Features of the Fair

The contemplated features of the Allied fair will be as numerous as they promise to be novel, appealing and startling. We are urging you to come and be with us, because we know you will get more than value received. A world of entertainment—good humor and excitement, the picturesque, the novel, the instructive plus untold good for our friends across the sea—this is the big return that will come from your small investment.

Hundreds of unique and original ideas have been developed. Many more are now in course of preparation. The complete list of features and attractions will be made public at a later date.

Will You Help Us by Gifts of Money?

WILL you help us to raise a million dollars for the blinded, starving and helpless? Not for munitions of war, but for millions of innocent, un-offending people who are in pitiful need.

It is our purpose not only to secure funds and utilize them in the most practical and far reaching manner for relief, but to make the result of this fair stand as the supreme manifestation of American sympathy for the sufferings of humanity in this terrible crisis.

We want you and all other good Americans to join with us in helping little children who need food, women and aged people who are destitute, men who are ill in hospitals, who have been disabled for life but still may be trained to some useful calling.

Will you become one of us in contributing to the success of this undertaking? Its affairs will be administered by New York's men of sound business sense and judgment; its details will be consummated by the best known men and women of New York and our entire country; its effect will be far reaching and lasting in helping the needy and deserving.

Won't you give us your support by a cash contribution to the Fair now? Each dollar given will mean many times its value.

He gives twice who gives quickly.
