Play, Swing-Out Prominent On Program Of Events Slated For Visiting Mothers Here Today

Many Guests Will Visit Classes This Morning as First of Activities

Special activities for Mothers' Week-end will swing into action this afternoon when a special performance of "Outward Bound" is presented at 3:30 o'clock in the new Bascom theater.

Preliminary activities for the visiting mothers will begin this morning, however, when they visit classes. A list of especially interesting classes has been prepared and is printed elsewhere on this page.

Will Attend Swing Out

Those mothers who are not interested in dramatics will begin their program at 6:30 o'clock tonight when the annual senior swingout takes place on the upper campus.

A call for women to march in the daisy chain being formed for senior swingout was issued yesterday by those in charge of the pageant. Response to date has been almost negligible, according to leaders, and the effectiveness of the ceremony is in danger of being impaired.

Following the senior swingout the mothers and their sons and daughters will hear the annual interfraternity sing. Competition is keen this year and musical effects surpassing those of last year are expected.

Open-Air Drama Offering

The program for the day will close with the initial production of this year's Dance Drama at 8:20 o'clock in the open-air theater.

Tomorrow's program includes the Big Ten track meet, women's field day, house mothers reception for mothers, the president's reception, mothers' banquet and the second performance of Danre Drama. The program will be published in full in tomorrow's Daily Cardinal.

Fraternity Sing Teams Compete

Inter-fraternity sing will be held on Lincoln terrace immediately after Senior Swingout tonight. Two cups are to be awarded which are now on display in Hook Brothers window.

There are seven fraternities entered. The entries are:

Alpha Kappa Lambda, Beta Theta Pi, Acacia, Phi Pi Phi, Delta Sigma Pi, Beta Kappa and Delta Chi.

They will be judged on diction, tone quality, merit of material, intonation, and interpretation. Rufus Dimmick '27, and Richard Church '27, are the committee in charge. The judges are Prof. B. O. Morgan, German department; Mrs. Doris Buriff Caster, and Dr. Sigrid Frazer.

Dance Drama at Open Theater

The first of the two evening performances of the annual Dance Drama to be given by members of Orchesis in the open air theater will begin at 8:30 o'clock tonight. A few tickets are still available at the Co-op and at Lathrop hall.

In case of rain either night there will be a Sunday production. Arrangements are being made for an indoor performance should conditions be unfavorable both Friday and Saturday. The place will be announced later, Bernice Gelder '28, general manager, reports.

The frieze which has been a customary part of the spring program has been replaced by a new kind of group work in which one person directs movement as an orchestra leader directs sound.

Both balloon and scarf work will appear on the second section of the program.

A touch of humor will be added by the Vignettes, a series of short studies also in the second section. They will be made up of individual and group work.

TAKE YOUR MOTHER TO THESE CLASSES

Below is a list of classes, meeting today that may be of interest to visiting mothers. Take your mother to one of them this morning. They are as follows:

9 a. m. Dean Glicksman, English Survey, auditorium Engineering building.

10 a. m. Dean Alexander, Man and Nature, 212 Bascom hall.

Prof. Hagen, History of Art, Auditorium Biology building.

Prof. Pyre, English Survey 360 Bascom hall

11 a. m. Prof. Fish, United States history, Auditorium Agricultural hall.

Prof. Foster, English Survey, 360 Bascom hall.

SENIOR SWINGOUT ON HILL TONIGHT

Daisy Chain Procession by Junior Women to Lead Senior Affair

Senior swing-out will open Mothers' weekend festivities at 6:30 o'clock tonight on Lincoln Terrace.

"All those who are participating are requested to be in their places at 6:10 o'clock as the program will start on time in order to permit attendance of the mothers at interfraternity sing and other functions later," said Elise Roberts, general chairman of swing-out.

The order of events will be:

Daisy chain procession led by juniors and followed by other classes.

Seniors whose names range from A-M and all the freshmen will gather at North hall; seniors from N-Z and all the sophomores will be at South hall. Everyone will be dressed in white and the seniors are asked to wear white stockings and black shoes with their gowns.

Juniors, also in white, will gather behind Bascom and will carry the daisy chain from behind the building down the Terrace to a central arch and remain there during the entire program. The two parts of the chain will be lead by Dorothy Bucklin, president of W. S. G. A. and Ruth Borchers, general chairman of Mothers' weekend.

Elise Roberts, out-going president of Yellow Tassel and general chairman of swing-out, and Charlotte Wolleger, new president of Blue Dragon will end the junior lines.

The two lines coming from the north and south sides of the terrace will be lead by Dean F. Louise Nardin and Elizabeth George, out-going president of Blue Dragon, on the South hall side, and Alice Brown retiring president of W. S. G. A. and Marcella Steele, president of Mortar Board, on the North hall side.

The remaining members of mortar board will form by South hall behind Elizabeth George and

TO CONSIDER NEW ORGANIZATION AT BOARD MEETING

Control Body Will Act on New By-laws Proposed Yesterday

Although Dean S. H. Goodnight has refused permission to hold a student referendum this spring with a view to affecting various changes in the organization of the Daily Cardinal Board of Control, the proposed measures seem near to adoption as a result of a meeting held yesterday between representatives of the board and the editorial staff. The referendum was asked by a recent petition signed by more than 400 students.

John Bergstresser, alumni recorder, acted as mediator and recorder, acted as mediator and reported day before yesterday the cause of certain legal technicalities. Under the articles of incorporation of the Daily Cardinal it would be likewise illegal to change the board so as to give the Cardinal staff voting members on it.

To Act On By-Law

It was agreed at the meeting, however, that there is need for closer contact and cooperation between board and staff. It was decided that it would be both legal and feasible to make the executive editor and business manager ex-officio members of the control body. To this end a by-law will be acted upon at the next meeting of the board which, if adopted will establish such membership, giving the ex-officio members full rights except voting power and the right to hold a board office.

Another problem discussed at length at the meeting yesterday dealt with the manner of nominating candidates for board positions which are filled in the spring elections. It was agreed that it would be a wise future policy for the board to name two candidates for each of the three offices filled each spring. In addition, other candidates may be nominated from the student body at large. A proposed by-law to this effect will also be acted upon by the Board of Control at its next meeting.

Will Satisfy Staff

Staff members expressed the view that the adoption of the two proposed by-laws will satisfy their demands for a more efficient organization of the Board of Control.

Elmer Freytag '27, and James Sipple '28, were the board representatives at the meeting, while Wesley Peterson '28, and Marvin Lehmkohl '28, were present on behalf of the Cardinal staff.

MARGARET FINK '30 HEADS RED GAUNTLET

Margaret Fink '30, Alpha Gamma Delta, was elected president of Red Gauntlet. Eleanor Pennington '29, Alpha Xi Delta, was elected president of Yellow Tassel. The elections were held Tuesday.

STUDENTS, OTHER WITNESSES OF UNION RIOT RECEIVE SUBPOENAS

Subpoenas were issued yesterday for one university student and five other men who will be called before Dist. Atty. G. D. Roberts in the court investigation of the Memorial Union riot which last Friday resulted in the destruction of the bunkhouse and the cook house on the building site.

The persons whose names were secured were not seen taking an active part in the riot, but they were present at the time according to authorities. The police who were summoned did not arrive in time to see the actual destruction of property and therefore, could not

Big Ten Track Teams Gather At Randall For 27th Annual Meet; Competition To Be Close

Dashes, 440 and 880 Yard Preliminary Runs Slated This Afternoon

Wisconsin is host today to the members of nine Western Conference track teams, who will start preliminary competition in the 27th annual Big Ten meet on Randall field at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Drawings for the preliminaries will be made at 12 o'clock today when track coaches meet at the university club. Six track events, the 100 and 220 yard dashes, the 440 and 880 yard runs, the 220 yard low hurdles and the 120 yard high hurdles are scheduled to be run off this afternoon.

Results Uncertain

Though outstanding stars are rather few and far apart in this year's meet, the number of good men entered for every event makes the duster's job an especially difficult one. For every race, there are three or four possible winners, none of which has any clear-cut advantage over the field.

Michigan, winner of the past two meets, has been rather generally favored to make it three in a row, although the development of individual stars on other teams appears likely to cut out a few of the Wolverine points. Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Ohio State, in just about that order, are other teams which may make a dark-horse bid for the title.

Prelims Important

Because of the direct bearing which they will have on the chances of each team in the meet, today's preliminaries will be watched with a great deal of interest. Some men who might score at least a point or two in the final events may be eliminated by getting in a fast preliminary section, and the same thing may work in the reverse.

In the 100 yard dash, seven men of practically even ability must fight their way into the finals. The list, led by Hester, Michigan, includes Hermansen, Northwestern, Kriss, Ohio State; Smith, Wisconsin; Everingham, Iowa; Peper, Indiana; and O'Shields, Minnesota. Hester and Hermansen have done the 100 in 9.9 seconds; all the rest have made it in 10 flat.

100 Yard Event Close

While it is not likely that the Big Ten record of 9.7 seconds, held by Hubbard, Michigan, will be broken or tied, the winner of the dash will probably have to approach 9.8 in order to stay ahead of the field.

Again, in the 220 yard dash, the field is crowded with speedsters. Everingham, Iowa, holds the best

MEMORIAL DAY EXERCISES UNIQUE

To Lay Memorial Union Corner Stone After Lincoln Terrace Ceremony

The Memorial day exercise this year will contain some new features that can be peculiar to it alone. The regular ceremony on Lincoln terrace which will be held at 11 o'clock Monday night, will be followed by the corner stone ceremony of the Memorial union on the union site.

In connection with the latter public presentation of the university's military honor roll and gold star roll will be made and will be sealed in the corner stone.

More than 17 out-of-town parents and relatives of gold star men have already signified their intentions of participating in the ceremony. Two will come from Richmond, Virginia and two from Ann Arbor, Michigan, and many others from points nearer in addition to 15 or 20 from Madison. They will meet at 10:30 o'clock before the program in room 101 Bascom and be escorted to seats of honor at the base of the Lincoln statue.

FISHBEIN TALKS ON "MEDICINE FADS"

Quackery in Medicine is Discussed in University Medical Society Program

The principal feature of the fifth annual program of the University Medical society given under the auspices of Sigma Sigma was a talk by Dr. Morris Fishbein on "Fads and Quackery in Medicine." Dr. Fishbein's lecture, with a great deal of humor and not a little sarcasm interpolated, included a brief history and explanation of quackery since earliest times.

He pointed out that quackery of the charlatan type has grown up as a direct result of the medieval beliefs in fake healing, and "There are charlatans in every profession," said Dr. Fishbein, "in law and ministry as well as in medicine. A charlatan is always egocentric, his followers always of an entirely different type."

Dr. Fishbein pointed out, furthermore, that the United States is the most fertile stamping ground of quackery, and that the diseases "cured" by these charlatans are always purely a product of the imagination and never properly diagnosed. He discussed particularly, so called popular quackery, which influences not medical science but popular thinking — such forms as osteopathy, chiropractic, and faith in healing.

"Osteopathy is a method of getting into medicine by the back door," he said, "and Chiropractic a way of getting into medicine by the basement." But above all he deplored the charlatans within medicine itself, those men who deliberately damage scientific medicine's name, men such as B. H. Palmer, founder of chiropractic, Dr. Albert Abrams and Bernard McFadden.

Mrs. J. A. Reed Hurt By A Girl Bicyclist

Mrs. J. A. Reed, 2136 Keyes ave., reported to police Wednesday night that she had sustained injuries to her side and hand when struck by a bicycle. The bicycle, she declared, was ridden on the sidewalk by a girl who resides in the neighborhood and she asked that police investigate. An investigation was started today.

Minnesota Nine Intent on Victory; Stoll Will Pitch

Victims of Badgers Last Tuesday Prepare to Avenge Defeat

Out of the North today comes a new threat to Wisconsin's Big Ten baseball success. The Minnesota team, already defeated by the Badgers 7-3 at Minneapolis, is scheduled for a return game at 4 o'clock this afternoon on Randall field.

According to advance reports, both teams will send their best pitchers into battle. Capt. George Stoll, Wisconsin's star right-hander, will probably oppose Roggnlien, most successful of the Gopher twirlers to date.

Teams Equal

Although Wisconsin won the first game by a rather one-sided score, the teams rate about equally in batting and fielding strength, and the game today may be decided by any one of the little breaks that are always cropping up in baseball.

Mally Nydahl, the young gentleman who supplied a tombstone for the Wisconsin football team with a 60-yard run for a touchdown last fall, may again prove troublesome. He was one of the few Gophers to hit "Lefty" Clausen more than once in the earlier Wisconsin-Minnesota encounter and he has been swinging a wild bat all season.

While remaining confident in the knowledge that they did it once and can probably do it again, the Badgers will take no chances today. They have shown improved hitting during the past two games, but Roggnlien will doubtless prove to be less easily touched than was Al Redding, the Minnesota pitcher who faced them before.

Badgers Fourth

Wisconsin is now in fourth place among conference teams, close on the heels of Illinois, Michigan and Iowa. A victory over Minnesota today will put the Badgers in a tie for third place.

The Badger lineup will remain the same today unless something unusual occurs. Although several of the men on the team are weak in hitting, they have made up for it by almost perfect handling of the ball. Donagan may take the lead-off position instead of Decker, but that is about the only possible change.

MINNESOTA BACK

ROWING

The annual Western conference family reunion for members only goes through its first course at Camp Randall today.

Much has already been said and more probably will be said, about what each and every young man will do during the afternoon's entertainment. Not one team but what has one or two prime favorites; Ohio State its Wikoff, Minnesota its Bernhagen and Wexman; Iowa its Baird, Cuhel and Mau; Chicago its Burg and Williams; Indiana its Rinehart and Stevenson; Northwestern its Lewis and Rettig; Illinois its Rue and Lyon; Wisconsin its Dougan, Zola, Erickson, and McGinnis; and Purdue its Holtman and Hutton.

The dope bucket, battered relic of fairer days, is likely to receive a bigger and better portion of dents if things continue to go as they have been going all season. The one certain thing about this meet is that you can't be certain about it.

The luncheon for track coaches at the university club today will have some slight bearing on who's whoosht when they pass out the blue ribbons tomorrow. Drawings will be made at this luncheon, for entries in each section of the preliminaries, giving Dame Chance an opportunity to get tangled up with the results.

Chicago and Northwestern established a mutual record for failing to play baseball in a jolly 23-18 affair at Evanston Wednesday. Northwestern used five pitchers and finally pulled Luke Johnsons out of his shortstop position and made a pitcher of him. It was officially reported that one of the men on one of the teams did not make an error, but this statement has been regarded with suspicion.

Minnesota's baseball team slightly more irritated for having dropped before Wisconsin last Tuesday, comes to town today hot on the trail of vengeance. The Gophers were just a little upset by their unexpected defeat, which shunted them from second to seventh place in the conference ratings.

FRESHMAN, JUNIOR CREWS WILL MEET CADETS TOMORROW

Culver and St. John's Will Race Against Wisconsin Eights

Wisconsin's crew racing season will officially open Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when the freshmen and the junior varsity eights meet Culver and St. John's on Lake Mendota.

This will be the first opportunity for spectators to see the strength of the powerful yearling eight. Now that the first year crew is positive of a trip to Poughkeepsie to race against six other yearling crew, an added incentive to win will probably give that group an excellent chance to win the first four-cornered junior Midwest regatta ever held at Wisconsin.

Cadet Crews Strong

The cadets from St. John's and Culver, as usual, have excellent crews. The fact that they are usually younger and lighter than the Wisconsin freshmen mark their battle as an uphill one. But judging from past performances of these cadets they will row with a splendid show of strength and gameness.

Besides the crew race George Berg, director of intramurals, and Joe Steinauer, varsity swimming coach, have worked together to have a series of novel water events, disguised under the name of aquatic regatta.

Five Events Planned

The list in this aquatic regatta includes five events, two of which are limited to fraternity entrants. At 9 o'clock a fraternity sail boat race will be started. Ten minutes later a canoe doubles race extending over a half mile course will take place. At 9:20 o'clock fraternity crews racing in war canoes will compete.

An interesting event will be the cross-country and canoe marathon. This race will start as a cross country race from the gymnasium. After contestants have raced (on foot) up to the dormitories, they will then race back to the gymnasium in canoes.

At 9:40 o'clock a canoe pushball will take place between 12 man canoe teams. Six men on these teams will paddle the canoe, and the remainder will push in the pushball game.

George Berg has a total of seven trophies, ranging from huge silver ones to small cups, which will be presented to the victors. Six canoe paddles will also be included in the list of prizes to be awarded winners in these aquatic events.

Big Ten Track Meet Opens With Preliminaries Today

BOLDENWECK WINS, FREEBORN DROPS

Title-holder, O'Connell, Eliminates One Badger in Second Round Play

CHICAGO, Ill., May 26—(Special)—Capt. Leo Boldenweck and Dave Freeborn, Wisconsin's entrants in the Big Ten conference tennis meet, both sailed through their first round singles matches today. Boldenweck defeated Sherill of Northwestern 6-2, 6-4, while Freeborn fought hard to defeat Hermes of Purdue 6-2, 7-9, 7-5.

In the second round of the singles however, Freeborn was eliminated by the title holder, O'Connell of Illinois, 6-1, 6-1. In the doubles, Boldenweck and Freeborn were eliminated from further competition by losing to the Minnesota pair, Armstrong and Johns, 6-4, 6-4. This same team defeated the Badgers in their meet several weeks ago in a three-set struggle.

Two universities, Illinois and Michigan, succeeded in advancing two men in the second round of the singles. Minnesota, a prime favorite in both singles and doubles, was able to place only one man in the singles.

Twenty-one players, represent nine of the Big Ten schools, went into action at Chicago yesterday morning for the conference tennis championships. All the schools except Indiana were represented.

Frank O'Connell, Illinois, the defending champion, is again a favorite in the singles. O'Connell's chief rivals are Shay of Minnesota, Barton of Michigan, and Place of Chicago. Boldenweck, who has been off form this spring, may be another threat.

Boldenweck, who was a last year's favorite, has shown up rather poorly to date, and is regarded as a probable dark horse in the meet.

time of the season for the event, 21.1 seconds, a time that is one-tenth second faster than the Conference record. Kriss, Ohio State; Holtman, Purdue; Laser and Fester of Michigan and Hermansen, Northwestern, are other strong contenders for the 220 title.

440 Yard Strong

The quarter mile field in this conference meet will be one of the most evenly matched ever assembled. If only six are to qualify for the final in this event it is difficult indeed to pick the possible victors of the preliminaries. None of these men are exceptionally fast but all are equally matched. The conference record for the quarter mile is 47.4 which is almost two seconds faster than Baird's best time in the 440 this year. Baird hails from Iowa, and has turned in a time of 49.6 this season.

Others in the quarter mile race who are conceded a chance to win are Ohlheiser, Michigan; Mueller, Michigan; Abramson, Indiana; Dugan, Wisconsin; Burke, Chicago; Sittig, Illinois; and Stowe, Wisconsin. All of these men have turned in a time better than 50.5 seconds for the quarter mile.

The field is equally fast and matched in the half mile run. Toolley, Ohio State, has raced the distance in 1:57.7 which is seven tenths of a second faster than any other conference half miler has done the distance. There seems to be little danger of Scott's 11-year old record in the half mile being broken. Scott, famous Chicago runner, set a record of 1:53.6 back in 1915.

Among the outstanding runners in this race will be Ray Erickson, Wisconsin's premier half miler. Erickson's best time this year in the half mile has only been 1:59.1 but it is well to add that he has not been beaten this year in his race.

Reynolds, of Northwestern, has turned in a time of 1:58.3 for the 880 and is expected to be among the leaders in the preliminaries. Williams of Chicago, has done the half in 1:59 flat.

Mortar Board

Tonight with the announcement of the new Mortar Board a chosen group of junior women will receive the highest honor which can come to a woman on the campus of this university. They will be named at Senior Swingout.

Again a number of women will be designated as among the leaders of their class. They will have been selected as among the leaders of their class. They will have been selected for their scholarship, service to their university, and their womanliness.

Mortar Board is the only national senior women's honorary society, and the basis for its membership is uniform in its chapters at colleges and universities throughout the country. In no case has the scholarship requisite been below eighty-five. We have been told that this year the average of scholarships of the new members does not go below 87 and rises as high as 96.

Honor sometimes does queer things. It often leaves disappointment and disillusionment with those who have not obtained it. It is elusive even to those who believe they have received it. For often it goes to the head, and then has no place at all. The announcement of elections to men's and women's honor societies always brings doubts about the play of justice in the award of merit. We cannot and will not pass judgment on the result of awards. Those who have not been publicly acclaimed may still find their reward in service, as it is said that real service is its own reward.

We do not yet know who the women to be so particularly honored tonight are to be. Nevertheless, we congratulate them, and hope that they will continue their service to Wisconsin.

Mencken Says a Mouthful

That Calvin Coolidge is the recipient of another rap on the knuckles we can easily discern from a perusal of H. L. Mencken's article in the June issue of the American Mercury. But the mere fact that Mencken thereby makes another pass at the integrity of the present president of the United States is nothing to particularly attract one's attention. It is merely one denunciation in the midst of thousands of others that have flooded the printed page so continuously.

Rather, what we are impressed with in this new spurge of Mr. Mencken is that he names several men in the country who would, in his opinion, sit capably in the presidential chair. And we also take especial note of Mencken's statement in that one of the prominent men suggested by him as potentially big presidential timber is none other than the president of our university, Dr. Glenn Frank.

We can see Mencken's point of view, and we honestly believe that he is right. There is no question that he hit the nail on the head when he said that these men could not be elected because they "are beyond corruption." That was a strong statement for him to make, but he at once exposed the exclusiveness resulting from the present condition of politics, showing that no man can receive considerable support unless he has previously cut sufficiently big political capers as to jerk in behind him a formidable array of vote-gathering, mob-leading party heads. Merely because they would be honestly outspoken in their convictions they would be incapable of securing enough of that popular sentiment which is admittedly so necessary to swing a man into the big seat.

All in all it seems a deplorable situation for which there appears to be no plausible remedy. It is apparent in this day and age that there are not now so many voters who are democrats or republicans because their fathers and grandfathers were democrats or republicans before them. There has been a slight breaking away from the bonds of the old-fashioned political conservatism, but unfortunately with this breaking away there has been a manifestly increased exploitation of politics. Whether or not Mencken's suggestions of Dr. Frank and several others as the best presidential possibilities should merit wide approval is not the point. The whole matter revolves about the undeniable fact that were one of these men the best fitted for the helm of this country he would find election impossible because of his personal integrity and absence from the hoi-poloi of political machinations which are so necessary a portion of a man's past if he is to cut a big figure in the presidential race.

Quite naturally we are proud to have our president named as a man exceptionally well qualified to hold the office of president of the United States, and quite naturally we deplore the situation which makes the election of such a man highly improbable, if not impossible. Our friend, Mr. Mencken, has a complex of saying a lot of bitter and a lot of exciting things. His article on presidential candidates has neither quality, excepting insofar as it casts a few glaring aspersions upon the personality and integrity of Harding and Coolidge; and we are so accustomed to these from innumerable sources that we are not even impressed. But what we are concerned with is the fact that H. L. Mencken has said a mouthful.

A Poor Policy?

Wednesday afternoon Miss Leola Hirschman, a member of the Board of Regents of the university, told the senate committee investigating the Memorial Union strike situation that she had consented to vote to award the contract for the building to Jacob Pfeffer's company only after she had been assured by local labor leaders that Mr. Pfeffer had agreed to employ union labor. She declared that she had had some notion of Mr. Pfeffer's past record with laborers, and that it was "bad." Mr. Pfeffer before the same committee denied any friction with workers on specific projects which were cited.

Miss Hirschman added that not until John P. Butler of the Madison trade unions had assured her that she might vote for the awarding of the contract "with a clear conscience" did she consent to withdraw her opposition and leave Regent Cashman's negative vote stand alone.

Rumors of much the same complexion as Miss Hirschman's statement were afloat among the union pickets at the building site when the strike first started. They assured students that the regents had held up their meeting for an hour and a half while Mr. Butler reached an agreement with Mr. Pfeffer.

These seem to be the latest developments in the present situation, and in light of the fact that Miss Hirschman says one thing which Mr. Pfeffer immediately denies we cannot take a stand on that particular aspect of the controversy. What we do wish to comment on, however, is the conditions under which a bid for the Memorial Union had to be accepted. There is a state law stipulating that contracts for state buildings must be let to the lowest bidder. In that event what lay behind the refusal to vote the contract to Pfeffer, who was the lowest bidder? Obviously a fear that there would be labor difficulties led to Miss Hirschman's request that Mr. Pfeffer agree to use only union labor.

In fact, the situation seems rather intricate and incoherent. What would have happened if the regents had not awarded the bid to the J. Pfeffer Construction company? Frankly, we do not know, and we cannot see that under law the regents had any discretion in the matter. On the presumption that Miss Hirschman, fearing labor dispute, would request an agreement that the lowest bidder use union labor, what would have happened if one of the contractors in northern Wisconsin who are admittedly committed to the open shop had turned in the lowest bid?

All of which comes down to the point that we do not find ourselves in sympathy with a policy which allows state boards to let contracts only after they have been assured that strictly union labor will be employed.

Good morning, the only available typewriter in the ossif at present is a portable—all of which should furnish us with a joke before we get through.

When the society editor gets here and demands a machine there's liable to be some fun. We always thought that she should be running this column anyway. She has lots more chances for wise cracks anyway.

We aren't speaking to Cold-Dope any more since he told us in all seriousness that he thought the Union was a frame up.

No less than five people have come in now, demanding a typewriter—more darn fun. Line forms on the right—they're already beginning to fight over who's next.

"I like a cigarette best just after breakfast."

"I like mine best just after I've fit it."

The results of Jonah's name-changing contest are in and tabulated. After a deluge of letters in which the most prominent people on the campus registered opinions as to the change we finally have reached a total. Five secretaries were busy counting until midnight, and Prexy Frank was nervously pacing the floor. Dean Goodnight is on the verge of nervous prostration all because the final decision was unexpectedly thrust upon him.

FINAL RESULTS

Jonah should change his name to Jonah.

As a consequence of the neck-and-neck tie there was nothing to do but put the decision up to an impartial judge.

We asked Dean Goodnight what he thought about it.

"About what," he asked us.

"About changing our Rocketeer name," we explained—this hurt us

"I dunno," he said, "What's a Rocket?"

So, finally after a long explanation we asked him again.

"Yes, I think not," he said.

Realizing his decision to be a carefully considered one, we have finally decided ourselves that we shall retain the old name.

"Waiter, is that raisin pie?"

"No, that's custard."

Have you noticed the posters that someone is getting out? The one about canoes—"No curfew" and "Plenty of parking space."

Y. W. C. A. AIDS IN VACATION WORK

Group Under Y. W. C. A. to Earn Expenses While Studying Factories

This summer will be the seventh consecutive year in which, through the Young Women's Christian association, students have gone into industry for part of their vacation. This particular group of college girls and alumnae will meet in Chicago to spend six weeks in factories and shops at wage-earning manual occupations.

During the week-end of July 2, 3, and 4 there will be a house party near Chicago to give the girls a chance to become acquainted and to discuss the concerns of the ensuing six weeks. After the house party they will go to the city where they will find their own jobs. They must live on wages they earn and must room among working women near their jobs. Enough money should be brought with each girl to cover her expenses for a week and at least $15 for emergencies.

These students will meet regularly during the six weeks in a small seminar group for discussion and for conferences with labor leaders, social workers, ministers, and employers. Their experience will be related, and interpreted in the light of large social and economic problems.

Through this work these students may share the experience of women workers on whom they depend for many necessities, and they may acquire concrete facts on which to base their study of industrial problems.

Theaters Offer Big Attractions for Next Week

The Strand is to present "The Scarlet Letter" next Saturday to Tuesday. This is Lillian Gish's latest starring venture, and with her play Lars Hanson and Karl Dane. As to just how good the picture is, we can only tell you that some people have been quite impressed with it.

Following "The Scarlet Letter," "The Notorious Lady" comes to the Strand starting next Wednesday. The scene is laid in Africa, and Lewis Stone and Barbara Bedford are principally concerned with the story.

"The Better 'Ole" has been transferred into the movies, with Sid Chaplin in the leading role and is to be shown at the Parkway for a week starting Saturday. As a special addition to the program, there will also be two Italian singers, Navarro and Boorat.

"The Love of Sunya" is now being shown at the Madison, but the program is to change next Thursday with the presentation of Tolstoy's "Resurrection," starring Rod La Rocque and Dolores Del Rio. It's the story of a "Prince of the Blood and a Girl of the Soil."

Al Jackson's Garrick Players are to present "The Home Towners," starting with Sunday matinee.

At the New Orpheum from Sunday to Thursday, the vaudeville features are to be "The Blue Slickers," a song, dance, and music mixture, featuring Marie White, Jerry Derr, and Jack Howe; and Joe Marks and Company in "Then the Fun Began." The moving picture will be "No Control" with Harris Ford and Phyllis Haver.

Starting next Thursday, the vaudeville headliners will be Danny Murphy and Company in "Touring" which is a miniature musical comedy; and Mlle. Ivy and Company, with Jack de Winter, in a toe dancing act. The photoplay is to be a Rin Tin Tin picture, "While London Sleeps."

German Students Present Play in Bascom Theater

It was a bold undertaking to present a German expressionist play of serious literary value with amateur actors. Yet the result of "Die Seeschlacht" was highly impressive and convincing. The seven sailors embodied their seven human types with perfect plasticity. The audience was really thrilled by this glimpse of modern warfare and followed the whole drama with breathless interest.

The play was produced by Dr. O. S. Fleisser with the generous cooperation of the Department of Speech. A banquet was given after the play at the Loraine hotel

O'SHEA PREPARES LANGUAGE BOOK

Investigation on Modern Foreign Languages in U. S. Aided by Students

A volume upon the investigation of modern foreign languages in this country has been prepared by Prof. M. V. O'Shea of the Department of Education. The investigation of language study was carried on by a committee of Language professors, psychologists, and educational investigators. It was financed from a fund given by the Rockefeller Institute years ago.

Prof. O'Shea carried on the investigation of the use that is actually made of modern foreign languages by graduates of high schools and colleges. He conducted a similar investigation some years ago for the Classical Association of America.

More than 20,000 representative graduates of high schools, colleges, and universities throughout the country were selected and were requested to give detailed testimony regarding their experience with modern foreign language for at least two years in high school or in college.

The facts found in the investigation have been organized and interpreted by Professor O'Shea; and the volume presenting the results, with comments and recommendations, is being published by the United States Bureau of Education. It is expected that it will come from the press during the summer.

'Music Master' is Good, Actually Serious Drama

BY ARGON

It is customary when speaking of a movie made from a play, to compare it to the stage production in rather disparaging tones and conclude that it lost a deal of its charm by being put on the silver screen. Unfortunately this joy is lost to the reviewer, as he has never seen Belasco's "Music Master" acted on any stage, legitimate or otherwise. Indeed, he could not even get the thrill second-hand, as it was his mother who accompanied him on his Voyage Critique, and mother never saw the play, either.

They both concurred, however, in pronouncing the movie exceedingly good. It is not a humorous play, and anyone desiring to sprain a collar-button laughing had best go elsewhere. But it is a good, serious attempt at good, serious drama, a rare thing in these days when "stupendous productions, 10,000 men, 350655 horses" vie with six reel slapsticks to catch the public eye and the public coppers.

The whole show is composed of Alec B. Francis, who plays the part of the Music Master in truly excellent style. He acts with his entire body, and performs each scene to its fullest, without ever overstepping the bonds and overacting. There were not even the usual imbecilic titters at every dramatic scene, which is full proof of Francis' art. The main work of the supporting cast was carried by Lois Moran, a very pretty girl whose part called for very little acting. The girl who played Jennie also did a nice piece of work. Unfortunately, we could no ferret out her name.

The rest of the program was just fair. The versatile Mr. Benjamin Turpin of ocular fame reshuffled the usual comedy claptrap that people have grown so used to smiling at that it has become a habit. There is a scene that is really interesting, believe it or not. A Mr. Somebody at the mighty or magnificent or powerful something or other played Marcheta in a truly excellent manner.
