Badgers in Service Enjoy State Bounty In Education Field

As appreciation for the sacrifices made by Wisconsin citizens enrolled in the nation's armed forces, the 1941 Wisconsin legislature has voted to extend educational opportunity to such residents by making available to them the extension courses of the University of Wisconsin at the state's expense. The enrollee is to pay only for the cost of the texts.

This law, now in effect, applies to Wisconsin citizens in the army, navy, and marine corps. Under it, persons in the service may continue studies at their posts of duty, however remote, by the Wisconsin plan of university correspondence study. The only scholastic requirement is evidence of background for doing the work successfully. In case college credit is desired, the rules governing credit must be complied with. Only one course can be taken at a time.

The legislature's generous offer is regarded as evidence of the state's eagerness to back up its citizens who at great sacrifice to themselves and their families are helping form the bulwark of the nation's preparedness effort. This is part of a state policy begun after the World war when Wisconsin men in service were granted a cash bonus, and continued in the past decade when state subsidies were voted to pay for extension courses for veterans of that conflict.

The 1941 subsidy is intended to enable persons whose education has been interrupted by military service to continue making headway on educational programs of high school or college, and to assist others to obtain needed preparation for work in business or industry. It is available to enlisted and inducted men, officers, and to nurses in service.

Available to them are about 425 correspondence courses in such fields as business, English and literature, general science, geology and geography, history, languages, mathematics, mechanical drawing, physics, political science, psychology, sociology, and speech.

To help acquaint Wisconsin citizens with the new educational privilege, officials recommended that relatives notify kinsman in the service of their eligibility for it, and that school authorities aid former students serving in camps to take advantage of this opportunity.

Any extension courses are available to service men of other states at the regular fees, it was explained.

The University extension division plans to send printed information to camps and other posts where Wisconsin residents are serving.

Physical Training Plan for Draftees Set Up at State U.

Attempting to meet the problem of conditioning its men students for their possible transition from campus life to camp life under the nation's defense program, the University of Wisconsin, through its men's physical education division, has set up an optional physical training program, it was announced today by A. L. Masley of the physical education staff.

Members of the committee which made plans for the program are Profs. Guy S. Lowman, Tom E. Jones, and Masley, and Drs. L. R. Cole and E. L. Sevringhaus of the medical staff.

All male graduate and undergraduate students who are registered for selective service and expect to be called for active military service by next September, and who have a student health service medical rating of good or better, are eligible for participation in the special training program, Masley said.

The program was started this week and enrollments are taken daily at the men's physical education office in Citizen's Part in Defense Is Theme of Meeting at U. W.

Centering on the University of Wisconsin campus, the Wisconsin Institute for National Defense, organized to assist the Wisconsin Council for National Defense in disseminating information on present security problems will conduct a statewide conference at the Memorial Union in Madison, May 16-17.

The purpose of the conference is to portray how Wisconsin people can assist in strengthening the national defenses along many fronts. Speakers from Wisconsin and Washington will suggest ways by which organizations and individuals may best contribute to the success of the defense program.

Pres. C. A. Dykstra will outline the institute's objectives, and Chief Justice M. B. Rosenberry, Wisconsin supreme court, will participate in a symposium on "Defense of What?"

What State Can Do
At a session presided over by Ralph S. Kingsley, Kenosha, chairman of the state defense council, Col. William H. Draper, Jr., liaison officer for the army in the selective service program, attached to the war department's staff, will describe national defense in action on the military front, and other speakers will discuss contributions on the industrial and agricultural fronts.

With Warren W. Clark, of the University college of agriculture, presiding, another session will consider what state organizations can do to help in national defense. The speaker will be Frank Bane, Washington, director of the division of state and local cooperation, national defense program, formerly director of the Social Security board.

Wisconsin opinion will be brought to bear on this problem through a panel discussion, directed by Prof. H. L. Ewbank, University of Wisconsin.

MADISON, WISCONSIN

U. W. Lawyers' Meet This Week Also Interests Social Workers, Bankers, Realtors, Employers

A series of round table discussions, many of interest to groups outside the profession of law, will be presented at the second annual gathering of lawyers, alumni, and present students at the University of Wisconsin Law school, May 9 and 10. Several hundred lawyers and other interested persons are expected to attend the two-day session to be held on the State University campus.

A featured discussion of the gathering will be concerned with the youth correction authority act, giving particular reference to Wisconsin. Social workers and others interested in the training and rehabilitation of youthful criminals will be interested in this round table which will be led by Judge Joseph N. Ullman of the Maryland supreme court as the main speaker.

A bill adapting this youth correction authority act to this state recently has been introduced in the State legislature. Relating to criminals between the ages of 16 and 21, this bill would substitute methods of training and treatment directed toward correction and rehabilitation for the present retributive punishment.

Discuss Land Contracts
Another round table, on the Wages and Hours act, will hold interest for many manufacturers. This session will be addressed by Alex Elson, regional attorney of the Wages and Hours administration in Chicago; Malcolm K. Whyte, of Milwaukee; Prof. Brunson MacChesney, Northwestern University Law school, former acting chief of the Wage and Hour Unit of the Department of Justice; and Arthur T. Holmes, La Crosse attorney and member of the University Board of Regents.

Realtors will find interest in the discussion of land contracts in Wisconsin. This round table will be conducted by students who have been making an intensive investigation of the Wisconsin forms of land contracts, including Catherine Cleary, Milwaukee; Emily Dodge, Madison; Karl Dreschler, Madison; Albert Koch Lone Rock; William Moerer, Port Washington; Frank Collins, Milwaukee; Peter Pappas, La Crosse; and Richard Bardwell, Madison; G. A. Mittlestad, Kenosha, chairman of the real property section of the Wisconsin state Bar association and A. R. Petersen, Madison, will give summary remarks.

Consider Estate Planning
Estate planning for estates of moderate size, a subject of concern also to bankers and trust officials, will be discussed by Prof. Ray A. Brown of the University of Wisconsin Law school; Maxwell H. Herriott, Milwaukee; and Paul V. Harper of Chicago. This round table will consider techniques of draftsmanship of wills and trust instruments with a view to carrying out the primary intent of the testator and avoiding litigation concerning the construction and validity of the instrument, the practical utility of powers of appointment, and minimizing taxation.

A discussion pertaining to the management of law offices, with particular reference to the small office, will be conducted by Wisconsin attorneys including Ray M. Stroud, Madison; Roger Minahan, Green Bay; Adolph P. Lehner, Oconto Falls; and Alfred L. Godfrey, Elkhorn.

Banquet is Feature
The main banquet, climaxing the weekend meeting, will be held Saturday in the Memorial Union with the principal address by Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, of Houston, Texas. Judge Hutcheson has been mentioned frequently in the press as a possible appointee to the United States Supreme Court.

Other events scheduled for the weekend include a faculty-student baseball game; Coif (honorary law society) initiation and banquet; law fraternity reunions; the Law Ball; a reception by Pres. Dykstra; and a luncheon.

The Friday, May 9, program contains most of the social events of the weekend, with the round table discussions running concurrently throughout the day on Saturday.

450 Expected to Enroll in Summer Music Clinic at U.

Approximately 450 high school students from Wisconsin and other states are expected to attend the 1941 Music Clinic to be held at the University of Wisconsin July 7-26, Leon T. Itlis, Clinic director, announced this week.

These students will enjoy three weeks of intensive musical training culminating in a two-day festival at which time the All-State orchestra and All-State chorus will present a joint concert on Friday, July 25, in the Stock Pavilion, and the All-State band will be presented in its final concert on Saturday night, July 26, in the University stadium.

There will be added to the festival program this year a concert by the various ensemble groups of high school students who will rehearse regularly together during the Clinic. These string, woodwind, brass, and vocal groups will be substituted for the operetta of previous years. They will be directed by regular staff members.

The All-State band will also appear at the Milwaukee Midsummer Festival, the temporary date for this performance being Saturday, July 19.

For the first time this year members of the faculty of the State University Music school will head the All-State music organizations. These men include Prof. Raymond Dvorak, band; Prof. Carl Bricken, orchestra; and Paul Jones, chorus. It is the opinion of the Clinic committee that future students of the University should have this opportunity to become acquainted with the University faculty.

The dormitory system has been changed for the 1941 Clinic also. The girls in attendance this year will stay at Chadbourne, while the boys will be lodged in Kronshage, one of the new men's dormitories on the shore of Lake Mendota.

The daily recreational program begun last year will be continued under the direction of Prof. A. L. Masley of the physical education department and members of the woman's physical education department.

Other activities of the Clinic a faculty concert during the first week, on Thursday, July 10; the All-Clinic hike and picnic, Saturday, July 12; and the traditional banquet and dance at the Wisconsin Union during the second week.

Last year's Music Clinic brought 425 high school students from 14 states to the University campus. More than 300 students played in the All-State band, 125 in the All-State orchestra, and 150 sang in the All-State chorus. At the Milwaukee performance last year the All-State band played to an estimated 190,000 people who packed Juneau Park on the final evening of the Midsummer Festival.

U. W. School of Music Cited for Good Work

The University of Wisconsin school of music was one of 20 schools recently awarded honorable mention citation by the American Musical Arts foundation for outstanding contributions to American music and music education. Selection of the schools to be honored was made on the basis of a seven months' study by a committee of all available data on the activities of the music department of more than 300 universities and colleges in the United States. Raymond Paige, Deems Taylor, Lawrence Tibbett and Charles Wakefield Cadman served as members of the committee which conducted the study.

U. W. Spring Festival Features Drama, Art, Music Achievements

"Dark Victory" has been chosen by the Wisconsin Players as the dramatic highlight of the Spring Festival of arts at the Wisconsin Union theater at the University of Wisconsin this next month. The play is directed by Prof. J. Russell Lane, and will be staged May 16, 17, and 24.

The second annual Spring Festival will again be one of the most comprehensive festivals to be presented in the United States, according to Ray Black, Richland Center, general chairman of the Festival.

All the arts which are covered during the year on the State University campus are brought together for presentation during the festival to students, parents, and friends of the University. All facilities of the Wisconsin Union are thrown open during the Festival, the climax of which is reached during the University's parents' Weekend May 23-25.

Musical highlight will be two concerts by the sensational new Negro soprano, Dorothy Maynor, May 11 and 12. Miss Maynor has become in the past two years one of the outstanding concert artists, not only for her artistry and beautiful voice with its range of lyric and dramatic qualities, but also for her lovable personality.

Orchestra, campus dance group, will present its annual Dance Drama the evening of May 23 and the afternoon of May 24, under the direction of Prof. Margaret H'Doubler.

The University symphony orchestra and chorus, under the direction of Prof. Carl E. Bricken, are reviving Henry Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" Sunday afternoon, May 25. Chorus are being rehearsed by Prof. E. Earle Swinney and Paul Jones. "Dido and Aeneas" is usually considered the first English opera and is often presented as a concert offering.

The 13th annual student art exhibition will start with an open jury meeting, at which the judges will make their selections for awards before an audience. The exhibition of work done by art students during the past year will be on view in the main and theater galleries of the Wisconsin Union from May 13 to June 8.

Students Use Vacation to Work on Newspapers

Thirteen advanced students in the School of Journalism at the University of Wisconsin, gave up their spring vacation last week to work on 10 Wisconsin weekly and daily newspapers. The majority of these students are registered in a Newspaper Business Problems Course under Prof. Frank Thayer, who arranged the particular assignments.

Students assigned to do advertising work were Grant C. Hilliker, Black River Falls, and Edward Kireley, Doylestown, on the Kenosha Evening News; Francis Bowen, East Aurora, N. Y., and C. J. Papara, Racine, on the Capital Times and Wisconsin State Journal, at Madison.

John H. Dunn, Milwaukee, and Sidney Ottman, Appleton, edited and handled advertising for the Evansville Review, Jay Beat, Mt. Horeb, and David Teitlebaum, Brooklyn, N. Y., did advertising promotion for the East Side News, Madison.

Othe assignments included: James R. Schlosser, Menomonie, and Robert J. Houlehan, Milwaukee, on the Lake Mills Leader; Brooks Conrad, Medford, on the Taylor County Star-News; James Olson, Richland Center, on the Richland County Democrat; and Irene H. Ponto, Milwaukee, on the Oconomowoc Enterprise.

College, University Business Officers to Meet at U. W. May 11

The 31st annual meeting of the Central Association of University and College Business Officers will be held at the University of Wisconsin next Sunday through Tuesday, May 11-13, it was announced today by A. W. Peterson, State University comptroller.

The meeting will bring to the Wisconsin campus the business officers of all of the leading colleges and universities in the mid-west for a three-day conference on the business and financial problems of institutions of higher learning.

Officers of the association this year are W. J. Mather, bursar of the University of Chicago, president; W. H. Cobb, business manager of the University of Iowa, vice-president; and T. E. Blackwell, comptroller, Washington university of St. Louis, Mo., secretary-treasurer.

Speakers at the meeting will include Pres. C. A. Dykstra of the State University; Dr. Harry L. Russell, director of the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation; Dr. T. N. Barrow, president of Lawrence college, Appleton; Dr. C. R. Griffith, director of the bureau of institution research at Illinois; Shirley Smith, vice-president, Michigan; H. L. Wells, business manager, Northwestern university; and R. B. Stewart, controller of Purdue.

Lewis Becomes ROTC Commandant at U. W.

Lt. Col. H. H. Lewis became the commandant in charge of the University of Wisconsin Reserve Officers Training Corps when he replaced Lt. Col. William G. Weaver who left last week for Camp Roberts, Santa Barbara, Calif. During the first World war, Col. Lewis spent 22 months in France and served with the Third division in the army of occupation. He is a graduate of three army schools including the tank and infantry schools at Ft. Benning, Ga. Col. Lewis came to Madison from Ft. McArthur, Calif., five years ago to become a member of the Wisconsin staff.

300 Students to Take Part in U. W. Parents' Weekend Concert

A huge concert, featuring the combined University symphony orchestra and chorus, with more than 300 students participating, will climax the annual Parents' Weekend program to be held at the University of Wisconsin for three days, May 23-25, inclusive, student chairmen in charge of plans for the event announced today.

The concert, considered to be one of the outstanding musical events given in Wisconsin each year, will be held on Sunday afternoon, May 25, in the Memorial Union theater on the State University campus. It will officially bring to a close the Parents' Weekend, held annually at Wisconsin in honor of the mothers and fathers of University students.

The concert will consist of two parts, the orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Carl Bricken, head of the music school, presenting the first half of the program, a Brahms symphony, and the chorus joining in the presentation of the second part, Purcell's beautiful opera, "Dido and Aeneas," under the direction of Profs. E. Earle Swinney and Paul Jones, chorus directors.

Three days filled with a variety of events and activities make up the program for Parents' Weekend this year, student co-chairmen Mildred Schiff and Joseph Barnett have announced.

Besides the concert, there will be a big banquet in honor of the parents, with more than 600 persons expected

2,000 to Receive Degrees from U. W. at Commencement

Approximately 2,000 young men and women, most of them from Wisconsin homes, will be granted their bachelor's or higher degrees at the 88th annual commencement exercises of the University of Wisconsin on Monday, June 23, in the State University fieldhouse at historic Camp Randall.

The number of those receiving scholastic degrees from the State University this year will equal the record total of degree recipients set during the past two years. More than 10,000 persons including parents, relatives, and friends of the graduates, are expected to fill the fieldhouse to capacity for the commencement ceremony.

Besides the academic degrees to be granted at the exercises, honorary degrees will be conferred on four American leaders in the fields of medicine, the legitimate theater, and the public service all of them products of Wisconsin by birth, education, or long residence in the state.

The four who will be present at the commencement to receive the degrees are:

Dr. Herbert S. Gasser, New York, director of the Rockefeller Institute, doctor of science; Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne (Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lunt), two of America's foremost stars of the legitimate theater, each to be granted the doctor of letters degree; and Joseph E. Davies, Washington, D. C., former ambassador to Russia and Belgium and special adviser to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, doctor of laws.

Dr. Gasser and Mr. Davies are both graduates of the University, Dr. Gasser receiving his bachelor's degree in 1910 and his master's degree in 1911, while Mr. Davies received his bachelor's degree in 1898 and his law degree in 1901. Both have distinguished careers in the fields of medicine and science, and law and diplomacy, respectively. Mr. and Mrs. Lunt are widely known for their contributions to theatrical work, and are considered among the brightest stars of the English speaking theater. Mr. Lunt was born in Milwaukee, while Mrs. Lunt has made her home in Wisconsin since her marriage in 1922.

The State University's 88th commencement weekend will open with the annual Alumni Institute in the Memorial Union building on Friday, June 20. Saturday, June 21, will be Alumni Day, with alumni of nine classes holding their reunions this year. The nine reuniting classes are 1891, 1901, 1906, 1911, 1916, 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1931. Baccalaureate services for the graduates will be held on Sunday afternoon June 22, in the fieldhouse.

Artist In Extension Class Wins Honors

Long interested in art, but working through the medium of sculpture only since last February, a Milwaukee university extension student recently won the Milwaukee Art Institute medal and $50 for the most meritorious sculpture in the annual Wisconsin art exhibition.

The artist is Mrs. Marjorie Fell Davis, Milwaukee, daughter of Principal and Mrs. S. D. Fell, Oshkosh; her entry, "Susie," a portrait of a child, her first finished piece; the course that helped her on her prize-winning way, "Sculpturing and Modeling," taken at the Milwaukee center of the University of Wisconsin extension division. The entries, of which her's was adjudged most outstanding, were numbered in the hundreds.
