O'DEA CRITICISES

MORE INTEREST NEEDED IN ROWING MATTERS.

Fall Practice has Been Unsatisfactory
—Freshmen Instructed to Train
—Race About Nov. 9.

Crew practice for the past week has been particularly unsatisfactory, and considering the ideal weather for rowing it is very hard to understand. There seems to be great aversion to fall work at Wisconsin, and if we ever expect to obtain better than a good second, this idea must be rooted out; and the sooner it is done the better it will be for aquatics at Wisconsin. There are some bad days in the fall, I will admit, but on the whole the weather is much better for rowing than in the spring, and it certainly ought to be taken advantage of.

At our rival institutions fall work is very much in evidence, and on account of more favorable location can be carried on about twice as long, hence we are considerably handicapped here in the mere matter of preparation. Added to this if the spirit among the men is not good, then we are doubly handicapped in our efforts to produce good crews. The standard that Wisconsin has set for the past few years is undoubtedly high, still it is not yet high enough, and until there is a better rowing spirit exhibited, Wisconsin will certainly stagnate in rowing.

Some of the Varsity crew candidates are to be commended upon their efforts during the fall, but I cannot say as much for the entire crew, and when we take into consideration that an entirely new crew must be developed for 1901, this state of affairs is much to be deplored and is decidedly discouraging.

The time remaining for practice is short, and there are still a couple of weeks in which we can do good work, and if those who have been rowing upon the trial crew for the Varsity boat do not care to better themselves, then those who are not so far forward will be given a chance.

We can accomplish more with a man who is willing and anxious to work and has the proper spirit, than with one who is decidedly indifferent. I want to see a sufficient number of men out to make at least one crew each afternoon. If we cannot accomplish this the fall practice will cease, and the spring work must show up equally with the work of 1900, otherwise there will be no forlorn hope taken East.

There is still much to be desired from the Freshman squad, and as the present number of candidates is unwieldy, it has been decided to cut down the squad. Practice will continue during the week, and the promising candidates will be picked out and formed into three regular crews, which will race about Nov. 9th, over the mile course. Crews will be picked next Friday evening, Oct. 26, which will give just two weeks in which to prepare and now together.

All Freshmen from now on must consider themselves in strict training. There must be absolutely no smoking or drinking, and the men are expected to retire as near 10:30 p. m. as possible. Any infringement of these rules means instant dismissal from the squad. After this week all those dropped will report immediately to Dr. Elsom for gymnasium drill.

The Freshmen must work out their own salvation, and their chance to accompany the Varsity crew will depend entirely upon their own showing. If their work be not up to the standard the crew will remain at home in 1901.

ORATORICAL ASSOCIATION MEETS.

Will J. Carr Elected President of Northern Oratorical League.

Last Saturday afternoon the Oratorical Association met in the Law Building to arrange matters for the ensuing year. Thirty-three were present from the different debating societies.

The new constitution was presented but by a vote it was decided that no definite action should be taken on it until it had been printed in the Daily Cardinal.

Mr. Joseph Loeb's resignation as president of the Northern Oratorical League was presented and accepted. Mr. Loeb is attending the Harvard Law school and of course found it impossible to act as president of this League. Wisconsin has the privilege of naming the president once in every seven years. By virtue of that right Mr. Will Carr was elected to fill this vacancy.

PROFESSOR JONES TO LECTURE.

Will Give a Course at University of Michigan.

Professor Jones, of the School of Economics, will give a course of eighteen lectures at Michigan University the coming semester. He will give three lectures a week and serve our own University three days a week also.

These lectures are in connection with a new School of Commerce with which Michigan is about to experiment. The course will be composed of lectures and will be purely elective. If the course prove popular, a school of commerce will likely be inaugurated.

Professor Russell, of Harvard, has opened the course with lectures on physical geography. He will give eighteen in all.

Robt. T. Hill, of the Geological Survey, follows with lectures on the Industrial Possibilities of the West Indies. These three lecturers fill out the first semester.

Professor Jones, as has been stated, begins with the second semester. His lectures will treat, first, of the resources and industries of the United States.

Then will follow a systematic discussion of present industrial conditions in the United States, especially emphasizing the physical conditions and social factors which control industry. A minute treatise of many separate industries will complete his course.

—J. W. Wallace who is running for county treasurer on the Democratic ticket, was graduated from the U. W. in '98. Mr. Wallace served throughout the Spanish-American war in Co. G, 1st Wis. Vol. It was his intention to address the students in the near future but will not be able to do so, as he has been suddenly called to Colorado by the extreme sickness of his brother.

—Mrs. J. D. Wilson, who has been visiting her daughter, Miss Agnes Wilson, '04, has returned to her home in Boscobel.

THE WEEK'S DIGEST

PROGRESS OF FOOTBALL IN THE WEST.

Chicago Shows Many Weaknesses—
Minnesota, Northwestern and Illinois Strong—Saturday's Game.

Saturday's Games.

Wisconsin, 64; Upper Iowa, 0. Brown, 11; Chicago, 6. Northwestern, 0; Illinois, 0. Harvard, 29; West Point, 0. Princeton, 5; Lafayette, 0. Pennsylvania, 30; Columbia, 0. Yale, 38; Wesleyan, 0. Michigan, 11; Purdue, 6. Minnesota, 38; Grinnell, 0. Cornell, 11; Union, 0.

A remarkable phase of this season's football work is the slowness with which the offensive strength of the various teams has been developed. In nearly all of Saturday's games the ability to defend their goal was possessed by the various teams, but in ground gaining they were singularly weak. Neither Illinois nor Northwestern could make headway through the opposing line; Michigan and Purdue were both weak in the line bucking department; Chicago was unable to get through Brown's line or circle her ends for any great gains.

It was the East against the West at Chicago and the East won. The result was hardly unexpected. The left side of Chicago's line was an experiment; her backs were crippled, and a tie score was the best that was prophesied for the Maroons by the majority of the critics. The general play of the team, however, was a disappointment. Fumbles were altogether too numerous and the team play ragged. Coach Staggs has a herculean task mapped out for him if Chicago is to play out her heavy schedule successfully. Under present conditions it seems as though certain defeat awaits her at Philadelphia next week.

Northwestern and Illinois were both so evenly matched that neither side were able to score. Both teams showed up in great style on defense but neither was able to make their required gains in order to score. Northwestern certainly has the strongest team she has had for years and with further development will prove a surprise to many of her rivals. Michigan had a hard time in disposing of Purdue. Her work showed considerable improvement, however, and the Hoosiers were almost unanimous in declaring the Wolverines superior to the Maroons. From present indications next week's contest with Illinois will be hard and close with the chances slightly in favor of the Illini.

Minnesota played a lighter team on Saturday and the result is hardly indicative of the strength of the team. Her line is extremely heavy but her backs are inclined to be slow. When this is remedied, Coach Williams should have one of the strongest teams in the country. Future games with the Gophers are being feared by rival coaches, and the opinion of Wisconsin students has changed so much that now the game of Nov. 3 is looked upon as the critical game of the year instead of the Chicago contest.

Wisconsin's Game.

The aggregation of pigskin kickers from the Hawkeye state were so unsophisticated in the science of the gridiron that Saturday's game hardly brought out the strength of the Badgers. The defense of the home team was excellent, the visitors being able to make first downs but twice during the entire game, once by straight bucking and again in the second half when Scobey broke away from the bunch for a run of forty-five yards when he was downed by Driver. The team work of the Varsity showed marked improvement, especially in the second half. The interference formed quicker and was more effective. All of the back field played good games. Long runs were made by Ware, Marshall and Lerum, while Riordan and Curtis kept up their reputation as ground gainers. Jerry particularly deserves credit. After running about forty yards, he was tackled by an Iowa man and although thrown, managed to throw off the tackler, got on his feet again and made a touchdown. The line-up was as follows:

Wisconsin.		Up. Iowa.
Doar, Daum	r. e.	Smead
Curtis	r. t.	Flanders
Lerum	r. g.	Miller
Skow	c.	Parker
Riordan	l. g.	Lynch
Chamberlain	l. t.	Curran
Abbott, Juneau	l. e.	Chesley
Tratt, Bradley	q. b.	Ayer
Cropp, Abercrombie
Marshall	l. h. b.	Fox
Larson, Ware,

THE MUNICIPALITY APPEARS.

Current Number of the Magazine a Valuable One.

The editorial page of the current number of The Municipality announces the appointment of A. D. Davis as assistant editor of the magazine. The number has several articles of general interest which at the same time appeal more directly to those who are actively engaged in the work of municipal reform.

The leading article is a portion of an address delivered before the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, by Dean Johnson, of the College of Engineering, on "Recently Improved Methods of Sewerage Disposal" and is of especial interest to students and citizens of Madison in view of the election of a member of the engineering faculty to the position of city engineer, and the difficulty this city is having with this problem.

Mayor Meissner, of Oconomowoc, and Prof. Sanford, of Stevens Point each contribute articles illustrating specific instances of success in municipalization of public utilities. The first is that of the electric lighting plant at Oconomowoc, which for more than a year has been run successfully under city management. Prof. Sanford writes of a co-operative telephone system in operation at Grand Rapids, Wis., and presents figures indicating a remarkable success in the face of sharp competition.

W. S. Kies' article on "Primary Election Reform" is a careful presentation of the system brought forward and advocated by Candidate La Follette. The theme is very pertinent now that Wisconsin voters are so soon to express their opinion of it, and public opinion is so nearly unanimous in demanding a reform of primary politics. City Attorney Aylward has a paper on "Damage Suits Against Municipalities." The editorial, legal, and information departments of the magazine are filled with valuable matter for general readers as well as municipal officials. The Municipality appears to be a decided success, as a pioneer.

An Employment Bureau.

Secretary Phelps of the Y. M. C. A. is to be congratulated on the excellent work he has done this fall in procuring positions for worthy students. He had had over one hundred applications by students who wish to earn their way through the University, and has succeeded in helping each applicant. It is needless to say that such assistance from Mr. Phelps is received with great gratitude by such applicants and that the employment bureau is doing praiseworthy work.

No industrious young man who is in need of work need fear that no work will be found for him to do. Mr. Phelps always succeeds in finding employment for students willing to work.

"The College Graduate."

An editorial in Sunday's Sentinel on "The College Graduate" is worthy of the attention of all students. It is a very frank statement of what the writer believes the modern graduate to be. A few sentences selected at random from one paragraph will illustrate: "Is not his knowledge of German literature whatever he may know of the language, extremely slight? With history, except the history of this country, his acquaintance is superficial. Economics he knows only as taxation and finance. He knows almost exactly nothing about pictures, and cares only a little for them."

If the writer of this article would read an article by ex-Pres. Cleveland in the Saturday Evening Post for last May, he would perhaps be able to view the matter more fairly. The writer evidently forgets that a college course is not half a century in length. At best an average man can not thoroughly master more than one course in four years. But this out-show, perhaps viewing the possibilities from a personal standpoint, infers that the graduate should have a perfect knowledge of all sciences. A broad, deep appreciation of the literature of all countries, he should have read the works of all the standard authors; thoroughly studied the classical music of all the past; mastered the hair-splitting arguments of all the economists from Adam Smith to Henry George; be perfectly familiar with all the events of historians from Sallust to Bancroft; and recognize at once the works of art of the different masters from Phidias to Millais.

This is the editorial-writer's idea of the ideal college graduate. It matters not to this bigoted writer that a college course is only four years long. The college man must not specialize in one course; he must know everything, or else this writer will not be satisfied. To attain this object, the course would have to be lengthened to a generation, and when a man did then graduate, his age and inexperience would handicap him in the race with his average brothers who are not so fortunate as to know everything. But nevertheless this is of no importance; the able writer says idealism should be striven for at all events, and until his suggestion is acted upon, college graduates will be but poor apologies for men, after all.

Are we to infer that our friend, had he consented to attend a college, would have expected to issue therefrom the perambulatory encyclopedia that he advocates?

Yale will take a mock presidential vote in all departments of the University for President and Vice President of the United States. It is for the purpose of reflecting the sentiment of the college as accurately as possible.

Be Sure to Get Your Tickets Before Thursday.

Last year there was complaint that some who desired to attend the city lecture course could not find accommodations because of the crowd. There is a danger that this may be the case this year. The course opens with what promises to be the musical event of the year the Carberry-Durno recital at the Methodist church Thursday evening, Oct. 25th.

So far as possible the holders of course tickets will be given precedence in the matter of seats. The capacity of the church is limited, and the number of tickets sold must be limited. The course this year is the most attractive dollar course ever given in Madison. It includes Mrs. Beecher, the reader. Prof. R. G. Moulton, of the University of Chicago; Moro, the magician, Dr. Cadman of New York, and Jahu DeWitt Miller. Course tickets can be had for three days at Williams' Pharmacy, College Book Store, Moseley's and Austin's shoe store.

If the limit has not been reached a few course tickets can be had at the church on Thursday evening.

Students take advantage of our special shoe sale this week and save money.

Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

At the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday, it was announced that an induction social would be given next Saturday to members. President Taylor was leader of the meeting. Professor Williams of Upper Iowa University gave a very interesting address on the advantages of the study of man over the study of books. One important remark which he made was that the great majority of college men who fail in after life had been book-worms. They had not studied man in a situation where they can be studied to the greatest advantage, i. e., in a University.

His advice was to form friendship, learn to know the inner feelings and ambitions of a college chum. But he said he felt constrained to remark that there seemed much less need for this advice here than in the average University. Even in his short stay he had been impressed by the cordiality and fellow-feeling among the students.

Met the "Boys."

Dear Father:—After bucking hard all the week I took a constitutional around the pack up town and met several of the boys at the One Minute Coffee House. One fellow ordered "Adam and Eve on a raft" and a cup of fierce coffee. We all followed suit. It proved to be poached eggs on toast and the best Mocha and Java. Send me that V which ma is saving—that "calf money."
