WISCONSIN'S 1960 FOOTBALL rebuilding program started where the hopes of many had been crushed months before—on the Pacific Coast. The Badgers used a bristling second half passing attack to subdue Stanford 24-7 before 29,500 fans in Stanford Stadium on a sultry afternoon.

Bouncing back from a lacklustre first half performance, the Badgers overcame a first period Stanford score, and chalked up their first win since 1946 on the Pacific Coast. In that year Wisconsin whipped California 28-7 at Berkeley, and in five subsequent appearances in West Coast territory, the Badgers had always been the loser—1948, 1953, and 1955 in regularly scheduled games, plus New Year's Day games in 1953 and 1960.

Predominately a team of newcomers—fourteen sophomores and five juniors were seeing action for the first time in a collegiate game, and seven others had played only briefly against Marquette in 1959—the Badgers suffered a bad case of 'jitters' in the first half, and allowed Stanford, behind superb passing Dick Norman, All-American quarterback candidate, to control play during the first thirty minutes.

Badger fullback Tom Wiesner dives into the end zone for a third period score in the Marquette-Wisconsin game at Camp Randall.

After an opening parry by each team the first time they had possession of the ball, Stanford moved 80 yards in nine plays for the only score they were to register. The Indians gained the ball on their own 20 yard line following an unsuccessful field goal attempt by the Badgers' Jim Bakken from Stanford's 30 yard line. A short punt of 22 yards by fullback Skip Face of Stanford had given Wisconsin the ball on the Indians' 43, but after an 11 yard run from scrimmage by sophomore left halfback Merritt Norvell on the first play, the Badgers stalled.

Norman tested the Badgers' defense with a roll out play on first down and was spilled by Tom Wiesner for no gain. His second down swing pass to Face was incomplete, then he started to hit his receivers.

He threw complete to left end Dale Ostrander for 18 yards and a first down on the Stanford 38. A short pass to Face was not good, then Face picked up five yards rushing around Wisconsin's right flank. Norman's pass to halfback John Bessey for nine yards gave Stanford a first down on the Badgers' 48.

Norman passed complete to Ostrander for 10 yards, sent Face around Wisconsin's left end for 24 yards before Ron Miller forced him out of bounds, then threw a perfect aerial dart to Ostrander in the end zone for the score. Face converted and Stanford led 7-0 with 7:01 left to play in the first half.

Coach Bruhn, substituting by platoon, sent in his offensive platoon at this juncture, but after a Fabry to Derleth pass play picked up a first down, Bakken punted to Stanford's 7 yard line as the attack stalled.

Two running plays netted five yards, and huge Pat Richter, sophomore end, 6-5 1/2, 229, batted down Norman's third down pass forcing a punt by Face. Here, the 'jitters' took hold, and Miller tried to field the bouncing football, fumbled when hit as he picked it up, and Stanford's Errol Scott recovered for the losers on the Badgers' 32.

Norman's first down pass to Face was dropped in the end zone on what seemed a certain touchdown play. Norman then threw completions to right end Jerry Winters for 17 and 12 yards, the latter a screen pass, that put the ball on the Wisconsin 3. At this point, Norman's fumble on the ensuing play proved costly, as Ron Perkins, playing his first game at tackle, after two years at guard, recovered for Wisconsin. One minute, twenty seconds remained in the first period, and Stanford never was to come close to scoring again during the game.

An Indian penetration into Wisconsin territory early in the second period was stopped when Face fumbled after a pass reception covering 19 yards; sophomore end Ron Carlson recovered for Wisconsin on the Badgers' 32.

John Fabry combined here with Elmars Ezerins, a 6-3, 215 pound right half from Union Grove, Wisconsin, to electrify the crowd with a 67 yard scoring pass play, but the score was nullified when officials detected that Ezerins had run out of bounds, then re-entered the playing field prior to making the catch. The penalty was loss of down and distance, and kept the Badgers off the scoreboard.

Neither team could sustain their offense during the second period until Stanford started a march downfield from their own 10 yard line with less than two minutes to play in the half. Runs by Gil Dowd and Hal Steuber netted a first down, then Norman's passes carried to Wisconsin's 32 on completions to Winters and Face. A last ditch field goal effort by Face with thirty seconds remaining was short and wide of the mark.

The second half performance by Wisconsin was as total as the change between Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Suddenly the Badgers were aroused—running well, passing with pin-point precision, blocking and tackling with authority.

Tom Wiesner returned the second half kickoff 18 yards to the Badgers' 33, and seven plays later the score was tied. Ron Miller—remember the name, you'll hear it often in 1960—threw his first pass of the period incomplete to Norvell, then wasn't to miss again until he had thrown nine consecutive completions.

He threw to Ron Carlson, left end, to start the march, for eight yards, then sent Wiesner off tackle for six yards and a first down. Passes to Richter for seven, and to reserve end Ron Staley, also from Madison East high school, for 14, put the ball on the Indians' 31. A duplication of the above formula—to Richter for 19 yards, and to Staley for 12 yards, netted the score with a mere 3:41 played in the third period. Junior right half Erv Kunesh added the first of his extra points to knot it at 7-7.

The Badgers were able to contain the Stanford attack following the kickoff, despite an interference call on defenders Norvell and Bakken that gave the Indians a first down on their own 45. Four plays later, fullback Gary Craig had to run from punt formation following a poor pass from center, and Wisconsin had the ball on the Indians' 48.

Miller went right to work again, throwing completions to fullback Neil Fleming for 6 yards, and to right halfback Elmars Ezerins for 8 yards and a first down on the 34. Here, an interference call against Stanford moved the ball to the 16. On first down, Miller passed to Staley for eleven yards and a first down on the five, but Staley fumbled when hit, and Craig recovered for Stanford.

Again, Stanford was unable to gain, and Craig punted out to the Indians' 43, where Norvell returned the kick seven yards. Six plays later, four of them passes by Miller, and the Badgers had the lead for good. Miller threw complete to Richter for 7 and 18 yards, and after Wiesner lost four on a fine tackle by Stanford's Steve Purcell, Miller found Staley alone in the end zone for the final nine yards. Kunesh again added the extra point, and with 3:57 to play Wisconsin led, 14-7.

Just before the period ended, Wisconsin started a march from their own 34 yard line that resulted in a Kunesh field goal with 11:36 to play in the fourth period. Miller's passing again was helpful, but Tom Wiesner skirted the Indians' right end for 23 yards to give the offensive pattern balance. The drive halted on the seven yard line, and on fourth down Kunesh kicked a 24 yard field goal.

By this time, Stanford coach Jack Curtice had retired his ace, Norman, to the bench, and junior Roger Sears was at the helm when Stanford received the ensuing kickoff. He engineered the Indians' first first down of the second half—the only other one had been by interference penalty—including their first pass completion of the half when he threw to halfback John Bessey for a 16 yard gain. However, a personal foul penalty preceded the completion, and Stanford punted on fourth down.

The game's only two intercepted passes then played their role in the game—Craig grabbed Miller's long toss on the Indians' 34, and after Stanford had picked up a first down on the 50 yard stripe, sophomore right half Ken Montgomery, Dubuque, Iowa, intercepted a Sears pass, and returned 42 yards to the Stanford 11 yard line.

Gerald Nena went around Stanford's left end for six yards; Tom Anthony, playing fullback smashed for one, then slithered into a corner of the end zone to grab Miller's third scoring aerial of the day with 3:02 left to play. Kunesh added the extra point, and the Badgers had their opening win of the season under their belts.

The statistics reveal the truth of Wisconsin's turn-about. The Badgers were outgained 220 yards to 92 in the first half as Norman completed 15 of 27 passes for 173 yards. Stanford gained just three yards rushing the second half, and 97 total, while the Badgers ran and passed for 225 yards, including Miller's 15 of 19 pass attempts for 154 yards. Indeed, there was no comparison between the first half Badgers and the second half Badgers!

Wisconsin 35, Marquette 6 October 1

WISCONSIN CONTINUED its long domination over its intra-state rival, Marquette, on this windy and overcast afternoon as the Badgers scored a well-earned victory over the Warriors who proved to be vastly improved over last season. A crowd of 51,553, which included forty-five bands assembled for the 2nd annual Band Day and the 20th annual "W" Club Day, watched the 36th annual meeting between the two teams at Camp Randall Stadium.

The Badgers wrapped up the game with thirteen points in the second quarter, and an additional three touchdowns in the third period. Again it was the passing arm of sophomore sensation, Ron Miller that sustained the Badger offense. He tossed 9 completions in 19 attempts for a total of 224 yards—one of these aials was a 33 yard scoring pass to a fellow sophomore, Elmars Ezerins. This offensive power, combined with two alert pass interceptions, both returned for touchdowns, gave the Badgers full control of the game at all times.

However, the statistics fail to account for Wisconsin's margin of victory. The Warriors held a 19-12 margin in first downs, and outrushed the Badgers 121 to 72 net yards, although the Badgers held the margin in the passing game, 257 yards to 173, completing 11 of 25 passes to the Warriors' 13 completions in 32 attempts. In addition, the Warriors controlled the ball from scrimmage, having an edge of 79 plays to 53 for the winners.

Wisconsin withstood two Marquette trusts deep into Badger territory midway through the first period. They halted a Marquette drive when a field goal attempt by Denny Ferriter from the Wisconsin 17 went wide. (A 15 yard holding penalty had set the Warriors back after they had penetrated to the Wisconsin eight yard line.) Later in the period, Wisconsin's "Rock" defensive team forced Marquette into a punting situation after they had reached the Badger 20 yard line three plays after intercepting a Miller pass near mid-field.

Repelling the Warriors for the second time ignited the Wisconsin attack, and Miller pitched aials to Co-Captain Henry Derleth for 28 yards, and to sophomore end Pat Richter for 29 yards to move the Badgers to the Warriors' 19 yard line in four plays.

Three plays gained just four yards, and on the second play of the second quarter, with fourth down and six yards for a first down, Jim Bakken, with Miller holding, booted the first field goal of his career. The kick, from the 22 yard line, is one that goes into the record book as a 32 yarder.

On third down following the ensuing kickoff, the Badgers struck again, as Erv Kunesh snared quarterback Bill Johnson's sideline pass on the 20, and raced into the Marquette end zone untouched. Kunesh placekicked the extra point, and the Badgers led 10-0 with 12:42 left to play in the period.

Wisconsin stopped Marquette's next march after it had reached the Badgers' 41, forcing the losers to punt to Wisconsin's 16 yard line. Gerry Nena swept left end for nine yards, and following an incomplete pass, Miller, on third and one, rolled out for a pass, decided to run, and before he was finally brought down he had twisted his way for 39 yards to the Warriors' 36.

A defensive holding penalty on Marquette moved the ball to the 21, where Wisconsin's attack stalled and Bakken stepped back to the 34 and placekicked another field goal, this one recorded as a 44 yarder. Not since 1926, when Les 'Butch' Leidl received credit for a 40 yard field goal had a Badger kicked a longer one. In fact, only Pat O'Dea, his feats are legendary, and Buck Bellows, who kicked a 47 yard goal against Marquette in 1914, have ever kicked longer field goals in Wisconsin football history.

The Warriors controlled the football for the final 6:40 of the first half, marching 65 yards in 11 plays to their fifth straight first down on Wisconsin's 17 yard line, before Badger defensive safety man, Billy Hess, a Fort Atkinson junior, intercepted Terry Zang's fourth down pass to end the threat and the period.

Three plays following the second half kickoff, the Badgers had scored again as Ron Carlson intercepted Johnson's first down pass on the Marquette 32 and thundered into the end zone. Kunesh kicked the extra point and Wisconsin led 20-0 seventy-six seconds into the third period.

On the next series of plays, Marquette gambled for a first down on a fourth and one situation on their own 29 yard line and lost. Penalties for holding and an illegal receiver downfield lost 30 yards for Wisconsin, but Miller gained them all back, plus some additional, when he threw complete to fullback Tom Wiesner for 39 yards to the Warriors' 15 yard line. Another Miller pass, this one for end Ron Staley, was ruled complete due to interference on the two yard line. Wiesner then bucked over in two plays. Bakken added two extra points when he ran the ball over on a rollout and the Badgers led 28-0 with 9:47 to play in the third period.

A short punt by Gary Podesto late in the quarter gave the Badgers position on the Warriors' 42, and after Tom Anthony bulled his way for nine yards, Miller threw long to Elmars Ezerins, finding him alone on the five yard line—the Badgers had their final score. Bakken added the point with just 51 seconds to play in the third period.

Coach Milt Bruhn utilized his bench for much of the fourth period—he used 58 players in this game—and the Warriors put together their lone scoring march early in the final period. It started on their own 23, and in ten plays the losers were on the scoreboard. Three running plays netted a first down on the 34, and after two incomplete passes, Zang threw long to end George Andrie who fielded the pass over his shoulders on the Badgers 25 yard line, a gain of 41 yards.

Two running plays lost four yards, and a third down pass play netted four yards back to Wisconsin's 25. Here, Zang found halfback Karl Kassulke in the open on the goal line, and he stepped into the end zone for the tally as he caught the 25 yard scoring pass with 8:42 left to play.

There were no further scoring threats, although Bakken missed a field goal on the last play of the game from the Warriors' 19 yard line, after a screen pass from Miller to Nena had picked up 46 yards to set up the attempt.

The win was the 32nd by the Badgers in this series that began in 1904, and their 17th in a row since they lost to Marquette by a 33-7 score in 1943. Also, the win was Wisconsin's 11th in a row on the occasion of "W" Club Day.

Wisconsin 24, Purdue 13 October 8

“WISCONSIN WIN its first three games of the season? What kind of talk is that, man?”

Is there a Wisconsin football fan alive today who honestly believed that the 1960 Badgers would be unbeaten after their first three games of the season?

Even Coach Milt Bruhn must have thought he was dreaming as his sophomore dominated Wisconsin team proved to 58,292 fans that they still play the game to the hilt on Camp Randall's green-sodden turf. Long after the final whistle had blown, the cardinal painted scoreboard at the south end of Camp Randall proudly pronounced—Wisconsin 24, Purdue 13.

The "new look" in Wisconsin's 1960 football pattern—the passing arm of sophomore quarterback Ron Miller and the varied talents of the players in the three-platoon system—outfitted a rugged Purdue team that a week earlier had crushed Notre Dame, unbelievably, 51-19.

The feats of Miller this day were as exciting as his feats already recorded for the first two games of the season. He passed—12 completions in 23 attempts for 203 yards and one touchdown. And he ran, too—his thirty yard scoring run in the first period came after a pass play failed to materialize; and again, later in the game, he kept Wisconsin's third period scoring march "alive" by scampering thirteen yards to pick up a first down on the Purdue six yard line.

The feats of Miller must be "old hat" for Purdue. Remember 1953? There was another Miller that year—Jim Miller. He was also playing his first Big Ten game as a sophomore against Purdue at LaFayette, in what had been billed as the battle of the 1952 Big Ten co-championship teams (Purdue and Wisconsin tied with 4-1-1 records, and the Badgers went to the Rose Bowl). Like Ron Miller Saturday, Jim scored on a long run from scrimmage, running 50 yards early in the game to put Wisconsin ahead, and as the game unfolded, his running and passing built a Badger lead that held up for a 28-19 win. So the pattern of this earlier encounter repeated itself in 1960.

Purdue received the opening kickoff and on the first running play of the game sent scatback Jim Tiller running wide around Wisconsin's left end for 17 yards. Then their fullback Willie Jones skirted Wisconsin's right end on the second play. Although he gained a big seven yards, Jones fumbled as he was hit, and John Gotta pounced on the ball for the Badgers.

Merritt Norvell's thirteen yard smash off tackle picked up a Wisconsin first down on Purdue's 34; but the attack stalled on the next series of downs on the Purdue 36. Jim Bakken's fourth down field goal attempt from 42 yards away was just wide of the mark and Purdue took over on their 20 yard line.

Wisconsin's defense yielded nary a yard in three plays, and on fourth down, Bernie Allen seemingly punted the Boilermakers out of danger. Hess returned the kick ten yards to Purdue's 46, and four plays later, Wisconsin had its first score of the day.

Miller's second down pass to Richter was good for 15 yards and a first down on the 31. After Wiesner gained a yard sweeping Purdue's right end, Miller went back to pass, found his receivers covered, and with the help of key blocks by Richter and Kunesh, picked his way thirty yards into the end zone. Erv Kunesh converted the extra point, and it was 7-0 with 8:30 left to play in the first period.

The Boilermakers took the ensuing kickoff and made the day's longest sustained march, moving 80 yards in ten plays for the tying score. Purdue Co-Captain Maury Guttman piloted the attack, mixing end sweeps with off tackle slants and center plunges, to move the losers down to Wisconsin's 25 yard line in eight plays. Biggest gainers were Guttman's keeper play, with subsequent lateral to halfback Donn Mayoras which gained 25 yards to mid-field, followed immediately by Jones' fourteen yard smash through the middle to the Badgers' 36.

On second down, Guttman passed complete to Jim Tiller who had outraced Badger defender, Ken Montgomery, for twenty-four yards and the score. Allen added the extra point, and the score was tied with 3:45 remaining in the initial quarter.

Miller's passes moved the Badgers downfield following the ensuing kick-off. He found Richter open for 28 yards, to the Purdue 45. On first down, he again found Richter as a target, this time for 20 yards—and a first down on the Purdue 25. The attack stalled here, and on fourth down, Bakken booted a field goal from the 27 yard line, which stands as a 37 yard goal under NCAA rules. Twenty seconds remained in the first period and the Badgers led 10-7.

Fumbles and intercepted passes kept both sides at bay during the first ten minutes of second period action, and it wasn't until Allen's quick kick caught the Badgers unaware that the final Purdue tally of the game materialized. The 70 yard punt by the Purdue quarterback rolled dead on Wisconsin's 13, and on the first play, a handoff from Miller to Nena was fumbled and left end John Elwell recovered for Purdue on Wisconsin's 16.

Wisconsin's defense yielded yardage grudgingly at this point, and Guttman kept the Boilermakers on the ground entirely, though it required four plays to make a first down on the Badgers 6, and three more plays before Tiller swept wide around Wisconsin's right end for the score. Allen's kick was wide and Purdue led 13-10 with 2:10 to play in the first half.

Purdue dominated the early action in the third period, with Mayoras taking a Wisconsin punt by Bakken on Purdue's 25, and returning eighteen yards to the 43. The Boilermakers immediately moved to first downs on Wisconsin's 42 and 23, but on the second play of the third series of downs, Tom Wiesner intercepted Guttman's pass on the Badgers' 14, returned 10 yards to the 24, and the tide of battle turned.

Thereafter, Purdue made only two more first downs. The Wisconsin defense, which had yielded 167 yards in the first half—101 on the ground, and 66 in the air, tightened, and the Boilermakers made a net of just 74 yards the second half—58 on the ground, 18 in the air, with 17 of those coming on a Guttman to Elwell completion that set up the aforementioned first down on Wisconsin's 23.

It was a quick kick by Allen that set up Wisconsin's third period tally. The Badgers' safety man, Billy Hess, had a hunch—the right one—and was in position to field it on the Purdue 45, returning it seven yards to the Purdue 38. Six plays netted the score, with Norvell slashing for four yards, then gaining eleven yards on a pass from Miller.

Wiesner crashed for four yards around left end, and Miller, back to pass, changed his mind, and dashed to the Purdue six yard line. A first down pass was caught out of the end zone by Kunesh; but on second down, Norvell knifed over left tackle and literally dove into the end zone for the score. Kunesh added the extra point, and the Badgers led 17-13 with 1:32 left to play in the third quarter.

Purdue's attack was contained thoroughly in the fourth period. The Boilermakers picked up a first down just before the end of the third period, then failed to pick up another first down until Guttman went 13 yards on a keeper play on the second to last play of the game.

SCORE BY QUARTERS

Wisconsin -----	10	0	7	7-24
Purdue -----	7	6	0	0-13

Hess returned Allen's punt nine yards to the Badgers 43 yard line mid-way in the final stanza, and in ten plays, Miller, alternating with Bakken, moved the Badgers 57 yards to the final score. (A 15 yard holding penalty on Wisconsin made the march 72 yards in length.) Wiesner's hard running picked up two first downs, while Miller's passes to Richter, for 14, and seven yards for the TD, were other highlights. Bakken converted the extra point with 1:44 left to play in the game.

The crowd of 58,292 was the largest gathering ever to see a Wisconsin-Purdue game, and the Badgers' win continued the hex on Purdue, which has not won in six tries at Madison since a 13-7 win here in 1945. Miller's passing yardage of 203 yards set a school record for most yards by a Badger passer in Big Ten play (Haluska had 198 against Illinois in 1955), and Richter equalled his school record (set against Satnford) of seven receptions.
