WALWORTH COUNTY CENTENNIAL DAY

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 8,

Williams Bay has a rather important part in the Walworth County Centennial Day at the County Fair on September 8.

The plan for the Centennial was presented to the Walworth County Board of Supervisors at their meeting in March by F.M. Van Epps, and our Supervisor, Mr. Vic Hansen presented the resolution for holding the Centennial.

The first meeting to forward plans for the Centennial Day was held on May 3rd at the Williams Bay School with the Geneva Lake Historical Society as hosts.

F.M. Van Epps was selected by the Executive Committee as Executive Secretary for the Centennial Day at the Fair. Mr. J.S. Hotton is Chairman of the Museum Committee. Prof. S.B. Barrett will label the exhibits. Other members of the Centennial Committee are -L.A. Hollister, Mrs. G. Van Biesbroeck, Mrs. O.M. Waterbury, and Mr. Alfred Pihl. Mr. Carl M. Bjorge has charge of the Bay Scouts who will have a part in the parade. Mr. Eric Werner is in charge of the Horse Shoe Contest., M.T. Peterson is local Chairman of the Old Timers Base-ball Players Reunion.

SECOND ANNUAL "ALL GENEVA LAKE SWIM DRAWS BIG CROWD

More than five thousand enthusiastic fans were attracted to Williams Bay on last Thursday, August 20 when Lake Geneva Swimmers took team honors in the 2nd annual "All Geneva Lake Swim" with a total of 116 points, and Williams Bay took second place with 92 points, Buena Vista third place with 60 points.

Natators from Buena Vista,
Fontana, Cedar Point Park, College
Camp and Camp Eleanor competed.

Patsy Heekin, diminutive
Williams Bay aquatic star won first place for women in diving and swimming, making 24 points.
Her diving form was superb. She was presented with two Bradley Swim Suits and four gold medals.
Her free style, breast and back strokes in swimming were flawless.
Tom Neverdowsky, Lake Geneva won first honors among the men participants in the meet.

Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to all winners in 1st, 2nd and 3rd places in the various events.

The event was the second Annual "All Geneva Lake Swim" and was financed by the Mens Community Club of Williams Bay. It was supervised by the Geneva Lake Safety Patrol of which H.C. Paterson is director.

RETIRED FIRE FIGHTER DIES IN WILLIAMS BAY

Captain Charles A. Hansen, 77, for many years captain of Chicago's most famous fire boats, died at his home here on Saturday evening Aug. 22.

Captain Hansen had lived in Williams Bay since his retirement from active service in Chicago, fourteen years ago and had endeared himself to everyone in Williams Bay during his residence here. He was always interested in the affairs of the village and was an honorary member of the Williams Bay Fire Department and always kept up with the latest developments in fire fighting.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Martha Hansen, Two nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Laif Jensen, Mrs. Grace Hutton, and William Hansen.

Funeral services were held in Chicago on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial was in Mount Olive.

BOY SCOUT BENEFIT HELD

The members of the Boy Scout Troop Committee wish to thank all those who bought tickets for the benefit card party which took place in the Scout Cabin last Tuesday Aug. 18th. Thanks also to the merchants who furnished the prizes, namely- Granzow & Peterson, Mrs. O. Hermanson, Burton's Hardware Store, Burton's Drug Store, Bjorge's Gift Shop, Hollister's, also Mr. Walter Hansen, Mr. H. Billings, and Mrs. Van Biesbroeck.

Those who did not have a chance to cooperate with this particular project and wish to contribute, may do so by sending their contribution to Mr. G. Van Biesbroeck, Chairman of the Troop Committee or to Mr. C. Ripley, Treasurer.

It is of the highest import-

THE BELFRY PLAYERS

The Belfry Players send forth a plea for a moosehead, a small moosehead, to be used in the setting of "The God's Laugh", by Jacqueline Cour and Esther Hotton. They are having difficulty in finding a moosehead small enough for their stage and light enough to be carried about. If anyone has such a moosehead, the players would be glad to call for it, and to return it after the play. Aside from this difficulty, rehearsals for "The Gods Laugh" are proceeding smoothly. The Cast has been chosen as follows-

Marion Lytle, Jacqueline Cour, Bob Betzer, Allan Peacock, Joe Diegnan, Anna Mae Burnae, Bob Birdsall, Betty Singer, Betty Post.

Esther Hotton is director.

The play will be given at the Belfry Theatre on September 16, 17, 18 and 19.

THE WALWORTH COUNTY FAIR LOOKS TO THE FUTURE

From the time the gates of the Walworth County Fair open at Elkhorn on September 7th until they close on the following Thursday night, the entire organization will look upon what is offered the public as advertising for 1937. The Fair which opens Labor Day received its best advertising in 1935 when thousands of visitors to the grounds were thrilled by the races, amused by the midway and amazed at the free attractions.

To say that the Fair just ahead is to be "bigger and better than ever", sounds flat and unconvincing. To be sure, there are new buildings; there will be four instead of three races on each racing day and an unusual wealth of all the addasaardends which go with a Fair. But what of it? You will attend the Walworth County Fair to repeat the fun you have had there in the past--what comes to pass on your coming visit will count for next year.

So, by building up a reputation as the best county fair in the state, the annual event at Elkhorn has become an institution whose excellence is taken for granted. Advertising for 1937 starts on Labor Day.

FLOWER SHOW IS PLANNED BY DELAVAN CLUB

The annual exhibit of cut flowers sponsored by the Delavan Lake Garden Club will be held at the Delavan Country Club Tuesday Sept. 1st, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

It is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of the opportunity to view the splendid showing that will be made. A small fee will be charged for admission.

THE MURDER AT CONWAY'S

Eighth Installment

Saturday morning I was to talk to Marge Eaton, and the morning mail brought a letter to the Chief.

"Dear Chief- Don't waste any time looking for me. I didn't kill this guy Yerkey. But here's what I know about it. I borrowed a horse and followed him, planning to steal his car and get what money he had. I found his car parked in front of Conway's and he was on the porch with a lot of folks. I hung around 'till between two and three, climbed the trellis and cut out the screen, and tossed the knife into the room. As I started to climb in I saw what I thought was a dead woman on the floor, and I sure beat it out of there. I sneaked up the street and got my horse and rode like hell away from that place. This is all I know, Chief. You can't find me anyway. Stacey."

Marge told her story very frankly. "I went into Bill's room to get some money. I needed some badly and I was sure he would give it to me rather than have me scream and wake up the house. I closed the door softly, he seemed to be sound asleep. I started around the foot of the bed and that's all I know. I don't remember being struck nor do I remember falling."

That was all. We were disappointed. We had been counting on her.

Mr. Armentraut really looked beaten when we came together that evening. Stacey's story and Marge's story fitted in pretty well. Who was in the room when Marge went in? "I'll run that Frank Hayes to earth," declared Armentraut. "I don't believe Hayes had anything to do with the crime. Let us pursue another course and if we ever need Hayes I am sure I can produce him." and the Chief settled back in his chair.

"Are you hiding him, Chief?"

"Oh, No. But I don't believe he had a hand in this murder."

"Saturday night- and still no definite clew", said Armentraut.

My amateur detective friend blew in that evening. He was all excitement.

"I'm about ready to produce your murderer," he announced.

Could it be possible that he was going to triumphantly confess this crime just for a sensation."

"You have it all mapped out?" I asked.

"Just about. You see, Mr. O'Brien, we all agree there must be a motive. In this case, robbery, jealousy, or something we know nothing about make up my list. Now this is the way I have my list of suspects."

"Mr. Conway, Mrs. Conway, Jean, Jones and Mrs. Waters--just not the type. Marge Eaton might try to work a guy out of his money, but she is not what I call tough. She wouldn't kill anyone. Nor Murdock wouldn't do a mean thing. I've fished with Murdock. He's a square guy. Stacey, a very possible suspect. His only motive would have been robbery and he hasn't the money."

"How do you know that?"

"Well, I do know it. I'm not guessing. I know what Chief Ryan did about Clark Hayes, too. That was a fine square thing to do, and just like the Chief," observed Tommy.

"Boy, you amaze me. How did you find that out?" My own eyes and ears." He laughed at my incredulous looks. "When three big hunters plan where they will stalk their game they should whisper their plans and make sure the walls haven't ears. Anyone who knows trails and roads can follow and not be seen."

"Have you seen Stacey, too?"

"No, but a little bird told me the Chief had a letter from him. Guilty men don't write to the Chief of Police. So I'm eliminating Stacey. I never did think he was the one."

"You have Harris and Lawrence still on your list. How about the step-mother? What about me?"

"You know too much about the law. No. I never had you on my list of suspects. You would think I was crazy if I had."

"Thanks."

"I'd think you were crazy if you suspected me."

"Just like that," I thought.

"Well, what about Harris and Lawrence? I queried.

"I'll tell you later about them."

"I had to laugh. It seemed such a joke to hear this boy disposing of so many in such an off hand manner, and Mr. Armentraut had acknowledged he was baffled.

On Monday evening The Big Three set in my room. I told them in part what Tommy had told me. The Chief had a great deal of respect for Tommy but Armentraut was plainly bored. He was still hunting Stacey and James and Mrs. Waters.

"For the next twenty-four hours I'll concentrate on Barnett," said the Chief.

"I'll take Harris," I said.

"Though I Havn't anything to start with. I Havn't had him on any list. Did you get the report on the finger-prints on the knife handle?"

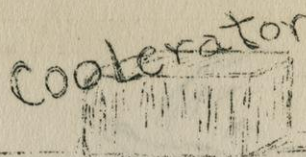

"Yes, they are Stacey's. He claimed the knife."

Twenty-four hours later, again we sat in my room. No progress. Nothing new. Armentraut was disgusted, though not discouraged. There was a commotion in the hall and suddenly the door flew open. There was Harris ahead of a big gun in the hands of Tommy Clark. We sprang to our feet as they marched in and Tommy closed the door.

"Here's your man," was all he said. Harris's face told the rest. "And here's Yerkey's bill-fold. I don't know whether the money is all there or not, and here is the knife.

Armentraut's face was a study. Amazement, doubt, chagrin, anger, chased across his face.

"Well, I'll be damned," was all he said, and then he did a fine thing. He grabbed Tommy's hand. "You are a great detective boy, I owe you an apology."

Tommy's story of his watchin-while hidden in a tree in the back lot was very interesting.
The bill-fold thrown out by Lawrence. Jean burying it in the garden, and Tommy getting it.
Harris's quest for something in the back yard. The story from Jones who was camping up in the canyon. He and Mrs. Waters had stolen down stairs and out on the lawn as they had often done, for a little talk in the moonlight that Monday night. The knife thrown out of the window of Harris's room; just barely missing them, and falling at their feet. The blood on the handle.
Their fear of something wrong, and their sudden plan to leave and go up into the Canyon and stay at the camp until the mystery of the bloody knife was solved. And how glad they were that they had left as they did.
Jones had the knife very carefully wrapped in his handkerchief.
He gave it to Tommy then, the careful watching and listening.
And when Harris dropped his suitcase out of the window, after he had parked his car on the back street, Tommy grabbed him and that was all.

Harris was a pitiful sight.
He needed some money to send his wife up to Arizona and was so tempted when Bill displayed the money. He had the bill-fold in his hand when Bill sat up in bed and reached to turn on the bed-light. He couldn't tell why he stabbed him. He was crazy with fear. Then as he stepped back, the door opened and Marge Eaton came into the room. He hit her over the head with the handle of the big knife that he had in his hand and fled in terror to his room. He knew he had dropped the bill-fold. (continued)

but didn't dare go back. He heard someone in the hall and threw the knife out of the window. But when he couldn't find the knife nor the bill-fold, that he was sure he saw Jean burying in the garden, he made his plans to get away.

It all seemed so simple, but I have often wondered if The Big Three would ever have solved the mystery.

WMS BAY GARDEN CLUB ACTIVE

A group of the members of the Wms Bay Garden Club met with the Lake Geneva Garden Club on Wednesday August 26 at the Lake Geneva Country Club and heard the illustrated talk by Mr. G. Wm Longenecker on the University of Wisconsin ARBORETUM.

On next Thursday Sept. 3rd, the Williams Bay Garden Club will have a Tea in the gardens of Mrs. E.N. McDonnell on the lake shore near Cedar Point Park. Mrs. Horton of the Glencoe Garden Club will give a talk on the Sand Dunes at Waukegan, Ills.

A silver offering will be taken.

LADIES HEAR MRS INGRA PAK SPEAK

A goodly number of ladies from Williams Bay and Delavan were present at the benefit Tea on Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Storrs Barrett's home on Parkhurst Place to hear Mrs. Ingraham Pak talk on Korea. Mrs. Pak was born in Korea and has worked with the women of that country. She told many interesting anecdotes concerning her work and association with them.

Mrs. Pak's charming personality lent much to her story and it is hoped she might visit Wms Bay at some future time.

ANOTHER CORRECTION CEDAR POINT PARK DIRECTORY.

Mr. M.A. Marmann lives at 627 Washington Parkway. Mr. Marmann purchased the Spiers cottage last Spring. He became interested in the Bay when he took the pictures for Pathé of the Ice Boat regatta. These pictures were shown in Movies all over the U.S.A.

One family from Oklahoma stopped off here this Summer and said that he became interested through having seen the pictures in a movie.

BAY LEAVES IS PUBLISHED BY FRANK M. VAN EPPS, 14 Elm Street.

WHAT BECAME OF THE BRIDLE PATH?

A committee of the Men's Community Club made a study of the Bridle Path possibilities and made a tentative report. This sport is on the increase in the Bay and should be fostered.

Let's get a system of Bridle Paths mapped out for next Summer.

PLANT TREES AND SHRUBS

We are pleased to have Lake Geneva Nursery again use "Bay Leaves" to tell the story of not only their special sale but of their regular stock. Last year many readers took advantage of this sale.

The Nursery is owned by Mr. Harry A. Wheeler and is just East of Wms Bay on STH 50. Mr. Walter Hansen, the manager is always glad to have you visit and will give you a lot of real information on trees and shrubs.

As Williams Bay is the address on all their printed matter our village gets a lot of excellent publicity. Keep your copy of "Bay Leaves" with the price list.

USE THE ENVELOPE ENCLOSED FOR YOUR SUBSCRIPTION TO "BAY LEAVES".

"Bay Leaves" is a community enterprise and is supported by volunteer subscriptions and the advertisements.

It is hoped that every one will give something toward it. Six hundred copies are delivered each week during the Summer.

You can mail the envelope, or leave it with any of the merchants. If you have already given ignore the envelope.
