REV. H. S. COFFIN IS CHIEF SPEAKER OF CONFERENCE

"IS ONE OF LEADING AUTHORS AND EDUCATORS IN AMERICA"—Nelson

The Rev. Henry Sloan Coffin, president of the Union Theological Seminary, will be the chief speaker at the annual university religious conference, to be held Feb. 25 to 27, according to an announcement made yesterday by James M. Nelson '27, chairman.

The Rev. Coffin was born in New York in 1877, received his B. A. degree at Yale in 1897, and his M. A. in 1900. Later he studied at New York college, Edinburgh, the University of Marburg, and the Union Theological Seminary.

Well Known Educator

He was ordained a Presbyterian minister in 1900 and was pastor of the Bedford Park church in New York from 1900 to 1905. From 1908 to 1914 he was annual preacher at both Yale and Harvard.

"Dr. Coffin," said Nelson yesterday, "is one of the best known authors and religious educators in America today. His stand on modern sociological and religious problems makes him especially suited for the religious conference, which will follow a liberal policy of religious thought."

Committee Meeting Tuesday

Dr. Coffin has published a number of books, among which are "The Christian and the Church," 1912, and "Christian Conviction," 1915. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Beta Kappa, Skull and Bones, and Chi Alpha.

PYTHIA SELECTS WOMEN FOR MATRIX BANQUET

Frances Lohbauer '27, president of Pythia literary society, has announced the selection of the women for the Matrix banquet and for the tea for the wives of the Wisconsin editors. They are Sylvia Orth '27, Aline Ziebel '27, Elizabeth Murphy '28, Ruth Buckley '28, Josephine Nelson '27, Louise Nelson '27, Ellen Burkhardt '27 and Rose McKee '27.

SEVEN ROOMS ARE OPENED IN BASCOM

Central Section of Addition
Will be Completed About
April 1

Work on the addition to Bascom hall continued until the last possible moment, in order that rooms might be ready for classes this week, according to G. A. Chandler, assistant secretary of the faculty.

Seven rooms have been opened, but there has been no increase in space, because several rooms in other buildings are no longer available. The German department and the comparative literature department have moved their headquarters to the ground floor of the addition, and the philosophy and history departments are on the first floor.

The central section will be completed about April 1 when the offices of the art history and classics departments will move from their present quarters. Sub-freshman English classes and offices have returned to Bascom from their temporary residence in Langdon hall which has been turned over to Union board.

About March 1 a reading room, seating 200 students will be opened. It will be a complete library, containing quite modern equipment, intending to supplement the university library and will hold all the books for certain elementary courses. It will be open until 1 o'clock at night.

After the central portion is completed the romance language department will occupy the entire second floor of Bascom hall and the English department will have the third floor except for the rooms occupied by the Speech department.

Day By Day With The News

By C. O. S.

With the larger world powers considering the Coolidge disarmament plan, the Peking army preparing for a great offensive, and prohibition talk versus repeal coming from the leaders of both political parties, the world is not lacking for news these days. Here in our own university community the presence of Sir Herbert Ames and Oswald Garrison Villard has turned more than ordinary attention towards those weighty diplomatic, political and economic problems confronting this turbulent world of aspiring nations.

President Coolidge Desires Disarmament

An extension of the 5-5-3 naval disarmament ratio is proposed by President Coolidge for discussion at the next meeting of the League preparatory disarmament commission. All classes of naval ships would be included under the Coolidge proposal.

Coming after his generally-condemned Nicaraguan policy, the president will receive little credit for advocating an essential step in world disarmament. His action is sensed as a political smoke-screen to cover up previous unworthy diplomacy.

Opposition has already arisen to the plan. United States militarists say that our cruiser allotment is already too low. France declares that the total number of tons of ships should be the basis for limiting the navy, asserting, along with Italy, that she needs a large number of small cruisers and submarines for her coastal defence. All of which goes to show that disarmament is a complex problem in which geographical position, economic strength, and land armament cannot be disregarded.

The Sons-in-law

Look to 1928

Page Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Nicholas Longworth! The son-in-law of Theodore Roosevelt and the son-in-law of Woodrow Wilson are not looking askance at any possible chance of winning the presidential nomination in 1928. Mr. McAdoo to be original has announced that he will run on a dry platform.

The Czar of the house of representatives in line with the Rooseveltian idea of preparedness raps Coolidge for not giving the marines and sailors a few more cruisers to play around in.

What a fine story it would make in 1928 if the sons-in-law were to clash in presidential combat, but we sadly fear that neither of the two will weather the stormy seas intervening. Mr. McAdoo, especially, has failed to catch the public fancy and he cannot expect to win the nomination merely because he, like Longworth, is married to the daughter of an illustrious president.

Mr. Cutten

To The Rescue

The president of Colgate university has joined the ranks of the defenders of modern youth. Mr. Cutten declared in a recent talk that youth is criticized because youth has excelled the elders and he recited a most appropriate little poem:

My granddad, viewing earth's worn cogs,

Said things were going to the dogs.

His granddad, in his house of logs,
Said things were going to the
dogs.

His granddad, in his old skin togs,
Said things were going to the
dogs.

There's one thing that I have to state,

The dogs have had a good long waite!

Henry Ford and

His Millions

The interesting story of Henry Ford and his millions is being told. For amazing efficiency and amassing of profits the story is quite enthralling. Ford has given thousands of Americans a low-priced automobile for business and pleasure and has grown rich in so doing. Now, Uncle Sam wishes to collect $31,000,000 income tax applying on the sale of Ford securities in 1919.

PRESS, UNIVERSITY DEPEND ON PUBLIC FOR CONFIDENCE

Frank Addresses Banquet on
"Rural Leadership and the Country Press"

"Both the press and the university are servants of the public and depend upon the public for confidence and support," said President Glenn Frank in his address at the Wisconsin Press association banquet last night at the Loraine hotel. President Frank spoke on "Rural Leadership and the Country Press."

Glenn Frank spoke on "Rural Leadership and the Country Press." Glenn Thistletonwaite, new head football coach, addressed the group on "Builders of Men."

Illustrates Conditions

President Frank pointed out that men today are brothers in the fight to enlighten the commonwealth, and he went on to give illustrations of the social and economic conditions facing the press and university in the state of Wisconsin by drawing pictures of various scenes he had seen and witnessed in his tour of Europe last summer.

Coach Thistletonwaite, who was introduced by George Little, the principal speaker at the Press meet here two years ago, stressed the fact that athletics have to be kept secondary to the real purpose of the university. He asked that the pressmen present try to understand and to help make working in athletics better.

Other university organizations which took part in the program were the Dormitory orchestra, that furnished the music during the dinner, the Women's Glee club, and the Wisconsin championship Men's Glee club. All three of these entertainments were well applauded and received favorable comment.

GROUP OF 70 PICKED AS '28 BADGER ACES

The "Badger Aces" have been selected but their names will not be known until the Badger comes out in June. About 70 have been picked, and for the past week, 10 of them have had their pictures for the Badger taken each noon at the Photostat House.

The "Badger Aces" chosen yearly are a group of students who have been prominent on the campus.

Democracy and Popularity Are Ideas Marking Character of Abraham Lincoln

Two ideas, democracy, and popularity, strike the keynote to the character of Abraham Lincoln, in the opinion of J. L. Sellers, professor of American History. Lincoln is the most popular American statesman. His popularity is due not only to a career, the dramatic qualities of which add glamour to his character, but to his remarkable attitude of democracy.

There were no flaws in the democratic ideals of Lincoln, a man who enjoyed every type of person, and who had a truly appreciative attitude toward everyone. Any man studying Lincoln today finds in him a universality of appeal.

Although Professor Edward Channing, eminent historian has acclaimed him as the greatest American statesman, conservative historians hesitate to accept such a statement, believing Lincoln's popularity to be due to his democracy rather than to his service.

Prof. Sellers has drawn an interesting contrast between Lincoln, and Washington in regard to the attitude toward them today. Lincoln's policy was to inspire confidence in the public as far as possible, and to maintain a government not only for the people, but by the people as well. Washington, on the other hand, maintained a policy of government for the people rather

Scientist Upholds Editorial Appearing in Daily Cardinal on Attitude Toward Suicides

Herbert L. Fossey, of Mendota, Declares Explanation of Paper Was Sensible

By LAURENCE C. EKLUND
A scientist, specializing in the problem of insanity, has commended the Daily Cardinal for its attitude on student suicides.

Dr. Herbert L. Fossey, M. D. an attaché of the State Hospital for the Insane, Mendota, says that this paper has "made the most sensible approach yet made to the explanation of student suicides." He is of the opinion that the explanations of many individuals are sincere, but "unsatisfactory."

"Your approach is sensible because the biological approach is made, and therefore the human as well as the scientific," says Dr. Fossey in a communication to the Daily Cardinal.

Suicides Total Nine

In Tuesday morning's issue, this paper criticized local pastors who have been condemning the teaching of psychology and mechanistic philosophies in the university, charging that too much knowledge has been the cause of recent student suicides. The total number of student suicides was brought to nine Monday when a Rochester N. Y. student killed himself.

Several local pastors have made public charges against departments of the university. Their charges grew out of the death by suicide of a Wisconsin student during the mid-semester recess.

Criticized Pastors

The Daily Cardinal thought that these charges were in exceedingly bad taste, and it made the assertion editorially that "the problem of student suicides was not going to be solved by making baseless charges against specified departments of the university."

Further, this paper criticized the pastors for "violating the tenets of public decency by dragging their sensational charges through the columns of the daily press, with no consideration for the feelings of the bereaved."

For some length this paper has (Continued on Page Eight)

RUSSIAN PIANIST PLAYS ON MONDAY

Program of Varied Interest;
Matinee at Garrick Theater Also Arranged

When Sergei Rachmaninoff, the famous Russian pianist, plays here Monday evening under the auspices of the Wisconsin Union, he will present a program which music critics have recommended for its brevity, its absence of hackneyed pieces, and its varied interest in the stories as musically told by Brahms, Liszt, or Chopin.

Just one composition from his own works will be on the illustrious musician's program—the famous Prelude. The program as prepared by Rachmaninoff is as follows:

1. Andantino and Variations, Schubert-Liszt.
2. Fantaisie "Wanderer" Schubert-Liszt.
3. a. Intermezzo Op. 118, Brahms.
- b. Ballade, Brahms.
4. Ronde, Opus 16, Chopin.
- b. Nocturne, Chopin.
- c. Waltz, Chopin.
5. Fairy Tales, Medtner.
- b. B. Minor, Opus 20
- a. F. Minor, Opus 26
- b. B. Minor, Opus 20
6. Prelude Rachmaninoff
7. Rakoczy March, Liszt

Rachmaninoff will play here Monday night after a matinee performance of the play "Ghosts" with Mrs. Fiske at the Garrick theater. The matinee was arranged after it was learned that there would be a conflict in the evening, so that students and townspeople may be able to attend both performances. Tickets for the Rachmaninoff concert are on sale at Hook Brothers Music store.

Swimming Stars

Neller and Hinderliter
Tonight at the Armory

Comes now a day of great athletic activity. The swimmers and the gymnasts this afternoon; the basketeers this evening. The track men at Iowa City, and the wrestlers at Cornell college, are the Badger teams which disport away from home.

With the swimming meet today comes an opportunity to see several prospective Big Ten individual champions in action. Clarence Herschberger, Wisconsin, already is one, having won the 50-yard dash in the meet at Ann Arbor last year. Winston Kratz, Wisconsin breast-stroker, trailed Carter, Iowa, by inches in the same meet, and appears this year to be better than ever.

On the Michigan side of the pool will appear such well-known splashes as "Buck" Samson, 440-yard free style whiz, "Bob" Darnall, who ranks about even with Herschberger in the sprints and should give him a great battle, the Halsted boys, one a breast-stroker, the other a back-stroke, and Bather, who completes the fast Wolverine relay team.

All in everything, the swim meet this afternoon should be worth any interested party's time and money to watch.

Capt. Neller and Hinderliter, a pair of gymnasts with vast experience and ability, will lead the Wisconsin circus troupe against Minnesota immediately after the swimming meet. Both Neller and Hinderliter rank high in conference individual ratings, and they are backed by several understudies who bid fair to become equally good.

And then there is that very interesting basketball fracas this eve-game-time, it appears that there will be nothing especially speedy on display in the Armory, unless both teams reverse their past methods to a great degree. The game is likely to be as slow as was the one with Notre Dame, but that may be made up for in part, by a continuously narrow margin between the two scores.

Chicago literally stalled Indiana to death in accomplishing her upset victory over the Hoosiers last week, and it is probable that she will employ somewhat the same technique against Wisconsin. Hoerger and McDonough, Maroon guards, are clever back-court players, capable of breaking even Conroy's record for holding the ball.

Though the Maroon gunning trio, Gist, center, and Zimmerman and Farwell, forwards, are likewise slippery workers down the floor, they will probably have plenty of trouble getting past the Badger defense, which ranks second only to Michigan's in the conference.

Myron R. Bone, duster for the Big Ten weekly, prophesies a 29-21 victory for the Badgers tonight. Which prophesy, while it has the merit of being concrete, is likely to go more or less the way of all prophecies. Wisconsin, having already defeated Chicago once and possessing the traditional "home floor" advantage, should beat the Maroons—but not by 8 points.

CORNELL GRIDDERS
SEEK MAT REVENGE
MOUNT VERNON Ia., Feb. 9
(Special)—Revenge for Wisconsin's gridiron defeat of Cornell college last fall will be sought by the Iowa college as the two schools come together in a wrestling meet here today. Wilson, end, and Midkiff, guard, who starred on the gridiron, handle the two heavy classes on the mat, while "Ironman" McGrath, Cornell's lumberjack-back, is the regular 145 pounder.

Brandow Calls for Entries in Third Winter Carnival

As plans for the university ice carnival, Feb. 19, go forward, W. R. Brandow, director of winter sports, is making a particular effort to get a full entry list in every event planned.

Events to have a place in the carnival as now planned are as follows:

Ski jumping; men's 220 yard race (eight entries); men's 440 yard race (8 entries); men's one mile race (6 entries); men's two mile race (6 entries); fancy skating (5 entries); inter-fraternity relay (6 teams); Tripp-Adams race; military department race, (4 men); open relay (6 teams).

Ice boat races and the following events for women, 100 yard race (6 entries); 220 yard race (6 entries); 880 yard race (6 entries); potato race (6 girls); fancy skating (3 entries); Barnard-Chadbourne relay (4 girls on each team) and inter-sorority relay (4 teams of 3 girls each).

Unless the minimum number of entries named after each event is secured, the event will be scratched.

Individual high-point trophies will be awarded to the men and women scoring the highest number of points, while ribbons and medals will be awarded to the first three places in each event.

Entries, which should be made out in such form as to include the name, address, course, and phone number of the participant, may be mailed to W. R. Brandow or George Berg at the men's gymnasium any time before Feb. 16. Women's entries may be mailed to Miss Elizabeth Hastie at Lathrop hall.

TRACKMEN TO BE TESTED AT OHIO

McGinnis Chief Hope Against 1926 Champion Hawk-eyes

Wisconsin officially opens its 1927 track season this afternoon at Iowa City when the indoor cinder team meets the champion Hawkeyes. How well the Badgers will stack up against the strong Iowa squad is a matter of conjecture for the Cardinal squad as yet remains unproven.

When the Badgers come upon the field this afternoon they will be minus the services of Chapman and Schutt, distance aces, and Francis, dash star. New men are relied upon by Wisconsin to fill their places and today's showing will be a fairly good indication of the season the Cardinal track team has in store for itself.

Captain McGinnis will be found competing as usual in his three favorite events, the pole vault, 60 yd. hurdles and the running high jump. Upon him will fall the brunt of Wisconsin's scoring attack.

Coach T. E. Jones and the squad of 23 men left at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and will arrive at Iowa City at 9:30 this morning. The meet will start at 1:30 with

BADGER CAGERS TO MEET CHICAGO IN IMPORTANT FRAY

Wisconsin Favored to Win Close Battle From Maroons in Armory Tonight

PROBABLE LINEUPS

Chicago	rf	Wisconsin
Kaplan	rf	Andrews
Zimmerman	lf	Behr
Sackett	c	Kowalezyk
McDonough	rg	Hotchkiss
Hoerger	lg	Barnum

Wisconsin will resume the conference basketball race by engaging Chicago at the Armory tonight. The Badgers well remembering their former game with the Midway five are anticipating a close contest and it is a certainty that they will display their best wares and bring forth their crafties tricks to insure a victory.

The Chicago lineup includes several men who appeared with the Maroons last season. It will be remembered that it was Chicago who were the first team to give the Badgers a conference defeat last year and it was Zimmerman and McDonough who were largely responsible for that defeat. These two gentlemen are again in the Chicago lineup this season.

Several Chicago Veterans

Sackett and Hoerger are also vets from last season and the latter in particular makes a sweet combination with McDonough at guard. Kaplan at right forward for the visitors is a newcomer in the Maroon ranks but distinguished himself in the recent Indiana game by caging four field goals and a number of free throws.

When Chicago comes to the gymnasium tonight to meet the Badgers it will be somewhat of a clash between former stars of Stagg interscholastic meets.

Behr and Andrews, forwards and high point men of this year's Wisconsin quintet, were members of the Rockford High team which was runner-up in the National Interscholastic of four years ago. On the Maroon team there is John McDonough of Yankton, S. D. who led his team to the finals of the Interscholastic in 1923. Few will forget that thrilling game with Emporia, Kansas when McDonough leaped for the ball, receiving a neck injury which endangered his life for days.

Starters Not Certain

The starting line-up for the Badgers will be hard to forecast but the general opinion is that Andrews and Behr will surely play the forward positions with Kowalezyk working in the Notre Dame game that he isn't nearly as effective as a running guard as he is at a backguard and it is safe to bet that the Badger captain will be at his regular position again tonight. Hotchkiss is the best choice to play the running guard position, thought coach Meanwell might see it to send in the same outfit that started against Notre Dame.

With Captain Lloyd Appleton, 158

pounder, the three gridders tackled the University of Michigan matmen for a 12 to 11 victory earlier in the Swimming Team to Match Speed with Michigan Today

Wisconsin Hockey Sextet Wins From Janesville by 1-0

JANESVILLE, Wis.—The Wisconsin hockey team won the first of a series of games from Janesville last night by a score of 1 to 0. Captain Lidicker made the score late in the last period after taking the puck through the entire Janesville defense unassisted.

The condition of the ice was very poor, and water filled the corners of the rink. Both teams found it hard to handle the puck throughout the game, and for more than two periods each fought furiously for a break without success. The Badger sextet came to life in the third period, however, and after ten minutes of spectacular spurs, Lidicker succeeded in making the only score of the game.

Hitchcock made 19 stops at goal and brought applause from the stands several times. Murphy and Ruf also showed fight that destroyed many Janesville plays. The victory in this game puts the team in the running for the southern Wisconsin championship.

Water Polo Capt. Post, Stewart, Scott, Lange, Hodges, Woodsome, Esser.

Michigan Line-Up

The Wolverine squad, with a team said to be of better class than the one that enabled Michigan to win second place in the conference last year will be represented by the following men.

Relay, Samson, Watson, Bemert, Barnell, Batter.

Breast stroke, Shorr, R. Halsted, Wagner.

440 yard dash, Samson, Wagner, Watson.

40 yard dash, Darnall, Samson, Watson, or Bemert.

Back Stroke, Spindle, J. Halsted, Hulbell.

Diving, Starrett, Batter.

100 yard dash, Watson Darnall, Samson.

Medley Relay, Halsted or Hulbell, Shorr or Halsted, Watson or Bemert or Darnall.

Water Polo, Capt. Sampson, Watson, Darnall, Batter, Halsted, Hulbell, Spindle, Halsted, Wagner.

will be more of a make-shift line-up, as some of the men who will make the trip have had but a week or two of coaching. Don Cameron who will fill in the position left vacant by Wally Cole, was picked off the Farm House fraternity team a few weeks ago and has been under Hitchcock's guidance ever since.

They Clapped at the Strand

An interesting study in mob psychology was afforded at the Strand theatre this week, in connection with the newsreel run with "Faust." The newsreel depicted a contingent of American troops being sent from San Diego to China, to help "put down the yellow peril."

As the troops were shown on the battleship, the organ played military music, and the audience clapped with enthusiasm. The whole audience was set tingling with a spirit of patriotic fervor such as is evoked only by a skillful playing on the emotions.

It's the old war propaganda again at work. The average American crowd cannot resist the war propaganda that is always brought into play in order to get an ordinarily peaceful people worked up into a frenzy of patriotic excitement.

It is this type of insidious propaganda which makes futile the life work of missionaries abroad, that turns love into hate, and furnishes the esprit de corps for prolonged and horrible wars.

It is this playing on the emotions that turns man from a reasoning creature into a "patriot" who derives great pleasure out of driving a bayonet into a brother man, just because he happens to be on the opposing side. "He got his German" is a phrase which denotes that man was a superman, a gallant soldier, and a man to be looked up to in his community.

Oswald Garrison Villard pointed out in his talk Wednesday evening that during the late war this country went through the worst orgy of lying it ever experienced. The press, the screen, the pulpit, and every channel of public opinion was polluted by propaganda which had as its aim the production of hate in the hearts of an innocent and home loving people.

The hard working Wisconsin farmer was made to believe that a German was little better than the crudest sort of barbarian. The poor misguided clergymen who under ordinary circumstances wouldn't hurt a flea brought herself to a state of mind where she would like to see the Kaiser tortured to death by a method too cruel to describe in the columns of this respectable organ.

Throughout the country during the war a system of lying propaganda prepared an American people to give the last ounce of their strength if necessary to put down the terrible Hun.

And now we see a similar propaganda again beginning to take effect. A large theatre audience made up of intelligent university and towns folk works itself into a frenzy as it sees the portrayal of American young men being sent to quell an uprising in a foreign land.

We are sure that if this country declared war on China today a large percentage of our population would be up in arms on the instant, intent on "doing their bit" in protecting "their homes and firesides". All the racial prejudices which religious denominations have been trying for years to dispell would come into full bloom.

Propaganda is a dangerous thing. Those who handle it know all about human emotions, and human nature. Orators know it. So do politicians. It is only by creation of an intelligent public opinion that we can steel ourselves against the evil effects of lying propaganda.

The Press is Criticized

Apparently the American press, collegiate as well as professional, is in pretty bad shape, if we are to believe antagonistic criticism which has been hurled at it recently by such men as Prof. Edward Alsworth Ross of the sociology department of this university. The press is always being criticized. When folks who have a bent for criticizing haven't anything else to deprecate, they hurl brickbats at the newspapers.

At the Ossard Garrison Villard address Wednesday evening the newspapers came in for their usual share of Irish bouquets. Mr. Villard, himself an outstanding journalist, bewailed the lack of local news in the city papers, and drew his conclusions from conditions which exist in New York. Using New York as an example in pointing out the dearth of local news is not fair, because inhabitants of New York are not interested in New York and they don't want local news. Civic pride is non-existent in that great metropolis.

Prof. Ross got up at the same meeting and told a public gathering that the newspaper is becoming nothing but a handbill for advertisements, and to the relative decrease in proportion of news matter in the newspapers. Prof. Ross evidently thinks that the volume of news is decreasing and he still thinks that the news policy is controlled by the advertisers. He has written and said much about this very thing.

This paper thinks that Prof. Ross is unjustified in his attacks. We think that newspaper journalism has never been in such healthy condition as now. Prof. Ross' statements about the decreasing percentage of news in the papers is misleading when we consider that the newspapers are printing more news, better news, and more complete news than ever before. Of course, there is a relatively increased proportion of advertising. That's necessary in order to meet the increased cost of publishing—in buying materials and in perfecting news gathering services which bring the news of the world to the public faster than ever before.

The newspaper man can't afford to run his paper at a loss. He must accept advertising to make both ends meet. Unfortunately the fact that he must live prevents him from indulging in philanthropy. Too many people have the idea that newspapermen owe everything to the public and nothing to themselves.

Another criticism that Prof. Ross advances is that the press is controlled by the commercial interests that advertise in the newspapers. Such attacks may have been justified 20 years ago, in the days of the muckrakers, when journalism really was rotten with its advertisements of quacks and nostrums, and its subservience to advertisers. But at the present time, we do not believe the professor's attacks on that score are justified.

While we are not claiming a total degree of saintly purity for the press, we insist that it is more pure now than it has been. Advertisers have come to realize that they need the press in order to get their message across to the public. It is silly to insinuate that the editorial and news policies of papers like the New York World and the Chicago Tribune are determined by the advertisers. These papers have to turn down advertisers for want of space.

We are closer to a golden age in journalism now than ever before. The newspapers are doing their part. The public must come half way if our newspapers are to be improved. It is only by public co-operation that prurient and pornographic journalism can be stamped out. When that is accomplished, then truly we have reached the golden age of journalism.

Steel!

Doesn't that red steel look good?

Doesn't it make your heart jump to think that rivets are being driven into that structure daily, that the whole Memorial Union machine has reached the construction stage and that within a very short time brick will be piled on brick and rooms will form out of air? Aren't you proud that you had and will continue to have a share in this building which is going to means so much to undergraduates within the very near future?

You have received pledge notices regularly each month and perhaps you have tossed them into the waste basket without sending a check. But the sight of that steel should make every loyal Wisconsin man and woman send a good sized check to Port Butts to the end that it will buy bricks and steel and furniture.

There has been a lot of planning and dreaming about our "living room" but steel is quite another thing. Let's help buy some.

Valentine Poem To?

In other years
When you weren't mine,
No lacy, scented
Valentine
Was sent from me
To you.

A rhyme or two
I fashioned then
For others fair and
So, now, when
The day comes 'round
I know

A verse will go
As my loving sign
That I would be your
Valentine;
Though I would ask to be
Yours too.

Legislators Are Guests at Annual Landscape Banquet

The annual banquet of the Sons of Our Native Landscape, an association for the preservation and enjoyment of natural scenery, was held last evening in the refectory of the men's dormitories. Between 75 and 100 legislators were guests of the association.

Pres. Glenn Frank gave the opening greetings. Gov. Fred Zimmerman spoke on "The Natural Beauty of Wisconsin," and W. A. Markham of Heron, Wis., president of the organization, in Illinois told what the Sons are doing at present.

Mr. W. F. Seve, Madison, directed a pantomime, in which 20 pupils from the Marquette city school took part. The University glee club sang several numbers, and the men's dormitory orchestra finished the music.

Changes in Ag Hall
Department Men
Announced Lately
Several changes in departmental officers are being made at Agriculture hall this week.

The animal husbandry department is moving from the second to the third floor. H. J. Brant, John E. Craig, A. W. Lathrop, B. H. Roche, Prof. F. B. Morrison, and Prof. J. M. Fargo are moving from room 202 to 305. A. O. Collentine and I. W. Rupel are moving from 301 to 305.

The agricultural education department is to be located in the rooms vacated by the animal husbandry department. Prof. J. A. James, assistant dean of the college of agriculture, Prof. E. M. Tiffany, and Prof. V. E. Kivlin are moving from room 105 to 202. Dean James will be found part of the time in this second floor office, and the rest of the time in the regular office of the assistant dean on the first floor.

Prof. W. A. Summer, of the agricultural journalism department, who has been sharing the office of the Wisconsin Century Magazine, is to move into room 301.

These changes are expected to give greater compactness to the different departments, inasmuch as they were more or less scattered before.

MISS GORMAN STARTS RUSSIAN INSTRUCTION

Miss Gladys Gorman of the Women's Physical Education department is starting a class in Russian for men and women students who are interested in learning the preliminaries of the language. The first meeting will be held Sunday at 1019 W. Johnson where Mrs. Blanch Shafarman '30, will supervise while Miss Gorman teaches. Miss Gorman has spent five years in Russia where she was affiliated with the Red Cross and then the Y. W. C. A. These classes are not under the auspices of the university but are being given by Miss Gorman as a result of numerous requests of her friends.

Charming Affairs
Feature Second
Semester Rushing

A host of interesting affairs are being given this weekend by the various sororities for their rushes. Dinner parties and informal dances prevailed last evening while tonight theatre parties will be the most popular entertainment. Several houses have invited guests for dinner tomorrow.

Rushing activities for the second semester began with an afternoon tea or evening reception on either Monday or Tuesday at each of the sorority houses. In the mid-week rushing functions tea dances prevailed.

The final event is to take place on Monday evening, at which time the majority of the sororities are holding a formal dinner-dance from 6 to 9 o'clock.

On Tuesday morning sororities deliver to the office of the Dean of

Wisconsin Co-eds
Attending Winter
Carnival, Dartmouth

Lizette Haase '27, Sigma Kappa house, Pauline Rowley '28, and Viola Anderson, Madison, are among those from this city who are attending the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, an annual event at that university, which is being held from Women a list of the girls whom they wish to pledge. During the afternoon preference slips are delivered. The preference slip is an indication, for the rushee, that one or more sororities whose rushing functions she has attended, wishes her to become a pledge.

On Wednesday, Feb. 16, after 9 o'clock in the morning the sorority will send a slip to the rushee, bidding her formally and asking her to come to the chapter house for pledge meeting held at 5 o'clock that afternoon.

Thursday to Sunday of this week. Miss Haase will be the guest of friends in Boston, Mass., during the coming week.

Misses Rowley and Anderson are the guests of Albert and Charles MacDonald, Madison, both of whom are Dartmouth seniors. They will return with Mrs. L. R. Rowley, who is accompanying them, the early part of next week.

KESSENICH CORNER

When Our Co-ed
Goes A-Frocking

The youthful flair, the keen dash, the unquestionable good taste of these frocks will add a fresh verve to your ensemble as you step out on the first spring day. You may choose a sleek, tailored coat dress of frosted wool crepe, self-trimmed with fine pin tucks to add correctness to the morning "math" class. You may seek a three-tone blending of emerald georgette to afford a rainbow sparkle at the afternoon tea. You may long for a dainty rose blush chiffon to outshine the delicacy of a wrist corsage at the next formal. Our generous array of new costumes responds to your every need.

Ladye Wisconsin turns the fashion leaf and finds inscribed as a final edict for spring a collarless neckline, a banded, long blouse, a tight sleeve with row of tiny buttons to the elbow, a soft, drooping shoulder flower, and a jaunty three-quarter length balero to variegate the trend of last year's wardrobe. Exquisitely molded to the girlish, trim figure, our new costumes embody each of these fashion decrees. In an amazing range of bisque, green, mother goose, monkey skin, rose, and pencil blue.

TESTS SHOW OILS POOR IN FLAVOR

Fatty Solvents Have Favorable Taste, But Become Rancid, Chemists Say

Tests of olive, corn, peanuts and cottonseed oils as substitutes for grain alcohol in lemon and orange flavoring extracts for cooking purposes have shown university chemists that when used immediately the flavors in fatty oil solvents give favorable tests as to taste, but that when left standing, the fatty oils become rancid and the flavors cannot be used.

"Baking tests were very favorable," say the experimenters. "Representative samples of both flavors were given to several experienced pastry cooks with the request that they use them in cakes of their own choosing but in the same amount as they would have used the standard extract. The finished cakes were in most instances sampled by disinterested observers. The consensus was that these flavors, which had been prepared with a fatty oil base, were just as good, if not better, than the alcoholic extracts."

Prof. Schuette and Mr. Domogalla conclude that "the field of usefulness of such mixtures is restricted, the only place where they find application being in the baking industry". For retail sales, where flavors may stand for months and years upon store shelves, the fatty oil solution cannot replace the alcohol extracts.

ASSOCIATE BOARD TO ASSIST IN FORENSICS

The forensic board, at its regular weekly meeting held Friday noon at the University club, decided upon the organization of an associate board which will assist it in carrying on its various functions. It is expected that this will provide an opportunity for students to interest themselves actively in the administrative work of forensics, and it is the intention of the regular board annually to approve certain elections of its members to the senior board.

Arrangement was also made for several speakers during the current semester. Among them are Philadelphia Rice, widely known dramatic reader and monoactor who will appear on Feb. 18 and John Emerson Barnes, professor of "History at Smith college, on March 31.

Cardinal Policy is Upheld in Regard to Student Suicides

(Continued from Page One) forth its theory for the prevention of future suicides among students. It explained that it would be necessary to "adjust the inner mechanism of the individual youth by airing the issues which arise out of the pressure of changing intellectual, physical, sexual, moral, and spiritual forces on this inner mechanism, which is the innermost self."

Following is the reaction to the Daily Cardinal's stand from the Wisconsin State Hospital for the Insane:

(TO THE DAILY CARDINAL)

"It was with pleasure that I read your editorial or rather quotations from it relative to student suicides. This is the most sensible approach made to its explanation of any, among the many, perhaps sincere but unsatisfactory attempts. It is sensible because the biological approach is made and therefore human as well as scientific.

Who can understand the mind of man? It is complex! it is pluralistic, therefore must be approached from more than one angle. He who approaches it from a theological angle is bound to fall in error. Theology deals with morals. It does not elucidate mental mechanisms nor does it take cognizance of them. It does not teach the phylogenesis of man, and, in fact, most often repudiates it; nor does it explain the ontogenesis of man, which even a high school student must recognize as also man's mental ontology. Christianity has its place but its application is only practicable to the normal, except as it may help in the processes of sublimation.

Thousands Wrecked

In our mental hospitals all over the country there are thousands of youths who have been wrecked on the rocks of puberty. Youths who have come from Christian homes; who have regular attendants in churches and Sunday Schools, but who have failed to have their problems solved by such agencies, and who in the evolutionary processes of the psycho-sexual sphere have failed to keep in line with their ego development, which ego has perhaps become hypertrophied by such training and social standards.

After all, insanity is nothing more or less than a failure of integration at the social level, and when these unfortunate find themselves victims of a biological deviation or of some personality difficulty, a conflict with the ego and society ensues, which leads them into neurosis, or psychosis, or suicide, besides a thousand and one mal-adaptations or peculiar society and religion conflicting compensations.

Cannot Solve Problems

Young men who take their own lives while students in college, do not do so because of what they learn or do not learn. They come to the University with their personal problems unsolved. They seek a solution but unfortunately often do not find it.

A university is not a psychiatric institute. Neither philosophy or normal psychology can solve them. Few can be as fortunate as William James who said "I take it that no man is educated who has never dallied with the thoughts of suicide." After all, who is free from personal problems? Few of us are normal. We are all in the evolutionary stream and only the strong can keep in the swim. Nature is eliminating. Even society demands elimination of the unfit. It sends hundreds to death every year by hanging and electrocution with godly complacency and I fear sometimes with glee. It is called punishment but after all is it not a vicarious institution for society's own repressions?

Many Cry Out

Your therapeutic suggestion namely mental "carthasis" is in line with modern psychiatric treatment. Thousands of youth and older men and women are crying out from the depths of their souls "To whom shall we go?" Who will listen to us without shame or censure?

If we confide in the minister will he call it sin? If in the judge will he call it anti-social? If in the doctor will he call insanity? Who will understand us and with sympathy help us to a proper adjustment? Who will understand our biopsychological make up? Find this man or woman and thousands will be saved from suicide or the insane asylum. I suggest that all ministers and judges spend at least one year in a mental hospital. Let him study the unconscious with its many and intricate mechanisms; let him learn and believe the evolution of man, and then, and only then, plus character of course, will he be able to say as Christ said "neither do I condemn thee."

Aware of Deviation

This does not imply that those who have recently ended their lives by their own hand, had sinned, or committed anti-social act, but it is reasonable to suppose that they were aware or dimly aware of some deviation, or of some biological deficiency. Those who eagerly seek the philosophers usually do so because they have a riddle to solve although this may be unconscious.

Respectfully yours,
Herbert L. Fossey, M. D.

Local Professors to Give Lectures on Evolution Topic

Five professors of this university and one from the University of Chicago will participate in a series of lectures on the general subject of "Evolution" which will be held every Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock in the Congregational University parish house, 422 N. Murray street.

Prof. Joel Stebbins, Prof. William H. Twenhoefel, Prof. Louis Kalenberg, Prof. George Wagner, Prof. Leonard R. Ingersoll, and Prof. Elliot R. Dowling will speak in the order named on consecutive Sundays beginning tomorrow. There will be no address on Feb. 27, however since that date has been allotted to the religious conference.

The Wisconsin professors are from the astronomy, geology, chemistry, biology, and physics departments respectively and they will discuss the relation of their duty to evolution. Prof. Dowling is from the department of natural sciences at the University of Chicago; he will speak on "Evolution and Religion."

A new ruling made at Stanford university by the scholarship committee requires a "C" average from students on probation. It is expected that this will not increase the number of flunkouts, for a check up on past years records of failures and "pros" show that the number of persons still in school and who would have fallen victim of the new regulation is negligible.
