Is Compulsory Automobile Insurance Advisable?

Roemer Named Receiver For Graef Mfg. Company

Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner signed an order Thursday afternoon appointing William J. Roemer as receiver for the Graef Manufacturing company, local millwork, sash and woodwork manufacturing concern. An action brought by the Citizens National bank to have a receiver appointed for the concern was heard in circuit court Thursday morning. The Graef Manufacturing company, located on E. Water street, at the foot of the S. Drew street hill, has not been operating for some time. Officers of the company are Joseph W. Versteegen, president, and Lester Versteegen, secretary.

College Debaters Meet Nine Teams in the East

The itinerary of the Lawrence college debate team has been worked out, providing for nine debates during the three weeks trip. The team, consisting of William Morton, Robert Beggs, Edwin West, and Marcus Plant, will leave Appleton on March 22 in Prof. A. L. Franzke's car. It will meet the teams of Purdue University, Dennison University, Roanoke College, American University, Rutgers College, New York University, Union College, and Bates College. The compulsory insurance question will be argued. The team will return to Appleton April 12.

May Extend Time For Buying Auto Licenses

Extension of the time for 1931 automobile registration in Wisconsin probably will be extended until May 1. Both houses of the legislature put through a bill Thursday to extend the time for purchasing 1931 licenses. The measure now awaits the governor's signature to make it a law, and this is expected sometime today. The measure must be signed by Governor La Follette before Saturday to be effective for that date is the deadline under the present law for obtaining license plates. An affidavit of inability to pay must be made by the applicant, according to the terms of the bill.

According to figures in the automobile license bureau, only 280,000 applications have been received while approximately 700,000 automobiles must be registered in the state. This number is far below the usual applications received at this time.

Appoint Labor Group to Unemployment Committee

A committee of the Trades and Labor Council was appointed at a meeting of that organization Wednesday night to attend a meeting of the Citizen's Unemployment committee which will meet at the Vocational school this evening. The council recently submitted a resolution to the common council asking that local labor be employed on all construction work in the city, which was referred to the city attorney and ordinance committee. The labor council believes the execution of this plan will assist materially in the relief of unemployment here.

Samuel Sigman, who represents the labor council on the citizen's committee which is working with the board of education in solving the high school problem, reported on the activities of that committee at the Wednesday evening meeting. M. J. Blied gave a report on the meeting of the state federation's legislative conference at Madison recently.

175 Prospect Cards Still Out in Boy Scout Drive

Though the intensive drive for the $6,500 fund with which to carry on Boy Scout in Appleton was closed Thursday evening, the campaign has not been closed. It was reported at scout headquarters this morning that at least 175 prospect cards are still to be reported on and that owing to absence from the city of many of these persons, a week or ten days will be required before a final check can be given. Approximately $4,500 had been secured Thursday evening. The two man team composed of F. N. Belanger and M. G. Clark, which challenged any other team in the drive to exceed its record, still stood at the top of the list Thursday with $730 to its credit. Ten teams participated in the campaign, under the general direction of Herb Heilig.

The board of directors of the chamber of commerce held a special meeting at the chamber offices at 4:30 this afternoon. Membership prospects were discussed.

C. R. Meyer Construction company of Oshkosh submitted the lowest bid on the construction of the new Lawe street bridge spanning the Fox river at Kaukauna, according to information from the office of the divisional highway engineer at Green Bay. Its bid was $207,825 and specified completion of the work in 240 working days. Stephens Brothers of St. Paul entered a bid of $211,854.36 and specified completion in 200 working days. A bridge 36 feet wide, with two six foot sidewalks has been planned.

Appleton Men Seem To Think So—Insurance Agents are Quite Generally Opposed to The Idea. Review Presents Both Sides of Question

Do you carry insurance on your car? That is usually the first question asked by both parties after the smash-up if they are in sound enough physical condition to be asking any questions at all. If they are not an ambulance is summoned and the victims are taken to the hospitals, but the question of insurance to cover the injuries to both persons and cars pops up very soon. As frequently the case with the person who is the negligent driver and therefore responsible for the accident, he carries no liability insurance whatever and is himself unable to pay any damages even though a judgment in court is entered against him. Therefore the careful driver who is killed, injured or whose car is badly damaged has no recourse and can recover nothing for somebody else's carelessness.

This general condition of affairs has led to much talk and discussion about compulsory automobile insurance for the state of Wisconsin and other states. There have been numerous arguments for and against compulsory insurance, the principal protests against such a law coming from the insurance men themselves. This may seem a strange situation at first glance because it is apparent to everyone that a state law compelling every Wisconsin car owner to carry insurance would greatly increase the business of the underwriters, in fact it would more than double this business of writing automobile liability.

It may be surprising to learn that only about 35 or 40 per cent of Wisconsin automobile owners carry liability insurance. But the insurance men contend that a great share of this business which they don't get is business they don't want because of the many poor risks involved. It is for the most part the irresponsible, reckless and careless drivers, the moonshiners, bootleggers, and lawless element who do not carry insurance, they contend. Most of this class of people do not apply for automobile insurance, and most of them would not get it if they did because they are poor risks and generally irresponsible.

Statistics show that there were 31,000 people killed, about 1,000,000 hurt and $850,000,000 worth of damages from auto accidents in the United States in 1929. This death toll of 31,000 exceeds the number of American soldiers slain in the World war. The number of people killed and injured in motor accidents is far greater than the losses sustained in industry, but the losses in industrial pursuits were considered great enough several years ago to bring about compulsory workmen's compensation insurance. This is one of the greatest arguments advanced for compulsory automobile insurance. The number of persons killed in motor accidents in Outagamie in 1930 was 24, placing this county seventh in the state in this respect.

There is at the present time a certain amount of compulsory automobile insurance in the state of Wisconsin. All busses or motor vehicles carrying persons for hire must be bonded or provide other means of payment for injuries resulting from the careless and negligent operation of such conveyances. A law enacted in 1929 provides that rent-a-car companies must also carry insurance for the protection of their customers. These two classes of vehicles must be insured, but privately owned cars and trucks do not have to be underwritten.

Only one state, Massachusetts, has adopted compulsory automobile insurance, although the matter has come before the legislatures of some 38 states. An argument advanced by opponents of the plan is that the law has not been a success in Massachusetts and that in the first year of its operation it wrecked six Massachusetts mutual automobile insurance companies and one stock company. It is said that many of the larger companies formerly writing insurance in that state have withdrawn. The Massachusetts law does not attempt to give protection except for accidents happening on the public highway. It disregards accidents on private alleys, private right-of-ways and in garages. Pointing to further weaknesses of the Massachusetts law, insurance men say it has resulted in the clogging of the courts so it is difficult to promptly dispose of cases, which have increased in number due to fictitious and trivial claims. It also resulted in a bitter fight between the urban and rural districts over the question of rates. It is claimed that if a law was enacted here providing the compulsory plan, a resident of the city of Milwaukee would react in exactly the same way as in the city of Boston where the date went up to $136,00 for a car while in Northampton, Mass., the insured was paying $25 for the same class of car. This regional rate was put into effect for the reason that there are more risks and hazards in the densely populated sections than in the rural areas. However, if a flat rate is charged the man in the sparsely settled districts will be paying for the losses incurred in the large city. In either case some one complains. In the first instance it is the city man, in the second instance the farmer.

Proponents of compulsory insurance argue that insurance companies have long been in the business of classifying risks and that it should not be any difficult task to so fix the rates that the poor risk, the irresponsible person, will have to pay a much higher rate than the careful driver. They further contend that people who have shown in the past that they are absolutely negligent and have been in accidents where they showed no consideration of the safety of others should not be allowed to drive a car. Risks are classified into many divisions in workmen's compensation insurance. The hazardous risk like the employer engaged in the business of structural iron work, pays much more than the lawyer employing clerks. The heavy cars will have a greater premium than the lighter ones. In Connecticut those who have had accidents in which they have been at fault are obliged to pay more for their liability insurance.

A decrease in the number of auto accidents should be another result from compulsory insurance, its supporters claim. They again point to the workmen's compensation act as an example to back up this statement. Since this act became effective all of the insurance companies writing compensation coverage have put on far reaching and elaborate safety campaigns which have borne much fruit, if one is to judge by the few accidents in industry today as compared with the number ten and fifteen years ago. The insurance organizations are continually preaching safety—safety—safety to workmen and are getting out tons of literature, folders and posters every week carrying this gospel. Leaders in the movement for compulsory insurance maintain that the same kind of a campaign could and would be worked on motorists with a notable decrease in the number of accidents.

It is contended the twofold purpose of insurance is to indemnify the owner against money he may have to pay for damages for which he was not responsible and to create a fund from which to compensate the injured. Those who favor the plan argue that it is quite necessary to protect the public against any accident with an automobile. The loss is the same to an unfortunate victim whether that loss was caused by the carelessness of a reputable gentleman or through the recklessness of a disreputable moonshiner or drunkard.

Appleton men seem to be quite generally favorable to compulsory automobile insurance with the exception of the insurance men. A few of their opinions are expressed here:

Henry W. Tuttrup, president, Citizens National Bank—"I am heartily in favor of compulsory automobile insurance. Those people who have shown by their past performances that they are careless and irresponsible about driving a car and consequently poor risks should not be allowed to drive. They are a menace to safety and should not be given a license."

Charles H. Huesemann, insurance—"I am very much opposed to compulsory insurance. We would have to write up a great many people who are very poor risks and whom we do not wish to issue insurance to. The plan of compulsory insurance on automobiles has been tried in only one state, Massachusetts, and experience shows that it is a failure there. If drunken drivers, bootleggers and other irresponsibles of this kind would be put in jail for a few months instead of being let off with a ten dollar or a fifty dollar fine we would get a whole lot farther in reducing the number of accidents than by adopting compulsory insurance."

George Nolting, manager, S. S. Kresge and Co. store—"I believe compulsory insurance would be a wonderful thing. If it were adopted everyone would be assured of some protection. I was lucky in the only accident which ever happened to my car. There was considerable damage done but fortunately the other fellow had insurance. If he had not been insured I would have had a tough time collecting any damages because he had hardly a dime to his name."

Raymond P. Dohr, attorney—"There are, of course, two sides to this question of compulsory insurance and both of them present well developed arguments. Looking at the matter in an abstract way it would seem as though insurance for everybody would be advisable for the complete protection of the traveling public. On the other hand the insurance men object strenuously to the idea because it may force them to take risks which they should not be compelled to assume."

Phillip Vogt, Sixth ward alderman—"I believe that compulsory automobile insurance would be a fine thing for all of us. Why should some irresponsible person be allowed to drive about the streets in a fifteen or twenty-five dollar wreck of a car he has picked up at this low cost, threatening the safety of everyone and with absolutely no insurance to protect the welfare of the careful motorist or the pedestrian. It is these irresponsible people who cause most of the serious accidents, yet most of them get off scott free because they have no insurance and no money with which to pay damages."

T. H. Ryan, attorney—"I believe most heartily in a compulsory insurance plan. Insurance men would not have to underwrite those people who are known to be irresponsible and very poor risks, or if they did write them it could be at a very high rate. Some such people should not be allowed to drive a car. I know that compulsory insurance will not be a complete solution to our motor accident problem but it will be a great help along these lines. It is a great injustice when a respectable citizen carrying liability insurance suffers either damage to his person or his car through the negligence of some hit or miss driver running a cheap car and having no insurance protection and no money."

Name Committee Chairmen For Dedication Ceremony

Practically the entire membership of Appleton Lions club will be utilized in conducting the vast dedicatory ceremonies on Monday afternoon, May 18, when the tablet marking the site of the famous Treaty of the Cedars is unveiled. Chairmen were appointed at a meeting of the general committee Thursday evening at the home of Dr. J. A. Holmes, general chairman.

Those placed in charge are: Reception of visitors and appointment of "minute men," J. R. Whitman; program, W. E. Smith and F. B. Younger; main speaker and publicity, John R. Riedl; music, J. N. Fischer; invitations, Erik L. Madisen; parking, M. G. Clark; stage, Elmer Root; decorations, George Johnson; erection of stone for marker, W. H. Falatic. Dr. Holmes was chosen to preside at the ceremonies.

Permission will be asked of the highway commission to close U. H. Highway 41 between Kimberly and Little Chute during the ceremonies and detour traffic on the south side of the river. Arrangements will be made for the parking of 2,000 automobiles adjacent to the scene of the ceremonies. The marker is to be erected to the left of Highway 41 on the former right-of-way of the interurban lines, where it can be seen plainly from all directions.

It is the plan of the committee to have Gov. Philip La Follette as the speaker if he is able to leave Madison at that time, otherwise some government official. The Menominee Indians also will be invited to take part in the unveiling. Mrs. Louise Phelps Kellogg, of the Wisconsin Historical society, is expected to present briefly the history of the signing of the treaty by which the Menominees ceded 4,000,000 acres of land in northeastern Wisconsin to the white people.

The Lions club also is arranging to enter 35 players from Appleton high school band in a tournament at the state Lions convention at Oshkosh, May 18 and 19, following action of the board of directors at a meeting Tuesday evening. If the band is victorious, it will enjoy a free trip to the convention of Lions International at Toronto.

A joint meeting of Boy Scout troops No. 4, American Legion, and All Saints Episcopal church, No. 16, was held at the armory Thursday evening. Plans were discussed for a demonstration to be presented at a meeting of the Masonic lodge on March 27. A program of games and stunts followed the business meeting.

Sentence of Clausen, Nash and Brooks Postponed

Sentence of the three men, William Clausen, 28, formerly proprietor of the Log Cabin Inn, Stephen Nash, 22, Chicago, and John E. Brooks, Chicago, found guilty of being accessories after the fact in connection with the robbery at the Bank of Freedom on the morning of February 18, was deferred until Monday morning at 9 o'clock owing to the illness of one of the attorneys, L. Hugo Keller. The trio was to have been sentenced in municipal court this morning.

Clausen, 28, was found guilty of being an accessory after the fact by a jury in municipal court Wednesday morning. Three charges were held against him, bank robbery, accessory before the fact, and accessory after the fact. The first two were dismissed on motion of the state, and Clausen was convicted on the third count.

Nash and Brooks entered pleas of guilty of being accessories after the fact shortly after the opening of the trial in municipal court Monday morning. The charges of bank robbery and accessory before the fact, also lodged against these two, were dropped when the plea was entered on the third count.

Two minors, Arthur Krueger, 17, and Frank Goretz, 15, were tried in juvenile court and sentence in their case was also held over until the case against the other three had been disposed of. The sixth member of the group, Theodore Krueger, pleaded guilty to a charge of bank robbery and was sentenced to from 20 to 30 years in state's prison at Waupun. He has already commenced serving his term.

The Krueger brothers entered the bank and forced the cashier to back up against the wall while they scooped up $964, all but $100 of which has been recovered. Goretz drove the bandit car. Nash and Brooks were picked up by Appleton police, in the bandit car, near the outskirts of Appleton, and were alleged to have taken over the car at the Log Cabin Inn to throw the officers off the trail. Clausen was charged with knowledge and concealing the robbers.

Two Have Applied For 1931 C. M. T. C. Camp

Andrew Heinemann of Appleton and Ray Shelfout of Kimberly are the first applicants in Outagamie county for the 1931 Citizens Military Training camp, according to Raymond P. Dohr, county chairman for the C. M. T. C. The quota for Outagamie county this year is 26, one more than last year.

The Outagamie county boys will go to the camp at Fort Snelling, St. Paul, Minn. The camp period is from July 31 to August 29. All expenses such as transportation back and forth from camp, food, clothes and so forth are paid by the government.

The camps are becoming more popular each year with young men from all over the nation, according to Mr. Dohr. The activities consist in the main of military training in the mornings, athletics in the afternoon and such entertainments as motion pictures, concerts, dramatics and other amusements in the evenings.

To alternate two pairs of shoes is more economical than to wear one pair continuously.

YOUR VOTE IS IMPORTANT TUESDAY

If every voter in Appleton will remember that there is an intimate relation between voting and the amounts he pays out in taxes, he will preform his civic duty at the primaries next Tuesday from selfish motives if not from the standpoint of good citizenship.

Elections draw a large vote of a representative and decisive character when there are issues that flame the passion of factionalism, or when there is a choice of major officials for city, state and nation. When it is a matter of choosing a few aldermen and supervisors, little attention is paid.

Whether we pay heavy or light taxes depends to a large extent on the common council and the county board. On their decisions rests the amount of money spent for public improvements and for operation of our municipal system. How important it is, therefore, for us to place in office as our ward representatives men of ability, sound judgment and conservatism. If we neglect to express our choice after careful consideration of the candidates, we have no right to criticize afterward the kind of administration they give us.

Every voter should be out Tuesday as evidence that we are vitally interested in the administration of municipal affairs.

A STEP TO OBTAIN INDUSTRIES HERE

Industrial impairment in Appleton by the withdrawal or discontinuance of two employing concerns, and the possible removal of a third, has brought to the forefront the need of the proper type of promotion to replace these institutions and add others. There must be a constant gain if Appleton is to keep pace.

Our neighbors in Neenah have furnished an idea Appleton might well adopt. The people are voting on a referendum in April giving the council authority to appropriate a sum annually, not exceeding $2,000, to be used for commercial and industrial development. The money may or may not be spent, in the discretion of the council.

This editorial comment from The Daily News-Times is applicable to Appleton as well: "Encouragement of the location of manufacturing, industrial and commercial plants in this city is a sound and progressive civic activity. The success of such encouragement results in increased population, taxable property and prosperity. To aid in such a program is properly the function of city administration. Many municipalities empower their councils to appropriate a reasonable sum to be used in aiding in locating new industries and business, and the results have amply justified the appropriation."

If the business men and citizens here are in favor of such a step, a petition requesting a referendum will be honored by the council and a vote ordered in the local election. It is merely an enabling act so expenditures of this kind will be legal if the council sees fit to make them.

THE MONOPOLY BOTTLES UP MORE ADVERTISING

There is no such principle as "live and let live" among the several daily newspaper monopolies in Wisconsin, including Appleton. Through their influences over those who serve in the state legislature they have in the past obtained passage of laws which are purely class legislation, and feeders for the coffers of these already rich newspapers.

Now comes another bill, No. 396-A, introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Emil Meyer with further designs of a pecuniary nature. It prevents any newspaper from publishing legal notices of any kind, or any official proceedings of municipal governing bodies unless the paper has been in existence two years, has second class mailing privileges granted by the postoffice department and a circulation that does not drop below a stated minimum depending on the size of the city.

This bill is aimed squarely at Appleton Review, and aims to deprive this paper of the legal advertising carried in its columns for a number of months. When the first legal notice appeared in its columns, pressure was brought to bear on the advertiser by representatives of The Appleton Post-Crescent with the argument that such publication was illegal. An opinion rendered by the attorney general gave approval to such advertisements in Appleton Review and they have been appearing since.

Defeated in these efforts, The Post-Crescent has carried the matter to the legislature through the Wisconsin Daily Newspaper League, made up of the newspaper monopolies in all of the larger cities in Wisconsin outside of Milwaukee. Appleton is the only city where this situation has arisen, so far as we can determine, and led to the discovery that the law now existing was not air tight for all publications but the monopoly.

Appleton Review is an established medium with many paid subscribers reading its columns regularly each week. It is as legitimate an advertising medium as any other and is entitled to such advertising as its patrons choose to insert there. A law of this kind actually deprives it of deserving revenues simply to further the monopolistic idea and make the competing daily more secure against competition. The law also deprives attorneys and others from their own choice as to where they would like to place their business.

Such laws should not be enacted. Our assemblymen and senators should see through this game and refuse to pass a bill of such a wholly selfish nature.

WIDEN WASHINGTON STREET

Since the installation of six "stop and go" lights on College Ave., it will be observed that Washington St. has become extremely busy. Drivers who find the kangaroo system of driving (a jump at a time) too slow are avoiding the controlled artery in favor of one where there is free progress.

Washington St. is coming into importance in another way. The new postoffice building will be at one of its upper corners. The Wisconsin Telephone Company has put up a building as part of a big expansion program for the local plant. A new newspaper building is scheduled for another important corner, and construction of a new taxicab and storage garage also is contemplated.

All of these factors contribute to the traffic congestion imminent on this street. Already the council has found it necessary to restrict parking to two hours in the principal blocks.

Why is it not wise, then, for the common council to consider widening of the street? The time is opportune now before these buildings are erected. Later this step will be impossible to consider. Some of the buildings already are set back a distance from the sidewalk, so the project would not prove too costly.

Immediate consideration is needed, and we urge the council to exercise foresight to the extent of determining what the future needs will demand.

GEORGE THOM HAS PASSED ON

Not in the limelight, not ostentatious, yet a business man linked up with Appleton's progress and the possessor of many friends . . . that was George Thom, whose sudden passing occurred this week.

Friends galore will mourn his death, including alumni of Lawrence college scattered over the globe. Through long daily hours he served his public with its reading matter and reached the day when he made a substantial contribution to Appleton's advance in the erection of an attractive business block. Just last week a frame building formerly occupied by his business was razed, no doubt with the intention of building there another structure to improve College avenue.

In his quiet way, George Thom built memories that will last, and it is regrettable that his passing was so sudden.

John E. Hantschel, county clerk, and Thomas H. Ryan, supervisor in charge of securing a clear title to the courthouse property, on Tuesday drew up quit claim deeds for all but one of the nineteen heirs to the A. B. The claims are being settled for $833.33, and represent one-third of the five-sixth interest in the property the county is endeavoring to obtain on a clear title. The other sixth interest lies east of Elm street and heirs holding the interest are not desirous of settling with the county. The county is not particularly interesting in clearing the title to this particular strip.

Frederick M. Snyder addressed about 450 factory employees at the last meeting of the Appleton Safety school at the Conway hotel Wednesday evening. His subject was "Keeping Ahead of the Headlines" and in his talk he told his audience that safety measures rob newspapers of many sensational stories. He mentioned several three lettered words—gun, war, gas, and flu—as the cause for many accidents, and consequently newspaper items. "It is as easy to be safe as careless," he said in concluding his talk.

Vaudeville Program Honors Memory of Irish Saint

The anniversary of St. Patrick will be fittingly observed by the congregation of St. Mary church Tuesday evening when an Irish program will be presented at Columbia hall. Talent has been chosen from the entire city with the result that an interesting vaudeville program has been arranged. J. Martin VanRooy and R. M. Connelly are making the arrangements for the program, which includes group singing by the children of St. Mary school; the Schneider family orchestra, a piano number by Mildred Miron and Lucille Newland; dance by Dolores Tustison; Vilas Gehin in a piano act; J. Martin VanRooy and R. M. Connelly in song numbers; novelty act by Beatrice Bosser and Betsy Rosenbohm entitled "Shine on Harvest Moon"; xylophone act by Clarence Meltz; solo by Myrtle Farrell; "Moonshine" skit by J. F. Bannister and J. Martin VanRooy; Byron Seroogy in dance numbers; Mary Barto in a solo dance; Donna Herman, Theresa Roller, Esther Sorenson, Mary Barto and Beatrice Bosser in "Sing Sinners Sing."

An old time fiddlers contest, for which prizes have been donated, will be another feature of the entertainment.

Parties

Miss Dorothy Belling, whose marriage will take place April 2, was guest of honor at a party at the home of Miss Viola Weber, North street, Wednesday evening. Bridge was played and prizes awarded to Miss Belling and Miss Madelyn Bandoli.

Many reservations have been received for the card party and style show sponsored by the Appleton Woman's club at the Conway hotel Saturday afternoon. Music will be furnished by Tom Temple's orchestra. Mrs. E. V. Werner, Miss Viola Behling, Mrs. Roy Hauert, and Mrs. K. M. Bard will pour. Mrs. Paul Hackbert and Mrs. Bert Dutcher will have charge of tickets.

Eighteen tables were in play at the card party given by the Knights of Pythias at Castle hall Tuesday evening. Joseph Kox, Mrs. Eugene Harris, and Dr. L. H. Dillon won prizes at progressive bridge, Mrs. Clarence Zelig won the prize at pivot bridge, and William Eschner, Mrs. Roy Zuehlke, and Miss Anna Bohm won prizes at schafkopf.

Women of Mooseheart Legion held a card party at Moose hall Tuesday afternoon, at which there were three tables in play. Mrs. Edward Ward won the prize at bridge and Mrs. Martin Lueders was awarded the schafkopf prize.

The all-college informal will be held at the new Alexander gymnasium Saturday evening. Music will be furnished by Tom Temple's orchestra. Charles Barnes and Paul Kozelka are chairmen of arrangements committees.

Wisconsin Egg Production is Highest in History

With the present mild winter, egg production in Wisconsin has reached a new high level for the season. A new high record in production on the farms of crop reporters was made each month of the present winter. During December, January, and February the reported production was over three times as high as it was during the same months six or seven years ago. Just as the dairymen have gone more and more to winter milking so the poultrymen seem to be adopting winter egg production. According to the records of the Crop Reporting Service of the Wisconsin and United States Department of Agriculture at Madison, the winter egg production has steadily increased in recent years, and the past winter with its favorable weather marks the highest point so far reached.

Along with the generally high egg production, prices received by farmers have been the lowest for any February since the records are kept, which is over twenty years. The average Wisconsin farm price of eggs during February was 13 cents per dozen. This is only 52 per cent of the five-year average from 1910 to 1914, which is ordinarily looked upon as a pre-war base.

According to the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, two factors have contributed to the lower egg prices this year, namely, the larger storage stocks which the trade has been endeavoring to move, and a larger supply of current receipts or eggs of fresh production. The latter supply, since the first of January to date at the four markets—Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago—has been about 20 per cent larger than last year. The number of layers in farm flocks on February 1 was reported to be 87.9 birds as compared with 89.7 birds last year on the same date. This is a decrease of nearly two birds per farm flock. However, the smaller number of hens per farm flock layed an average of 23.9 eggs per flock as compared with 18.5 eggs per flock last year and as compared with a five-year average of 19.1 eggs per farm flock. Although the number of hens in farm flocks is less this year than last, the open weather and other favorable conditions have resulted in a larger production of eggs per farm flock.

One encouraging factor in the present egg situation is the very heavy consumption of eggs. The trade output or disappearance of visible egg stocks into consumptive channels during the first eighteen days of February at the four important markets is estimated to have been about forty per cent more than during the same period last year. Retail egg prices have closely followed the lower wholesale prices and the consuming public has reacted to these prices by greatly increased purchases of eggs. If this increased rate of consumption can be maintained it will be one of the bright spots which should help greatly in improving the egg price situation as the season advances.

Knowing Our Children Better

By

Edith D. Dixon

Play Time For The Child

Have you a child who never knows what to do when left to his own devices for an hour or an afternoon? The boy who has not always a fascinating and absorbing play to carry out when opportunity offers is the boy whose initiative and resourcefulness are not being developed through play.

In this day of movies, concerts, and theatres for children, together with opportunities afforded the average child for music and dancing lessons, we are in danger of crowding out the normal play-time for children.

Every child needs time that is all his own to do with as he pleases. No amount of planning for him, no matter how educative the activities may be, is a substitute for exercising his own choice and carrying out his own ideas. It is only by making his own plans that he can develop the initiative and resourcefulness essential for the valuable use of leisure time in later life.

Many persons do not realize the importance of leaving children some time each day to do as they please, yet what adult would feel that he had a satisfying existence if all his time was directed by others?

In their early years children are alert to new interests; they are curious about everything going on about them. The range of their questions is as wide as the world itself. If these interests were allowed to grow through exercise, we should have fewer bored adults. Too often the interests of the child are squelched by elders and the child grows indifferent and apathetic.

It is essential that the child should be given sufficient time to play in the open with playmates of his own age, time to read good books, and time to make things with his hands. This means a place to work undisturbed, where disorder will not interfere with the household, and where, above all, there is an interested and sympathetic attitude in the part of adults. Often children's interests are discouraged because the grown-ups see no value in what the child wants to do. An example of this was found with the boy who saved money for a picture machine, but his parents refused to let him buy it because they considered it a waste of money.

We need to realize that many of these seemingly and to us rather trivial interests have their place in building up a rich background for later life. That out of this wide variety of interest may develop one or two life-long enthusiasms. Who has not known the man at 50 who, deprived of business through retirement or ill-health, is totally at a loss for want of some interest?

The more fully we develop the child's own resources the more surely we are protecting that child against middle age boredom and over-dependence upon outside stimulation.

The Plains of Abraham

A Masterpiece of Fiction by James Oliver Curwood

INSTALLMENT XXI

"Only God could have directed me after that," she said, "for I was so desperate that I scarcely know how events shaped themselves as they did. I feared what your action might be when you returned and found your uncle had been blinded and killed, and not until I entered Ah De Bah's tepee did it strike me as an answer to my prayers that a hunting knife should be dangling by its cord in the opening. With this knife I freed Hepsibah and cut a hole in the skin tent through which we crept to the canoes, after I had given Wood Pigeon my message to you. When we were pursued and overtaken my hope died, but the depth of my despair was no greater than the joyous shock which overcame me when I heard Tiago's voice telling us not to be afraid but to go ashore quietly and that no harm would befall us. Shindas explained what they were about to do, for as soon as we were ashore, Tiago went off alone into the darkness. He told us that three days before reaching Chenufsio they had learned, through facts which Hepsibah related, that their prisoner, already blinded, was your uncle and my own dear friend. It was too late for them to save him, for the warriors were in bad humor and demanded the sacrifice at the stake of the one who had killed several of their number. Shindas came ahead so you would not be in the village when the prisoner arrived. As Shindas talked to us I learned that hearts as kind as any in this world beat in savage breasts, for these three men had turned traitors to the Senecas that we might live. In the light of a torch, Shindas disclosed a long braid of hair which looked horridly like my own, and drenched its scalp in fresh blood which he drew from his breast. It was a scalp Tiaoga had taken from a French Indian he had killed, and I turned faint when I saw it gleaming in the flare of the pitch pine. Then Hepsibah and I went on in the canoe. Hours later, Sindas rejoined us and said that Tiatoga had danced with the scalp before his people and that they believed we were dead. Shindas stayed with us until we came upon French soldiers near Fort Frontenac, and each day I dressed the wound in his breast."

She paused, as if revisioning what had passed, then said:

"There were a few moments with Tiaoga—alone—that night we stood on the shore, while Shindas took the blood from his wound. God must have made Tiaoga love me, Jeems, almost as he had loved the one whose place I had taken. When I found him, he was so cold and still in the darkness that he might have been stone instead of flesh. But he promised to make it possible for you to come to me as soon as he could do so without arousing the suspicions of his people. And then he touched me for the first time as he must have caressed Silver Heels. He held my braid in his hand and spoke her name in a way I had never heard him speak it before. I kissed him. I put my arms around his neck and kissed him, and it seemed that even my lips touched stone. Yet he loved me, and because of that I have wondered—through all these years—why he did not send you to me."

Jeems could not tell her it was because he had killed Tiaoga.

As the melody of the bell had fallen like a benediction over the Plains of Abraham, so peace and happiness followed in the footsteps of the conquerors of New France. At the stroke of a pen, half a continent changed hands, and from the pulpits of the Canadas as well as from those of the English colonies voices were raised in gratitude to God that the conflict was ended. Even the beaten rejoiced, for during the months of its final agony the heart of the nation had been sapped by corruption and dishonesty until faith had crumbled in men's souls and British presence came to be regarded as a guarantee of liberty and not as the calamity of defeat. "At last there is an end to war on this continent," preached Thomas Foxcroft, pastor of the Old church in Boston, for like a million others of his countrymen he did not foresee the still greater conflict for American independence less than fifteen years ahead. And the echo was repeated—"At last there is an end to war." Again the sun was golden in its promise. Men called the days their own, the frontiers slumbered, the most vengeful of the savages retreated to their fastnesses, women sang and children played with new visions in their eyes. These were the days of a nation's birth, when the Briton mingled with those whom he had defeated, and transformed New France into Canada.

In the spring of 1761 Jeems returned to the Richelieu. Madame Tonteur, her spirit subdued and her malice chastened, placed into his hands and those of her daughter the broad domain of Tonteur manor, which it was her desire never to see again. That the home of their future was to be built amid the scenes of a tragedy which had brought them together, and where they would feel the presence of loved ones who had found happiness there as well as death, brought to Toinette and Jeems a joy which only they could understand. For the charred ruins of Tonteur manor and of Forbidden valley were home, even to Hepsibah Adams; and when Jeems reached the hallowed ground he had left five years before, he wrote Toinette, who waited in Quebec, telling her how the hills smiled their welcome, how green the abandoned meadows were, and that everywhere flowers had come to bless the solitude and the resting places of their dead. Then he set to work with the men who had come with him, and in the golden flush of September he went for Toinette and his boy. A haze of smoke drifted once more from the chimneys of cottages in the valley lands, and with another summer the lowing of cattle and the bleating of sheep rose at evening time, and the old mill wheel turned again, and often Toinette rode beside Jeems toward Forbidden valley, sometimes with her hair in curls, with a ribbon streaming from them.

It was in this second year, when the chestnut burrs were green on the ridges, that strangers came down the trail from Tonteur hill one evening, two men and a woman and a girl. The men were Senecas, and the miller, who met them first, eyed them with suspicion as well as wonder, for while the girl was pretty and the woman white, the men who accompanied them were fierce and tall and marked by battle. They were also extremely proud, and passed the miller without heeding his command to make themselves known, stalking to the front of the big house, followed by the woman and the girl, where Toinette saw them and gave such a cry that the miller ran back for his gun. In this way Tiaoga came to Tonteur manor to show Jeems the scar his arrow had made, and with him were Wood Pigeon and Shindas and Mary Daghlen. For many years after this, until he was killed in the frontier fighting which preceded the American war for independence, Tiaoga returned often to the valley of the Richelieu, and as time went on, the pack of soft skins and bright feathers he brought with him grew larger, for another boy was given to Toinette, and then a girl, so that, with three children always watching and hoping for his arrival, the warrior was kept busy accumulating treasures for them. Once each year Mary and Shindas visited Tonteur manor, and with them came their children when they grew old enough to travel through the wilderness. Wood Pigeon did not return to Chenufsio. Tokana, her crippled father, had given up his valiant struggle the preceding winter and had died. She lived with Toinette and Jeems until she was nineteen, when she married a young French landowner named DePoncey.

From one of a sheaf of yellow letters may be read these lines, dated June 14, 1767, written to Nancy Lotbiniere-Gagnon by Marie Antoinette Bulain.

"My Own Dear Nancy:

"Sadness has fallen over us here at Tonteur manor. Odd is dead. I no longer have a doubt that God has given souls to the beasts, for wherever we look we miss him, and a fortnight has passed since we buried him close to the chapel yard. It is like missing a child who loved us, or, more than that, one who guarded us as he loved. Even last night little Marie Antoinette sobbed herself to sleep because he cannot come when she calls him. I cannot keep tears from my own eyes when I think of him, and even Jeems, strong as he is, turns from me when we pass the chapel yard, ashamed of what I might see in his face. Odd was all we had left to us of other days—he and Hepsibah. And it is Hepsibah for whom my heart aches most. For years dear old Odd has guided him in his blindness, with a cord attached to his neck, and I believe they knew how to talk to each other.

"Hepsibah now sits alone so much, keeping away from others, and every evening we see him groping about the gate to the chapel yard as if hoping to find some one there. Oh, what a terrible thing is death, which reads us all with its grief in time! But I must not moralize or unburden my gloom or you will wish I had remained silent another month.

"It is a glorious June here. The roses . . ."

One wonders if the misty spots on the yellow page are tears.

Items of Interest

The fire department was called twice to the residence of Dr. Hans John Thursday evening to put out a fire caused by an overheated stove pipe too close to the ceiling. The first call came about 5:30. Afterwards the flames broke out again at 8:15 and the department was summoned the second time. The damage is estimated at about $500.

The names of John W. Reynolds, Chester A. Fowler, and George L. Mensing will appear on the ballots at the April 7 election as candidates for supreme court justice, according to official information given to County Clerk John Hantschel by the secretary of state Thursday. Reynolds is at present attorney general and Fowler is the incumbent justice. Mensing is a new candidate. He is from Milwaukee.

Conway Favors Combination City Hall and Courthouse Building

A building to house both the county courthouse and the city hall should be constructed here at some future time when the load of excessive taxation and unemployment is relieved, in the opinion of John Conway, proprietor of the Conway Hotel. Mr. Conway maintains that absolutely no large construction program should be undertaken at a time like this when many people are out of work and when many farmers are trying to sell their property because they are not able to even meet their taxes.

He does, however, believe that when the right time arrives for a building program it should include the city and the county governments. Mr. Conway recently spent sometime in Phoenix, Arizona and tells of the beautiful new combination courthouse and city hall building which was recently completed there. This structure cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, he said, and will serve the city and county adequately for a great many years to come. It is a three story structure of pleasing architectural design with the city offices on one side and the county departments on the other. The jail is also included in the same building. Phoenix is a city of about 40,000 people.

In speaking of conditions in Appleton and Outagamie county which are unfavorable to putting up large public buildings at the present time Mr. Conway mentioned the fact that probably upwards of 200 farms are for sale in this county because the farmer under his present burdens of taxation and low prices paid for his products cannot possibly make a success of farming. Many farms, he said, are selling for one-half their true value or even less.

Speaking of the problems of the city man at the present time Mr. Conway mentioned the many employees who are now completely out of work or who are working only three or four days a week. He mentioned the fact that several Appleton manufacturing concerns had either closed their doors permanently and quit or had moved to some other location. The tax formerly borne by these manufacturers must necessarily be shifted to resident taxpayers, he added. "With taxes at the present time equal to rent in numerous instances and with the additional burdens of insurance on the home and expenses of upkeep many residents of the city are having a hard time to make both ends meet," said Mr. Conway. "It doesn't look to me like a good time to start a million dollar program of building for the county or city."

In further discussion of a combination courthouse and city hall structure Mr. Conway mentioned the fact that the citizens of Appleton would have to pay more than half the costs of the new courthouse through taxation and therefore might as well get something from their investment by utilizing the same building for the city government. He estimated that such a structure for Appleton and the county would cost in the neighborhood of $750,000, based on the estimates of architects who submitted a proposition recently for a combination courthouse and jail. It was learned from these estimates that a new courthouse constructed so that it would be adequate for at least fifty years would cost in the neighborhood of $550,000. Another $200,000 or $250,000 would make very beautiful and satisfactory provisions for city offices.

When questioned about the site of such a building Mr. Conway stated he thought the present courthouse site would be adequate for a combination city and county building. Many people think that just because the courthouse is up in a residence section it is situated in an out-of-the-way location, he said. The fact is the building is only three short blocks from the very center of town and in the very heart of the city. Further than this, the present site is a splendid setting for a large municipal building because no other business buildings nearby will detract from its appearance.

Although several cities and counties in the far western cities have adopted the idea of a combination courthouse and city government building, the idea has not been given much consideration in this section of the country. If Appleton was to erect such a structure she would be the first community in the state of Wisconsin to construct such a building. Such a plan is feasible only in the smaller cities. In a large municipality such as Milwaukee, a building which would house both county and city government would be so mammoth that it would extend over several city blocks. But in a smaller city the overhead of upkeep for maintaining one building for both governments would be materially lower than for the upkeep of two structures. The reasons for such savings are, of course, apparent. The amount of money saved in fuel costs alone would amount to almost one thousand dollars.

Legion Boxing Matches Please Large Crowd

Billy Hundermark, Green Bay scrapper in the 140 pound class outpointed Hans Ahl, well known Oshkosh fighter, in the wind-up bout of the Oney Johnston post amateur card Thursday evening in Armory G. The Ahl-Hundermark bout came as a sort of an anti-climax to the preceding five fights which were more lively and exciting than the wind-up. Hundermark and Ahl spent most of the first two rounds sparring and shadow boxing and seemed unwilling to mix it despite the cries of the large crowd of about four hundred fans to "get in there and fight." However, the aggressor was Hundermark, especially in the third round and he deserved the decision.

The other bouts showed the fans plenty of action. Art West of Appleton scored the only knock-out on the evening's program when he polished off Howie Robinson of Oshkosh in the 135 pound class before the end of the first round. A lively exchange of blows preceded the K.O. punch. Robinson took the count and had to be assisted from the ring. The evening's program opened with three rounds between Andy Engstrom, a Lawrence student, and Bob Carnes of Appleton high school. These youngsters staged a good lively scrap with Engstrom having the advantage in the first round and Carnes taking the last two rounds and the decision. Engstrom started in like a whirlwind but seemed to tire easily and could not follow up his first round advantage in the next two stanzas.

One of the best bouts of the evening was the battle between Clarence Kositzke of Appleton and Leo Champeau of Green Bay. It took four rounds to decide the issue and the decision finally went to the Green Bay lad, who had things pretty much his own way in the final and extra round. Champeau started out in a big way and had the Appleton boy rather groggy at the end of the first chapter. Then Kositzke staged a comeback in the second and third rounds and handed Champeau some punches that must have rocked the scrapper from the "Bay" and made him sag in the knees a few times. But in the overtime round Champeau meant business and nothing else but, with the result that Kositzke got decidedly the worst of the argument. The Appleton boy put up a mighty game fight and won much applause from the audience.

The lightweight battle between Zep Taurig of Manitowoc and Lyman Thomas of Green Bay showed the fans plenty of action and fast exchanges of punches. Taurig landed many more punches than his opponent and got the decision at the end of three rounds. These boys weighed about 123 pounds apiece and were plenty fast. Thomas slowed up the match somewhat by sliding into frequent clinches.

Herbie Thompson, New London favorite, who has appeared here on several Legion cards in the past, lost a decision to Adolf Ebel of Two Rivers, but it took Adolf four rounds to take the measure of the plucky little New London scrapper. Thompson was the aggressor in the first two rounds but could not keep up the pace and laid himself open to some damaging smacks from the Two Rivers representative.

All in all the crowd was well pleased with the exhibition. Most all of the fighters showed plenty of action and willingness and this is what the spectators are looking for above anything else.

Conduct Two Day Course in Home Making Problems

A two day short course in home making problems was conducted at the Appleton Vocational school Thursday and Friday by Miss Harriet Thompson, county demonstration agent. Talks were given by Gus Sell, county agent, and Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, at the opening session Thursday afternoon. Demonstrations were given by members of the Wide Awake Forward 4H club, and Miss Marcelline Grignon, librarian at the Appleton Public library, discussed good books for the growing mind. A special musical program was given on Friday evening, and the "Value of Regular Health Examinations" was explained by Dr. Carl Neidhold. Parent-Teachers association of the Badger school presented a play.

Friday morning's meeting was devoted to demonstrations by groups of women from economics clubs. J. R. Morris of the department of horticulture of the state university gave a talk on rock gardens. This afternoon the women of Greenville were to have presented a play, and special musical numbers were planned. A discussion of the educational side of travel by A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, and a talk on hand made rugs by Miss Wealthy Hale, of the University of Wisconsin home economics department, were also scheduled for this afternoon.

State taxes totalling more than $142,000 were sent to the state treasurer by Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, Thursday. A check for $85,413.90 covered the public school mill tax; $6,221.21 forestry tax; $23,037.64 charitable and penal institution tax; and $28,702.88 school district loans.

Tournament Team Standing Shows Little Change

Standings of the teams in the Elks state bowling tournament now being rolled on the Appleton Elks alleys are almost unchanged from their position of last Tuesday. The chief difference in the listings is that the Hamilton Food Products of New London has managed to edge into third place pushing Whiting Plovers from this position down to fourth place and Grandpa's Kids of Appleton from fourth to fifth. However the pin busters from the "Point" continue to lead in both the team events and singles. The Lumberjacks of Stevens Point still hold top place in the team standings with a count of 2,713. They have a wide lead of 131 pins over their nearest competitor, the Devine Lunches, also of Stevens Point. The Lunches are in second position with 2,582 while Hamilton Food Products, New London, have a count of 2,512 to hold the third place.

In the singles A. Bergholte of Stevens Point and R. Strache of the same city hold first and second places respectively. So far this is the closest race of any event. Bergholte has a score of 584 and his fellow citizen, R. Strache, is just one lean pin behind him with a 583 count. C. Nash of Wisconsin Rapids is third with 573 and Al Normington, also of Wisconsin Rapids, comes fourth with 562.

Wisconsin Rapids continues to hold the lead in the doubles events. C. Nash and J. Bissig of the "Rapids" are the high scoring pair with 1,052, but D. Kabachinski and Dr. Cook of Stevens Point are only a very short distance behind with a count of 1,048.

However, anything may happen by next Monday or Tuesday. A great host of keggers from other cities and towns will keep the alleys hot all Saturday and Sunday and probably will bring about some important changes in the percentage standings. Bowlers from Racine, Seymour, and Oshkosh will show on the alleys Saturday. On Sunday there will be teams from Beloit, Marshfield, Green Bay and Rhinelander.

Here are the present standings in the various events:

Recent Deaths

Oscar F. Johnson

Oscar F. Johnson, 53, who has been engaged in tailoring in this city for 35 years, died at his home, 1525 S. Mason street, Thursday morning, following an illness of several weeks. Survivors are the widow, six sons, Julius O., Thorsten, Sigvard, Philip, Yngve, and Lars; three daughters, Mrs. John Nelson, Lennea, and Audrey, Appleton. Mr. Johnson was a past high priest of the Appleton chapter Royal Arch Masons, and senior warden of that organization. He was a member of Waverly Lodge 51, Appleton chapter No. 47, Appleton Commander, Knights of Templar, and the Odd Fellows lodge. The body will lie in state at the Brettschneider Funeral home until 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when it will be taken to the Masonic Temple, where services will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Rev. Ernest Hasselblad will conduct the service.

Our Gardens

ON ONIONS

Wise is the gardener who gets, For onion rows, not seeds, but sets.

Why yes, you can grow onions from seeds, if you are an experienced gardener and want to take the trouble. But sets are so easy and so sure to succeed that most home gardeners would do well to use them. With sets, about all you have to do is to get them in right side up and early—very early, just as soon as the ground can be worked.

If large, mature bulbs are wanted, space the sets three or four inches apart in the rows. But if you use green onions, set them thicker and pull out every other one for eating young. Spacing one inch apart gives a first thinning for this purpose. That leaves them two inches apart. A second thinning, when they are about an inch in diameter, gives material for pickles or for stewing and leaves them some four inches apart to mature.

The sets are covered with earth just barely over the tip. Rows should be far enough apart for cultivation between.

Ebenezer is an especially tasty variety for the home garden. It is mild and sweet and grows well from sets. It is too late when grown from seeds, however, unless the seeds are sown indoors and the seedlings transplanted. If seeds are to be sown in the open, Yellow Globe Danvers variety is better. Once more now, and most particularly whether they are to be grown from seeds or sets, plant onions early.

Two hundred and fifty Appleton residents have filed affidavits with City Treasurer F. E. Bachmann, requesting an extension of time in which to pay their taxes, as provided by a state law and sanctioned by the common council. This group will be given the privilege of paying taxes on June 1 without a collection assessment. Property for which no request for extension of taxes has been filed will be subject to an extra assessment of 2 per cent. Requests for the extension of the tax paying period must be made before March 15, and must be supported by an affidavit indicating the property holder's inability to pay the taxes at this time.

Roy Madler of Hilbert has reported the theft of a Hudson roadster to Appleton police. The car was stolen at Hilbert Wednesday evening. It is maroon in color and bears the 1930 license number 98-047D, Wis.

Campus Comment

By Russell Davis

The Greeks continue to battle along in their own private warfare with Sigma Phi Epsilon still in the van. The Sigmas won the basketball title but were hard pressed by the Betas throughout the whole schedule. At present the handball matches are under way with each fraternity presenting a strong team. The Sigmas won the foul throwing contest held last week with the Phi Tau and the D. I.'s in a tie for second place. Swimming, track, and baseball are the remaining events to be run off in the spring.

Tomorrow marks the close of the first six week period. Grades are due in the office at noon. To the student body it marks the close of another period of tests.

Tomorrow evening an all-college informal party will be held at the new Alexander gymnasium. The music will be furnished by Tommy Temple's orchestra. Committees under Charles Barnes and Paul Kozelka have been working intently the last week to insure the success of the event. It is expected that a large number of Lawrentians will be on hand to participate in the fun.

The all-campus boxing and wrestling tournament will be run off in the near future with a host of likely looking boys in the ring. The tournament is an annual event in the school life.

In a somewhat restricted poll among the male element on the campus it was found by an aspiring young scribe that the brunette ladies were a great deal more popular than their lighter colored sisters. Redheads, despite the fact that the famous "It" girl of the movies belong to their number, ran a poor third in the voting.

With the continued mild weather the students begin to think of spring and of the vacation that will start April 2. It may be a bit early but one fraternity has scheduled a "Spring Party" for next week. As one member expressed the sentiment, "It will probably snow like the dickens the night of the party."

High School Notes

By Wilhelmine Meyer

Tomorrow, March 14, the G. A. A. will hold a food sale at Belling's Drug store.

The Heiss Oratory contest will be held here April 13. Tryouts are to be held March 18 and 19. Miss Mary Carrier, who is in charge of the contest is trying out a new method. Members may, if they wish, write their own orations.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 the Girl Reserves will hold a benefit card party at the high school. Each girl is bringing a guest who is not a member of the organization. Bridge and hearts will be played and prizes awarded at the close of the evening. On Thursday evening, March 26, the club will hold its annual dance at the High school. Plans are now being made for the affair.

The senior conferences have been completed and the records taken. There are at present 252 members in the class of '31. Of these 245 will graduate in June, three at the end of summer school, and four at the end of the first semester, 1931-'32. Ninety-three seniors majored in college preparatory courses; fifty-six in general courses; forty-seven in commercial courses; forty in manual arts; twenty-one in home arts; and five students majored in two courses. Thirty-five of the seniors plan to attend Lawrence college. The list of occupations which they plan to enter is long and varied, beginning with accounting, on through the alphabet and all types of occupations, even embalming.

On Thursday, March 19, the basketball team will be feted at the annual banquet given for them by the G. A. A.

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL NOTES

By Jean C. Owen

The Latin club under the direction of Miss Elsie Kopplin held its banquet at Roosevelt school. Betsy Rosenbohm, Grace Bilter and Mildred Martin acted as Roman slaves and served the dinner. All the members of the club were dressed in Roman costumes which they designed themselves. In the dining room the students reclined as they do in Rome, and the menu was typical Roman. After dinner an entertainment was given. Songs were sung and declamations given.

"The Sewing Bee," a play written by Lois Nienstedt, a member of the Dramatic club, was presented before several groups during the regular club period. The cast included: Velma Kohler, Ethel Clements, Helen Schindler, Mildred Bieritz, Donna Eggert, Madeline Nohr and Lois Nienstedt. The play was under the direction of Miss Alger.

William Mehring, seventh grade student at Roosevelt, was awarded $7.50 for first prize in the contest sponsored by the Old Home Bakery, Appleton. To win first prize a student was required to paint or sketch an old home 10 by 15 inches. It could be done with oil paints, water color or crayons. William's drawing was on beaver board; painted with oil colors.

Marcus Baumgartner spent $12 in his primary campaign to obtain a seat in the city council, J. W. Doyle spent $15, James Gerharz, $4.50, and Orren Earle, $4, according to expense accounts filed with the city clerk Thursday. Doyle is a candidate for supervisor, and Gerharz and Earle are seeking places on the city council. L. F. Bushey, candidate for supervisor; Fred Sievert, candidate for supervisor; and Philip Vogt, candidate for alderman, reported no expenditures. Under the law, all candidates must file expense accounts by Saturday.

Kimberly News

Mrs. I. C. Clark entertained the Adult Bible class of the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening. Routine business was transacted and officers for the coming year were elected. Mrs. W. Pollard was chosen president; Mrs. E. Brier, vice president; and Mrs. I. C. Clark, secretary-treasurer. A social hour followed the business session. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. A. Kilpatrick.

Mrs. Harold Fird, Mrs. Bernard Spaay, and Mrs. Matt Verkuilen attended a meeting of the Eagles Auxiliary at Appleton Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Cronke entertained the Birthday club at her home Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McGuire and son and Jack Greenwood of Neenah visited Kimberly friends Wednesday.

State Third in Production of Creamery Butter

Wisconsin ranks third in creamery butter production. Of the 1,597,027,000 pounds of factory butter manufactured in the United States in 1929, eight per cent was manufactured in the Badger state, according to the Crop Reporting Service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture at Madison. Over 78 per cent of the United States creamery butter is produced in the twelve North Central states which includes Wisconsin. Only Minnesota and Iowa exceed Wisconsin in manufacture of creamery butter.

Creamery butter production has increased 94,000,000 pounds in Wisconsin since 1899 to stand at 155,815,000 pounds in 1929. Some variation has occurred from year to year, but the general trend in creamery butter produced has been upward in both Wisconsin and the United States since the industry began. The first record taken of factory butter manufacture in Wisconsin by a state department was in 1885 when production was 36,240,432 pounds. In 1889 farm butter production was 46,295,623 pounds. Before the next regular census butter making on the farm began to decline while factory butter manufacture increased steadily. At the present time the annual quantity of farm butter made is probably little over four per cent of the state's total production.

About 32 per cent of Wisconsin's total output of butter comes from the west central part of the state, which includes the western boundary tier of countries from St. Croix to La Crosse and the counties lying just next to them from Monroe to Dunn. Monroe county is first in total creamery butter manufacture with over seven and one-half million pounds in 1929. There are ten counties besides Monroe which produce over five million pounds of butter annually. These are in order according to production: Trempealeau, Polk, Milwaukee, St. Croix, Vernon, Grant, Dunn, Pierce, Sauk, and Brown. Barron county manufactures practically five million pounds of creamery butter annually, and each of thirty counties in the state averages over two million pounds.

There will be only one question submitted to referendum vote in the state this spring. Voters will be asked to decide whether they want county clerks to issue automobile licenses, or continue to have them issued by the state department as is now done.

BE CAUTIOUS

WHERE YOU BUY!

Some of you have learned that a "bargain" may be more of a mirage than a reality. It may look like a bargain from where you read about it, but when you get to it—it's a dud! Distinctly not as attractive as represented.

Advertisers in Review are not trying to SNARE you, but to INFORM you. Back of their names there is HONESTY, FAIR DEALING, and FULL VALUE for the price asked.

They share your prejudice for modest sincerity and do not indulge in the pathetic eloquence of extravagant promises that are not fulfilled. Before you buy elsewhere check the price and the quality of the goods with those offered by Review advertisers.
