Many from State, Nation to Study in U. Summer School

Expect Increased Enrollment in 37th Annual Summer School

Increased inquiries concerning the many courses of study offered indicate that there is likely to be an increase in the registration in the 37th annual summer session of the University of Wisconsin this summer, it has been revealed at the office of Scott H. Goodnight, dean of the summer session.

With a faculty composed of some of the country's foremost educators offering a wide range of courses of study and with living costs still remaining low despite general rising price trends, the University's summer school is expected to attract thousands of students from all parts of Wisconsin and the nation to the Badger campus for summer study.

3,400 Last Year

Last year more than 3,400 attended the session, and it is expected that the total will be somewhat larger this summer. Registration for the session begins on June 29 and continues through July 1, with classes beginning on July 2 and continuing through August 9. Special nine weeks courses in the Graduate school will end August 30, while the 10-weeks session of the Law school opens June 24 and closes August 30.

In addition to the thousands of students who will attend the regular summer school classes, hundreds of citizens from Wisconsin and other states are expected to gather on the State University campus during the summer to attend six special institutes and conferences held in conjunction with the summer session.

Six Special Meets

These special meetings are: The School Administrator's conference, July 15-19 inclusive;

The band masters', orchestra leaders', and chorus conductors' clinic, and conference for piano teachers, July 8-28;

The Dramatic and Speech institute, July 1-13;

The Rural Leadership conference, July 1-12;

The conference of apprenticeship laws, federal and state, July 29 to August 3; and

The annual Labor Institute, to be held probably early in August.

Although not a part of the summer session, the special institutes will all take place during the six weeks summer school, thus enabling those attending the special meetings to enroll in the University at the same time and take studies which correspond with the work of the institutes in which they are interested. Those enrolled in regular classes may also attend the special meetings.

U. W. Law Students Get Fellowships and Scholarships

Eight young men from Wisconsin homes, now students in the Law school of the University of Wisconsin, have been awarded either fellowships or scholarships as a result of their outstanding work, it was recently announced.

Three post-graduate law fellowships of $600 each were awarded to Donald C. Heide, Kenosha; Robert T. Murphy, Madison; and Roy G. Tulane, Williams Bay.

These fellowships are awarded annually to outstanding senior law students who return to the Law school for a fourth year of study leading to the doctor of juridical science degree. During the fourth year they assist the faculty, pursue post-graduate studies, and spend approximately half of their time as apprentices in various commissions and departments of the state government.

Three scholarships of $125 each were awarded by the Wisconsin Law Alumni association to the following students, who will be seniors in the Law school next year: Lee K. Bezner, Hartford; Charles E. Nieman, Beloit; and Albert D. Nohr, Merrill.

Two other scholarships of $50 each have been awarded by the Dane County Bar association to the following first year students: John R. Frampston, Jr., Appleton; and Hilbert P. Zarkey, Madison. A third such scholarship is to be awarded later.

U. W. Library School Gives Summer Courses in Library Science

For the first time in three years, according to Miss Mary Emogene Hazeltine, principal, summer courses in library science are to be offered by the Library School of the University of Wisconsin.

Two groups of courses are to be given, one the regular summer course for teacher-librarians, the other a course of training in public library methods and open to those holding positions in public libraries in Wisconsin or with appointments to such positions.

The course for teacher-librarians will comprise all of the training necessary to secure a license as a high school teacher-librarian in Wisconsin. Those interested should write for application blank, addressing Miss M. E. Hazeltine, 206 N. Carroll St., Madison, Wis.

Summer School Gives Courses On Problems of Nation, World

C. P. Higby, on Contemporary Europe.

Prof. W. G. Bleyer, of the School of Journalism, will conduct a course in Public Opinion, and Prof. Ralph Nafziger will teach Interpreting Foreign News. Prof. Max Otto of the philosophy department will conduct two courses not formerly available. They are American Philosophy and Philosophy and Human Enterprise.

Consider U. S. Politics

In line with the interest in the national recovery program, Prof. L. E. Pfankuchen will direct a study of the Constitutional Implications of the National Recovery Program. Prof. J. T. Salter will direct a study of Political Leadership and Current Problems of Municipal Government, and Prof. J. D. Lewis will lead classes on Contemporary Dictatorships, Comparative Government, and the History of American Political Thought.

Prof. John L. Gillen will conduct a course in Poverty and Relief, and Contemporary Social Problems, while Prof. Kimball Young will be in charge of a course on Personality and Social Adjustment Through Mental Hygiene.

Prof. F. L. Paxson will conduct courses in History of the West and Recent History of the United States, covering the period from 1900 to the present. Prof. Blanche Trilling, director of physical education for women, will teach Current Problems in Physical Education and Recreation. Courses on Educational Diagnosis and the Treatment of Problem Children, by Prof. T. L. Torgerson, and Music and Its Contribution to the Life of the Community, by Prof. E. G. Gordon, will also be included in the summer session curriculum.

Study Domestic Problems

Among the special courses listed on modern problems are Recent Financial History, by Prof. W. B. Taylor; The Economics of Business Depression, by Prof. D. D. Lescio; National Agricultural Policies, by Prof. B. H. Hibbard; and Land Utilization, Planning, and Zoning, by Prof. George S. Wehrwein.

Treating modern European conditions will be courses offered by Prof. J. P. von Grueningen, on Germany of Today; Prof. C. V. Easum, on the Modern German Empire; and Prof.

Six U. W. Students Who Plan to Enter Ministry Are Cited

Six University of Wisconsin students who are planning to enter the ministry were recognized at a communion service in the First Congregational church in Madison recently by the Rev. Alfred W. Swan, pastor.

Three of them are seniors, Ralph Hyslop, Madison, Merrill Beale, Milwaukee, and Edward Manthei, West Bend. The other students are Hugh Sarles, Madison; Herbert Kelly, Mineral Point, and Herbert de Hartog, Waupun.

Hyslop, a brother of the Rev. Frederick W. Hyslop, former student Congregational pastor at the University, has been awarded one of six entrance scholarships, in competition with 30 applicants, at the Chicago Theological seminary.

Beale is a son of the Rev. Arthur Beale and grandson of the Rev. Charles H. Beale, both former pastors of the Grand Avenue Congregational church of Milwaukee.

Manthei has taken a number of prominent parts in productions presented by the University of Wisconsin players.

Kelly is a nephew of Frederick T. Kelly, emeritus assistant professor of the department of semitic languages at the University. Sarles, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sarles, is a brother of Philip Sarles, now at Chicago seminary. Herbert de Hartog is completing his freshman year's work.

"It is reassuring in a day when it is questioned whether educational institutions are productive of the religious spirit, to find young men coming out of regular university work strengthened in their commitment to serve their generation through the religious vocations," Dr. Swan said.

He is a director of the Chicago seminary, of which the Rev. Albert W. Palmer, D. D., is president. The Rev. Ezra P. Young, minister to University Congregational students, is a recent alumnus of the seminary.

The Rev. Harry E. Campbell, parish assistant, and recent graduate student of the University of Chicago divinity school, assisted in the services.

U. W. Man to Receive National Recognition

National recognition for years of untiring work in the improvement of livestock will be conferred upon George C. Humphrey of the department of animal husbandry at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture by the American Society of Animal Production when it holds its annual meeting in Chicago in December.

Humphrey, known intimately by livestock breeders throughout Wisconsin with whom he has worked in their livestock improvement work, has been a teacher of animal husbandry at the University of Wisconsin for thirty-two years. He is nationally known as an authority on types of dairy cattle and has judged classes of cattle at large expositions throughout the United States as well as in foreign countries.

The society is a national organization of agricultural college teachers, experiment station workers, and men concerned with livestock production. At their annual banquet held during the International Livestock Exposition an oil portrait of Humphrey will be presented by students and friends for hanging in the famous portrait gallery of the Saddle and Sirloin Club of Chicago. A duplicate portrait will be made to be presented to the University.

Growers to Display New Creations at State "Glad" Show

One of the largest flower displays to be held in Wisconsin this year will be the sixth annual state gladiolus show which will occur at the University of Wisconsin Field House on August 10 and 11.

The show will be held under the auspices of the Wisconsin Gladiolus Society, the Wisconsin Horticultural Society, and the University of Wisconsin. All of the newest and best varieties of gladiolus will be displayed by growers from Wisconsin and adjoining states, according to H. J. Rahmlow, Madison, show manager.

Following the organization of the show in 1930, exhibits have been held at Madison, Hartford, Fort Atkinson, Kohler and Fond du Lac.

Fifty Summer Staff Members In Who's Who

The outstanding character of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin summer session for 1935 is attested to by the fact that 50 of the 300 members of this summer's teaching staff are listed in America's Who's Who for the year, a recent survey revealed.

Recognized throughout the nation for their outstanding work as educators and scientists, the 50 whose names are found in Who's Who will teach many of the most important courses to be offered in the 1935 Wisconsin summer school, which opens July 1.

Students who attend the Wisconsin summer school this year will have the opportunity of following their studies under these men, all except one of whom are regular members of the University of Wisconsin faculty.

Those listed in Who's Who this year who will teach in the summer session include:

They Want to Know What Happens Beyond the Four Line Fences

By CHRIS L. CHRISTENSEN
College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin

Farm income and farm life are being influenced more and more by what takes place beyond the four line fences which surround the farm plant. Farmers who have done a good job individually, too often find that they face low prices for what they sell and high prices for what they buy.

Often we have seen tariffs and foreign trade policies of the government, partial or complete shut-downs of industrial activities, urban unemployment and greatly reduced urban payroll, nullify to a large extent the gains which we could rightfully expect from efficient and scientific practices and management of farm production.

This leads to the natural conclusion that as farmers and citizens we need to understand still better the large economic and social issues of the day and to appreciate their influence on farm income as well as upon farm life in general.

In fact, the successful solution of many of our present day problems will require intelligent understanding and subsequent participation in social, economic and governmental agencies and activities. This means that we will need to rely upon education more and more.

We will need more education of a kind that reaches a larger number of people. We will need a form of education that will help us think about, and better understand, the facts about consumption, distribution and markets, both domestic and foreign; that will equip us to handle the affairs of distribution; that will enable us to negotiate effectively upon the markets, and to participate in the policies of government that affect our business.

1500 Get Degrees at Commencement On Monday, June 24

Close University Careers at 82nd Commencement of State U.

Closing their university careers and entering upon the life careers for which they have been preparing themselves during the last four years or more, approximately 1,500 young men and women, about the same number as last year, will be granted their first and higher degrees at the 82nd annual commencement of the University of Wisconsin on Monday morning, June 24.

The commencement ceremony will get under way promptly at 9 a. m. in the University Field house at Camp Randall. It will immediately follow the University Procession, which will begin at 8:30 a. m.

Besides the academic degrees to be granted to the graduates, honorary degrees will be conferred upon six American leaders in the fields of law, medicine, education, and politics at the commencement.

Get Honorary Degrees

Those who will receive the honorary degrees are Cordell Hull, secretary of state in Pres. Roosevelt's cabinet; James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University; Dr. Arthur Hale Curtis, famous physician; Frederic L. Paxson, noted historian; Thomas Day Thacher, famous lawyer; and Gilbert Ames Bliss, widely-known mathematician.

Commencement weekend will begin on Saturday, June 22, which has been designated as Alumni Day. Hundreds of alumni from all parts of Wisconsin and the nation are expected to return to the campus of their alma mater as the classes of 1885, 1890, 1897, 1898, 1900, 1905, 1910, 1914, 1916, and 1917 hold reunions.

Conducted with the assistance of Madison pastors, the baccalaureate service for the graduating class will be held at 4 p. m. Sunday, June 23, in the Field house. The baccalaureate sermon will be given by Pres. Glenn Frank, and musical numbers will be furnished by the University Singers. The annual parents' and seniors' supper will take place Sunday evening, to be followed by a twilight concert.

Governor to Speak

With hundreds of parents, relatives, and friends looking on, the graduates will receive their diplomas at the commencement Monday morning. Music will be furnished at the ceremony by the University concert band. Pres. Frank will give the charge to the senior class while Gov. Philip F. La Follette will extend the greetings of the state. The Rev. Frederick D. Butler of the Grace Episcopal church will give the invocation and benediction.

Badger Farm Groups to Hold Conference

Rural youth, agriculture's most valuable asset, will take the spotlight of consideration when delegates from Wisconsin rural organizations meet for their second annual leadership summer conference at Camp Willerup, near Cambridge, August 14, 15 and 16.

Taking as their conference topic, "What Organizations Can Do For Rural Youth," delegates of these various farm groups will consider the problems of the older youngfolk of the farm in order that they may devise ways of making them a definite part of their future organization plans.

Organizations which will be represented at the conference include the Farm Bureau, Grange, Farmer's Equity-Union, Future Farmers of America, Community Clubs, Parent-Teachers associations, Homemaker's clubs, 4H leaders, and county agricultural extension workers. Nearly 100 delegates are expected.

The committee in charge of the conference program consists of Mrs. C. A. Sorenson, Klevenville; Mrs. W. A. Hastings, Madison; Robert Greene, Milton; and A. F. Wileden, of the University college of agriculture, Madison.

Many Yards Improved in Grounds Projects

Home grounds and school grounds improvement projects are under way in at least eleven Wisconsin counties. Home owners, members of groups of Future Farmers of America, and rural school districts have graded their yards, reseeded their lawns where damaged by drought, planted hardy shrubs and trees, and relocated or improved driveways to make their grounds more convenient and attractive.

County grounds improvement contests are scheduled for this summer and coming autumn, according to Laurence G. Holmes of the horticultural department of the University of Wisconsin, who is aiding local groups and committees with their projects.
