New Bill Restricts I. D. Distribution

By HARVEY SHAPIRO
Cardinal News Editor

The State Assembly Monday approved a bill seeking to curb teenage beer drinking and restrict the distribution of Wisconsin identification cards.

Authored by Assemblyman David Obey (D-Wausau), the measure would change the minimum beer drinking age in the state to 18 for high school graduates and 19 for those who are not graduates.

CONTRAST

This contrasts to the present state law which establishes an 18-year age limit for drinking beer, but allows counties the local option of raising their beer age to 21.

The real significance of the Obey measure lies in its proposed changes for the distribution of the identification cards which are necessary for gaining admission to teenage beer bars.

Under Obey's bill, teenagers, upon reaching the age of 18, would need their parents approval in order to obtain an I.D. card.

ISSUANCE

In addition, the cards would be issued only by counties which permitted beer drinking by those under 21 and would be valid only for those counties.

For University students, Dane County would be listed as their home county for purposes of obtaining an I.D. card.

The point of Obey's bill is to restrict the practice of many teenagers, whose home county has a 21-year beer age from driving to another county to drink and then returning intoxicated on highways.

CALENDAR

In their lengthy session Monday, the Assembly also approved by a vote of 52 to 42 a motion to place on its calendar a bill seeking to raise the beer age to 21. Another bill, which proposed an 18 year old age limit and which would eliminate the local option, was defeated 56 to 38.

After passage, Obey's bill was sent from the Assembly to the upper house for approval. However, observers feel the measure does not have a great chance of passage in the Senate, where similar measures have already been defeated.

With the legislature pressing for an adjournment by the end of this week, Obey's measure will require quick action if it is to be passed in this brief fall session. Otherwise, it will join a legion of other bills dealing with the beer age which have languished in committees.

Steiger Explains to Y-GOP: 'Party Leadership Vital Now'

By MIKE EVERS

Cardinal Staff Writer

"Republicans today have spent too much time talking about yesterday," State Assemblyman William Steiger told the Y-GOP Tuesday night. "If you don't provide leadership now, the Republican party can go nowhere."

Steiger (R-Oshkosh), a recent University graduate, spoke at the Y-GOP meeting on the challenges to the party now and in the future.

The challenges lie in higher education and government reorganization, he said.

LEADERSHIP

"It was through the leadership of Governor Knowles and the Republican legislature that we found and enacted laws for higher education," he explained. Knowles introduced a bill establishing two-year training institutes and one providing interstate cooperative training, he asserted.

"The Republican party can look with some pride at what we've done to make state government more effective."

He told the audience that the bipartisan reorganization commission is the first move since 1938 to clear the cobwebs from state leadership.

CONTRAST

"The Republican Party," in contrast to recent state Democratic Party moves, "can provide a real positive plan of action," Steiger said that the college Y-GOP is important for criticizing the programs of the regular party if they do not meet today's needs.

Group to Examine Civil Rights Project

By DALE SHANLEY

Cardinal Staff Writer

The Human Rights Committee (HRC) discussed Tuesday the possibility of bringing students from North Carolina and Virginia to the University to describe the effects of last spring's Project Understanding.

During Easter vacation of 1965, 30 University students and four faculty members went to those states.

The HRC, a sub-committee of WSA, organized Project Understanding to send a group to visit three Negro colleges, state officials, and other organizations.

MEETING

The purpose was to promote a meeting of diverse viewpoints between North and South, and to learn what effect this meeting might have on prevailing attitudes.

The group visited Longwood College for Girls and Hampton-Sidney College in Virginia. In North Carolina they traveled to the University of North Carolina, Shaw University, Winston-Salem State College, and North Carolina College, the last three predominantly Negro.

VISITORS

The HRC plans to invite five students each from the Negro colleges, and two each from the others for the reciprocal Project Understanding.

The object of this meeting, planned for early 1966, is to learn what has happened since last spring's visit and to exchange new ideas.

The HRC is contemplating a written summary of Project Understanding. This summary, it believes, would be useful to send to colleges, civic groups, and foundations to promote fund raising for similar future projects.

SPEAKERS

The committee discussed, too, the idea of participants of last spring's trip speaking before various Madison civic groups. They would explain and promote future projects, and solicit funds.

A committee member of HRC suggested the forming of a new committee to take charge of a Midwest Conference on human rights with the object of promoting more participation in this field.

CORRESPONDENCE

This committee would correspond with student governments of other Wisconsin campuses and the Big Ten schools to explain the purpose of a Midwest conference and to ask their views on such an undertaking.

Another topic of the meeting involved several foreign students who claim they have been discriminated against in their searches for Madison housing. The committee pointed out that "discrimination forms" are available at the student housing bureau. The person can fill out these forms and the bureau will act as mediator on the particular problem.

The committee also discussed the possibility of sponsoring five Vietnamese citizens who are now touring the United States to speak at the University on man's inhumanity to man.

Miss Czajka restated the resolution. More debate followed. A new member said, "I've never seen so much dissension caused by the Bull Moose Society in all my life."

Truax Squad Retrieves Doll From Lowell

By BARB WASSERMAN

Cardinal Staff Writer

Two husky members of the Truax demolition squad marched out of Lowell Hall Monday with a Vietnamese plastic doll in custody.

The 12-inch doll matches the description of those dolls that are reported to contain Vietcong explosives.

Alison Campbell, a sophomore living at Lowell, received the doll from a friend stationed in Viet Nam.

When Miss Campbell discovered that the Army is collecting the toys, she called Truax Field and was referred to the demolition squad. Two explosives experts were sent to Lowell and gingerly took the doll to the base.

Alison's seemingly harmless gift will be searched for wires and explosives. She was told to call the base in a few days to see if anything was found or if she could reclaim her doll.

The United States government has received unconfirmed reports from Army wives in Viet Nam who say that some of the dolls had exploded.

The Army has checked a number of dolls in the United States, but so far none have been found to be dangerous.

The Daily Cardinal A Page of Opinion

The Issues of The War--- The Cardinal's Conclusions

We support the present foreign policy of the United States. In preface to this editorial we note that President Johnson did not start the Viet Nam war, he inherited our commitment to it from the late President Kennedy and former President Eisenhower. We shall here discuss why the United States is NOW in Viet Nam and why we support staying there.

First, the United States is fighting in Viet Nam to uphold its foreign policy. The U.S. is committed by the protocol membership of the Republic of Viet Nam (South Viet Nam) in SEATO to defend this country against aggression. The U.S. is doing so at the request of the government of South Viet Nam. We ask those supporting withdrawal what would happen if the U.S. did not honor this treaty and commitment? Would free people then control southeast Asia? We think not.

IF WE REVOKED this treaty, what would happen to West Berlin? and NATO? and Europe? Would any ally (or Russia or China) ever believe us again? Free people would soon face another challenge, and, after rejecting our commitment in South Viet Nam, the next challenge would be even harder to meet; the U.S. would require another change in foreign policy to stop China in Thailand or Malaysia.

Second, those who contend that China does not want to control Southeast Asia are either naive or deaf; they have not understood or heard what Mao Tse-tung has said and has had recently reaffirmed by one of his top generals. Through his cries of imperialism he is trying to maintain the Chinese revolution in its virulent, aggressive stage. China needs the surplus rice production in Southeast Asia. Even more, Mao needs to feed the fire under his theology—he needs hate for an enemy. Just as Napoleon, Hitler, and Stalin needed an enemy to hold the support of the people they commanded, so does Mao. And this enemy, as Mao openly declares, is the United States. China is also locked in an ideological debate with Russia. To strengthen its political position that the road to world communism is militarism and not co-existence, China must win in Viet Nam.

Those who argue, as we have often heard recently, that China will come to co-existence just as Russia has are even more naive. Russia came to co-existence, not through a maturing of her philosophy; but after 20 years of unremitting diplomatic, economic and military containment by the U.S. In 1947, the U.S. with the Truman doctrine prevented a Communist takeover in France and Turkey. In Berlin in 1948-49, the U.S. halted Stalin and Communism by using air power, which Stalin dared challenge only at the price of war. In the Korean War the U.S., through the U.N. and the absence of the Soviet Union in the Security Council, halted Communist North Korea (a Soviet puppet). Khrushchev's attempt to expand his military perimeter in 1962, and his endeavor to establish a military, and ideological stronghold in Cuba, was met and defeated by the U.S. England and France appeased Hitler. Napoleon, Caesar and Alexander the Great are lessons from history. What makes Mao different? The Chinese have already announced their next objective after Viet Nam is Thailand.

AT THE BEGINNING of the monsoon season, the Communist supplied Viet Cong were advancing. They believed that if they could have pressed on during the rainy season, as they did against the French, they would gain control of South Viet Nam. Because of this belief the Viet Cong rejected all bids to negotiate. Now, the South Vietnamese, aided by U.S. troops, have taken the offensive. This, we hope, will bring the Viet Cong to the bargaining table. It is our belief that the goal of the U.S. is to negotiate a settlement and we now see a glimmer of light. It is our hope that the Viet Cong and their big brothers across their northern border will learn co-existence faster than Russia did.

This brings us to a third point—the "moral issue." We ask those who maintain it is immoral to fight in Viet Nam, if they believe it is likewise immoral to insure a country eventual freedom from terror. The villagers of South Viet Nam are shown that if they do not co-operate with the Viet Cong they will die. Is this the way towards free elections or even a peaceful life.

The Oz Papers

By RICHARD STONE

What's In A Name?

It has been said that were an English-speaking foreigner introduced to some brand names of our consumer products, he would be all at sea in describing the nature of the goods.

Could he tell, for instance, that Fab is a laundry detergent, whereas Tab is a bottled soft-drink? Mightn't he assume Zest and All to be sex stimulants, when any housewife knows that one is soap, the other soap-powder? Corn Flakes is a dead giveaway, but what about Alpha-Bits and Kix? The days of Carter's Little Liver Pills and Dr. Pepper's Celery Tonic are going by the boards.

Nowadays marketing executives drive themselves silly with symbolic language for package labels like: Cheer and Joy (adding emotional dimension to dish-water); Ajax and Comet (endowing cleansers with a mythic or celestial power); Hurricane and Tempest (transforming the ordinary car into an engine of unleashed and unlimited fury).

One is lead to believe that no matter how long ago man ceased to endow inanimate objects with spiritual powers, he still yearns for a world of things whose attributes are the passions of the gods. Freudians, Existentialist, and Marxists aside, we live in an age of pantheism.

It takes more critical acumen, however, to explicate the rechristenings of certain big corporations. Xerox, 3-M, Olin, Finast, Amerace—the words mean nothing. Ford Motors, American Tobacco Company, International Business Machines—these are names, by god, we can trust.

Walter Margulies, of Lippincott and Margulies, a New York industrial-design firm, has shrunken Cities Service Oil Company to Citgo and Tennessee Gas Transmission to Tenneco, which, for all anyone knows, could be a peppermint wafer as much as a utilities works.

Margulies swears that "many of the new products that come out are basically alike in function and appearance. So the name is sometimes basically alike in function and appearance. So the name is sometimes the only real difference between one brand and another."

For a zircon like Citgo he charged $50,000, while the real work, he said, was done by a computer playing anagrams with four-, five-, and six-letter words, each starting with "CI." Citgo was picked because "it had more movement and a sense of action."

Predating Margulies' aesthetic are the words of Dr. Johnson, who wrote that: "There is nothing in the art of versifying so much exposed to the power of the imagination as the accommodation of the sound to the sense." The "correspondence theory" of poetry is having its great revival in the garrets of Madison Avenue.

Last week another advertising firm, Watkins and Chimera, added a new shoot to the trend by using a computer to make names for children.

"There has always been a real problem," said 39-year-old David Chimera, a hulking six-footer and Navy Golden Gloves of 1948, "in what to name baby. Prospective parents are now coming to us for the answers."

"It's an immense job to name the thousands of commercial products spawned each year, but it's infinitely harder," he quipped, "to name the millions of babies spawned each year!" For their services, Watkins and Chimera receive $400 a syllable.

With so many Susans, Bobbys, Ellens, Charlies, and Freds running around, status-anxious parents want names that sound of novelty for their offspring. "During the Depression when I was a boy," a father will often proclaim, "I couldn't afford a good name, but I want my kids to have the best that money can buy."

Parents tend to shy away from exotic names like Robespierre, Medusa, or Polyphemus, Chimera noted, but "they actually like the computer-synthesized names, and they're evstastic when they find that their name is the only one of its kind."

At the firm's 46th Street offices, a large Telectra 70 is programmed with data about the father's occupation, the mother's maiden name, their hobbies, and what qualities they want apparent in their progeny. Mr. and Mrs. Clark Diedrichs agreed that popularity was the most important blessing a child could have. They settled happily on U-Lov-It for their daughter.

One successful businessman, who had worked his way up from scratch, thought that drive and energy was the key to productive living. Today the delighted father bounces two-month-old Whamex O'Brien on his knee.

Dr. Millard Burke, a prominent Manhattan psychoanalyst, would like to see his infant son follow in his footsteps. Only yesterday he proudly brought pink and puling Jungathon home from the hospital.

And a Fordham mathematician, whose wife has a passion for Melville, says that little Ahab-220 is the terror of the block.

parodies leap so successfully from healthy malice to a high level of wit."

(5) Art Buchwald, one of the most famous journalists in the country wrote a letter to the senior editor of Putnam publishing company and said: "The other night at a party, I presented 'The Official Sex Manual' to some of the guests. It was the biggest hit of the evening and all our friends in the Government from Governor Harriman to Jack Valenti at the White House asked me to get them a copy."

(6) President Lyndon Johnson was sent a copy at the Bethesda hospital.

(7) The author is going to be on two television shows (the Merv Griffin Show and The Young Set) and on radio to discuss the book in front of the entire country.

(8) It will be one of the most successful new books this year.

I guess the rest of the country outside of Madison is paying no heed to the wise words of a police chief turned literary critic. If the book is of "questionable moral significance" as it must be because that's what you said it is, then what kind of a world do we live in today when the President of the United States reads such "pornography." At least there is someone around like you to try to ward off such immoral influences from the fine folk of Madison.

Peace Corp Drive Starts Here Sunday

A Peace Corps team from Washington D.C. will visit the campus for one week starting Sunday.

Staff members including returned volunteers will explain the Peace Corps, its training and service programs, and the opportunities it offers students. They will also accept applications.

An information center will be staffed by the team during the week-long visit and the non-competitive placements tests will be given every day. These tests are used to determine an applicant's strengths and qualifications and require no preparation.

Members of the team will be available as speakers at any time during the week. Arrangements may be made with the Peace Corps' liaison, Wallace Douma, Office of Student Financial Aids at 262-3060.

The Peace Corps has more requests for volunteers than it can fill and the need is still growing. Openings exist for people from most professional, technical, academic and skilled trade backgrounds. Many can qualify for immediate training.

Tom Thomsen wanted challenging work

He found it at Western Electric

T. R. Thomsen, B.S.M.E., University of Nebraska, '58, came to Western Electric for several reasons. Important to him was the fact that our young engineers play vital roles right from the start, working on exciting engineering projects in communications including: electronic switching, thin film circuitry, microwave systems and optical masers.

Western Electric's wide variety of challenging assignments appealed to Tom, as did the idea of advanced study through full-time graduate engineering training, numerous management courses and a company-paid Tuition Refund Plan.

Tom knows, too, that we'll need thousands of experienced engineers for supervisory positions within the next few years. And he's getting the solid experience necessary to qualify. Right now,

Tom is developing new and improved inspection and process control techniques to reduce manufacturing costs of telephone switching equipment. Tom is sure that Western Electric is the right place for him. What about you?

If you set the highest standards for yourself, enjoy a challenge, and have the qualifications we're looking for — we want to talk to you! Opportunities for fast-moving careers exist now for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, and also for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. For more detailed information, get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. University Faculty Meets High School Administrators

High school administrators and guidance counselors of 13 northwestern Wisconsin counties and University faculty members and officials will meet to discuss problems of mutual concern on Thursday.

The High School-University conference will begin at 1 p.m. at the Elk's Club, 36 E. Eau Claire St., in Rice Lake.

Representatives of high schools in Douglas, Burnett, Washburn, Sawyer, Polk, Barron, Rusk, St.

Croix, Dunn, Chippewa, Pierce, Pepin, and Eau Claire counties will attend the conference.

ONE OF SERIES

The meeting is another in the series of conferences being held throughout the state to enable high school and University personnel become better acquainted and to discuss current problems. The meeting is being coordinated by the University's high school relations department and Rice Lake High School.

On the program are discussions on admissions, housing, costs, financial aids, and degree requirements of schools and colleges on all campuses of the University.

REPRESENT UNIVERSITY

Willard Swanson, principal of the Rice Lake High school, will open the conference. Representing the University system will be Wayne Kuckkahn, director of admissions; Wallace Douma, director of student financial aids; and James Speerschnelder, assistant dean of the College of Letters and Science, all of the Madison campus; Robert Schmidt, student personnel coordinator of the University Center System and Wayne Knopf and Director Doris Stacy, both of the high school relations department on the University's Milwaukee campus.

'Little Peter' Plays At Middleton

The Finnish award-winning film, "Little Peter" will be shown Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Middleton Theater.

The film won the top award in its class at the Berlin Film Festival in 1962 and has won acclaim for its outstanding photography.

Jack Witikka, writer-director of the film, is a leading director in Finland and director of the Finnish National Theater. Mr. Witikka, an authority on modern theater, has also directed some of the first productions of recent famous European playwrights.

"Little Peter" tells the adven-

The film is being sponsored by the Wisconsin Finnish-American Society.

Colo. Students Protest Rising Trend In Costs

BOULDER, Colo. (CPS)--A crowd of about 400 students last week picketed a Colorado state legislature committee holding hearings on the University of Colorado's budget.

The demonstration, which protested the high cost of education, received support of some within the Associated Students of the University of Colorado but officers of ASUC were hesitant to endorse it. One ASUC official tried to get the demonstrators to leave before the legislative committee left its meeting for lunch. The demonstrators refused.

An ASUC met with the legislative committee and, among other things, asked them to help keep the cost down for an out-of-state student coming to Colorado.

While the committee met with university officials, student leaders addressed the group waiting outside. "We're here today so we'll have the money we need to build more classrooms and hire professors," one said.

Last year, the University of Colorado requested $13.4 million of the $22 million budget from the state. President Joseph Smiley termed that request the "bare bones" needs. When the legislature allocated $12,425,488, a $2 million cut was made in the budget, a proposed increase in faculty salaries was cut, and new teaching positions were dropped.

The legislative committee is making a preliminary study of the University's budget before submitting its report to the legislature later this year.

Germany, Scotland, France, Spain...nice places to visit, but would you want to live there? You would? Well, you just might be able to.

Two non-profit organizations have come into existence within the last six years to provide job opportunities abroad for students and teachers, ages 18 to 40, for a summer vacation or longer in the language area of their choosing.

Staff members of the International Student Travel Center (ISTC), the more recently formed organization, will be at the University Nov. 29 and 30 to interview students interested in the Jobs Abroad program.

The other organization, the International Student Information Service (ISIS), was founded in 1959, two years before ISTC. Headquartered in Brussels, Belgium, ISIS finds the jobs and arranges transportation for its international members. While ISTC visits campuses in North, Central and South America, ISIS visits those in Europe.

GUARANTEED JOBS

More than 2,500 overseas jobs for American students have been found by ISIS. After its first year, when it placed 150 students in Jobs Abroad, it guaranteed a job to every participant of the program. To this day, it hasn't failed to live up to that guarantee.

Although ISTC/ISIS are non-profit organizations, operating costs necessitate charging participants a yearly membership fee of three dollars and an orientation registration fee of seven dollars. If a member is not accepted, his $10 will be refunded.

The cost of the program itself, not including transportation, is $150. A summer program including round-trip transportation is available for $475; a year-round program including transportation to and from Europe within a year costs $575.

It is possible for an ISIS member to earn free transportation to Europe by being a campus representative. If the representative recruits 15 Job Abroad participants, he has a choice between a free round trip or cash.

HARD WORK

Somewhat like the Peace Corps, ISIS promises its participants hard work, low wages, and long hours.

Jobs fall into nine main categories: (1) special, such as office, sales, secretarial, technical, or those that do not fit into the other eight categories; (2) factory; (3) construction; (4) restaurant/hotel/resort; (5) farm work; (6) camp counselling; (7) child care; (8) hospital work; (9) work camp.

Salaries range from just room and board to $200 monthly. Although jobs for both males and females may be found in all categories, males are generally preferred for factory and construction work, and women for child care.

There are four language areas in the program. They are English speaking (Finland, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Great Britain, North Africa, Japan, Holland); German speaking (Austria, Germany, Switzerland, and parts of Belgium); French speaking (Belgium, France, Switzerland); and other (Spain and Italy).

PROFICIENCIES VARY

Language requirements, however, vary not only across countries but also across jobs. Whereas only basic knowledge of a language is required for farm work, a good deal of proficiency is requested for camp counselors.

Even within the same job category, there is room for persons of different levels of language knowledge. For instance, in caring for children not old enough to speak, there may be no foreign language requirement; but if the child is over one year old, teaching English may be part of the job and would require good to fluent use of the foreign language.

Although job satisfaction is not guaranteed by ISIS, efforts are made to reassign dissatisfied participants. No refunds are made if a person decides not to participate in the program, but his deposit may be applied to a later date or transferred to another person if a valid reason is given.

More information about the Jobs Abroad program can be obtained by writing to ISTC World Headquarters, 866 UN Plaza, New York, New York 10017; or to ISIS World Headquarters, 133, rue Hotel des Monnaies, Brussels 6, Belgium.

'How to Succeed' Stars Spark Publicity for Madison Run

By JEAN SUE JOHNSON
Managing Editor

"I've got everything I don't need." With this lively statement a wild interview with the two stars of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" began.

Darryl Hickman and Jeff DeBenning were on campus Tuesday to spark publicity for their hit musical whose six day run begins Nov. 2 at the Orpheum. Both played their respective parts on Broadway as well.

Hickman, looking like 18, admitted being 32 years old and said that when he joined the actors' union at the ripe old age of five, he paid $4 initiation fee. "Now it's about $300," he quipped, "but your readers wouldn't remember the 'good old days.'"

Brother to the Dwayne Hickman of television's Doble Gillis series, Darryl's official biography says that early in his career he attended school at MGM with other child stars and was known to play football with a young Elizabeth Taylor.

ACTOR-WRITER

Since those days, Hickman has starred in more than 200 motion pictures, countless television productions and road companies. He also writes screenplays and is presently at work on a musical comedy.

Hickman said that the first script he ever wrote was for the television series "Loretta Young Theater". He also acted in it.

"It drove me nuts," he groaned. "All the actors kept trying to change the script. I worked for weeks on it."

He replaced Robert Morse as the ambitious Finch in the "How to Succeed" Broadway production.

"Finch is a fink," Hickman summarized. Softening this appraisal, he added, "He's really a wonderful guy; he's a prototype of our society. Everyone of us is ambitious and he's a part of everybody."

DeBenning added that Finch is the sort of guy to buy a $1 paper-back, read it, use the six easy steps in it on how to succeed and wind up "with everything in the company, including the broad, the stock and all but the President's job--and only because he doesn't want that. Instead, he becomes Chairman of the Board."

"JOY TO WORK"

DeBenning, a tall, heavy set man, puffed a cigar as he commented that "How to Succeed" was one show he didn't mind doing every night.

"I hear the overture and I want to get out there," he said. "I love the music, the show and the role. This particular show is a pleasure to do every night."

Replacing Rudy Vallee in February, 1964, DeBenning finished the seven months of the Broadway run and then continued in his role of J. B. Biggley, eccentric president of the show's corporation, with the touring company.

HOLLYWOOD SHERIFF

Before moving to the executive position, DeBenning was a frequent Hollywood sheriff. "My beard, frame and general make up made me a natural for the role of friendly sheriff. I played the role 27 times."

Before leaving, he made a special effort to tell this reporter that he was a high school drop out who went on to graduate from a state college at the age of 36 with a degree in speech and drama and a minor in business administration plus a certificate to teach in a secondary school.

In connection with the show's Madison run, the Orpheum theater is offering a special discount to students. Any pair of main floor tickets for any performance (with the exception of Friday and Saturday nights) will be $1 cheaper if purchased with a coupon from the Cardinal and a student fee card.

Regents Accept Two Bequests Totaling $3,552

Two "Living Memorial" bequests totaling $3,552.97 from two former Wisconsin residents were accepted by University Regents Friday.

One, from the late Selma S. Konig, Sparta, was made to aid the University German department in its teaching and research work. The other, from the late Steve Huber, Milwaukee, will help needy medical students gain their educations.

Miss Konig bequeathed the residue of her estate, amounting to $3,052.97, to the University. She taught German in the University Centers in Manitowoc, Racine, and Kenosha from 1946 until her retirement in 1958.

Mr. Huber bequeathed $500 to the University for the establishment of the Anna Fuchs Memorial Student Loan Fund in honor of his mother.

King To Give Nov. 23 Talk On Integration

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., 1964 Nobel Peace Prize winner, will present "The Future of Integration" in a lecture here on November 23. The program, sponsored by the Union Forum Committee, will be held at the University Stock Pavilion at 3:30 p.m.

Author of numerous articles and books, King studied at several colleges and universities, receiving his Ph.D. from Boston University in 1955 in the field of Systematic Theology. He has since then received more than 20 honorary degrees from colleges and universities and was cited as Time Magazine's Man of the Year in 1963.

Born and raised in Atlanta, Georgia, King has since travelled extensively in Europe, Asia, South America, Africa and the United States. He has lectured in more than 200 United States colleges and Universities.

According to Paul Mennes, senior from Neenah, Wis., chairman of the program, tickets for the King lecture will go on sale at the Union Box Office to students exclusively on November 15-17 for 75 cents. There is a limit of two tickets per student. Sales will be open to the public from November 18 until the time of the lecture.

On Campus

with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

TWELVE IS A MANY-SPLENORED THING

Today I begin my twelfth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper.

These dozen years have passed like a dozen minutes. In fact, I would not believe so much time has gone by except that I have my wife nearby as a handy reference. When I started this column, she was a mere slip of a girl—supple as a willow bough and fair as the morn. Today she is gnarled, lumpy, and given to biting the postman. Still, I count myself lucky. Most of my friends who were married at the same time have wives who chase cars all day. I myself have never had this trouble, and I attribute my good fortune to the fact that I have never struck my wife with my hand. I have always used a folded newspaper, even during the prolonged newspaper strike of 1961 in New York. During this journalistic period I had the airmail edition of the Manchester Guardian flown in daily from England. I must admit, however, that it was not entirely satisfactory. The airmail edition of the Guardian is printed on paper so light and flimsy that it makes very little impression when one smacks one's wife. Mine, in fact, thought it was some kind of game and tore several pairs of my trousers.

But I digress. For twelve years, I say, I have been writing this column. That is a fact, and here is another: I shave every morning with Personna Stainless Steel Blades. I bring up Personna Stainless Steel Blades because this column is sponsored by the makers of Personna and they are inclined to brood if I omit to mention their products.

Not, let me hasten to state, that it is any chore for me to sing the praises of Personna—as you will agree once you try this sharpest, smoothest-shaving, longest-lasting blade ever devised by the makers of Personna Blades—now available both in Double Edge and Injector style. Personna, always the most rewarding of blades, today offers even an extra reward—a chance to grab yourself a fistful of $100 bills from a $100,000 bowl! The Personna Stainless Steel Sweepstakes is off and running, and you're all eligible to enter. Visit your friendly Personna dealer soon to pick up an entry blank (void where prohibited by law).

And, by the way, while you're at your friendly Personna dealers, why don't you ask for a can of Burma Shave? It comes in Regular or Menthol; it soaks rings around any other lather, and it's made by the makers of Personna.

But I digress. For twelve years, I say, this column has been discussing, forthrightly and fearlessly, such burning campus questions as "Should students be allowed to attend first-hour classes in pajamas?" and "Should deans be retired at age 25?" and "Should foreign exchange students be held for ransom?"

Today, continuing the tradition, we take up the thorniest academic problem of all: the high cost of tuition. Let me tell you how one student, Lintel Sigafos by name, solved this problem.

Lintel, while still a boy in Straitened Circumstances, Idaho, had his heart set on college, but, alas, he couldn't afford the tuition. He applied for a Regents Scholarship but, alas, his reading speed was not very rapid—only two words an hour—and before he finished even the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Lintel then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—balancing an ice cream cone on his chin—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then he found the answer: he would get a student loan! Of course, he would have to pay it back after graduation, but clever Lintel solved that, too: he kept changing his major, never accumulating enough credits to graduate until he was 65 years old. Then he repaid the loan out of his Social Security.

Where there's a will, there's a way.

The makers of Personna® Stainless Steel Blades and Burma Shave® are happy to bring you another season of Max Shulman's uncensored, uninhibited, and unpredictable column. We think you'll be happy, too, when you try our products.

'U' Physics Department Will Develop Powerful Electron Microscope at Argonne

ARGONNE, ILL.--A two-year experimental program that is basic to the design of possibly the world's most powerful electron microscope has been initiated by the University in cooperation with Argonne National Laboratory and Associated Midwest Universities (AMU).

The research will be conducted on campus as part of a joint electron microscope project sponsored by AMU and Argonne. The aim of this project is to construct at the Argonne site southwest of Chicago a radically new type of electron microscope laboratory.

This installation may consist of several different types of electron microscopes all operated with the same power supply, an electron accelerator in the one-to-five-million-volt range.

32 MEMBERS

AMU is a non-profit corporation of 32 major universities and research institutions organized for promoting research and education in all branches of science and to develop programs involving the use of Argonne facilities and those of other laboratories. Argonne National Laboratory is operated by the University of Chicago for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Scientists here will build an experimental million-volt electrostatic electron accelerator, a high-vacuum beam tube and an electrostatic analyzer for controlling the energy of the beam and measuring its stability. With this apparatus they will obtain information on achieving a well-focused beam of high-energy electrons of nearly the same energy. This information is vital to electron microscope design because the quality of the electron beam determines the quality of the magnified image.

T-23 SITE

The University investigation will be carried out in the Nuclear Engineering Department laboratories of the Engineering Experiment Station. The accelerator and analyzer will be installed in Building T-23 on the Engineering Campus.

The electron beam generator will be housed in a stainless steel tank about 2-1/2 feet in diameter and 5 feet in length. A beam tube from the accelerator will be maintained at a very high vacuum (less than one seven-trillionth of atmospheric pressure). The electrostatic analyzer will deflect the electron beam with a highly stabilized voltage so that its energy can be precisely measured and controlled.

Two University scientists will work full time on the project, which will be guided by Raymond G. Herb, physics. The scientists are John M. Donhowe, an expert in the mathematical analysis of accelerator beams and in the experimental measurement and control of beam voltages, and Earl Meyers, a specialist in high vacuum techniques.

Prof. Max Carbon, chairman of the Nuclear Engineering Department, will provide administrative supervision of the project.

MARSHAL SUGGESTS

Investigations leading to the development of a Midwest electron microscope laboratory at Argonne began two and one-half years ago after the project was suggested by William R. Marshall, associate dean of the College of Engineering.

Work on the project was started at Argonne in the summer of 1964 with Ernest D. Klema, chairman of the Department of Engineering Sciences at Northwestern University, serving as coordinator.

The AMU-Argonne high voltage electron microscope laboratory, as proposed, would be the first large scale undertaking to be planned jointly from its earliest stages by a group of participating universities and Argonne. The installation would be used primarily for biological and metallurgical research and for electron microscope development. Design and construction costs of the entire facility, which has not yet been formally authorized, would be approximately $5 million.

Collegiate Party Leaders Plan For Fall Elections

By DANA HESSE

Cardinal Staff Writer

Collegiate Party plans for the upcoming Wisconsin Student Association (WSA) fall elections were discussed at a meeting of ten party organizers last night.

Party President Al Ausmankeynoted the meeting with a warning that the group "had to make a good showing to prevent a one-party campus."

DISSATISFACTION

He noted that there was a "lot of dissatisfaction with Student Rights Party (SRP)," a fact which is giving Collegiate Party a "real chance" for victory in the Senate elections.

The group decided to field candidates for Senate, under the Collegiate label, but will encourage them to conduct personal campaigns on strictly local issues. Members earlier had discarded a suggestion that Collegiate run as independents in the fall election.

REFERENDUM

The party made no definite decisions on platform planks, but sentiment among Collegiate Party senators was against passage of the pending referendum on having the Senate express opinions on off-campus issues.

Ausman and others noted that passage of the referendum would be in opposition to the Collegiate view that Senate exists purely as a service organization for students.

CAPABILITY

Looking at Collegiate chances in the Nov. 23 elections, Ausman stated, "The party's strength will lie in capable candidates...and the chances are very good."

Although no estimate was made of how many of the nine districts would elect a Collegiate senator, members were optimistic that it would be a majority.

American Solves Parking Problem

WASHINGTON (CPS)--

Every school is having its parking problem and American University is no different. University officials feel the problem is so grave, in fact, that they have computerized it.

Officials say the new system will allow the business office to compute within 24 hours a list of parking offenders. Disciplinary letters will be prepared automatically by the data processing system and will be mailed to an offender within 24 hours.

According to the parking and traffic regulation office, "any student who receives three or more parking violation tickets during a school year will receive the following disciplinary actions:

"Three violation tickets--a warning letter.

"Four violation tickets--a 30-day suspension of parking privileges on university property.

"Five violation tickets--dismissal from the university."

Board of Regents Considers Site For New Medical Center

Pres. Harrington told the Board of Regents Friday that the Medical Center might have to plan for a new location.

The Center faces expansion needs and requires a building program which could go as high as $80 million. This raised the question of how the medical buildings might be used in the future. Donald H. Sites, university architect, said relocation of the Medical Center opens up a lot of possibilities—including use for classrooms or research, student housing, or Union facilities.

A new Union to serve the west side of the campus has been under consideration for several years. This facility would not replace but rather supplement the existing Union on Langdon St. It would provide dining and recreation to students and faculty for whom the present Union is too distant.

The advantages to putting a Union in the present hospital include a saving of $800,000 to $1 million in land acquisition, more space, closer location to students west of Bascom Hill, and better access to University ave. traffic. The disadvantages include delay in opening new facilities, lack of parking, and the possible reluctance of students to use a former hospital as a Union.

The advantages of the Randall ave. and W. Johnson st. site, according to Union officials, include the opportunity to build the most efficient building possible, better parking and earlier construction. The disadvantages of this site include the cost of land now occupied by apartment buildings, and distance from buildings near Bascom Hill where the heaviest concentrations of students are anticipated, hence, less utilization.

Asked to comment on the outlook, Porter Butts, Union director and chairman of the Union Planning Committee, said yesterday:

"The question of developing Union facilities in the lower floors of the present hospital would be academic if the University decides not to vacate the hospital. So we have to wait to see what decision is made.

"There have been some preliminary, purely exploratory discussions of the possibilities. It is evident there are many pros and cons, not the least of which is the problem of how to provide essential services on the west side of the campus until the hospital space became available.

"So far as 'hospital atmosphere' is concerned, however, it could safely be said that if the present building were to be used, it would be so completely remodeled and redecorated that it wouldn't be recognizable as a former hospital."

United Givers Fund Drive Up; Says Director

The percapital gift to the United Givers fund drive this fall is $22 up from $14.90 a year ago, Harland Klagos, director of the Madison campus drive, announced recently.

Klagos said he was encouraged by the increase but noted that more than half of the University's Madison campus goal of $104,500 had yet to be pledged as of October 20. The United Givers Fund campaign ends Thursday.

The emphasis in this year's campaign is on "fair share" giving. A "Fair Share Giver" pledges to contribute $6 for every $1,000 of annual income to the United Givers Fund.

Klagos pointed out that many University staff members or members of their families have been helped by United Givers agencies. The Family Service, an agency which receives 91 per cent of its operating funds through United Givers is currently helping 250 Madison area families, some of them from the University community.

National Teach-In in Toronto Wrangled With World Problems

TORONTO, Ontario (CPS)

Despite the absence of the main participants and student charges of censorship, last weekend's (Oct. 8-10) International Teach-in gamely wrangled with international problems in a revolutionary world. The Saturday session on Vietnam was broadcast to over 30 campuses.

Planning to provide the first fact-to-face confrontation between the main actors in the Vietnam war, the teach-in invitations received last minute "regrets" from the United States, North Vietnam, Communist China, and the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam. All but Communist China had indicated they would send representatives.

The organizers substituted a semi-official debate between official spokesmen for Cambodia and South Vietnam and unofficial defenders of the United States and NLF. For their efforts, they received cries of censorship and a threatened free speech crisis.

CONTROVERSY

The controversy flared when American political scientist Robert Scalapino, a defender of state department policy, was charged with forcing the cancellation of the appearance of Michael Myers, an opponent of American policy.

Myers, a graduate student at the University of California at Berkeley, contended that he was dropped from the debate after Berkeley professor Scalapino threatened to walk out on the program. "I was told that the committee decided to defer to Scalapino's demands. He had them over a barrel," Myers said.

About 35 students "sat down" at a demonstration Sunday to protest the teach-in committee's refusal to allow Myers' appearance. Teach-in organizer Chandler Davis of the University of Toronto and program chairman

Charles Hanley announced that Myers would speak Sunday evening under the sponsorship of four University of Toronto student groups.

An estimated 5,600 persons saw Phuong Margain, Cambodian secretary general in the cabinet of Prince Norodom Sihanouk; Nguyen Phu Duc, minister-counsellor to the embassy of South Vietnam in Washington; American journalist William Worthy and Scalapino clash over the nature of the Vietnam war.

CHARGES

Duc charged that North Vietnam is conducting a "subversive campaign" to gain control of South Vietnam. The Cambodian representative rejected Duc's claims and contended that "the only intervention in South Vietnam has been American intervention."

Scalapino, whose speech was interrupted often by audience cries of "we want Myers," contended that the "NLF is and always has been an instrument of the Communist party of North Vietnam." He added that United States acceptance of Hanoi's position on the war would "condemn thousands of people to destruction."

Worthy, who presented the North Vietnamese point of view, condemned the United States for conducting a "Hitler-type of war" in Vietnam.

Other teach-in sessions focused on "revolution and the right of self-determination" and "revolution and the citizen's moral responsibility."

Grades Heard At Kalamazoo

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (CPS)—Some students at Kalamazoo College are getting verbal grades.

What they hear, simply, is the recorded voice of their professor evaluating and grading their term papers or lab reports. By replacing the red pencil with a dictation machine, several professors have found that they can give students more than twice as many comments without increasing the time it takes to grade a set of papers.

The school has not had the opportunity to evaluate the system scientifically but some observations, based on the 200 students involved in the initial test, have been released.

Thus far the system has been tried by professors in the English, history, philosophy, and chemistry departments. All the teachers who have tried the new form of grading plan to keep using it. Dr. John B. Moore, who introduced the system at Kalamazoo, says that student-teacher contact is greatly increased. Dr. Moore originally tried the idea in an attempt to save grading time. Instead, he found he was spending about the same amount of time grading papers but was making far more detailed comments than he did with a pen.

There have been no student complaints and much praise from those who felt they were receiving more personal attention. "We get a lot more understanding just by hearing the tone of the professor's voice," one student said.

Weekend Protests Cause New Hunt for Communists

(CPS)—A new hunt for Communists may be one result of last weekend's protests of the widening United States role in the Vietnam war.

In Chicago Sunday U.S. Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach claimed that Communists are active in the marches and demonstrations protesting the war in Viet Nam and that the justice department has begun an investigation.

Katzenbach charged that some Communists were working for the Students for a Democratic Society, a national group that has been a leader in the anti-war movement. The attorney general said he is awaiting results of his department's investigation to determine the strength of SDS and whether there are any direct ties between the group and the Communist Party.

DRAFT

Katzenbach cited federal laws against aiding and abetting persons to avoid the draft and described SDS pamphlets that were distributed at several rallies that tell how to avoid military service.

Paul Booth, a spokesman for SDS, said that "our program is perfectly legal. We are advocating that people should become conscientious objectors, not draft dodgers." SDS leaflets and literature do not advise people to avoid the procedures of the Selective Service Act, he said, but to file with their draft boards as conscientious objectors.

"Most importantly," Booth said, "we feel that the attorney general's drumming up of the Communist issue only serves to obscure the real issue which is the war in Viet Nam." He said that SDS would be willing to explain its program to any interested group, including representatives of the justice department when and if they inquire.

COMMUNISTS

In a staff study released last week, the Senate's Internal Security Subcommittee also charged that the demonstrations have "clearly passed into the hands of Communists and extremist elements."

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.), vice-chairman of the subcommittee, said that the weekend demonstrations were especially characteristic of Communist tactics.

The subcommittee's study, prepared at Dodd's direction, conceded that "the great majority" of persons who differ with the administration's policy in Viet Nam are "loyal Americans." But the study suggested that leaders in the anti-war movement have failed to prevent or limit Communist infiltration of their ranks and have thus left control to people "who are openly sympathetic to the Vietcong and openly hostile to the United States."

SANE

Meanwhile, impressed with their weekend showing, leaders in the movement have pressed plans for a March on Washington against the war. The march, now being organized by SANE, an established pacifist group, will be held Nov. 27 and will include rallies at the White House and the Washington Monument.

The weekend demonstrations ranged from a parade of 10,000 down New York's Fifth Avenue to a memorial service for Viet Nam war dead at Purdue University. Similar demonstrations were held overseas and in Canada. In London, some 20 pickets marched in front of the American Embassy while others paraded in Trafalgar Square.

The New York marchers were greeted by jeers and occasional violence. Eggs were thrown and several demonstrators were splashed with red paint. At several points along the parade route, small groups charged the marchers and were quickly hauled back by police. No arrests were made during the march.

BERKELEY

In Berkeley, thousands of students gathered in a plaza at the civic center. An estimated 10,000 marchers were turned back by police as they attempted to march to Oakland Army Base Friday night. A second effort to march to the base on Saturday after an all-night vigil Friday night was also rebuffed.

The Viet Nam Day Committee at Berkeley plans to attempt the march again early in November, with sympathy protests organized in Washington by the National Coordinating Committee to End the War.

Eleven persons were arrested at the main gate of Truax Air Force Base near Madison, Wis., the headquarters of the National Coordinating Committee, when they tried to enter the base and make a citizen's arrest of the base commander.

PICKETS

Seventeen persons were detained for three hours for picketing outside the Special Forces Training Center at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, Saturday. The demonstrators, organized by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill Student Peace Union, had driven from the campus to the only known Special Forces base in the U.S. The picketers were taken to the office of the provost marshal and threatened with arrest but were released later in the afternoon.

SCOOP!

What literature professor has been enthralled by his students with vocal excerpts from Gilbert and Sullivan?

Yale Students Appraise Staff

(CPS)—Yale University has taken the first step in giving students a voice in faculty tenure appointments.

University authorities plan to invite academically high-ranking students to submit "a written appraisal of the strengths and weaknesses" of their educational experience in lectures, discussions, and seminars.

The move, which is subject to faculty approval, is part of a complete review of the institution's system of faculty appointments. The review was ordered by Kingman Brewster, Jr., president of Yale, after a controversy last spring when Richard J. Bernstein, an associate professor of philosophy, was not recommended for a promotion to the tenure position of full professor.

Students demonstrated against what they considered an injustice to an "outstanding teacher." The department complicated the issue when it recommended Prof. Bernstein for tenure but not for promotion. Bernstein has since left Yale and is chairman of the philosophy department at Haverford College, Haverford, Pa.

If the plan is implemented, each student graduating from Yale College with departmental honors and each recipient of a degree from the graduate school will be invited to submit a written appraisal of his education to the chairman of his major field and to the appropriate dean.

The report, however, does not establish any mechanism for communicating student evaluations to the tenure committee. Neither the department chairman nor the dean would have to use the evaluations in their own reports. Students involved in last spring's demonstrations said the report was a step in the right direction, but that any final provisions would have to insure that student evaluations would be used.

Sobocinski and Richter Honored Harriers End Dual Season, Prepare for Big Ten Meet

PHIL SOBOCINSKI

BOB RICHTER

Tackle Phil Sobocinski and line-backer Bob Richter won the two awards this week for outstanding play against Ohio State Saturday.

Sobocinski, a junior was moved to offense just last spring, received the Bucky award for his general all-around play. He played the entire game at offensive left tackle.

Linemen John Roedel (guard) and Tony Loukas (center) also graded out well, but Sobocinski was given the award because of his consistency.

VARSITY SKUNKED

In the annual game between the varsity and freshmen football managers yesterday, freshmen managers Dave Aegeter and Rick Steiner overwhelmingly defeated varsity managers Mike Harris and Bob Hanson, 63-7.

The Savage award for defensive ability went to Bob Richter. The big junior had 24 tackles against the Buckeyes, twelve of which were unassisted. This brought his season total to 54 tackles with another 41 assists.

Richter is also the leader in the Badger Club for defensive ability.

BADGER BLURBS . . . Safety

Dave Fronek, tackle Mo Maselter, defensive halfback Dave Berg, and middle guard Mike London also joined the Badger Club over the weekend . . . they joined linebackers Bob Richter and Ray Marcin, ends Eric Rice and Rodger Alberts, defensive halfback Tom Brigham, and safety Bob Grossman . . . If fullback Gale Bucciarelli is well enough to play Saturday, the Badgers will be at full strength against the Wolves . . . the sophomore has been sidelined since the Iowa game due to a charleyhorse . . . The bump halfback Tom Schinke received on his elbow in the Ohio State game wasn't serious . . . he just has to take it easy for a while following any irritation to the calcification

By BOB FRAHM
Badger standouts Bruce Fraser and Ken Latigolal finished 1-2 last Saturday at the Madison Arboretum, but DePaul runners swept the next four places and handed Wisconsin's cross country team a 26-30 loss.

AN OPEN LETTER TO CAMP RANDALL ANNOUNCERS

Dear Sirs:
As a senior at the great University, I sometimes feel that a few niceties are owed me for attending football games for four years. Your announcing has been a high spot, since my seats have been such that it is highly impossible to follow the action on the field.

My complaint is concerning the discrimination you have been using in this, my last year at the University, when selecting scores to announce during the games. It seems to me that you have been omitting one very important one--Slippery Rock.

To me, Slippery Rock is football, and football is Slippery Rock. I have waited patiently all season but to no avail. I hope you will rectify this mistake before it is too late. I graduate in June.

WILLIAM M. RADCLIFF

The defeat marked the close of the dual meet season for the Badgers, who face their next competition on November 8 in the Big Ten championship meet at Minnesota.

Fraser again ran an outstanding race, covering the four mile course in 20:11.1 through a cold gusty wind. Latigolal followed him home with a 20:23 clocking.

DePaul's John Jaeger was just five seconds behind Latigolal with a time of 20:28. Bill Drennen, Pat Savage, and John Foxon finished fourth, fifth, and sixth, respectively for the Demons.

Wisconsin sophomore Rick Poole enjoyed his best performance of the season as he finished seventh in 21:31. Barney Peterson was clocked in 21:43, good for ninth place.

With an open date this weekend, the Badgers can look ahead to the Big Ten meet.

An Insurance Company Career?

Talk it over with an E.M. interviewer

One of the major industrial insurance companies in the United States, Employers Mutuals of Wausau offers interesting, rewarding careers to hundreds of college men and women.

Some who joined us majored in insurance, but most were unaware until they talked with our interviewers that their education could be applied and their aims realized in an insurance company.

Talk with our representative about the opportunities we can offer at our home office and in more than 100 cities large and small throughout the country.

He will be at the School of Commerce and at Bascom Hall Friday, October 29, to interview seniors for the positions of CLAIM ADJUSTER, UNDERWRITER, ACCOUNTANT, and GROUP UNDERWRITER. For information, please contact the placement office.
