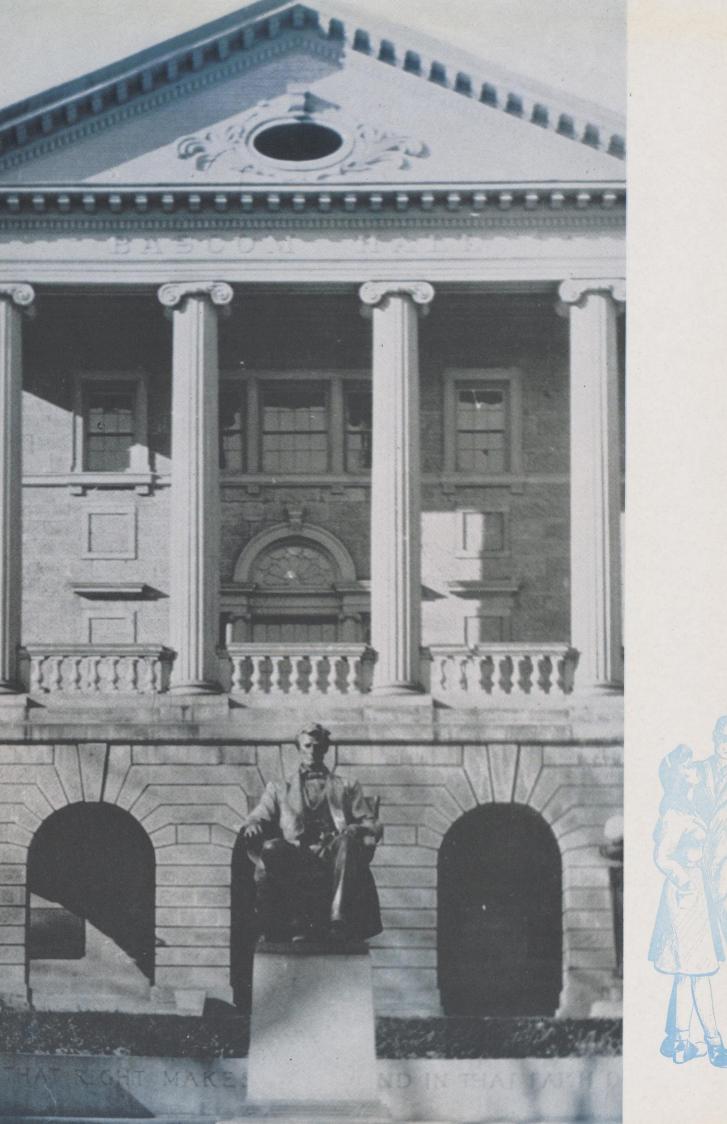

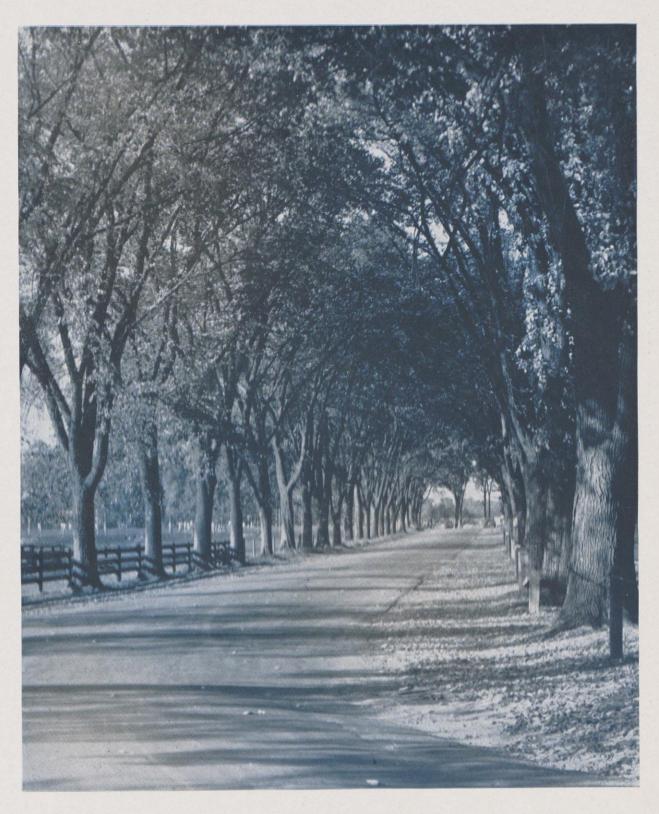

Students come and students go, but surroundings remain the same. Life isn't as exciting her e as it used to be. We aren't living at the break-neck speed of rushing from one place to another. We've slowed down our activities, and we've become calm enough to notice the beauty of Wisconsin's camp us, some of us for the first time. It's a long-established beauty and has a heritage from an important and throbbing past.

Who has not learned to love Bascom and the Hill through furious snow flurries? Or the Home Ec campus when it burst forth into all its glory one day in spring? Or the multi-colored scenes of fall, with the green pines, firs, and spruces in contrast with the browns, reds, and yellows of the turning oaks and elms? Or the Lake Road on a starry night with its overhanging arch of willows murmuring gently, stirred by a passing breeze?

These scenes, grown to be an intimate part of our never-to-beforgotten years at Wisconsin, are a portion of our daily lives here, and perhaps for the first time we've opened our eyes to their natural beauty.

Stretching and curling out of sight like a ribbon and ending at Picnic Point is the Lake Road with its archway of tall and stately trees.

The gables cast geometric shadows through a September twilight on the roof of the University stables.

The road to Sterling and Memorial Institute covered with winter's white blanket and the pines and the firs, their branches laden with the clean, new snow.

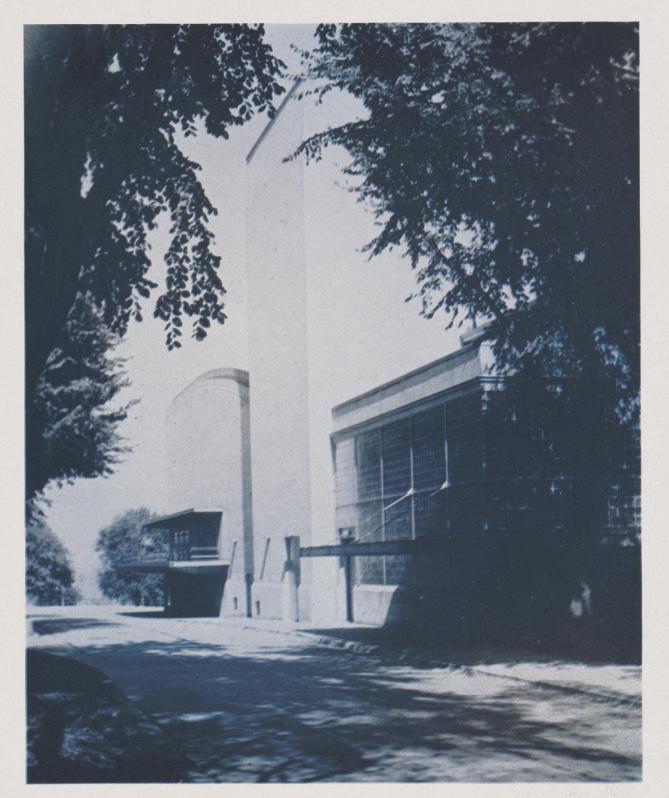

As evening falls, the shadows lengthen and darken over the Union Terrace and Lake Mendota. Swimmers and sunbathers call it a day, and the sails are taken down for the night.

 $\overline{\mathbb{M}}$ The Carillon Tower stands a lonely guard and imparts the gentle strains of Varsity through the atmosphere to us.

The Union Theatre rises majestically as we come down the Hill and shines brightly in the blazoning sunlight.

NIVERSITY Administrative Heads Schools and Colleges Our Seniors Student Government Honoraries

A Message from President Dykstra

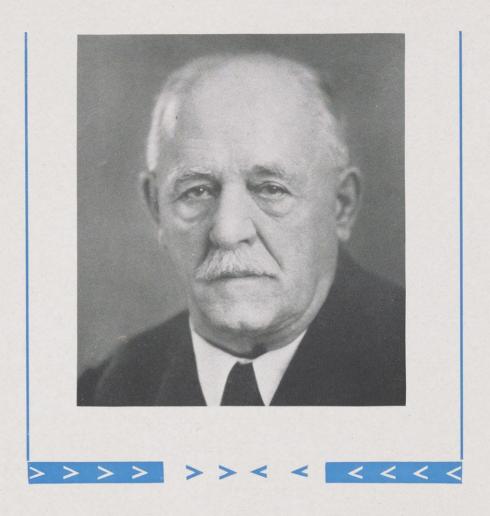

The Badger carries on bravely and courageously under great difficulties and in spite of shortages of staff and available materials. It is attempting to catch the spirit which dominates the campus this year. It is translating this spirit into a permanent historical record for us and those who come after us.

Such an undertaking in such a trying time must be an inspiration to all of us. This is a campus affected in countless ways by the fact of a tremendous world-wide struggle between great and powerful forces. Perhaps at no time since the building of the "Tower of Babal" has this world known more confusion about the meanings of the war or the conditions precedent to a lasting peace. Clashes of opinion are world-wide.

We, therefore, need inspiration and hope and a goal upon which we unite. On our campus we are united in an effort to help bring victory to our arms. We must also be united in the great cause of peace—a peace which will safeguard our democratic way in a world dominated by nationalism on the one hand and by a tendency toward industrial integration on the other. Superficially this appears to be a struggle between freedom, individual and national, and control, sometimes thought of as regimentation. Actually we are struggling toward a reign of law on the international front—an agreed upon global way of life which can be made effective by organized means. We are trying to bring into being some form of international cooperation so that those who come after us will be able to settle disputes without a resort to arms.

Let us all on this campus, as we are reminded of the war in these Badger pages, keep our eyes on the possibility of establishing a global Declaration of Interdependence and an international "Ten Commandments" for the guidance of those who need restraint. Independence and freedom have become relative terms and they can be maintained only through the existence of law in action. We cannot have anti-social action by nations any more than we can allow it by individuals. Students must be alert in helping to plan for a post-war world. In this frame of mind we salute the War Time Badger and go forward together.

Greetings from Governor Goodland

After a long and active life, it is my sincere conviction that the American people place too much emphasis on the material success in life.

We must all work to be self-sustaining and to enable us to meet our obligations to others, but the amassing of wealth for wealth's sake I do not believe can ever lead to a full and satisfactory life.

Education is intended to fit you for your part in life and carries with it the obligation to be of service to others.

Democracy, as such, can never reach its full fruition if based on a people who are unwilling to serve, and sacrifice if necessary, for the good of all.

BOARD OF REGENTS

Inset: W. J. Campbell, Micheal J. Cleary, John M. Holmes, Vice-President, A. Matt Werner

Behind the scenes of everyday University life sit the ten members of the Board of Regents, a body corporate responsible for the mammoth task of guiding the University policy and deciding on all matters pertaining to the Budget. Each member is appointed by the Governor of Wisconsin with the advice and consent of the Senate and serves for a term of nine years. Thus embodying experience and authority, the Board possesses all the powers requisite to the fulfillment of the great Wisconsin ideal.

In 1913, the Board of Visitors was created by the Board of Regents to render assistance in the development of the University. The Board is composed of twelve Visitors; three appointed by the Governor, six by the Alumni Association of the University, and three by the Board of Regents. The term of office is four years. With a great deal of freedom of investigation, the Visitors examine generally the work of the University and present an annual report of their findings and recommendations to the Regents.

BOARD OF VISITORS

DEAN SCOTT H. GOODNIGHT

Dean Goodnight has been Dean of Men at the university for twenty-eight years. Acting as both friend and counsellor, he has come to be affectionately known as "Scotty" among the students.

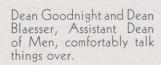

DEAN OF MEN

The office of the Dean of Men deals primarily with the development of the student as a person rather than upon his intellectual training. Part of the Dean's work deals with teaching students how to study and with testing their aptitude for different subjects, but his chief interest lies in the conduct and activities of students.

Since 1916, the office staff has kept personnel record folders for all men students. These folders contain a brief life history and picture of the student, newspaper clippings, and letters about him. The Dean refers to these records when information is desired about a stucent.

The Dean's office is a place for all men students to get their problems solved, whether they be academic, social, or housing. He and his staff act as wise counsellors aiding students, both men and women, to find better housing, get better grades, and to act as worthy citizens in the university community.

In all his dealings, the Dean tries to cooperate with the student governing bodies on campus in which he has a vital interest, and he refers many cases to the student court for decision.

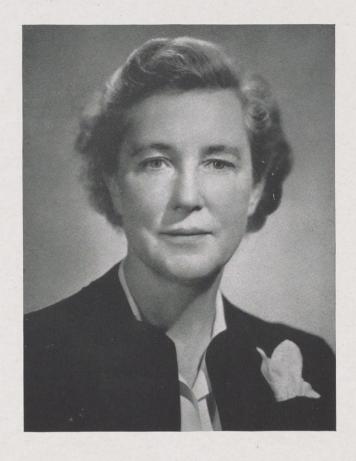

DEAN OF WOMEN

The work of the staff in the office of the Dean of Women does not consist of probing students to better their grades, but of an advisory capacity, trying to bridge the step from sheltered family life to independent college living.

Dean Troxell says that the possibilities of a Dean's job are limited only by time and the person doing the work. She is never too busy to listen to any student no matter how small her problem may be.

The Dean's office operates a vocational advising and placement bureau for women students under the competent supervision of Miss Beulah Larkin who has coached many a troubled senior in job-seeking tactics. In addition, the office keeps a permanent, comprehensive personal record which enables it to give recommendations and other information about Wisconsin graduates. For students unable to afford the necessities demanded by college life, the Dean of Women's office maintains a loan fund and a lending library of college text books.

Dean Helen Kayser acts as the gentle but firm overseer of panhellenic activities, and Miss Ann Lawton, recent graduate, clarifies perplexing problems for freshmen women.

DEAN LOUISE TROXELL

Dean Troxell is known to every woman on campus. Her office is always open to students with problems of any sort. She has the quality of understanding and the personality to make her a really great executive.

College of AGRICULTURE

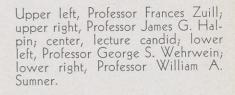

Formerly Dean of the Graduate School, Edwin B. Fred has slipped into the Agricultural Deanship with a minimum of fuss and a maximum of efficiency. The explanation for this is his familiarity with the Agriculture School because of taeching agricultural bacteriology.

Born and raised in Virginia, Dean Fred came to Wisconsin in 1913 from Virginia Polytechnical Institute. He has a Ph.D. from the University of Goettingen in Germany. During World War I he was a 1st Lieutenant in the Chemical Warfare Service of the United States Army.

DEAN EDWIN B. FRED

The School of Home Economics is an integral part of the College of Agriculture. Under the capable leadership of Miss Frances Zuill, director of the school, the many intriguing phases of home economics, from clothing design and textiles to nutrition and food chemistry, are taught to home economic students.

After the war, a new building will be added to the agricultural campus. The building will be called "Halpin Hall" in honor of Professor James G. Halpin, head of the poultry department. Professor Halpin has done extensive work in poultry research which has brought international fame to the university and the state.

In pleasant surroundings such as this one, each home economics freshman begins to learn the p's and q's of her profession. Much of the theory that complements the practical aspects of the neophyte textile buyer or dietician begins at the home-ec building in just such a room as this.

The interesting field of agricultural economics is taught by Professor George S. Wehrwein. He also has aided in rural zoning, and has written a text book on agricultural economics. As a hobby, Professor Wehrwein studies the economic background of the Old Testament.

Professor William A. Sumner's seminars in agricultural-journalism are famous all over the campus. A kindly and understanding instructor, he is one of the best liked members of the College of Agriculture.

Upper left, laboratory scene; upper right, shearing the cow for stock show; center, home management house; bottom, home-ec sewing laboratory.

At the far western end of the campus are the many buildings of the College of Agriculture. The functions of the college are organized into three different branches; research, education, and extension. Many of the faculty members, besides teaching regular classes, engage in extensive research work, aid in reducing farming hazards, and solve agricultural economic problems.

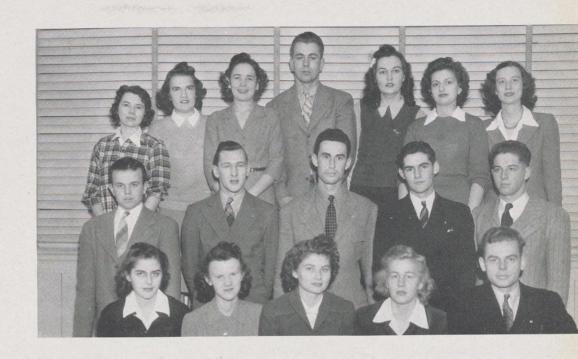

The versatile students in the College of Agriculture are engaged in activities of all kinds. Girls in the Home Economics Course actually put into practice all that they have learned in their lecture classes. In her senior year each Home Ec major, with eight other girls, spends fourteen days in the Home Ec cottage, supervised by Miss Helen Waite. Each group of girls, during the stay in the cottage, makes out the budgets and menus, cooks the meals, does the laundry and house-cleaning, and entertains the faculty.

The same kind of practical experience is given to the Ag students, who are learning the progressive methods of agriculture. In the barns, poultry buildings and green houses, they learn how tu use modern farming equipment to the best advantage. Moreover, through the work of the students and faculty, valuable information and data is collected and made available to the farmers of Wisconsin.

The Ag School is active in campus activities too. Its big event of the year is the 'Little International,' the annual stock show. The fall Walk-Around and numerous dances sponsored by Ag organizations also play an important part in campus social life.

The Agricultural Student Council is a coordinating body composed of representatives of all the organizations on the College of Agriculture campus.

The Council sponsors the Walk-Around, Spring Picnic, and the annual Milk Can Award to two outstanding students in the College of Agriculture. It has initiated the Agricultural Council War Memorial Student Loan Fund, and has placed special emphasis on revising the curriculum in the schools of home economics and agriculture.

Through the activity fee card system, the Ag Council allots money to the various clubs, and integrates their activities. Currently, the Council has been working towards bridging the gap between the ag campus and activities on the "hill".

Omicron Nu, honorary professional home economics sorority was established in 1912 at Michigan State College for the promotion of scholarship, leadership, and research. The Wisconsin Eta chapter was organized in 1915.

Since most of the activities make for the promotion of scholarship, members are not elected to Omicron Nu until the end of their junior year, so that they have the opportunity to prove themselves worthy.

Members of Omicron Nu search through the freshman class and present a silver loving cup to the freshman girl who makes the highest sholastic average.

It also follows a policy of tutoring freshman who are students in home economics.

Each year, Omicron Nu awards a $250 scholarship to the senior or graduate student whose qualifications of worthiness, intelligence, and financial need best fit her for it.

EUTHENICS CLUB

Euthenics Club is an organization whose membership is open to all students and faculty members in Home Economics, and which is affiliated with the student club divisions of the Wisconsin Home Economics Association and the American Home Economics Association.

The members adopted for their theme this year "Living for Victory". It is carried out through social, business, and professional experiences in club life.

One of the main projects this year was a Christmas party at which members participated to help fill the stockings of the children at the Orthopedic Hospital. A contribution was also made to the national fund which brings foreign fellows to this country to study.

The 4H and Blue Shield clubs were federated this year since the overlapping memberships could be more effective acting together.

Stemming from the national organization, the 4H Club was organized in 1925. The Blue Shield Country Life Club began in 1928 when two clubs merged whose goal was helping rural organizations with social activities.

Both groups are members of the Youth Section of the Country Life Association, and send delegates to its annual conference.

Development of leadership, appreciation for rural culture, and stimulation of fellowship among rural youth are objectives of the 14H Blue Shield Club.

At monthly meetings, programs offered a well-rounded background in recreational leadership, with radio auditions, drama, folk games, and handicraft.

Attendance was increased by those enrolled in the Farm Short Course. Meetings were designed to give them the activity which usually takes place on the agricultural campus.

Founded at the University of Minnesota in 1909, Phi Upsilon Omicron has aimed to advance and promote Home Economics. Its purpose is to establish friendships among the girls majoring in Home Economics, and to help them develop the characteristics which make them better citizens and homemakers. As a professional organization, Nu Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron has included in its program speakers who represent certain phases of Home Economics, visits to shops, and cooperation with professional Panhellenic Council in doing war work. Among the social activities of the year have been an alumnae dinner and rushing functions.

Membership to Phi Upsilon Omicron is limited to girls in the upper two-fifths of the school who have shown their interest in the high ideals which make Home Economics a profession.

The Saddle and Sirloin Club of the University of Wisconsin was organized in the College of Agriculture in January 1920, to promote improvement in livestock production and judging. It is a national organization and has active chapters in nearly every agricultural college in the United States.

The organization finances intercollegiate livestock judging teams and inter-school contests, and supports the national Saddle and Sirloin essay contest.

The most important function of the club is the presentation of the annual "Little International".

As for Post-war efforts, Saddle and Sirloin has established a scholarship fund for students. Juniors and seniors who maintained an interest in livestock and Saddle and Sirloin club will be eligible candidates. Veterans of the armed forces will be given preference, however.

Department of CHEMISTRY

A true scientist, J. H. Mathews, Director of the Chemistry Department, possesses that indispensable attribute, an inquiring mind. This has led him to further study in his favored field, criminal investigation and identification. His class specializing in this phase of chemistry is among the most unique on the hill. His pupils gain insight into the practical application of their study through his experience as president of the Madison Police and Fire Commission.

Mr. Mathews' hobby is photography. In this he proves himself an artist as well as a scientist. Particularly charming are his photographs of campus scenes.

The Chemistry Building is one of the intriguing places on the campus. Many a freshman student has lost himself in the maze of corridors and laboratories, and been bewildered by the complexity of the apparatus and instruments which confronted him.

In the Chemistry I laboratories, beginning students learn the fundamental laboratory procedures, and how to analyze the contents of inorganic compounds. Clad in rubber aprons, they ponder over minute bits of precipitate on a filter paper, or bend glass tubing for wash bottles.

Quantitative analysis is one of the most exacting of laboratory courses. Rows of balances and driers, and a general neatness, are characteristic of the "quant." labs; for great care must be taken to avoid contaminating speci-

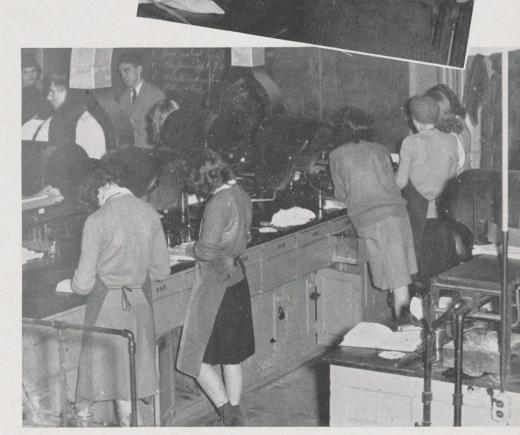

If you were to happen on a laboratory where huge condensers and flasks were set up in complicated arrangements, and an unusual pungent odor prevailed, you could immediately identify it as one of the organic laboratories. Here students must learn the general procedures for making such things as ether, chloroform, and picric acid, and how to set up equipment, so that the best results can be obtained.

Tucked away in between the larger labs are many small individual laboratories. Here graduate students and faculty carry on their own research work, and senior chemistry majors work on their theses.

From beginning chemistry course to individual research, the Chemistry School offers its students modern equipment and excellent instruction, and has thus earned an enviable reputation.

With the purpose of contributing to the advancement of the chemical sciences, Alpha Chi Sigma was founded in 1902. The fraternity offers professional and social brotherhood to members of these professions. Besides presenting speakers on interesting scientific subjects, it participates in the annual engineering exposition and maintains various displays throughout the year in the Chemistry Department. Each year, the group offers several prizes for high scholarship. The organization is active in the war effort since its members are training in a critical field, taking an active part in war research, or teaching. With the discontinuation of intermural sports, this year it entered the independent league, winning the division championship in basketball. Social functions held monthly add to the numerous activities of Alpha Chi Sigma.

School of COMMERCE

Because of his varied contacts among business men, Fayette H. Elwell is able to place many of his students advantageously. The dean, a kindly man with a practical eye to the future, saw the storm clouds gathering over the controversy as to whether or not the School of Commerce should be separated from the College of Letters and Science. The Board of Regents voted in favor of the division after business men argued that commerce students needed the same intensive training as students in other specialized schools.

DEAN FAYETTE H. ELWELL

fessor Gibson is also a music lover, and sings very well.

With a background of several years professional experience, Professor Donald R. Fellows came to Wisconsin in 1923 to teach marketing, advertising, and sales promotion. In his courses he supplements his lecture material with practical work, so that his students gain a thorough understanding of the methods for solving the problems of business administration. His suave and reserved manner has earned him the respect of both faculty and students.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

Alpha Mu, the Wisconsin cnapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, is one of forty-eight collegiate chapters constituting the membership of this international professional commerce fraternity. Its national organization was founded in 1904 at New York University. The local chapter was established in 1923.

Each chapter participates in fraternal, professional, and social activities. Formerly, weekly dinner meetings were held and guest speakers added to the general background of knowledge of the chapter members. Unfortunately because of limited enrollment and a scarcity of those eligible for membership, the local chapter has remained inactive during this year. It is hoped that in this way its high standards will be preserved for the peacetime to come when its normal activities will be resumed.

BETA ALPHA PSI

Beta Alpha Psi, the national professional accounting fraternity, was founded at the University of Illinois in 1919. At present there are twenty-three chapters of the fraternity. The Wisconsin chapter was established in 1932. Because of the fact that its members are all in Service, the chapter is inactive at the present time.

BETA GAMMA SIGMA

To accomplish the aims of Beta Gamma Sigma, an honorary Commerce organization, its founders limited membership to those who demonstrated superiority in the traits which a college education in business should develop. New members are elected from the highest ten per cent of the senior class on the basis of scholarship, activities, and leadership.

The Wisconsin chapter is one of the three original chapters which formed a national organization in 1913. Its growth has continued until there are now forty-eight chapters.

The present membership consists of three seniors
—Esther Strebel, David Kowalke, and Walter Huchthausen.

Delta Sigma Pi, professional commerce fraternity, was founded at New York University in 1907. The purpose of the fraternity is "to foster the study of business in universities; to encourage scholarship and the association of students for their mutual advancement by research and practice; to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and the students of commerce, and to further a higher standard of commercial ethics and culture and the civic and commercial welfare of the community."

Psi chapter was installed at the University of Wisconsin in 1923. The chapter house is located at 132 Breese Terrace and is temporarily occupied by the Ships Company of the WAVES. Despite the fact that there is a decreased enrollment in the School of Commerce, the fraternity has maintained an active professional program.

Close liaison is kept between the fraternity and its members in the armed forces.

PHI CHI THETA

A national, professional commerce sorority, Phi Chi Theta strives to promote the cause of higher business training among women, as well as friendship and cooperation among faculty and students, by forming a professional bond here at the university and later on in the business world.

Phi Chi Theta participates in all activities in the Commerce School, and gives awards to girls who make outstanding grades.

Not only is Phi Chi Theta interested in professional and scholastic activities; it also encourages social events. The sorority, with the other commerce organizations, helps the Commerce School put on the annual "Commerce Turnout", in the fall, and the "Senior Sendoff", in the spring.

Simply stated, The Women's Commerce Club is an organization open to all girls who are interested in business as a career. It has as its aims the development of a closer relationship among girls studying in Commerce and pre-Commerce, and the help and guidance of future business women.

Founded in 1917 when women were first beginning to go into business, the Women's Commerce Club has been able to keep its members abreast with the changes and advancement in the business field. Frequently, those who have made strides in this phase of commerce lecture to the group.

Women's Commerce Club also encourages scholarship, as well as social and professional standards.

School of EDUCATION

Dean Charles J. Anderson is more than Dean of the School of Education. He is the person largely responsible for its becoming the vital part of the university which it is today. Fourteen years ago, when the school was founded, he resigned his position as Assistant State Superintendent of Schools to assume his present duties as dean. He is also vitally interested in the problems of elementary school education, and has published several grade school textbooks. Quietly efficient, Dean Anderson is indeed a capable and inspirational leader for the students of the School of Education.

The purpose of Schoolmaster's Club is to acquaint students with each other, and the education faculty, and the teaching profession. New educational methods and developments are presented to the club throughout the year by outstanding leaders in the field of education. Mr. R. A. Walker, director of the University Teacher Placement Bureau, informs members of the opportunities and placement of teachers in their chosen majors.

Members and education faculty meet in an annual banquet in the spring. The advisor of the club this year was Miss Emily Scully.

College of ENGINEERING

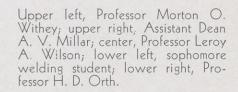

DEAN F. ELLIS JOHNSON

in his students. His big job this year has been to supervise the courses that the men in military units stationed on campus study, so that engineering techniques will aid in defeating the enemy, and to produce engineers who will be able to rebuild the world when the war is over.

Fondly labeled as "one of his kind", Professor Morton O. Withey has been a familiar figure in the mechanics department since 1905. He is president of the Wisconsin Society of Professional Engineers and the American Concrete institute. During his limited leisure moments, he can be found driving a holein-one on the golf course, or battling with mosquitoes as he fishes streams in Northern Wisconsin.

June of this year will mark the completion of forty-two years of service which Professor A. V. Millar has given to the University; also, it will mark the date of his retirement. As Assistant Dean, he has been counseling advisor for incoming freshmen engineers. Next year, Mr. Millar hopes to be in Florida so that he can devote his time to his favorite avocation, farming. Reserved and dignified, Professor L. A. Wilson has served as head of the Mechanical Engineering Department for the last two years. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, of S.A.E., and S.P.E.E. When not busy in the mechanics laboratory, he can be found bowling spares and strikes.

By the time a mechanical engineer is a sophomore, he is ready to be introduced into the mysteries of welding. With concentration, care, and a welding torch, two pieces of metal are fused into

A hobbiest shutter-blinker, Professor H. D. Orth is experimenting with stereoscopic photography which he hopes to use in helping his descriptive geometry students.

Upper left, candid in the Mechanics laboratory; upper right, mechanical drawing class; center, serviceman student at work; lower left, among the test tubes; lower right, working on the lathe.

This year found the blue of the Navy V-12's and the khaki of the Army Meteorologists and ASTP'S mingling with the plaids and tweeds of civilian engineers.

Here we see a group of engineers in Mechanics 53, a required course for all students in engineering. The men are taking notes on material testings they have just completed. A feeling of good fellowship and friendly cooperation developed between the military and civilian students, an attitude which helped them to function as efficiently as a pre-war student body.

Though the men "caught" on these pages are beardless and clean shaven, most of the engineers are unrecognizable by St. Pat's Day. They haunt the Engineering and Education Building behind as full a foliage as their virility produces.

Next year will find less civilian engineers on campus; about 75 per cent of the present enrollment will be allowed to continue its schooling.

The department of Mining and Metallurgy suffered a severe loss in the death of Professor Joseph Oesterle last winter. An instructor of engineering students for almost a quarter of a century, Mr. Oesterle was made a professor during his last years of service to the University. The memory of his kind understanding teachings has served as an inspiration to all students who knew him.

Enrolled in the school of engineering are several Wisconsin co-eds who should be commended for their courage to invade such a thoroughly masculine field, or is it courage that is required?

At a joint meeting of the two groups, the original Wisconsin name of Phi Delta Phi was discarded in favor of Pi Tau Sigma; neither group would concede the other the right to the Alpha chapter designation, however. Therefore, both chapters are known as Alpha chapters.

At present, there are 33 chapters and approximately 5,000 members of Pi Tau Sigma. Students, as well as practicing engineers chosen from the ranks, are initiated into this fraternity.

TAU BETA PI

Tau Beta Pi, the national honorary engineering society on the Wisconsin campus, was founded at Lehigh University. The Wisconsin Alpha chapter, the sixth oldest of the present seventy-six chapters was chartered in 1899.

The members are elected from the five branches of engineering: Chemical, Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, and Mining and Metallurgical engineering. High scholarship and integrity of character form the criteria for membership, as do adaptability to circumstances and breadth of interest.

Among its alumni are many of the faculty of the College of Engineering and technical experts in widespread fields of industry.

The initiation banquet held for the new members elected in the fall of 1943 was attended by over fifty undergraduates and alumni.

Polygon Board represents the engineering organizations in all their collective activities. Major social events of the last year included an all-engineering smoker and picnic, the annual Polygon Ball, the traditional St. Pat's Dance with its spirited beard growing contest.

The work of the Board is carried on by two representatives from each of the professional engineering societies. An accelerated program and a marked decrease in the enrollment in the School of Fnoineering has modified the Board's activities. However, Polygon continues to serve the engineering societies, with its special emphasis on the engineering exposition, the most important single duty of the Board.

A.I.CH.E. at Wisconsin began as the Chemical Engineer's Society shortly before the first World War. In 1923, it became affiliated with the national organization.

It was founded to foster the interests of students in chemical engineering; and its purpose is to develop the principles and practice of chemical engineering, to encourage the application of chemistry, physics, and mathematics to the problems of industry, to promote industrial efficiency by substitution of scientific and engineering procedures for "rule of thumb", and the establishment of high standards of personal ethics.

Program meetings are held regularly; and the social event of the year is the spring picnic. The society also assists in all engineering events through its Polygon Board representatives.

"Every Electrical Engineer who looks forward to a successful career should join his fellows to gain their aid, fellowship, and ideals; and to share in the cooperation which underlies progress. His older engineering brothers are ready to help and welcome him into their society, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers."

In pursuit of this goal, in the past year the University of Wisconsin branch has brought before its membership speakers representing the electrical industry and the electrical engineering faculty. To complete the cultural education of the engineer, speakers were obtained from the faculty of the College of Letters and Science. This branch has fostered and promoted student research papers along professional lines in cooperation with the faculty. Upon graduation the student is thus better prepared to assume his professional responsibilities.

A.S.C.E. endeavors to afford its members the opportunities for becoming better acquainted with others in the field of civil engineering, to promote a spirit of congeniality among them, to acquaint them with topics of interest, and to foster the development of the professional spirit.

This is done through picnics and dinners, as well as other social programs.

But more important, perhaps, is the encouragement of the professional spirit by having faculty members and prominent, successful civil engineers speak to the members. These meetings are held bi-monthly at the Hydraulic Laboratory. Mr. James G. Woodburn, Professor of Hydraulic Engineering, acts as faculty advisor.

A.S.C.E. has just completed its annual report which is sent in to the New York national chapter. This is a summary of all the important social and professional events that took place during the year, as well as information on students and graduates.

The Mechanical Engineering Society of Wisconsin was founded last year. Combining two mechanical engineering societies, S. A. E. and A. S. M. E., it boasts of a membership of nearly two-thirds of the mechanical engineers on campus.

A varied program has been carried on by the society in spite of war time restrictions and by the stepped-up scholastic requirements. Most of the events center around war industries, and include movies on airplane performance, design and developments, and speakers on pre-war air transportation. Members of the society went through the Gisholt Machine Company of Madison, and attended the Society of American Military Engineers banquet in Milwaukee, through the compliments of A.S.M.E.

Although M.E.S.W. is a war-born organization, and will probably break into the separate branches of A. S. M. E. and S. A. E., it has successfully brought about a closer unity between the two mechanical engineering societies at Wisconsin.

Delta chapter of Kappa Eta Kappa was organized in Wisconsin in 1924 as a professional electrical engineering fraternity. As its principal objective, it has attempted to create a strong and lasting comradeship between electrical engineering students. This is done by maintaining a chapter house on the campus and providing all of its members with an interesting and diverse social and scholastic program. It also aims to strengthen the personal aspects of the faculty-student relationship; to inculcate in the incipient engineer the fair dealing, integrity, and fidelity necessary to his profession; and to acquaint its members with topics of interest in the different fields of science and the promotion and development of the professional spirit.

Kappa Eta Kappa wholeheartedly supports all the activities of the College of Engineering.

Pi Mu Epsilon, a national non-secret fraternity, promotes mathematical scholarship.

The Wisconsin Beta chapter was founded in 1939, growing out of the mathematics club which had been active for ten years on the campus.

Membership in Pi Mu Epsilon is open to men and women, but is predominately male because more men take the mathematics requisite. Meetings are held every two weeks and consist of a short business meeting and a talk on mathematics or some allied subject. These talks are usually presented by a member of the university faculty, but may, on occasion, be given by a student who is interested in and informed on some branch of mathematics.

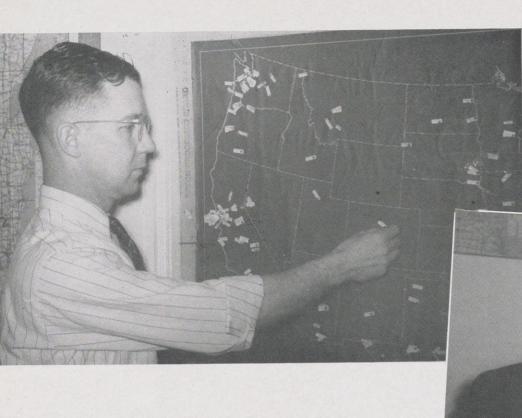

Each year, the organization holds a mathematics contest open to those who have not had more than a year of calculus. Prizes are awarded on the basis of the excellency of solutions to problems.

EXTENSION Division

Jovial Professor Lorenz H. Adolfson was selected as acting director of the Extension Division by the Board of Regents. Mr. Adolfson is qualified through experience in teaching political science in the extension division and in the College of Letters and Science as well as his lectures throughout the state. At present, he is working with the Armed Forces Institute, one of the largest correspondence courses ever set up in the United States. He is often seen hiking from South Hall to the Extension Building whistling merrily.

DIRECTOR LORENZ H. ADOLFSON

Top, Asst. Professor Leonard F. Hillis; center, Asst. Professor Chester Allen; lower left, Professor Harry E. Pulver; lower right, Assoc. Professor Russell W. Fowler.

Professor Leonard F. Hillis has taught extension courses in civil and structural engineering for fifteen years. A graduate of the College of Engineering at Wisconsin, Mr. Hillis' classes are more interesting because of his association with trained engineers in education and industry. He has prepared much supplementary material entering into the courses of his department.

Professor Chester Allen has served as Director of Field Organization at Madison since 1926. In addition, his interest in prison education has led him to supply educational material to men in Wisconsin's prisons. Probably his foremost interest at present is aeronautics. He has actively promoted flight training on campus, and is in charge of the CAA program of the Extension Division. His leadership in this field impelled his appointment as a member of the new Wisconsin Aeronautics Advisory Board. Professor Harry E. Pulver has taught 12,500 students in 524 classes this year. This amazing record shows the emphasis that is being placed on civil and structural engineering. A member of the Wisconsin faculty since 1920, Mr. Pulver also spent five and a half years teaching at the Nanyang College in Changhai, China. Professor Russell W. Fowler is an avid reader. He likes basketball and football, in season, and spends much of his time attending nation-wide conven-

GRADUATE School

Before his appointment as acting dean of the Graduate School, Harold W. Stoke was a professor of political science. The intricacies of the administration of the Graduate School are no mystery to him, however, because for several years he was assistant dean.

Dean Stoke spends much time traveling around the state, occasionally giving speeches. The manner in which he mixes his sense of humor with a thorough background of fact makes him an interesting and clever speaker. This same manner, applied to his duties as acting dean, make him a pleasant and respected executive.

School of JOURNALISM

Reserved, dignified, Director Grant M. Hyde of the School of Journalism works daily to preserve the high standard of his school. Through his sound judgment and efficient planning, the school has been able to progress despite a serious decrease in staff assistants. Possessing a rich journalistic background, Mr. Hyde attends newspaper conventions and editors' meetings. His extensive contacts in the newspaper field enable him to place his seniors advantageously. He relaxes by tuning in on his short-wave radio set from which he picks up foreign propaganda to use for illustrative purposes in his lectures.

DIRECTOR GRANT M. HYDE

Top, at work in type laboratory; center, preparing a publication analysis; lower left, busy at the teletype; lower right, camera class.

The School of Journalism has carried on its activity with characteristic vigor in spite of the fact that its faculty was pared down to a skeleton staff, and only a small percentage of its men students remained. The women have come forward to prove that they can satisfactorily fill positions that were formerly men's stamping grounds.

One of the oldest journalism schools in the country, it prepares its students for practical careers by training them in the many phases of editing, reporting, and printing, as well as photography, and courses on the psychology of the reading public, and the ethics of the profession.

In camera classes, approved techniques for snapping pictures and developing film are taught. Many a student spends more than his two-hour period in the dark rooms of South Hall up to his elbows in 'hypo'.

Familiar to all the J-School family is the Saturday noon deadline. Publication analyses which must be in the instructor's copy box by 12 o'clock, are usually done in the reading room where newspapers from all over the country are at the disposal of journalism disciples.

United Press copy which comes into South Hall on a teletype wire is edited by students and posted on the bulletin board. Between classes, small groups can be seen reading it.

Type lab is one of the most practical courses in the j-school. Here the students actually put the news into the tangible form of lead type, and, after inking it, transfer it to newsprint.

ALPHA DELTA SIGMA

Like many other campus organizations, the Younggreen chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, has gone to war. Now they're making action copy instead of writing it. For the nonce, therefore, such traditional ADS activities as representing Haresfoot in the role of advertising agent, trekking to neighboring cities on field trips, conducting advertising contests and market analyses will have to wait till the brothers in arms deliver America's message through the only media our enemies understand.

Until the weapons of war are laid down for the tools of writing and selling, the liaison officers: Professor Donald Fellows, faculty advisor, Professor Frank Thayer, faculty consultant, and Mr. Joseph Starr, ADS godfather of many years' meritorious service, are keeping a steadfast watch on the chapter's campus interests.

CORANTO

The Wisconsin Margaret Fuller chapter of Coranto is the first professional organization for women in journalism in the United States. The "baby" of the late Prof. Willard G. Bleyer, director of the School of Journalism, Coranto was founded in 1920. At that time fourteen girls lived in the journalism house. Today there are 68 members.

The name, Coranto, is taken from the first English newspaper printed in the 17th century. Last year Coranto published the first "Courant", an annual newspaper for graduation seniors in journalism.

Contacts toward establishing a Beta chapter at the Northwestern University Medill School of Journalism are being made this year.

Guest speakers at Founder's Day banquet were initiated as honorary members. They are Miss Ann Cottrell, Washington correspondent of the Chicago Sun and Miss Kay Monson Hergenrather, former fashion writer for the Chicago Sun.

High scholastic records and mutual cooperation of the women in the School of Journalism have been actively stimulated by Beta of Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary sorority on the campus for over 33 years.

Traditionally "Theta Sig" sponsors the socially outstanding Matrix banquet each spring, but during these war years the organization has pledged itself to whole-hearted participation in war activities.

Primary among these activities is the "J-School News", a six-page publication of the latest news on and for the members of "J" school now in the armed forces. This year the sorority greatly aided the Wisconsin Alumni Association in the completion of their service file of journalism students through this project.

War Council publicity is another war time activity undertaken by Theta Sigma Phi for the dura-

LAW School

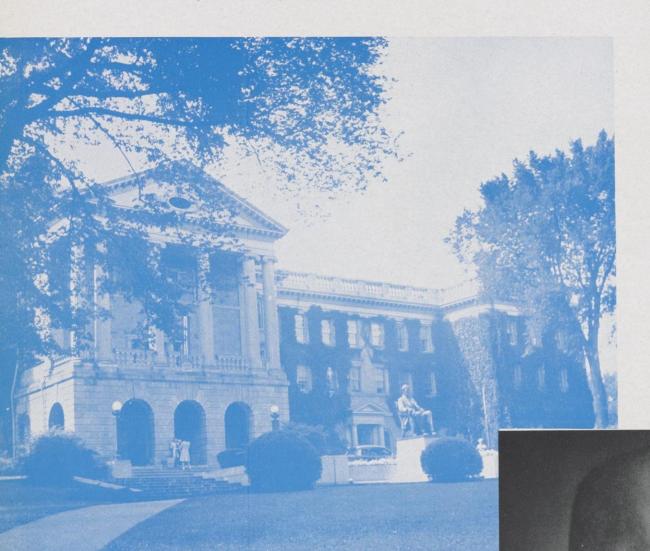

Dean Lloyd K. Garrison, a man of marked intellectual ability, received his A.B. and LL.B. degrees at Harvard. He became Dean of Law School at Wisconsin fourteen years ago. Mr. Garrison has mediated in state labor controversies, and has been a member of the committee appointed by President Roosevelt to study the labor laws of England and the Scandinavian countries.

Because of the decrease in enrollment of the Law School, Dean Garrison is on leave in Washington where he is serving as head of the War Labor Board.

Preceding his appointment as Dean of the College of Letters and Science, two years ago, Mark H. Ingraham taught mathematics for over seventeen years at the University of Wisconsin. Xi Chapter of Phi Beta, national speech and music fraternity, was organized on the Wisconsin campus in 1927. It has afforded an opportunity for women united by a common interest to meet in weekly gatherings.

Among Phi Beta's program of activities this year was the sponsorship of a Swingabout dance, tagged "Neptune Night", to raise money for the war. Working with the Panhellenic Council wrapping bandages was another war time task performed by Phi Betas. Several Phi Betas gave public recitals including an inside view into radio production, book reviews, and the library-reading of plays.

Social activities for the year included informal rushing, the annual alumnae party, a Christmas spread, a joint Zeta Phi Eta-Phi Beta party, a Mother and Daughter breakfast, and the Speech Faculty formal dinner. In the traditional candle lighting service, Phi Betas bade farewell to their seniors.

Woman art majors are elected according to their ability in carrying out these standards.

The group is helping with the war effort by participating in war work, and by cooperation with the Professional Panhellenic Council activities.

Realizing the role fine arts must take in maintaining the normal life, achieving victory and a desirable future, the members are preparing to fill war positions by putting their talents to work in various fields . . . in industry as draftsmen and designers, jobs which require artistic skill and technical training, and in education.

Founded at Northwestern University in 1893, Zeta Phi Eta has developed into a strong professional organization during its 51 years in existence. Omicron chapter at Wisconsin is outstanding among the 21 chapters.

The organization proposes to further and encourage all worthy speech and dramatic enterprises, to be a stimulating and vital force in all the speech arts, and to promote a kinship among the interested in speech.

This year, Zeta Phi Eta has been active in such patriotic and essential war work as USO programs and Red Cross work nights. Members also entertained the soldiers at Truax Field. Campus activities have included a Founders' Day banquet, meetings at which faculty members were invited to speak, and joint meetings with alumnae.

MEDICAL School

Dr. Walter J. Meek, acting dean of the Medical School, has filled his already mammoth schedule by accepting the responsibility of advisor to all pre-medical students and medical technologists. He is kindly, exacting, and encouraging to those who show their ability, but has a distinct prejudice against careless thinking and poor work.

Friendly and well-liked by students, Professor Edgar B. Gordon, besides his regular teaching courses, directs the "Music School of the Air", in which he instructs rural school pupils in choral singing. On Sundays he leads his church choir. It is said he can get music even out of a monotone.

Winner of many awards and scholar-ships in music, Mrs. Louise Lockwood Carpenter has studied abroad for several years at the Fontainbleau Conservatory of Music. She is a graduate of Yale Music School. Sympathetic, broadminded, poised, and friendly, Mrs. Carpenter's hobbies are her home and music to which she devotes most of her time Borrowed from Music School to teach German to the ASTPs, handsome and charming Mr. Gunnar Johansen, finds it refreshing to teach another subject after teaching nothing but music for so many years. In spite of a full schedule, Mr. Johansen finds time to continue his composing and concerts. Few know that his main hobby is flying an airplane, which he has done for 13 years. When the Pro Arte Quartet plays a quintet, Mr. Johansen accompanies them on the piano.

Though he teaches piano and keyboard harmony, Mr. Leonard L. Iltis finds time to be a golf, fishing, hunting, and curling enthusiast. Founded at the School of Music at Ann Arbor, Michigan in 1903, Sigma Alpha lota, national honorary music society, maintains its organization to uphold the highest ideals of a musical education, and to raise the standards of productive musical work among all students. It strives to the further development of music in America, to promote a stronger bond of musical interest and understanding between foreign countries and America, to adhere to the highest standards of American citizenship and democracy, and to give inspiration and aid to its members.

Sigma Alpha lota meets weekly when individual members present musicales, and various faculty members address the group. This year, in cooperation with Phi Beta, they sponsored a Victory Musicale. A formal recital is given each spring, and ensembles from the group have entertained at the various campus and USO functions.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Reflection of the effects of the war could be seen in the Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Student Association. Though the elected representatives were, one by one, answering Uncle Sam's summons, those who were left behind carried on the Board's reputation for being a strong-minded, constructive-thinking body in dealing with student problems.

With a nucleus of only three former members, the newly elected Board elected as president dynamic Katherine Schindler, the first woman to ever exercise executive control. A democratic program operating for the first time was the successful financing of all Student Board activities by the payment of a 25 cents tax by all students. Designed to forward the interests of the students, the Board included in its by-laws the Student Academic Relations Committee; cooperated with the Union in an attempt to solve existing problems; determined a temporary, for-theduration distribution of members according to the male-female student ratio; co-supervision of the major dances; and promoted a financially successful charity drive in Campus War Chest.

During the summer of '43, for the first time Student Board instead of dealing with dance supervision only, acted as a regular legislative and administrative body. Katherine Schindler and Emily Jane Graham served as elected members; the other twelve by presidential appointment. Concrete enactments included the settlement of a Union-Board debt; inclusion of ASTP and V-12 men as honorary, non-voting members of WSA; and the establishment of the Student Government Radio Round Table.

STUDENT BOARD

ACADEMIC RELATIONS—Under the chairmanship of Jeanne DeBerard, Pat Sweeney, and Harriet Anderson, the committee instigated a better Freshman Forum series, conducted a poll on cheating, and did much in the way of relations between students and faculty members.

ELECTIONS COMMITTEE—Honest campaigning, a fair chance for all, and close supervision of the polling places, were the aims of the elections committee this year as in past years. Shirley Margolius and her committee had the tough job of making people realize that elections still mean a lot.

HOUSING COMMITTEE—As one of their projects this year, the committee under the guidance of Esther Hougen, conducted investigations of existing housing conditions and helped by making suggestions as to how these conditions might be remedied.

COMMITTEES

PERSONNEL COMMITTEE—The committee began functioning this year with the responsibility of determining whether students were qualified to run for office. After a period of laxity, students are once more required to have experience in campus activities before filing for board elections.

WAGES AND HOURS—With the rising cost of living, the committee, under John Petrus, conducted a poll to see what wages were being received by students and campaigned for increased wages during the school year.

WAR CHEST—With the many war reliefs and services needing more money this year than ever before, Therese Pick had a job to make this year's collection the success that it was. Decreased enrollment made it doubly hard.

WAR COUNCIL

War Council has not only made this campus an effective, functioning, war-minded body, but has coordinated all the various war activities on the campus. It is the central authority in all war projects.

To provide a memorial to Wisconsin men and women who are fighting in this war, as the Memorial Union was dedicated to those who fought in the last war, has been the aim of this committee.

University of Wisconsin Volunteer Service has brought the women to the fore and organized them into cookie canteens, Red Cross units, USO hostess groups, and nurse's aides.

MISS VICTORY

As a part of the old clothes drive, the houses having 100% contributions were selected to dress Miss Victory in the window of a store on State Street.

Like other campus activities, the Freshman Orientation program was affected by wartime conditions. Several new problems, coupled with the usual difficulties in adjustment to university life, face entering first-year students. In addition, the orientation period had to be streamlined to conform to the accelerated calendar.

Co-chairmen originally chosen for the program were Joan Dretzin, and Bill Stephens. After much of the preliminary organization had been completed, Bill was called into the armed services and John March was appointed to fill the vacancy.

A difference in registration dates in many of the colleges, notably the College of Engineering, and the manpower shortage cut the male entering class from a normal of 1600 to 260. Meanwhile, the women's enrollment actually increased from 800 to 962. Consequently the burden fell upon the women assistants and committee chairmen who turned in excellent jobs under difficult conditions. Anne Goodale did exceptionally fine work during the critical summer planning period.

Emphasis throughout the meetings was placed on the Wisconsin tradition, opportunities in student government and activities, as well as the importance of maintaining high scholastic records. An All-Freshmen Assembly introduced student and faculty leaders, while the annual freshman "Get Acquainted" Tea, with Mrs. Dykstra, the University's first lady, as charming hostess, climaxed the welcome given the Class of 1947.

ORIENTATION

JOHN MARCH AND JOAN DRETZIN Co-Chairmen

Charming and capable "Dretz" with a background of many campus activities, did a bang-up job of orienting the freshmen women; while John, despite a late start and the manpower shortage, managed to get the freshmen men off to a good start.

For the purpose of more highly integrating men students on the campus, providing a means for expression of student opinion, promoting a method for organized student action, and advancing for the greatest number of men students a social, cultural, and athletic program, the Men's House President's Council is formed. This was an unusual year for the HPC in that the enrollment of men students was so greatly depleted. There was no longer a representative from the Men's Dorms, most of the fraternity houses had been taken over by the Army, and although lodging house men had the largest group, this also was greatly reduced.

In spite of the obvious drawbacks, House President's Council, which did not function during the summer session, was completely reorganized in the fall semester. The aims of the organization were to get the men on campus into war activities and interested in student government, to issue the mailbag, and organize a social and athletic program if possible.

An intramural basketball program headed by Ken Mickle was undertaken as part of the athletic organization. HPC helped the student directory by canvassing the men's houses and getting the listing of men students. Karl Sonnemann planned a dance in the spring in connection with War Council.

STUDENT COURT

Student Court, in its third year of active functioning, has brought the judicial branch of student government to a new high. Not a passive organization by any means, the court and its chief henchman, Joe Hammersley, have probably brought about more discussion and publicity than any other campus activity.

The main function of the court is to provide a fair and complete hearing for all violators of student and faculty regulations governing student conduct. And not withstanding a certain amount of unfavorable criticism, the court has endeavored to accomplish just this. Originally intending to deal almost entirely with traffic violations, the court has extended its jurisdiction over smoking in university buildings, grounds destruction, and classroom cheating and plagerism. More than 200 cases have been tried this year. Every Tuesday afternoon, a line of students file through the court's room in the Union and plead either guilty or non-guilty, and get a corresponding verdict.

The court does not institute any set form of procedure nor does it institute prosecution, and cases may be pleaded and defended without strict court procedure. When hearing cases the court consists of the Chief Justice and two Associates, the Public Counsel who pleads the case, and the Court Representative who prosecutes.

In case of an unpopular, unfair, or discriminatory decision, a case may be taken to the Board of Appeals and pleaded before five faculty members and two students.

Remarkable feature of the court is that it is entirely independent of faculty or university interference, and has even been known to convict a guilty professor.

E. J. GRAHAM

Respected, well-liked, charming, E. J., with a devoted personnel behind her has forged ahead and successfully steered WSGA to new highs.

For the first time in the history of its 47 years, summer operation of WSGA was inaugurated because of the 15 weeks summer semester. Activities centered around house organization, house president, and house mother meetings.

Interest questionnaires were distributed to all women's houses early in October in order to ascertain what activities should be undertaken by the Women's Affairs Committee. As a climax to this planning, twenty outstanding women, leaders in their respective fields, were brought to the campus to discuss their work and answer questions. As a follow-up of the questionnaires, talks on Techniques in Job Application, Marriage in Wartime, and tours through the home management house were arranged.

Women's houses gave open houses for the servicemen stationed on campus through cooperation with the Co-ed Canteen, the traditional Freshman Scholarship banquet honored all freshmen women, Women's Local Students Association was incorporated into WSGA officially this year, and spring brought with it the favorite event of the Women's Affairs Committee—the fashion show. These are only some of the highlights of a highly successful year of WSGA.

House President's Mail Bag edited and put together by WSGA serves a useful purpose informing students of the week's coming attractions. Miriam Smith, Gina Miller, and Lil Gilson monopolize the WSGA desk with important business.

The Personnel Committee recruits interested women to work in WSGA activities under a well-developed indoctrination program.

Jake W Quick And recall those everyday events

The Flame, good place any time, before dance or after a party, noted for its car atmosphere and roast turkey on the counter. Who doesn't pray for a figure like any or these, but Miss Glassow's "keep fit" exc class over the air every morning is a bit stren . . . Just relaxin' and talkin' or is Miller out a new line on Clark, that's a laugh . Button, button, who's got a button, all the gineers had came St. Pat's day.

Hance Back

That make college memories

First prize winner in the homecoming decorations, Alpha Gam, sorry for the blurry mass girls, but it rained that day . . . Barb Fletcher grins over a coupluv bottles of brew, a brat, and potato chips at the Cabin where brick walls and initialed tables reign . . . Three cheers for the local students who got into first rate positions this year and became an integral part of W.S.G.A. . . . Held in December this year, I-F Ball brought out the Greeks and their dates to a kinda barren lookin' dance.

N the whole history of American Colleges and Universities there has never been a year in which the senior class has been so unmistakably cemented—certainly in spirit—by influences and conditions beyond the campus scene. Even in 1917 and 1918 students and student interests were, contrasted with the present situation, meagerly touched by the environing war. The difference in tone and spirit is the difference between the marching song "Over There" and "You're In The Army Mr. Jones:" the one envisioning the foreign areas, the other ringing with the motivation and sentiment bred right here on the home front. Engineers who will design vehicles and machines for peace and weapons and defenses for war, doctors who will fight bacilli in tropical jungles and gangrene on the bodies of wounded fighters, dietitions and nurses and chemists and mathematicians who will help us through this conflict and into the tireless reconstruction—all these and their confreres look out from the succeeding pages upon a challenge which is so vibrant and unprecedented that its original and stupendous novelty is beyond ordinary grasp. We accept it with the brave and casual placidness admired by out teachers and parents mainly because it is all so huge and exceptional that it would be idle and superflous to regard it in its true colors and dimensions. Ours, after all, is the age of Youth's Great Adventure: We'd be doltes and simpletons if we didn't perceive it!

OFFICERS

Highest scholastic honors in the School of Letters and Science are represented in the international fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa. Since 1776 it has been promoting scholarship and friendship among students and graduates of American colleges. A 2.7 grade point average combined with good moral character is requisite for unanimous election to the organization.

COUNCIL AND DIRECTORATE

KAYO HALL and WALTER PANCOE, first and second semester Union presidents.

When the doors of the Wisconsin Memorial Union open each morning, there begins a trek of thousands through its halls. Into its dining rooms, into its ballrooms, into its library they come. They snooze in the easy chairs, work in the darkrooms, go to movies in the Play Circle, attend musical and dramatic productions in the theatre, and listen to records. It is their "living room," their community center. Built to honor the 11,000 university men and women who served in the last war, this campus memorial has reached its service peak in World War II.

In spite of a slow starting winter, Hoofers put on a very successful Winter Carnival. There were ice boat races, and with a little shoveled snow put on the ski slide, the ski meet, and the usual plaid shirt week. Our ski team, captained by Pete Thomsen, retained the Intercollegiate Central West Championship title. Despite adverse snow conditions, the ski team scored high in meets held in Ishpeming, Beloit, and Wausau.

For the first time in its history, Hoofers also had a woman president. Under the capable guidance of Alice Strange, Hoofers carried on a full program of outings and tours. Last fall, a special hike was conducted up around Baraboo. When the lake breaks up in the spring 'til it freezes in the fall, Hoofer sail boats are a familiar sight on the lake. Horse back riding and heel duty rounded out a full year of activity.

JAMES MELTON—Shown with accompanist, tall, handsome, Metropolitan tenor, Mr. Melton brought "Pistol Packin' Mamma" to an army audience and took with him the Union's apple pie recipe.

COLORFUL U

Presents the best in enjoyme

Providing the most for the least has always characterized the Union policy of bringing excellent entertainment value to its patrons. Catering not only to University students but also to the Madison populus and the entire servicemen encampment of the city, the Union has become the focal spot for peaceful relaxation in the lives of study-tired, war-weary individuals.

Here in the metropolis of the University thousands come to reap the rewards of hard-working staff and committee members whose main purpose is to make everyone happy by putting on a good show every week.

And the Union has successfully lived up to this policy year after year. The twenty-fourth annual Concert Series saw the Union Theatre play host to James Melton, the Don Cossacks, Gregor Piatigorsky, Kipnis and Lipton, and Robert Casadesus. From the cheering audiences of Broadway, Picadilly, and the Place de Opera came the worlds most accomplished artistes to bring the utmost in concert technique to the University.

DON COSSACK CHORUS—Always a Union favorite, the lusty-voiced, "singing horsemen" of the Russian steppes brought enjoyment with their stunning tones and fiery dances.

GREGOR PIATIGORSKY—Looking over his score before the proformance, Mr. Piatigorsky beloved of concert-goers, holds Montagnana violincello made in 1739.

ON PROGRAMME

d entertainment for everyone

The Music committee under the competent guardianship of Miss Eleanor Ferguson has spiced up Sunday afternoons with special performers—Judith Magee and her interpretive dancing, John Jacob Niles with his balladry for America, the Four Moderns and their mellow singing, and others.

The forum committee attracted world-analysists and post-war planners to feel out and contribute to the war consciousness of the University students.

The "Meet Your Navy" show saw the Union right in on another big hit as first class entertainers played for gobs and gold braid. Duke Ellington brightened up many a lonely soldier's heart on Christmas Eve, and Les Brown, feature on the spotlight broadcast, "digged it" right from the Union portals.

Another satisfying year will go down in the records of Union history.

ELY CULBERTSON—Bridge expert and war analysist Mr. Culbertson spoke to a post-war planning group on the theories presented in his new book.

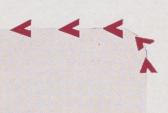

EHRKE TWINS—Already good troupers, tiny blonde Julie and illiette, made merry for the New Year's Eve crowd with their terpretations and piano duets.

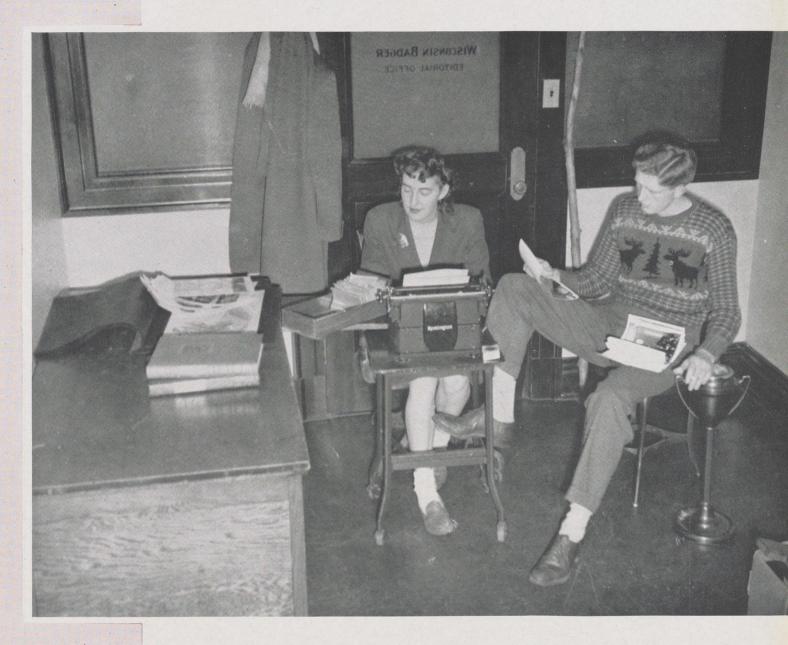

JOHN JACOB NILES—Man of talent and ingenuity, Mr. Niles gave a genuine performance of folk-lore balladry on his own hand-fashioned dulcimer.

The Wisconsin Badger came through hectic 1943-44 with many problems newly solved, and in spite of them all managed to make its appearance as an authentic glimpse of the University of Wisconsin during the past school term.

"Crick" had a man-sized job to do in combating the rising costs in engraving materials and scarcities of everything in order to put out the yearbook at its usual low cost. Photographic supplies and "man hours" for the processing of the pictures after they were taken were sadly lacking, but with full cooperation of the staff, the Badger did come to life.

Excepting the staff, which did a splendid job, the editor's biggest moral support came from "The Voice" Sinatra, whose pictures graced the four walls of the office.

Sections specifically devoted to the Army Specialized Training Program, Meteorologists, and Navy V-5 at the university give the book the necessary wartime character and what's more important, give the men stationed here a worthwhile souvenir of their days at Wisconsin.

This year's Badger includes all the features of the old Badgers in addition to several specialty sections of its own.

EILEEN PRICE stuck by her "price" even in the face of rising costs and turned out the same high_quality Badger.

With Eileen Price at the helm of the Business Staff, the book's financial interests have been well handled. For the 59th year of Badger history managing finances, sales, publicity, and advertising was a substantial job, especially when, as is the case this year, the ASTP, Navy and Meteorologists are covered more extensively than any year since the services arrived on the campus.

A pledge contest early in Fall and the awarding of two free tickets to "Oklahoma" gave impetus to promotion. For a grand job the Badger business department deserves all the credit that an appreciative university can give it.

It was to the small offices to the right of the elevator, third floor Union toward which the entire Badger staff directed its steps (not because of the smell of beer) but because it needed to occupy its spare afternoons.

It was here that it first of all arranged the seniors to be photographed and then pigeonholed them for their own private section.

Adjacent to the editorial office can always be found the first year "stooges" pounding away on typewriters, filing, alphabetizing subscribers stubs, wrapping packages, and doing the many other jobs that are prerequisite to knowing the Badger's intricacies as the staff eventually does.

One room farther on finds the business manager counting her money and subscriptions and planning big promotion deals. But with the 1942 "staff" (pure oak) that leans in the corner overseeing production we know the book will be worth its "Price".

Little notes, such as "Do this by 6 o'clock and do it right this time" (anonymous but we suspect the Editor) found on stacks of copy kept the staff conscious of its duties.

All in all it was the usual book-happy group whose reward came only when the Badger made its complete, section by section appearance.

For another year the Daily Cardinal has succeeded in keeping all the campus news at our doorsteps every morning (well, anyway four mornings a week). It has been the most widely read newspaper among the students, giving us an all-around consciousness of current world events, campus news of all kinds including sports, politics, social events, the university's war program, scholastic attainments, and personality sketches of people we know.

It has won the struggle to keep the student's paper the voice of the entire body of Wisconsinites, rather than the point of view of just a few. Though the present staff is almost entirely feminine, Cardinal spirit is there the same as always. Old traditions, as the Badger Beat and Troubleshooters still battle it out through their columns.

Editorship changed hands when Ruth Jaeger turned the keys over to Pat Hogg Larson during the first semester.

The Cardinal's newly added military sections have given the servicemen a chance to see what they can do along journalistic lines and helps to coordinate the student and military viewpoints.

Campus congratulations to ARLENE BAHR for keeping the Cardinal's business head above water, and thus making possible our Daily Cardinal.

Necessitated by wartime conditions and decreased enrollment, a four-day Cardinal week has been initiated. However, it was the last of the Big Ten dailies to be forced to succumb to the cut down in the number of weekly publications.

The Cardinal business staff under the direction of experienced Arlene Bahr has been a mainstay to the more constantly changing editorial staff. It has done some fine work in keeping the subscription level and number of regular advertisers up near that of pre-war days.

Half the Daily Cardinal staff's energies this year were applied in keeping track of the identity of the present editor. At the time of the Badger's going to press, three had already shortened their normal span of life by taking on the job.

The atmosphere of a student publication office combined with that of a daily newspaper could be wearing enough without the additional hectic job of keeping the staff "manned" with nothing but the feminine element to fill its positions.

Copy desk had its perennial job of making reporters' copy readable, and as evidenced by the finished product a conscientious group gathered at that table. By editing AP news from the J-School teletype, the paper made up a daily column of current world news.

Jay Krone's sports column disappeared with him when Uncle Sam reached into the Cardinal Office in his search for some of the remaining members of the virile sex.

Scooping and meeting the inevitable deadlines gave the staff its rewarding journalistic thrill—if putting out a grade A college paper didn't.

The voice of the Ag campus, the Wisconsin Country Magazine, edited by Home Economics and Agriculture students kept up its publication as usual in spite of the difficulty of keeping a full-sized staff this past year.

With circulation in the neighborhood of fifteen hundred, Mary Alice Flanagan held the editorship during the first semester, while Phyllis Mann manipulated the business end. Lillian McGilvra took over the job of editor at the beginning of the second semester.

The Country "Mag" is published monthly during eight months of the year and covers all phases of Ag campus life and personalities; it tells of current projects, problems, and research being done in every phase of the fields of Home Economics and Agriculture.

In past years the policy was to have a woman editor. Now practically the entire staff is feminine. The publication is advisor Professor William A. Summer's baby. It's the members of his semester course in Agricultural Journalism who, for the most part, make up the staff.

The business staff handles all subscriptions, advertising, and financial matters to keep the magazine a "going" concern. Some students subscribe through their Ag activities cards.

Speaking officially for the University of Wisconsin engineering school, The Wisconsin Engineer magazine continued its policy of year around publication, since the school is now on a year around basis.

Despite cut-throat competition of the draft boards, sufficient staff has been maintained to put out the magazine with the reputation of "never having missed an issue since its inauguration."

It was back in 1896 that The Wisconsin Engineer magazine was founded as a quarterly under the auspices of the engineering faculty. Later the students managed to get complete control. Before the war and the extension of the school year it was published only eight months of the year.

Glenn Jacobson, new editor, took over the reins from Don Niles at the close of the first semester. The business managership remained under the capable direction of Don Caldwell.

The magazine finds an outlet for journalistic talents of the Engineering School, expresses its students' opinions, elaborates on its present problems, does considerable research, and keeps track of alumni.

In spite of priority and wartime handicaps this year, The Wisconsin Engineer has put another praiseworthy milestone behind it.

In June of 1943, nine girls were sent to Wisconsin by the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Corporation in a training program open only to women for engineering fellowships. The courses of study prescribed under the Pratt-Whitney plan have been arranged from a background of a score of years' experience in the engineering of aircraft power plants. Wisconsin is one of the nine leading colleges and universities over the country chosen to cooperate with the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft Corporation located in Hartford, Connecticut.

This unique plan to train women as engineers had stiff requirements. To be eligible even for application, these girls had to have superior scholastic records previously and senior standing Final selection of fellowship candidates was by interview with company representatives. Or campus here, Dean Ruedisill acts as an interested and able advisor to this group.

Each fellowship carries a stipend of $1500 for the training period which began June 7 1943 and which will end May 27, 1944. The Junior PROMENADE

Amazed Everyone with its Spectacular Showing

The success of the 1944 Junior Prom was aided by an eleventh hour reprieve from the Army C. O., and the A.S.T.P.'s with the other service branches helped form a capacity crowd. Sponsored by Student Board and the Union, which was completely turned over to the committee for the event, Prom took on its usual glitter, shine, and unharalded spectacle, but all in keeping with wartime restrictions in the form of inexpensive decorations and the absence of a name band. Music was under the able direction of Stan Myers, Benny Ehr, and Bob Arden. "Bascom Hill at Night" set the scene with Bascom Hall in the background of a snow-capped hill. King Bob Henkel and Queen Martha Woodling reigned royally from 9:30 to 1:00 A. M. Captain James Eagan, on leave from the Pacific theatre, was introduced as one of the honored guests.

As Stan Myers surveyed the crowd, Bob Henkel introduced his bevy of John Powers's Badger Beauties.

SENIOR COUNCIL

Realizing the need for stronger class cooperation, the Senior Council of the Class of '44 took a major step in that direction by setting up a plan of organization for the Senior Class. As stated in the preamble of the constitution, its purpose is "to provide the members of the Senior Class with an effective governing body and an organized voice; and to create and maintain class solidarity on campus and after graduation."

The Council set aside the first week of May as Senior Week, highlighted by Senior Ball, Senior Swingout, and the Senior Convocation. The Convocation was unprecedented in recent years. It was the first time that an entire Senior Class was called together for any purpose other than graduation. President Dykstra and John Berge spoke to graduates on the facts and problems arising out of the transition from Senior status to that of alumni.

Another of the important services rendered the class was the establishment of an organization to maintain class unity after graduation. The members of this Post-Graduate Executive Board have as their duties to represent the class on the Executive Board of the Alumni Association, to plan reunions, and to edit a yearly class bulletin.

Officers of the Council were president, Karl Sonnemann; vice-president, Roland Wendorff; Secretary, Arlene Bahr; treasurer, Wayne Marcouiller; publicity director, Joyce Gafke.

SENIOR BALL

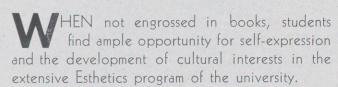

As the last major function of the year, the 1944 Senior Ball, held Friday night, May 5th, proved to be a spectacular finale to Senior week. More than a farewell dance for the men and women of the Senior Class, it was also a gay night for all service branches on campus, who danced happily to the rhythmic strains of the orchestra in Great Hall which was cleverly bedecked with farewell decorations.

Chairman Karl Sonnemann chose "Teeter" Luhman for his Queen and presented her in regal fashion to an enthusiastic crowd.

CHAIRMAN KARL SONNEMANN QUEEN BETTY LUHMAN

Stimulating and inspiring are the offerings of the band, chorus, forensics, and drama.

Trim uniforms, precise formations, and scintillating rhythms of the University band and zip and spirit to the football games. Win or lose who doesn't thrill to the band's "We'll March On Victorious"? And what could stir the hearts of loyal Wisconsinites more than the swelling of "Varsity" after the final gun of the hard-fought football and basketball contests?

To satisfy classical music lovers the Concert Band brings to life the work of the masters with varied, vivid presentations.

Expert guidance and enthusiastic membership combine themselves in the University chorus—an organization open to students who delight in vocal expression. Active on campus and in the community, this group offers pleasure to participants and audience alike.

To foster, advance, and correlate forensics at the University—these are the activities of the Forensic Board. Oratorical, declamatory, debatable and extemporaneous discussions are promoted for the development of all talented students in the rhetorical field.

Mask and win lure on the students with dramatic aspirations to participate in active Wisconsin Players. Slapstick to tragedy is explored by theatrical minds on the Memorial Union stage.

Even though the membership of the University Band has been thinned by the many bandsmen who are now serving in the Armed Forces, the band has carried on in a true Wisconsin tradition. More than half of the membership of the band was made up of freshmen, and of these, thirty-eight were less than 18 years old. Many upon reaching the age of 18 were inducted into service. In spite of the changing personnel, the band maintained a high standard of accomplishment, and studied and played the usual fine library of band music characteristic of Wisconsin Bands.

A total of 43 appearances were made by the band this year, these included concerts, radio broadcasts, football games, mass meetings, and basketball games. Four concerts were played by the band in the Union Theater and for the sixth year a regular weekly radio program was played. This program, known as the "Music Hall Hour" originated in historic Music Hall Auditorium, and was broadcast by station WHA and the Wisconsin Network.

To perform the military duties required by the Army and Navy units stationed on the campus, an A.A.F. Detachment Band, an A.S.T.P. Band, and a Navy Training Schools Band were organized and trained by Mr. Dvorak for service to their respective units.

WILLIAM R. PFEIFFER DIRECTOR

UNIVERSIT

This year in spite of there being a lack of tenors and basses the University Chorus has carried on admirably. To compensate for the lack of male voices the number of girls has been cut. This does not keep all the girls out however, for Mr. Pfeiffer planned to take a portion of the sopranos and altos and feature them as a separate chorus.

Heretofore the meetings were held in the evening, but because of Director Pfeiffer's extracurricular work in a war plant, meetings are conducted in the afternoon. Thus war-time has broken another tradition. So as to accommodate everyone, meetings are held every afternoon.

The chorus plays an important role on the campus. In addition to being a chorus for which credit is given, it is an active participant in college programs. Each Sunday the chorus can be heard broadcasting on the Choral Hour. Other events in which the chorus sang are Founder's Day and the Christmas Festival.

FORENSICS

The Forensic Board is the policy determining and administrative body of forensic activities on campus. These activities include a freshman forensics program which sponsors debate, extemporaneous speaking and reading, declamation and oratory, and an upper class forensics program which emphasizes discussion and debate, and contest participation in extemporaneous speaking and oratory.

Despite reduced numbers out for debate and discussion work this year, the discussion team and the mixed debate team won notable successes in sectional competition with outstanding schools of the Big Ten.

WISCONSIN UNIVERSITY PLAYERS

Because of the manpower shortage, there has developed a new ruling that servicemen may participate in Wisconsin Players plays this year. There has also been a reorganization of the club so that more responsibility for the success of all productions is concentrated in players' bands. This brings forth more iniative since they handle most of the technical details of production, exclusive of direction.

Another change of policy is that of experimental production. Heretofore all these plays have been presented in the Play Circle, but this year two of these plays, "The Boors" and "American Short Plays" were featured in the Union Theatre. The future policy will be decided upon the success of this venture. There have been sell-out houses for all shows, owing to the spirited advance of coupon book sales by player members.

THE BOORS

The "Cradle Song," the first play of the 1943-1944 season, brought a promise of outstanding work in the thespian world to the Wisconsin Players. Written by G. Martin Sierra and directed here by Mr. F. A. Buerki, the performance was given in October in the Union theater. The leading roles were portrayed by Marne Graf, Jean Mowry, Hope Daly, and Jerry Brandt. A story of a girl brought up in a convent, this play had a tender note that reached the hearts of the entire audience.

In the same month came the "Ghosts" by Ibsen. A social drama, this production brought tragedy behind the footlights. The insanity of the father was inherited by the son and led to his death. In striking contrast to the "Cradle Song" this play had us all quaking. Phoebe' Hoenig and Don Fellows led the cast, and Mr. R. E. Mitchell directed.

In November came a theme on a lighter vein, Helen Jerome's adaptation of Jane Austin's "Pride and Prejudice." To most of us this story of a man too proud and a girl too prejudiced is not new. The book is almost a classic read by the majority of us before we have long been in college. The excellent acting of Hope Daly, Julius Bensick, Geraldine Fleming, Pfc. Mack Fuller as the leads, and the directing by Mr. C. M. Getchell, sent us home with a smile having spent an evening watching fine entertainment.

NIGHT MUST FALL

The second semester brought first to the playbill the "Boors," the first experimental production of the season and a great success. Written by Goldoni and translated by Russo, this play was presented here in February. It had never before been done in English. Playing the leading characters were Bernie Lifschitz, Patricia Flannery, and Clayton Peterson, and directing was Blanche Muldrow. If this is a sample of an experimental production, may we have more of it.

March brought forth the play which had us all clutching tightly to our neighbor's hand, "Night Must Fall." Produced to give the utmost in suspense and tension through the use of strong effects and sounds, we won't forget it for a long time. Included among the cast were Julius Bensick, Phoebe Hoenig, and Mary Anne Reed. The play was written by Emlyn Williams and directed at Wisconsin by John Dietrich.

The same month gave us four American short plays in the experimental production field. Thompson's "The Warrior's Husband" directed by Audrey Heimbach, O'Neill's "Before Breakfast" under the direction of Phoebe Hoenig, Green's "Unto Such Glory" directed by Jerry Brandt, and "Little Granny Graven" directed by Betty Kennett.

The season closed with Lawrence Riley's "Personal Appearance" directed by capable John Dietrich. Our thanks to the Wisconsin Players for another year of most enjoyable entertainment.

ITH the important position women hold on a campus during war it is proper that we devote a section of this book to their activities. Added to the extra-curricular activity of writing to service men in distant places; the college coed busies herself with many organizations. May we present a few.

First we bring you the Beauties of 1944. Whoever said beautiful but dumb, was not speaking of the Wisconsin beauties who have a commendable average—over 2.0.

With Lathrop Hall at their disposal, the women find many things to occupy their time. WAA presents a varied program open to all university women. With two gyms, five indoor badminton courts, four bowling alleys, three table tennis tables, a swimming pool, a dance studio, a spacious lounge, and all needy equipment, who can complain of time on her hands? In connection with WAA we find the famed Wiskits, the all University Women's Production.

Related, is the P. E. Club organized for Physical Education majors to further professional interest in this and related fields.

The "Y" has been a most active organization with emphasis on women's roles in war time. Nationally-known authorities have talked on current coed problems, and bi-monthly religious seminars created a furor of campuswide discussion.

Castalia and Pythia function as cultural literary organizations. The scope of activities has been broadened to include a program in direct line with the war.

Professional Panhellenic Council serves to govern and coordinate professional sororities on campus.

With all these groups we can see Wisconsin

girls are far from idle.

THE WOMEN

WSGA fetes air line enthusiast Pat O'Malley, Dean McBride of Bryn Mawr, and others as Wisconsin co-eds learn the inside info from top-notch careerists.

Mary Winkleman starts off the Euthenics fashion show and morning in her own ensemble creation.

Wiskits brings Marge Koch to the telephone in the Theta skit.

Orchesis provides a stimulus for creative genius and the girls give out gracefully with the dance.

The WSGA scholarship banquet entertains the most potential freshmen girls and inspires them to greater scholastic heights with good food and enlightening speeches.

Miss Clarissa Tompkins Wr. Bob Henkel THE 1944 BADGER Memorial Union Building Madison 5, Wisconsin

Dear Miss Tompkins and Mr. Henkel:

It was a great pleasure judging your beauty contest for the 1944 BADGER. The candidates were all so attractive that I found it very difficult to choose the six winners:

Anna May Snyder June Wegner Gwen Frimoth Ruth Wutke Martha Woodling Margaret Ohm

These winners were selected for their character, personality and intelligence, as well as for natural beauty. My choice was greatly influeenced by my Interest in and admiration for the Natural Girl.

With best wishes to all of the candidates, to the students of the University of Wisconsin, and to the staff of the 1944 BADGER; I am

John Robert Powers
John Robert Powers

When we hear it said, "she is a Powers' model," we think immediately of a very lovely person. What girl wouldn't like to be listed among them? Mr. Powers' Model Agency is one of the foremost in the country, and his ability to select beauty is unexcelled.

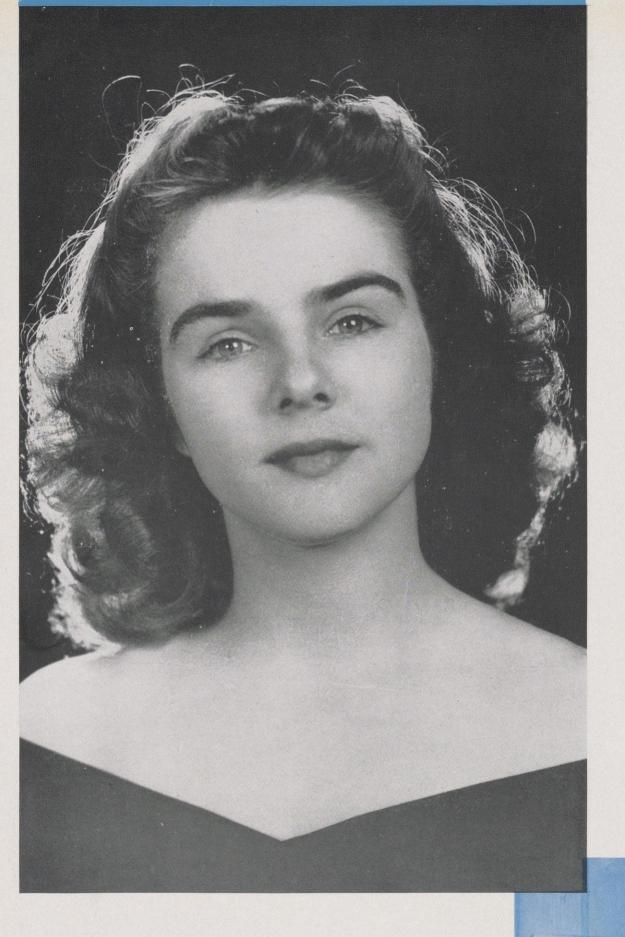

The idea was conceived this Fall to have the Badger Beauties chosen by a prominent person not connected with the university, who would be competent and completely unprejudiced. A loud cheer burst forth from the Badger office when it was learned that Mr. Powers had consented to choose this year's Beauties.

A board of students interviewed candidates chosen by their respective houses, and with an eye toward beauty, scholarship, and personality, fifteen were selected. These coeds were then photographed, and the pictures sent to Mr. Powers in New York. Our deepest gratitude to Mr. Powers for his selections which were revealed the night of the Junior Prom. And so on this and the following pages we proudly present to you the Badger Beauties of 1944.

Thereby, the members are able to become acquainted with girls from the various schools on campus.

This year the policy of the society has been to give the members themselves a chance to participate in the programs presented. At the initiation banquet this fall, the Castalia members had the pleasure of hearing two Marines speak.

The society is catering more each year to those who recognize the need for combining extracurricular and scholastic activities.

The Pythia Literary Society was organized thirty-four years ago to develop interest in the creative arts. It provides the opportunities for self-expression in the capacities in which the members are best fitted, and strives to further interest in intellectual pursuits. Although the members, themselves, give many of the programs, Pythia has also called on musicians, and even a former officer from the French army for additional and more varied programs.

Immediately after the initiation of the new pledges, this year, the new officers were installed at a candlelight ceremony.

The members of Pythia have been participating in a varied war activity program including hostessing, Red Cross work, and Canteen service.

The motto of WAA "Make Lathrop your University Athletic Club" is an invitation to all University women. Here at their disposal is a large number of facilities. The sport's clubs are open to all University women whether they be physical education majors or not. These clubs give the student the opportunity to participate with other girls who enjoy the same games, or wish to learn. Clubs sponsor play days and open tournaments.

Some clubs active under WAA are Badminton, Basketball, Bowling, Dolphin, Volleyball, Hockey, Orchesis, Outing and Tennis

Annually WAA presents Wiskits for the purpose of raising funds for scholarships and to carry on its program. This is the only all university women's intramural variety show. Tryouts are held and the eight to twelve most promising acts are chosen to be given on the Union Theater stage. One sees acts of all types from swing bands and operatic comedies to original style shows. This is an event to which the entire campus looks forward each year.

WAA offers scholarships to girls who have taken part in its activities. Selection is made on the basis of WAA participation, scholarship, and need of the applicant. All save seniors are eligible, and awards are made at Senior Swingout in the Spring.

A banquet brings to an end the year's activities. The winners in intramural competition are given plaques. In these times when with the lack of men we have more time on our hands and when it is more important than ever for us to be physically fit, the WAA sports programs offers a healthy and an entertaining one.

With the advent of the winter season we see the enthusiasts of basketball diligently drilling with their favorite team for the climax of the WAA intramural tournament.

The mermaids of the campus meet regularly for "splashing" good times in Lathrop pool; practice culminates in the annual Dolphin Spring Pageant, a production combining originality with talent.

Varied and multiple as the YWCA activities are, they are all planned with the goal of advancement for women in the world and in mind. This year's campus "Y" program has emphasized the large and responsible part that college trained women will have to play in the post-war world.

Starting off with a huge "get-acquainted" tea for freshmen women, the "Y" swung into a busy and successful year. The membership drive brought 120 new members into the association, who were formally inducted into the "Y" at the traditional candlelight recognition service.

The social service committee collected more than 150 Christmas presents for the children at Neighborhood House, entertained and made scrapbooks for the children at the Orthopedic Hospital, and helped out at the War Nursery several days a week.

Nationally, the "Y" participated in the World Student Service Fund drive, and sent delegates to many regional and national conferences to glean worthwhile ideas from students of other areas.

HARRY A. STUHLDREHER

The Sportsman of the Year

Against overwhelming odds his team fought 60 minutes every Saturday. Never an alibi or complaint against the fate which had given him one of the most undermanned squads in the Big Ten conference and one of the toughest schedules in the country. A modest winner and a gracious loser, a real All-American—Harry Stuhldreher of Wisconsin.

BOB FOSS, publicity director for the university, part of whose job is to put out statements, photos, and side-lights about athletics and athletes of Wisconsin.

was particularly heavy because so many new men came out for football who weren't in proper condition.

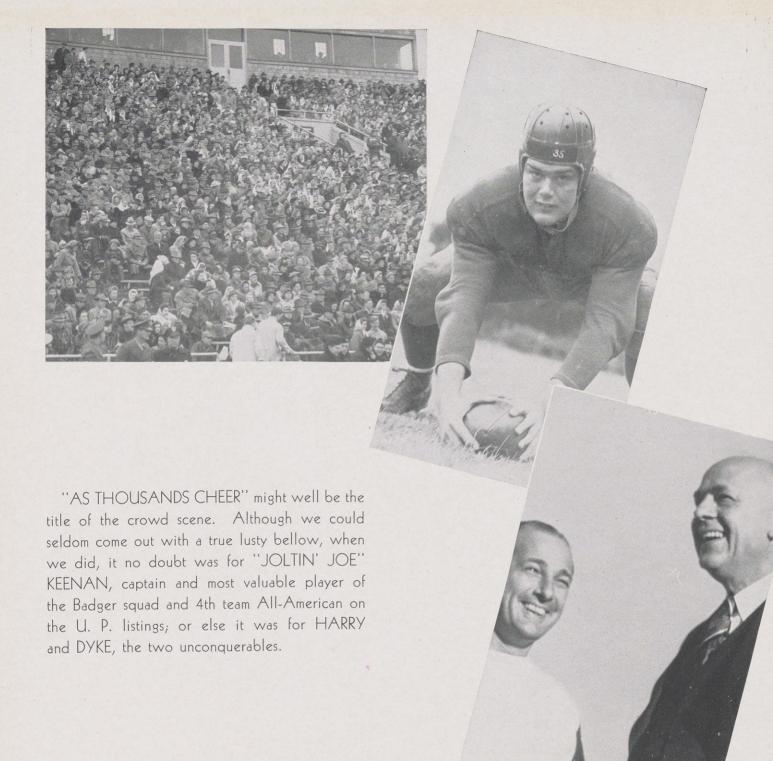

"DOC" COLE and WALTER BAKKE, the two men who condition our athletes, or as is usually the case, re-condition them. This year their work HOMER MONTAGUE who carries the camera at all big events really has a job as the university's one man photographer.

ATHLETIC BOARD

The Athletic Board of the University of Wisconsin is the guiding counsel for our athletic policy. The board is composed of three outstanding professors, two alumni, three men from the athletic department, and one student, this year's W Club president, Ray Patterson. Harry Stuhldreher, director of inter-collegiate athletics reflected the opinion of the entire board and every loyal Wisconsin fan when he said last summer, "we at Wisconsin will continue to play football until such a time as there are only ten men left in the university."

It was late in the first quarter of this intra-state classic that the tip-off came on Wisconsin's prospects for the coming season. The Badgers and Hilltops battled on even terms before a blitzkreig, in the person of Johnny Rudan struck at the Badgers. His brilliant 85 yard punt return for Marquette's first touchdown started the Golden Avalanche on its spree, although Wisconsin did tie up the score for a few minutes when Eulberg recovered a Marquette fumble in the end zone and added the extra point to round out Wisconsin's scoring.

Wisconsin looked ragged and green. Men were consistently caught out of position, especially in the second half, yet there were times when things seemed to click. Kindt was particularly impressive on offense, but Rudan stole the show, sparking the Hilltop running attack, which concentrated on the Badger ends. Both teams kicked brilliantly.

WISCONSIN 7 CAMP GRANT 10

Playing at Camp Grant before 15,000 soldiers, Wisconsin put on a display of courage and determination that would have done credit to any Badger eleven. The Warriors had a line-up stacked with experienced college and pro players, and outweighed Wisconsin 20 pounds to the man. They should have ripped the Badgers apart, but there was more to Stuhldreher's nondescripts than met the eve.

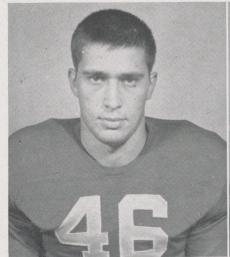

Camp Grant counted in the first half just before the gun on a long pass. They continued their unmerciful attack until early in the fourth quarter when the Cardinal men, after being on defense all afternoon, finally got up a head of steam. With stirring determination the Cardinal wave swept the length of the field to score, Kindt finally going over. Eulberg converted to tie the game. But the Warriors wanted more than a tie. In the last two minutes they penetrated deep into Badger territory and with 5 seconds left, Orlando, ex-Colgate ace, booted a 26 yard field goal.

WISCONSIN 7 IOWA

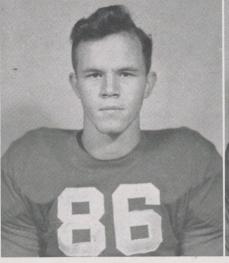

Although lowa was Wisconsin's only victim of the season, the victory came as a bitter twist of fate. A year ago Wisconsin was riding high, a veritable giant in the gridiron picture when lowly lowa upset the vaunted Badger team to "rot" Wisconsin of the mythical National Championship as well as the Big Ten title. Last year Wisconsin's only loss—this year its only victory—and a hard earned one at that. Iowa packed a life time of thrills into the last 2 minutes of the game as they vainly attempted 3 field goals that would have snatched victory from the Badgers.

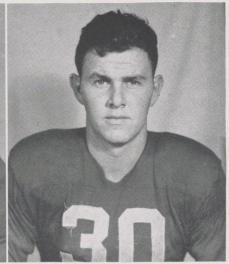

The score came about on a field goal by lowa's Jim Barbour in the second quarter, and a well earned Badger touchdown in the third period by Kindt. To stall for time and attempt to save the game, Wisconsin gave lowa an intentional safety.

The two Eddies—McGovern and Bray—knocked Wisconsin out of the Big Ten lead in no uncertain fashion. After Wisconsin had monopolized the play in the first quarter, the touchdown twins went into action, and Wisconsin fans witnessed one of the cleverest and most deceptive teams in the nation wreck the Badger's defense with a show of tricky ball handling operating from the "T" formation. In the fourth quarter, the Badgers just quit. While not the soundest thumping they received during the year, it is the one time they lost their scrap. In the third period Kindt put on a fine show of ball-carrying and finally crashed over for Wisconsin's lone marker, casting a ray of hope on the outcome, but the Eddies came back and ran wild to sew up the game.

The Badgers journeyed to Indiana to meet the Hoosiers in their Homecoming game, and the occasion was indeed a happy one—for the Hoosiers. Last spring Indiana was left in the same situation regarding the quality and quantity of football talent available—except, they had a 17 year old high school star available in the fall. That one man provided the margin between the two teams. "Hunchy" Hoernschneyer was his name—pronounced POISON. He ran, kicked and passed the Badgers to death, and from the statistician's standpoint administered Wisconsin its worst licking of the year. Wisconsin threatened two or three times, but didn't have any punch. Dooney put on a great show of kicking to stave off several Hoosier threats, but it wasn't enough. "Hunchy", et al, just couldn't be stopped.

"Tony" Butkovitch and ten guys named Joe, representing the Purdue football team, trampled the Badgers at Camp Randall. Butkovitch established a new Big Ten scoring record in the fourth quarter when he went over for his third touchdown of the game and his thirteenth in four conference contests, giving him a total of 78 points. Unfortunately, Tony could not add to this total as he was transferred to parts unknown a few days after the game. The victory, however, did not come as easily as the score might indicate. The Wisconsin line, sparked by big Joe Keenan, played heads-up ball and constantly piled up the best that Purdue had to offer. Costly fumbles, penalties, and pass interceptions at crucial times paved the way for three Purdue touchdowns. Dooney's kicking again was a standout. It was decidedly one of the Badger's best games of the year.

Once again the Badgers were hosts in the "Valley of Death" at the annual Homecoming game. Homecoming or not, it wasn't Wisconsin's day. That honor went to one Otto Graham, brilliant and versatile Wildcat ace, all-American, all-Big Ten, and conference's most valuable. He put on a show that had no equal in the football world this season. Here's what he did, and all in just 16 minutes of game time, 9 the first half, and 7 the second half. He, (a) scored 3 touchdowns from scrimmage on runs of 16, 26 and 4 yards, (b) scored another on a flashy 55-yard punt return, (c) threw a pass for another touchdown, (d) completed 5 passes in 7 attempts (e) averaged 8 yards per try on 14 running plays, and (f) kicked three extra points out of three tries, which comes to a total of 27 points—and all in 16 minutes. Wisconsin, incidentally, never threatened.

The Wisconsin varsity downed its second team in an odd setting—the game was played in Ann Arbor, Michigan. That's right, it was the big "Civil War" of the year, for no less than ten of the 1942 football Badgers donned uniforms for Michigan and played against their former team-mates—played well, too. Seven ex-Badgers were in the line-up at the start of the fray, and one, Wally Dryer, sparked Michigan to its first touchdown. After this first tally, however, the Badgers started playing some real football, and slowed the Wolverines down considerably. Two quick touchdowns late in the third quarter put the game on ice. Wisconsin showed very promising signs at times, and even Stuhldreher expressed satisfaction with the performance of his charges.

For 52 years the Minnesota-Wisconsin football rivalry has been one of the keenest in all the sports kingdom. It must have been a few words from Coach Stuhldreher that imbued these servicemen Badgers with the old spirit, for when the dust had finally settled, Wisconsin had performed in a way beyond anybody's wildest dreams. A Williams to Avery pass clicked for Minnesota's first score on their first play. The Badgers took the lead once, lost it, nearly had it again when a touchdown was called back, and in general looked like an entirely different ball team than they had all year. Kuenzler, Keenan, Dooney, Kindt—everybody did a great job. And hats off, too, to the "Little Corporal," Harry Stuhldreher, who stuck by this team all season and must have received immense satisfaction from this final performance

Badgers Tie for Second in Big Ten Conference

From the start of the 1943-1944 season, Wisconsin was picked as one of the best of the Big Ten teams. Ray Patterson, Des Smith, and Bill Johnson, veterans of last year's squad were strengthened by men such as Bob Gallagher, captain elect of the Cornell five, and freshman Glen Selbo. There was never any doubt throughout the season that Coach Bud Foster had a good team, but the loss of two Big Ten games in overtime periods pushed the Badgers into a tie for second place in the conference.

The squad's personnel was constantly in flux throughout the season. Gallagher and O'Brien left with the schedule half completed, but two former Northwestern men, Russ Wendland, captain of last year's Wildcat cagers, and Charlie Tourek arrived in Madison with the Navy V-5 contingent to more than compensate for the loss.

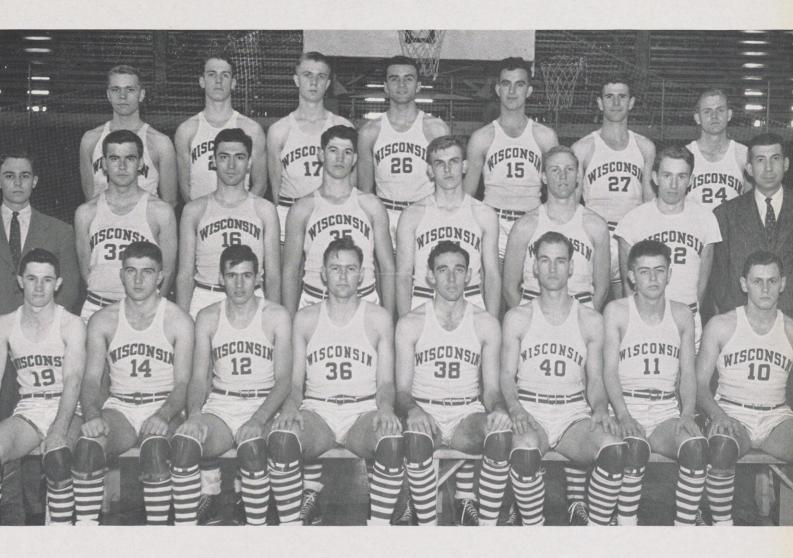

In the first encounter, the Badgers defeated DePauw Navy Pre-Flight in a low scoring game, 28-25. A losing streak then followed Wisconsin until after the first Big Ten game. In this tustle, Illinois reached a height never again approached in conference play, downing the Cardinal five 45-41 in an overtime contest. The only decisive Big Ten loss came at the hands of Northwestern when the Wildcats scored almost at will to win 60-38.

Then came a string of five straight conference victories with the Badger cagers displaying all the finesse and keeness that Coach Foster had taught them. Among the triumphs was the peak game of the season, with Russ Wendland sparking the Badgers to a double overtime win against his former teammates. These victories threw Wisconsin into the thick of the conference race with lowa, Ohio State, and Purdue as the outstanding contenders. Wisconsin was scheduled to meet only Purdue of these three, and a great Boilermaker freshman, Paul Hoffman, broke the Badger's back as he scored 27 points in a 52-50 overtime win.

In the final two games, Wisconsin's great center, Ray Patterson, put on a great show scoring 22 points against Chicago and trying in vain to stop the Great Lakes Bluejackets with 25 points. Patterson averaged 16.08 points in twelve Big Ten games to tie for second place in conference scoring honors.

RAY PATTERSON, stalwart center, starred on rebounds and led his team in scoring with 193 points for second place tie in conference scoring.

WISCONSIN 28-DEPAUW PRE-FLIGHT 25

Wisconsin started the season with a low scoring warm up game. A 25-25 tie was broken with one minute left. Ray Patterson's 14 point total was high for the evening.

WISCONSIN 43—MARQUETTE 51

The first loss of the season was dealt by Marquette, Wisconsin's traditional rival, in a loosely played contest. Patterson and Prado tied for scoring honors with 15 points each.

WISCONSIN 31-NOTRE DAME 41

A strong Irish team led by Klier outscored the Badgers at South Bend, while holding Patterson to 5 points, his lowest total for the season.

WISCONSIN 41—ILLINOIS 45

With ten minutes left to play and the Badgers trailing 38-24, Russ Wendland spurred his mates to a 41-41 tie at the end of the regulation period. The Illini's defense tightened in the overtime, however, and they went on to win a 45-41 thriller.

WISCONSIN 40-MARQUETTE 37

With a 23-12 lead at half-time, the Badgers coasted to a 40-37 victory. Although outscored from the floor, Wisconsin converted 10 for 14 free throws against 5 for 13 of their state rivals.

WISCONSIN 47-NOTRE DAME 45

Smith's bucket with seconds remaining gave Wisconsin a revenge victory in this New Year's eve game at the Milwaukee Auditorium. Klier scored 23 points for the Irish, while Smith led his team with 12.

WISCONSIN 43—ILLINOIS 38

For the first time in twelve years, the Badgers defeated Illinois on its own hardwood. With only three munites remaining, Patterson, Wendland, and Selbo scored to put Wisconsin ahead.

WISCONSIN 38—NORTHWESTERN 60

At Evanston, the Badgers, exhausted from the Illinois game the night before, were never a match for the Wildcats. Patterson's 13 points was high score.

WISCONSIN 50-MICHIGAN 41

Elroy Hirsch, of Wisconsin football fame, was welcomed back to Madison as center for the Wolverines. Patterson held Hirsch scoreless the first half, but in the second, the former Badger scored 11. Again Patterson was high for the evening with 19 points.

WISCONSIN 42-MICHIGAN 31

Again the Wolverines never challenged the Badgers. Patterson scored 16 points while holding Hirsch to 5, and Wendland held Tommy King, leading Big Ten scorer, to 3.

WISCONSIN 49-MINNESOTA 30

The Gophers proved to be no better than the position they occupied in the Big Ten cellar indicated, as the Badgers rolled over them. Patterson continued his scoring streak with 14 points of his own.

WISCONSIN 50—NORTHWESTERN 47

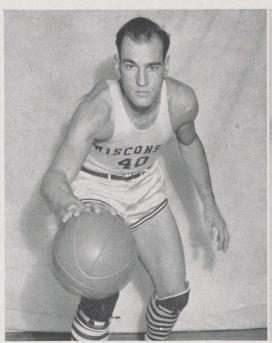

12,000 fans packed the field house to witness one of the hardest fought battles of recent Badger basketball history. The game was tied 39-39 at the end of the regulation period. Glen Selbo blocked a Wildcat pass and tied the score at 42-42 with four seconds remaining in the first overtime. In the second extra session, with the Badgers trailing 46-47, Wendland drove through the whole Wildcat team to score. A few seconds later he passed the length of the floor to Johnson who dropped in a basket as the gun sounded and Wisconsin triumphed.

WISCONSIN 40—GREAT LAKES 63

Armstrong and Schaefer led the hard fighting Navy team to a crushing victory over the Badgers. Wisconsin took a 12-9 lead early in the game, but never threatened.

DESSMITH never stopped driving throughout the season, and his fancy hook shots insured his popularity with Badger fans.

DON DICK, as a freshman held down a starting forward position for almost the entire season.

WISCONSIN 62-INDIANA 43

The Hoosiers were no match for the Badgers in this series, and never approached their first Big Ten victory.

WISCONSIN 52-INDIANA 31

An even more crushing defeat than the one the previous evening was handed Indiana by the high speed Badger team. Patterson took scoring honors for the series with a total of 38 points.

WISCONSIN 50—PURDUE 52

Paul Hoffman, with 27 points, enabled the Boilermakers to knock Wisconsin out of the Big Ten race. The overtime loss snapped the Badgers' conference winning streak at six straight.

WISCONSIN 50-MINNESOTA 33

In the last home game of the season, Wisconsin fans saw Ray Patterson score 22 points in an overwhelming victory over Minnesota. The Gopher team was the weakest it's been in recent years.

WISCONSIN 35—DEPAUL 48

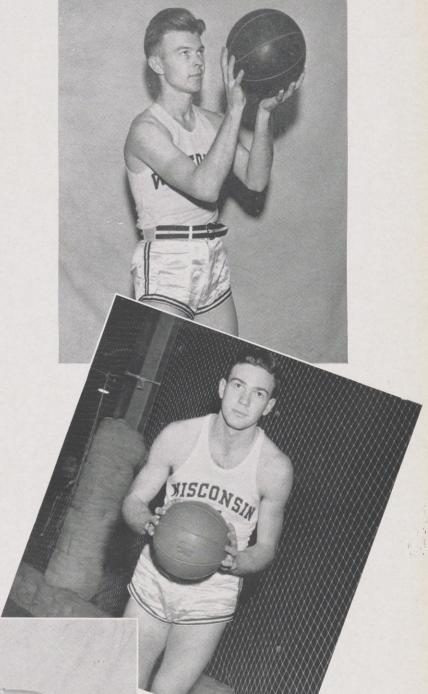

Although Smith matched DePaul's giant 6'9" center with 18 points, the Badger team was never in the game. The contest was the roughest of the season for Wisconsin.

WISCONSIN 74—CHICAGO 46

Almost becoming a habit, Chicago finished the season with an unblemished record—no wins, eight losses. Patterson dropped in 22 points to tie for second place in conference scoring. This victory and lowa's loss to Northwestern gave the Badgers a share of second place in final Big Ten standing.

WISCONSIN 47—GREAT LAKES 63

Even Ray Patterson was unable to stop Great Lakes, greatest of the nation's service teams. Ray scored 25 points to match the combined totals for Armstrong and Schaefer, but the loss of Russ Wendland slowed the team down below the pace set by the Bluejackets. The loss gave Wisconsin a record of eleven victories and ten defeats for the season.

RUSS WENDLAND'S drive and deception sparked the Badgers on to many of their victories.

GLEN SELBO, playing at both guard and center, controlled rebounds under both baskets.

BILL JOHNSON'S cool play at guard kept the Badgers at an even pace throughout every game.

WISCONSIN BOXERS

COACH JOHNNY WALSH proved his boxing skill again this year by forming, from a nucleus of green and for the most part in-experienced men, a boxing team that won four, tied one, and lost one.

Wisconsin's Winning Streak Stopped at 24 Straight

The outlook for Coach Johnny Walsh's team was hardly promising at the start of the 1944 season. The entire 1943 squad, including five national champions was gone leaving nothing but a string of 20 straight victories and a great tradition. This tradition must have inspired Walsh and his team, nevertheless, for the winning streak was stretched to 24 straight before a tie with the Seahawks and a defeat at the hands of the Ottumwa Naval Air Station in the last match of the season scored against our unblemished record. This was the first time a Wisconsin boxing team had tasted defeat since the 5-3 loss to LSU in 1940.

First appearance for the 1944 boxing team came the opening night of the annual all-University tournament. This first appearance was not an impressive one. Most of the men were fresh at the sport, and while none of them lacked fight, many of them displayed slugging rather than true boxing skill. All weights were open except 127 pounds, where Dick Miyagawa was unopposed. The "Fightenist Fighter" award went to 145 pound champ Ed Marquardt.

The greatest exhibition of boxing was given fans by Dick Miyagawa, Hawaiian born American. Dick, who was NCAA champ for San Jose State in 1942, won five matches losing but one. The little 127 pounder's lightning-like punches fell upon his opponents before they were aware that he was within range. Freshman, Ted Kozuszek at 155 pounds also had a 5-1 record for the season, his only loss coming at the hands of Norman Jennings in the second Ottumwa match. Bill Neddersen's only defeat also came in this match, but his record shows a draw with Berman of Maryland.

Wisconsin, noted not only for its boxing prowess, but for its boxing sportsmanship as well, met with a very difficult situation this year. The Ottumwa Naval Air Station insisted on entering a professional boxer against the Badgers. Coach Walsh of course refused to pit any of his green men against this type of opposition, and both Ottumwa matches contained only seven bouts.

Although the Badger boxing team will have to start a new winning streak next year, fans can well be proud of the 1944 squad. While it was not the best team to uphold the Cardinal, no team has ever had more fight and spirit. Wisconsin's fans have never seen a Badger mitt team drop a match at home, and even if Coach Walsh is the only hold-over, he will find another team somewhere to extend the tradition.

No one was too optimistic as the Cardinal clad mittmen appeared for the first time this year in the bright lights of the ring. The team, national champs the year before, was completely rebuilt; and the Navy flyers were known to be strong. Many people doubted that the string of 20 straight victories could be extended against such opposition. But many minds were changed before the evening was over, for the green Badgers won a thrilling 4½-3½ match. Dick Miyagawa started off with a decision, and Jirucha, Kozuszek, and Neddersen followed his example to give Wisconsin a 4-1 lead. At 175 pounds Loftus fought his way to a draw to cinch the match.

WISCONSIN 41/2—MARYLAND 31/2

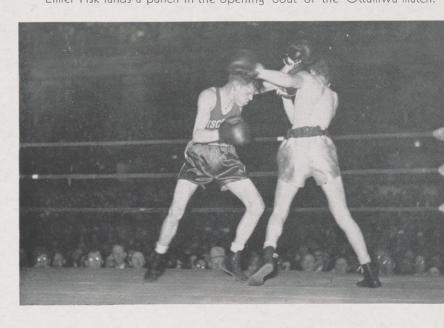

The Old Liners of Maryland invaded Wisconsin for the season's second match. Once again Badger fans saw a terrific battle, and once again they saw their team fight its way to a 4½-3½ win.

Fisk and Miyagawa gave Wisconsin a 2-0 lead, winning their matches by decisions. After our losing the 135 and 145 pound bouts, Nedersen's match won a draw, and Ted Kozuszek slugged his way to a clean victory over Sterman. Once again Bill Loftus clinched the victory with a decision at 175 pounds.

WISCONSIN 6½—PENN STATE 1½

The persistent coaching of Johnny Walsh became more and more evident in the improvement of his men in this match. Victory was never questioned from the moment Fisk stepped into the ring to pound his way to a decision. Dick Miyagawa followed by driving his man into the ropes and taking a TKO win. After dropping the 145 pound bout, Hammel and Neddersen came back to win decisions. A draw for Nording at 165 pounds clinched the victory, but Kozuszek and Kulawinski kept battling to give Wisconsin the final bouts and a 6½-1½ win.

Elmer Fisk lands a punch in the opening bout of the Ottumwa match.

WISCONSIN 5½—OTTUMWA NAVAL AIR STATION 1½

The Wisconsin boxing team won its 24th straight match as it closed its 1944 home boxing season. Ottumwa was surprisingly weak, and failed to take a bout. Since the Navy team had no amateur to fight at 175 pounds, the match had only seven bouts. The 135 and 145 pound bouts were stopped by cuts in the first round, giving Marquardt and Hammel draws. Fisk, Miyagawa, Neddersen, and Kozuszek took decisions, and Kulawinski fought to a draw in the final bout of the evening.

WISCONSIN 4—IOWA SEAHAWKS 4

Wisconsin's victory streak of 24 wins was halted by a 4-4 tie at lowa. Elmer Fisk and Dick Miyagawa were dealt their first defeats of the season. Ed Marquardt came back at 135 pounds to smash his way to a TKO victory. At 145 pounds, Bob Hammel seemed to have the best of the fight, but an unpopular decision was awarded against him. Neddersen put the Badgers back in the fight with a win, and Kozuszek took no chance as he tied the score with a TKO. After Nording's loss at 175 pounds, Carl Kulawinski staged a one sided fight to give Wisconsin a 4-4 tie.

WISCONSIN 3—OTTUMWA NAVAL AIR STATION 5

For the first time since 1940 a Wisconsin boxing team dropped a match, and to a team which only two weeks previous had failed to win a bout against the Badgers. No opponent was provided for the Navy's professional fighter, but this was not enough to decide the match. Miyagawa, Hammel, and Kulawinski took their bouts to give the Badgers their three points.

Track Team Shows Great Improvement at End of Season

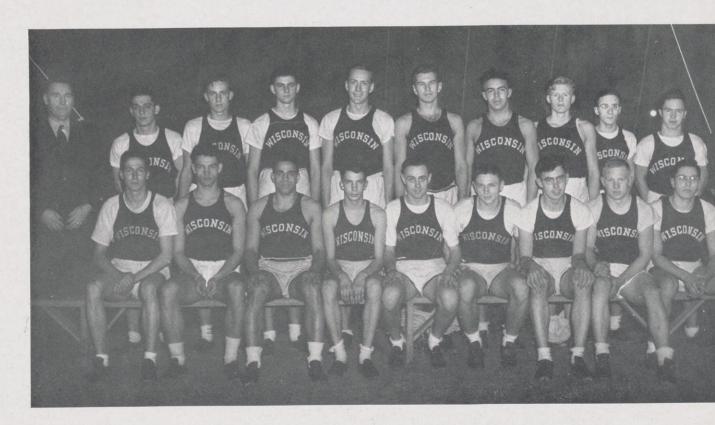

COACH TOM JONES lost a championship team to the service, but with the material at hand he put forth a representative squad.

Front Row: Al Pingel, Keith Brown, Irv Pittleman, Ken Chandler, Gordon Duquemin, captain, Ray Zobel, Knight Webster, Bill Myrkle, Henry Jaffay

Wisconsin's track team never found its own until the final match this season. The transfer of Navy students forced Coach Jones to look for replacements, and these new men failed to shape up until late. Knight Webster, Keith Brown, and Ken Chandler led the Wisconsin team.

The Badgers got off to a poor start in the quadrangular meet at Chicago, as they came in behind Purdue and Northwestern to finish third. Wisconsin took only two firsts, Webster in the mile and Brown in the hurdles. Bob Stueber, former Missouri fullback led Marquette to a 63-41 win the following Saturday. Without Stueber the match would have been even, for he scored 19 points for the Hilltoppers. His all round ability gave him firsts in the shot put, broad jump, 40 yard dash, and low hurdles.

Against the Iowa Seahawks the Badgers were again outclassed, soring four firsts and one second. Wisconsin was superior only in the distance races. Chandler took the half-mile, Pingel the mile, and Webster the two mile. Wisconsin's other first was garnered by Pittleman in the shot.

In the conference meet, Wisconsin managed to score only 5 points, finishing eighth. The Badgers closed the season in the annex track by downing Lawrence 74-30. The Vikings took only three firsts, two of them by DeYoung, who had started the season for Wisconsin. The Cardinal team, which had achieved a balance for the first time was strengthened by Ray Patterson who placed second in the high jump. The only event in which the Badgers failed to place first were the high hurdles, pole vault, and high jump.

Badgers Finish Fifth in Big Ten Conference

JAMES MCFADZEAN won consistently for Wisconsin in the broad jump, his speed as a halfback giving him the start needed for distance.

BOB HODGELL'S name will be remembered especially from this team for his consistent scoring, his second place win in the Nationals, and his Camp Randall record breaking jump of 6'6".

At the start of the season all indications pointed to Wisconsin as the team to beat in the outdoor track circles. The Badgers had their entire squad set and in good shape, the same squad that took second in the indoor meet. Then came the April ERC and draft calls and with them the Badger's hopes of a Big Ten crown. Most keenly felt was the loss of Captain Bob Bierle, whose discus and shot put records marked him as the outstanding weight man in the country.

The Wisconsin-Marquette dual meet was an easy victory for the Badgers, for while our team had been hard hit by service calls, there were enough good men left to carry the burden, especially field men.

Minnesota thumped the Badgers badly a week before the big Ten meet. The Badgers have the record of never having finished in the lower division in a Big Ten track meet since Tom Jones took over as coach 20 some years ago. This time it was a close call. But Gil Hertz and Captain Bog Hodgell tied for first in the high jump at 6'1", Jim McFadzean took second in the broad jump at 23'10½" (best any Badger has ever done); and Paukner in the 220, Soergel in the 100, and Moreau in the high jump all took 5th place to put Wisconsin in the fifth spot. Hodgell's jump of 6'1" was disappointing since the week before he went 6'6" against Minnesota for a new Camp Randall and Wisconsin record.

In the Central Collegiates in Milwaukee facing some of the best competition in the country, the Badgers as a team took 5th place. Jim McFadzean took a 1st in the broad jump at 22′5″, Bob Hodgell got a 1st in the high jump at 6′4″, Zip Hay copped a 3rd in the 440 as a pleasant surprise. Four 5th completed the Badger scoring.

The Cross Country team, although it won three out of five matches, did not live up to the tradition of Badger champions of the past. Throughout the season, Coach Jones was forced to find substitutes for the two or three men lost every meet. Less than half of the original team finished the schedule, and only two men, Chandler and Zobel, ran in every meet.

Wisconsin took six of the first seven places against Lawrence to win the first match 20-39. Lawson, Lawrence's captain, took first place, five seconds ahead of Baumgarth. In the second meet Notre Dame invaded Madison, walking off with a 23-33 win. Mann, in third place had the best time for the Badgers, with Baumgarth and Vicklund close behind. At Chicago, Vicklund, Baumgarth, and Mann took first, third, and fourth places respectively, leading Wisconsin to a 24-31 victory over Navy Pier. With Vicklund absent from the Purdue meet, only one Badger finished in the first eight, as the Boilermakers walloped the Cardinal clad harriers 16-47. Five men were lost after this meet, but the crippled team again defeated Lawrence, this time by the score of 25-31.

Purdue walked off with the honors in the conference meet, with Vicklund, in seventh place, the first Badger to cross the finish line. Wisconsin finished fifth in the Big Ten. In the A.A.U. meet the next week, however, the Badgers established themselves as state champions. Knight Webster took first and Zobel, Jackson, and Chandler fifth, sixth, and seventh places.

JACK SWEET, leading Wisconsin diver, took two firsts and a second in competition this year.

ROBIN "MOUSE" MIDDLEMAS did iron man work each Saturday, winning three races in each meet.

The Badger swimming team, led by Seaman Robin Middlemas, enjoyed a more successful season this year than did most of Wisconsin's varsity teams. Victories were scored in two of the three dual meets, and the medley relay team and backstroke by Gansey who took fifth in the Conference.

Middlemas was the outstanding star, winning the 110, 220, and 440 yard free style races against Minnesota and lowa, and taking two firsts against Lawrence. In only one race did "Mouse" fail to finish first, and in this one he came in second to one of his teammates. Because of a heavy study schedule, Middlemas was forced to miss the Big Ten meet, where he undoubtedly would have scored.

In the first meet of the season, Minnesota downed the Badgers by the close score of 44-39. The victor was decided in the last race, when the Gophers came from behind to take the medley relay and the meet. Against lowa, the Badgers looked much stronger as they rang up a 49-35 triumph. Middlemas again led the scoring with three firsts. In the final dual meet, Lawrence was held to 13 points as the Badgers amassed 62.

Other consistent scorers and fine performers were the medley raley team of Gansey, Goller, and Possell, and diver Jack Sweet whose commendable record showed two firsts and a second.

SWIMMING

Swim Team Wins 2 out of 3 Matches

COACH JOE STEINHAUER coupled his coaching with instructing servicemen, and still managed to furnish fans with a good team.

1943 GOLF

COACH, JOE STEINAUER

Travel restrictions greatly impeded the arrangement of many intercollegiate golf meets, consequently, only two matches were played and the Big Ten meet was considerably reduced. In the opening contest, Coach Steinauer's charges, handicapped by lack of practice because of unusually wet spring weather, were swamped by Northwestern $20\frac{1}{2}$ to $6\frac{1}{2}$. However, two weeks later they showed a complete reversal of form and trounced Lawrence $14\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{2}$, to end up the season with an even slate.

1943 CREW

COACH, GEORGE REA

Unable to arrange regattas with any of the large schools in the East or on the West Coast, the Badgers had to be content with intra squad races and a few work-outs against Madison West High School early in the season. George Rea, three letter man in crew, handled the oarsmen after Coach Allan Walz left for the Navy, and did a creditable job. It came as a disappointment when both the Poughkeepsie and Boston Adams Cup Regattas were cancelled. However, two meets were arranged, one with Culver Military Academy and another with St. John's Military Academy. Wisconsin was victorious in both meets.

FENCING

COACH, A. L. MASELEY

Lack of competition and transportation has led to the temporary curtailment of this aged sport as far as intercollegiate activity is concerned. However, in the regular gym classes, Coach A. L. Maseley found enough good material to organize three teams of sailors, soldiers, and civilians each. From all indications the civilians had the upper hand, and the army and navy were in a dead heat for second place. The foilsmen conducted these contests in their spare time—a good indication of the interest shown in the sport, and an equally good indication of how easily and quickly it will be brought back to major importance after the war.

Big Ten Meet: Dzirbik, 136 pound cham-

Ed Dzirbik, undefeated and Big Ten champ at 136 pounds, is the name that stands out in Wisconsin's 1944 wrestling season. The best effort for the team, however, was a 16-16 tie with Northwestern.

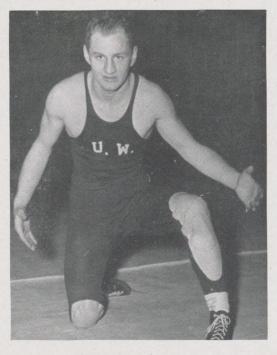

In the first match, the powerful lowa Seahawks downed the Badgers 27-3. Dzirbik, wrestled for Wisconsin's three points. Next Minnesota bested the Cardinal matmen 19-11. Wisconsin's 16-6 lead in the Northwestern match was destroyed as the Wildcats took the last two bouts on falls. On February 12, Minnesota came to Madison for a return match and won again, 19-11.

Bill Robinson and Ed Dzirbik represented Wisconsin at the Big Ten meet. Robinson was defeated in his first bout, but Dzirbik won twice and in the finals pinned Dan Nettersheim of Purdue for the 136 pound title.

The Badger baseball team had a record of eight wins and nine losses for the season, but this included five losses to such powerful teams as the Milwaukee Brewers, and service teams of Camp Grant and Great Lakes. Five wins were registered in conference play against three losses, giving the team a tie for third place.

The season started off in mid-April with two losses to the Brewers. The Warriors of Camp Grant then downed the Badgers twice, 18-9 and 3-1. Eisenach's 18 innings of scoreless pitching and Wiershem's two run homer in the ninth gave the Badgers a 7-6 win over Michigan State. The second game was won 9-5.

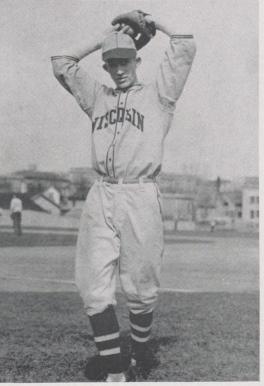

The Big Ten race started against lowa. Five runs in the fifth inning of the first game gave the Buckeyes a 6-1 victory. The Badgers took the second on Eisenach's 6 hit pitching. Two victories over Northwestern put Wisconsin in the thick of the conference race. Walt Lautenbach pitched a 2 hit, 7-0 win, followed by Eisenach's 5 hit, 5-4 victory. Lautenbach drove Joe Wiershem in from first in the thirteenth inning for a 2-1 victory over Minnesota, but an eighth inning rally fell short in the second game and the Gophers won 3-2.

After losing to the star-studded Great Lakes team 18-1 in seven innings, the Badgers split with Western Michigan, losing the first game 8-1 and winning the second, 2-1. Although committing 6 errors and being outhit 8-4 in the first Purdue game, the Badgers managed to salvage a victory, 6-5. A loss in the second game, however, threw Wisconsin out for a chance for the Big Ten title. Eisenach was wild, and the Boilermakers never relinquished the 1-0 lead they took in the first inning.

Badgers Slip to Third in Conference Meet

This year's Badger tennis squad, although it won only three of eight matches, was one of the best in recent years. In the Big Ten, the team over-rode Northwestern and Minnesota, while losing to Illinois, Chicago, and lowa. The Badgers split the two non-conference matches, defeating Western Michigan, 5-4 and falling before the Irish of Notre Dame, 6-3. The most decisive victory was registered in the second meeting with Northwestern. The Badgers took every game, winning 9-0.

Four men came within an ace of winning the Big Ten singles titles. With only the doubles match remaining to be played, Wisconsin battled it out with Ohio for the Big Ten championship. Both teams had 10 points, while Illinois had finished with 12. Ohio State proved too strong, however, winning two sets out of three and taking the title with 13 points.

Every man on the squad, as well as Coach Carl Sanger is now serving in the armed forces.

NEW WISCONSIN LOYALTY SONG

PIONEERS OF WISCONSIN

words by C. A. Dykstra

Stout hearted men who through forest and fen Carried on with a will and a vision, Forefathers all, we give heed to your call, We will make true your dream for Wisconsin; Far-sighted men loving freedom so well—That the hardships of wilderness living, Only spurred you to build a free world for all—

We sing you this song of thanksgiving.

music by Fritz Kreisler

Clear thinking men who believed in the right, And who planned this new world for you children,

We honor your labors and give you our pledge, To safeguard our homeland Wisconsin; Bold spoken men who had courage and faith To believe that their children forever Would seek out the truth and give it to all, We sing you this song of thanksgiving.

Chorus:

Now, Forward, Wisconsin, Forever, Wisconsin

To you we raise our song,
We sing of your glory and retell the story
With voices full and strong,
We give our all for Alma Mater, Wisconsin
by Mendota's shore,
Then Forward, Wisconsin, Forever, Wisconsin, Your sons and daughters all, Sing to Wisconsin, evermore.

Making its debut last Fall at one of our football games, President Dykstra's own tribute and dedication to this University, "Pioneers of Wisconsin," was sung before an enthusiastic but cold Camp Randall crowd.

Prompted by the idea of a hymn for Wisconsin, President Dykstra, while in Washington D. C., in the Fall of 1940, went to Fritz Kreisler and asked him to write a song. Kreisler replied with, "Send me some lyrics, and I'll try it." Mr. Dykstra then began a correspondence with countless poets and alumni for lyrics but with no success. He then tried it himself, and the fruits of his efforts are set down before you on this page. The words were sent to the musician, and within a few weeks they came back with the immortal music to which Mr. Fritz Kreisler had set his hand—the hymn, "Pioneers of Wisconsin."

END-LEASE in reverse--- Greeks aid U.S. Army, L and that was the case with a good many of Wisconsin's Greek-letter fraternities. Over half of the thirty odd social fraternities relinquished possession of their houses to the army as barracks for the ASTP. When the time came, the Greeks were on hand to help as best they could. Remission of houses was not compulsory, but was done on a voluntary basis. Some few, eight to be exact, clung to possession of their houses and sweated through the hectic summer term. When Fall rolled around, fraternity life was rather dormant. Then, in Autumn, things began to roll again; and although on a reduced scale, everything ran nearly as in normal times, save that formal rushing went out the window. The fraternity men really topped the holiday parties in fine fashion with a bright and spectacular Christmas formal held in Great Hall. All this is mentioned merely to illustrate the fact that fraternity life IS an integral part of the university system and is still present on the campus. Although it may weaken to even a greater extent, it shall always be present at the University of Wisconsin; and after this conflict is over, it will flare up again and resume its rightful, distinguished position in campus life.

I-F Board is the executive body of the I-F Council. The Board is normally composed of five men. The president, secretary, and treasurer of the Council are elected from the Board which handles all executive matters for the Council. The Board has been juggled constantly in the last year. President Merritt Bauman and Secretary John Schuette are the only two men who have remained the entire year. Jack Zimmerman, Jim McIntosh and several others have all left some time during the term for the armed services.

I-F Council is the governing body of the fraternity system and is composed of the presidents of the different fraternities. Their problems this year were concerned with housing, or rather a lack of housing that arose when the battle of Madison took place and the United States Army of Occupation and A.S.T.P. moved in to supplement Navy units already present. Numerous and varied problems arose during the year. The only simplification in the system was the removal of a formal rushing period from the curriculum.

ZETA BETA TAU York, 1899, New York. The Wisconsin chapter, one of thirty-five in the national organization, was established in 1922.

ALPHA DELTA PHI

The Alpha Delta Phi was founded in 1832 at Hamilton College. It grew rapidly in the East and before long it had established quite a few chapters in the eastern colleges. At the turn of the century the fraternity started its western expansion and in 1902 the Wisconsin Chapter was founded. There are now twenty-seven chapters of the Alpha Delta Phi.

The first chapter house was at 614 Langdon, and later the Brittingham home at 640 N. Henry Street was acquired which is the present chapter house.

The fraternity roll was hard-hit by the war, but a few men are still around to pledge, initiate, and also to run it as a boarding house.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

Delta Kappa Epsilon, a name universally shortened to D.K.E. and called "Deke", was founded at Yale University at New Haven, Connecticut in June of 1844. It was the sixth social fraternity to come into existence and the Rho Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon came to the University of Wisconsin in 1906. In January of 1943 it was decided that operations should be suspended for the duration, so everything has been dormant for over a year. However, a couple of the undergraduates who were left in school struck a good idea and the Deke house was turned into an officers club for the army personnel from Truax Field.

PSI UPSILON

Psi Upsilon was founded November 24, 1833 at Union College in Schnectady, New York to bring together companiable minds and to further mutual ties and interests. In 1896 the local society of Rho Kappa Upsilon became the Rho chapter of Psi Upsilon.

The Psi Upsilon fraternity house has been truned over to the army as barracks for ASTP men. However, the fraternity is still carrying on as an active chapter. Rushing gatherings have been held throughout the year, and Psi Upsilon was one of the fraternities active in sponsoring the Interfraternity Ball. The traditional Three Way Party was held on this campus again Thanksgiving Eve as it was on every other campus in the country where the three fraternities, Psi Upsilon, Delta Kappa Upsilon, and Alpha Delta Phi have chapters.

PHI DELTA THETA

Founded at Miami Univ., 1848, Oxford, O. Local chapter, Alpha, one of 106, established in 1857.

Brother Phis:

It's different here now. We needn't tell you fell as that. The other day I was talking to one of our new pledges. Yes, I said pledges; we're still at it, and if you think that for one minute we're slowing down just remember the spirit that was a part of everyone of us when we were last together . . . Of course I told the future "young buck" about all those big rallies we used to have . . . about that one at the Stam House after the Ohio State game, or for that matter, any of the parties we had. That wasn't all I told him. I told him what a tough job he had in filling the shoes of all of you that have gone. Whether you realize it or not, you certainly carved your initials in Badger tradition. We brothers here on campus meet regularly and talk things over . . . we're making progress, and we'll keep on making progress in order to assure you fellas that what you're coming back to is a fraternity which has proved itself capable of surviving the most telling blows.

Sincerely, Y.I.T.B.

The beginning of the summer session of 1943 found Pi Lambda Phi on a wartime basis, occupying an entire floor of a rooming house at 126 Langdon Street . . . The membership varied from ten to fifteen men for the following semesters . . . The chapter boasts over two hundred men in the armed services, many of whom are overseas, and true to their old spirit the hope for the future is a quick victory so that all the brothers can gather for a gala Homecoming and house reorganization . . . Activities this year brought out Robert Reich as a member of the 1943 varsity football squad . . . Mike Nussbaum and Jim Blumenfeld were stationed here with the A.S.T.P . . . Walt Pancoe made a name for himself by holding down a post on Cardinal Board, and becoming advertising manager of the Badger and Union president . . . Art Pancoe, the young man in the family, went out for the baseball team . . . Edwin Friedlen shot his gun on the Union theatre committee and the Cardinal business staff . . . Norman Kozokoff was a member of the University of Wisconsin Band . . . Royal Rotter held down the scholastic honors by maintaining his 3 point for the fourth consecutive year.

PI LAMBDA PHI

SIGMA PHI

Founded at Union College, 1827, Schenectedy, N. Y. In 1908 Alpha, the local chapter, one of ten, was established on this campus.

Sigma Phi is the oldest of the national fraternities . . . A policy of limitation that holds the national organization to ten chapters has resulted in a closer feeling of fraternity among the various chapters . . . The present chapter, founded in 1908 at Wisconsin, is maintaining its active status during wartime . . . Ten fellows are here to keep up the old spirit as much as possible . . . Although the social program has been somewhat restricted in keeping with the times, the chapter house, located off the campus in nearby University Heights, remains open and is the center of activity for the present members as well as for Sigs returning on furloughs and leaves . . . Sigma Phi has always been well represented in campus activities, and such is still the case with interests widely varied . . . "Pepper" Jackson, up to his usual custom, gave a dinner at his home before prom . . . It is the aim of the active chapter to continue operations through the war period, if possible, and to maintain a nucleus upon which to build when the boys return to the campus.

Founded at Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., in 1856. Local chapter, Psi, came to Wisconsin in 1918, re-established_in 1940, is one of 68 chapters

With nineteen actives remaining, Theta Chi was able to maintain an active status in spite of the numerous wartime difficulties . . . In June 1943 the chapter occupied the house at 619 N. Lake Street . . . An active social schedule was not found lacking . . . The season was highlighted by the traditional Paul Bunyan party and a formal dinner dance . . . Semi-monthly parties during the year kept everyone in a genial and pleasant mood and helped the weekends slide by . . . All night painting sessions under the direction of Bill Ludwig yielded "Beat Northwestern" and "Merry Christmas" slogans on Kiekhofer's wall . . . "Big Joe" Keenan's operations from Camp Randall to number 1 Langdon Street reserve for him the title of BMOC . . . (Reporters) Scheets and Jennerjohn rubbing elbows with Les Brown and Company backstage at the Navy Coca Cola Spotlight Bands program . . . Solid combos . . . Kulczycki and his Duff . . . Rahn and Schummie . . . Evans and Peters . . . "R. J." Jacobson, known affectionately as "Jake", adds a Phi Kappa Phi key to his extensive collection of brass.

THETA DELTA CHI

Founded at Union College, 1847, Schenectady, N. Y. Local chapter Sigma Deuteron, one of 28, was established in 1895

Fortunate to have been able to keep their house last Spring, the Theta Delta Chis are running along as in normal times . . . Highlights of the social calendar were many informal parties, wall painting escapades, a colorful summer formal, and a gay Christmas dinner dance . . . A huge new pledge crop has swelled the Theta Delt ranks and as a result they are operating on almost a full house capacity . . . Out on top in campus activities the Theta Delts have rightfully captured their share of campus notoriety . . . Hailing from Michigan U., Carl Otjen capably eased into the vice-presidency of the Union . . . Ed Dzirbik, was wrestling coach and 136 lb. champ . . Jim Keating and Jack Sweet chalked up the points for the swimming team . . . Ronnie Giblin prayed for snow and ice so he could judge the Carnival ice statues . . . John Caldwell financed for the Wisconsin Engineer . . This year the Sigma Deuteron Charge of Theta Delta Chi was awarded two outstanding honors . . . It came through with the highest ROV rating, a system used to rate the charges which is an honor that has never come out Wisconsin way before . . . And Merritt Bauman was elected secretary of the Grand Lodge.

Put twenty-five engineers together under one roof and something's bound to happen . . . Now composed of engineers in each field, Triangle holds a prominent position among both professional and non-professional fraternities on the campus . . . Triangle members participate strongly in engineering and other campus activities . . . During the last year four of the six engineering-society presidents were Triangle men . . . The fraternity also boasts representatives in five honor societies . . . Two fellows from the house were on Junior Prom committees . . . The fraternity president, Arleigh Larson, was a St. Pat's candidate . . . Several fellows were staff members of the Wisconsin Engineer magazine . . . Though war has hit the fraternity in many ways, typical Triangle parties and fun are not things of the past . . . The recently com. pleted "rec" room, a sailboat, and a broad social program have offered members and their friends opportunities for good times . . . Marriages and engagements have been really plentiful . . . Rushing and pledging have been continued extensively, and membership is only slightly below par.

TRIANGLE

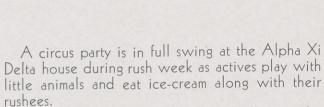

THIS is total war, but sororities have maintained their place of importance in university life. Langdon Street still holds sway and reigns traditionally as ever, but with a shortage of carefree men and boys. Its sidewalks have noticed the change that of the marching of khaki in platoons of segregated men where before the shuffling and ambling of sloppily but correctly dressed civilians escorted their "sisters" and friends to their respective Greek domains. And regularly as part of the day's routine, those who walk up and down Langdon find themselves side-stepping, not "puddles, but sections of A.S.T.P.'s determined to keep their ranks intact. The residents along Langdon Street have ably taken over where their brothers-in-arms had to leave off. The sorority women are now the ones who paint Kiekhofer's Wall; the sorority women are now the ones who do the ice sculptoring and capture the prizes. The days of dinners, formals, and elaborate parties are no more. These pastimes of yore have been replaced with entertainment more in keeping with the times and limited expenses. Life along Langdon has changed to all outward appearances, but underneath the intrafraternity spirit still looms strong and important and in wait to welcome back the boys.

SORORITIES

Maybe not quite natural but we had to get the Thetas in. Kay Lamp and Marney Suelflow take time out for a spot of tea.

Dottie Uecke passes the penalty for taking Heimer's pin to Jane Severns as Midge Shonts and Ruthie Lanz enjoy the more intellectual things of life.

Coed-Canteen, pride and joy of the Alpha Chis, is given a try-out at the house with Lee Chynoweth and Little Jo Taylor eagerly hostessing over a checked table cloth.

Ah, animated rushing! The Pi Phis like Rank,
Rank likes the Pi Phis so Nancy pledged and now everybody's happy.

PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

Panhellenic Council has geared its functions to a wartime campus. The rushing program has been made more informal and has attempted to eliminate dinners from the schedule after consultation and correspondence with Pan-hel councils on other college campuses. At its meeting each month, the council works to better sorority life and regulates all inter-sorority affairs. Its purpose is the natural solving of problems common to sororities and to promote a better understanding between them. An old tradition was broken this year when Pan-hel decided to forego its annual formal ball. This representative body, established nationally in 1911, is under the guidance of Dean Helen Kayser.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Founded at De Pauw Univ., 1885, Greencastle, Ind. Local chapter Kappa, one of 61, established here in 1903.

Biggest news story of the year was the Hammer, Hammersly, Hirsch mardi gras rebellion over whether Hammer had the moral right to wear Hirsch's socks . . . Jeanie Durgin held War Council and Student Board together . . . Mary Ann Reed, talented member of Wisconsin Players, had the lead in "Night Must Fall" . . . Badger Beauty finalist, Anna May Snyder, found time to head Coed Canteen which was fostered under Betty Vallier's tender care . . . B. J. O'Neil kept the rails hot with her cross-country trek . . . Nightly after dinner scene was the A.S.T.P. Kappa Sig brigade . . . The whole campus felt the loss of Kav Schindler, exuberant president of Student Board, at mid-semester . . . Lee Chynoweth lays claim to the most embarrassing experience of the year, what could be worse than losing your slip halfway down Langdon St. . . Fashion is the occupation with Shirley Schanen, Mademoiselle representative . . . Arlene Rasmusson and Mary Winkleman acted on Women's Affairs and Badger Board . . . Shirley Wisland was the envy of the Alpha Chi house, having her D.U., Harry Holtz, up here in V-5.

A. E. Phi's activities centered around war work, four hours a month being the minimum for each girl, knitting and USO claiming the highest total, soldiers graced the dining room at various intervals . . . Members claimed the distinction of making the war stamp honor roll consistantly . . . Anita . Gold worked on publicity for war stamp sales . . . Ruth Welling aptly headed the War Council, Mortar Board also chose her as its president, a truly scholastic honor . . . Ruth Silver gave her services to hospitality house . . . Marriage claimed one of the most active actives, Joan Dretzin entered the precinct of wedded bliss after triumphantly winding up Freshman Orientation . . . The vacated Cardinal editorship was filled by Eileen Martinson who had capably fullfilled many a tough position on the paper . . . Committees were not without their share of A. E. Phi's . . . Laura Shovers aided the elections committee . . . The theatre committee ably carried on with Delores Fagen as chairman . . . Janet Rosenstock's interest revolved around student poll and W. S. G. DELTA DELTA DELTA

Founded at Boston Univ., 1888, Boston, Mass., Local chapter, Mu, one of 89, established in 1898.

The Tri-Delt house resembles Grand Central Station, and no one can keep up with the comings and goings of Sue Ammann, Esther Hougen, and the other B. W.O.C.'s with the Cardinal Board, Student Board, and various and sundry Union committees . . . Speediest romance of the year was that of Jane Kleinschmidt and Jim Keating, Theta Delt. Janie gave back a pin belonging to an Ohioan and promptly accepted the Theta Delt shield . . . June Wegner, one of the lovely Badger Beauties, is engaged to a Marine captain; perhaps that accounts for her coming in at eleven on Prom night; the captain couldn't get leave . . . Polly Grimes and Peg Paschal are the thespian genii of the house with leading parts in Wisconsin Players . . . Kay Sinske worked on Prom and Pan-hel and found time to frighten Mrs. Dysland with faces made out of paper bags, poles, and lights outside her window . . . Ann Duncan brings stuffed pheasants home from the Golden Pheasant Bar . . . Claim to fame, Bob Henkel, Prom King, worked here . . . Tri-Delts placed third in the Ice Carnival with their "Bernie".

The K. D. girls sparked up the year at the very beginning by placing high in the homecoming decorations with their "Over Here, Over There" version of the football and World War fracas . . . Kappa Delta went all out for athletics, volly-ball was one of their best games, winning the 1st semester tournament is listed among their highest feats . . . All the K. D.'s got out and worked on their ice sculpture for the Winter Carnival contest . . . Janet Rausch won fourth place in the Little International Horse Show . . . Engagements were announced during the year as Dan Cupid scored three hits on Margaret Clore, Vivian Johns, and Frances Stone, all actives, who now sport their rocks on third finger left hand . . . Pat Brady one of the most active K. D.'s rounded out a very successful year as defense chairman, always enthusiastic Pat gave her full support to the war effort . . . Carrying out the old clothes drive was another high point achievement, the house went over solid in collecting garments with the help of a sign over the hall mirror . . . Kappa Delta was the first house to dress Miss Victory in the Co-op window.

PHI OMEGA PI

Founded at Hunter College, New York, N. Y. in 1913. Phi Chapter, one of 22, chartered at Wisconsin in 1936.

Girls at Phi Omega Pi were given an incentive to go to classes this year, penalization meant buying war stamps for the entire house, even though it was for a worthy cause it sure made little scholars out of the girls . . . Patriotism was the keynote for the Christmas party given in behalf of the boys in navy blue . . . Marian Sticht, first semester house president was a loyal and true Home-Ec student and a member of Omicron Nu . . . House meeting took on added savor when the girls were allowed to bring down all the pets to keep them company . . . Servicemen were not overlooked as open houses rated supreme compliments . . . The Army Air Corps was Betty Kelsey's choice, manifested by her Florida jaunt this winter . . . Pride and joy of the Phi O girls was Marilyn Schraf, chosen as Madison's prettiest USO hostess, those lucky Madison men in uniform . . . Faye Pike honored the house as one of the Fourth War Loan Drive queens . . . The state of matrimony claimed two of the girls, June Brown became the bride of an engineer while lone Gruss went all out for the Navy.

Outstanding achievement of the year was the heading of the 4th War Loan Drive by the Phi Sigma Sigma girls . . . Reward was the opportunity to choose the queen of the drive, the lucky girl selected was Harriet Kaufman . . . Eve Turchen, senior, was elected to Phi Kappa Phi this year for her remarkable scholastic record . . . The house rates two budding journalists, Bernice Mintz who had the glory of seeing her own article published in the art publication, "Design Magazine," and Edythe Prens who contributed to the Cardinal with her column "They also Serve" . . . Songs from Wiskits were presented at Truax as part of an all-university show, five beaming soldiers in the first row struck a note of joy in the hearts of the singers, but disillusionment soon followed when it was discovered that the five were from the ear ward and had plugs in their hearing apparatuses . . . Initiation was followed by a dance in honor of the new actives . . . "Plaidy Penguin" in ice graced the front year of the Phi Sigma house during Winter Carnival . . . Pledges lifted morale by donating two magazine subscriptions to the Naval sick bay.

Founded at Colby College, 1874, Waterville, Maine. Local chapter' Alpha, one of 44, established in 1919.

Open houses were a popular form of entertainment during the year, A.S.T.P.'s, V-5's, and V-12's all enjoyed the good will of the Sigma Kappa domain . . . Pat Butler represented the Sigma Kappa girls musically, finishing her third year playing with the University orchestra . . . Hospitality house was supported whole heartedly, soldiers were entertained at dinner, and the 100th squadron from Truax rollicked in happy revelry . . . Janet Jacobson upheld her scholarship record by being made assistant chairman of the scholarship banquet . . . Anne Boegholt, new vice-president of the Union, is one up and coming gal and is definitely headed for bigger and better things before her University career is finished . . . Chairmanship of the Service Committee and Activities Bureau work saw Anne right in there punching . . . Katherine Fletcher busied herself on Pan-hel.

THETA PHI ALPHA

Founded at Univ. of Mich., 1912, Ann Arbor, Mich. Local chapter, Nu, one of 19, founded in 1926. National sorority for Catholic women.

Housemother, Miss Helen Nee, is a source of worry around the Theta Phi Alpha house, she has enough on the ball to be serious competition especially with the dating situation as it is . . . Marilyn Dubs, a Sigma Lambda, also bore the title of Official Sidewalk Shoveler, she was especially Jesirable during the February blizzards . . . The role of Lydia in "Pride and Prejudice" was interpreted by dramatist, Jean Lewis, her part in "Cradle Song" was quite a contrast . . . Every Sunday night found the Theta Phi Alphas hostessing at a dance for servicemen . . . Sittin' and knittin' was a common scene as the girls turned their talent to help the Red Cross . . . Phylis Ambelang was the Theta Phi Alpha's gift to the fashion world, modeling for the soldiers at Truax and also for the sorority fashion show . . . Phylis also had the distinction of being a "Heel" in Hoofers . . . Known around the house as Doc, Ann Bardeen is one of those rare female med students, what an ideal situation . . . Sweetheart of Theta Phi Alpha is Pfc. Bob Hughes of Truax.

MOST REPRESENTATIVE PLEDGE

ELIZABETH HAGGART KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

A new type of contest was initiated by the Badger this year, largely to increase Badger sales, but also to praise and applaude this year's pledge class which was larger than ever before. Each sorority entered contestants on the basis of book sales. The traits judged were ability, scholarship, personal appearance, poise, and personality. The hallowed, somber judges were students and servicemen.

Of the seventeen contestants the six semifinalists were: Barbara Kennedy, Gamma Phi Beta; Josephine Smith, Delta Gamma; Patty Powell, Kappa Alpha Theta; Shirley Flath, Pi Beta Phi; Barbara Langlois, Delta Delta; Elizabeth Haggart, Kappa Kappa Gamma. Attractive, bouyant Elizabeth Haggart, Kappa Kappa Gamma pledge, was chosen the most representative of this year's pledge crop. Rumor has it that Ray Dooney, V-5 football player and one of the judges, had a special interest, but Liz was deserving of the award in her own right. A northern gal from Fargo, North Dakota, Liz is enrolled in the L&S school. A tall brunette, she has been described as "king size" with a touch of Kappa sophistication. Riding and sailing are among her athletic interests to say nothing of being an exceptionally good golfer. She is also an accomplished pianist with dramatics as an added talent. Right now the SAE pin of a med student in the Naval Reserve is the important thing.

CHALLENGED by the housing situation and the taking-over of the dormitories and fraternities by the Army and Navy, the remaining men of the University have had to go out and forage for rooms within the radius of the campus. The women have been only a little more fortunate. With Barnard and Chad taken over by the Army for residence by former U.W. A.S.T.P.'s, only "The Rock," and privately owned dorms remain to house women seeking higher education. Rooming and small lodging houses have come into their own, and the predominant number of students live elsewhere than university dormitories.

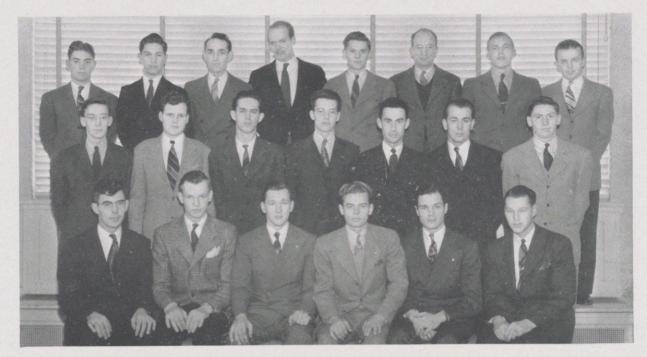

In these small houses, residents have attempted to capture the spirit that once prevailed in the larger dormitories—intimacy and indestructable comradeship—and perhaps have been more successful because of their small size.

The well-known "bull sessions" over cokes and innumerable cigarettes are an institution within these as well as every and any group of young people living together. Here are settled the problems of the world—everything from war strategy to religion, the latest "flame," the evening's date, and any subject tabooed everywhere else!

Food from home, the weekly laundry case, mail sometimes, "must" radio programs that interrupt the studying that never gets done except by the people next door who insist on hitting the books, pounding the pipes, and yelling "Quiet hours" in the middle of T.D.'s Boogie-Woogie. And life goes on pretty much the same.

BABCOCK HOUSE

This past Fall the centennial anniversary of Dr. Stephen Moulton Babcock was celebrated throughout the dairy world . . . Big doings kept the Ag. Campus in a furor as praises were uttered for Dr. Babcock, remembered for his interest in agricultural pursuits and his achievement in them . . . Most notable were his inventions and discoveries in the field of Dairy Industry and Biochemistry . . . Upon his death, his home, located at 432 N. Lake Street was given in trust to the college of agriculture . . .

Through the efforts of some of the faculty members in the college, the house was opened to agricultural students who found it necessary to keep their expenses at a minimum while attending the University . . . Babcock House has been functioning for the past 12 years on a cooperative basis.

BROOKS DELTA

Established eight years ago, Brooks Delta has maintained itself as one of the steadier independent organized houses for men . . . Everyone spent days thinking about snappy little titles for the officers, Procurator Kriedeman did so want to be some kind of a chancellor . . . Highlighter of the year was Jon Gudjonsson, Icelander and social sensation . . . Dick Timmons combined studies and the extraordinary by working for the Wisconsin Alumni Research and the Chinese government . . . Privates Jack Wank and Morton Gershman claimed residence at Brooks Delta yet worked on correspondence for the Armed Forces Institute . . . Vincent Di-Raimondo mixed death dealing potions as a chem assistant . . . Scholastically seventeen members topped a two point grade average to put the house definitely in the intelligencia bracket . . . Chuck Hervey 770 Club devotee and organizer piled his room to the very ceiling with the club matches . . . Came eleven P.M. every-night and Valenti and DiRaimondo put the coke bottles away . . . Social event of the year was Bill Moon's marrying Marion E. White, Delta Gamma.

HOUSE OF LANGDON

The House of Langdon, 630 Langdon, boasts twenty roomers this year, thanks to lenient draft boards, deserved deferments, and the just plain lucky ones . . . This makes for one of the few all civilian rooming houses . . . Art McMahon, S.A.E., is one of the three pre-med students . . . The other two being Florian Ragaz, new house president, and George Iwen . . . Most of the fellows are in one branch of engineering or another . . . There are three chem engineers, three electrical engineers, and two mechanical engineers, and the rest are in the old standby for a college degree, L&S . . . Mervel Oleson holds down the scholastic honors of the house maintaining membership in Phi Eta Sigma, Eta Kappa Nu, and Kappa Eta Kappa . . . John Williams is a member of the honorary mathematics fraternity, and believe us, brother, his slide rule is his best friend . . . At the House of Langdon is the Goldfish Bowl, "the only bedroom built on the sidewalks of Langdon" . . . George Lanz, Phi Delt and President of Intrafraternity, was also prexy of the Goldfish Bowl, scandalized so perfectly by Troubleshooters.

Y. M. C. A.

University YMCA student activities are many and varied . . . A number of program features date back quite a few years and are as vital to campus life today as they were when inaugurated . . . The emphasis in all of these activities is upon student planning and execution of program . . . This principle applies in international student relations just as much as it does in the planning of the Sunday Seminar, and informal religious discussion groups . . . In the publication of Wisconsin Men Magazine and Wisconsin Men News the men of the University YMCA decide what they wish to do . . . In this one hundredth year of its founding, the YMCA looks forward faithfully to continued useful service in the campus community.

Y. M. C. A. DORMITORY

The University YMCA dormitory has been appropriately called "democracy in action." . . . The seventy students housed in the building are representatives of many backgrounds and interests, students from foreign countries, undergraduates, graduate fellows are all living together in a cooperative spirit . . . The "Y" prides itself in being the largest men's house on the campus, it is indeed a laboratory in social living . . . Personalities and there are a host of them range from lawyers to phy eds . . . Lawyerto-be, Red Gunn, house president, has been active in service men's relations . . . Artist Tom Spiece, created a most inviting studio in his room, he is the man we shall not forget when we think of the spectacular Christmas festival . . . "Old Joe" Skuhra is known far and wide on the campus among trainees for his physical conditioning program that made the boys sweat and puff . . . Piano player student, John Finken, has been overseeing the destinies of the post-war reconstruction committee . . . The heavy boys, Al Schnur and Art Pearson (combined weight about 400 lbs.) are the men who keep the top floor of the dorm jolly and friendly . . . Hal Hulterstrum, swing musician supreme, does a tip-top job in the "Y" neighborhood boys' club supervising model plane building . . . His colleague, Bob Berg, has done a whale of a job organizing the kids in the neighborhood.

ANDERSEN HOUSE

Andersen House again brought down the house with its brilliant Wiskits show, and walked off with first place for its clever adaptation of "Cyrano de Bergerac" . . . Singers Dorothy Cox and Ethel Bahr crooned in the University Chorus . . . Ag Council would not have been complete without Myrtle Baumann and Mildred Witt . . . A love of the land or a journalistic craze must have been an incentive with Myrtle Baumann and Eileen Niedermeier as both reinforced the County Mag staff . . . an anonymous admirer offered Carol, the turtle, as a mascot who weathered the long trip from New York in true turtle fashion . . . Betsey Tilton and Mildred Witt, as true journalism majors pledged Coranto . . . House president, Jane Carroll Krause, an ardent Commerce enthusiast captured the positions of vice-presidency of Phi Chi Theta and treasurer of the Commerce Club . . Andersen House held its winter formal along with other independent houses . . . "She's lovely, she's engaged, she uses Ponds" might aptly describe Marian Wieckert and Jane Herman, two very lucky girls.

Edith Toy and Elsie Lee held Cochrane House in suspense most of the time since they lapsed into Chinese at most crucial moments . . . Elsie was also president of the Chinese Student Club . . . The carillon music that greets students hurrying up Bascom Hill came from the talented fingers of Esther Lindbloom . . . House president, Barb Amundson is a potential actress, and Cochranites point with pride to her four lines in "Pride and Prejudice" . . . The Academic Relations Committee was another of her activities . . . Dancers Bonnie Hancock and Sage Fuller gave out for senior orchesis . . . Marcia Legere split her time between writing for the Cardinal as feature editor and for "Mademoiselle" as college correspondent . . . Student Council of Calvary Lutheran Church counted Trudy Schaak among its members . . . Marge Swhanke led the house in its Wiskits production . . . Janie Wiser thoroughly enjoyed herself at all the parties, her favorite expressions "velly big party" and "I'm knockin' myself out" has become a tradition . . . Jackie McGuire held reign over the house . . . and popular Mac Miller can't ever take a shower without being called out.

GRADY'S

Hostessing at the Union by Grady's girls proved a big boom to servicemen as the house turned out 100 per cent . . . Songstresses Wilma Bard, Florence Hansen, and Urna Kirchhoff all trilled in the University chorus . . . In spite of the fact that many of the girls worked, they managed to squeeze in a considerable amount of extra-curricular activities . . . Gerry Pelles haunted WHA doing radio work and managed to take the secretary notes for Sigma Delta Pi . . . Orchesis chose Elizabeth Huppler as its president and she was also active in W.A.A. . . . Socially, Grady's went all out for the Independent Women's formal which proved to be a huge success . . . Sally Gharrity, Grady's nominee for Miss America in a bathing suit, was an outstanding member of Dolphins . . . Each week war stamp sales maintain a high average in the house . . . Sigma Alpha lota lists Florence Hansen among its members . . . Not only athletic but talented too, is Mildred Pickard, a member of both Hoofers and Wisconsin Players . . . Kay Leonard was a stalwart member of War Council.

ELIZABETH WATERS

Elizabeth Waters, the one remaining University dormitory, maintains its palatial residence on the shores of Lake Mendota. "The Rock" has come to be a password among University students as its residents achieve prominence in many campus activities. Socially Liz Waters has never faltered. Her girls still look forward to traditional Saturday nights in the lobby. Probably on no other campus will one find 500 coeds living, working, studying, and playing together in complete harmony, a positive example of what Wisconsin women can accomplish in mutual understanding and cooperation.

KAYMIR MANOR

Second prize in homecoming decorations rewarded the artistic ability of Kaymir Manor . . . Manorites claimed the distinction of making the war stamp honor roll almost consistently every week . . . always hospitable, soldiers were entertained not only at open houses but also at dinner in spite of rationing . . . An old-fashioned sleigh ride took them "riding o'er the snow" one winter night . . . Thanksgiving brought an informal party as another social event . . . Politics busied Phyllis Zippert and Annette Sherman who devoted much time this winter to finding out info on the poll for soldier voting . . . Shirley Dinowitzer, art major, put her creative stroke to work on the ice sculpture which won an honorable mention held and proved to be riotous . . . Hillel activities occupied many of the girls . . . Membership in the honorary organizations on campus claim many of the Manor girls who all are stalwart members . . . Renee Kasen capably administered the position of secretary in the psychology organization, Psi Chi . . . Orchids to Ida Mae Trockman and her Indiana ensign whose ring she now wears.

LINCOLN LODGE

Some of the girls here are so talented in torsorial art and beauty culture that the Madison beauty shop want them to take out a license if they're going to compete . . . Talent is spread out and diversified to such an extent that the "inmates" put on a Variety Show for Truax Field, it went over like hot cakes and was well received . . . "Sugar" Sapowitch made Wisconsin Players and if she tries real hard, maybe she can advance from knit one, purl one to speaking a few lines . . . Judy Rosenberg found herself torn between the Cardinal and the U.S.O., even Judy doesn't know who had the edge all year . . . Estelle Fogelman left the rest of the house in the lurch when she pulled up stakes after getting herself engaged to a navy man . . . Prexy Ruthie Eckstein was voted as the most inaccessible girl . . . The strange noises over station WHA were made by Charlene and Carol, sound-effects women . . . The waiters and busboys kept themselves busy by dating the girls they served, well you can always judge a girl by the way she eats.

Future Angels of Mercy, the student nurses are nevertheless very much in the thick of things . . . One of the busiest groups on campus scholastically, they still find time to participate in campus activities . . . Time and originality were expended in their decorative interpretation of homecoming, football enthusiasts were amused by the appropriate delivery scene with Stuhldreher as the expectant father being handed Baby Victory by a football player doctor . . . Sue Baernstein, capable defense chairman, carried on the stamp selling and old clothes and paper drives for the dormitory . . . Romance flourished mainly with med students, interns, and doctors as the nurses cleverly mixed business with pleasure . . . Prexy Margy Prehn and med student Bill Neilsen proved it . . . These student Florence Nightingales are undoubtedly contributing their very best to the Win the War drive, and they're doing it faithfully and sincerely.

SHORELAND HOUSE

Shoreland House has turned out to be a little stock company for Broadway with its dramatis personae consisting of Anne Friedman, Andie Anisman, and Millicent Stein all Wisconsin Players . . . Andie also spent much of her time at WHA, calling all producers and casting directors . . . WHA workshop claimed much of the time of Anne Friedman and Pat Goldman . . . Marian Baum rivaled Dinah Shore so successfully that Truax, Swingabout, and the At Ease all put out an S.O.S. for her . . . Intramurals proved to be a popular activity, Andie Anisman can also give with the muscle when needed along with Micky Benjamin, Syril Kane, Marilyn Lapp, and Julie Schwager

. . Lenore Kahn spent most of the year awaiting letters from a certain lad with a touch of Texas in his bones, her soldier fiance . . . Marilyn Lapp and Jean Stern proved to be the Hoofer hot shots with Shirley Wiener and Millicent Stein who passed through the "heel" stage and made the great big Hoofers . . . Rita Ginsburg wears the fraternity pin of a soldier, congratulations.

VILLA MARIA

The five USO groups are adequate proof that the Villa girls went all out for servicemen entertainment . . . Peggy Mann, Villa resident, did a splendid job as head of the war stamp sales, the large amounts bought on campus were due mainly to her unwaivering effort . . . A bowling team offered after-hour relaxation to study-weary Villa residents, Hannah Reichman headed the intermurals . . . A lion whose inspiration was created by the New York Public Library graced the Villa's yard for Winter Carnival and the ice sculpture . . . Social event number one was a fall formal . . . Josie Cohen, war coordinator, was the enthusiastic and capable leader of all war activities . . . Open houses were held throughout the year for all branches of the service . . .

Most embarrassing episode for all concerned took place when a Madison building inspector walked unannounced to the second floor . . . A scavenger hunt followed by a radio party provided some honest to goodness fun . . . Helen Gottesman deserted Wisconsin for holy matrimony while Ruth Chudnoff accepted a ring from a Princeton A.S.T.P. . . . C.O.C. welcomed the aid of Barbara Kemp . . . Bev Eisenberg, one of the literati, was a Thomas Wolfe enthusiast.

The eleven student religious centers on the campus are represented on the University Religious Council by their professional worker, a faculty member, and two students. Together, this group seeks to stimulate religious interest among students and to carry out worthwhile projects through its committee organization. Furtherance of the spiritual, social, and educational lives of the students has been its goal since it was organized five years ago.

During this past year the Religious Convocations have brought to the campus outstanding men; among whom were E. Stanley Jones, Walter M. Horton, Bernard Iddings Bell, and Dean Howard Therman. A successful World Student Service Fund drive was carried out through the student centers. Koinos, an inter-faith discussion group, and a series of faculty forums were sponsored by the Council. The social education committee was very active, and two progressive dinners were held to offer fellowship and fun to the students from all the represented groups.

CALVARY LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY CHURCH

Calvary Lutheran University Church, at 713 State Street, is an all-student organization, which has been ministering to the spiritual and social needs of students since September, 1920. During the past couple of years it has served also many service men and women. It is sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri and by the Joint Synod of Wisconsin for the benefit of students belonging to the synods comprising the Evangelical Lutheran Synodical Conference of North America, and for any other students who may desire to avail themselves of its facilities. Both religious and social functions of the church are under the direction of the Students' Council and the Reverend William C. Burhop.

Activities this year included regular Sunday church services, Bible study and discussion hours, cost suppers on Sunday nights, community singing, fellowship hours, informal parties, participation in World Student Service Fund, and lectures.

Thirty-eight years ago the Congregational Conference established on campus an organization known as the Congregational Student Association. At the Student House, 422 North Murray Street, Congo students and their friends gather every day of the week. On Sunday mornings the students attend the First Congregational Church, and in the evening meet at Bradford Club for supper, informal fun, a worship service and one of a variety of educational programs.

Congregational Student Association activities this year have included a Lenten study group during the Lent season, deputations to churches in the state for the purpose of helping these churches plan their programs for the year, and the Ferdinand Club which grew out of the Monday night bull sessions held at the church. The C.S.A. cooperated with the University Religious Council for the progressive dinners, University Convocations and W.S.S.F. In addition they held informal parties and Friday teas. In October, the students attended the ordination service of their student pastor, Rev. Leonard Detweiler who has been advisor and director of student work.

Serving as the religious, social, and cultural center for the Jewish students at the University of Wisconsin, the Hillel Foundation carries on a year-round program of activities for civilian students and for campus military trainees as well. Weekly services are held at the foundation and special religious services on all Jewish holy days.

An outstanding event in the year's calendar was an Inter-Faith Service held in December. Guests from the other student foundations on campus attended a Friday evening sabbath service after which the Hillel director spoke on "Jewish Beliefs and Practices", and the guests were invited to ask any questions concerning Jews or Judaism.

Hillel's war service program reaches out to the Jewish Army and Navy trainees on the campus. Special religious services are arranged weekly as well as a cultural recreational program to fit the time schedule of the trainees. The Director serves as civilian Chaplain to the men in training. The Hillel Foundation has been utilized also as an auxiliary center for joint affairs with the USO and Jewish Welfare Board for servicemen from the University and from Truax Field.

When one walks up State Street, those large, plate glass, bay windows of the Presbyterian Student Center often pique at his curiosity. What goes on in there? Sometimes the melodious strains of students gathered around the piano can be heard, and the passer-by rushes on really wondering what goes on in there.

This is an all student church with a chequered history that dates back to 1907. Because the young folks plan and man the entire program the church is quite unique. All students, the Session is composed of eight elders, the Board of Deacons twelve members, and Board of Trustees ten members. The Rev. Cecil W. Lower ("Doc"), the minister director, has proven himself outstanding as a student pastor during his eight years here. His younger associate, the Rev. John Clayton, and Miss Helene Stratman-Thomas, Director of Music, complete the adult staff.

Mention should be made of the Roojah's (Royal Order of Janitors and Hosts) those eight gentlemen and scholars who live at Pres House and keep its floors waxed and slippery. They are tenderly watched over by the Resident Assistants, Allen and Phyllis Edgar, who live in the Pres House apartment.

The Presbyterian Church and Student Center stresses five main areas of Christian ministry to the students of the university: Worship, Leadership Training, Christian Education, Personal Counseling, and Christian Recreation.

SAINT FRANCIS HOUSE

It has been a good year for Saint Francis House; the increased interest of a dwindling number of civilian students and the participation of the military students have combined to make it so.

The Franciscan spirit has expressed itself in many ways—at the Altar, in the House and on the Campus. Attendance at the daily services has been truly gratifying. During the year the Bishop has confirmed thirteen students and servicemen. Again this year a refugee student was maintained at the University.

The Social Committee did themselves proud on the Fall picnic at Sunset Point (co-ed football game, the chief attraction) and the hayrack ride with Blackhawk Lodge as its destination. This Spring the lectures of the Reverend B. I. Bell, during his four-day visit to the campus, provided much thought provoking material. The Church Action Committee has been busy running a messenger service at the Infirmary and reading to campus blind students. The Publicity Committee inaugurated a bi-monthly news sheet, "The Franciscan" and an alum publication, "Franciscan Fogies" in addition to putting out the regular "Stylus".

The Newman Club is comprised of several units. These units are the St. Vincent De Paul Society, The Holy Name Society, The Catholic Daughters of the University, and The Catholic Eating Co-op. Each unit has its own officers, its regular meetings, and its own special activities. Periodically, the units cooperate together in a single activity which is presented by the Newman Club.

More than just social functions make-up the program at St. Paul's. There are regular church services on Sundays and the holy days. The special seasons of the church are given proper emphasis. Spiritual guidance and teaching are a major part of the curriculum.

The many students who have come and are coming to St. Paul's never forget its friendliness, its home-like atmosphere, its cheerfulness, and spiritual uplift. And out of it all comes a happy feeling, a pride, and a cherished memory for those who have been members of St. Paul's University Newman Club.

The Wesley Foundation Student Association is the student organization at the Wesley Foundation—a "home away from home" for all students regardless of race or creed. The activities are directed by a cabinet of seventeen department chairmen and four officers with the counsel of the Director and Director's Assistant striving to present the Christian way of life in all activities whether religious, social, or educational. Activities include a year book and a weekly newspaper, Sunday classes and teaching, discussions, and eating Co-operative (Three Squares Club) of eighty members, Gamma chapter of Wesley Players, weekly parties, and "Chat-awhile" teas. The weekly Sunday night program consisting of Dine-a-mite, a cost supper and entertaining program, and a candle-light vesper service high-light the week's activities. Special projects this year have been a Christmas Star Banquet with foreign students on the campus as guests, and an inter-racial banquet at which Negroes and re-located Japanese-Americans from the campus and community and Negro and South American trainees from Truax Field were guests.

The Specialized Training Program on the University of Wisconsin Campus

On May 26, 1943, fourteen men arrived to form the nucleus of the, then, newly established AST Unit of the 3654 S.U. at Madison. At the completion of the first course, March 4, 1944 more than two thousand soldier-trainees had received specialized training under university direction.

These men, coming from all branches and arms of the service, studied Basic Engineering, Foreign Areas and Languages, and Medicine. They had been selected for ASTP on the basis of high intelligence and educational levels. Their backgrounds varied from regular army to raw recruit, from university instructor to recent high school graduate. They had been selected to attend the university to train for certain positions created by the exigencies of modern warfare.

Their arrival necessarily influenced life on the campus: fraternity houses were vacated to make room for the hordes of ASTP; more instructors, oftentimes new departments, were called into being; Khaki and O.D. and GI vernacular became the commonplace.

June 14, 1943, the first classes of ASTP were convened, and then began the most intensive educational program ever attempted at the university. In nine months a complete knowledge of foreign languages was to be taught, plus an understanding of the people and countries from which these languages stem. In eighteen months young men were to be taught almost a complete five-year engineering course. "Revolutionary education, impossible," said the educators. And yet it worked! Men were learning to speak fluently. Men were learning "calc" and "trig" and "quant" and Ohms Law. In the mess hall (formerly Tripp Commons) one could hear conversation in Italian, German, French, Russian; or hear formulae recited with the rapidity of a machine-gun. Gl education is education at its most efficient level.

These men though long on brain matter, were not short on fun. They, individually and collectively, warmed the heart of many a beauteous Wisconsin maiden. They formed an orchestra, a glee club, baseball, basketball, and bowling teams. They paraded on Saturday morning with a precision and snap worthy of any army unit. They were clean, fine, upstanding, American young men.

Wisconsin can be proud that she has helped train these men in their military duties, and she can rest assured she has made many new friends.

COMMANDING OFFICERS

MAJOR JOHN O. NEIGHBOURS; JR.

LT. COL. FRANKLIN W. CLARKE

Major John O. Neighbours, Jr., who was graduated from the University's School of Civil Engineering in 1938, has been commanding officer of the Army Specialized Training Program since its inception here. The young major is a native of Maryland. He was chief of engineering ROTC until the spring of 1943, and then assumed his duties as commanding officer of the ASTP.

Lt. Col. Franklin W. Clarke, a graduate of the university and a Madison resident, is the able commanding officer of the extensive 3654th Service Unit which includes the ASTP, ROTC, ASTR'S, and WAC'S on campus. Practicing law until 1940, he came back to the university on active duty as an officer in the ROTC. He was appointed to his present position in October, 1943.

A.S.T.P'S AT WORK AND PLAY

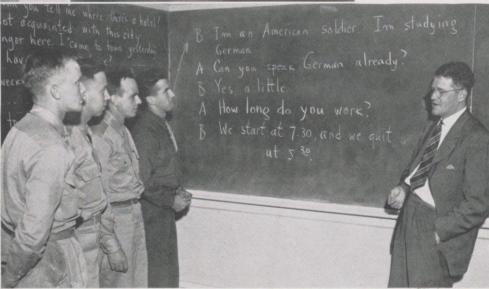

What attracts such keen attention from this sole ASTP'er—official notices or announcements of coming social events?

That one free hour of the day brings out a book and shoe polish as industrious ASTP's capably plan their time.

The intensive, specialized language program made these German students fluent and proficient speakers.

Good old Union chow served in Tripp Commons.

Saturday morning inspection is an excellent example of the trim precision and snap of the ASTP companies.

Chow line and those starved expressions.

Community problem solving or just looking at something that came in the mail?

Company I man taking advantage of a few short minutes.

The tables are turned and these ASTP'S play host to University co-eds.

Company B, sensations in athletics, snatched the basketball champion-ship, and did all right by themselves in football too. The team proudly posed for this one.

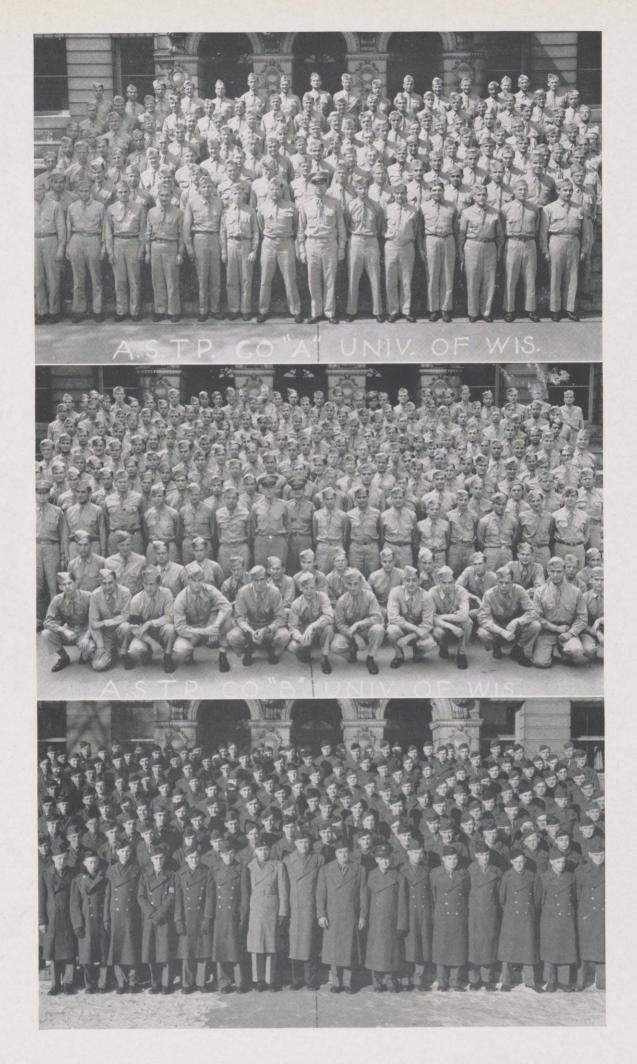

More of that sharp field formation drill during the half of the Wisconsin.-Notre Dame football game.

Looks as if this checker game will get more serious concentration than any poker battle.

AIR CORPS METEOROLOGY

History of the Specialized Meteorology Program on the Wisconsin Campus

One of the first soldiers to arrive at the 54th Army Air Forces Training

Detachment wrote in the history of the "B" Class:

"This is the story of a hectic six months, six months of hard work and hard subjects, six months of physical and mental disciplining, of experiences to remember, of new friendships made, of things learned both in scholastic and military fields."

Students began to arrive March 8th, 1943 and immediately their work started in military training and in review of academic subjects, preparatory to the formal opening of the course on March 29th. From this date until graduation of the "B" Class on September 18th, there was hardly a dull moment and except for week-ends and one glorious week of furlough in June, there were few idle ones. Vectoral Mechanics, Calculus, Physics, Geography, and English-Speech were the academic subjects which consumed the major portion of their waking hours and then there was military training which covered all the necessary military subjects from drill to marksmanship. Not to be forgotten either, were the hours of physical training.

The "C" students began to arrive in early May although their course did not begin officially until May 31st. The time between their arrival and the start of their academic work was also a busy one. One of the things most appreciated, to which the "C" class contributed many hours of work, was the construction of the swimming area complete with pier, spring-boards, float and markers. Perhaps no other project contributed so much pleasure and afforded opportunity for more valuable training than did this fine accomplishment.

The academic programs for "C" men was much the same as for the "B" Class except for the fact that it was of one year's length rather than for six months and started at the freshman rather than at sophomore level. Their military training was even more extensive than that of the older men by reason of their longer stay.

Somehow in this crowded schedule Pre-Meteorlogists found time for their own military band and also a "swing band" that afforded much pleasure; time for soft-ball, basket-ball, tennis, golf, and swimming teams which fared very well in competition with other units on the campus; time for fishing, photography, sail-boating, and other hobbies.

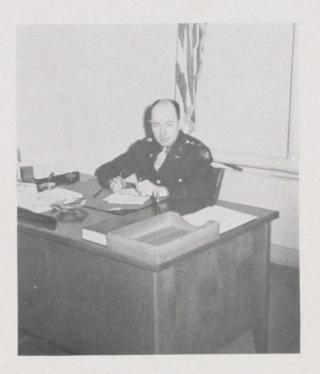

The men of the "B" Class were reluctant to leave such surroundings, the "C" Class will be equally as disappointed, and the students of Wisconsin will regret seeing those industrious men stationed in the old men's dorms, leave the campus.

COMMANDING OFFICERS

CAPTAIN VERNON L. HASTINGS
Assigned as Commanding Officer of the Pre-Meteorology Detachment in March, 1943.

Payday with Captain Hastings officiating.

A capable medical officer administers help to the bad eye of a Meteorologist.

The band passing in review on the athletic field.

P. T. brings the Meteorologists out full force in sweat clothes to do push-ups.

The orderly room of the 54th Technical Training Detachment in Jones Hall of the University of Wisconsin.

Seriously hitting the books.

But soon the pool table collects a couple of enthusiasts.

The Meteorologists are not to be shown up by any other unit as they expertly parade across the field.

Talking the situation over for a few relaxing moments.

A good student, a great Meteorologist, and a fine soldier.

NAVY AIR CORPS

The V-5 Program on the University of Wisconsin Campus

LIEUTENANT HUGH J. MOORE A-V(S), USNR

The staff also includes a naval aviator, a physical education officer and two yeomen.

It was in April 1943, that the AvCads, about 120 of them, moved from the University "Y" to their present quarters in three former fraternity houses at the foot of North Lake Street.

The local Naval Aviation Unit is an outgrowth of the Civil Pilot Training (CPT) program which the federal government and the university first offered to a limited number of students, back in 1939.

When war came, the civilian training aspect of the program was discontinued and the military took over, with the local unit being entirely devoted to what the Navy calls its V-5 program. In this program, Aviation Cadets receive their first actual flight instruction at many schools about the country. Here, their flight training is given them at Morey Airport, west of Madison. The period of instruction runs from two to three months. Cadets receive their ground school instruction right in their own barracks, from a specially trained staff of instructors provided by the University's Extension Division. The university also provides food at the Memorial Union, and lodging in former fraternity houses.

Flying occupies one-half of the fledgling pilot's day. Ground school classes occupy the other half. Subjects studied include navigation, aerology, engines, civil air regulations, and radio code. Rigid discipline and a strenuous physical education schedule keep the boys "in the pink" for the big job ahead of them.

That job includes approximately another full year of training in more advanced navy schools before the AvCad becomes the navy ensign or marine second lieutenant, wearing the coveted wings of gold.

AN AVCAD'S DAY

Reveille sounds at 0545. Failure to "hit the deck" immediately, means loss of Saturday night liberty. Cadets keep their quarters spotlessly clean and uniformly arranged.

This one is swabbing the deck before going to morning chow.

Chow is served cafeteria style. The food is both good and plentiful, and necessarily so, in view of the strenuous program.

AvCads have their chow hall in the Memorial Union building. Table conversation is mostly about flying.

Classes start at 0700 with a two-hour, practical problem in navigation, the highest hurdle in the ground school schedule.

The half day of ground school is concluded with a strenuous gym class, but once a week it is devoted to drill.

Off to the airport in a covered truck. The AvCads fly at Morey Airport eight miles west of Madison.

The cadet Ready Room is where the fledgling retake it easy during the time just prior to their souled flight time.

The Resident Naval Aviator clears up a point cadet before he leaves the Ready Room for the line.

Ready for the take off! The instructor gives the cadet a final word on how he wants the day's flight assignment done.

Advanced students fly the more powerful, open-cockpit airplanes. Just a bit breezy in mid-winter but the boys are dressed for it.

The thrill of a life-time! The cadet in the center has just "Soloed" and is buying a round of cokes for his pals.

The day's work done, the cadet signs out with the Cadet Officer of the Day for a precious hour of liberty.

Back in his quarters by 2130. Our V-Fiver dashes off a letter before taps sound at 2145.

SOLVING WAR PROBLEMS...

For AMERICA

90 mm. sky guns to knock down hostile planes ... powerful steam turbines to drive the vital ships of our transport and fighting fleets . . . delicate turbo-superchargers to carry high-flying bombers to safe ceilings — these are some of Allis-Chalmers many war products rolling from our plants in endless numbers. Behind these are motors, pumps, electric control — essential equipment for Victory.

For INDUSTRIES

Precise welding machines ... efficient Texrope V-belt drives ... giant chemical kilns ... heavy mining equipment ... high capacity transformers ... electrical switchgear ... sawmill equipment — these are just a few of the 1600 industrial products Allis-Chalmers contributes to America's production front. Serving every industry ... touching every industrial process — they play a vital part in war production

For FARMERS

Easing the farmers job, making his labor count for more is the work of tractors, plows and harvesters. From border to border . . . from valleys of New England to wide western prairies — Allis-Chalmers farm equipment is on duty . . . plowing, sowing, cultivating, reaping and threshing the nation's food supply. From farm to pantry shelf . . . from ranch to refrigerator, Allis-Chalmers products help feed the world.

Joan & arc

is stitching steel for fighting ships!

What's the magic of the welder's rod that builds boats so much faster and lighter? What's the secret of the blue arc blazing between Joan and her weld? Electricity!

But suppose, when war began, this power hadn't been ready? . . . Suppose America had had to wait?

... A year-or two?

But America did have the power—and no waiting! Enough power for homes and ships and jeeps and planes. Five times the power this country had in the last war. More power than all the Axis countries combined!

And over 80% of this vast flood of power came from the electric companies under business management—at low prewar prices.

Heads Up, America

We are not undaunted by the exigencies of this war-torn world . . . the sacrifices that it has imposed upon us.

For indeed, our sacrifices are small compared to those of our sons, brothers, fathers and sweethearts, scattered throughout the world, who are serving the Stars and Stripes.

Beyond the horizon there is a great day of Victory and a future happiness for all freedom-loving people.

Let us pray that all those who serve may be spared to enjoy the Freedom and Happiness that they are helping to maintain.

The Brewing Industry of Wisconsin is proud to play its part in serving the most temperate "army" in the world, both at home and on the war front.

Again we say "Heads Up, America!"

TAKE CARE OF YOUR PLUMBING

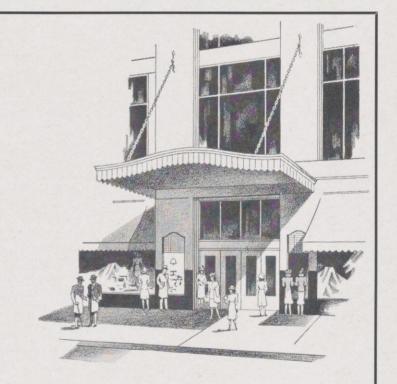

It's up to the boys and girls at home to help take care of the bathroom—for essential materials—iron, brass, zinc, lead, copper, chromium, rubber—from which bathroom fixtures and fittings are made—are helping big brother win the war.

KOHLER OF KOHLER

When Good Labels Get Together . . .

We have sought them out through the years and asked them to join the talented band of Americans on the honor roll of labeled fashions in this store. They are the names of firms that have added luster to American fashion, that have never faltered in quality. We are pleased to place our label side by side with theirs. We will continue to add to this roster only the most worthy so that the labels you see side by side with ours will be a living history of American fashion leadership.

1937 First Heil Cable Scraper

1940 First Aluminum Trailerized Tank ever built

The very fact that you are a university student indicates that you are interested in improvement. This instinctive desire to find a better way of doing things is the fundamental driving force of America. That driving force generates ideas. But ideas are of value only in proportion to the use which is made of them. Here at The Heil Co., we have the manufacturing facilities, versatility and engineering skill necessary to develop ideas and market them. 75% of our 1940 sales were of products not even in existence 15 years before! The next 15 years hold even brighter promise.

If you have an idea requiring practical development, we'll be glad to talk it over with you.
