OUR FIRE FIGHTERS

The editor has written an article for another issue of "The Walworthian", the new name for the Magazine for All Walworth County, entitled "Our Fire Fighters". It will appear some time in August. In it a study was made of all the Volunteer Fire Departments in Walworth County.

Every community has it's group of men who are volunteers in responding to the call of the siren anytime of the day or night.

It was interesting to drop in on the groups as they held their meetings and learn about their interest which they showed in their responsibility and their work for the community in which they served. As a rule the meeting was called to order by the Chief and the good of the Department was discussed, possibly there was a fire drill. All Departments stressed the need of more drilling. Then some community project was discussed and ways and means of helping with it were decided upon.

For several years our Fire Department has had in mind the building of a new fire-station and has been working toward the same. Plans have been submitted and rejected and new ones submitted several times. Chief Vic Hansen has kept the new building constantly before the men. Instead of taking any compensation personally for the "calls", the firemen have turned the money into their treasury. For two seasons they have held their Summer Festival, such as you are to have the privilege of helping toward its success this year.

This year finds the new building a reality and it is a splendid looking one and a credit to the community. It has been financed entirely and built by the Williams Bay Volunteer Firemen.

THE MURDER AT CONWAY'S

Third Installment

The next morning- that eventful Tuesday morning, everyone came down to breakfast except Mr. Conway, Marge Eaton, Murdock and Bill. Nothing unusual. But we did think it unusual when Jones announced he had packed his car and was leaving. We had been arranging a camping trip up in the canyon and he had been one of the most enthusiastic about going; he had even purchased some pants and heavy boots the day before. Now, a few hours later, he was in such haste to leave he couldn't take time to eat his breakfast- just gulped down part of a cup of coffee. We recalled his haste later on.

He had paid Mrs. Waters marked attention so we didn't think it strange when she declared her intention of riding with him as far as Bar Beauty Shop, though it was much earlier than her usual time for opening up.

Words and actions that had no meaning at the time, loomed up tremendously in the light of future happenings. One thing I recalled was Jones' remark about Bill not being called 'til lunch. Did it signify anything?

The next surprise was furnished by Lawrence. During breakfast he was taciturn and glum and later when he left with two suitcases and the terse explanation that he was going to Denver by bus, Jean and Mrs. Conway were as much astonished as was I.

It was very evident that he was nervous and distraught, not at all like his usual self. I recalled his black looks the night before and surmised that he was insane with jealousy.

I went up to my room to write. The house settled down to an unusual quiet, broken only by the subdued murmuring of the voices of Jean and her mother. And this was the setting on that Tuesday morning at Conway's, when Mrs. Conway came upstairs to call Bill-, Came up to find he had been murdered as he slept.

How suddenly we were all plunged into confusion. The peace and harmony of the and of the lives of those who dwelt there were gone., shattered and grim tragedy stalked bare and cruel. Murder- what an ugly word!- Murder had been done and immediately we all became objects of suspicion, hedged around by the officers and mandates of the law.

It was about two o'clock when the Chief asked those who lived in the house to gather in the big living-room, and not 'til then did we learn Mrs. Waters had not opened up her Beauty Shop. We figured she had gone with Jones. Their destination no one knew.

The Chief began with Mrs. Conway. She told the same story as I have detailed it.

"Where's Mr. Conway?" then inquired the Chief.

"He went fishing early this morning."

"About what time?"

"He said he would leave about three o'clock."

"Do you know that he did leave at that time?"

"No."

"Why didn't he take his car?"

"I do not know."

"Doesn't he always take his car?"

"Nearly always."

"Did he tell you where he was going?"

"No, I don't think he did."

"Isn't it strange that he didn't take his car nor tell you where he was going?"

"I didn't think anything about it."

"Then he very often leaves at uncertain hours, for unnamed destinations? (Continued)"

"WELL- No."

"And yet you didn't think anything about it when he did do that" I shall broadcast and ask him to return home at once, and for your sake I hope he comes."

Poor Mrs. Conway. She was really a sick woman from the shock and the chief's attitude concerning Mr. Conway's absence was anything but assuring.

"Next the Chief inquired about Jones. "I shall broadcast for him too. Strange he'd leave so suddenly when his vacation was about half spent. And you say Mrs. Waters was in the car when he drove away. Didn't he say why or where he was going?"

We had to confess he had not. We hadn't any idea as to what direction he took, and Mrs. Waters had not said she was going with him. The Chief was sure they would be stopped before they had gone very far.

Jean was the next one to be questioned. She had not heard any unusual noise after she went to bed about midnight.

"You were the last one to see Bill Yerkey alive," he asked!

"Yes, I suppose so. I don't know."

Poor little girl. I felt sorry for her. She was so nervous and she was suffering from the shock of Bill's sudden death. "I may talk to you later," said the chief, as he quietly excused her.

Lawrence's sudden departure from Denver gave the Chief tremendous concern. "The bus doesn't leave til after one o'clock," he said. "Why did he leave the house so early? We'll endeavor to catch him before he reaches Denver and have him brought right back." A few instructions to one of his men and he was ready to resume his questioning.

John Harris had come up to the house when he heard of the murder, but had gone back to his shop and had to be summoned to the inquiry. He didn't seem at all nervous. I admired his composure.

MOVIES AT ANDELL'S

Next Saturday, July 25, the feature picture will be a wonderful race horse story- "The Big Race". A fast moving drama of sports and romance. The feature will be followed by a comedy and a musical entitled- "Fly's Bride" and "On Parade".

Sunday, July 26, the feature picture entitled "The Loud Speaker". This picture is one you will remember and enjoy seeing. The comedy- "Old Hokum Bucket" is a riot of fun and will be enjoyed by all. Also a travelogue entitled "Dutch Treat". ADV.

before he came to Conway's. I did not see him after I left the porch to come to bed. I know nothing about the crime. Havn't even surmised anything. Didn't hear any unusual noise. Yes, I heard Murdock come in after three o'clock. Couldn't say that he came upstairs at once, nor did I hear him go to his room. Instinctively we all looked at Murdock.

In response to the Chief's questions, he said, he had come in about 3:30. He hadn't heard nor seen anything unusual. He had met Bill at dinner the night before. He knew nothing about Bill and nothing of the crime. He was dressing for lunch when he heard Mrs. Conway scream. He rushed out into the hall and to Bill's room. Mr. O'Brien and Jean were ahead of him. Did not see anything of Marge Eaton on the floor. Didn't see the knife. Went down stairs after the police came. Didn't know where his wife was. He thought she was in Denver.

THE BELFRY PLAYERS

The Belfry Players have changed the presentation dates of "Hay Fever", by Noel Coward, to August 5, 6, 7 and 8. Miss Edith Rogers, director of the play, is experiencing the usual difficulties in keeping the cast together and finding rehearsal dates which do not conflict with the many other summer activities of the group.

"Assination", the fifteenth episode of "City Desk", written by Jacqueline Cour, will be presented by the Belfry Players on Monday, July 27, at 4:30, over Station WCLO in Janesville.

The Players expect to announce shortly the date for a second ball to be held at the Riveira in Lake Geneva.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH NOTES

Rev. Keiser's sermon for Sunday, July 26th, will be, - "Anchors for a Stedfast Life". The worship service begins at 10:45 A.M. Sunday School is at 9:30 A.M. Summer visitors are especially welcome at these services.

The Young People's Society has chosen Tuesday evening for the regular weekly meeting. The young people meet at the parsonage at eight o'clock. From there they go to a different interesting place each week for a combined social and devotional meeting. Last Tuesday they had a campfire service and marshmallow roast on the Observatory lake shore. The group would be happy to have any young people visiting in the community to join them for their meetings.

Plans are being completed for the summer Candlelight to be held the evening of August 2nd. Both the Adult and Boys' Choirs are working hard under Miss Lee's direction to make it a beautiful and uplifting service. Several of our summer friends are helping also.

The Boys choir will go to the circus in Janesville Monday August 3rd for their annual summer treat.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET AT ELKHORN

Republicans of the First Congressional district, comprising Rock, Green, Walworth, Racine and Kenosha counties, will meet at the court house at Elkhorn Friday night for an important organization meeting and rally. The conference called by W.J. Tucker of Beloit, chairman of the congressional organization, will be the opening gun of the Republican campaign in the district. Chairman Tucker urges that all Republicans be present if possible.

THIS WE KNOW

Scientists have been telling us that one genius may be found among every twenty-five hundred people, but Williams Bay can boast of even better than that as it numbers among its residents a family which has three geniuses in their three children. They are the son and two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Tulane living on Geneva St. and Parkhurst Place.

Their son, Roy Tulane, who received the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence from the University of Wisconsin Law School in June, earned his way through the University by his outstanding scholastic ability and who at the age of twenty-three years has joined the law firm of Olen & Butler, prominent attorneys at Madison.

Miss Edna Tulane, eldest daughter, has attended Layton Art School in Milwaukee and has earned her way at the school for two and a half years by receiving scholastic awards and prizes for her excellent work and unusual talent shown in her work.

She won among her awards the Leopold Stokowski R.C.A. Prize, which was an opportunity of meeting personally Mr. Stokowski, who is conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and was presented with a very fine model R.C.A. radio. She also won recognition for her interest and knowledge in literature.

Miss Martha Tulane, youngest daughter, who was a Freshman at the State University at Madison last year, was among those mentioned at the Senior Swing Out at the Commencement exercises as one of the Freshmen receiving straight "A's" the first semester at the University.

The recent severe heat wave and drouth caused a crop and property loss and damage of a half billion dollars and 4250 deaths from heat prostrations.

FROM YERKES OBSERVATORY

Peltier's Comet, which has been followed by astronomers for some time, has now become so bright that it is visible to the unaided eye as a faint, wisp-like object high in the northeastern sky at ten o'clock in the evening. The comet is, however, not distinguishable from a faint star to an untrained observer, and it is necessary to use a pair of field glasses or opera glasses to get a satisfactory view.

A second comet was discovered a few days ago by a Japanese astronomer; it is, however, not nearly so well placed for observation as Peltier's Comet. It sets only a few hours after sunset and is never visible against a completely dark sky.

Peltier's Comet will increase in brightness until about the fourth of August, shortly after which it will have moved southward so far that it will be invisible in this latitude.

FISHING REACHED SEASONS RECORD LAST WEEK-END

With guides bringing in the limit every day, it is no wonder that the fishing sportsmen set a new season record last weekend. Both the number of fishing parties and the amount of fish caught soared to new altitudes.

Saturday and Sunday found all the guides getting the limit. Several extended their luck to bringing in a full line twice on Sunday.

The Porter-Prusner pier did a land office business Friday night and as a result they were out of everything by 3:30 Saturday morning. Al McLernon is one of the chief reasons why Williams Bay guides rank so highly. At noon Saturday he had his limit. He is the boy who sailed in with his goal already reached at 3:30 Sunday morning. Is that fishin' or is that fishin'?

Loren Taylor, probably the most noted of the guides, is doing alright by himself. Saturday morning Loren went out to return before dinner with the limit. Sunday, before the sun had risen to a vertical angle, found Loren returning with the limit for all three members of his party. He reached the figure 15 in the afternoon.

Walt Beard, the traveling fish guide, has set the pace for the guides. Walt had his full number by Saturday noon. Again on Sunday he came he came in twice with full amount.

D. Denton has been fairly consistent in his "catches", although he has fallen a wee bit short of the other guides.

In the midst of all this array, Mike Ambrose (the ice producer of this community) set out Sunday morning to try his luck at slinging the line. He hooked a 4½ lb. large-mouth bass. After a battle which lasted a short time, Mr. Bass appeared at the surface and flopped on his side.

WMS BAY YOUNG PEOPLE WED

Mr. Reinhardt Stein and Miss Martha Granberg were married at Belvidere, Ill., on Friday, July 17th.

Mr. Fred Granburg and Mrs. Aron Granberg, Williams Bay, brother and sister-in-law of the bride, were the attendants.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm Stein, Wms Bay. The bride is the daughter of Mr. F.A. Granberg of Wms Bay.

CENTENNIAL LOG CABIN FUND

Reports from all over the County show that the Log Cabin Fund is going over big. In Williams Bay under the leadership of Mrs. O.M. Waterbury considerable over the amount assigned has been raised and comparatively few have been seen. East Troy was the first over the top. Several school districts have twice as much as their goal. Elkhorn is way over the top and still going strong.

You can still give.
